FLOODED RIVER LEAVES DAMAGE

Posse Organized To Seek Thieves Looting Victims' Homes In Stricken Sections

San Francisco, March 1 (AP) — Flood waters rushing through a burst dyke caught up today with an automobile in which a family of six was fleeing overturning it.

Six hours later, after five of the occupants had been given up for drowned, four were found perched in a tree top. Mrs. Frank Fiehart remained missing and was believed to have perished. The sixth person, Frank Fiehart, was rescued by a motorist.

Mrs. Fiehart's death brought to five the toll of the five-day flood in northern California.

The Meridian levee broke shortly after midnight. The 500 residents of the town fled to higher ground.

Meridian, Calif., March 1 (AP) — Five members of one family, including two small children, were believed drowned early today by the North Carolina floods. Their automobile was caught in the path of onrushing waters and turned over one person escaped.

The accident occurred while the family was fleeing floods which poured through a broken levee on a Sacramento river running rampant and spreading destruction throughout the rich Sacramento valley.

Four other deaths by drownings have occurred as a result of the five-day California floods. Three additional deaths have occurred in Oregon.

The flood spreading destruction as it moved down the Sacramento valley today, threatened the city of Colusa, where 100 families were evacuated as water poured over broken and weakened levees.

While authorities struggled to combat the flood along the 150-mile front, looting of victims' homes was reported from Redding near the northern tip of the stricken area.

A posse was organized to seek the two persons were missing and authorities estimated the homeless at more than 5,000.

Frank Ashton-Gwatkin, advisor to the British Ministry of economic warfare, and Professor Charles Rist, former deputy governor of the Bank of France, have been chosen for the mission.

The announcement said they would assist the British and French ambassadors in Washington in examining current problems at which the various United States government departments concern and would arrive "at an early date."

Surviving are four sons, two sisters, two nieces and a number of nephews and grandchildren.

Effects Of War

London, March 1 (AP) — Sir Percy Ashley, British cotton controller, said today that Great Britain "might" shift some of her war-time cotton purchases from the United States to Brazil if a shortage of foreign exchange compelled her to seek a substitute source for her present North American supplies.

Sir Percy said India and Egypt could not be considered as alternative sources for supplies now obtained in the United States.

REDS CLOSING IN ON VIIPURI

Reported To Be Only One Mile From Finnish City

Helsinki, March 1 (AP) — Russia's Red army closed in on shell-battered, deserted Viipuri from three sides today, locking the city tighter in a pincer-like grip while swarms of warplanes supported it with the greatest aerial offensive in days.

The Finnish command's own communique showed the Russians moving on from the southwest over the islands and ice of Viipuri bay and from the south and east along three railway lines, forcing the Finns to make their stand ever closer to the city.

Only a little over a mile separated the Russian vanguard from Viipuri, said the Russian communique.

The Russians and Finns, according to today's high command communique, fought "fierce air battles" in which the defenders shot down 14 Russian planes and lost four themselves.

The Finns said the Russians sent "several hundred" planes over the whole area in extensive bombing raids in which 14 civilians were killed and 16 wounded.

The Russian land drive against the Mannerheim line extended all the way to Taipale, at the eastern extremity. At some points the Russians dropped "a few parachute patrols" which were "all destroyed," the communique said.

The Finns said their air force carried out several reconnaissance flights and "bombed a certain air base, a traffic junction and enemy trains."

Wants Islands

Washington, March 1 (AP) — Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.) drafted today for introduction in the Senate a resolution urging President Roosevelt to open negotiations with Great Britain for acquisition of Bermuda, New Providence island and the Bimini islands in the Bahamas.

Reynolds proposed that the United States take over the islands as part payment of Great Britain's debt to the United States.

RIVERS CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Georgia Adjutant General Also Ordered to Court

Macon, Ga., March 1 (AP) — Judge Bascom S. Deaver today cited Governor E. D. Rivers and Adjutant General John Stoddard for civil contempt of the United States district court here in their defiance of orders against interference of W. L. Miller as Georgia highway chairman.

Judge Deaver issued an order for the two state officials to show cause at a hearing March 8 at Columbus, Ga., why they should not be held in contempt.

Twice this week the deposed official sought vainly to enter the state road building in Atlanta. A national guardsman denied admission both times, explaining he was acting under orders of Governor Rivers, who declared martial law over the Highway department December 18 after Miller obtained a state court injunction against interference.

The governor has made it plain he did not intend to "recognize" federal jurisdiction in the matter. The penalty in civil contempt cases may be a fine or jail sentence at the discretion of the judge.

Vote Is Neared On Pollution Control

Washington, March 1 (AP) — The House was told today that President Roosevelt might veto a pending stream pollution control bill providing for interstate compacts unless the compacts were subjected to congressional ratification.

As the House moved toward a vote on the legislation, which would set up a pollution control division of the Public Health Service and empower it to cooperate with the states on control measures, Rep. Mundt (R-SD) announced the House Rivers and Harbors committee had agreed to a revised form of its amendment to prohibit new pollution of navigable waters without the division's approval.

At a meeting of the House Agriculture committee, Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) raised the question whether a form of government pricing-fixing might not be a better way to aid farmers than any other offered. He emphasized, however, that he was not advocating such aid.

W. L. Clayton, Houston, Tex., cotton broker, appeared before the Senate Finance committee considering continuation of the reciprocal trade program to testify that abandonment of the program would be "a step backward."

The Maritime Labor Board urged Congress to prolong and expand its mediation work and deny government ship subsidies to employers who engaged in practices outlawed by the Wagner act.

CITY ACCEPTS NEW BUILDING

Board Holds First Meeting In New Structure

The Greenville Board of Aldermen, meeting in the new board room of the municipal building it occupied yesterday, this morning formally accepted all contracts for the new city hall and fire station.

The new buildings were the only business brought before the board, but several matters in regard to the new quarters were taken up at the meeting, which was attended by H. M. Ingram, PWA engineer inspector and George A. Snyder, the architect firm which had charge of the buildings.

The board decided to allow non-profit organizations, such as governmental agencies, occupy offices for no rent. The "tenants," however, will be required to maintain their respective offices.

The two new buildings are a part of an improvement program which also include a new fire alarm system and a street department yard and garage. The entire cost of the project was $249,000, of which the PWA provided 45 per cent, or $112,275, leaving $137,250 as the city's share.

Cost of the various projects follow: Fire station building, plumbing and heating $42,680.21; fire alarm system, $9,080; street department yard, $17,143.41; municipal building, $132,975.70; architect's fee, $10,362.12; preliminaries, $88.54; legal fees, $285.05; furniture and equipment, $5,707.37.

Republicans View Southern Farming

Charlotte, March 1 (AP) — A group of Republican congressmen came here today to hear the view of southern farmers on agricultural problems facing them.

The meeting will last through today and tomorrow. Members of the delegation said spokesmen from all branches of agriculture would be heard.

The meeting will be non-partisan, members said, and every state in the south will have representatives at the meeting. The group is a part of a special committee appointed by the minority leader to consider the farm problem in all its phases.

Rep. How of Kansas headed the group which came here.

Bailey Will Press Approval Of Bill

Washington, March 1 (AP) — Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) proposes to press for congressional approval of his bill to authorize $5,000,000 for facilitating the marketing of farm products.

Bailey, with Representative Coolidge and Representative Barden of North Carolina, conferred yesterday with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Wallace, Bailey said, was "neither encouraging nor discouraging."

Little Headway Believed To Have Been Made During Welles-Ribbentrop Talks

Germany Represented As Not Ready To Consider Peace As Long As Britain Maintains Her Stranglehold On Economic Life Of The World; Welles Sees Hitler Tomorrow

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER Berlin, March 1. (AP) — Germany is not prepared even to discuss peace until and unless Britain's "stranglehold on the economic life of the world" is broken—this in effect is understood to have been the central thesis of the first talk today between President Roosevelt's fact-finding emissary and Adolf Hitler's foreign minister.

Moreover, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop is understood to have told Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles that until Britain's dominance is ended Germany is not ready to entertain Secretary Hilla's ideas concerning elimination of autocracy, regimentation and totalitarianism from the post-war economic world.

Sources in von Ribbentrop's confidence developed this idea so strongly to this correspondent that there can be little doubt that Ribbentrop himself gave this line of talk to Welles, with whom he was chatted soon after the American's arrival this morning.

The talk began at noon and lasted until 2:30 p. m.

Later Welles announced that his interview with Chancellor Hitler had been set for 11 a. m. tomorrow (5 a. m. EST).

The American was non-committal on his talk with von Ribbentrop, but said "it was very interesting and I was shown every courtesy by the German government."

SALE SYSTEM HURTS FARMER

Farm Benefit Plan Attacked By Union Organizer

Washington, March 1 (AP) — An organizer for a tenant farmers union testified today that the present system of government farm benefit payments had caused southern landlords to "turn thousands of share-cropper families out on the roads."

D. A. Griffin, Fair Oaks, Ark., witness before a Senate Agricultural sub-committee, considering restrictions on benefit payments, said land-owners had evicted tenants in order to get all the soil conservation and parity payments for themselves.

"You are suggesting a mammoth fraud on the part of southern farmers," Sen. Bilbo (D-Miss) told Griffin after pointing out that the farm act prohibited payments to landlords who ousted tenants to avoid sharing benefits.

"I know what the law says," the witness replied, "but I also know what's actually happening. In three southeastern Missouri counties there have been evictions of 300 families in our membership alone."

Sub-committee members agreed with Griffin that the payment provisions of the farm act needed tightening up or stricter admission to prevent ousting of tenant and share-cropper families.

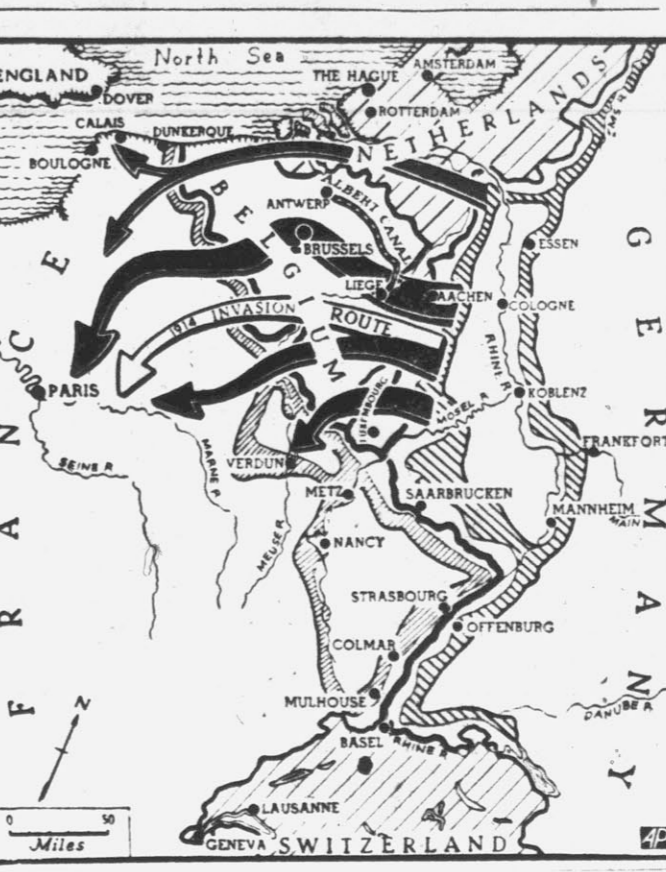

Safety Council Meet To Be Held In April

Allies Prepare For Spring Drive

Allied military experts were reported in London to be concentrating troops and building fortifications behind the Belgium border in anticipation of a Nazi spring offensive through the "low countries." Military men there believe the Germans will follow the plan of attack drawn up by General Count Von Schlieffen in 1908 and followed, in modified form by Von Kluck in 1914 indicated by white arrow above. Modern war instruments compel modifications, but the body of the plan is to contain the grandiose fundamental of a wheeling movement of 1,500,000 men through Belgium with its axis north of Metz and its outer flank enfolding Paris. The above map, based on observations of military men, shows how each advancing Nazi column would protect the right flank of the one to the south, with the most northern drive skirting such fortified short-lines as the Albert canal in Belgium to give it the speed necessary to cover the greater distance.

Paris Decrees Provide For Prohibition Days

Alcoholic Drinks and Pastries Included In List

Paris, March 1 (AP) — Three "prohibition days" a week were decreed today as the government announced details of its war-time regimentation of civilians.

Among 17 decrees published in the official journal were these: The public sale and consumption of alcoholic drinks was forbidden on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Pastry shops were closed Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

A general census as a prelude to the issuance of ration cards was ordered completed by April 1.

First of the ration cards were expected to be for bread.

The decrees were part of the general belt-tightening program announced yesterday, which included a gold revaluation bookkeeping operation that put a 22 per cent higher value of France's gold supply and provided about $1,120,000,000 addition to her war funds.

Other decrees provided for rationing of gasoline and ordered restaurants to limit meals to two plates of which only one can be meat.

HEAVY BLOWS INFLICTED BY GERMAN SUBS

Bombers Also Strike At Britain's Bread Line

U-BOATS ATTACK BRITISH CONVOY

Italian and Norwegian Aircraft Also Sunk As Germany Renews Assaults On Merchant Shipping

London, March 1. (AP) — Bombers and submarines, Germany's twin weapons against Britain's sea-borne bread line, struck telling blows at British and neutral shipping today.

An authoritative British source acknowledged that a British convoy had been attacked at sea. Nazi planes raided the east coast and the 7,418 ton British liner Pyrrhus was reported sunk off the west coast of England.

Meanwhile Britain announced that her big reconnaissance planes had flown during the night over Berlin and other German cities in the most extensive scouting flight of the war.

The authoritative source said the convoy had been attacked, "but no ships were hit." It was understood the attack took place "some way out" over the sea—too far for British fighters to go into action effectively.

(The official German news agency asserted that German bombers had attacked "numerous" British warships, convoys and armed merchantmen today, dispersing a convoy and sinking several large ships.

Caught in the bomb and machine-gun attacks on trawlers was the Norwegian steamer Brott, 1,583 tons.

The 5,340-ton Italian steamer Miella sank within two minutes after striking a mine off the Suffolk coast last night.

Puppet Show at Art Gallery.

A packed house witnessed the performance of the hand puppet show, "My Rich Uncle," given on Thursday afternoon by members of the Puppet Guild at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery. Many people were turned away from the door for lack of standing room.

This play was written by Jimmie Warren of Greenville high school especially for the Puppet Guild. The ten puppet characters employed were manipulated by four members of the Guild in a very creditable manner.

Joe Trotman brought hilarious response from the audience in his rendition of an animated fight between Freddy, the news boy, and Eugene, the bigoted son of a rich man. Joanne Bloom made a lovable little character of Betsy, who played the piano and sang for Freddy. She also gave Mandy, the servant, a real southern dialect.

Betty Lou Sauced operating Aunt Susie created a sensation when she gave Uncle Clay a very bad dose of medicine. Ralph Fleming hit some very high spots in his performance of Uncle Clay, two men of the street, and the rich uncle.

Very appropriately, National representative Ben F. Eagles, who also serves as District Chairman for the Wilson District of the East Carolina Council, was the adult given who will assure safe transportation.

Bobby Eagles, son of Mr. Eagles, and Jack Overman, his grandson, are both members of this Hawk patrol. Jack serves as Assistant Patrol Leader.

Other members who make up the patrol are Edmund Porter, Cal Woodard, Johnny Dekeyser, Winnie Petters and Paul Bissette.

The present Junior Woman's club was reorganized on January, 25, 1939 with 11 members. Mrs. Harry Hagerty was named president. Mrs. Charles Whedbee, secretary. Mrs. Dave Mosler, treasurer and Mrs. Vance Perkins, sponsor.

Last June, the Junior club sponsored a kindergarten at the cotton mill for one month, providing a trained teacher, to instruct the children. The club furnished milk and sandwiches each day, also necessary materials for the work.

The club has assisted in Red Cross roll call and sale of tuberculosis seals at Christmas time. A needy family was taken at Christmas and necessary food, clothing and toys were furnished. The club also sponsored a Christmas tree at the club house for needy children of kindergarten age, providing toys, fruit and candies for twenty-five children.

The Junior club sponsored a leap year dance and the proceeds were given to the Senior club.

Fifteen dollars was recently donated to three white schools in Greenville. The money is being used for playground equipment.

The Junior club assisted in selling tickets for the President's ball. They also are assisting the Lion's club in blind projects and are planning a sale in April of products made in our county.

One of our members was in charge of the Federal Art Gallery project. Two other projects were voted upon but never have materialized.

Ten dollars has been donated to the lunch fund for school children.

MAXWELL FOR ROAD PROGRAM

Explains Endorsement of Albemarle Program

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL.
 Raleigh, March 1.—Commissioner of Revenue Allen J. Maxwell, one of whose principal gubernatorial planks is a $50,000,000 highway program for North Carolina, today told your Reflector that the program for Dare, Tyrrell and Hyde counties, which he specifically endorsed earlier this week, is estimated to cost something like $2,000,000 to be expended in the three counties over a period of five years.

In his Hyde county speech no mention of probable cost was made, there has since been some mention of $4,500,000 as the figure necessary to build the roads and bridges which the Commissioner committed himself to urge in event he is elected Governor.

"Of course, the cost of the program would depend upon the type of roads and bridges built, as well as upon the sites chosen for the bridges," Maxwell said.

"What I did was endorse the program of the Greater Albemarle Association so far as it concerns highways in Dare, Tyrrell and Hyde. I think their program is reasonable in its setup and objectives and I have no hesitance in supporting it.

"I did not, however, commit myself to any certain type of construction, but the kind contemplated by the association would cost not more than $2,000,000 in all. There is a five-year program—and when the talk is of spending two million dollars in three counties in a period of five years then it doesn't sound so costly or at all unreasonable."

He pointed out that some of the projects included in the program are not purely local in nature, but have a state-wide value as well.

Referring again to cost of the projects, Mr. Maxwell cited the proposed bridge across Alligator river as a good example of the effect of location.

"Should a bridge be built at the location of the present ferry, that would present one problem; but should the bridge be located further down stream, that would present an entirely different one. The cost of one would differ very materially from that of the other.

The Maxwell address in Hyde brought to state-wide attention the highway problem which has been agitating the Albemarle section for a long time; and the Maxwell agreement that some three principal highways at least should be built in the three counties of Dare, Tyrrell and Hyde brought unofficial estimates from sources in the Highway Commission that the commissioner had let himself in for promise of construction which would cost $4,500,000 at least.

The incident served again to focus attention upon the general program of the Commissioner of Revenue who has made one of his principal planks in the governor's race the argument that a minimum of $50,000,000 can and should be spent in improvements designed to make North Carolina's highway system completely modern and on a parity with the system of neighboring states which started to build good roads later than North Carolina, but which have by now caught up with this state and in some cases, by reason of their newer construction, gone ahead in certain respects.

After Six Months The War's Eight Unanswered Questions

French soldiers push a cannon into position.

By VANCE PACKARD
 AP Feature Service Writer
 People had talked of it for years. But when it began in the gray haze of September's dawn, half a year ago, many persons were surprised. They didn't think Herr Hitler's plans included actual war.

The end of the peace came when Hitler insisted he could help himself to Danzig and part of Poland. Britain and France said he couldn't. He signed a "non-aggression" pact with his former bitter enemy, Stalin of Russia, but the Allies still said no. So he wrote letters full of threats and sweet reasonableness. France's Premier Daladier exclaimed: "What a torrent!" Thereupon Hitler named Hermann Goering his heir, climbed into a field gray German Army uniform and started his Polish blitzkrieg.

Of the fearful questions posed at the start of the war, practically none have been answered—and new ones have emerged. These unanswered questions tell the story of the war to date:

Can The Maginot Or Siegfried Lines Be Smashed?

A few days after Nazi troops, tanks and bombers began crushing Poland in a pincer movement, French soldiers crept slowly across the 16-mile no-man's land into Germany. Their guns felt for soft spots on the concrete Siegfried Line. When it became clear that Poland could not be saved they withdrew to their own pillboxes. Since then both sides have hibernated in the Maginot Line are 80,000 bunkers and 87,000 phonograph records for bored warriors who are waiting for "spring."

Who's Top Dog On The Ocean?

Warship for warship the Nazis are badly outnumbered. But many Germans have felt they could sink the British Navy by attacking from above and below. His Majesty's first serious loss was the huge aircraft carrier Courageous, sunk September 13 by a U-boat. Then the very imposing battleship Royal Oak was sunk in its own Scapa Flow harbor.

Late in November the Nazis opened a mine warfare campaign that cut Britain back on her heels. But in December British cruisers were chasing the Nazi pocket battleship Graf Spee to shelter and suicide in South America and hounding the luxury liner Columbus to the same fate off Valparaiso.

Are The Allies Strangling Germany?

Believing that victory is on the side of the bigger bread baskets, the Allies began their "contraband control" of sea trade immediately after the war began. Early in December Britain asserted she had lost only 4 per cent of her own shipping while removing from the sea lanes 4,500,000 tons of Germany's Field Marshal Goering's planes. "The Four Year Plan," then confessed, "We must face the facts.

England's power has brought German overseas trade to a complete standstill.

On land the Allies began paying high cash prices for Rumanian oil and Yugoslav grain to keep it out of Nazi hands. Berlin was forced to have merchant and coal-less days, but nowadays most of Europe undergoes some rationing.

Can Hitler's Bombers Knock Out Britain?

Before the war, it said, Hitler threatened to send his bombers to England in waves, every hour on the hour. The waves didn't come. Britain struck first. She bombed German naval bases on the second day of war. It wasn't till October that a dozen Nazi bombers roared into Scotland from the North Sea. Late in November Nazi planes were dropping unanchored mines in the Thames estuary. The war's biggest air battle came December 18 when about 50 planes staged an inconclusive dog fight over Helgoland.

Will The War Spread?

The World war dragged in 32 nations. This war still has only its four original combatants, Germany, Poland, Britain and France.

Italy stayed out despite her "pact of steel" with Germany. Holland and Belgium opened a few of their dikes in November when they them instructions along the line of dramatics.

The contest was won by the Grimesland high school.

The high school masters as well as the high school at Ayden are indebted to and wish to thank L. M. Smith of the Quinn & Miller Furniture Co., of Ayden, and Mr. Roland and the N. F. A. students of Ayden high for the scenery and furniture.

thought the Nazis were coming. The Balkans—always suckers for a good fight—scurried together to keep out of this one. Rumania remains their weakest link because (1) Germany needs her goods, (2) Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria hold land claims on her.

Turkey has agreed to help the Allies if a fight starts in the Mediterranean. The Allies are sending troops to the Near East, possibly to grab oil wells at Bakui in case Russia sides with Germany.

Then, of course, there is the Russo-Finnish war.

Are There Two Wars In Europe, Or One?

Officially the Mannerheim Line is not an extension of the Maginot Line. But some persons feel it may be just that if Germany continues sympathetic with Russia and the Allies continue to send help to Finland. The Reds struck after Finland refused to follow the lead of the three little Baltic countries in allowing the Soviet to establish military bases on their territory. Within a week the Russians were bogged down in Finnish snowdrifts. In February the Russians were on skis and armored sleds and were attacking systematically. Late in the month cracks began appearing in the Mannerheim Line.

Shipping Losses In 5 1/2 Months Of War

British	189
French	17
German	17
Neutral	159
Total	402

The total tonnage of ships sunk in the first five-and-one-half months of the present war was 1,376,862.

In 1939-40 the Germans sank Allied and neutral shipping at a rate of 67 ships, or 266,528 tons, a month.

In the unrestricted submarine campaign of the last 21 months of the World war, the Germans sank on the average, 199 enemy and neutral ships, totalling 406,381 tons, a month. That World war sink-attack campaign nearly forced England to surrender.

Casualties Of The War

Most warring nations have been vague about their human losses. By far the heaviest casualties have been in the Polish-German and Russo-Finnish campaigns. Apparently 2,000 men at most have died on the Western front.

Britain set her losses on land, air and sea at 2,511, on January 22. That number was lower than the number of Englishmen killed in blackout accidents at home.

France put her land, air and sea losses at 1,434 on Dec. 27.

Germany has given no statement on her casualties recently. After the Polish conquest, Herr Hitler set the German dead in Poland at 10,572.

Poland never announced her dead but the number is supposed to be tremendous. Germans assert they took 840,000 prisoners in Poland.

After 23 days of her Finnish campaign, Russia admitted 1,823 killed, while the Finns said the Russians had lost 30,000. Some estimates have run as high as 50,000 Russian dead.

Finland admitted, on December 26, having lost 2,000.

took offense when she opened U. S. mail, delayed U. S. ships and boycotted U. S. tobacco in favor of Turkey's, in January.

How Far Away Is Peace?
 Herr Hitler's plan apparently called for a lightning war. That scheme jumped into a British announcement that the Empire was planning a three-year war if necessary. On January 29, Daladier warned of "a total war—which certainly cannot be long in breaking out." Next day Hitler retorted, "England and France will get the war they asked for."

But Pope Pius XII, Mussolini, the Belgian and Dutch leaders, and President Roosevelt have tried to get the fighting stopped. This month Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles went to Europe to study prospects. He has a deadline to make. For with spring—just a few weeks off—Armageddon may arrive.

Strength For The Day
By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BIG PEOPLE DON'T HIGH HAT

There are many stories about distinguished men who performed some humble service for a person in lowly circumstances. Philip Brooks, greatest preacher of his day, was said to have taken care of a woman's baby one day that she might get a breath of fresh air out in the green country. Abraham Lincoln's letter to the Widow Bixby is a striking example of how thoughtful the truly great can be of the sorrowful everywhere. The rector of Mr. Gladstone's church was one day visiting a street sweeper, and to his amazement learned that the Prime Minister of Great Britain had been there just the day before. "Why," said the street sweeper, "Mr. Gladstone always speaks to me as he sees me working along the street. And when he missed me he asked my mate if I was ill and where I lived. So he came here to see me and read the Bible to me."

We can't say whether or not the system of ABC stores in this county has increased or decreased the consumption of liquor, but one thing is sure and that is that the ABC enforcement officers are doing a good job in the way of breaking up "moonshine" stills in this community.

There has been a fuss in the WPA sewing room in New Bern as to whether the employees would be given time out for repeating the Lord's Prayer at the beginning of the work day. Based upon what we think of the WPA there should be sufficient time for most anything except work. Maybe the objection to the oral repetition of the Lord's Prayer was that it might wake some of the "workers" from their slumbers.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce today began its drive to sell 300 shares of stock in the Greenville baseball club at $10.00 per share. We reiterate our former statements in this column that baseball should be a community project and we urge our citizens to subscribe this stock quickly. Baseball means much to our town both as a recreational feature and a good advertisement and we cannot afford not to give it our wholehearted support.

The fire department is now housed in its new quarters but from an equipment standpoint the department is no better off than before. Bringing our fire department up to standard in the way of equipment and additional trained men would not only furnish greater protection for the lives and property of our people but would pay for itself in the way of reduced insurance rates. The Merchants Association has been giving some study to this matter and it is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when some definite action will be taken along this line.

Washington Daybook
By Preston Grover

Washington Secretary Ickes of the Interior is having a bill drafted to make Alaska a promised land for European refugees.

Already several Senators and Representatives have asked for the privilege of introducing it. In substance the bill would permit organization of colonial development companies based on the idea of the Hudson Bay Company and East India Company in pre-colonial days. Each would be given a particular tract in Alaska to develop and would be permitted to bring refugees from Europe in excess of immigration quotas.

Ickes first began plugging to have Alaska opened up to Jewish refugees a year or so ago. At that time they were the only refugees available in mass quantities. Now the idea is that Poles, Finns if they are overwhelmed, and perhaps a few Swedes and Norwegians might like to come in.

They would be restricted to life in Alaska until their numbers came up on the immigration list, when they would be privileged to apply for full citizenship like any other immigrant. The last is still a tentative provision in the framework of the bill.

Privately-Run
The development companies probably would be largely philanthropic in nature, as the Matanuska colony has demonstrated that making money out of development colonies is no snap job in Alaska, regardless of how brightly it is being painted these days.

The Ickes idea is that privately-run communities would not be nearly so expensive as Matanuska.

There are many tracts available along the southern shoulder of Alaska where it is already demonstrated that a wide variety of crops can be grown.

Presidential Mumbo-Jumbo
Deadly Twenties—A certain Senator who won't be identified as thinking of such things points out that statistically 1940 is a bad year for a president to be elected. Since 1940, every president who has been elected in a "twenty" year has died in office. Here they are:
1940—William Henry Harrison
1860—President Lincoln (after reelection)
1880—James A. Garfield
1900—William McKinley (after reelection)
1920—Warren G. Harding
1940—?

In the same chaotic vein the Senate as if the bill of "Double-O" president may run out this year. He notes WOODROW WILSON, (Harding an interruption), CALVIN COOLIDGE, HERBERT HOOVER, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT. A wag asked: How about DOOLEY?

Indian Lands
Greatest indoor sport at the Indian Office is figuring out inheritances among tribesmen whose ancestors once owned a piece of allotment land. Under various acts of Congress many Indian allotments must be held "in trust" by the government while the heirs pile up and gain title to part of the income—if any. Here is a sample of what happens:
Lizette Denomie, Chippewa Indian, died in 1897. Her land was held in trust in 1910, a law was passed providing for division of certain types of Indian allotment among the heirs. Lizette's little 80-acre estate has been split up until the largest holders have 888 acres, and the least 11 of one acre.
Abigail Crawford, a Sioux, died in 1897 after having three husbands. One heir gets 12544-19,051,200 of the estate.
The big trouble is that consent of 50 per cent of the heirs must be obtained before the land may be leased or rented in an effort to get clearance on a 150-acre tract, heirs were traced into 37 states, Mexico and Canada. The bureau could not get 50 per cent, so it gave up. This land, along with 6,000,000 acres in a similar plight, must remain idle.

Deserves Reward By Now
Los Angeles—(AP)—John Staley is 49 and has been studying law 25 years. He is getting mighty tired of failing to pass examinations for admission to the bar. So he's filed a petition in Superior court to have his name certified to the Supreme court for the right to practice law regardless.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK
By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Tomi leaves the Toland house and goes to a hotel. Despite the antagonism between Tomi and Bartell, he says his responsibilities are not over until he delivers her to the farm.

Chapter Four
'Lass Leaps To Luxury'

AT LEAST, she was free from the family. They'd forgive her in time, perhaps in the morning. Morning brought Tomi a taste of sheer joy. Jumping out of bed to close the windows, she stood a moment, shivering but delighting in the view, looking out on a city white with snow and washed with the gold of the sun. The storm had blown away during the night, leaving ice-blue shadows in the street canyons, a cerulean sky overhead.

"And," breathed Tomi, "for the late time in twelve years I won't have to eat oatmeal for breakfast."

She chose a table near a window when she entered the hotel coffee shop. The sunshine slanted in on snowy linen, shining silver and a slim vase of fluted jonquils. Breakfast was a tall glass of orange juice, crisp toast with marmalade, and a whole pot of steaming coffee.

It was also Tomi's first introduction to the press.

The young man who seated himself across from her with an abrupt, "So you're Tomi Toland," looked as though he had arisen recently, and reluctantly.

"Understand you've inherited a million dollars," he commented. "A million what?" echoed Tomi, and while he went sleepily through a wad of copy paper, she escaped.

Hurrying from the lobby, she was aware of clicking cameras and arms that reached out to detain her; voices that asked her to wait a moment, other voices begging her to pose.

She was aware of further clickings, as she stepped into a cab.

The office provided a steady anti-climax. Midwestern Fruits, Incorporated, was unaware of harboring a celebrity. This gave Tomi time to orient herself.

She must first arrange for someone to take her place. Perhaps A. J. would give her a leave of absence so if she failed with the farm she'd have a job to which to return. Then she must buy something new to help her morale.

She wished she had time to take a course in frog raising; she supposed agricultural colleges had frogs in their curriculum. At least she could purchase books.

At that moment A. J. Morris burst into his private office, his face beaming. "And you said the old boy didn't like you," he ejaculated. "Have you seen the afternoon papers? Left you sole heir to a million—"

Tomi arose in protest. "A. J., please wait a minute." But her employer went on joyously.

"It gives me faith in human nature to see you getting a break, little girl. Hate like the dickens to lose you as my secretary, but I won't stand in your way one minute. What's that girl's name who relieved you last vacation? Call her in; break her in."

"A. J., please—Tomi got no further. Johnny had come into the room like a young cyclone, an afternoon tabloid in his hand. "Looky!" he caroled. "Look what's on the front page about Tomi. Can you beat it?"

A. J. snatched the newspaper from his hand, and Tomi, looking over his shoulder, gasped and read:

LASS LEAPS TO LUXURY ON FROGS' LEGS

Beneath this was a photograph of Tomi's stockinged extremities, generously exposed as she stepped into a taxicab.

'French Femme'
'FROGS' legs!' exploded A. J. "Are they intimidating those are frogs' legs?"

Tomi jerked her employer's sleeve. "Will you listen to me?" she demanded. "I did not inherit a million dollars—understand? I did inherit a million frogs."

Fortunately A. J.'s chair was both handy and spacious, for he sat in it without a backward look. "Those things don't happen," he protested, when he could stop laughing long enough to talk.

"Don't happen to anyone but me," Tomi corrected him. "A. J. sobered. "Tell me about it," he ordered.

Tomi spared herself nothing. She went into every gruesome detail. "There I went leaping into the parlor like an inebriated Mercury, to come to a stop in the arms—"

"Yes, yes, go on," urged Morris. "But Tomi couldn't go on. How could she hope to put a man like Allen Bartell into words; how describe what he appeared to be and wasn't?"

"You can at least tell me what he looks like," grumbled Morris. "I suppose he's tall, dark and handsome."

"He's tall," conceded Tomi. "but he isn't dark. He has golden eyes—no, I don't mean that—he

New York—Dr. Otto L. Preminger, who plays the part of an arrogant, pig-headed German consul in "Margin For Error" on Broadway, and who conducts classes at Yale and lectures to women's clubs when he isn't directing other plays on Broadway, comes fairly close to being a creature of habit.

He takes poison every night at 10-15, and then while a stagehand or some other acceptable substitute impersonates the body for the rest of the play he gets into his street clothes and walks over to the Belasco theater where he catches the last act of John Barrymore in "My Dear Children," which he directed.

at all. "No play is the same on successive nights when Barrymore is the star. Tonight the last curtain may fall at 11-20, but tomorrow it may not come down till midnight. The lines are always different, and the moods vary too. Barrymore's play is one of moods, although I will admit that many of the moods were never put there by the authors."

But, as with all things, including even a Barrymore play, the last act must end sometime, and when this happens, still the creature of habit, Dr. Preminger moves leisurely across town to Fefe's Monte Carlo, where he indulges in a beverage that has the town talking. "I'm being despised by waiters in all the night clubs because, instead of brandy, I'm drinking hot orange juice," he explains. "It's good for my digestion, and I don't get drunk."

Mr. Preminger says "drunk" where you would say "drunk" because he is from Vienna, and he stresses the word "from."

"I've crossed the ocean only once and that is enough. In December I will be here five years and by that time I will be an American citizen. I came over in 1935 to direct "Lilacs" for my good friend Gilbert Miller, and I am remaining over here for the next 60 or 70 years. After that it won't matter."

Director-actor-teacher-lecturer Preminger is 33 but looks somewhat older. Perhaps it is his mature sophistication and his closely cropped head. Every Saturday afternoon, just before matinee, a barber reports to his dressing room in the Plymouth theater and clips his hair as close to the scalp as possible. This helps him look more pig-headed, and lends authority to the character he plays.

Preminger came into this role by a persistent deficiency on the part of various actors, who were auditioning for the part to dozen or so were tried. The play was opening out of town. Clair Booth, who wrote "Margin For Error," turned to him in despair after the newest failure had disqualified himself, and said, "Otto, you've been telling these fellows what to do; why don't you play the part of the consul yourself?"

"Well," said Otto, "we will see." Which he did. And that's that.

Raleigh, March 1.—Times may be better in North Carolina. Folks may be more honest about taxes, or reports may be more honest about taxes, or reports may be more up to date. Anyhow, figures released today by the revenue department show that nearly all sources of general fund revenue paid more money into the state treasury during the first eight months of the present fiscal year than they paid last year. The revenue department, which includes all exempt motor vehicle taxes shows an increase of 9.99% and the motor vehicle bureau receipts were up 7.01%. From all sources the state this year got $43,287,341.07 for the first eight months as compared with $39,757,276.04 last year.

Greenville Baseball Stock Now Available To Public

JAYCEES PUSH DRIVE IN CITY

Team To Be Operated As A Community Project

Chairman Reynolds May and other members of a special committee named from the Junior Chamber of Commerce today went into the stock-selling business—for the purpose of selling stock in the Greenville Baseball club.

At a meeting held earlier this week, a number of baseball enthusiasts went on record as favoring baseball sponsored here as a community project and the Junior Chamber of Commerce was asked, and agreed, to take charge of selling the stock to any one who desired an interest in the club.

Although the club has been organized for some time, no stock ever has been issued and those subscribing now will be on the ground floor.

An attempt is being made to sell 300 shares of $10 value each and officials of the organization involved with the task of making the sales declare they feel they will have no trouble in disposing of that many.

It is the idea to have the entire community behind the baseball club.

HIGHS TO FACE TARBORO FIVE

Both Teams Regarded As Among Section's Strongest

Two of the foremost basketball teams in Eastern Carolina will clash on the Greenville high court tonight. These teams are Tarboro and Greenville, both top performers in Eastern loop play. The sextets of the two schools will open a game at 7:30 with the boys' game following.

Greenville will be in full strength and is a slight favorite. They upset the Tarboro team 32-31 in an earlier meeting.

With Larry James at center, Burney Warren and George Sakas at forwards and Polly Williams and Marvin Stocks at guards, the powerful Phantom quint will be seeking their ninth conference win in 12 starts.

Snag Clark, John Collins, J. B. Kittrell and Carl Whitehurst will be available as subs for Greenville. These boys have handled most of the replacements all season.

Tarboro has been recognized as a leading team because of her fast breaking tactics. Bill Holton leads the offensive parade from his forward post. Thayer, Guill, Edmundson and Hudson also spark the Terror team.

A game originally planned between the junior teams of the two schools has been called off because the Tarboro team has ended the season.

A preliminary battle, featuring the girls teams will be played, however. Greenville has won nine games in eleven starts. They have tied one and lost one contest.

Betty Tyson, Joy Flanagan, Jane Harrison, Lib Wells, Doris Roberts and Peggy West will start for the locals.

Tarboro has a jam-up team, but is the underdog in tonight's battle. These are the final games of the local season. Next Friday and Saturday, March 8 and 9, the Eastern conference playoffs will start in the high school gym.

club instead of just a few public-spirited citizens who have supported the sport for Greenville in the past.

After the stock has been subscribed, stockholders will hold a meeting and name directors and officers to operate the club this season.

David W. Mosier, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, appointed the special committee to dispose of the stock. Others on the group with Chairman May are Jack Powell, Howard Waldrop, R. G. Edwards, Joe Proctor, Red Flanagan and Paul Gaskill.

The cost of operation of the club this year is expected to be considerably lower than that of the past several years and those "in the know" have expressed the belief that the team can pay its operating expenses. No uniforms will have to be purchased this year and the club already has a bus.

Film Crowd Jumps At The Chance To Buy A Ball Club Of Its Own

By ROBIN COONS
AP Feature Service Writer
Hollywood—Hollywood is about to enter its second season with a baseball club and park to call its own.

For many years actors who use to root for the Giants and Yankees in New York had nowhere to go when a gal sang "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

Nowhere they could call their own, that is, Los Angeles had the Angels, and there was a rival club once called the Vernon Tigers. The Tigers were sold to a San Francisco group and re-christened the Missions. In 1937 Herbert Ploeschacker, San Francisco banker, bought controlling interest, moved the club back to Los Angeles, and dubbed it the Hollywood Stars.

But that was Hollywood in name only. Those Stars had San Francisco backing, and no park. They played to poor crowds at the Angels' field.

One night last spring Victor Ford Collins, attorney, burst into the Hollywood Brown Derby looking for Bob Cobb, president of the restaurants.

"Bob," he cried, "I've a great idea! We can buy the Hollywood ball club!"

"But the Hollywood ball club?" returned Cobb incredulously. "What would we do with a—what? a real ball club?"

Cobb slammed at the horsehide right there and made a home run. Within three days he had lined up financial support from Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Taylor, Bing Crosby, C. B. DeMille, Harry Warner, William LeBaron, Roscoe Karns and others.

What did Hollywood know about running a ball club? Nobody knew the answer to that one. Hollywood had never tried.

But a new ball park was built close to the center of Hollywood. The season opened. Crowds poured in. The Stars led the league at first. Even when they slumped to the cellar, the crowds continued to pour in. Baseball-starved Hollywood took baseball big.

Third In Attendance
Despite a cellar team, the club finished third in paid attendance for the Pacific coast. The stockholders voted to use the dividends to buy new players. Bill Sweeney, formerly of the Portland club, has been signed as new manager. Cobb attended organized baseball's Cincinnati meeting and came home with some promising new players.

First lady of the ball park is of course Gail Patrick, Cobb's actress wife. She sits right behind first base at the entrance to the Star's dug-out, and hasn't missed a game when she could get away from the studio.

Ayden's boys climaxed the semi-finals with a 20-16 win over the Pactolus entry. The boys from Ayden coasted to a 15-8 half-time lead after the score was knotted at 4-4 in the first quarter. The big gun in the Ayden attack was Hamilton, who bagged a dozen points over the route. Tripp nestled four for the Pactolus boys.

girls from Arthur boasted a 13-5 lead. Clarke, credited with eight points, was the sharpshooter for the losers.

15. Elsie Leigh Sutton scored 16 points in Arthur's vicious attack. When the half came to the fore the

Finals In Tournery Here To Be Monday Night

Girls Finalists Start At 8, Boys At 9 O'clock

Finals in both the boys' and girls' divisions of the annual Pitt county high school basketball tournament will be run off in the gymnasium at East Carolina Teachers College Monday night. The girl finalists will start their game at 8 o'clock. The boys will run their off at 9 o'clock.

The Bethel girls eliminated Grimesland and gained a berth in the Monday finals by shading Grimesland 36-31 in the opening encounter of the semi-finals held yesterday afternoon. Bethel boasted a 20-12 lead at the half and saw Grimesland forge ahead early in the third period—but not for long. Nellie Ruth Warren bagged 17 points for Bethel. Grimesland's sharpshooter was Alberta Bailey with 18 points.

Play in the boys' tangle of the first semi-finals game found Farmville breezing to a 26-23 lead over Winterville. The boys from Farmville held a 13-7 lead at the half. Setting the pace for Farmville was Paschal with 12. The Winterville standout was James with a half dozen.

A diminutive, but scrappy Arthur girls' team outplayed Farmville's girls and gained a finals berth last night by turning back their foe 27-

MARCH

"BEWARE the Ides of March," the soothsayer warned Caesar—and on March 15 Caesar was assassinated. In recent years March again has had an ominous ring because another conqueror has chosen that month for spectacular deeds increasing his country's might. Those deeds, especially the seizure of Czechoslovakia just a year ago, led to the European war. What will Hitler do in 1940? He himself may not know. But in considering the possibilities, military men point out that the end of winter makes possible large-scale fighting on the western front—and just 22 years ago this month, Germany launched her last big drive of the World War.
