SENATE GROUP ASKS INCREASE IN FARM FUNDS

Committee Approves Boosts of $300,000,000

BILL GOES TO THE SENATE MONDAY

Full Committee Approves Every Item Favored By Sub-Committee in Defeating Opposition

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—The Senate appropriations committee approved today increases of more than $300,000,000 in next year's farm funds as it sent to the Senate for action Monday a farm supply bill totaling $922,864,688.

The full committee approved every item voted by a sub-committee yesterday and it overwhelmingly beat down attempts by Sen. Hale (R-Me) to reduce two of the increases.

Hale sought to trim an un-budgeted $212,000,000 item for parity payments to $108,000,000, but his motion lost, 15 to two.

A similar attempt to pare an $85,000,000 item for surplus removal operations to President Roosevelt's budget figure of $7,200,000 was beaten, 13 to four.

Actually, the farm bill as reported by the committee would help to make more than one billion dollars available for farm activities. In addition to the $922,864,688 in new appropriations, there would also become available certain re-appropriations to raise the total of funds approved by Congress to $958,000,000 and Sen. Russell (D-Ga) explained that other money from trust funds and automatic appropriations would lift the outlay to more than one billion dollars.

The total of new appropriations was $20,940,049, greater than President Roosevelt's budget recommendations.

Russell, chairman of the sub-committee predicted Senate approval of the bulky supply measure within two days next week and Sen. Byrnes (D-SC) said the test vote in committee offered a "fair sample of Senate sentiment on farm funds."

Local "Scarlett" To Be Presented

Miss Ann Russ, Greenville's own Scarlett O'Hara, chosen by popular vote of the Reflector readers in a contest sponsored by the Pitt theatre.

Blount-Harvey department store and the Reflector, is making plans for her formal presentation Monday night immediately preceding the evening performance of "Gone With The Wind."

Miss Russ will receive two tickets to see "Gone With The Wind" and has chosen Tuesday night to see the picture. She declared that her escort would be Alex Dail. In addition to the tickets, she is to be presented with valuable gifts from the Blount-Harvey store.

The local Scarlett was chosen from 14 young ladies nominated for the honor. She received more than one-third of the votes cast.

When she is presented from the stage Monday night she will be dressed in a Scarlett O'Hara costume provided by Blount-Harvey's store.

"Gone With The Wind" will be presented at the Pitt theatre Monday through Saturday.

Tobacco Official On Lions Club Program

Carleton Sawyer, member of the Research department of the Philip Morris and Company, Ltd. will address the Greenville Lions club at its regular meeting to be held in the Woman's club building Monday night at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Sawyer will speak on "Tobacco from a Weed to an Industry" and will review some historical data in respect to the introduction of smoking among all peoples. Statistical evidence will be offered as to the economic importance of the tobacco industry.

Hitler To Speak

Berlin, March 9.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler will address the German nation at noon (6 a. m. EST) tomorrow, Memorial Day, as was announced officially today.

The ceremony will be held in the Berlin armory after which Hitler will lay a wreath on the Cenotaph in memory of German war dead in this war and the World War.

Tobacco Assn.

J. S. Ficklen, president of the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco company here and also president of the Tobacco Association of the United States, announced today that the annual meeting of the association would be held at the Greenbrier hotel, White Sulphur Springs, West Va., June 27, 28 and 29.

The West Virginia resort was selected in a close vote by the Board of Governors over the Cavalier hotel, Virginia Beach, Va., Mr. Ficklen revealed. The meetings are of much interest to all tobacco farmers in the country, since opening dates for the various auction markets are announced during the sessions.

PLAN SUNRISE SERVICE HERE

Local Churches And Civic Clubs Sponsor Event

The various churches of Greenville and the three men's civic clubs of the city, Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions, will sponsor an Easter Sunday sunrise service to be held at 6:15 o'clock, March 24.

The service will be held on the athletic field of the college. It is the aim of those sponsoring the service to make it an annual affair. Dr. Robert S. Boyd, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who is helping to make arrangements for the service, explained that it was a new thing in Greenville, but added he thought it would attract a large number of citizens, regardless of faith or whether they are members of any local church. He declared that similar services were held in other places and were widely attended.

The idea was developed about a week ago at a meeting of representatives of the Ministerial Alliance and of the three participating clubs. Another meeting was held yesterday, at which the hour and place were decided.

Various committees, such as program, arrangements and grounds, have been chosen to handle details of the service.

One of the local ministers will be the principal speaker and special Easter music will be arranged by Dean Tabor, of the music department of the college. It also is planned to have the college, and possibly the high school band. The service is expected to last only 30 minutes, allowing those attending to get back home in time to prepare for attending Sunday school at their various churches.

It also is proposed to have the service broadcast over radio station WPTP, Raleigh, if arrangements can be made.

Mother Local Woman Is Claimed By Death

Mrs. C. D. Tunstall was called to Warsaw this morning by the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Mary Whitley, who died at 4 o'clock.

Burial will be in Erwin tomorrow. Although Mrs. Whitley had been ill some time her death came as a surprise to friends and relatives.

ECTC LIBRARY WELL STOCKED

Has Shown Much Growth Since Earlier Days

The library of East Carolina Teachers College during its early days, like today, just grew, and doubtless it resembled the twin brother Turvy at times. It was a mere handful of books, cradled in the Austin building, and nursed by someone with something else to do.

Miss Helen G. Gray, the first trained librarian, was appointed in 1923. At that time there were 3,550 volumes in the library and the annual circulation was 8,200 volumes. Miss Gray had one student assistant who worked 14 hours per week. The amount spent on the library that year was as follows: For salaries $1,507.50, for books $514.80, for periodicals $115.65, for supplies and equipment $350 or a total of $2,487.95.

The library building was erected in 1925, at a cost of $102,120, and was first occupied in October of that year. The reading rooms, as they equipped, accommodated 160 readers, or more than three times as many as the rooms in Austin building. Two tiers of stacks and (Continued on Page Six)

DELAY SOUGHT BY OPPONENTS OF HATCH BILL

Forces Marshalled To Indefinitely Defer Action

WOULD TAKE UP FARM BILL NOW

Also Predicted That Administration's Reciprocal Trade Act Would Be Acted On First

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—Opponents of the Hatch bill to curb the political activities of approximately 500,000 state employees today in an attempt to postpone Senate action indefinitely.

They hope to forestall a show-down vote until the measure could be laid aside for the time being in favor of the $958,000,000 agriculture appropriations bill.

Senator Minton (D-Ind), a leader in the fight against the Hatch measure, predicted that a majority of the Senate would agree to vote on both the farm bill and the administration's reciprocal trade agreements program before it acted finally on the anti-politics bill.

Sen. McNary of Oregon, the minority leader, said he thought the Republicans would want to begin consideration of the farm bill as soon as possible, even if it meant delay in acting on the politics curb.

What opponents hope to gain by this maneuver was more "to rally their forces against the proposal of Sen. Hatch (D-NM) to extend the present ban on political activity by most federal employees to state workers who are paid in whole or in part with federal funds."

Senate Democratic ranks are split wide apart by the measure and as their party squabble continued Republicans looked on gleefully.

Pitt Legionnaires To Attend Parley

A large delegation of Pitt county legionnaires are planning to attend sessions of the American Legion state-wide Post Officers Conference to be held in Rocky Mount Sunday and Monday.

The Greenville high school band also will take part in the parade to be staged Monday afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, the local post having undertaken to provide transportation for the approximately 50 members. T. J. Swain, local commander, declared that gas would be provided persons driving automobiles, but urged as many as could furnish a car to get in touch either with him or S. L. Bridgers, post adjutant, as soon as possible. Those driving cars and members of the band are requested to be at the high school building Monday at 2:30 o'clock. The band is scheduled to be in Rocky Mount at 3 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded to bands participating in the parade.

The local legionnaire delegation will be headed by J. H. Rose, state commander, who will preside over the general sessions and local Commander Swain. More than a score from this post are planning to attend.

The principal address of the conference will be made by National Commander Raymond J. Kelly, Detroit attorney, who will speak at the Monday evening session. Mrs. C. W. Harris, national vice president of the Legion Auxiliary, also will address the session. The Greenville High School Glee club will take part on the Monday night program.

Various departmental meetings are scheduled for Sunday, to be followed by a Memorial service in the Rocky Mount school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

The general session of the conference, over which Commander Rose will preside, will be held in the Ricks hotel beginning at 9:30 a. m., Monday.

Woman Being Held Admits Her Identity

Columbia, S. C., March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. May (Masie) Walker Burison, 51-year-old artist and former suffragette leader, admitted her identity today as police continued questioning her in the fatal shooting yesterday of Mrs. Richard Burison, 55, the second wife of her divorced husband, a U. S. army colonel.

Chief of Police W. H. Rawlinson said the woman identified herself, but continued to answer all questions about the shooting with "I don't remember."

After the woman's arrest yesterday, she refused to answer any questions, even those concerning her identity.

Three Young Negroes Held In Local Jail

Three Negro juveniles are being held in the city jail on charges of larceny, accused of stealing copper and silver from a soda fountain back of Pay's cafe on Dickinson avenue and selling it to junk yards.

The trio locked up yesterday afternoon, probably will be turned over to juvenile authorities. They are Harvey Ward, John Freeman Hyman and Thaddeus Lee.

America At The Crossroads

Babson Says We Must Choose State Capitalism Or Free Enterprise

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 9.—Eight million idle workers and six-billion dollar idle dollars is 1940's strange paradox. It's the result of a ten year battle between those who want government control of all credit (State Capitalism) and those who want a free hand for private employers and capital.

Governor Hoey Challenges Educational Institutions To Uphold Ideals of Past

Chief Executive Delivers Principal Address At Dedication Of New $350,000 Class Room Building At East Carolina Teachers College; Home-Coming Day Is Observed

"I would have every great institution like this one today dedicating its new classroom building, hold up ideals of our great past, our mighty present and our challenging future and keep ever before it the true purpose of education—to bring knowledge to the feet of service and lift service to the height of knowledge," said Governor Clyde R. Hoey in an address at East Carolina Teachers College this morning, at the program dedicating the new $350,000 building just completed on the campus.

Presented by Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who had been previously introduced by President Leon R. Meadows as a long-time friend of the college and one-time member of the faculty, the Governor was described as a leader whose sterling character stamps itself on everything he does, and one "whose administration has been written in terms of high social service." After paying tribute to East Carolina Teachers College for "its genuine democracy and its great service to the State," Dr. Erwin declared that on this re-letting day in the life of the institution, when it moves from one period of development into another, it is particularly fitting to have such a man for the speaker of the day.

"This is a great institution," said the Governor, "and this is a great day in its history." The institution is moving forward, and the whole state is moving forward; but many needs, and though they shall not attain all their goals, they must press forward slowly and steadily and in a way to save the gains made and utilize them in the advance of our great state.

Then he spoke of the development of the college from its six unfinished buildings and 124 students at its opening thirty years ago to its present magnificent plant and its 1266 students. He pointed out that over 33,000 students have already been housed within its walls and gone out to influence the lives of the children of the section.

He showed a parallel development in the state, pointing out the strides made in education with 185,000 students now enrolled in 900 high schools as "shock troops of peace in a mighty commonwealth" in agriculture, with the state third last year in the United States in cash value of crops grown; in industry and manufacturing, with North Carolina one of seven states now having an income greater than in 1929.

The Governor went on to stress the importance of education such as East Carolina Teachers College stands for, an education in citizenship and the ideals and needs of a democracy such as this state is a part of. "Democracy," he said, "depends on all the people, and not (Continued on Page Six)

BRITAIN LOSES ANOTHER SHIP

Steamer Sinks Following Mine Explosion

London, Mar. 9.—(AP)—The government followed by a mine's explosion sank the British steamer Thurston, 3,072-tons and the French vessel snail with only one survivor of both crews, it was disclosed today.

The Thurston, which collided with the French vessel Monday, rescued her crew, but was in turn sunk Tuesday by a mine. The Thurston carried a crew of about 20. Complete details known to have been held in London, it was known that the British government was giving the situation similar consideration.

Pope To Receive German Minister

Vatican City, March 9.—(AP)—Vatican authorities said today that Pope Pius XII, would receive German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in private audience Monday.

The foreign minister left Berlin by special train today for Rome to confer with Italian Premier Mussolini on problems concerning the axis partners.

In Rome informed Italian sources said Italy probably would retain her policy of non-belligerence after the visit of von Ribbentrop.

This source said the visit, while "important," is not regarded by Italians as an occasion for alarm.

Adolf Hitler was believed in Italian circles to have taken the initiative in sending his foreign minister.

Large Scale Aid For Finns Needed

London, March 9.—(AP)—A reliable informant said tonight that Sweden had advised the British government that allied intervention if it is sent must be on a large scale or else Sweden will make every effort short of war to forestall the transport of allied troops across the frontier.

On the other hand, this informant said, a considerable force, for instance a full army corps of around 80,000 men would be "gratefully welcomed by the Swedes, especially if accompanied by ships and planes."

Presumably this was the way Sweden, which took the initiative in the present negotiations between Russia and Finland, posed the alternative to a costly peace for Finland.

Previously Sweden had announced it would permit no foreign troops whatsoever to cross its soil. Now, today's informant stated, it had told Britain that a force of 10,000 to 20,000 men for Finland would be "but a drop in the bucket" and that any assistance must be in the "form of a considerable force."

MOSCOW SEEN AS SCENE OF NEGOTIATIONS

Sweden's Role in Matter Apparently Completed

RUSSIA STICKS BY HER TERMS

Finnish Negotiator's Whereabouts Unknown After Having Been Reported To Have Left Sweden

Stockholm, March 9.—(AP)—Negotiations toward a Russian-Finnish peace appeared today to have shifted to Moscow with Sweden's role in the matter more or less finished.

Attention was centered on the whereabouts of Dr. John Just Paasikivi, Finnish negotiator who was reported to have left Stockholm and was believed already in Berlin or en route to Moscow.

Paasikivi led the Finnish delegation which unsuccessfully negotiated in Moscow before the war began last November 30.

There were rumors that Riga, Latvia, might be the center of negotiations and that the Finnish delegation already was en route there to meet Soviet representatives.

These reports developed as efforts to settle the undeclared war in Finland drew speedily toward a climactic stage with the probable outcome still shrouded by indecision and official secrecy.

It became known here that Russia had demanded fulfillment of her terms before even accepting an armistice, however.

Two More Blazes Reported In City

The home of Mrs. H. E. Austin on East Eighth street was damaged by fire which is believed to have been set by sparks from the chimney falling on the roof shortly after 12 o'clock today.

It was the eighth alarm of this month.

Fire Chief George Gardner said that the chimney probably was burning out and sparks fell on the shingle roof, setting it afire in several places. He said no damage was caused to the inside of the residence.

Greenville firemen last night answered their seventh alarm of the month, or since they have been in their new quarters.

They were called last night to extinguish a blaze in trash back of stores on the East side of the 400 block of Evans street. They reported that there was little danger of the fire reaching the stores when they arrived, but that if it had not been extinguished it could have spread to some of the buildings causing a serious blaze in the heart of the business section.

Dramatic Contest Is Won By G. H. S.

Greenville High School's Dramatic contest held in Goldsboro last night, "Waiting For Lefty," presented by the Greenville dramatists, won over Goldsboro, Raleigh, and New Bern.

"The Greenville students did superb acting and well deserved the first place honor," stated director R. K. Walsler.

The cast of the play consisted of 16 students of the first and second year dramatics classes. This powerful drama told of the labor conditions in a large city.

This play will be entered in the semi-finals in Raleigh and if victorious will go to the finals in Chapel Hill on the first of April. The Carolina Dramatics Association is sponsoring the contest.

ARTHUR COREY SEEKING POST

Formally Announces For Re-election to Senate

Sen. Arthur B. Corey today formally announced his candidacy for re-election to the State Senate, subject to the Democratic primary May 25th.

Sen. Corey has had considerable legislative experience, having served in the Senate at previous terms. He has headed several important committees.

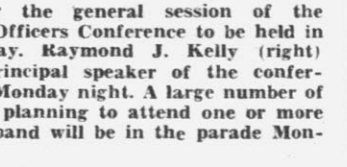

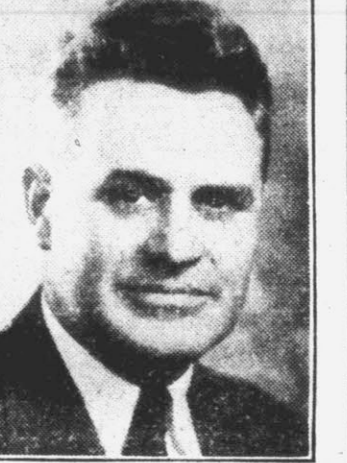

The candidate was born and reared in Pitt county, Winterville township. He received his education at the old Winterville High school and the University of North Carolina. Sen. Corey passed the bar examination in August, 1917, after having enlisted in the army.

After serving in the 113th field artillery in the United States and France, he returned to Raleigh after the signing of the armistice and began the practice of law with Col. Albert L. Cox now of Washington, D. C.

In 1922 he returned to his native county of Pitt and has since engaged in the practice of law in Greenville. Sen. Corey has taken an active part in American Legion and civic affairs.

Commander and Speaker

J. H. Rose (left) will preside over the general session of the American Legion state-wide Post Officers Conference to be held in Rocky Mount Sunday and Monday. Raymond J. Kelly (right) national commander, will be the principal speaker of the conference. He will address the group Monday night. A large number of Legionnaires from Pitt county are planning to attend one or more of the sessions. The High School band will be in the parade Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Allies May Send Troops To Join Finnish Forces

Consider Sending Men If Finland So Desires

London, March 9.—(AP)—The governments of Britain and France gave increasing indications today that they are considering greater aid to Finland if current peace negotiations failed to end the Russian invasion.

The controlled press in Paris predicted the allies would agree to send an expeditionary force if Finland gave the word.

High British quarters made it appear that the London government wanted no Finnish "surrender."

The French cabinet devoted a two and a half hour session largely to the Finnish-Russian war and the accompanying diplomatic struggle of the great powers, the most crucial of Europe's two wars.

While official secrecy cloaked deliberations known to have been held in London, it was known that the British government was giving the situation similar consideration.

More than 100 German seamen reported to be the crews of Nazi vessels captured or scuttled on the high seas, were landed at a northern port by a British naval vessel. They trained for an internment camp.

In Brussels crews of fishing boats returning to Heyst, Belgian fishing port, said today a fleet of 16 Belgian boats had been attacked by a three-motored plane they believed was German.

In Bordeaux, France, it was reported that 21 French sailors, the entire crew of the 275-ton patrol boat Marie Yette, drowned early yesterday when the craft sank after colliding with the 2,580-ton tanker Stramex in the Gironde strait north of here.

The French boat was being used as a river anchorage for balloon barrage defenses. The accident occurred in darkness.

Poet At Vespers

Frau Frau Helene Schen-Riesz, Austrian poet, playwright, and novelist, now living in Chapel Hill, will speak at Y. W. C. A. vespers at the College tomorrow night at 6:30.

Frau Schen-Riesz is now working on two books in her study at Chapel Hill, but takes time off occasionally to speak to groups of various sorts about her ideas in education and literature.

Born in Moravia, married to a Viennese lawyer, and now living in the United States, Frau Schen-Riesz has a cosmopolitan background and a wide knowledge of what is going on in the world.

She has contributed much to her country by work in Austria in cleaning up the antiquated text books then in use—those emphasizing militarism and conquest, and persuading the government to replace them with translations of world classics, which she had to set up her own publishing company to provide in editions cheap enough for common use.

Also in this country are her son and daughter—the one an architect in Minneapolis and the other foreign editor for the London News Review.

Louis Untermeyer, the poet, says "Whatever topic she speaks upon becomes an exciting issue whether she talks in the privacy of her own salon or in the full glare of the lecture platform. She is a pocket-size dynamo."

The Y. W. C. A. invites the people of Greenville to hear this dynamic speaker Sunday night.

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Crow were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Tucker on Thursday night.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., who is in Pitt General hospital is still very sick, we are so sorry to report, and we wish for her a speedy recovery.

Jack Edwards has been very ill with intestinal influenza, but is much better at this writing.

Several school patrons of our community attended the Junior play given in the Auditorium in Grimesland last night.

The play, entitled "Here Come Hattie," was so true to life and humorous a plenty. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Both the teachers and Juniors deserve quite a bit of credit for their talent show. Proceeds will go to the benefit of the Junior-Senior banquet.

The debate held on Tuesday night of this week, as follows: Affirmative—Helen Thomas, Ashley Hudson against Farmville, held at Grimesland. The decision was in favor of Farmville. Negative—Louise Allen, Max Tucker at Farmville. Decision in favor of Grimesland negative.

We understand Gritton won both affirmative and negative. Hurrah for them!

With a guard to keep Watch o'er his body.
He was only asleep.

That He should die.
He is not dead now.
He reigns on High.

Perhaps the guard, all forlorn,
Was wondering how, he would ever stand.

Another day's guard.
Right on hand,
When early at "break o' day"
The two appeared.
To see if his body had been moved away.
There alone, an angel at the tomb
Jesus was not there, He had gone.
The stone was already rolled away.
They could not annoy His body.
This "break o' day".
Alas! 'Twas only God's own plan,
That He should at this time arise.
His journey all finished
Ascend to the skies.

one knows who will win. Issue Biggest Since 1890. The issue of State Capitalism vs. Free Enterprise has never been put squarely before the people. The American public simply voted for a change of administration in 1932—not for State Capitalism. After four years of recovery they voted for more recovery in 1936—not for State Capitalism. Even the talk, I doubt if the public will realize what the real issue is. The Washington crowd has been as clever in their schemes to gain power as were the Wall Street tycoons of the twenties.

Take the recent national investigation, for instance. Most people believe that this probe is a good thing. I approve of it if its motive is to

HORTON SEEKS VOTES IN WEST

Addition Of Proctor To Staff Indicative Of Aim

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, March 9.—Addition of Bob Proctor, McDowell county Democratic chairman, to the field forces of Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton, is clearly indicative of the manner in which the usual solid phalanx of western "regulars" is going to be split up in the current gubernatorial campaign.

So, too, is the appointment of former State Senator James A. Bell of Charlotte to the same Horton forces; though this pertains more to Piedmontese politics than to the "West" which is usually thought to begin somewhere out about McDowell.

There seems little doubt that Proctor will prove a valuable asset to the Lieutenant Governor's campaign to step up from the No. 2 to the No. 1 state office; but the implications of his acceptance are much more far reaching and important.

Chief of these is that the usually solid West isn't going to be sold, or anywhere near it this time. As a rule some one gubernatorial candidate can be pretty well counted on to sweep the State from McDowell westward to the Tennessee line. This has been so because such leaders as Proctor, Supreme Court Justice Wallace Winborne, Maurice Redden, and Ex "Deacon" Green have been in the habit of getting together in peaceful and purposeful conference, and they have always been able to come out with a common candidate for whom all would go down the line.

But this time it's different. Redden is to be western manager for J. M. Broughton, Proctor (and by clear and logical deduction, Justice Winborne who was Proctor's senior partner before he mounted the bench) is for Horton; and the position of Green is not clear, although there are a few random clues which might lead to the conclusion he'll back A. J. Maxwell.

So there will be no solid phalanx this time unless a political miracle of major proportions should be worked between now and May 25. There has been an almost incredible rumor out of Washington, D. C., that sometime between now and the primary Horton, Broughton and Maxwell will get together in one room and when they come out there will be only one candidate where three were running before—but so far there is nothing to support this rumor and it is not being seriously considered.

For the division Governor Clyde R. Hoey is being blamed by an appreciable number of western leaders, who claim that His Excellency had a clear opportunity to prevent breaking up of a machine which has been all-powerful in North Carolina elections. These leaders maintain that the Governor could, and should, have given out the "word" months ago, announcing his preference as to his successor. That, they say, would have kept the other "regulars" out of the race.

What is feared is that Horton, Broughton and Maxwell will so split up the western vote that if one of the less-desirable (from the "regular" viewpoint) trio of Paul Grady, Lee Gravelly and Tom Cooper will give the country information on a business in which there are 63,000,000 policy-holders.

But many people are not sure that the motive is so simple and straightforward as that. Some believe the idea is to frighten insurance executives so that they will invest more of their funds in government bonds, even though that could be very bad for policy-holders.

These people cite the banks as proof of their point. Their contention is that banks now are virtually forced to invest only in "governments," that other investments are too often frowned on by bank examiners. Can it be that the plan is to force insurance companies to buy only "governments" instead of making investments in private industry?

Discrediting Private Investment.
Critics also throw bricks at other government agencies. They say S. E. C. is trying to discourage private financing and to put the government in a position where it can go to the public and say, "Private capital refuses to finance new enterprises and new industries, will not provide new jobs. Hence, we must!" These critics use, as a case in point, the recent instance where S. E. C. refused to approve a bond issue of a utility which was to finance expansion and provide new jobs. They recall that the administration has been very willing to issue bonds to finance government-subsidized power projects.

Employers are especially upset because they believe the people do not know what is going on behind the scenes. They think that the whole scheme is cleverly devised to gain control of the nation's credit system. Regardless of whether there is any such plan or not, the effect is the same. Private money is idle so are millions of workers. These workers will not get jobs until either the government or private enterprise uses this money. I hope it will be used in private enterprise. The latter is far more efficient, has more drive, more brains. There are plenty of white elephants on the record of Free Enterprise, but none so condemning as recent government projects.

Time To Quit
The point I want to make today, however, is that it is time to bring the issue out in the open. Let us halt the "slow-death" process. Let us stop using 8,000,000 unemployed as pawns in this struggle about which they know nothing. Let us end the camouflaged tax bills aimed at government control of credit. Let us call a halt to the disguised investigations aimed at the same objective. Let us put the sixteen billions of cold cash and the eight millions of jittery jobless back to work! Let us prohibit waste and crime of all kinds.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Ruth Gordon just happens to be an extraordinarily able actress, and when she steps off the stage she leaves the character she has portrayed behind her. But every time I see her or talk to her I think of a girl on a toboggan slide with Raymond Massey, and a huge rock at the foot of the slide, and a tragic, fumbling crash that did not kill but maimed them instead and left them embittered for life.

That was "Ethan Frome." That was Raymond Massey married to a woman he did not love and loving a woman he could not have. Ruth Gordon was the woman. They took the easy way out because they thought they could find in the after-life the thing they could not have in this life.

It didn't work out that way. They grew into crippled, bed-ridden people who despised each other and remained that way until, out of pure silliness, they died.

I have seen Ruth Gordon in many plays, but for me she will always be the girl on the toboggan slide. I asked her just the other day what about that play for the movies. "No," she said, "not now. They haven't any right to film 'Ethan in Hollywood.'" I asked her, since I learn how to laugh.

"Well, did you get some laughs only recently she went there to appear with this same Raymond Massey in 'Abe Lincoln in Illinois' and with Edward G. Robinson in 'Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet.'"

"Not the kind you mean," she said. "I just went out to get paid. Like all the rest, but it wasn't like that at all. Charles Laughton was right when he said, 'If 20 actors sat in a room all night trying to think of the most wonderful thing in the world they still couldn't think of Hollywood, because nobody has that much imagination. It is an actor's paradise.'"

"You mean that?"

"Yes, I do. Let's be frank. What has the theater done in the last 10 or 12 years? Not much. After all, the theater, as we know it, started with Shakespeare, but the movies started from nothing. They're still working up. They have a goal. The literature of the world is open to them. There isn't anything they can't do."

Well, I must admit Ruth Gordon surprised me. Most successful theater actresses look down the sides of their noses when they speak of the films. Not Miss Gordon. She is fundamentally too honest and too smart to stub her toe on his form of art. She has the right to picture or portray unhappiness in times like these. What we want to do now is intellectual intolerance.

Perhaps the theater would make more progress if it awakened to the fact that, in films, it really faces a dangerous rival.

CMTC Vacancies Listed In County

LT. Needham E. Ward, Med-Res of Greenville, chairman of the Military Training Camps Association for Pitt county, advised that the recruitment campaign for the 1940 Citizens Military Training Camp, which is to be held at Fort Bragg, has officially opened. The camp will be held from June 12, 1940 to July 11, 1940.

The mission of these training camps is to bring together under healthful surroundings, on a common basis of equality, young men from all walks of life; and, by supervised athletics, military drill, and instruction in citizenship to develop them mentally, morally, and physically; promote wholesome respect for American ideals, teach the value of teamwork, fit them for leadership, and impress upon them the obligations and responsibilities of true American citizenship.

Young men attending these camps are no more likely to be called to the colors in time of war than other men. Through the training received at these camps they become more able to defend their country in a national emergency, if they should volunteer or be selected for service.

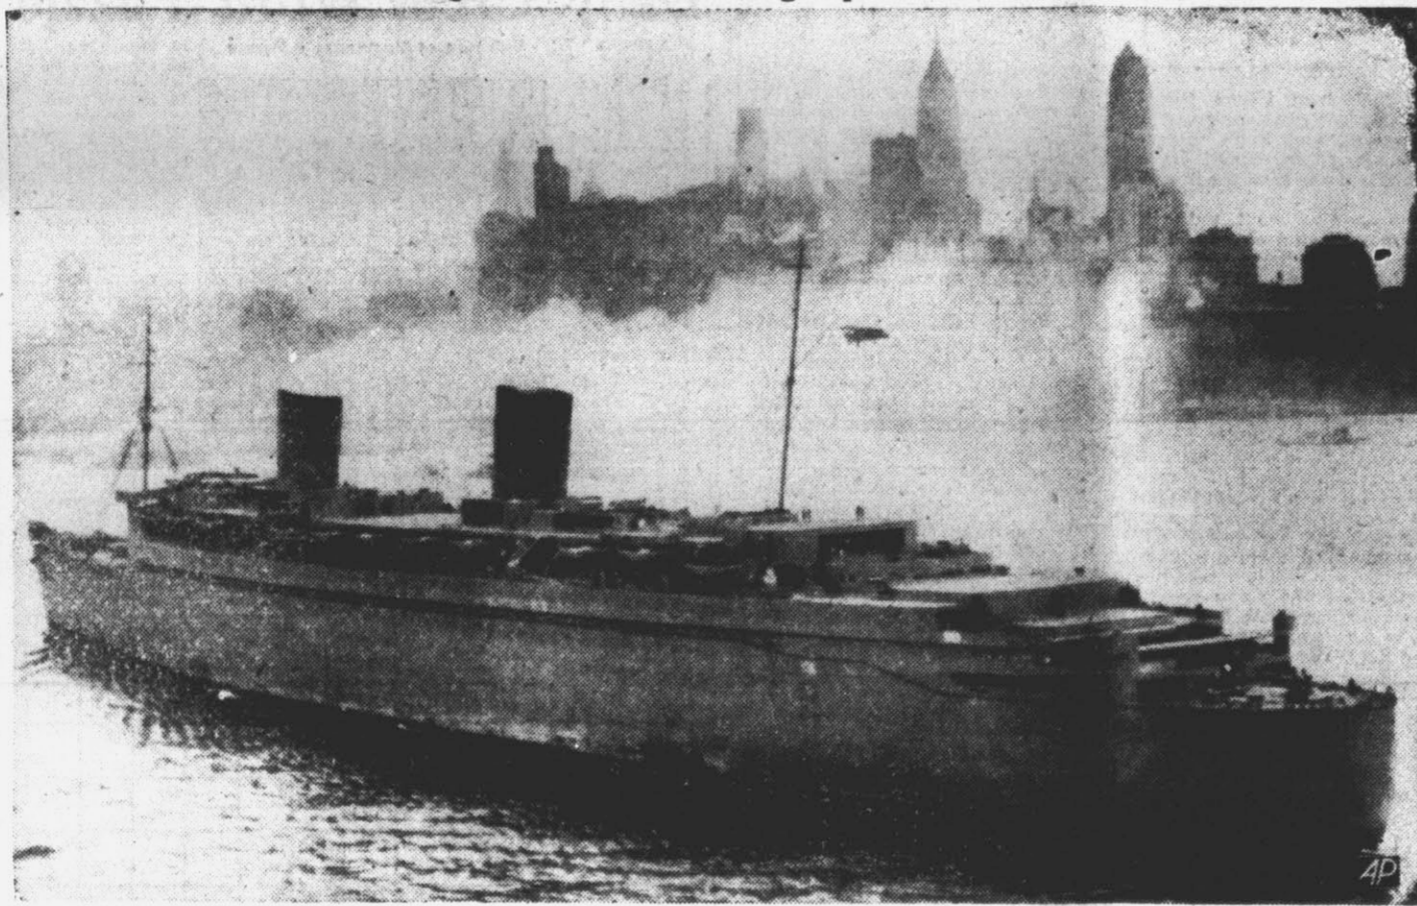

The following named candidates were the first young men to be accepted for enrollment in their respective courses: The Blue Course, Mr. Philip Jackson Starnes, 2301 Central avenue, Charlotte, N. C., who is enrolling for the fourth year. The White Course, Mr. Franklin Durant Bell, 226 West Second Street, Washington, N. C., enrolling for the third year. The Red Course, Mr. William Cullen Wooten, Box 224, Ayden, N. C.

The first candidate to be accepted from South Carolina was Mr. Herman Hinton Householder, Route 1, Spartanburg, S. C., who is enrolling for the White Course and attending camp for the third year. Ask any of these young men about the pleasures and benefits to be enjoyed by attending camp.

A candidate must be an American citizen, physically qualified, and of good character. He must have reached his seventeenth birthday by the day camp opens, and not have passed his twenty-ninth birthday. A physical examination, inoculation against typhoid, and vaccination against smallpox since January 1, 1937, and a certificate of good moral character are required.

Prospective applicants may write direct to the C. M. T. C. officer at Fort Bragg, N. C., for any information they desire, or apply to the county chairman of the Military Training Camps Association. The county chairman will furnish application blanks and the names of doctors who will give medical examination without charge. There are six vacancies for enrollment in the Citizens Military Training camp for Pitt county.

The 'Queen' Comes Sailing Up the River to Safety

Safe after her spectacular dash across the Atlantic from Clyde, England, the huge British liner Queen Elizabeth is shown nosing her way through New York harbor and past the Manhattan skyline to her berth in the North River. The "Queen" crossed the ocean in utmost secrecy and reached New York to be docked, probably for the duration of the war—far removed from German bombers.

Two Factors Feature In Success of Mullet Line

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 9.—Success which has so far attended private operation of the Atlantic and East Carolina Railroad (the old Mullet line) has been due about in equal parts to increased business and to decreased expenditures, E. R. Buchan, vice president, told your Raleigh reporter in a long conversation about the road's affairs.

"In other words we have been able to meet all our rental payments, improve our roadbed and pay all operating expenses not solely because we introduced greater efficiency in management, thereby decreasing cost of operation, but also because the volume of freight tonnage moving over the line has increased steadily," Buchan said.

He attributed this increase in business to the cordial attitude adopted by people all along the line who, he declared, have shown a real "personal" interest in the road's success.

There are real prospects, too, he declared, of still greater increases in tonnage, with resultant increase in revenues.

On the other hand he pointed to numerous healthy savings made through application of what he called "just plain horse sense."

He cited, for instance, the switching situation at Kinston. Under the old management this was done by which three tons of coal (cost about $4.25 per ton) were required daily. In addition a fireman was paid approximately $5 a day, making a total of nearly $18. Now the switching is done—and done better—by a smaller Diesel engine for which the fuel cost per day is hardly more than $1. All in all, Buchan said, the total cost is not more than $2 per day against $18 under the Crowell regime.

This, he added, is typical of many other efficiency moves made under the private management.

Otto Predicts Federation

Archduke Otto von Hapsburg (left), claimant of the ancient throne of Austria, is shown in New York as he predicted a central European Democratic federation would follow a revolution in Germany or an allied victory in the present war. The 27-year-old pretender to the throne of throneless Austria, flew to the United States in a trans-Atlantic clipper from Lisbon for a brief tour that will include a study of American farming. Beside him is his younger brother, Archduke Felix.

Germany's Peace Price?

AP Feature Service

Hitler is believed to have told U. S. Under-Secretary of State Welles that Germany will fight till she wins. And a German victory, he believed to have said, must include recognition by France and Britain of a "German Monroe Doctrine" for central Europe. That would mean German domination over the shaded areas on this map. Germany already dominates the former Czechoslovakia and the German share of Poland, and is in a position to squeeze Hungary. Hitler's reported peace price also includes an Allied promise not to stir up the Balkans and the Baltic region. In Hitler's mind all these areas constitute German "lebensraum"—living space.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE LEADER

"Lo, He goeth before you..."
It was with these words that the angel disclosed to the wondering disciples the whereabouts of Christ after his resurrection. He had gone before them into Galilee.
He always goes before us. When there is a pathway to be blazed through circumstances we have never encountered, He goeth before us. On some dark night wherein we are called to tread paths of agony we can be sure of a guidance which will lead us safely to the light of noonday sun. The mysteries of religion are many, but let us take the first step in faith and every step after that will lead us into the dawn. An impassable gulf may seem to yawn between ourselves and certain achievements, but if we are diligent and trusting we can leave the issue in hands far stronger than our own.

There is a Power in the world supplementing our weak and faltering efforts. It is hard to believe in, but we keep looking down all the time, and very easy to believe and to understand if we look up. The disciples had much to learn, even after they had seen the risen Lord, but they knew that henceforth they would walk as followers of that One who goeth before His disciples.

On April 1 the city will begin its annual mosquito control campaign and if our citizens will co-operate, it is possible for us to have a mosquitoless city during the summer months. Low wet spots in your yard, old buckets, tin cans or other receptacles about your premises that catch and hold water, furnish breeding places for mosquitoes. There is little use in the city trying to eliminate breeding places for mosquitoes unless the citizens will help by cleaning up their premises. We are sure that the full cooperation of all will make our city a healthier and more comfortable place this summer.

With Easter Sunday just two weeks from tomorrow, plans are being made for a sunrise service at the college athletic field on that date. All local churches and civic clubs and organizations are being invited and urged to join in the services. It is the hope of the Ministerial Association that such a service on an elaborate scale can be made an annual event here. Other places have special Easter observance that attract large crowds from the outside and there is no reason why the same cannot be done here if all our people will give their wholehearted support to such a movement.

The Board of Aldermen in its meeting Thursday night appointed committees to take steps toward ridding local news stands of obscene literature, considered unfit reading material for our youth. Throughout the country unfit reading matter is considered to be a growing menace and local attention to the matter is in keeping with steps being taken elsewhere. We hope that when the matter is brought to their attention, local news stand operators will give their support to the movement for we do not believe that it is their desire to sell literature that would corrupt the minds of our youth even though there might be a profit in such sales.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Uncle Sam is conducting a treasure hunt—the most thorough in the country's history.

It's a scientific search for seven minerals essential in the making of war weapons. They are: manganese, tin, nickel, chromium, tungsten, antimony and mercury.

The army and navy munitions board lists all seven as "strategic minerals"—that is, if this country went to war, all would have to be obtained, in whole or in part, from sources outside the United States.

A four year investigation of our deposits is being made by experts of the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines. Ore samples are being analyzed in government laboratories, and the Bureau of Mines is doing research on metallurgical methods.

There have been no startling discoveries since the work got under way last fall. However, Bureau of Mines engineers say there is hope that potential resources of three metals—chromium, tungsten and antimony—will be found adequate for wartime needs. The outlook isn't so bright, however, for manganese or tin. Most of the excavation work thus far has been in the west and southwest.

What We Have—And Haven't Here's the situation on the seven sought-for metals:

Manganese—Probably the most critical mineral deficiency. Little U. S. ore is of a type suitable for making ferro-manganese, the alloy used in steel manufacture. Needed for airplanes, other weapons and precision machinery. Chief hope is future development of methods to improve the considerable quantity of low-grade manganese ores.

Tin—Second most serious mineral shortage problem. Domestic production less than 1-10 of 1 per cent of consumption. Some native undeveloped resources. Most of our supply comes from China. Used in gun metals, solder, bearings, and for protective coating on steel "tin" cans.

Nickel—Hardly any domestic resources but Canada has about 90 per cent of world supply. Essential in toughening steel and manufacture of armor plate. Nickel steel used in large caliber rifles, marine shafting, autos and bridge construction.

Chromium—Current production insignificant but considerable undeveloped chrome ore which could be used in emergency, provided methods are worked out in advance. Essential for rust-resistant steels. Used in armor plate, projectiles, high-speed cutting tools.

Tungsten—Domestic production, about half of nation's consumption could be stepped up in an emergency. Ores widespread in U. S., but commercial production confined to 11 western states. Essential in certain tool steels and incandescent lamps. Our biggest imports from China and British Malaya.

Antimony—Most of our supplies come from a Texas smelter which treats Mexican ores. U. S. resources in this country very limited, but proximity to Mexico gives our strategic position. Used in bullets and shrapnel, and alloyed with lead for storage batteries.

Mercury—U. S. imports about half of its required supplies. Self-sufficiency might be attained for a brief emergency period under stimulation of high prices. Used for detaching high explosives and for many industrial activities. Several substitutes, but for military use mercury is considered safest and most reliable.

He is primarily interested in the set-up and operation of the Safety Drivers Schools which have graduated more than 5,000 persons in North Carolina.

Mrs. Bill Flythe of the Highway Safety Division is in Raleigh building over her enthusiasm at success of a "Safety Week" in Pamlico county, sponsored by the county school authorities. Mrs. Flythe and Charles Spencer, physical education, health and safety director of the Department

Chapter 11
Pierre Prudhomme

TOMI sipped the last of her coffee thoughtfully. "Abe, how many marketable frogs will we have this summer?"

"Around ten thousand," he figured. "Of course there may be more. They're breeding up so I haven't had time to look 'em over since they went down last fall."

Tomi envisioned ten thousand mouths—and what mouths! They seemed to occupy the major portion of a frog's head—clamoring for food. And a million additional mouths of lesser size joining in the plea.

"We'll have to do something," she said. "Abe, what shall we do? Have you any ideas to offer?"

Abe tapped tobacco in an ancient pipe. "Yep," he answered. "If it was me doin' it, and I had the money, I'd hire me a man; one of them fellows who went to college down in Louisiana and knows the ins and outs of ranaculture."

Tomi debated this idea while dressing for town. Bartell still had eight thousand dollars to be used for the upkeep of herself and the farm. Her actual living expenses would not run more than two hundred a month, if that, and she had more than a thousand a month available, prorated through the six months. She could afford to pay a good salary.

As soon as the protesting Abe had been delivered to Dr. Smith, Tomi hurried to the telegraph office to wire a want-ad to a New Orleans paper. It was brief and concise.

WANTED—Technically expert ranaculturist. Salary twenty per month. Write T. Toland, Bay Farm Island, Box 53, Alabama, California.

She went from the telegraph office to Allen Bartell's office, to learn he had been called out of town unexpectedly, then returned to pick up the silent, suffering Abe.

For three days Abe nursed a swollen jaw and a grouch, while Tomi hovered between sympathetic tears and laughter. Then Saturday dawned with sunshine, instead of fog, and with Abe admitting it "hadn't been so bad," Tomi felt later, that this Saturday held too much for one person to assimilate. First came her winning of Abe's Little Sweetheart. The frogs, discouraged by the fog-laden sky, had returned to their beds, but now they were up again.

Mid-morning, the sun warm on the earth, the ponds teeming with quiet life, Tomi slipped into the largest pen. Resolutely, she controlled her fear and, crouching on the edge of the pool, crowned her variation of Abe's song. Soon roared eyes appeared above the lily pads to watch her with an unblinking stare; then, catapulting into the air, came a huge form. It lit on a nearby log.

Tomi waited motionless, her heart beating a fearful tattoo. Little Sweetheart was immense, twenty-eight inches of frog. Sweetheart's eyes were like jewels, but Tomi preferred admiring them from a distance. Little Sweetheart stirred in the grass and with a final spring, lit on Tomi's knee. Bravely Tomi touched her. The frog wasn't clammy, her skin was water temperature but smooth and dry.

A great, quivering sigh of relief went through Tomi, and the frog went through the air back to the safety of the lily pads. "One fear overcome," said Tomi proudly, and left the pen.

'Man For The Job'
THERE was another fear. Tomi surveyed it; four hundred yards of lush green grass, and goodness only knew how many snakes lay in that grass. She must have Abe cut a wide path to the house.

Bravely she started out. Something stirred in the grass and she stopped, then resolutely she went on until something round and soft—and black, she saw in one startled glance—gave under her foot with a coiling motion. Tomi gave one ear-splitting scream and flew for the house.

A man stood there, someone she'd never seen before. "Snakes," she elucidated. "Big ones—out there."

The man, who was young, didn't laugh. He grabbed a hoe which Abe had left leaning against the porch and hurried away.

Tomi closed her eyes, and held her ears until she heard the returning footsteps. "He won't bother you any more," soothed the young man's voice.

Tomi opened her eyes. The deeply blue eyes of the stranger held no golden glints of laughter. He was seriously sympathetic. She sighed with relief.

"Who are you?" she asked. "Pierre Prudhomme," he answered. "I'm the man your father—"

"Miss Tomi," Abe's exasperated voice broke in. "Here ain't a changed one a good a bringin' that hose in. We got to get fresh water to the pools and we can't get it nowhere but from the garden faucet."

"Who said anything about a hose?" questioned Tomi. "This here fellow," Abe explained, "he said as how you were skeered of it."

bell again—this time it's former State Senator James A. of Charlotte. The first was Judge Daniel Bell of Pittsboro who is Horton State manager.

Senator Bell, according to the Horton release announcing his appointment as a member of the headquarters staff "will assist tremendously in our cause."

As the result of considerable contact with the Mecklenburger during the 1937 legislature, our Raleigh reporter goes on record as predicting that nobody will ever get anything but a most cautious statement out of him.

In the 1937 Senate, the Charlotte man's chief claim to fame lay in the fact that he was the only Senator to vote against the Social Security program, and that he spoke vigorously against every controverted appropriation.

No provable facts have been learned yet, but there are persistent reports that after all the tumult and shouting of the primaries have died, there is going to be more news than a plenty popping about State College and its present set-up.

In an institution where some professors, members of the same department, communicate only in writing, this ought not to be startling.

Appropos of nothing in particular except that something about caution was written a paragraph or so back, is the story of the late Jim Fou, prominent Raleigh lawyer. It seems that there had been much contention about the amount of certain legal fees in a big lawsuit, with an agreement finally being arrived at as to the amount. Quoth "Old Jim": "Gentlemen, it is understood that we'll take no stock, no notes and no checks—the cash, if you please."

Greenville And Goldsboro To Meet In Tourney Finals

LOCALS DOWN KINSTON FIVE

Greenies Also Won Over Tarboro Last Night

By BUDDY HARRINGTON
Climbing for themselves a place in the finals to be reeled off tonight in the local gym the G-men took a nip and tuck basketball tilt from the Red Devils of Kinston this morning by a 33-21 margin. The time set for the finals tonight is 7:30. The teams are Greenville and Goldsboro.

The Greenies overcame a 14-9 difficulty at halftime to run things in their favor at the end. The Greenville quint made the first goal and then is when things started for the Devils. The Kinston five took over the lead and held on to it through the first half. Then at intermission the local boys got hold of a bottle of hot stuff, and came back with a bank scoring 12 pointers in each quarter after the half.

Larry James, local six-footer, came in to top the scoring list with 12 of the 33. He was followed by George Sakas who made good 4 field goals. Charles Williams took third place accounting for 6 points. Stocks and Warren concluded the Dallymen's scoring rally with 5 and 2 points respectively.

Outstanding on defense for Greenville was Marvin Stocks, who stuck to Chapin like a leech putting an end to the spark which might have burned the Greenies badly.

Topping the Firemen was Chapin, Kinston's star center, who burned the local baskets for 9 points. Shute, Paylor, Wetherington and Carrow hooked the net for 5, 4, 2 and 1 points respectively to help make up 21 points for the opponents.

Kinston has downed the G-men twice this season. The first time by 23-20 margin and the second by a 32-23 score. So you fans can say that the old saying, "What happens twice happens thrice," is a fake, but obey are the locals glad.

Dally's boys placed their skill and wit against a strong Snake team last night from Tarboro to come out victorious in a 22-13 affair. This entitled them to go on until this morning when they met the Red Devils of Kinston and bagged them.

Goldsboro tromped Elizabeth City last night to save themselves a place in the finals coming off tonight. They will clash with Greenville.

Greenville has split two games with Goldsboro's Earthquakes. The first one was claimed by Goldsboro and the second one by Greenville.

Goldsboro has two teams one being about as good as the other. Among their stars are Clyde King and Johnson, high scorers in last

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coos

Hollywood.—The girl in the blue dress and wide straw hat sat at the tea-room table, over by the window, and her expectant, worried glances at the passers-by outside told that she was waiting for someone who was late.

To one standing behind the camera, as this scene in "Waterloo Bridge" was being made, the girl looked very much like one Scarlett O'Hara, a resemblance not odd since the girl was Vivien Leigh. But the impression, as the dramatic scene progressed, quickly dimmed—by way of answer, perhaps, to those who feared the English girl might be a one-hit actress.

This argument, oddly, has appeared in the usual table talk about the annual distribution of academy Oscars. This one, and the stranger thesis that Miss Leigh, not being an American, ought not to merit consideration. (As Sam Wood, the director of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," says explosively when the subject is mentioned, "If they want it that way they ought to make it an award for the best performance by an American—if it's for acting they can't rule out Robert Donat!")

This piece is no brief for Miss Leigh's candidacy for the Oscar. To judge by the rash of old Leigh pictures now blossoming on the marquee from Broadway to the local Main street, Miss Leigh can get along quite well without benefit of Oscar. In fact, personally if anyone cares I'd like to see Bette Davis add another statuette to her collection.

—just to keep up what has grown into a fine old local tradition.

But this Leigh girl—watching her scene for "Waterloo Bridge" was enough for me. Even if I hadn't seen her in "The Sidewalks of London" or "Fire Over England," this scene would have convinced me that the "one-picture-actress" notion was the bunk.

Opposite Miss Leigh is Robert Taylor—with a mustache.

The mustache, in the opinion of the director Mervyn LeRoy, is going to mark a turning point in Bob's career.

LeRoy is back behind the camera, after a brief fling at desk sitting, his chief accomplishment there, the production of "The Wizard of Oz."

Now a producer really lords it over the works, but Mervyn LeRoy found no joy in it.

"I'd work 16 hours a day in a picture," he says, "and yet I'd know all the time I couldn't be really happy unless I was out there on the set, directing it too. It wasn't that I found fault with the direction—I had Victor Fleming, one of the

National Loop Fans Can Take Pride In '39 Performances Of Transfers

By GEORGE B. ZILKIE AP Feature Service

The National league has nothing to be ashamed of, on the basis of last season's averages, in all the talk about its American league "castoffs," because the ex-American league players didn't fare so well in the senior circuit.

Including all players who participated in 10 or more games during the season, here's how the "cast-offs" of both leagues fared in 1939:

1. Former National leaguers compiled a composite batting average of .294 in the American league (.299 hits in 3,397 times at bat).

2. Ex-American leaguers, in composite, hit for a modest .256 in the National (1,488 hits in 5,805 times at bat).

3. Former National league pitchers won 87 games and lost 84 in the American for a 509 percentage.

4. Ex-American league pitchers won 123 but lost 133 games in the National for a percentage of 480.

5. However, the former American league hurlers salvaged some honor. Their composite earned run average per nine-inning game in the National was only 3.94 (1,049 earned runs in 2,395 innings pitched), as compared with a composite average of 4.57 (750 earned runs in 1,476 innings) for ex-National league flingers performing in the American.

In order to be strictly fair, the work of every man who formerly played in the rival league—if he got into any games there at all—was included in this compilation.

The National league, as usual, tried out a lot more ex-American leaguers than vice-versa—in fact, twice as many. The Brooklyn Dodgers alone accounted for 14.

The figures may seem surprising, but not when you recall that George McQuinn, for instance, batted 316 for the St. Louis Browns, although he couldn't hit his weight with the Cincinnati Reds a few years ago.

very best. It was just that I had been a director, and I needed to keep on being one—it's the job I like best.

There must be a lot to that, too. One of the unhappiest men in town for a while was jovial Ernst Lubitsch. That was when he was sitting behind a desk running Paramount's affairs. Such miscasting is

And that such American league stars as Joe Cronin, Mike Kreevich, Buck Newsom and Emil Leonard fizzled in earlier trials in the elder circuit.

National league fans see significance in the fact that the only former American leaguer who hit over .300 in the National was Zeke Bonura—and there never was much question about his hitting. Even so, he paid National league pitching the compliment of being smarter.

On the other hand, Al Simmons, who is returning to the American after hitting a mild 274 in the National, blames it on the way the in-fields are built.

SAYS LAMBETH DESIRED POST

Said To Have Wanted To Get In Race In Eighth

Reflector Bureau

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, March 9.—The "low down" from North Carolina's Eighth Congressional, where another without-quarter campaign looms for this spring, is that former Representative Walter Lambeth wanted desperately to run this time, after two years of private life.

He was kept out, according to these "grapevine" sources, only by the firm, flat refusal of W. O. Burgin, the incumbent, to consider retiring. This made a conflict inevitable in the home county of both, Davidson.

Political leaders of the county quite frankly informed Lambeth that they intended to stand virtually solidly behind Burgin, whose reelection they regard as vital to the vindication of Davidson from the manifold charges of election crookedness made against it in 1938. Burgin got approximately 1,800 absentee votes and went to Congress only through the verdict of an unofficial board of arbitration and despite the fact that official records of the primary election still show that C. B. Deane of Rockingham received a majority of 23 votes over Burgin in the second primary.

Thus the possibility—even the probability—that he would lose his home county was brought forcefully to Mr. Lambeth's attention; and on thinking the matter over, the day "ought to be solemnized with former Congressman is said to have decided it would be better to stay and baffle."

John Adams probably started the custom of observing the Fourth of July as a national holiday. When the Declaration of Independence was signed, July 4, 1776, he said the day "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with guns, bells, bonfires."

Those Skiing Finns Are Just Keeping Up An Old Army Game: Pictures Show Their Ancestors Fought On Skis 10 Centuries Ago

ANCIENT FINN, with skis that look like boats. 850 A. D.—Finnish army fights on skis. This is probably the first definitely recorded instance of the use of skis in warfare. 1700—A Swedish ski-soldier surveys the field. 1808—Gun on back, a Swedish soldier slips briskly along. 1870—German scouts, well bundled, ski down a mountainside.

A surprising feature of the Russo-Finnish war to many people has been the Finns' ability to strike quick, hard blows on skis. It really shouldn't be surprising, though, for Finnish warriors have been fighting on swis ever since bok-and-arrow days. As evidence, look at these pictures from the Widener Library, Boston, exhibit of the early use of skis by soldiers. The first two photographs came from Olaus Magnus's 'History of the Northern Races', 1555. The opponents of the Finns in the second picture aren't shown, but they were the Swedes and Danes under King Ragnar, who lived about 850 A.D. The soldiers of other northern countries have been using skis from early days, too, as the last 3 show

Colored News

The Rock Spring pastor and congregation are looking forward to holding their quarterly meeting services in their new building on Saturday and Sunday, March 9 and 10. The pastor, Rev. S. Hemby, will use as text for his 11 o'clock sermon on Sunday morning, "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on to perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, Heb. 6:1. It is expected that Rev. J. A. Nimmo of the Sycamore Hill Baptist church, and his choir will serve the congregation at 3 o'clock.

Poultry short courses held over the State by specialists from State College attracted large crowds and stimulated interest in the production of better birds and more eggs.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 9. (AP)—Prospects of important European developments over the week-end were given the principal blame today for a spotty stock market.

The list steadied at the start, but turned irregular as the price session proceeded. Declines of fractions to around a point were well distributed at the close, although a few air lines and motor equipments worked higher.

Highway Commission Attorney In Wreck

Burlington, March 9. (AP)—Charles Ross of Lillington, chief counsel for the State Highway Commission, was injured at about 9:45 this morning when his car collided with a second automobile just west of Burlington on Highway 70. He was taken to Alamance General hospital, where it was said his injuries did not appear to be serious.

Highway Patrolman T. G. Brooks said reckless driving charges would be preferred against John Albert Tennix, Burlington Negro. He said no charges would be filed against Ross.

Two Bicycles Found; No Claimers So Far

Two bicycles are being held at the local police station and the owners can secure them by proper identification.

The bicycles, one an Ideal and the other a Majestic, were found back of Reid's store late one night earlier this week and so far no report of any missing bicycles have been made with the local police.

The belief was expressed that the bicycles were placed behind the store by persons with the intention of removing them later.

Two Tardy Witnesses To Make Appearance

Raleigh, March 9. (AP)—Two Wake county negroes will go on trial in Wake county superior court next week on a charge of slaying William Henry Monk, 25, construction employe of Goldsboro.

Subpoenas ordered by Judge Clawson L. Williams for two tardy witnesses have been served on both and they will report for the trial next week, Richard Hinton, deputy clerk of court, said today.

B. P. Elks, Jr., who was fined $20 for failing to appear when the case was called for trial Wednesday was located in Goldsboro.

The other, R. D. Whitehurst, reported to the court in Raleigh on Thursday.

GOVERNOR HOEY CHALLENGES EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS TO UPHOLD IDEAS OF PAST

just a few leaders. We need a citizenship which shall be so trained that it will not be misled by "isms." Declaring that the rights of the minority are in his opinion safe in this country, he urged his listeners to take care that the pendulum should not swing too far in the other direction and forbid freedom of speech to the majority. This he illustrated by the Wagner Labor Act, which he declared "takes away the freedom of speech from employers" in matters that vitally concern them, and which should be repealed.

"I charge you, said Governor Hoey, in closing, as he looked out over the hundreds of prospective teachers before him, "to open the minds of the children you stand before, to new knowledge and new power. Give them a sane and workable idea of the responsibilities and duties as well as the privileges of a citizen in a democracy like this, and transmit to them your own lofty ideals."

At eleven o'clock sharp the striking procession got under way. President L. R. Meadows, Governor Clyde R. Hoey, Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, and Dr. J. Y. Joyner leading it. The chief marshal of the student body, Miss Christine Harris, Thomasville, Tenn., conducted this group. Led by Miss Sarah Ann Maxwell and Miss Edna Ogburn, student marshals came the Board of Trustees of the College - F. C. Harding, Mrs. Charles S. Forbes, E. G. Flanagan, R. R. Taylor, and Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, all of Greenville; Mrs. J. C. Dawson, Kinston; O. P. Makepeace, Sanford; J. K. Warren, Trenton; H. C. Bridgers, Tarboro; Mrs. W. B. Murphy, Snow Hill; Mrs. Charles Johnson and A. B. Andrews, both of Raleigh.

The guests of honor from sister educational institutions, conducted by Marshals Ruth Pritchard and Frances Hardy, included Walter Patten, President of Louisville College; Robert Burton House, University of North Carolina; Catherine T. Dennis, William and Mary; David H. Parsons, Jr., Guilford College; Jane Leighton Richards, Peace Junior College; Holland Holton, Duke University; Louis C. La Motte, President of Presbyterian Junior College for Men; Joseph E. Moore, George Peabody College for Teachers; Leslie H. Campbell, President of Campbell College; John W. Harrelson, vice-president of North Carolina State College; W. C. Jackson, vice president of Woman's College of the University; E. Cleveland Holter, Central Missouri State Teachers College; Rosaline Ivey, North Texas State Teachers College; Howard S. Hilley, President of Atlantic Christian College; E. L. Henderson, West Texas State Teachers College; Hattie S. Parrott, State Department of Public Instruction; J. Henry Highsmith, North Carolina Education Association.

Then came the faculty in academic costume; and the long line of students, closed the procession, the girls in white and the boys in dark suits, all wearing arm-bands or purple and gold.

After Dr. J. Y. Joyner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction in the early days of the College, had given the invocation and a mixed chorus had sung Mozart's "Gloria in Excelsis," President Leon R. Meadows gave his friendly welcome to guests, commenting on the occasion as celebrating the thirty-third birthday of East Carolina Teachers College and speaking of the growth of the College in its thirty three years.

President L. R. Meadows in welcoming the guests to the dedication of the new building, spoke of the anniversary, also being celebrated, of the founding of the first state-supported normal school in the country, and read a message from its present president.

Speaking of the growth of the College, President Meadows said, "If the credit for this growth is due to any one man, it is due to the first president, Robert H. Wright. If those who have gone ahead can look back and see the work which they gave their lives to, then Robert H. Wright is looking on us today." He spoke of the new building, saying that when it is opened to classes next term, all the classrooms in it will be taken immediately, and adding that those who have already come to fill the buildings have created a need for more dormitory space, more dining room space, another unit for the training school, a gymnasium, a home for dramatic work, and other such things.

Then after welcoming all guests, and especially the hundreds of alumni in the audience, Dr. Meadows said: "We dedicate this building today to the purpose of training teachers for the children of the state. Though alumni will find many changes on the campus they will find no change in the purpose for which East Carolina Teachers College has always stood."

After the program, lunch was served cafeteria style.

Tonight alumni will enjoy a basketball game and dance.
