Solon Says U. S. About "Lose Shirt" Under Program

SIX CONTENTIONS ARE RECOUNTED

Michigan Republican Declares System Unconstitutional, Is Not Working And Can Not Work

Washington, March 27.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told the Senate today that the United States was about to "lose its shirt" under the reciprocal trade program.

The Michigan Senator, in a speech against continuing the administration's trade policy, made these six contentions:

- 1—The trade agreements law is unconstitutional.
- 2—It is "economic dictatorship come to America."
- 3—It is driving the country to a basis of uncompensated low tariff "which will ultimately wreck us."
- 4—War and post-war trade competitions involve a multitude of dangerous trade weapons which the agreements law can not touch.
- 5—It is not working and can not work as intended.
- 6—The alternative is to provide "a concentrated foreign trade authority which can cope with all the external trade penalties which American exports increasingly confront."

Under the policy of generalizing American duty reductions, he continued, foreigners "get everything," but "we get precious little generalized reciprocal trade benefits in return."

Contest Is Won By Jamesville Youth

James Wallace of Jamesville won the American Legion sponsored high school oratorical contest held here last night and will represent this section of the state in state finals to be held in Greensboro about the first of April.

Other contestants and the districts they represented were Miss Ruby White of Aurora, Second; William Sheeley of Elizabeth City, First and J. D. Richardson of Rocky Mount, Fifth. Wallace represented the Fourth district.

The students had as their subject "How the U. S. Constitution Benefits America and Its Citizens." T. J. Swain, commander of the local post, opened the meeting and welcomed the participants and others, after which he presented Vice Johnson of Pittsboro, chairman of the committee in charge of the contest, who presided. The medal was presented the winner by J. H. Rose, state commander.

A number of legionnaires, in this section, including present post officials and former state officers, were present. Among those here were R. W. Allison, commander of the Scotland Neck post; J. S. Benner, commander of the Washington post; Thad Hodges of Washington, former department vice commander; H. L. Swain, deputy judge advocate; and J. H. Taylor, district commander. Mr. Taylor and Arthur B. Corey served as timekeepers.

The winner of the state contest will go to Boston, Mass., to participate in the national contest, the winner of which will receive a $4,000 scholarship to any college of his choosing, provided by Eddie Cantor.

One Sailor Missing
And Several Others Injured

Newport, R. I., March 27.—(AP)—One sailor was missing and six others were being treated for injuries today in the wake of a terrific blast which damaged the U. S. Navy destroyer King yesterday at its mooring in Newport harbor.

Capt. William S. Farber, commander of the neutrality patrol unit, to which the 20-year-old 1,190-ton vessel was assigned, said the explosion was caused by leaking gas in the after deckhouse.

Several containers of the gas, Captain Farber said, were situated in the deckhouse and one of them leaked. He ventured no opinion as to what ignited the gas.

Richard Carl Oentert of Denver, Colo., was reported missing after muster of the crew and naval forces said he must have been thrown overboard by the force of the blast. The condition of one of the injured men was described as "critical."

Palmer vs Gregory
Case Compromised

This week's civil session of Pitt Superior court again was in recess today, the single case set for trial having been compromised shortly after it got under way this morning.

He sued for the difference in salary and also for other alleged losses.

After the jury was picked and the complaint and answers were being read, the case was privately compromised and court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Complete Breakdown
Foreshadowed By
Recall of Soviet Ambassador to Paris at Request of French Officials Upon Contention That Envoy Attempted to Send "Insulting" Telegram

Paris, March 27.—(AP)—A complete break in diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and France appears to be foreshadowed in the recall—at French request—of the Russian ambassador to Paris.

An official spokesman charged today that France and her ally, Great Britain, were "insulted" by a telegram which the envoy, Jacob Surits, recently attempted to send to Joseph Stalin in congratulating him on the peace treaty with Finland, as a stroke against "British-French warmongers."

A censor stopped the message before it could get on the wire to the Kremlin, it was disclosed in Moscow by an official account of the affair.

Even in view of the possibility of a complete rupture, there still was no indication that French military purposes would be served by declaration of a formal state of war between France and the Soviet union.

But, if Russia makes a decisive move with Germany in the Balkans, that would be another matter it was said.

As for that possibility, the French pointed to the huge Allied force in the Near East.

A French demand that Russia recall Surits was interpreted as a "warning" to Russia from the new "war" government under Paul Reynaud that it intends to take a stiffer diplomatic course in the conflict with Germany, Russia's new-found friend.

Tom Smoot Named
Club's President

Tom Smoot was elected president of the Greenville Country Club at that organization's annual stockholders' meeting at the club last night. He succeeds Dr. W. M. B. Brown, who was named to the Board of Governors.

Three new members were taken into the club last night. They were David W. Mosier, J. W. Journey, and Ramsey Potts. The club has a membership of approximately 100.

Off-Year Election
For City May 6th

The city primary-election will be held on Monday May 6th for the election of three members of the Board of Aldermen, but the mayor and five members of the eight-man board are not up for election this year. The following were named for two-year terms last May.

The three whose terms expire this June are J. A. Watson of the Second Ward, Joseph M. Taft of the Third and Dr. M. B. Massey of the Fourth. Each of these wards have two members while Wards One and Five have only one each.

Aldermen named last May and whose terms expire June, 1941, are L. B. Fleming of the First, J. A. Collins of the Second, R. E. Sellers of the Third, David A. Evans of the Fourth and George Clapp of the Fifth.

Mayor Jack Spain's term does not expire until next year.

None of the three aldermen whose terms expire this year would say whether or not they would run for re-election. Each declared that he had not fully decided. Also, no one else has announced for any of the three positions.

Registrars have been named for the May election and the books will remain open for 10 days prior to the election. Other election officials will be named at the regular April meeting of the city board, to be held Thursday of next week.

Mrs. J. C. Tyson has been named for registrar of Wards Two and Three and Mrs. W. W. Phelps will serve for the Fourth Ward.

High Hopes

But Olson said he would not rule definitely until he hears from Gov. Fred P. Cone of Florida. Bosdale escaped in 1935 near Tallahassee while serving a 15-year sentence for a highway robbery near West Palm Beach.

CHANGES MADE IN HATCH BILL

Amendment Puts Limit on Campaign Expenditures

Washington, March 27.—(AP)—A sub-committee of the House Judiciary committee approved a Hatch act amendment today to put a $3,000,000,000 limit on expenditures of national committees in any political campaign.

In 1936 the Republicans went about $5,000,000 over this limit and the Democrats exceeded it by about $2,000,000.

Chairman Walter (D-Penn.) said the limiting amendment, which he offered, was voted in a sub-committee hearing which gave unanimous approval to the broadened Hatch anti-politics bill adopted by the Senate.

The bill would curb political activities of most state employees paid in whole or in part with federal funds. The subcommittee made some changes.

These changes were praised highly by Rep. Dempsey (D-N.M.) who has been fighting with Senator Hatch (D-N.M.) for the curb on political activity by federally paid state employees.

The subcommittee struck out a Senate amendment exempting from the bill's provisions employees of educational, religious, philanthropic and cultural institutions.

MacKenzie King Scores
Smashing Defeat Over
Canadian Conservative

Liberal Government Wins Landslide Support of Its Conduct Of War and Returned to Office for Five-Year Term; Conservative Party Leader Manion And Several Aides Suffer Defeat

Ottawa, March 27.—(AP)—Winning landslide support of its conduct of the war against Germany, the Liberal government of Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King was returned for a new five-year term today with a record majority in the Canadian House of Commons.

As late returns from yesterday's general election came in during the day, MacKenzie King and his followers surpassed the record majority of 169 seats which they had held in the Parliament dissolved by the Prime Minister last January 25 after opposition charges that Canada's war effort was weak and inefficient.

With only eight seats in doubt and election for one deferred, the Liberals had won 174 seats out of a total of 245. The National government group, including the Conservatives and constituting the chief opposition group, filled only 38 seats. The other 24 seats went to seven other scattered parties.

MacKenzie King and every member of his cabinet was returned to office and Dr. Robert J. Manion, conservative party leader and head of the opposition, was defeated by a Liberal in his home city of Fort William, Ontario. A number of Dr. Manion's aides also lost their parliamentary seats.

Negro Child Dies
Of Auto Injuries

Eddie Lee House, two-year-old Negro died in the Pitt General hospital late yesterday afternoon, about two hours after walking into the side of an automobile traveling toward Pinetops about three miles from Greenville and being driven by S. Brown Sheppard, Raleigh attorney.

According to Patrolman C. L. Teague, two Negro children were walking along the highway with another child, eight years old, and the grandmother of the dead child, Martha Vines. The two children were said to have been walking hand-in-hand and just as the automobile pulled along side the smaller one pulled away from his companion and plunged into the side of the car, striking the right rear fender. He was taken to the hospital, but died about two hours later of a crushed head.

Mr. Sheppard, after rendering what service he could, was allowed to proceed home. He had been to Greenville during the day as counsel in a case set for trial in civil court here.

URGED ATTEND
PITT TB CLINIC

Dr. Ennett Cites Need For Personal Examination

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, today declared that it is very important that all persons who have been exposed to tuberculosis in the home either go to their own physician or attend the state-run tuberculosis clinic beginning here April 1. The schedule for the clinic was announced last week.

Dr. Ennett called attention to the fact that among the early symptoms of tuberculosis are: tiring easily, loss of appetite, loss of weight, cough or feeling feverish in the afternoon. Especially is blood spitting a danger signal.

The time for a person to come for an examination, said Dr. Ennett, is when he thinks "it is hardly necessary." Usually the person who waits until he thinks he has tuberculosis has, according to Dr. Ennett, had it for some time and has lost his best opportunity for getting well.

Dr. Ennett stated that in view of the fact that the clinic is held but once a year, it is imperative that all suspicious cases be examined now.

The clinic is open to both white and colored. It is necessary for adults to make an appointment but no appointment is necessary in the case of children.

He commented on the fact that the generous support given by the Pitt county citizens to the last Christmas Seal Sale makes it possible for the Health Department to give free X-ray to all cases not able to afford X-ray privately.

The clinic schedule follows: Monday, April 1, Tuesday, April 2, Wednesday, April 3—Town Hall in Farmville; Thursday, April 4, Town Hall, Ayden; Friday, April 5—Methodist Church, Bethel; Monday, April 8th through Friday, April 19th—Greenville in the Health Department Offices.

Munford Building
Damaged By Fire

Fire broke out in the office of F. A. Edmundson in the Munford Building on Five Points around 3 o'clock this morning and did damage estimated by Fire Chief George Gardner to range from $700 to $800.

Edmundson's office is located on the second floor and the blaze was said by the fire chief to have likely originated from a gas meter and gas stove in the office.

In addition to the damage on the second floor of the building, lower floors were damaged slightly by smoke and water, although the loss in this capacity is not expected to run very high.

A location under the office where the fire started is vacant.

SEC. WOODRING
DEFENDS SALE OF AIRPLANES

Testifies New Policy Provides Modern Warcraft

WILL NOT DELAY CORPS PROGRAM

War Secretary Discusses Decision To Sell Planes Before House Military Committee

Washington, March 27.—(AP)—Secretary Woodring testified today that the new policy of permitting export sales of the newest American warplanes was designed to keep the air corps constantly supplied with "the most modern equipment."

Appearing before the House Military committee, the War Department chief flatly declared that the release policy would not result in disclosure of military secrets nor in delay of the air corps expansion program.

"When it is to the advantage to the national defense, the War Department will negotiate for deferred deliveries on contract planes," Woodring testified. "If manufacturers take advantage of foreign orders then prior to release for sale abroad manufacturers shall agree to accept change orders on existing War Department contracts."

"The government must be fully protected and any authorized delays must not interfere with the delivery of equipment for units immediately necessary for our defense needs."

"The release policy for foreign sale of our most modern designs," Woodring said, "will be liberalized to accomplish the foregoing and to further stimulate productive capacity and to insure improved types of planes for our forces. Each such case must be decided on its merits. Prior to the release of any of our designs for sale abroad the manufacturer must negotiate with the War Department for such changes in those models which are under contract for the United States army in order to insure that improved types of airplanes are delivered to the War Department."

"No military secret will be divulged or released to any foreign purchaser of military airplanes."

AYDEN LETTER

Sparks of news come dropping down from Greenville now and then like this!

Stock is being taken in a new hotel!

Capitalists are getting warmer every day on the subject of a cotton factory. One man has been heard from that wants to take $25,000 stock provided that amount can be added to it. Yes, a fifty thousand dollar cotton factory and a ten thousand dollar hotel with all the modern improvements would give the old town quite a boom, and it would be good time. As tobacco is not an iron clad never dropping, never failing business, something must take its place sooner or later.

What's that about the jail birds, some of them, being allowed the privilege of the town, and spending the evening where best pleases them or amuses them? Any truth in it? What Ayden is doing in the way of building: Five dwelling houses now being erected, a new steam brickyard, etc., under way.

La fall there were whispers of a bank being established here and now we hear it spoken of again. True there is not much business for a bank here, but it would be a great convenience.

Teachers in rural districts will be on the same schedule as city teachers, and federal aid will be a necessity in our school systems.

President Meadows spoke also to the English Club Tuesday night on Robert Browning.

"Methodists United for Action"

"Methodists United for Action" by John R. Mott, is a careful study of the problems and opportunities of the larger Methodist church. This book is to be used as a Spring study by the whole church membership. Jarvis Memorial Methodist church members want to become familiar with the book by private reading, by lecture and group discussions. A special study calling for four meetings has been arranged. The study will be directed by the pastor, Rev. T. McM. Grant. The meetings will be held at the church on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 3 and 4, 10 and 11. A large attendance of interested members is expected. The missionary society is cooperating in a special way. A copy of the text has been placed in each of the eight circles. Members are reading it now and will continue to do so during and after the study.

Interested visitors will be welcomed to any or all of these group meetings.

End of The Century Club

On Tuesday afternoon, March 26 Mrs. L. R. Meadows was hostess to the End of the Century Book club at her home on Fifth street. After the meeting was called to order, by the president, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, the roll call was answered with current events. Mrs. J. T. Little, chairman of the program committee, then presented Mrs. Lee Folger, who gave a most interesting and informative talk on the States of California and Wisconsin.

California, called the "Land of Gold", is the second largest state in the Union. The state flower is the poppy and the state bird the quail. California is noted for its varied climates and vast number and variety of trees and flowers. Extensive farming is done; the vegetables, fruit and grain crops being unparalleled in America. There is a great dairy industry carried on, also sheep raising, bee keeping, poultry raising, canning and grape raising. Mining started in 1841 and the gold output now averages fifteen million dollars annually—zinc, natural gas, copper, lead, silver and quicksilver are mined extensively.

Wisconsin, called the "Badger State", has many hundreds of miles of lake and river frontage, with extremely cold winters. Sixty per cent of the land is under cultivation. She produces one-sixth of the nation's butter and three-fifths of its cheese. The principal crops are tobacco, beet sugar, cranberries, apples and other fruits. The lumber and fishing industries are enormous and lead, zinc, iron, copper and building stone are mined. She is first in the canning of green peas. She has many flour mills, breweries and furniture factories. In the enormous Swiss settlements is manufactured quantities of Swiss cheese.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming gave a short talk on the different kinds of cheese manufactured in Wisconsin and the United States. In five counties in Wisconsin there are 547 factories run by Germans and Swiss. They have an output of fifty million lbs. annually, which brings in twelve millions dollars. Of the four hundred different kinds of cheese, there are only eighteen distinctive types.

The program concluded with a vivid description of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena, California by Mrs. Fleming. She explained the origin and development of this celebration, describing in particular the Tournament of 1938, whose theme was "Golden Memories" and which was the most spectacular and elaborate of them all.

The hostess served a delicious salad course with coffee. Guests of the club for the afternoon were: Mrs. Sam Williams and Mrs. David Reddick.

Athenum Book Club

The Athenum Book Club met on Tuesday, March 26th at one o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. J. Perkins on East Fourth Street.

Upon arrival the guests and members were served a delicious three-course luncheon in a Spring setting of early flowering shrubs and daffodils.

The hostess introduced Mrs. J. H. Rose, who in her usual charming and entertaining manner, read a most interesting and enlightening paper on "Romance and History of Southern Rivers."

The vice president, Mrs. J. J. White presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. H. L. Ormond. After the roll call and brief business session the club enjoyed meeting Mrs. Perkins luncheon guests, who were as follows: Mesdames E. H. Richardson, Erskine Duff, Will James, Reid Perkins, J. H. Rose, Richard Stokes, Norman Winslow, and G. H. Rowland.

Strength For The Day

SKY-ROCKET TEMPER

Some people have tempers that go off like sky-rockets. They go off with a great whiz, shoot up to terrific heights, and then end with nothing but a puff. Such anger is not like the bitter, hateful malice which induces some people into life-long animosities. But still the sky-rocket type of temper is by no means easy to bear for the people who have to live near it.

There are two disadvantages about sky-rockets. The first is that when the sky-rocket goes up in the air, it takes up with it the stick to which it is attached. That stick falls some place out in the night, and no one thinks any more about it. But if you should happen to be walking along some dark road at night and this stick should fall upon you, it would be uncomfortable and perhaps serious. Be sure of this, that even though you don't know it, a sky-rocketing burst of temper carries a stick with it and somebody out in the darkness may be hit.

But the worst thing about sky-rockets is that they sometimes start fires. The fact that they were sent up without that intention does not lessen the danger. There is a certain undesirable area said to be paved with good intentions, but this makes it none-the-less undesirable. So it is with a sky-rocketing temper. Nobody intends that a fire should start or wants it to start, but as a matter of actual fact it often does.

● We believe the county election board at its recent meeting acted wisely in deciding on an entirely new registration for Pitt County rather than to attempt to revise the old books. The new registration is far less expensive and in the end will prove far more satisfactory than the revision plan.

● In his address before the Rotary Club Monday night F. C. Harding expressed our sentiments when he emphasized that America's duty is to stay out of the present European conflict. Only by remaining out of the war can we be in position to render the most valuable service to the world when hostilities have ceased.

● April 15th is the deadline for farmers to sign-up under the 1940 soil conservation plan. According to County Agent R. R. Bennett, there are a number of Pitt County-farms not in the program that should be in. He points out that the farmer who is not under the plan is losing cash benefits as well as the benefits that come from rebuilding the soil. The time for signing-up is short.

so if you are interested don't delay the matter. Contact your county farm agent now.

● The promotion of George W. Thomason, local assistant Scout Executive, to the post of Executive of the newly formed district with headquarters at Concord, is certainly a well earned promotion and his friends here are glad to see him rising in his chosen profession. But the announcement also brings with it a note of regret locally for the boys who have learned "Scouting" under him and the men who have worked with him and had occasion to observe his work realize that Greenville's present high standing in "Scouting" is due, in a great part, to George Thomason. Naturally we are glad of the promotion that he has gained but we are certainly sorry to lose his fine services here.

Washington—When a committee of congress gets to sleuthing, boy does it sleuth!

That's how come a house appropriations subcommittee the other day pored over newspaper accounts of the now apparently dead romance of Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski.

If this sort of thing goes on, one of the requirements to a seat in congress will be an annual subscription to all the Hollywood and New York gossip columns.

What the legislators expected to learn from any published reports about Garbo is a little beyond me. Any movie fan this side of Honolulu could have told them in a two-syllable word: Nothing. But read the accounts they did and here's how it happened:

It's just routine for any committee or subcommittee, before making any recommendations on any matter, to go into it as thoroughly as possible. If personalities are involved, the background and character of those persons are put under as much of a microscope as the legislators can find. That's good. We, the people, deserve every ounce of that protection.

Somebody Said 'Whoa'

When the appropriations subcommittee came to that phase of its appropriations concerning the National Youth administration they noticed an item (reported to be about $2,500) for preliminary auditions for the all-American youth orchestra, which Mr. Stokowski plans to take on a goodwill tour of Latin America next July.

Somebody must have said: "Whoa, who's Stokowski?" And one thing must have led to another until the clerk was instructed to go to the Congressional library and get the reports of that Stokowski-Garbo romance of the spring of 1938. Oh, yes, the clippings were there. You'd be dumfounded at half the things you can find in the Library of Congress.

Mind you, this was all very secret.

Let's be so secret, in fact, that the matter wasn't even written into the subcommittee's records. With secret sessions like that, you can't pull a public report out of a member with a pair of dentist's pliers. But the picture of an austere subcommittee of the house, scanning the items concerning the conjectured romance of lovely Greta and the colorful baton-waver of symphony orchestras, was a little too good for somebody to keep to himself.

We All Laugh

Aubrey Williams, National Youth administrator, was called before the committee earlier in the week, but with this had anything to do with, investigation in the romance matter couldn't be determined. One reliable source whispered that Mr. Williams was asked only about the extent of funds expended on the goodwill musical junket.

After that the clerk was sent on his secret mission to the congressional library and on a Saturday morning the committee went into the romantic articles.

Nothing came of it. Nothing could.

We can almost see the bewilderment of the committee when they finally came to that inevitable full stop which La Garbo always supplies. "Ah, Mr. Stokov-v-v-ski. We are just good friends."

If Garbo's film press agents want a new line, they might say: "Garbo laughs—Stokowski, too—and the rest of us."

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: The quarantine is lifted and the Tolands reluctantly depart. They have had a wonderful time. Aunt Hannah says she intends to change her will, and Tomi is convinced Allen's charm is working against her.

Chapter 26

Red Ink

TOMI debated telling Pierre what had happened.

Great-aunt Hannah hadn't offered to pay the expenses of the fourteen guests and the nurse. She, Tomi Toland, who had had to watch even the State's sales tax with an eagle eye, must defray them; let a whole battalion of little red figures herald a victory over the black army she had tried so hard to entrain to the battlefield.

"Allen put her up to it," she thought. "He showed her how that would help cheat me of my heritage. She's like he is, only different. She wants me to lose because I violated a principle of the Tolands."

How could the world be so beautiful and hold such monsters in it? How could that silly moon shed such radiance on roses, draw distilled perfume from night-blooming stock, silver the old house, and yet make Allen Bartell look as though it had been formed only to add lustre to his hair and laughter to his eyes.

Pierre drew her closer, pressed his lips to her brow. She wondered why she was glad his lips had stopped at her brow.

For two days Tomi, Abe and Pierre sought to bring order out of the chaos the Tolands had left.

Late on the afternoon of the fourth day, Tomi, who had been laboring over her books trying to make the black army stand up on its hind legs and face the red army, retreated to her room to stretch on the chaise longue in defeat.

"Hoo-hoo," came a sound through the front window.

Tomi frowned. Probably a hoot-owl who'd lost his clock and was singing in the daylight.

"Hoo-hoo, Tomi," it came again.

Hoot-owls didn't sing Tomi, she decided, and sat up to look out of the window. A woman stood at the front gate, a beautifully gown woman in a rose-beige suit, a smart hat. There was an Alameda cab waiting beside her. Tomi went downstairs, puzzled. It might be Mrs. Bartell, though she had gone to Allen's prune ranch early in April.

Swiftly she went to the front gate. The woman looked familiar. Her hair was short—waved, she imagined. Or was that a permanent which showed under the smart hat? Beautiful complexion, pink cheeks, a touch of mascara on the eyelashes.

Tomi turned her head sideways and looked again. Great-aunt Hannah!

Great-aunt Hannah beamed. "I put myself in the hands of one of those rejuvenators and told her to give me the works," she announced.

Tomi clung to the gate for support.

"We're staying here," Great-aunt Hannah went on. "We can't come in on your property without violating that ridiculous will of Timothy's so I had Allen buy us a house. Nice, very nice, yours, Tomi. It's at the end of one of those streets that jump into the bay, so I can have my sun baths."

"Chicago—your interest there?"

"Oh, tush," Great-aunt Hannah disposed of the mid-western metropolis and her interest in one sentence. "I've turned everything over to Allen."

The Duck And The Hen

ALLEN had scored again!

"Aunt Hannah—" Tomi sounded like Hannah Toland of Chicago—"do you realize what you are doing?"

"Perfectly," came the affable reply.

"You've turned goodness knows how much money over to a man of whom you know nothing. Why?"

"Money?" came pertly from Hannah. "I've had money ever since I was knee-high, and what has it brought me? Responsibility. I couldn't marry because I had to keep an eye on the money. I couldn't live humanly because I had to see the money was properly spent so the Tolands could live properly. Well, damn the Tolands. From now on I am going to live, and if I spend every cent so that the second generation has to get out and dig ditches, I'll feel I've done my bit for posterity."

"It's face expressed a queer mixture of fear and approbation. She looked like cheering, and she felt like weeping."

"Darling," she laid an affectionate hand on her aunt's arm—"it isn't that I'm not too happy for words that I'm going to live out here and that you're going to enjoy living for a change. It's—"

"Don't you see, Aunt Hannah? You did it first. You were the first one to accuse me of influencing Great-uncle Timothy to write such a crazy will. And the Major, right in court, declared you folks were bringing a contest of the will because Allen had handled it in such a way the place would eventually revert to him."

Great-aunt Hannah called to the cab driver and stepped into the cab. She lowered the window and looked at her grandniece.

Just a day or so after his piece hit the presses, a father, riding with his daughter on a bike, was bumped off by an auto—and we do mean "bumped off."

Granberry Dickson, Horton press chief, is a serious sort of chap from whom little in the way of humor is expected; but he has a dry wit, just the same.

Tuesday he gave our Raleigh reporter announcement that a superior court clerk and a register of deeds

"My dear child," she said, "anyone who can influence a Toland to do anything, a Toland doesn't want to do is worth cultivating. Brooks," she spoke to the driver, "take me back to Alameda, where I'm allowed to have a mind of my own."

Brooks, the Alameda taxi and Miss Hannah Toland, late of Chicago, left Tomi Toland standing on the roadside in a cloud of their dust.

"You look exactly like a hen who's hatched a duck," remarked Dorothy Dougherty, coming down the road from the mail-box. "Who was your visiting danger?"

"The duck," said Tomi thoughtfully. "And I do feel just like a hen standing on the shore watching my newly hatched foundling take off into deep waters."

And the worst of it was, she thought, as she went again to her office, she had exposed Aunt Hannah to Allen. She should have made Bartell stay on his property and the Tolands on theirs.

Tomi went into a huddle with her accounts. If she sold as many frogs in the last half of the season as she sold in the first, she would fall short of her quota three thousand dollars.

"Why didn't I wait until winter to expand?" she cried, irritably. "Of course next season I'd reap the benefits, but it looks as though I might not be here next season."

At least she could have let such things as draperies for the living room, paper, paint and rugs wait. Each item had seemed so inconsequential. Combined with other inconsequential items, the result was staggering.

And the Tolands' visit. One hundred dollars for the nurse, Sureau Carrington would pay that and the doctor's fee, whatever it was. But the groceries, Tomi gasped as she saw the bill. No wonder Great-aunt Hannah had fed tripe to her multitude. Tripe and potatoes and bread and mutton were cheap, compared with the food she, Tomi, had purchased.

Only One Answer

THE family had cost her seven hundred and twenty frogs.

Resolutely Tomi reached for the telephone and called the Alameda Hotel.

"Aunt Hannah," she began, when the connection was made. "Ordinarily I would have been happy to have had the Tolands as my guests, but under the present circumstances, having to watch my expenses as I do, I'm going to have to ask you to assume the cost of the Tolands' board."

"Hm," buzzed Great-aunt Hannah. If you will remember, I was ready to assume the expense the very hour I learned of the quarantine. However, you had the temerity to countermand my grocery order, to inform me you were running that house and intended to run it as you wanted it. Under those circumstances, I can't see that any of us are indebted to you in any way."

"But Aunt Hannah had replaced her receiver with emphasis. Tomi jiggled the hook and the operator came on to say, icily, "Your party has hung up."

"Ring them again," cried Tomi.

The connection completed, Tomi said quickly, "But I didn't order the measles, the nurse or the doctor."

"You may send that bill to my attorney," conceded Hannah Toland.

"I will . . . and how," promised Tomi, to nothing but a singing wire.

She sat back and wondered just why she should assume such an attitude. They all felt better for their change of diet. They'd learned to enjoy life while living on her farm. Then why?

There was only one answer. Allen Bartell.

Tomi walked out into the garden. Sunset lay heavy on the world. The green cavern of shrubbery was lit with gold. Beyond the garden the bay was a sheet of crinkled gold. Even the old house was mellowed, its peeling gray surface tinted to amber.

"I love you," Tomi cried passionately. "I can't lose you. Nothing ever could take your place."

She must find a way to save it. That night she called a conference.

Frankly, she told Pierre, Ol' Abe and Doty the financial state of the farm.

"Our sales have to double the last half of the season if we are to offset the cost. I spent so much the first half, the second half has to meet the expenses of the first half and show profit."

"Miss Toland—" Pierre was speaking like the perfect employee—"may I speak to you alone?"

Tomi signaled Abe and Doty to leave them alone.

Pierre came close to her. "Why don't you let me assume the responsibility. You've proven you can't handle the business end of this. That is only natural. Girl, are not mentally equipped for business. You've worn your poor little self to a shadow, trying to face an impossible situation. I'll relieve you, dear. Now you turn your books over to me."

"Pierre—" Tomi's voice was thin—"don't you understand? Great-uncle Timothy was banking on my being a failure as a business woman. Allen Bartell is counting on that. And no one else can assume the responsibility if I am to win. That is the very point, I, Tomi Toland, must win."

THE BATTLE OF THE CENSUS:

AP Feature Service Writer

The Census Man starts knocking at America's door on April 2. He's the symbol of a battle that's been raging for weeks—and may continue for years. This article and the two to follow tell what it's all about.

Washington.—Twelve New Hampshire voters armed themselves with 36 cents in stamps and an irresistible urge to write their congressman. And the 1940 Battle of the Census was on!

Thousands of privates enlisted for the duration, on both sides. Firing became—and still is—general.

Those 12 New Hampshire voters may yet occupy a place in political history not unlike the niche in world history of that Serbian youth who took a few pot-shots at an archduke's car, and touched off the World War.

For, in the long run, the Battle of the Census will be a real battle.

What those New Hampshire voters started was a certain raising a skirmish. The real battle to come—a struggle for survival of the fittest politician—may last for months, perhaps a couple of years.

And before it's over political blood will flow in many a state in the union.

Funny what a few voters with postage stamps and an urge can do in a democracy!

Toby Got An Idea

Bald, spectacled Senator Charles William Toby of New Hampshire so the letters—and an idea. Hadn't somebody in upstate New York protested against income questions in the census? If 12 of his constituents didn't like them either, maybe he had something here. He'd see, so he asked the census bureau not to bother his voters with questions about their private affairs, like incomes, divorces, physical fitness to work, and whatnot, or at least let them answer to Washington by mail.

"Too late to change our setup," said the census bureau.

"Oh, yeah?" retorted Toby, making a bee-line for the nearest microphone with a nation-wide hookup. The senator's strategy clicked. After one month, he claims 14,000 recruits throughout the nation. Hundreds more letters poured in on the census bureau and congressmen. The census bureau said it got a few hundred, too.

Angry pen-wielders said the income questions weren't half of it, either. They'd been told over the radio they'd go to jail if they didn't answer. As red-blooded Americans, they'd just go to jail. So there. The heat was definitely on.

"Un-American, unlawful," shouted Quick-on-the-Trigger Toby.

"Un-American yourself—absurd," spluttered harassed Harry Hopkins, formerly of the WPA, and now responsible for census questions as secretary of commerce.

Epithets burned the air at both ends of Constitution avenue. And still the census, burying the merits of the issue in blasts of hot words. It sounds more like the babble of which may or may not be really characteristic of politics thereabout and in other sections of the State.

A well known ward heeler was accused by a news man on the public square.

"Who are you supporting for Governor?" queried the reporter.

"Horton."

"And for Congress?"

"Bob Steele."

"How about the Sheriff?"

"Mr. Fry."

"And who'll you back for Lieutenant Governor?"

"I ain't been seen yet."

J. M. Broughton ought to do very well in Asheville, Buncombe and that section if his prospective vote swelled as much during his visit there as did his right hand.

The Raleigh lawyer's writing-list was nearly twice its normal size Tuesday. He said it got that way from shaking hands with so many folks in Asheville.

From Carthage comes this story

the census.

'Business Sought Data'

For public consumption, Toby insists the income and divorce questions violate the bill of rights, and exceed the authority of the secretary of commerce under the census law of 1929.

Also for the public ear, Harry Hopkins replies that the demand for the questions originated with professional and business groups and statesmen who needed to know something more about the incomes of people who make less than $5,000 a year. Furthermore, says Hopkins, the facts about unemployment—our biggest unsolved problem—can be gathered accurately in no other way, and they're legal.

No doubt they both believe sincerely in what they say. But, this being election year, and all, is that the whole story behind the battle of the census? Hardly.

Where did the questions come from, anyway? The census bureau's expert, Dr. Leon Truesdell—a rock-ribbed Republican from Maine—framed them in response to demands for questions about the "economic status" of Americans.

Statistical, economic, business and insurance organizations—substantial groups—all have talked economic status questions with the bureau for ten years and more. Some of these groups are what impolite New Dealers refer to privately as Tory outfits, too.

Income data will tell them not who makes how much, but where the various income levels lie in the nation's towns and cities. That's the same thing as telling business people where business is good for different qualities of goods and services. It's money in their pocket.

Many politicians and statesmen want the income data for speeches, programs, bills, and what-have-you dealing with unemployment and relief. Some of them are curious to know, too, whether the President was right—or talking through his hat—when he said one-third of the nation is ill-clad, ill-housed, and ill-fed.

Hopkins Interested?

It could be asked whether Harry Hopkins, a right bower in the White House, might not be interested in those questions for similar reasons. Would they prove the President's thesis? Justify New Deal spending for low-income Americans? And wouldn't the census taker's answers to those questions be ready to release to the public (and craters) in the heat of the coming presidential campaign? Maybe so, maybe not.

And another stickler:

Why have none of the professional groups outside government that originally told Harry Hopkins he had their OK on Census Questions No. 32 and 33, come charging to the rescue of the beleaguered secretary?

They're not saying. But maybe they don't like to back publicly inquests into private incomes, or they figure they'll be singled in the political bonfires this fall. Or if they're anti-New Deal, maybe they agree with that senator, who said a couple of "silly questions" might lose the Democratic party a million votes this fall.

Republicans Cautious

And why hasn't the Republican party high command come blasting down the political highway to back up Senator Toby?

Doll Collection

Hull, England. — (AP) — Dolls dressed in the uniforms of British sailors, soldiers, and airmen have been added to a collection of 1,000 dolls presented to a Hull museum by Queen Mary. Included in the gift was a 25-year-old rag doll wearing the uniform of a World War aviation officer. The uniform of each of the dolls, some of which are four feet tall, is correct to the last button. They cost $15 apiece.

Smoking For Straw

Paris (AP)—One of the new spring hats has a smoking treatment on the crown, embroidered in black on the beige "straw." The smoked "straw" is actually a heavy linen fabric called bakou, and where the smoking stops black ribbon starts ending in a big bow, like a schoolgirl hair-ribbon, in back. Louise Bourbon's idea.

There are 165,000,000 acres of public domain remaining in the United States.

THE HOME FRONT
Census taker asks Mr. Citizen about most everything

THE GENERALS
Senator Toby (left), Secretary Hopkins

Now we're getting warm. Positively hot, in fact. The Republican party's high command knows—as does the Democratic high command—that the real battle of the census is still to be fought. And it's not strictly a party affair. Jealous members of the house of representatives in both parties, especially members in both parties who may lose their seats when the census man's figures are tallied, are the primary strugglers in that battle.

Reapportionment's the word for it! And it means political blood-letting every ten years. But that's another story.

To date we have only three developments in the opening skirmish of the census:

1. Lots of people don't like the idea of discussing their incomes and divorces with the census taker.
2. Senator Toby's blast may damage the results of the 1940 census.

3. And Toby or no Toby, John Q. Citizen will be asked about his income if he makes less than $5,000 a year, although he may send the answers away from the eyes of the census taker, and mail them to Washington.

Senator Toby wins his fight—and also loses it—because (A) the Senate won't push through his resolution asking the Census Bureau not to ask the income questions, and (B) the courts won't have time to pass on the legality of the questions before the census takers arm themselves with blank forms, umbrellas, overshoes, and smiles, and assault the nation's door-bells.

Local Team To Start Training Period Next Thursday

MANY ROOKIES WILL BE HERE

Harrisburg Team To Start Training On Monday

With the opening of the Coastal Plain league less than a month off, Manager Rube Wilson is preparing to start spring training on Thursday of next week.

The Harrisburg, Pa., team, which will do its spring training here, is expected to arrive Sunday night and start work-outs on Monday. Approximately 25 players and officials from the Pennsylvania city will be here, making headquarters at the Hotel Proctor.

Both Harrisburg and Greenville have a number of exhibition games scheduled and local fans will have an opportunity of seeing some pre-season play.

Skipper Wilson of the Greenies will put a team on the field composed chiefly of rookies, but reports reaching here from their home towns indicate that at least some of them will be able to produce. In accordance with the wishes expressed by sport fans at a recent mass meeting, Rube has declared he will attempt to put a "hustling bunch of youngsters" on the field, boys who will be attempting to go up in baseball, and not players who are on their way down.

Under the rules governing class D ball this will be necessary and everyone connected with the Greenies apparently is determined to abide by the rules win or lose.

With a group of youngsters making up the team, the manager should have strict discipline and, no doubt, will keep his players in tip-top condition throughout the season.

At least a score of players will be trying out for the local team when the training season gets underway. In addition to the number of rookies signed, several others will be here on trial and if they produce will be signed by the local management.

Here's Some Dope On Young Catcher

A. M. Riddick, who hails from Gates county, is one of the rookies signed by the local club to try out for the catching position made vacant by the sale of Vincent Smith. Riddick played with the Greenville high school nine and also with Louisville college. Last summer he played with Marshall in the Carolina league. In the summer of 1938 he played with a fast league in Gates county. During the 66 games he played he set a batting average of .314.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Have you ever stood in front of a restaurant window and watched a pretty girl flip flapjacks? Well, don't deceive yourself. It wasn't the flapjacks that interested you, it was the girl.

Over on Seventh Avenue, however, it's different. The girl in this case isn't a girl, but two fellows, and they aren't flipping flapjacks, but frying chicken.

They stand in a window before five great vats of boiling grease and they fry more than 4,000 chickens every week. It's one of the best free shows on Broadway. It's the best crowd-gatherer between 42nd street and Carnegie Hall, and it goes on every day in the week, from noon till after midnight.

The black-haired one is Mike Praykor, a Czech, who says he can tell whether people prefer dark meat or white by merely observing their facial expressions through the window. The dark meat cravers, he says, are more honest in their reactions—they drool a little if they're hungry. White meat lovers are more fastidious and mask their

Cubs' Candidate For Top Rookie Is A Little Man With A Big Bat

By ROBERT MYERS
AP Feature Service

Avalon, Calif.—The rookie of the year may be a squat little Italian who blasted his way to the batting championship of the Pacific Coast league last year—Dominic Dallessandro.

The 5 foot, 110 pound Dallessandro waged a terrific hitting duel with another Dominican—Dinaggio—for the coast loop leadership, and won out with an average of .368. The Chicago Cubs thought enough of his performance to pay San Diego $25,000 for him.

One night during the training season here the 20-year-old recruit, surrounded by several other newcomers in the Cub camp, made it plain that his short stature hampers him not one bit.

"Why should it?" he demanded. "I've got all it takes up here (he moved his shoulders and wrists) and if I can hit in one league, I can hit in another."

As a matter of fact, Dominic's shortness was more of a handicap to pitchers last year than to him. The hurlers couldn't find him at the plate and Dallessandro drew 92 walks, a coast league record.

The stocky Dominican broke in with Reading, Pa., his home town, in 1933. He'd been a bat boy for the club in previous seasons.

In 1935 he went to Syracuse for two years. The Boston Red Sox bought him in 1937, and he promptly displayed a prolonged hitting slump for the first time—and last his Cubs. He didn't have a title. But he had never fallen below .317 before, but with Boston he plummeted to .231 in 63 games.

"I got off bad with Boston and never was able to get back, but it won't happen this year. I've been trying too long to get up there. Let this chance slip."

Dallessandro, a very serious player, keeps himself in good shape. He eats like a champion and plays ball because he likes it.

There's another Italian rookie with the Cubs who seems equally determined. He's Julio Bonetti, leading coast league pitcher for Los Angeles last year, who failed to make the grade with the Browns in 1937. Julio thinks he's all set for the major leagues now.

Bonetti, whose sinker ball brought 30 wins and only five losses last season, said he had better control now, was heavier, wiser and "my sinker is something I didn't even have with the Browns."

These two Italian boys may prove a big help to Gabby Hartnett and

Spring Vacations and Weather Provide Holiday

Wake Forest, March 27.—Spring vacation, beginning Thursday that lasts until next Monday, and the current bad weather will give the Deacon baseballers almost a week's holiday before they return to action again, against Pittsburgh here April 3.

After opening their campaign with victories over Pennsylvania 7-1 and West Chester 10-3 last week, the Deacs were unable to play their annual Easter Monday classic with N. C. State because of the heavy snowfall, and it is improbable that the two clubs will attempt to stage the contest until after next week.

The contest with Pittsburgh's Panthers Wednesday will reopen Wake's card and a double-header with Cornell's Big Red here Thursday, April 4 will close next week's diamond activities.

It's still too early to get much of a check on Coach Greason's material, but in the two games already played it seems that the Deac hurlers are stealing the show from their mates.

Jim Denning, senior righthander who took the first turn against Penn. limited the Quakers to a trio of safeties in four frames, and Tommy Byrne, ace southpaw who finished the game, held the opposing batters hitless. Against West Chester, Jess Tharnish, sophomore find, goose-egged the visitors' hitters for five innings and his relief man, Dave Fuller, senior, gave up only three blows during the remainder of the tilt.

Seek Right To Erect Rural Electric Lines

Raleigh, March 27.—(AP)—The Tri-county Electric Membership Corporation applied to the Rural Electrification authority today for the right to construct 200 miles of rural electric lines in Wayne, Duplin and Lenoir counties.

Principal offices would be in Goldsboro. Dudley Bagley, state REA director, said the cooperative had seven hundred prospective customers signed up and hoped to get 200 more. It would get a federal loan to finance the construction of lines.

The board of directors of the corporation is composed of Lewis Outlaw of Seven Springs, Freely Smith of Pink Hill, L. P. Wells of Mount Olive, W. T. Basmore of Seven Springs, W. C. Bird of Deep Run, J. A. Williams of Seven Springs, W. M. Griffin of Seven Springs, R.

Williams of Mount Olive and Street Price of Seven Springs.

French Toast Treat

French toast goes fancy when made like this: Spread pineapple-apricot marmalade on 4 slices of hot

French toast. Stack and serve at once, cut in wedges or squares. French toast is a fine idea for using up leftover sliced bread.

Who Was Your First Friend?

Wasn't he the kindly doctor, who ushered you into the world? Then came others... parents who taught you love, ethics and honesty... youngsters who showed you how to play with teamwork and sportsmanship... and teachers who guided you to work with a purpose. As you journey through life, you learn to appreciate the value of friends. Today, when you count your assets, experience tells you that the most priceless of all are your friendships. * * *

Do you know of any better place to sow the seeds of friendship than in the atmosphere of your home? Do you know of any finer symbol of hospitality than Budweiser? Making friends is what made Budweiser the Perfect Host.

Hawkins started to work with it. They didn't have a title. But Hawkins had a valet who came from the steel mills of Birmingham. "There was a place where the trolley cars crossed the tracks and we used to run there from the mills and put on our fancy clothes to go courtin'," this valet explained. "We called it Tuxedo Junction."

Hawkins solemnly said, "Thanks, pal, you've written a song."

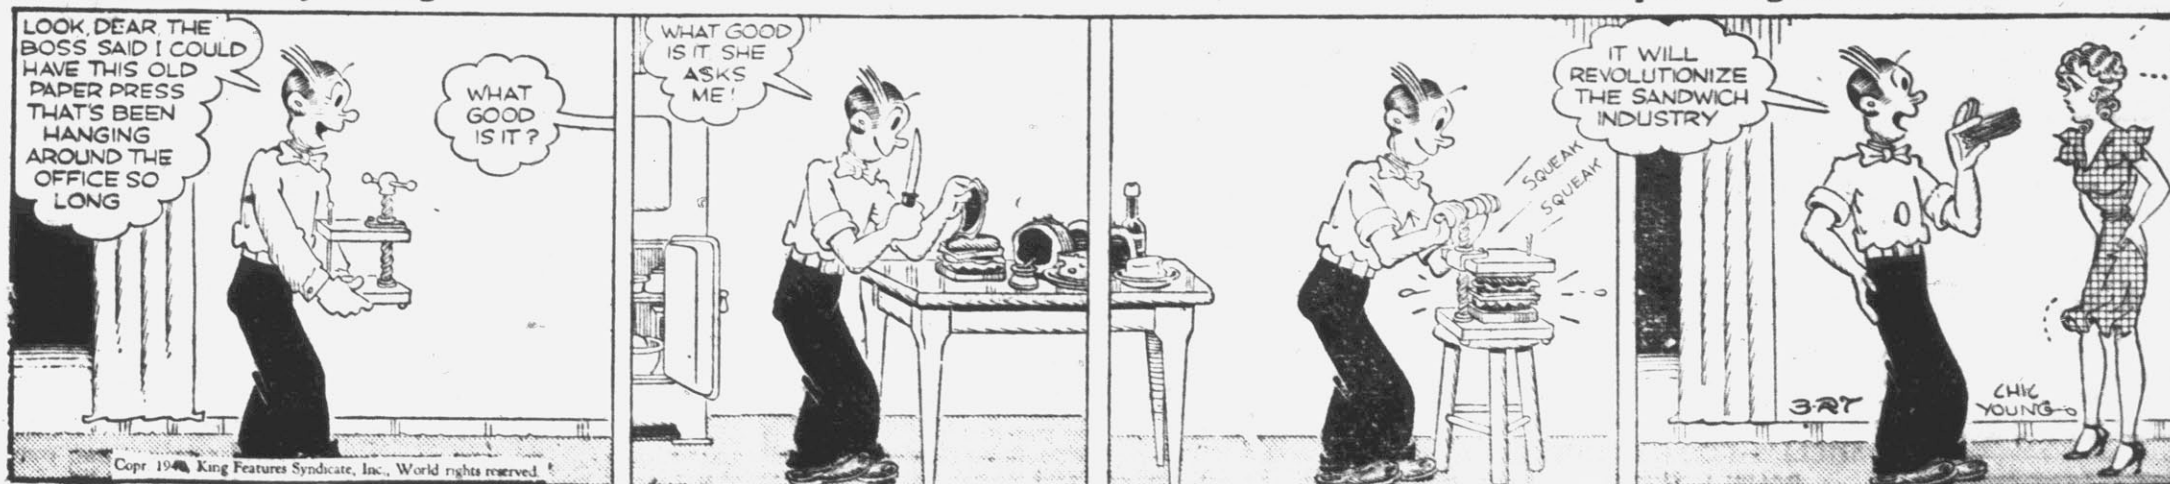

That was the title he gave it, and he made a record of it. Three weeks ago Glenn Miller recorded it in a sort of low-down blues style. This record sold 113,000 copies the first week.

A railroad crossing and a valet, a Harlem dance hall and a practical joke. Such is the stuff of which hit songs are made.

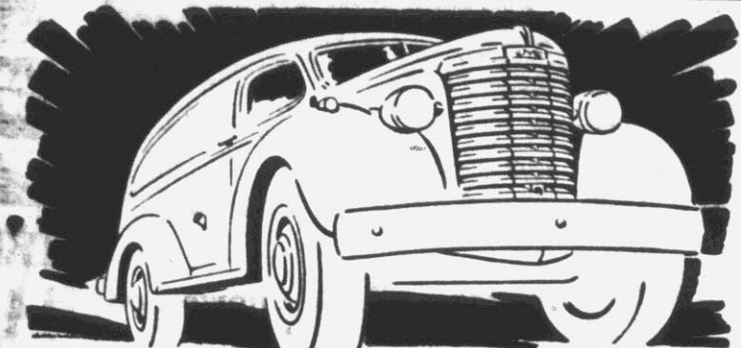

Washing Wool Blankets
Be sure to rinse all the soap out of laundered blankets so they'll dry light and fluffy. Raise through several waters the same temperature as that used for the washing—like warm is the best for woolen blankets. Rinsing is as important as the washing itself.

Twenty years of Oldsmobile progress is portrayed above. The 1920 44-horsepower Oldsmobile four-door sedan at the left, a bumpy-leader and a big value in its day, lacked many of the comfort and safety features taken for granted with owners today. However it sold for $1995 at the factory and the price did not include even bumpers, spare wheel or tire, they were $50.00 extra. Today's modern and streamlined successor, the 1940 Oldsmobile 95-horsepower, Series Sixty four-door sedan with safety glass, chrome window reveals, bumpers, spare wheel, tire and tube, dual trumpet horns, dual windshield wipers, vacuum booster pump and two sun visors plus many other modern features sells for $899 delivered in Lansing, Michigan.

'Not Guilty', Says Congressman

Rep. B. Frank Whelchel (D-Ga.), indicted by a federal grand jury for selling postal appointments, is shown in his home at Gainesville, Ga., as he denied guilt of any kind and announced his intention to seek re-election. Charges were brought by "two publicity-seeking lawyers from Washington," said Whelchel, who added their "sole purpose was to indict."

Maxwell Still Far Ahead in Selecting Managers
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 27.—(AP)—Emergency State manager for J. M. Broughton's gubernatorial campaign, today announced three more county managers for his candidate; but even with this addition to his field forces, the Raleigh attorney still was running far behind A. J. Maxwell in the matter of announced county managers.

The Commissioner of Revenue, in fact, had more announced county managers than all the other candidates combined, if releases given this bureau form a complete list of the managers, who have actually been announced.

A recapitulation showed that Maxwell has announced his chief lieutenants in 27 counties. Broughton and Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton have named 11 each;

Lee Gravely has publicized the name of just one; while neither Paul Grady, Tom Cooper nor Arthur Simmons has furnished this bureau with the name of even one county manager.

The Broughton managers named today were: Cabarrus: H. H. Calloway, Jr., a Concord lawyer. Swain: Frank Hyatt, clerk of court, at Bryson City. Alexander: Hayden Millsap, Stony Point merchant, and J. Hayden Burke, Taylorsville lawyer, to act as co-managers.

Last night Maxwell added a sheriff, a lumberman and a lawyer to his managerial staff. In Wayne he named Hall Edmundson, Goldsboro attorney who has been judge of the county court for several years. In Anson he picked Baxter F. McRae, prominent lumberman and farmer of Peachland. In Gates he selected Sheriff George D. Williams. In Clay county P. C. Scruggs will handle Maxwell's affairs.

Judge Daniel Bell, for Horton headquarters, announced the first co-managership for the Lieutenant Governor. Harley R. Cabe, clerk of Superior court, and Lester L. Arnold, register of deeds, were chosen in Macon county.

Judge Bell also released appointment of I. T. Speaks of Statesville as Horton's Iredell county manager. Mr. Speaks is a past State president of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America.

County managers announced to date by the candidates are: Maxwell: Anson, Baxter F. McRae; Avery, George M. Bowman; Burke, State Senator H. J. Hatcher; Clay, P. C. Scruggs; Cleveland, Clyde Nolan; Craven, Sheriff Richard B. Lane; Cumberland, D. O. C. McPadden; Durham, J. F. Barfield; Edgecombe, George M. Fountain; Forsyth, Calvin Graves, Jr.; Gaston, P. C.
