FARLEY-HULL TEAM TALKED BY DEMOCRATS

Says Farley Believes FDR Will Not Run Again

CAPITAL RENEWS POLITICAL TALK

Garner Forces Voice Opinion Farley Is In Race To Stay-Third Term Candidacy Or Not

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—Talk of a Hull-Farley Democratic ticket was revived on Capitol Hill today, as discussion of the postmaster general's unreserved announcement of his candidacy ran the gamut of interpretations.

Most senators expressed the opinion that the cabinet officer in saying flatly his name would be presented to the Democratic National Convention did so believing that President Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term.

A few interpreted the announcement as placing Farley in the same category as Vice President Garner—a candidate whether the President runs or not. Farley would not clear up this point in talking to reporters yesterday at Springfield, Mass.

One influential New Deal senator from the East as close to the chief executive as anyone in Congress said he did not know what was in the President's mind, but he thought Farley had acted in the belief that Mr. Roosevelt wanted to retire.

"I believe a Hull-Farley ticket would make a good one," added this senator. Like many others he felt that Farley is not challenging the President in the sense that Garner is and has not closed the door to supporting Mr. Roosevelt should the latter run.

Garner forces, however, expressed private elation over Farley's action. They voiced the opinion that Farley was in the race to stay—third term candidacy or not.

Remove Old Cases From Civil Docket

One hundred and five cases which have been on the civil court calendar for some time and for which there was little indication of ever being tried were ordered dismissed and stricken from the docket today in orders signed by Judge Walter J. Bone of Nashville, presiding over a city session of court now in session.

Judgment in the cases that it appeared to the court that the plaintiff does not desire to prosecute action any further and that the action be dismissed, removed from the docket and the plaintiff taxed with the costs.

The court yesterday afternoon awarded $100 to the plaintiff in the case of Dennis Whelan vs. Sellers Brick company which grew out of a wreck. The plaintiff had asked $300.

Only Banks, Schools To Observe Holiday

Special Easter services are being arranged, but bankers and school teachers and students apparently are the only persons who will receive any respite from work for the holidays.

City schools will be closed tomorrow and Monday, county schools will observe Monday only. The college will not observe any holiday, the Spring holidays having been concluded today.

The various county and city offices will operate as usual, as will as the local business houses and the post office.

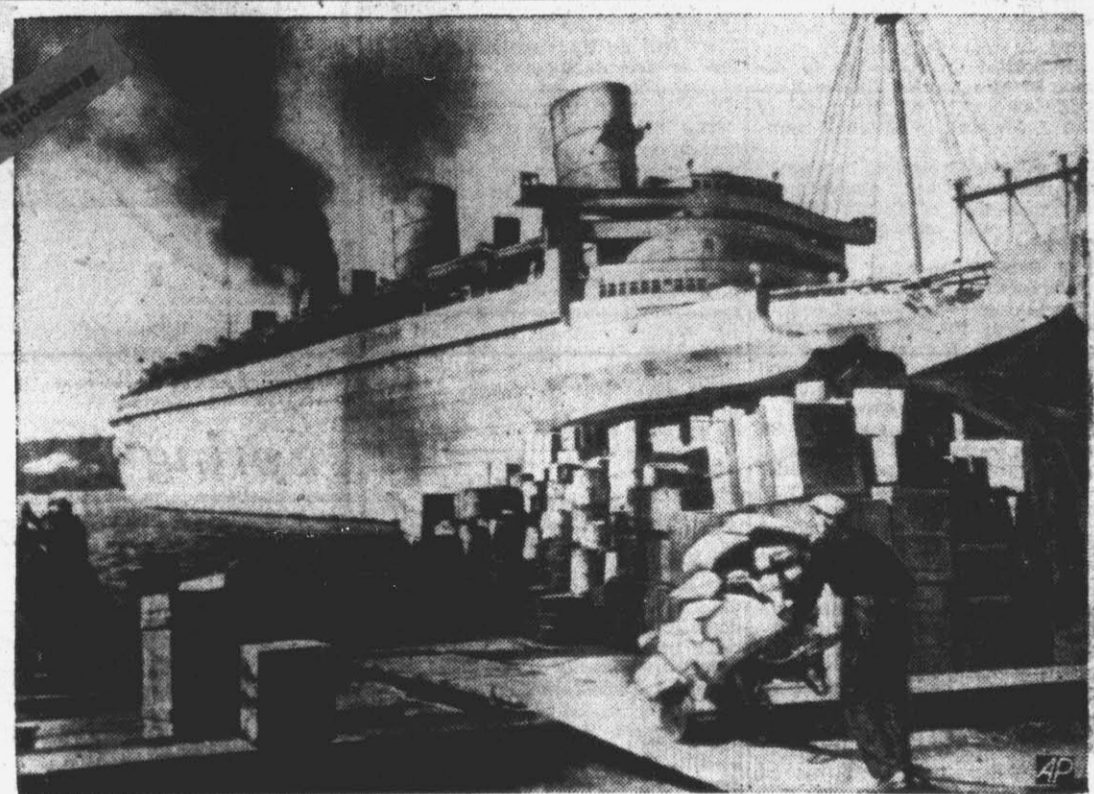

Department Manager For Penney's Arrives

Tommy Cannon, originally of New Bern, but more recently of Henderson, has arrived here and assumed his duties as manager of the shoe department of Penney's store.

Mr. Cannon has been associated with the J. C. Penney company for some time and is well experienced in his particular work.

The Queen Steams Up For War Duty With Britain

Smoke pours from the funnels of the gigantic British liner Queen Mary at her New York dock as she steams up to slip away for duty as a British troop ship. A dock worker (foreground) is wheeling supplies toward the ship and other stores await loading. The British liner Mauritania also prepared to leave New York for war duty.

Administrator Asserts WPA Will be Continued

ASSERTS NLRB OVER-STAFFED

Committee Proposes Slash In Federal Agencies

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—Conferring that the labor relations board was "over-staffed" and that a "confused administrative problem" existed in the wage-hour administration, the House Appropriations committee asked Congress today to trim next year's funds for those agencies.

The committee proposed an appropriation of $2,843,000—$337,000 under President Roosevelt's budget estimates—for the labor board and $5,105,000 or $1,080,000 less than budget figures—for the wage-hour administration.

The recommendations were incorporated in a $954,189,700 bill for needs of the Labor department, the federal security agency and four other related agencies during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The total was $11,788,942 below the President's recommendations and $19,118,170 less than the amount which was available for the current fiscal year.

Most of the reduction below the budget was accounted for by a $10,000,000 cut in a $245,000,000 items for grants to states for old age assistance.

BRITISH SHIPS PUT IN SERVICE

Mauretania, Queen Mary Leave New York Port

New York, March 21.—(AP)—Two of the proudest liners of the British merchant fleet ploughed uncertain waters today in a gamble with war-time hazards of the high seas.

Slightly more than 12 hours after the 35,739-ton Mauretania slipped out through a misty rain from the pier where she had been tied up for three months, the Giant Queen Mary nosed out into the Hudson and passed down the bay.

The destination of the two liners was known only to their commanders, who sailed under sealed orders not to be opened until they were well at sea, but presumably sending them on dangerous missions as troop ships.

Both liners were draped in their camouflage gray, their windows blackened and all signs of identity blotted out.

The Queen Mary had been at her berth since September 4—the day after war started.

Col. Harrington In State To Dedicate Armory

Raleigh, March 21.—(AP)—Col. F. C. Harrington, federal WPA administrator, expressed the opinion here today that the program of the works project administration will be continued for at least several more years.

Harrington said there might be some changes made, but that something along similar lines would be carried on because "those who can't get jobs in private industry will have to be taken care of through relief measures."

The federal administrator said North Carolina has "a very fine program," when asked how WPA work in this state compared with other states.

"The outstanding project in the state I am told is the one we're going to dedicate today," he commented as he got in Governor Hoke's automobile to go to Lumberton for the dedication of a WPA-aided armory, the largest of its kind in the South.

Officers Elected By Local 40 and 8

The local 40 of the 40 and 8 held its organization meeting last night and named Arthur B. Corey, Chief de Gare.

The promenade was held at Respass' place and was attended by 15 of the 17 charter members. It was decided to invite the voyagers of the Wilson Voiture to attend a shad supper at the next promenade. Meetings, or promenades, will be held each second Wednesday night in the month.

Other than the Chief de Gare, officers named were: Conduiteur, F. K. Fountain; Chef de Train, Lester Jones; Commissaire Intendant, Paul Scott; Correspondent, John H. Taylor; Gardie de la Parle, D. L. Hardee; Pampiste, James N. Woodard; Medicin, Dr. J. L. Winstead; Gardie des Prisonniers, P. L. Goodson; Comis Voyageur, S. A. Whitehurst; Amouyeur, D. J. Winchard Jr.; Sous Conduiteur, J. Heck Corey.

Big Oak From Little Acorns Grows

Maysville, Ky.—(AP)—Driver Lloyd Watson and a companion jumped to safety as their truck skidded over an embankment.

The truck rolled several hundred feet and knocked two houses from their foundations. They burst into flames.

Mrs. John Bennett, negro, living in one of the houses, was hurried to a hospital where she gave birth to a boy.

Eight other persons were rescued from the houses.

Winners in districts one, two, three, four and five will enter the competitions to be held here. The speakers, as well as judges and other officials will be provided supper at the Third Street school.

District winners in the American Legion sponsored oratorical contest will gather here for sectional competition on Tuesday night of next week.

James Worsley, Jr., was selected to represent the Greenville high school from a field of five contenders. None of the county schools entered the contest.

BATTERY HERE WINS PRAISES

National Guard Unit Undergoes Annual Inspection

Battery A, 113th Field Artillery, local unit of the National Guard, won high praises last night at the regular annual inspection.

The visiting officers in charge of the inspection expressed themselves as being "very pleased" with the showing of the local unit.

Rev. W. H. Wicker is commanding officer of the battery, which is composed of two other officers, Lieut. J. H. Moye and Lieut. Joseph E. Waldrop, and 79 men.

The local unit is known throughout the state as one of the best in North Carolina.

Major W. H. Quarterman of the Field Artillery of the regular army, stationed at Savannah, Ga., had charge of inspection. Among the Guard officials here for the inspection were Major Lloyd Partridge, Raleigh, commander of the 113th Field Artillery, National Guard; Major Edward Griffin, Louisville, commander of the First Battalion, 113th Field Artillery, National Guard; Major Albert P. Willis, New Bern, regimental executive; Major Joseph B. Mullineux, New Bern, commander of the Second Battalion, 113th Field Artillery, National Guard; and Captain McCreather Lewis, Kinston, Commander Service Battery, 113th Field Artillery.

Alumnae Program Arranged At Duke

Durham, March 21.—Several hundred Duke alumnae have made reservations for the third annual "alumnae week-end" which will be held on the university campus April 5-7.

The former Duke students will live in the dormitories, attend lectures, recitals, dinners, socials, and in other ways turn back the clock to become co-eds once more.

In addition to members of the Duke faculty who will speak on the international situation, physical care, current books, music, and other subjects, visiting lecturers will be heard. The banquet speaker will be Bettina Harling, widely known author, linguist, musician, and lecturer, whose best known books are "Golden Fleece," "Phantom Crown," and "Imperial Twilight."

Karl Bock, gifted interior decorator of New York, will lecture on interior decorating; and Dr. Rose Davis, first woman Ph. D. degree graduate of Duke, now a Dupont chemist, will lecture on synthetics being developed in chemistry for household use.

Legion Oratorical Contest Arranged

District winners in the American Legion sponsored oratorical contest will gather here for sectional competition on Tuesday night of next week.

James Worsley, Jr., was selected to represent the Greenville high school from a field of five contenders. None of the county schools entered the contest.

District eliminations will be held in Rocky Mount Monday night, at which time the winner for schools in this section will be decided.

Winners in districts one, two, three, four and five will enter the competitions to be held here. The speakers, as well as judges and other officials will be provided supper at the Third Street school.

SENATE MOVES TOWARD VOTE ON FARM BILL

Government Food Stamp System Is Advocated

SEN. LAFOLLETTE PROPOSES PLAN

Program Would Provide Needy Persons With Stamps to Purchase Surplus Commodities

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—The Senate, moving toward a vote on the billion dollar farm bill, today heard Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), urged expansion of its provisions for the government food stamp system.

The Westerner asked that funds for disposal of surplus commodities be increased from the $85,000,000 recommended by the Senate Appropriations committee to $113,000,000.

The food stamp plan is operating in about 100 cities, LaFollette said, and the larger fund would make possible the addition of 60 cities.

LaFollette declared the surplus removal activity was "one new deal program that has worked and won unanimous support."

He argued that the food stamp plan was "the most effective device yet worked out to deal with the problem under consumption of food products by a substantial proportion of the population."

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) told the Senate that unemployment and farm tenancy were factors that might develop a "peasant class in this country."

Discussing the proposal to expand the government's food stamp commodity distribution system, O'Mahoney said that what was needed most was "real jobs at real wages so there will be a real market for the products of the farmer."

Under the food stamp program needy persons may buy two orange stamps for 25 cents each and then receive without cost a 25 cent blue stamp. The orange stamps may be exchanged for any groceries and the blue stamps may be used for the purchase of products which the government has designated as surplus.

Grimesland Seeks To Secure Project

Town officials of Grimesland held a meeting last night at which time the matter of securing a WPA sewerage and water project was discussed. Present were J. J. Elks, mayor; J. H. Brooks, Fred Elks, members of the town board; C. E. Tucker, town clerk; Dr. C. H. Spiggle; H. J. Rivers, local engineer; D. S. Abell, town sanitary engineer; state health department; Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer; and J. H. Moore, Pitt county sanitary officer.

It is understood that Mr. Rivers some time ago completed the survey for the sewerage and water project and that last night he was authorized to immediately submit the project to WPA for approval.

It was brought out at the meeting by Mr. Abell that in his opinion better terms can be secured by towns on sewer projects now than ever before and that probably these good terms would not be available much longer.

Dr. Ennett, the health officer, expressed appreciation to the town officials for this forward step in protecting the health of its people.

Highway Commission To Let 17 Projects

Raleigh, March 21.—(AP)—The highway commission will open bids April 4 on 17 road building projects which will cost approximately $1,440,000, one of the largest lettings of recent months.

Projects on which bids will be received include:

Nash and Edgecombe counties, overpass, and approaches over railroad three miles north of Rocky Mount on Route 95.

Cumberland and Harnett counties, bridge over Little river on U. S. 15-A.

Tomorrow Marks End Of Morning Services

Only one more pre-Easter service remains to be conducted at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, this being scheduled for 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time Rev. Worth Wicker, Episcopal minister, will deliver the message and Aubrey Tilley will be the featured singer.

The various churches in the city are cooperating in the services, which have been conducted each morning this week. At this morning's service Rev. W. A. Ryan, Christian pastor, spoke and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor sang.

Daladier Included In War Coalition Cabinet Formed by New Premier

Former Head of Government To Be Minister of National Defense in French Cabinet Formed by Energetic Paul Reynaud; Only Republican Federation Not Represented

New Premier

Paris, March 21.—(AP)—Energetic Paul Reynaud today formally took the helm of the French government as Premier and Foreign Minister in a broadened "win the war" coalition cabinet drawn from the Socialist on the left to groups of the right.

Edouard Daladier, whom Reynaud succeeds as Premier, stayed in the new ministry as Minister of National Defense.

Reynaud and five other ministers constitute the inner war cabinet.

The Socialists, largest party in the Chamber but without representation in a French cabinet since Daladier took power in April, 1938, have three ministers in the new government.

The cabinet was kept from being a real National Union government by the refusal of the Republican Federation at the extreme right to be represented.

Shortly before the cabinet list was issued the Federation announced it "had declined to participate in a government which does not correspond to a true war cabinet."

Reynaud also set up a "war committee" and a separate "economy council." He called his first cabinet meeting for tomorrow morning to be followed by a meeting with President Albert Lebrun.

College Is Now In Its Last Quarter

Registration today for the Spring quarter at East Carolina Teachers College concluded the Spring holidays for more than 1,200 students of the College, who began their vacation a week ago.

Even though no figures were available as to the number of students who had enrolled for the spring quarter at noon today, the enrollment appeared to be rather steady.

Regular classroom work will start tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. It is likely that some students will not register until tomorrow.

With the major campus officers having been selected before the Spring holidays, the various organizations will settle down to laying the foundation for activities during the 1940-41 school year.

Six Given Terms On Counterfeit Charges

Durham, March 21.—(AP)—Judge Johnson J. Hayes sentenced six defendants in federal court here today to serve prison terms on charges of conspiracy to possess and distribute counterfeit money.

They were: Joey Ferrera of New York city, three years; Charlie Olive of Durham, two years; Theodore C. Hester of Roxboro, one year and a day imprisonment; the prison sentence being suspended; and William King, Andrew Williams and Ora McIver, Durham Negroes, a year and a day each in a United States reformatory.

Trials of the case started Monday.

Plan Special Service At Christian Church

The Maundy Thursday Service of Holy Communion will be held in the Eighth Street Christian church tonight at 7:30 o'clock. This is a brief service but an important one in the calendar of the church. It commemorates the institution of the Lord's Supper and the command of our Lord, "This do in memory of me."

As an essential part of the preparation for the celebration of Easter and the resurrection of our Lord, it should be participated in by all who cherish the memory of Jesus Christ, the traditions of the church, and who look for the consummation of his work through the faithful obedience of his followers. As with all services of Holy Communion in the Christian church, this service is to be shared by all believers in Jesus Christ. The service will consist of congregational singing, the service of communion, and a brief meditation.

Dog In Stock

Bowling Green, Ky.—(AP)—Several people felt sorry for a large dog hovering near a Bowling Green street with a piece of plank swinging from its neck. When they approached, however, they saw this note on the plank: "Please do not take this off. It is a cure for chasing cars."

INCOME TAXES FAR IN EXCESS OF ESTIMATES

Federal Receipts 31 Percent Ahead Of Last Year

ALSO AHEAD OF F.D.R. ESTIMATES

Secretary Morgenthau Declares, However, Margin Not Sufficient To Make Up For Spending

Washington, March 21.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today that preliminary estimates of annual income tax collections were running 31.2 per cent ahead of last year and "comfortably ahead" of President Roosevelt's budget estimates.

The treasury secretary said at a press conference that reports from regional collection offices showed collection of $621,000,000 of income taxes in the first 20 days of March, compared with $473,000,000 in the same period last year.

Morgenthau declined to say by what margin the collections would exceed budget estimates, but added that there was "not a chance" of the excess equalling the $460,000,000 of additional revenue asked by the President to pay for emergency national defense costs and to help keep the treasury under its $45,000,000,000 statutory debt limit.

Asked whether he still favored new taxes despite comment of leading congressmen that the higher tax collections obviated the need for new taxes, the secretary asserted:

"In words of one syllable I stand on the President's message until he changes it."

He added that he had no reason to believe that the President would withdraw his request for new taxes.

At the same time Morgenthau repudiated proposals to use some of the $2,000,000,000 in the treasury's stabilization fund to avoid the debt limit.

"I certainly am not going to use the stabilization or any other trick method to avoid the debt limit," the treasury head said.

"It is strictly up to Congress and if they vote to spend money which will exceed the limit it is up to them to do something about the limit."

I don't think the $45,000,000,000 limit is very important. There is no reason why it should not be 46, 47, or 48 billion dollars. I would not worry if it were $50,000,000,000.

Washington Newsmen To Speak At College

J. E. Morgan of Washington, D. C., editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, known in the field of education throughout the nation, will speak in an Easter program at East Carolina Teachers College Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. Morgan visits schools in various parts of the United States and writes articles for his publication about the visit.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the College is sponsoring the Sunday evening program.

The speaker will be a guest in the home of President and Mrs. L. R. Meadows while in Greenville.

The public has been extended cordial invitation to attend.

WOMAN NAMED MAXWELL AIDE

Raleigh Man First To Pick Woman As Manager

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, March 21—First woman named to manage a county campaign bobbed up yesterday in the person of Mrs. Myrtle Ellis of Bakersville who will lead the forces of Allan J. Maxwell in Mitchell county.

Maxwell-for-Governor headquarters announced her appointment along with that of Calvin Graves, Jr., as Maxwell manager for Forsyth.

The Commissioner of Revenue thereby kept well ahead of the field in the matter of announced county leaders, even though headquarters for Wilkins P. Horton released the appointment of Fred M. Arrowood of Bessemer City as Gaston manager for the Lieutenant Governor.

From the headquarters of J. M. Broughton came word that M. A. Matthews of Swannquarter, cashier of the Engelhard Bank and Trust company, will be in charge of the Broughton campaign in Hyde county; while Otis Powers, chief of Hendersonville police, will head his Henderson county forces; and P. S. Young of Mocksville will head up the Broughton-Davie drive.

Graves is a young Forsyth lawyer a past president of the Forsyth junior bar and formerly head of the county's Young Democrat club and the Wilsonian club.

Arrowood assisted Sandy Graham in the 1936 campaign and worked for Clyde Hoey in the second primary. Like so many of the other campaign aides named by all the candidates, he is a prominent American Legion member, is superintendent of the Bessemer City schools.

ALASKAN NATIVES RECKON TIME BY TOTAL ECLIPSES

Juneau, Alaska.—(AP)—Way up above the Arctic Circle, it's quite an event when the midnight sun goes black.

So auspicious, in fact, that the natives around Noorvik still base their time system on the last eclipse visible there.

Gilbert L. Swanson, government teacher, ran into the novel time-keeping system in determining the ages of Indians seeking old age pensions.

Time after time he found they were born so many winters "after the sun went black." The whole scheme of old age assistance for the Eskimos of the Kuskuk River district had to wait while Swanson sought a way to translate the solar omen into white man's chronometry.

Finally, he radioed the office of Indian affairs for "information as to the date of an eclipse of the sun affecting this vicinity, an eclipse near enough total so that the stars shone in the daytime."

Charles W. Hawkesworth, assistant to the superintendent, has had some strange requests, but he remembered having read about an eclipse and, after a deal of research, found a reference to it in "Alaska, Its Southern Coast," by E. Ruhnamah, published in 1885.

The book told that Professor George Davidson of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, came to Alaska to observe the phenomenon from an observatory at Klukwan, and that it occurred exactly as the professor foretold, on August 7, 1869.

The book further related that when the sun darkened, and the stars shone as Davidson forecast, Chief Kloh-Kutz offered him "capones, blankets and wives if he would tell him how he did it."

By coincidence, history also re-

He had the dogs out this morning showing Gus how to manage them. They will be thoroughly tested before he accepts them.

BAD BRIDGES
The bridge across the academy branch on Sutton lane takes a washing notion at every big rain. The rains last week put it in such condition that the town had to build a new bridge there. The foot bridge at Evans street crossing is also in very bad condition.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WERE YOU THERE?
A negro quartet is singing a spiritual and these are the words which touch the hearts of all. "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?"

"Were you there when they put Him in a grave?" A teacher who went about the country with that quartet told me that he had never failed to note the emotional effect which these words of the Negro spiritual always produced on audiences. Men and women, apparently half-ashamed lest some one would see them, would wipe the tears quickly from their cheeks as these plaintive questions rang out in the rich tones of the singers.

The words of the spiritual really ask us the question whether or not we have entered into the rich experience of our faith. No one living today, of course, was present when our Lord was crucified, but we can all stand at the foot of the cross and appreciate the love which His pain disclosed, if we will turn from the evil of our hearts and let God speak to us. Faith makes it possible for us all to say that we were there when they crucified our Lord, were there when they put Him in the grave.

Every time we say no to the evil promptings of our hearts, every time we suffer with a loved one, every time we get under the heavy load of some one's burden and help carry it, we are standing, a friend and believer, at the foot of the cross and being counted among those who know what crucifixion means.

• The Easter egg hunt for the children of Pitt county to be held here Monday afternoon is a new venture by the Merchants' Association, but one that should be enjoyed by children from all parts of the county. It is in no way a trade event, but is purely an effort on the part of local merchants to furnish entertainment for the children of our county. All the children are invited and urged to attend.

• Congratulations are in order for our local high school. Recently the basketball team won the sectional championship; "Green Lights", high school publication, won highest honors in a national competition, and the dramatic club has won both district and eastern honors for the production of a play and will go to Chapel Hill to compete for state honors. These accomplishments in various lines of activity are a credit to our school and a good advertisement to our town.

• While all of us hope there will never be a need for active service of our local National Guard unit, we should feel proud of the fine showing it made in its annual inspection last night. The unit was described by one of the visiting officials as one of the outstanding ones of the state. The local battery is made up of a fine group of young men and it is a good thing to know that they are prepared to give protection to the community at any time their services are really needed.

• While as a rule motorists in this city observe the traffic lights, the absolute disregard for the lights and other traffic rules by bicyclists is dangerous and if something is not done about it, someone is going to end up in the hospital or cemetery as a result of this carelessness. One can stand on Five Points for a short while and see boys on bicycles ride right through regardless of the traffic lights and make sudden turns either to left or right as they desire despite the fact that the turns are supposed to be made at that intersection. We have been lucky that there have not been more serious accidents here as a result of the carelessness of the bicyclists.

Washington—Capital barbershop Barber: "Good afternoon, Senator, good afternoon."
Senator: "Humph!"
Representative: "Calling across from another chair." Hello, Senator. Seen the afternoon paper? Somebody close to the President has been talking. Says the President definitely has made up his mind and told him absolutely he will run for a third term."
Sen. (snorting): "Not a word of truth in it."
Barber: "That's what I heard."
Rep.: "What makes you say that, Senator?"
Sen.: "Plain as the nose on your face. What could he gain by letting that out now? Best strategy in the world to keep his mouth shut. By gosh, that's good politics."
Barber: "But don't you think..."
Rep.: "Well, that's kinda the way I feel about it. I tell you, the busting the third-term precedent doesn't scare me. I don't always agree with the President—not by a long shot. But I haven't any complaint generally. Look over the last seven years. They add up all right to me."
Sen.: "Humph!"
Barber: "Yeah, but..."
Rep.: "If a man makes a good record and his character is the best, why should we throw him out just because our granddaddies didn't like the third-term idea? And that goes for a Republican as well as a Democrat. Yes, sir, Roosevelt wants a third term, it's sure all right with me and he can talk about it whenever he wants to."
Sen.: "Sounds to me like you're on the bandwagon, mah friend. Now, I'm not and I don't care who knows it. I told FDR himself I told the press. And last month I told the folks back home I poked to 4,000 people—the biggest turnout we ever had. There was plenty of applause, plenty. ## SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, March 21—Bill Penner of Rocky Mount, who toyed with the idea of running for Governor but finally decided against it, will likely be a candidate for re-election to the 1941 House.
In Raleigh Wednesday he said he has not yet finally made up his mind.
"But I guess I'll end up by running again—though I couldn't say just why," he said.
Penner held the balance of power in the Speakership race in 1939 and it was his coup that elected LARRY WARD when he withdrew and asked his followers to support the Craven man.
Theater Penner was named by Ward as chairman of the Finance Committee.

John Peole, publicity chief, was holding down Broughton headquarters Wednesday surrounding the good-looking young ladies in the office. The candidate himself was in Charlotte while State Manager Emory Dennis was in Washington on legal business.

At the Gravelly headquarters the office force was found in a high state of indignation over an item in the Raleigh News and Observer that the "Gravelly headquarters hadn't shifted into high gear yet."
"And they said that after seeing how hard we're working, too," protested one.

Candidate Gravelly and Manager Croston Eford were out of town and Publicity chief Vernon Sechrist was still caught partly in Rocky Mount partly here in Raleigh.

Paul Grady hadn't opened his headquarters on the Seventh floor of the Str. Walter, but was around town.
He popped into Gravelly headquarters and the ladies of the force were greatly embarrassed when he told them in leaving: "Just tell Lee his rival, Paul Grady, came in to see him."
The Johnston man had been unrecognized.

Mrs. W. B. Murphy, Maxwell's state manager for women, said she has mailed out letters to more than 7,000 of North Carolina's feminine leaders.
"The response has been very encouraging," she said.
"Women cast nearly fifty per cent wind blows for President."

Barber: "But what I want to know..."
Sen.: "As for the President's telling anybody about his third-term ideas, don't you believe it. What could be gained, except by gentlemen of the opposition, like myself?"
Rep.: "I guess you're right, Senator."
Barber: "I think so, too, but..."
Sen.: "Certainly I'm right. Best political strategy I've seen in my 40 years as a servant of the people. Couldn't help a soul but the opposition if he came out either way now. Another thing, it would damage our prestige abroad. Foreign nations aren't going to pay any attention. Well, not much, anyway... to a President of the United States who is going out of office and will have nothing officially to do with foreign policies after that? But if they don't know, well, that's something else."
Rep.: "Very enlightening. Segregation very enlightening."
Barber: "I always say..."
Sen.: "It's not necessarily very erudite. Just elementary political reasoning." Takes a little common sense thinking. That's all I tell you, if I were FDR, I wouldn't say one word until the convention had nominated me for a third term."
Rep.: "I believe you're right, well, I have an appointment. See you again some time, Senator. (Bye.)"
Sen. (to barber): "What were you saying, young man?"
Barber: "I forget now what you was. Guess it didn't matter, anyway."

No one living today, of course, was present when our Lord was crucified, but we can all stand at the foot of the cross and appreciate the love which His pain disclosed, if we will turn from the evil of our hearts and let God speak to us. Faith makes it possible for us all to say that we were there when they crucified our Lord, were there when they put Him in the grave.

Every time we say no to the evil promptings of our hearts, every time we suffer with a loved one, every time we get under the heavy load of some one's burden and help carry it, we are standing, a friend and believer, at the foot of the cross and being counted among those who know what crucifixion means.

CYCLISTS ARE MORE CAREFUL

Not One Cyclist Killed on Highway This Year

Raleigh, March 20.—Ronald Hocutt, director of the Highway Safety Division, knocks on wood to keep from breaking the luck, but at the same time he is doing a bit of bragging about the fact that so far in 1940 not one bicyclist has been killed in a highway accident.
Beside that, he is pointing with more than a little pride to the very unusual fact that the fifty-odd February traffic victims, only one was under 14 years old. This, he believes indicates that the education program in the graded schools of North Carolina is rapidly making the youth safety conscious.
At the same time he is warning that the real bicyclist season is just approaching. He realizes that the bad weather of January, February and early March has had much to do with the fine record so far this year.
In fact, he cites figures to show that the trend of recent years has been sharply upward in the matter of bicycle fatalities and warns that constant vigilance must be maintained if the current downward trend is to be maintained.
"Too often something happens to the carefree cyclist," said Hocutt. "This statement is based on facts. In 1937, 25 cyclists were killed and 190 injured. In 1938 deaths rose to 28 and injuries to 234. In 1939 the curve was still up, with 37 deaths and 258 injuries.
"I want to urge every police organization, civic club, as well as parents and teachers to encourage safe cycling and lend every effort to the success of the 'Bicycle Clubs' being formed throughout the state with safe riding practices as one of their primary objectives."

"Don't Go in There!"

All over North Carolina there are law-abiding beer dealers who merit public approval and patronage because they respect the privilege conferred by State, County or City beer permits.

Here and there, beer is being sold amid surroundings as distasteful to the industry as to you. The industry, in cooperation with law officers, is helping to eliminate these few law-violators.

Without customers, the "joints" cannot exist. YOU can help us "clean them up"—by dealing only with the respectable beer retailer who is on the side of law and order and decency.

Merchants Not United In Gubernatorial Campaign

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, March 21.—In somewhat glaring contrast to the last two campaigns this year's gubernatorial battle in North Carolina will find the so-called merchant's bloc as badly divided as the general run of the electorate, according to present indications.

In 1932 A. J. Maxwell, again a candidate this year, was the choice of perhaps 85 per cent of the state's merchants, and it has been estimated that four years ago Dr. Ralph W. McDonald got an even larger proportion of their votes.

In each instance it was announced and reiterated opposition to the sales tax which influenced the merchant's choice; but so far in the current contest no single candidate seems to have struck the proper chord to capture the ear of the men who sell at retail to Tar Heels.

It is quite possible that later in the campaign something may happen to change the status quo; with Kenly's Paul Grady the most likely beneficiary of any sudden change of sentiment.

Conclusions set out above are drawn from the meeting here this week of the board of directors of the North Carolina Retail Merchants Association.

All but about half a dozen of the 51 directors were present and it took only a casual poll to learn that every one of the six major contenders for the governorship has supporters among them. That, in itself, would indicate strongly that not all the merchants—nor even any computable majority of them—are going to be behind any one candidate.

At the meeting, which was called primarily to select a convention city for this year (Elizabeth City got it), there wasn't a murmur of politics. Nobody proposed endorsement of any candidate and in the course of the whole meeting there was no gubernatorial talk either in or out of formal session.

The Association has never endorsed an individual candidate, but it has endorsed, and will in the future endorse, principles; but in 1932 and 1936 its endorsement of underlying, unyielding opposition to the sales tax was about the same as endorsement of Maxwell and of McDonald.

The group is still as bitterly hostile to the sales levy as it ever was—its executive secretary, Willard Dowell is your reporter's authority for this statement—but the platform declarations of this year's candidates do not almost automatically make any one of them the darling of the merchants. Of them all, Grady is the only one who even conditionally proposed immediate repeal, and his plank went no further than to say he will discuss the matter later in the campaign and make details of his ideas public.

Should he later advance a substitute plan for the sales tax which strikes the merchants as adequate and workable, it is probable that he would thereby rally to his cause a large part—if not actually and overwhelmingly a majority—of the merchant's bloc.

None of the others has gone anything like far enough to capture the merchants as a unit.

J. M. Broughton would exempt all food for home consumption. That appeals to grocers and, particularly to the North Carolina Food Dealers Association; but it leaves the remainder of the merchants more or less cold.

Lee Gravelly thinks it "probable" that the rate could be reduced to two per cent by the next General Assembly. He has emphasized his personal dislike of the whole thing. His concrete proposal, however, does not seem to have captured the imagination of the merchant and there has not been apparent anything resembling a stampede to his camp.

Tom Cooper, too, has declared his complete and utter dislike of the sales tax, but hasn't gone even as far as Gravelly in promising relief, quick and drastic. He would automatically remove one-half of one per cent each biennium—a process which would take out the whole three per cent in a dozen years. Again there has been no reverberating roar of cheers from grateful merchants.

Maxwell, arch foe of the levy in 1932, like Annie, "doesn't live here any more." The best he holds out is that if and when the state's finances permit a revamping of the tax system the sales tax, "last scheduled to be adopted" should be the "first to be repealed." Nobody, acquainted with the history of state taxation expects to live long enough to benefit from a general lowering of taxes with any existing schedule being wiped out because the revenue isn't needed. That's in the same class as the millennium. So the Maxwell pronouncement is about as satisfying to the anti-sales taxers as a Hitler promise is to Chamberlain.

Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton isn't a bit more optimistic than Maxwell of the prospects of reducing or abolishing the sales tax.

And so there the merchants are—nobody except Grady seems to offer them anything like what they want and they are taking little stock in the Grady plan until they know what it is. If they find it fully acceptable, they may go for him in a big way and large numbers. If they don't, then the merchants are going to divide up their ballots just about like any other unclassified part of the Tar Heel populace.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Tomi goes into Allen's arms, but as soon as help comes for the disabled boat, she is plunged back to reality. Pierre is furious at her prolonged stay on the island with Allen.

Chapter 21

"Lily said -" Pierre hesitated. "She said Bartell was pulling his third degree on you. Those are her words, 'pulling his third degree.' And then she explained. She said it looked as though you were going to win the farm."

"Pierre, snap out of it and talk sense. What has a third degree to do with my success with the farm?"

"When ever Bartell sees he's losing a case, he turns his charm on some feminine opponent. He makes her want to lose, so he can win."

Tomi's hands gripped the edge of the bench. Last night she had thought just that. She hadn't cared about the farm, about success, only about Allen Bartell.

"Lily said from now on Allen would be dating you regularly so he can keep you away from your work; make you lose interest in it. Tomi, look at me. Do you think I'm a species of rat for telling you this?"

Tomi looked at Pierre without seeing him. "Don't you understand? If anyone were to treat my wife that way, I'd have a right to forewarn her, wouldn't I?"

Tomi's eyes were shining like two black diamonds. "Of course, Pierre, and you are French. I understand. We feel things differently. We react differently."

"And Tomi, you will marry me, after we've won the farm?"

Tomi looked down at him and again she nodded with understanding. "I think so, Pierre. I'm not sure now that I want to marry anyone. I mean, I don't want to think of marriage until this season is over. After that -"

"I'll wait," He spoke with confidence. "Meanwhile, you will have nothing to do with Bartell."

Tomi stood up. "That's where you are wrong, Pierre. I'm going to see as much of Bartell as I can. I'm going to stay so close to him I can watch his every move. No, Pierre, I won't listen to you. I am not your fiancée yet. I'm free, and I want to be free. By the way, will you go to Sacramento for me this week? I haven't been able to sell the buyer for The Senator Hotel. That's one of the best markets in the valley."

Pierre was satisfied, elated. Again, he was the dignified business man. The boyish, appealing Pierre was lost behind the brisk business-like attitude.

"You'd better drive up today so you can see him first thing in the morning," Tomi concluded. She went to her room to sit, tense, bitter. Everything Pierre had reported tallied with what Allen had thrown her off-guard. She had seen him as a man, not her great-uncle's attorney.

Dotty had warned her he could turn his charm off and on, at will. He had wanted to turn it on her for that brief time. She had basked in it, gloried in it. What a fool she had been.

So the feed-line had vibrated loose, had it? And that island obligingly appeared at the proper time. Something was going to vibrate loose before she got through with Allen Bartell.

See him again? She certainly would. She'd be the Tomi he professed to like. Other men had found her enticing before she ever heard of this legal gigolo.

"I'm So Happy" "TWO can play at your game," Allen Bartell, she prophesied, and started towards the window which gave view of his house.

She wheeled before she reached there and went to the front window. She wouldn't even look at his place.

And Lily! What a fine wife she would make, divulging Allen's professional secrets to his opponents. Dotty said their engagement had never been announced, so she, Tomi, wouldn't be violating any ethics if she gave that brassy, headed little blonde a long stretch of unhappy hours.

Pierre had driven the car to the spot nearest the veranda and was stowing his bags inside. Tomi opened the screen and leaned out, watching him, talking to him.

"I'll bring home that order," he assured her. The car door slammed. He waved goodbye.

Tomi kneeled before the window and watched the car jog down the dirt road. Dear Pierre. Why couldn't Allen look after her interest like that?

And wasn't it a glorious day? Wild mustard, like strips of pale sunlight, lined either side of the road. Pierre was slowing down. Oh, there was a group of people in the middle of the road. Probably neighboring farmers walking back from High Mass.

All but one had stepped off into the wild mustard. Pierre was forced into it himself. The one figure had refused to give way. On it came, the others falling behind like a little band following the Major-domo.

Amused, Tomi watched until she saw the leader was a woman, a tall dominant figure. Little wisps of dust arose as her long skirts trailed behind her.

Pests Still With Us, Alas Columbia, Mo. - (AP) - This winter's record-breaking cold spell didn't kill off as many insects as farmers seem to think, says Leonard Haseman, Missouri College of Agriculture entomologist.

Insects such as grasshoppers, the ground bug, and cutworms burrow beneath the snow or topsoil and usually aren't seriously harmed by sub-zero temperatures. Consequently, such pests probably will be as numerous as usual next summer.

Some other bugs, such as cabbage worms and the codling moth, don't withstand cold spells as well as the

"Dotty!" Tomi's wild scream brought the housekeeper flying upstairs. "Dotty! Look! The whole family! The Tolands. They've come to visit me!"

Dorothy Dougherty uttered a pious phrase, appropriate to the day, and sank into the nearest chair.

But Tomi raced down the stairs, out to the gate, and through the gate down the road.

"Aunt Hannah!" she caroled. "Dear, dear Aunt Hannah!"

The Queen Mary hat which rode the high pompadour went sideways under Tomi's onslaught.

"Must you always leap?" demanded Miss Toland.

"Of course," laughed Tomi. "Oh, Agatha, Amanda, Parilla, May-hello, and Carrington, Austin, Major, Harold!" She screamed the last word, for Harold, May Toland-Carrington's nine-year-old son, called her to attention with a vicious pinch.

"I'm so happy," Tomi bubbled. She was, and now the family had forgiven her.

They proceeded towards the house, flaying her with remarks. "You look like a picked chicken," condemned Great-aunt Hannah.

"Can't you afford to have your house painted?" inquired Austin. "And why must you live so far from transportation?" whined Agatha, limping.

"I don't think slippers like that appropriate for country roads," sniffed Parilla.

Tomi laughed happily. The old sannies, where had they found new clothes that looked so exactly like the ones they had started buying back in 1898? And didn't they know there were other colors than brown and gray?

"I Was Here First" SHE ushered them through the gate, thankful the garden was in such riotous bloom, up the path, grateful that Abe had mowed the lawn early that morning, and into the house, confident no one could find a speck of dirt.

In the dining room they sat and became silent. Harold had disappeared. Great-aunt Hannah looked around, then said:

"Your Great-uncle Timothy's will states that no relative may visit you more than once a year, or remain longer than twenty-four hours at a visit. Therefore, I regret we should all come together to spend the allotted time."

Tomi gasped, "Oh, lovely," and indulged in mental gymnastics. How would she sleep fourteen people? Had she enough groceries to feed them? Why must there be a Sunday closing law affecting food stores?

Tomi introduced a grim and disapproving Mrs. Dougherty who promptly counted noses and sighed. Then Tomi was engulfed in talk.

She listened avidly. Never had there been such a trip. They had traveled on a beautiful new streamlined train. Such comfort such food, such scenery.

Tomi smiled. Heretofore the family had thought the continent started at New York City and ended at Chicago. The girls hadn't been to New York since Captain Tom embarked for France. They had visited him at Garden City.

Tomi assigned them to rooms as best she could. She would bring their beds from the shed where she had had the extra ones stored. Then, while they toured house and grounds, she hurried to the kitchen to help the silent Dotty prepare dinner.

"High, shrill screech broke the Sabbath stillness. Tomi rushed to the front porch to see Old Abe fishing Harold out of the goldfish pond. He applied a sharp cuff to the boy's ear.

"That'll learn you to cater Tomi's pets, you little heathen." "Get out of this property!" demanded the voice of Great-aunt Hannah and she sailed into view. "Get off yourself," spat Abe. "Who do you think you are, anyhow?"

"I," proclaimed the woman, "am Hannah Toland!"

"Well, I'm Old Abe," he proclaimed in return. "And I was here first!"

Tomi sped to the rescue. She soothed Abe and soothed her aunt then sent Harold in to don dry clothing.

"Sit down," ordered Great-aunt Hannah. Tomi sat on the bench she had occupied earlier that morning.

"I just want to tell you, I forbid you marrying Allen Bartell." Tomi wondered if she were going into hysterics. In a moment she was going to shriek with laughter. Desperately she controlled herself. "Yes, Aunt Hannah," she murmured.

"That is all. Now I will go to my room. New stays," she explained.

Tomi looked at her aunt and something akin to pity welled up. The poor old honey. She was tired. Her eyes were bloodshot. She had probably absorbed every inch of scenery as long as there was daylight. Her skin was flabby with weariness, heavily lined.

Tomi guided her up to her own room. Helped her into a brown quilted robe, pulled the blinds and raced back to Dotty in time to hear a wild squawking from the chicken yard, followed by a howl of rage.

Hatch Act Could Affect More Than One Campaign

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, March 20.—The Hatch "clean politics" act faces such a tremendous fight in the House of Representatives that it appears slim chance that it will become a law any time soon; but if by any chance it should go on the statute books before North Carolina's primary voting on May 25, it could have some effect on more than one state race and in one might even be the decisive factor.

That one is the contest between incumbent commissioner of agriculture, W. Kerr Scott, and aspiring C. Weyland Sprull of Bertie county.

The reason passage of the Hatch amendments would affect this race more than others lies in the fact that it would keep county farm agents from engaging actively and openly in political work, and there is reason to believe that this large group may get into the agricultural commissioner's race with both.

Four years ago these county agents were for the most part inactive in support of Scott and it was largely through their efforts that he unseated his veteran opponent, Will Graham. Now things are different and if there is wide-scale political activity on the part of the agents it will probably be in behalf of Sprull—not because the man from the Rippling Waters of the Silvery Chowan is any particular favorite with them but because of the perennial Department-State College farm row. The agents' chief, Dean T. O. Schaub, is expected to oppose Scott tooth and nail and will likely enlist the agents if he can.

The Hatch amendments, prohibiting political activity by state employees paid in part by Federal funds, would get the agents—as it would Highway Commission employees as well—but that's another story.

They proceeded towards the house, flaying her with remarks. "You look like a picked chicken," condemned Great-aunt Hannah.

"Can't you afford to have your house painted?" inquired Austin. "And why must you live so far from transportation?" whined Agatha, limping.

"I don't think slippers like that appropriate for country roads," sniffed Parilla.

Tomi laughed happily. The old sannies, where had they found new clothes that looked so exactly like the ones they had started buying back in 1898? And didn't they know there were other colors than brown and gray?

"I Was Here First" SHE ushered them through the gate, thankful the garden was in such riotous bloom, up the path, grateful that Abe had mowed the lawn early that morning, and into the house, confident no one could find a speck of dirt.

In the dining room they sat and became silent. Harold had disappeared. Great-aunt Hannah looked around, then said:

"Your Great-uncle Timothy's will states that no relative may visit you more than once a year, or remain longer than twenty-four hours at a visit. Therefore, I regret we should all come together to spend the allotted time."

Tomi gasped, "Oh, lovely," and indulged in mental gymnastics. How would she sleep fourteen people? Had she enough groceries to feed them? Why must there be a Sunday closing law affecting food stores?

Tomi introduced a grim and disapproving Mrs. Dougherty who promptly counted noses and sighed. Then Tomi was engulfed in talk.

She listened avidly. Never had there been such a trip. They had traveled on a beautiful new streamlined train. Such comfort such food, such scenery.

Tomi smiled. Heretofore the family had thought the continent started at New York City and ended at Chicago. The girls hadn't been to New York since Captain Tom embarked for France. They had visited him at Garden City.

Tomi assigned them to rooms as best she could. She would bring their beds from the shed where she had had the extra ones stored. Then, while they toured house and grounds, she hurried to the kitchen to help the silent Dotty prepare dinner.

"High, shrill screech broke the Sabbath stillness. Tomi rushed to the front porch to see Old Abe fishing Harold out of the goldfish pond. He applied a sharp cuff to the boy's ear.

"That'll learn you to cater Tomi's pets, you little heathen." "Get out of this property!" demanded the voice of Great-aunt Hannah and she sailed into view. "Get off yourself," spat Abe. "Who do you think you are, anyhow?"

"I," proclaimed the woman, "am Hannah Toland!"

"Well, I'm Old Abe," he proclaimed in return. "And I was here first!"

Tomi sped to the rescue. She soothed Abe and soothed her aunt then sent Harold in to don dry clothing.

"Sit down," ordered Great-aunt Hannah. Tomi sat on the bench she had occupied earlier that morning.

"I just want to tell you, I forbid you marrying Allen Bartell." Tomi wondered if she were going into hysterics. In a moment she was going to shriek with laughter. Desperately she controlled herself. "Yes, Aunt Hannah," she murmured.

"That is all. Now I will go to my room. New stays," she explained.

Tomi looked at her aunt and something akin to pity welled up. The poor old honey. She was tired. Her eyes were bloodshot. She had probably absorbed every inch of scenery as long as there was daylight. Her skin was flabby with weariness, heavily lined.

Tomi guided her up to her own room. Helped her into a brown quilted robe, pulled the blinds and raced back to Dotty in time to hear a wild squawking from the chicken yard, followed by a howl of rage.

Green Phantom Nine Starts Training For First Game

HALIFAX TEAM FIRST ON LIST

Several Regulars Of Last Season Not Back Again

The Greenville high school baseball season got under way Monday afternoon with approximately 35 candidates reporting for duty.

Last year the G-men lost only three conference games and ended the season second on the list. This year's team will suffer the loss of Wayland Tucker, Ford Mcowan, John Register, John Lautares, Milton Stafford and Leslie Babcock, all first string players.

Returning from last season are Bill Taylor, Harry Wilson, Charles Williams, Snag Clark, Buddy Harrison and Troy Riddle.

Larry James, Burney Warren and Marvin Stocks will probably join the team after Easter.

The Phantom pitching staff will suffer most this season. Bill Taylor will take his place on the mound. Paul Fye, a left-over from last year, is hoping to see much action this year also. Burney Warren, who is expected to join the club after Easter, will probably be an addition to the tossing staff.

Along with pitching, catching also has its place among the weaknesses of the local G-men, stated Coach Dally. Though Charles Williams, veteran catcher, is unable to carry on his work behind the plate, he will seek the first-sack booth.

With their first game with Roanoke Rapids only two weeks off, the Dallymen have pitched right in and are getting down to serious business.

ROOKIE READY TO GET GOING

Skipper Wilson Receives Letter From Outfielder

At least one of the rookies signed by the Greenville baseball club is anxious and ready to get started and apparently is in shape for playing.

Manager R. J. Wilson today received a letter from Mervyn Keith Munroe, better known in baseball circles as "Butch", declaring that he had been "bothering" the Cleveland athletic club with his frequent visit for the past three weeks. His home is in Cleveland.

The outfielder declared that he has worked the soreness out of his leg, recalling that he had a "charley" while in Orlando, Fla., where the local skipper "spotted" and signed him.

"I feel in great shape and am anxious to get started," he wrote the local manager.

The rookie is six feet, three and weighs 178, and has a fine high school and college record in athletics. He played football, basketball and baseball and starred at track. He also was boxing champion of the 170 pound weight in college.

Greenberg Switch Gets An Okay From Famed Ex-Tiger Flychaser

By DILLON GRAHAM Sports Editor, AP Feature Service Lakeland, Fla.—Hank Greenberg is going to be a great success as an outfielder. You can take that unqualified prediction from one of Detroit's best old time flychasers, heavy-hitting Harry Hellmann.

"The big fellow looks good out there," said Hellmann, who spent more than a decade in Detroit's outer gardens and now describes the Tigers' games from a radio booth.

"It really isn't too difficult a shift from the infield to the outfield," Hellmann explained. "A player who has been around as long as Greenberg should be able to make the jump without trouble."

It'll Take A While "It's harder to change an outfielder into an infielder. Greenberg has had years of experience handling ground balls, so they won't trouble him. And he's gone back behind first base for short flies enough to know something about catching them.

"He'll make some errors, sure, but he'll catch on. It may take him some time to get his arm accustomed to the longer throw. He is fast enough for a big fellow but with that speedy Barney McCosky in center field Hank won't have to worry much about hits over in left-center."

"I think you'll find that Hank's hitting will improve, too. The history of the game has shown that infielders turned into outfielders generally have better batting averages."

"The change should strengthen the Tigers. It is going to be a big help to have York's big bat in there all the time. And Tebbetts should be one of the league's better catchers now that he knows that the job is his every day. He's a smart receiver."

The shift in the Detroit lineup is one of the major experiments of the year. The veteran first baseman, Greenberg, has been moved into left field. Rudy York, a heavy hitter who couldn't play third base or the outfield and was a defensive liability behind the plate, finally has been planted in his favorite position at first. He can field enough for that spot. Tebbetts, a light hitter, had been kept on the bench while York caught because of Rudy's heavier hitting.

Hard-Working Student Greenberg, a fixture at first for several years, opposed the change when it was originally proposed. But he has made up his mind to it now. When Greenberg first came into the league a half dozen years ago he was among the worst defensive first basemen. Big and awkward. But he worked hard and developed into a pretty fair fielder. Now he is laboring just as hard to become a good outfielder. He is one of the first on the field and the last to leave at the training camp here. He spends several hours a day fielding flies. And he makes the hitters knock them out of his reach. He knows he can handle the easy ones, but realizes that he needs experience in judging the longer hits.

"This Detroit team looks like the ones we used to have in my day," Hellmann observed. "A team with lots of power. Greenberg and McCoskey and possibly Fox or Campbell in the outfield. And maybe that young kid, Pat Mullin. He can really hit a ball. Then York and Gehring and Bartell and Higgins in the infield. Bartell is a little guy but he is really banging out the hits. Higgins was in trouble all last year but he's okay this year and should have a big season."

The low score of the match went to the Rocky Mount ace, Warren Whitley, who turned in the fine score of 71—two/under par. Greenville's low scorers were Allen and Potts, who turned scores of 76 and 77, respectively.

The 22 local golfers who participated in yesterday's match were: Dr. M. B. Massey, W. T. Allen, Ramsey Potts, T. A. Smoot, Roy Campbell, Stewart Carr, Dr. W. M. B. Brown, Jack Edwards, D. M. Clark, R. C. Stokes, Luther Herring, D. H. Conley, J. T. Little, Hunter Keck, Blitts Ruffin, Bat Cosby, J. R. Move, J. H. Waldrop, John Proctor, M. K. Blount, and Stewart Fliken.

STATE BEGINS TO TAKE FORM

Newton's First Nine Facing Easter Monday Classic

Raleigh, Mar. 21—Williams (Doc) Newton's first North Carolina State baseball team is beginning to take form, as the all-important Southern conference, Big Five and Easter Monday classic here with Wake Forest nears. The game will begin at 3 p. m.

Coach Newton inherited the coaching berth Chick Doak handles so well for 15 years and his has been the problem of rebuilding the State team from mediocre material.

At this writing it appears that Pat Fehley, the hard-hitting junior catcher from Easton, Pa., who is a co-captain elect of the Wolfpack football team, and Chick Doak, Jr., sophomore from Raleigh, will share the catching assignment.

Captain Cader Harris, elongated senior from Elizabeth City, seems to have the first base job sewed up again, and Jim Carney, sophomore

Farley's Pirates Face Elon Here on Saturday

Coach Bo Farley's East Carolina Teachers College Pirates will open an 18-game baseball schedule here Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Elon College.

Coach Farley said today that two games are pending here with West Carolina Teachers College, but the dates have not been set. Games also are pending with Oak Ridge, Guilford and High Point College at these respective schools, but the dates for these are not set.

Despite inclement weather that has prevailed during the past two weeks, Coach Farley has managed to put his hopefuls through rather stiff paces preliminary to the encounter with the favored Elon College nine. The probable starters for Elon were not known here today.

A receptive turnout from the student body and town populace is expected for Saturday's game, since it is the first of the season.

The grounds were being put into shape and bleachers set up on the field today. Should more rainy weather be experienced before Saturday, the game may be transferred to the city park.

The schedule follows: Elon, here, March 23; Guilford, here, March 25 and March 26; High Point, here, March 28; Campbell, here, April 2; Louisville, there, April 5; Campbell, there, April 12; Oak Ridge, here, April 13; Atlantic Christian College, here, April 16; Atlantic Christian College, there, April 16; Louisville, there, April 16; United States Naval Base, there, May 8 and May 9.

GOLFERS LOSE PIERCE PICKED FOR LEAD-OFF

Defeated by Rocky Mount by Score of 38-16

Greenville golfers were set back to the tune of 38 to 16 in the first match of the Eastern Golf Association's 1940 schedule in Rocky Mount, yesterday.

The low score of the match went to the Rocky Mount ace, Warren Whitley, who turned in the fine score of 71—two/under par. Greenville's low scorers were Allen and Potts, who turned scores of 76 and 77, respectively.

Kinston also went down before the Rocky Mount golfers yesterday, 39 to 4. The season-opening match will not be played until Friday of this week and the Goldsboro-Tarboro score was not known here today.

Last week's encounter between Greenville and Kinston was rained out. The 22 local golfers who participated in yesterday's match were: Dr. M. B. Massey, W. T. Allen, Ramsey Potts, T. A. Smoot, Roy Campbell, Stewart Carr, Dr. W. M. B. Brown, Jack Edwards, D. M. Clark, R. C. Stokes, Luther Herring, D. H. Conley, J. T. Little, Hunter Keck, Blitts Ruffin, Bat Cosby, J. R. Move, J. H. ### Local Boy Number 1 Batter For Duke Team

Durham, March 21—Coach Jack Coombs of Duke University's baseball forces will throw a trio of sophomores, working three innings each, against the University of Pennsylvania nine in Duke park tomorrow afternoon as the Blue Devils, state and conference champs for three years in a row, open their 1940 campaign.

The clash will get under way at three o'clock and the two teams will meet again on Saturday afternoon at the same time.

Coach Coombs' three hurlers will be Bill McCahan, righthander, Bob Weaver, southpaw, and Bill Mock, righthander. McCahan and Mock were members of the basketball team of the past season. Mock winning all-conference and third All-America honors in his first year of play.

With these boys the Duke mentor will work a trio of catchers—Tony Ruffa, the football tackle who is also a placekick specialist, will start. Ed Schlear, a reserve infielder for the past two seasons, will succeed Ruffa with Joe Morris, who caught some last year, finishing up.

George McAfee, the halfback sensation of football, is the second grinder to win a starting job. The fast-stepping left-hander will be in centerfield tomorrow and will bat in the No. 2 spot. Coach Coombs says McAfee has improved amazingly since he reported, has the prospect of becoming a really great ball player.

HANK GREENBERG

Coach Coombs said on Saturday he would work three veteran hurlers with Bill Peters starting. Killer Bortz following him and then Bob Vickery, leading tosser last season, ending up. All are right-handers.

From these six hurlers, Coach Coombs will pick those to work against Maryland's tough Old Liners in the Big Easter Monday Southern conference double-header.

Coach Coombs said he might use Dick Leopold and Don Shanahan in the outfield in the event Penn or Maryland sent left-handers to the mound. Of the starting team listed, Pierce, McAfee, Shokes, Carey, Bilane, Byam, Morris, Weaver and Mock hit from the left side.

To Open Skating Rink Monday of Next Week

A skating rink will be opened here Monday for the convenience of persons, both grown ups and youngsters who follow the sport.

The rink will be maintained at Gorham's warehouse, which has hardwood floors. It will be operated by Jack Move, Jr., and will be open from 3 p. m. through the evening hours.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 21.—(AP)—While rising tendencies persisted in aviation stocks, many leaders took a rest in today's market. Advances running to a point or so for favorites at the start were reduced near the end as volume dwindled appreciably. There also was an assortment of moderate losers.

Intensification of the European air warfare kept the plane group in the limelight as bigger orders for fighting craft were expected to be placed in the United States. At the same time business news at home was none too bright.

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Gower Gulch, the local street corner cowboy rendezvous which broke into the headlines with a shooting recently, has about one chance in 2,500 of contributing a cowboy star to pictures.

Bob Tansey figures it that way, and Bob has been around cowboys and pictures a long time. He writes cowboy pictures, directs them, produces them, has acted in them. Sometimes he writes, directs and produces, all at the same time. In his typewriter now are five new movies stories, to each of which he gives his literary attentions as its deadline for production approaches. Bob, a lean and wiry chap, can dream up "Western" plots between races at Santa Anita. He's been in the game for 34 years.

"The cowboy extra has about one chance in 1,000 even to get to featured roles," says Bob. "And when they want a star, they usually don't take a cowboy. They take a fellow who can sing, who's good-looking, and can play a guitar and look like a cowboy, and then they teach him to ride—enough to get by, anyway."

That's nothing new, however. The first of the screen's cowboy stars was G. M. "Broncho Billy" Anderson. Terry Ramsaye, the film historian, relates the legend of Broncho's debut in "The Great Train Robbery." Broncho Billy, according to the story, was thrown from a horse the first day of shooting and took the train back to New York. He returned to finish the movie, but had no more to do with horses for a while.

Just as the first "Westerns" were shot in the wild plains of New Jersey, so cowboy stardom has not swerved much from its effete origins. W. S. Hart, successor to Anderson and long-time ruler of the movie West, was a stage actor who became a "cowboy"—and a real one for the movies.

Tom Mix was a Westerner all the way, with a full past of range adventure before he hit pictures, and Ken Maynard, out of Texas, came to movies from a wild-West circus.

But they didn't find Gene Autry in Gower Gulch. Gene's from Texas, and he knew his way about, but they picked him off the air. Bill Boyd used to be a "straight" actor before he fell into "Hopalong Cassidy," and George O'Brien was in an Academy award picture ("Sunrise") long before his brown was placed in the saddle. The Ivy League contributed Dick Foran and Charles Starrett to the leading man ranks, and they—two surprised Easterners—were booted in short order, up into the saddle. Randolph Scott, at home now in frequent Western roles, hails from Virginia. The movie West's Tom Keene was George Duryea—imported by DeMille from the stage where he'd done such outdoor pieces as "Abie's Irish Rose." John Wayne, from U. S. O., fitted naturally into Western epics.

But the boys all learn to ride, even if they don't know a bit from a stirrup when they start. Riding isn't everything these days—not when the range is supposed to be full of crooners.

And when a cowboy star can about a hundred right smart trick barely get by on his riding, there's always Gower Gulch. There are riders who'll double for a star at the drop of a slouch hat.
