SEN. VAN NUYS SUGGESTS THAT FARLEY RESIGN

Says Position Party Head In Advantage

SENATOR IS FOR PAUL V. MCNUTT

Declares, However, That He Would Support Farley, Whom He Is "Fond Of", As Nominee

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—A McNutt for President booster, Senator Van Nuy (D-Ind.), has called upon Postmaster General Farley to quit as national Democratic chairman in fairness to other candidates for the party's presidential nomination.

Referring to Farley's unqualified announcement that his name would be placed before the Democratic National convention, the supporter of Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt said:

"If nominated and elected he (Farley) would make a very acceptable president, carrying into the White House a lot of good common sense and stability.

"I am very fond of Jim Farley and I could support him as a nominee very gladly. But, I do not think it is fair to other candidates that he retain his position as national chairman, capitalizing on the prestige which that office entails."

Van Nuy said he thought retention of the party chairmanship by Farley would not be in keeping with the spirit of the Hatch act, which curbs political activities of federal employees other than policy-making officials. He added that he thought this position would be dropped by the postmaster general himself. Friends of Farley have expressed belief recently, however, that he had no intention of resigning as chairman at this time.

G. H. Pittman Out For County Board

G. H. Pittman of Falkland today formally announced his candidacy for re-election to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, subject to the Democratic primary of May 25.

Mr. Pittman is a member of the present administration, having been elected in 1938 in his first entry into politics, other than those of his home town, where he has served on the governing board.

Winterville Services To End Sunday Night

The special services being conducted at the Winterville Baptist church by Dr. Carl M. Townsend, pastor of Hayes Barton church of Raleigh, will be concluded with the evening sermon tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The services have been well attended, with members of the various denominations being present for the meetings.

Preaching will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. Frank E. Morris is pastor.

Dies In Fire

The two or three months old baby of Leander Barrett, Winterville Negro, died when his fire destroyed the home there this afternoon.

According to reports, the mother of the Negro baby went to a neighbor's house after building a big fire in the fireplace of the room where the baby was sleeping.

The blaze reached the papered walls and spread so fast that when the fire was discovered it was impossible to enter the room. Leander was said to have been a WPA worker.

"Bomb" Brings Down Apartment House

The capital city of Washington was subjected to a planned "bombing" when one wing of the $2,000,000 Boulevard apartments was dynamited to make way for the $4,000,000 first unit of the proposed $26,000,000 War Department building. This picture was made just as the dynamite exploded and the walls of the nine-story building began crumbling.

SPONSORS SET FOR EGG HUNT

Merchants to be Hosts To Children Of County

Easter eggs by the thousands will be hidden on the west campus of East Carolina Teachers College Monday in preparation for the hunt to be sponsored by the Greenville Merchants Association that afternoon at 3 o'clock.

White school children in Greenville and throughout the county are invited to attend. Children are asked to assemble on Cotanche street, along side the campus, prior to the starting hour.

In addition to the nearly 10,000 candy Easter eggs purchased by the Greenville Merchants Association for the hunt, various merchants will give away approximately 400 "prize eggs." Neatly wrapped in the prize eggs will be certificates entitling the finder to a prize at the store designated. Children finding these will take them to the stores and receive the prize.

Prof. R. C. Deal of the college faculty, will direct activities through a loud speaker provided through the courtesy of McCormick Music company.

Local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will assist in hiding the eggs and the Citizenship committee of the Woman's club as well as many individuals, will be present to assist the children. A special hunting ground will be provided for the smaller children so they will have an equal opportunity to find the eggs.

The association's committee on plans and arrangements is composed of O. P. Matthews, D. J. Whitchard, Jr., T. Y. Walker, W. L. Nesbit, Jr. and B. D. Johnston.

Prize eggs are being provided by the following firms:

- A. and P. Tea Co., Aske's Market, Bissette's Drug Store, Blount-Harvey Co., Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co., Brody, Carolina Dairy, Charles Stores, Coburn's Shoes, Efrids Dept. Store, Firestone Auto Supply, Garvin Grocery, W. T. Grant Co., Greenville Nehi Bottling Co., Home Furniture Store, Honeycutt's Market, Kares Bros., Lautares Bros., McLellan Stores, Miller-Jones Co., Merit Shoe Co., Paul Auto Supply, Penders Stores, J. Cold Easter

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—Easter parade hopes got the cold shoulder from the weather man today.

He served up a forecast of unseasonably cold weather for all of the country, except the deep South and far West. The East and mid-West may even have a white Easter, for the weather maps indicate a threat of snow in those sections today and tonight.

J. H. HARRELL TO HEAD BOARD

New Registration Officially Called For Pitt

The newly-appointed Pitt County Board of Elections held its organization meeting this morning and J. H. Harrell was re-elected chairman. L. T. Pierce of Farmville was chosen secretary. The other member of the board, a Republican, is H. R. Munford.

The board officially decided to call a new registration and all persons participating in the May 25th primary will be required to re-register. The books will be open on April 27 and the registrars will be at the respective polling places for three Saturdays. Persons may register at other times by calling on the registrars.

Election officials will be named at a meeting to be held by the board at a later date.

Word was received here today that the county boards of Wilson and Vance counties also had ordered new registrations, but Wayne county called for a re-listing of names.

Under the plan followed by Wayne county and which was made optional with the local boards by the last legislature although State Chairman W. A. Lucas of Wilson has expressed himself as favoring the new registration, a county board could have the names of all persons who participated both in the primary and election in 1936 and also in 1938 copied in new books. Names of persons registered who did not participate in both the election and primary in each of the two years would be published in newspapers so that such persons could be advised that they were not on the new books.

What It Means: Mussolini's Meeting With Hitler

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—While Mussolini-the-Realist swaps secrets with Adolf Hitler, Mussolini-the-Empire-Builders still has eyes on Mediterranean empire.

American experts on world politics tell you to remember that in the weeks ahead, whichever way Mussolini seems to turn at the moment, no one doubts that his course will point in the long run toward coveted Corfu, Dalmatia, Malta, Tunisia, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Djibouti, and the Suez canal.

And except for Dalmatia and Corfu and their strategic bearing on control of the Balkans, the Allies have a firm grip on most of the stepping stones to Mussolini's Mediterranean empire. The Allies have most of what II Duce wants—not Herr Hitler.

SCHOOL VOTES SOUGHT BY ALL

Gubernatorial Candidates Wooing N.C. Teachers

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, March 23.—Outstanding in the current earnest, if so far colorless, gubernatorial campaign is the fervent manner in which every one of the candidates is wooing the "school vote," so called.

There has scarcely been a speech made by any one of the half dozen regarded as having a chance that hasn't promised, at least by implication, something to the teachers. On one point there is seeming unanimity. That's teacher retirement. No matter who is the lucky man to be elected he will go into office pledged to do his utmost to provide a system of teacher pensions; though so far none has been any too specific about details of how and when the plan would be set up.

Perhaps no one of the ambitious six has gone further than A. J. Maxwell indicating that the teachers can expect not only retirement provisions, but a restoration of salaries to the pre-depression level. This is something that the school people have been calling for in every legislature since 1935; something toward which they have each time made progress, but not quite enough to attain their full objectives.

At Greensboro early this week Maxwell said: "If there is no integration of our tax structure I believe that increasing revenue will permit adoption by the next General Assembly of several of these objectives (those outlined by the N. C. E. A. in its convention)." He listed a retirement system, sick leave with pay and restoration of salaries to pre-depression levels.

In Winston-Salem Tom Cooper reiterated his pledge to work for a retirement plan and pointed out that it would not cost nearly as much as some think because "teachers either marry or die in harness." The Wilmington mayor stood pat on his ideas that teachers are under-paid.

At Durham some ten days ago Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton said: "I expect to recommend to the General Assembly next January the adoption of a retirement plan for the school teachers of North Carolina."

In West Jefferson Thursday night he declared: "More effort should be made to provide the kind of public school instruction which will enable children to make a living."

Many Plan Attend Sunrise Services

A large number of citizens in this community are expected to attend the Easter sunrise service to be held at the college athletic grounds tomorrow morning at 6:15 o'clock.

The service is being sponsored by the various churches of the city and will be brief, giving those attending plenty of time to return home for breakfast before time to leave for their respective churches.

Both the high school and college bands will be present to present appropriate Easter music. Rev. W. A. Ryan, Christian pastor, will deliver the brief message.

The local Ministerial Association, sponsors of the services, hope to make them an annual event. In case of rain, the services will be conducted in the Austin auditorium of the college.

Apparent Calm In Europe On Eve Of Easter Sunday Marked With Uncertainty

Fate of French Government Uncertain Despite Reynaud's Decision; British-German Sea Warfare Intensified; Rome-Berlin Axis Expected To Be Extended To Include Russia

Undercurrent of the British-German sea struggle, the French government uncertainty and diplomatic maneuvers connected with the Balkans marked the surface calm of Europe on this Easter eve.

Following up last Monday's Brenner Pass conference of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini from which Germany was to expect an extension of the Rome-Berlin axis to Moscow and an early visit of Russian Premier Foreign Commissar to Berlin was being bruited.

Mysterious activities during the holiday week-end in Berlin were interpreted in some quarters as indicating that preparations were being made for Molotov's reception. Italy, meanwhile, became the host of Hungarian Premier Count Pal Teleki whose arrival in Rome for conferences with Premier Mussolini and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano were linked with German desires for economic expansion in southeastern Europe and Italian anxiety to maintain peace there.

Britain braced herself in expectation of a greater wave of German submarine attacks on her vital sea commerce and sought to keep the food supplies flowing by coaxing neutrals into convoys.

Some circles declared that the sinking of six Danish ships out of the past two days embraced a German scheme to divert to German tables the Danish dairy products which long have been British staples.

The British move to throttle German imports of Scandinavian ore was seen in some quarters following the destruction of a German merchantman by a British submarine at the entrance to the Baltic—the first such incident of the war.

Despite a vote of confidence that carried by a margin of one, France's new premier, Paul Reynaud, decided to keep his cabinet in office.

Underwood Is Out For Solicitorship

Sam B. Underwood Jr. today formally announced his candidacy for the office of Solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's court.

The local attorney is the son of Mrs. S. B. Underwood and the late Mr. Underwood, for many years superintendent of Pitt county schools. He received his early education in the public schools of Greenville and then attended Duke university, where he received his A. B. degree. He taught in the Farmville high school for two years.

After having a LL. B. degree conferred on him in 1937 by Cumberland university, Mr. Underwood passed the bar examination and received his license to practice in the same year.

He opened an office for the practice of law here in October, 1937, and has followed the profession since.

He is an active member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, a member of the executive committee of the Greenville District of Boy Scouts and at present is serving for the second year as commissioner of the district organization. He has been active in the Pitt County Bar Association and is now serving as secretary-treasurer of the group. He is president of the Pitt County Young Democratic club and has evidenced interest in civic endeavors of Greenville and Pitt county. He has served in campaigns of the Red Cross and other charitable causes.

Friday Forest Fires Reported By Warden

County Fire Warden C. A. Bowling today reported two brush fires in the county got beyond control yesterday and required the aid of organized fire fighters to extinguish them.

Homes vs. Autos? Babson Says Waste Of Natural Resources Must Be Curbed

Babson Park, Florida, March 22.—Future historians may well discuss the conflict now raging between Home and Automobiles. This conflict is changing the manners, modes, and morals of America.

Whether these vast social and economic trends will eventually turn out for the better or the worst only the historians will be able to say. But without waiting for the judgment of Father Time we can safely predict that he will point to this generation as the wastrels of some of America's most precious resources—particularly oil.

Few of us comprehend the vast changes the auto has brought in our social, economic, and spiritual life. It has been an evolution that has encompassed hundreds of industries, thousands of communi-

SEE APPROVAL OF INCREASES IN FARM BILL

Even House Economy Advocates Predict Success

MANY ADDITIONS MADE IN SENATE

Bill Approved in That Body Yesterday Carries Nearly $923,000,000 in Appropriations

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—Even economy advocates predicted today that the House would accept at least part of the increases made by the Senate in the one billion dollar farm bill which it approved late yesterday.

There was widespread feeling in both chambers that the desire to win the farm vote would prove stronger than the fear of new taxes which influenced the House to hold the farm appropriation to $714,000,000 earlier this session.

The expanded bill now goes back to the House for action on the increases. Leaders expect it to be sent early next week to a joint congressional committee for adjustment of the differences.

The Senate approved bill carries nearly $923,000,000 in appropriations—more than $200,000,000 in excess of President Roosevelt's budget recommendations—and an additional $90,000,000 in loans for agricultural purposes.

Until the farm bill reached the Senate, Mr. Roosevelt's budget estimates for various purposes had been reduced approximately $300,000,000 in Congress in an effort to avoid the $460,000,000 of additional taxes which the President advised to finance "emergency" defense outlays.

Although the increases in the farm measure offset most of the savings voted previously, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, has expressed belief that additional taxes might still be avoided. The possibility of accomplishing this by trimming defense appropriations has been suggested in some quarters.

The largest of some 70 increases made in the bill by the Senate was $212,000,000 for parity payments to cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice growers complying with the farm act.

Firemen Of City Answer Two Calls

Greenville firemen answered two calls yesterday, one coming in 10 minutes after the other, but neither was serious and both were extinguished with slight damage.

At 6:30 the fire-fighters were summoned to the Third Street park when a grass fire got beyond control and reached the fence around the baseball diamond. The only loss was about 25 boards which burned or were pulled off by firemen to check the blaze.

While one truck was at the park another alarm came in from box 72 and the other truck was rushed to S. M. Woolfolk's store on Dickinson avenue to extinguish a fire which started from a short circuit in an electric refrigerating unit. The damage was slight.

The gladioli were later presented to the retiring Worthy Matrons. A Past Matron's pin was presented to Mrs. Kathleen Whitehurst by the Greenville Chapter for her untiring service in 1939-40. Tokens of appreciation of their service were also presented to Mrs. Annie Stroud, J. F. Harrington and C. E. Spear.

During the social hour, refreshments were served by members of the Greenville chapter. Several readings were given by Mrs. Annie Stroud and special music was rendered by Miss Edna Moore and Mrs. Mildred Clark May.

He Could Get Along With Russia—For A While.

Then there's that Balkan nightmare. For a while Mussolini could even afford to string along with Russia and Germany in a partition of Balkan influence. But if common sense doesn't tell Mussolini he'd be playing a losing game there in the long run, history should give him the clue.

History will tell him that Italy, Germany, and Russia have always been rivals for Balkan supremacy. Their interests are not identical. The Balkans supply raw materials for industrial nations. Russia, Germany, and Italy are all industrial nations, needing raw materials.

And there are not enough raw materials in the Balkans to supply one of those nations, let alone all three.

So a patchwork arrangement in the Balkans might interest Mussolini on a temporary basis, but not in the long run.

Far better for Mussolini to try to get a route to commerce around the Suez, through Tunisia, and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and a fair share of the stock in the Suez canal.

Until the last whistle blows, Mussolini will be dreaming of empire, just as every important Italian has dreamed.

And Mussolini knows that a straight line is not necessarily the shortest distance between present-day Italy, bottled up in the Mediterranean, and a future Italy, master of the Mediterranean.

Many Attend Service At Free Will Baptist

The attendance at the pre-Easter service at the Free Will Baptist church is steadily on the increase. Last night's meeting having the largest attendance yet.

At the service last night were members of Red Men and the Pochahontas. The service revolved around the crucifixion and some of the most beautiful pictures of the week were shown, together with charts helping those present to understand the message. The special music was in keeping with the theme. Just before the lecture the local male quartet sang "Jesus Paid It All" and Mrs. Ballard sang "Nearth The Old Olive Tree." During the lecture when the picture of the crucifixion was on the screen, Mrs. Ballard and Mrs. Erley sang, "The Old Rugged Cross." At the close of the lecture the Misses Harrington sang "Whispering Hope."

Tonight and tomorrow night will be the final service, climaxing with the resurrection tomorrow night.

Special music is arranged for each service. In these services it is the purpose to help in Bible study and make them helpful.

Tomorrow night at 7:15 the pastors will have a special service for children lasting until 7:45 at which time many pictures will be shown, some of which have not been shown during the week. All children are specially invited to this service.

Dr. Paul A. Toll, professor of government at East Carolina Teachers College, will lead an open forum discussion at the Christian church Sunday March 31, from 8 until 9 o'clock p. m.

His subject will be upon the advisability of embargoes relative to belligerent nations. This will be the first in a series of discussions sponsored by the church and pertaining to world affairs.

The public has been extended a cordial invitation to attend the forums.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

EASTER
Easter morning at dawn, a group of weeping, broken-hearted women at the sepulcher of our Lord! Easter afternoon, the risen Lord walked along the road between Jerusalem and Emmaus with two disciples who were not only crushed as they remembered the crucifixion, but were greatly baffled as to why, in a God-controlled world, a thing as unjust as the crucifixion should have taken place.

Broken-hearted women and broken-minded men! It was to these two groups that our Lord Jesus spoke words of reassurance on the first Easter day. "Be not afraid," He said. As they walked along the Emmaus road, He opened up to them the Scriptures until their hearts burned joyfully within them.

To the broken-hearted in every age—and to the broken-minded in this chaotic age of ours, the risen Christ still speaks. What He says is the only thing that will turn sorrow into joy. His counsel alone will turn the nations of the world from their insane policies of strife and lead us into the ways of peace.

Let us remember at this Easter season that He is risen. He is in the world today just as He was on that first Easter Sunday. And if we will let Him speak to us, He will dry our tears and comfort our hearts. If we heed His counsel as we ponder life's problems, the glory of the resurrection will make life's pathway before our feet.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—For the first time in 24 years, Republicans and Democrats swing into a battle for the Presidency against the ominous backdrop of big-time European warfare.

The 1940 campaign scene has marked similarities—and some striking contrasts—to that of 1916 when Woodrow Wilson rode to victory over Charles Evans Hughes on the slogan "He kept us out of war."

Again the nation is trying to maintain neutrality. Again a Democratic administration is in power. To Europe on a peace-exploiter tour for President Roosevelt went Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles. To Europe on a similar mission went President Wilson's unofficial ambassador, Col. E. M. House.

The "all-out" war then had a sharper impact on this country than the present "limited" conflict. Submarine sinking without warning of foreign merchant vessels with Americans aboard brought from Wilson an ultimatum that unless Germany abandoned that sort of warfare the United States would sever diplomatic relations. Uncle Sam now forbids American ships and travelers to go into war zone waters.

T. R. Jeers of Wilson
In 1916, members of both parties carried guns as well as flags in Citizens Preparedness parades. New York society girls enrolled in a "military training camp" operated by a woman of wealth at Erskine, N. J. In contrast to the current overwhelming "keep out" sentiment, many then felt that U. S. participation was inevitable.

Republicans centered their campaign attack on Wilson's failure to take a stronger stand in dealing with the belligerents, particularly Germany. Teddy Roosevelt lambasted him for writing "pussy-footing notes," jeered at the famed Wilson declaration "a nation too proud to fight."

This year's G. O. P. fire is being directed chiefly at Democratic domestic policies. On the international side, Republican politicians are warning of the danger of our getting into the war.

Owing to the hard-term fight and the flock of leading possibilities in both parties, presidential races are much more muddled now than in 1916. Wilson was an unopposed Democratic choice for a second term. Justice Hughes was an early Republican selection although T. R. was getting more of the limelight.

Hughes won the Republican nomination on the third ballot. Roosevelt was nominated by the Progressives but declined and supported the Republican ticket. The Wilson-Hughes race was the closest since the Hayes-Tilden contest. Hughes having the bitter experience of learning that he had lost the presidency after believing he had won it.

Early Returns For Hughes
Early returns from the east and middle-western cities gave Hughes such a large lead that New York newspapers ran the headline "Sweeping Victory For Hughes."

Related returns from rural sections in the west showed Wilson leading and on the third day after election, his victory was conceded. Wilson received 277 electoral votes, Hughes 254.

Before Wilson's second inauguration, unrestricted submarine warfare caused severance of diplomatic relations with Germany. Less than a month after his inauguration, he appeared before Congress to ask a declaration of a state of war.

REPLACE TOBACCO WITH COWS

Mr. Editor:

Anent this great question confronting our tobacco farmers as to what to substitute in place of the tobacco which cannot be planted, I would like to suggest that the idea of starting a creamery in or near Greenville with routes leading in all directions and ALL THE FARMERS encouraged and induced to start with three or more cows to supply these routes.

This system operates successfully in many parts of the country and even in West North Carolina, giving the small farmers a steady cash income the year around, with a fair profit on their product. Diversification is a necessity. This will be one step. Operating a creamery in this section can also benefit many people because it will supply locally many products that are now shipped in from distant states and give employment to a number of local people.

Raleigh, March 23. Nineteen county and twelve city school units are participating this year in the Adult Education program for which the legislature appropriated $60,000 annually.

The 1937 Assembly started the program with $50,000 and the 1939 law makers raised the ante by $10,000 a year.

The participating county units are Buncombe, Burke, Catawba, Cleveland, Dare, Durham, Gaston, Guilford, Hertford, Mecklenburg, Moore, Orange, Richmond, Robeson, Rowan, Rutherford, Stanly, Swain and Union. City units are Asheville, Kannapolis, Durham, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, High Point, Kinston, Charlotte, Lakeville, Salisbury, Albemarle and Gastonia.

The March Public School Bulletin, issued by the State Department of Public Instruction, reports that there are in all 207 school papers issued periodically by duplicating methods.

According to a folder issued by the North Carolina Press Association, there are 219 papers issued as commercial ventures in the state—only a dozen more than are put out by the school children.

A breakdown of the 219 shows there are 30 afternoon dailies, 11 morning dailies, five thrice-a-week, 27 twice-a-week and 146 weeklies being regularly published.

No less than 157 papers appear on Thursday, which gives some indication of the best day on which to "break" a story—ideas about other days to the contrary notwithstanding.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: The Toland tribe takes over the house and drives Tomi to distraction. Just as she is thanking her lucky stars that the time limit is nearly up, Harold falls sick.

Chapter 23

Quarantined!
"CALL Dr. Tillman," advised Abe, without interest.
"But, Abe, do you know him? Is he good? Does he know his business?"

Abe, whose gentle nature had been marinated in Toland until it had turned acid, swung on Tomi.
"Do I know Tillman? Is he good? Does he know his business?" His voice went up in crescendo. "See this arm?"

He rolled up his sleeve. "It was broke. He set it. It's as good as new. See this leg?" Up went a trouser leg. "Double fracture. He set it. It's as good as new."

"Now, Abe," warned Tomi, as Abe's hand went to his neck, "don't tell me you broke your neck and he set that."

"But I did have a carbuncle, and—"
"I know," cried Tomi, hysterically. "It's as good as new. And she headed for the house to confound the excited family."

"I'm calling a Doctor Tillman," she told them as she thumbed madly through the telephone book. "Abe had him and now Abe's as good as new. Operator, Alameda—01122."

"Doctor Tillman? I'm so glad you're in—"
"Tomi! Great-aunt Hannah's voice arose above the babble of other voices.

"My little cousin is very ill," Tomi was saying.
"Tomi! Great-aunt Hannah bore down on her. "We don't want him looking like Abe."

"And we don't want him looking like Abe," repeated Tomi obediently. Then, realizing what she had said, cried, "Will you shut up!"

"No, Doctor, I was not telling you to shut up. I was talking to my aunt. No, she isn't my cousin's mother but he lives with her. Where?" Tomi waved frantically for silence. "You really want the address? Well, it's 11137 Jackson Drive, Chicago. . . ."

"Oh, Tomi, was near tears. "They are here, visiting me. On Bay Farm Island. Do you know Allep Bartell's cottage? No, that isn't it. Its the old farmhouse next door."

"What did you say?" She clasped one hand over her exposed ear. "Did he break anything? Only some crockery, a jardiniere and three candle-sticks. No, of course you can't do anything about that! I don't expect you to. He's just red all over and he sees little pink frogs."

"Delirium what? No, he hasn't been drinking. He's only nine years old. All right, please hurry."

Tomi let the telephone drop. She leaned back, exhausted.
"He'll be right over," she managed to assure the family, and looked at the clock. One hour and fifty seconds to go. Two hours more of this and she'd be needing a doctor.

But not this one. She knew she wasn't going to like him. He had a deep, rich chuckle.

Harold was getting worse. His pink frogs had sprouted chicken wings. Suppose the poor little fellow died after she'd shaken him for nothing but a silly old jardiniere. Why hadn't she realized any city child would act that way, once he felt the freedom of a farm.

Tomi, Great-aunt Hannah, Agatha, Parilla and even tottering old Jane, met the doctor at the roadside.

Measles
TOMI heaved a great sigh of relief when she saw him. Of course she would have preferred an old man. Young doctors couldn't cope with Great-aunt Hannah. However, this one seemed to be doing pretty well. She liked the way he threw his arm about Abe, when the old man shuffled up.

And then she chilled. He had looked at her. Here was another man with golden glints of laughter in his eyes. True, his eyes were brown, but he must have been associating with Allen Bartell to have caught that infectious gleam.

Only the Carringtons were allowed inside the patient's room. Tomi giggled sharply as the physician crossed the door smack against Great-aunt Hannah's pompadour.

She ran downstairs where she could watch the clock without being observed. Thirty minutes to go. Maybe they could take Harold to the hospital. He'd really have better care. Oh, she was a snake in the grass, balancing poor little Harold's life against the old farm!

Moments passed, then Doctor Tillman emerged from the sick-room, May weeping, Carrington looking serious.

"No need for concern," the physician was saying. "It looks like a light case. Oh, Miss Toland—" he started downstairs—"may I see you alone a moment?"

Tomi led him into her little office and closed the door.
"I understand this is your home. I'm sorry, but I will have to place it under quarantine."

"Quarantine?" gasped Tomi

"That means that no one who has been exposed to the patient may leave the premises."
Tomi thought of the will. "But you can't do that," she cried faintly.

"But I can," corrected Tillman. "I am the city health physician and you are within the city limits. I don't want an epidemic in my territory and I shall take every means of preventing it."

Tomi blinked at the doctor. There were two—no, there were three of him, then all three faded.

He caught her as she fell. Tomi sat propped on the old leather divan in her office, anxious eyes on the desk clock.

"Tomi! If every member of that family is not out of this house within six minutes, I lose this farm."

She had started explaining her predicament almost before she had fully regained consciousness, and all that city health physician had done was to sit there with his shoulders shaking as though he had a chill. Could he be laughing at her?

Evidently not. When he spoke his voice held the proper bedside tone of condolence. "Conceding remarkably for tonight on the part of the late Timothy Toland," he said, "he could hardly have foretold such an exigency as this."

"But he did!" cried Tomi in exasperation. "He knew the family. They always do things like this."

"Such things as deliberately concealing measles?"
"Measles," moaned Tomi. "Don't tell me I have to lose my heritage for—"
"Measly little disease like that," supplied the doctor. Now don't worry, Miss Toland. You said the wording of the will limited the length of their visit here. They are quarantined. They are quarantined. I might even have a moratorium called on the will for the duration of the quarantine," he concluded, and Tomi saw his eyes were definitely twinkling.

Fore And Aft
"BUT the frogs," she pursued. "How about them? Are they quarantined, too?"

"Have you ever heard of a frog with the measles?" asked Doctor Tillman seriously. "You may have your orders filled if the person handling the frogs has not been exposed. I suppose Abe is the man. Has he contacted Harold?"

"Has he contacted Harold?" blurted Tomi with feeling. "He has, both fore and aft!"

"Is there anyone you can call in to take Abe's place?" Tomi puzzled a moment, then brightened. "I can long-distance Mr. Prudhomme."

"Have you had any local visitors, anyone who has come into close contact with the patient, particularly today?"

"The gloom fled from Tomi's face. "Allen Bartell. He played with Harold this morning. He was the first one to notice Harold was ill."

"And Bart hasn't had measles," mused Doctor Tillman, looking especially pleased. "He mentioned one evening at the party when we were discussing childish ailments." Chuckling, he reached for the telephone.

Tomi left the room to advise Great-aunt Hannah of the quarantine.

"Well," said the woman, "a little child shall lead them. I certainly never looked to Harold to get us around that fool will of Timothy's."

Again Tomi joined the doctor. "I'm giving Allen authority to keep the family within the boundaries," he advised.

"He'll just love that," prophesied the nurse as he lay here. With the assistance of Mrs. Carrington, she should be able to handle the case without a second one increasing your housing problem, and without exposing another member of the family to direct contact. Now is there anything else you would like to say?"

Tomi thought of having the family under her feet for two priceless weeks of the rush season; of cooking oatmeal and lathering vegetables with cream sauce; of roasting mutton; stewing tripe; of the Major roaring, Agatha sneezing, Jane sniffing. Of Great-aunt Hannah.

"Plenty!" she cried, and burst into a frenzy of French. The dark brows went up, the brown eyes danced. "So you too were overseas during the war," commented Doctor Tillman, and Tomi, who had been as scarlet as Harold's, watched him depart.

For a few moments she stood, facing a nectic future, then walked into the living room to find Great-aunt Hannah in complete control of the situation.

From her chair, directly under Great-aunt Hannah's portrait, she was knitting and issuing orders. Austin couldn't sleep with the Major because the Major snored. Consequently, they would order another bed sent out from Tomi's office.

Agatha was taking the grocery order. Tomi turned pale as she listened to all of the hated items go down.

She glanced up at the portrait. For a moment she thought the painted shoulders were quivering, the drooping mustache quivering, the eyes crinkling. Then she saw it was the reflection of sunlight on the water outside.

But laugh at her, would he? Continued Monday

Young Greenville Rookie Is Small, But Determined

BROOKLYN LAD NOW INFIELDER

Started In Infield, Switched to Pitcher, Now Back

Arthur G. Kracke, rookie signed by Manager Rube Wilson of the local Coastal Plain league, may be an infielder today and a pitcher tomorrow—or he may even decide to turn to politics, being the son of a Brooklyn, N. Y., official.

James J. Murphy had the following story in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle recently:

"Arthur G. Kracke, Jr., nephew of Frederick J. H. Kracke, chairman of the Board of Assessors and cousin of Frederick T. Kracke, Republican leader of the 21st A. D., has been signed as a third baseman by the Greenville, N. C., club of the Coastal Plain League.

"Young Kracke is as changeable as the weather but not easily discouraged. He attended Joe Stripp's school in Orlando, Fla., three years ago and was turned down for being too small. He returned to Brooklyn and worked out with the Dodgers only to be told again that he was too small."

"More determined than ever to make his mark, he resumed operations with local sandlot teams and established an enviable record. He returned to Stripp's school this winter as a pitcher, but was advised to take up infieliding and got a thorough grooming from Don Padgett, Eddie Miller and Jimmy Jordan, ex-Dodger, now manager of a Pirate farm team. He showed vast improvement and impressed Manager Rube Wilson of Greenville, who signed him.

"Artie is a lad of 20, stands 5 feet 4 inches and weighs 170 pounds. He originally started out as an infielder, became a pitcher of promise and is now back infieliding. He helped P. S. 92, the school from which Waite Hoyt graduated, win a borough title. He later attended Brooklyn Metal Trades School, but it had no nine at the time.

"Kracke acquired additional experience with such Parade Ground clubs as the Argyle, Catons, Brooklyn Senators and Marlboro's of the Brooklyn Amateur League. He also pitched with the Puffers, Manhattan Specials of the Queens Alliance, Bay Ridge club of the Metropolitan Baseball Association, now out of existence. Last season he was a mainstay on the mound with the Corsairs.

"Artie had another trial with the Dodgers last season and was told that he would hear from the club when he didn't he decided to look around for a minor league berth elsewhere and now he's got it.

SMALL SCHOOL CONSOLIDATED

Number Of Units In State Reduced By 1,200

Raleigh, March 23—North Carolina's policy of consolidation has reduced the number of elementary schools in the state by approximately 1,200 in the last eight years, according to an analysis, with complete statistical data, in this month's issue of State School Facts, publication of the State Department of Public Instruction.

According to the tabulation there were 5,236 elementary schools in North Carolina in 1930, while in 1937-38 (last year for which complete figures are available) there were only 4,038.

In 1930-31 these elementary schools were divided 4,843 in county units and 393 in city units. Eight years later there were 5,595 in county and 463 in city units. Thus while county schools were decreasing by 1,248, city elementary schools increased by 70.

The big decrease came about through the policy of going away with the smaller schools and consolidating them into larger units. Thus

Stengel Plans Fight For Seventh Place

By DILLON GRAHAM Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

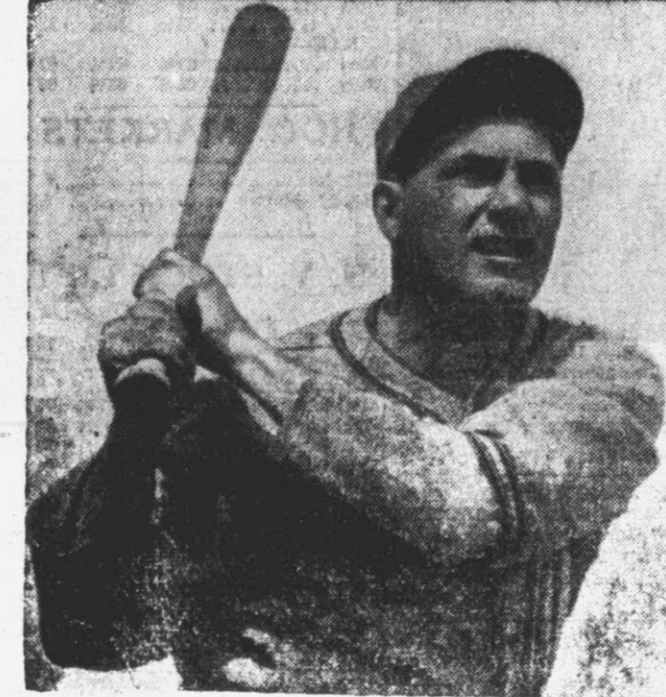

Bradenton, Fla.—There's really going to be two battles in the National league this season—the battle to win the pennant and the battle to stay out of the cellar.

Casey Stengel is concerned only about the second battle. He knows his Boston Bees haven't a chance at the pennant and that only through a miracle could they boost themselves into the first division.

Casey also knows that the Phillies are on the upgrade. The Phils have a smart, fighting manager in James (Doc) Prothro, a fellow who won't stand any fiddling around. He doesn't expect miracles of his players, but he wants every ounce they can give.

Two Hitters, One Pitcher Casey, who mixes wisecracks with his seriously wise assertions, figures that the Bees are going to have to put out this season to keep their heads above the Phillies. A club with only two proven 300 hitters—Buddy Hassett and Tony Cuccinello—and only one pitcher, Bill Posedel, who won more games than he lost last year, can't expect to go very far.

Stengel plans to shift the veteran Tony Cuccinello to third and put Daniel Sebastian Sisti, a youngster who was with the Bees half of last campaign, at second. Eddie Miller, who broke his leg in the middle of a sensational freshman year, is fully recovered and will be back at short. Either Les Scarsella, purchased from Cincinnati, or Buddy Hassett will play first.

The outfield is uncertain at this time. Max West, only power hitter may handle one of the fields and if Scarsella looks good at first Hassett may be asked to take a turn in the outer gardens. Jim Outlaw, another carry-over, also figures in Casey's plans.

Several Rookies Stengel has several rookie contenders. Buddy Bates, who hit .321 for Memphis; Bob Loane, with a .306 average at Springfield, and Carvel Rowell, who batted .294 for Hartford, top the crew.

Posedel, who won 15 and lost 13, and Lou Fette, the 33-year-old veteran who ranked fifth among National league twirlers in the earned run column, head the pitching corps, which Casey thinks he has strengthened by the addition of Jim Tobin and Bill Swift from Pittsburgh. Joe Sullivan and Richard Erickson are other hurlers.

Al Pichota, who pitched the only no-hit game in the American association last year and won 16 games for Kansas City, is the best of the rookie crop. Stengel also likes Joe Callahan, who won 19 for Evansville; Nick Strincevich from Sacramento; Don French who won 13 for Indianapolis; George Barnicle who came up from Hartford late last year and beat the Giants and Reds, and Bill Weir from Toronto.

Casey is counting on some help from Dick Coffman, obtained from New York.

Wilson and Tarboro In Top Positions In Golf

Each Has Won One Match Against No Defeats

GOLF STANDINGS
	W.	L.	Pct.
Wilson	1	0	1.000
Tarboro	1	0	1.000
Rocky Mount	2	1	.667
Goldsboro	1	1	.500
Greenville	0	1	.000
Farmville	0	1	.000
Kinston	0	1	.000

Wilson and Tarboro, with one victory each against no defeats, are at the top of the standings in the Eastern Carolina Golf Association, while Greenville, along with two other teams, Farmville and Kinston, has lost one and won none. Rocky Mount has won two and lost one, while Goldsboro has divided its two matches.

Only one match was played last week, Goldsboro having defeated Rocky Mount. The others were postponed by rain and probably will be played at a later date.

In this week's matches Rocky Mount defeated both Greenville and Kinston in a double header, while Tarboro won over Goldsboro and Wilson topped Farmville.

This week's schedule, all games are originally set for Wednesday afternoon, puts Rocky Mount at Tarboro, Wilson and Goldsboro at Greenville, and Farmville at Kinston.

Twenty-two local golfers participated in last week's match in Rocky Mount. The local golfers will be host to the two visiting teams at a luncheon at the Country Club preceding the matches.

nearly 800 of the 1,248 schools eliminated during the eight years were one-teacher schools (555 for white children and 244 for Negroes). There were at the close of the school year 1937-38 only 1,175 schools having one teacher, 325 for white and 850 for Negro children; whereas at the beginning of this period there were nearly 2,000 one-teacher schools (880 for whites and 1,094 for Negroes).

The number of two and three-teacher schools likewise has shown a progressive decline—from 1930-31 to 1937-38 the number decreasing from 1,785 to 1,207.

The number of schools in the four, five and six-teacher group has a home. The country's savings backlog was growing, the number of home owners were increasing. Few people owned their own carriage horses. The cost of feeding and stabling was too high. Furthermore, you could not purchase a good horse on "ten easy payments."

Today, there are 30,000,000 automobiles in the country. Families with scarcely enough income to feed the children are buying big new cars "on time." I often see run-down, ramshackle homes with a spanking new car beside them.

Robbing Peter to Pay Paul. The loss in wealth is, of course, enormous! After ten years, an automobile becomes almost worthless, while the newness has scarcely worn off a home and the savings account is still intact. Families that could afford either to own savings accounts or to build a home are "investing" their savings in an automobile instead. Other families, who can neither save nor build, are robbing Peter to pay Paul by buying an automobile. They are beating their grocery, doctor, and clothing bills by buying gasoline, tires, and oil. The automobile has changed America from a stable nation of home owners to a travel-crazy nation of nomads.

The keystone of this Mobile Age is cheap gasoline and easy credit. Too many people who buy cars "on time" should never own automobiles. They could not buy them if the present installment financing terms were tightened up. A lot fewer cars would roll off the assembly lines, but home builders, home furnishers, grocers, doctors, and farmers would fare better. Over 60 per cent of all automobiles are purchased "on time." Next week's salary is spent long before it is earned. This is an unhealthy condition.

90000 t de l etain etaj etolett

Cheap Gasoline An Evil. Low-priced gasoline is also unhealthy. British, French, and German high prices for gasoline have hobbled the motor industry in those nations but this has helped the building of homes. We are fortunate to have vast supplies of crude oil. But is that any reason why this generation should exploit them, waste them, use them uneconomically? It took millions of years to create them. Should these be destroyed by allowing unrestricted use of gasoline at even less than production costs, for the superficial fun of this generation?

New oil fields are discovered every year. In each instance millions of barrels are forever wasted because of the race to make private profits. Just as one generation exterminated the buffalo, so we are exterminating our crude oil reserves. This is one industry that surely needs conservation. It would be a good thing for the nation if gasoline prices were upped sharply. Higher prices may help millions to come to their senses and buy homes instead of "cars." They should prevent wasteful competition between truck and railroad. They will prevent the exhaustion of our precious oil reserves.

One Suggested Cure. I believe that all gasoline should contain a portion of alcohol made from corn, although the experts tell me that I am wrong. It takes only a few months to replace corn, but it takes eons to replace gasoline. Besides, the price maladjustment between farm produce and factory goods at retail must be corrected before America can ever see real prosperity again. Farm products, treated chemically, must be used in industry to take the place of metal and oil in order (1) to conserve natural resources and (2) to use up farm surpluses. If these things are done, we will be taking an important step to correct the evils and protect the blessings which the automobile has brought us!

Greetings, Yes, But What Else Did They Say?

Number One international problem of the day is what Adolf Hitler (left) and Benito Mussolini had to say to each other at their conference in the Italian border town of Brennero. In this radio-photo they are shown shaking hands at the dramatic meeting, while Italian Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (right) looks on.

N. Y. Stock Market New York, March 23. - (AP) - Buyers again turned to air transport stock and specialties in today's market and left most leaders to shift for themselves in narrow territory. While sluggish intervals were frequent in the brief session, mild bursts of activity sent the day's volume to around 400,000 shares. Outstanding news was lacking, both at home and abroad, and few traders inclined to reach for issues in any departments. At the same time lightness of offerings was attributed to the growing belief in financial quarters the European war may soon take on fresh intensity and spur the allied demand for goods in the United States.
