WELLES BACK FROM MISSION FOR PRESIDENT

Declines, However, to Discuss European Talks

TO MAKE REPORT DIRECTLY TO FDR

Conferences Held With Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain And Daladier During Visit to Europe

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, sent to Europe on an exhaustive fact-finding tour by President Roosevelt, returned today to report in person to the chief executive on conditions on that war-torn continent.

Affable, but silent as usual on his highly confidential mission, Welles was to entrain immediately for Washington.

The under-secretary of state, guarding closely the information gathered in conferences in Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain, arrived on the liner Conte di Savoia.

These conferences contributed to basic facts in his possession:

An hour and a half talk with Chancellor Hitler. It had been nearly two years since an American ambassador had last seen him.

A discussion with Premier Mussolini in Rome.

Long and private discussions with former Premier Daladier in Paris and with Prime Minister Chamberlain in London.

Welles' answer to virtually every question was "no comment."

He steadfastly declined to discuss or comment on any of the personalities with whom he conferred in Europe.

"I had every opportunity given to me to get the information for which I was sent," he said.

Britain's Envoy To Japan Predicts Improvement In British-Nippon Relations

Hoge charged he was abducted in 1938 and forced to sign a denial that Burns had stolen the affections of his wife, Millie. The district attorney's office, however, asserted the action was without basis.

Allies' Attitude As To Neutrals Is Questioned

Reich Would Protect Sea Lanes From The North

Berlin, March 28.—(AP)—The Allies' attitude toward the neutrality of Norway and Denmark, whose territorial waters provide Germany a sea lane from the North, is being watched with "the most profound attention," authorized German sources declared today.

They said the Reich was reckoning with the possibility that the Western powers might "assume the right to police territorial waters" of the Northern nations in view of a statement issued in Paris last night.

Informed quarters left no doubt such a step would be met by German counter measures.

The semi-official French news agency, Havas, in a statement outlining the Allies' attitude toward neutrals, made a sharp distinction between active and passive neutrals.

It said recent activity of British warships off Jutland was due to "the passive attitude" of "certain neutral governments" permitting Germany to carry on a regular "war traffic."

The Allies intend to police "doubtful" neutral waters, the statement declared.

The German press echoed the statement today in Adolf Hitler's newspaper that the Western powers "probably still hope in this way after the failure of intrigue in Finland to make a battlefield of the whole North."

Sir Robert Leslie Craige, in Surprisingly Conciliatory Address in Japan-British Society Declares Both Nations Working For Same Objective, Namely Preservation Of Peace

Tokyo, March 28.—(AP)—British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craige, in a surprisingly conciliatory speech, predicted today an improvement in relations between Great Britain and Japan.

The two nations, he said "ultimately are striving for the same objective, namely a lasting peace and preservation of our institutions from extraneous subversive influences."

At the same time he announced that he and Lady Craige would leave in mid-April for a two and one-half months trip to the United States on a "private holiday."

The ambassador spoke to a distinguished audience at a luncheon of the Japan-British society.

"Bearing in mind the declared intentions of the Japanese government and the measure of success already achieved," Sir Robert said, "I have a definite feeling of confidence in the future of British-Japanese relations."

He said there was "room for satisfaction in the thought that the innate good sense of our two nations x x x has prevented animosity of the moment from hardening into deep-seated resentment or permanent estrangement."

NOT TO PROBE PEACE ACTION PLANES' SALES TO BE MUTUAL

Allies Agree to Negotiate Only By Agreement

Committee Votes Against Holding Investigation

Washington, March 28.—(AP)—The Senate Military affairs committee voted five to four today against conducting a formal investigation of military plane sales to France and Britain.

The decision followed categorical denials from War department officials that such sales had interfered in any way with production for America's armed forces.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) said he believed all of the points raised by Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis.) in a resolution requesting the investigation had been answered satisfactorily in a closed session by Secretary Woodring and Assistant Secretary Johnson.

Among those voting against reporting the resolution to the Senate was Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.).

Two-Thirds Of Counties Favor New Registration

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 28.—Almost two-thirds of North Carolina's counties will have completely new registration of voters this year, if the same proportion is maintained as has been shown by the first 58 county elections boards making report to state election board headquarters.

Of the 58 reported, 37 ordered new registrations, while 21 decided simply to relist the existing books, so as to conform with the 1939 law on the subject.

The last session of the General Assembly provided that hereafter Democrats and Republicans must be registered in separate books for primary voting, and left it up to the several counties to determine whether to order a complete new registration of all voters or to purge and revise the existing books, listing Democrats and Republicans separately.

BRITAIN LOSES TWO PLANES IN NIGHT FLIGHTS

One of Scouters Shot Down By Neutral Netherlands

NAZI SHIP LOST OVER SCOTLAND

Official German Source Denies British Report Five Nazi Planes Shot Down Yesterday

London, March 28.—(AP)—British fliers shot down a German warplane today off the northeast coast of Scotland, but acknowledged the loss of two of their own—one to fliers of the neutral Netherlands—during the night in scouting flights.

The Netherlands pursuit planes machine-gunned a British bomber early today over The Netherlands territory, an Amsterdam communique announced, and sent it down in flames southwest of Rotterdam.

One of the crew jumped to his death but the remaining four stayed with the ship and escaped being burned.

Netherlands authorities said they would be interned.

The other of the two British aircraft which the Air Ministry said failed to return from "extensive reconnaissance flights over northwest Germany" was reported shot down over Heligoland.

(The German high command said the Germans themselves accounted for two British planes. It said German pursuit planes shot down a British bomber at Heligoland, while during the night another was shot down by anti-aircraft fire and a portion of the crew captured.)

(Meanwhile the official German news agency quoted an authoritative source as denying a British report that at least five German planes were shot down yesterday.)

The move, which was interpreted as foreshadowing a British diplomatic offensive in the Balkans, was announced by the foreign office news department as coming from "authoritative" sources.

The envoys are expected to arrive in England early next month when the British ambassador to Rome also is expected in London.

Authoritative sources said "the only thing possible to infer at the moment" from the announcement was that Lord Halifax wished to confer with men on the spot about German and Russian "economic and diplomatic offensives in the Balkans."

The Russian question was brought into sharper perspective by the recall from Paris of the Soviet ambassador and the British detention of two Russian ships in the Far East.

Great Britain and France are arranging immediate consultations on means of intensifying the war against Germany and on what status to assign Soviet Russia in the conflict.

The allied war leaders also agreed to discuss peace terms before reaching complete agreement on the conditions necessary to insure effective and lasting guarantees of security.

Finally they agreed "to maintain after the conclusion of peace community of action in all spheres," the communique declared.

Still Destroyed In Swift Creek Area

Pitt county ABC officers, aided by Chief of Police Jim Buck of Grimesland, last night located and destroyed a new liquor still near Hadlock's crossroads in Swift Creek township.

Officers said the still apparently never had been operated, but was set up and ready to make a run. They found 300 gallons of freshly made beer and had been "tipped off" that the still would make a run last night.

The still was a 50-gallon capacity steam outfit with a 50-gallon steel drum used for a co-ker, a 10-gallon doubler and a 50-gallon condenser.

The still was destroyed with dynamite.

Mrs. Roosevelt has extended an invitation to the chorus to present a half hour recital. The chorus also will present concerts in other places this spring, including Richmond, Baltimore, and New York.

Lewis Sidney Bullock of Greenville is conductor of the chorus.

British Envoys Ordered Home For Consultation

Diplomatic Offensive On Balkans Fore-shadowed

London, March 28.—(AP)—The British ambassador to Turkey and ministers to Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania, Hungary and Yugoslavia have been recalled for consultation with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax.

The move, which was interpreted as foreshadowing a British diplomatic offensive in the Balkans, was announced by the foreign office news department as coming from "authoritative" sources.

The envoys are expected to arrive in England early next month when the British ambassador to Rome also is expected in London.

Authoritative sources said "the only thing possible to infer at the moment" from the announcement was that Lord Halifax wished to confer with men on the spot about German and Russian "economic and diplomatic offensives in the Balkans."

The Russian question was brought into sharper perspective by the recall from Paris of the Soviet ambassador and the British detention of two Russian ships in the Far East.

Great Britain and France are arranging immediate consultations on means of intensifying the war against Germany and on what status to assign Soviet Russia in the conflict.

The allied war leaders also agreed to discuss peace terms before reaching complete agreement on the conditions necessary to insure effective and lasting guarantees of security.

Finally they agreed "to maintain after the conclusion of peace community of action in all spheres," the communique declared.

Prominent Woman Claimed By Death

Palm Beach, Fla., March 28.—(AP)—Socially prominent Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, whose first husband, Col. John Jacob Astor, lost his life in the Titanic sinking of 1912, died at her winter home early today of a heart ailment. She was 47 years old.

The wealthy society woman created a sensation when she married Enzo Fiermonte, an Italian boxer, November 27, 1933, in a New York hospital where she was a patient. The marriage ended in divorce at Palm Beach June 11, 1938.

Shortly after her graduation from a New York finishing school, Mrs. Fiermonte—then Miss Madeline Force—married Astor, at his home in Newport, R. I.

They were returning to America from Europe in 1912 when the Titanic struck an iceberg and sunk. Mrs. Fiermonte was rescued.

Two hams and two shoulders were taken.

GEORGE URGES RETENTION OF TRADE POLICY

Declares Program May Become Vital-Necessary

SENATE TO VOTE ON AMENDMENT

Both Sides Agree Barring On Administration's Reciprocal Trade System to Be Close

Washington, March 28.—(AP)—Senator George (D-Ga.) told his colleagues today that the administration's reciprocal trade program might become "vitally necessary" to protect American interests during rapidly changing conditions abroad.

The Georgia senator, devoting most of his Senate address to a defense of the program's constitutionality, declared also that "it is the only step taken by any great commercial nation during this hectic period looking to readjustment of world trade on anything like an equitable basis."

Administration leaders hoped to obtain a vote tomorrow on an amendment by Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) to subject trade agreements to Senate ratification. Both sides in the fight, which began on the floor Monday, conceded that the vote would be extremely close.

Other developments in Congress today:

The House reaffirmed its decision of yesterday to increase President Roosevelt's recommendation for next year's NYA activities from $85,000,000 to $102,450,000. The decision came on a 162 to 144 teler vote.

However, the economy forces in the House will be permitted to ask for still another vote—a roll call vote later.

A little earlier the House shouted down a request by Representative Taber (R-N.Y.) to slash the fund to $45,000,000.

An outstanding trend pointed up in the House was Congress' switch from an attitude of economy to one of election year spending.

Ladies of the Round Table Meet.
"Some of the largest and most important North American rivers and the part they have had in developing the area, and the building up conditions of the American nation," was the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Round Table Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Denny led the discussion in a splendidly prepared paper. "The American nation came to birth upon its rivers. The early pioneers found rich land to farm in the valleys of the Kennebec, the Connecticut, the Hudson, the Ohio, the Mississippi and the Sacramento. Geography itself determined that Americans should first live on and by the rivers. Great rivers tempted men to do great things, as Cartier, DeSoto, LaSalle and Henry Hudson. Rivers furnish the most economical form of power for every kind of industry. When deep and long they become highways of travel. The use of Niagara's power is the highest achievement in the employment of stream force. The Mississippi, St. Lawrence, Hudson and Delaware are North America's most important commercial rivers.

"The Merrimac, Connecticut, Androscogin, Hudson, Kennebec and Chattahoochee are America's industrial rivers.
"The Hudson is one of the most beautiful rivers of the world. Its scenery is unparalleled, and it is scenery of the highest order among American rivers. The epic of America is a notable extent flowing on the rhythm of rivers, great and small. Our rivers typify for us our living link with pioneers who received the gift of strength on the banks of American rivers.

The news events were given by Mrs. Wiley Brown. The business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. Howard McGinnis, was one of interest. New features of activities were discussed by the group. At the conclusion of the program, the hostesses, Mrs. S. J. Everett, served a salad course.

WINTERVILLE DEPARTMENT
A good market here for lightwood prices.

The earth do move. So do Winterville cherries. They are being shipped every day.

A hotel is needed here now as bad as any thing, and with our mineral water, it seems that a good one might be worked up to pay well.

We notice that quite a few boys are beginning to loaf around. This is quite an unusual thing here, and every loafer in a place like this ought to wear a badge branded "loafer".
Simon Move is building an ice house and, of course, wants a puff. What he proposes to do is to stop his customers from puffing and blowing by furnishing them plenty of ice cheap enough so they can afford to have it all the time. They will no doubt puff his business in return.

Vann-Winslow
Miss Marcia Elizabeth Winslow became the bride of Edward Matthews Vann of Rocky Mount in a ceremony of impressive dignity and beauty Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Edgar Winslow, the Reverend Thomas McM. Grant officiated at the ceremony.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar which was banked with cymbidium ferns and palms forming a background for the floor baskets of Easter lilies and gladioli. On either side of the altar and in the center were graduated standards of seven branch candelabra.

Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop, soloist, and Mrs. C. W. Hearne, pianist, presented a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony. Mrs. Hearne played "Chanson Triste," Tschalkowsky and Mrs. Waldrop sang "On Wings of Music," Mendelssohn, and "I Love Thee," by Grieg.

The Bridal Chorus from Wagner's Lohengrin was played for the wedding procession.

John Albert Vann, Jr., of Rocky Mount attended his brother as best man and ushers were LeRoy Savage of Rocky Mount, Norman Winslow of Washington, and Hugh Winslow, brothers of the bride, and Ernest Winslow, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Joseph M. Taft, sister of the bride, was dam of honor, and Miss Virginia Bradshaw, attended the bride as maid of honor. Their dresses of Wedgewood rose marquisette and matching lace were styled identically as the bride's wedding gown and were worn floor length with slight trains. They carried nosegays of spring flowers in pastel shades, tied with rainbow satin ribbon.

Other attendants were Miss Helen Fleming and Mrs. Reynolds May. Their gowns of symphony blue marquisette were fashioned identical to those of the dame of honor and maid of honor. Their bouquets were made of spring flowers similar to those of the maid and dame of honor.

Little Miss Ruth Anna Taylor of Fort Knox, Kentucky, niece of the bride, and little Miss Elizabeth Vann of Rocky Mount, niece of the bridegroom, were flower girls. They wore symphony blue marquisette dresses of the same pattern as the other attendants and carried miniature nosegays of spring flowers in pastel shades, showered with satin ribbon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Jasper Edgar Winslow. She wore a gown of frost white marquisette over white bridal satin, designed by Molyneux, on semi-princess lines, having heart shaped neck line and long fitted sleeves that puffed gracefully at the shoulders. Prothy Valencia lace was used as trimming. The billowing skirt fastened to the bodice with ruffles of lace was worn with long train. Her long wedding veil of white bridal illusion was fastened to a Victorian bonnet of white lace trimmed with tiny orange blossoms and seeded pearls. It extended beyond the length of her train. Her flowers were a cascade arrangement of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Winslow, mother of the bride, wore a dress of deep lavender lace and a corsage of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Vann, mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of turquoise lace and a corsage of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Winslow entertained at a formal reception. The lower floor en suite, was artistically decorated with white roses, Easter lilies, and white tulips.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blount and Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Dail greeted guests at the front door and introductions to the first receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow.

Literature Department Meeting.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway and Mrs. K. T. Futrell were hostesses to the Literature Department of the Women's Club which met at the home of Mrs. Galloway Tuesday afternoon March 26.

The Galloway home was lovely with decorations of hawthornes, jonquils, hyacinths and pansies. Mrs. W. C. Harris gave us one of the most interesting programs of the year. Her subject was "Dorothy Parker." Mrs. Harris said that Dorothy Parker, famed writer and wit, prefers to be called a satirist, rather than a humorist. On a very slim actual amount of publication she has made herself a person with whom to be reckoned. A few short poems, a handful of short stories, a few columns, many remarks of her contemporaries, and she has become one of the best known of the critics. The darling of all the weary young things, the pal of intelligentsia of New York. A very famous woman, indeed.

In her work, Mrs. Parker uses a short devastating driving sentence. She pushes it out with a cynical precision of the Jew for the weakest spot and the well-concentrated muscle-power of the Scot, of which she is a combination. The result is a knock-out blow with the awful reverberations of the hellish clever wise-crack. Dorothy Parker is probably the most quoted woman in the world.

Mrs. Harris read a number of poems Mrs. Parker's three volumes: "Enough Rope," "Sunset Gun" and "Death and Taxes," which comprise her volume of collected wit. "Not So Deep As A Well."

Mrs. Futrell, chairman, presided, and Mrs. Woolard called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. The chairman appointed the following committee: Nominating: Mrs. P. A. Toll, Mrs. F. P. Brooks and Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall. Program: Mrs. M. N. Posey, Mrs. L. A. Stroud, Miss Stella Grogan and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore.

Mrs. Moore outlined the program for the Fine Arts Festival to be held April 2-7. The Literature Department voted to sponsor the program to be given on Thursday evening, April 4th by Mr. W. P. Couch of Chapel Hill. Mr. Couch will speak on "The Work of The University Press" and "Book Binding in The South."

The hostesses, assisted by Miss Margaret Futrell, Mrs. L. B. Gowen and Mrs. M. Swartz, served ice cream topped with strawberries, salted nuts, pound cake and homemade kisses. A spray of hawthorne was on each plate as a favor.

RED OAK NEWS

Mrs. N. O. Hodges' group of H. D. C. women are making plans for a good entertainment Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Community building. They are sponsoring "The Golden Bell Boys" from Rocky Mount. In connection with this program several valuable prizes will be awarded. The prettiest girl, the handsomest man, the most bald-headed man present, the largest family and several others will be given prizes. Mrs. Hodges' group is composed of Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Clyde Bright, Mrs. Jim Letchworth, Mrs. Heber Savage and Mrs. Larry Jones. Each group in the club was asked to raise a certain sum of money by June. So far six groups out of the ten have reached their goal.

We are all looking forward to the District meeting to be held in Greenville next Wednesday, April 3rd at 10 o'clock in the Austin building. The women of Red Oak Club will serve a barbecue plate to the estimated five or six hundred women who are expected to be present from Tyrrell, Beaufort, Martin, Washington, Bertie and Pitt.

All Red Oak Club women are expected to get in touch with Mrs. B. L. Tyson by Monday morning and find out what they are expected to do to help with the luncheon. We need the help of every woman whose name is on our roll as this is a big undertaking. Either call her on Phone 3610-8 or see her at her home or at Sunday school next Sunday morning.

Work is progressing on our church beautification program. We have hauled many loads of dirt in front of the church and have sowed grass on part of the lawn. We have also planted a number of shrubs, moved several, planted a large number of bulbs in the rear of the church. We are about one-half done. It is hoped that we can finish up this sometime this week.

Five Times On Torpedoed Ships, He Lived To Write The Tales

AP Feature Service

Baltimore—If the Allies ever decide to print a seaman's guide on "What to Do When Torpedoed," they would do well to pick Captain

George H. Grant to write it. He's had five ships blown from under him.

Grant, Scotch-born American skipper, is here while his current command, the Musa, is being overhauled. During the world war he was in the British merchant marine.

A German raider sank the Norman Monarch in 1915 while Grant was second mate. The crew made it to the coast of Ireland. His next berth was as second mate on the Indian Monarch, mine-destroyer, 700 miles from St. Helena.

In three boats the crew set out for safety. The captain's and first mate's boats headed for the coast of Africa. Grant's boat sailed for St. Helena. They made it in seven days, after rationing 30 gallons of water by the thimbleful. The other two boats were never heard from.

His next ship hit a mine in Bristol channel 15 miles from shore. Then his next vessel, the Karpat, was torpedoed. The San Andreu, his final berth, was torpedoed off Port Said in September, 1918.

But Captain Grant has sworn off paying flirtation with Davy Jones. The Musa is in the New York-Central American service, well within the neutrality zone, and that suits Captain Grant just fine. Five times sunk and nary a scratch is pushing luck, and the Scotch shipmaster isn't anxious to test the law of averages any more.

Grant, since becoming an American citizen, has described his adventures in four books, "The Half Deck," "Consigned to Davy Jones," "Take to the Boats" and "The Heel of a Gale."

His home is in New York.

'POLITICAL SHOCK TROOPS' FOR VIENNESE WORKERS

Vienna (AP)—All Vienna factories employing more than 100 persons must form so-called "political shock troops" to spread National Socialist thought among the Austrian workers.

The German Labor Front issued the order at the request of District Leader Josef Buerckel. Members of these organizations will be especially trained. The "shock troops" will be made responsible for the attitude of their fellow workers, even to the extent of seeing to it that raw materials are sparingly used.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filtes which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

COLLIDING WITH PROVIDENCE

I talked recently with an elderly man who had suffered a stroke on the street. He was a Lutheran clergyman who had retired after forty-five years of unusually consecrated service. He told me that in his lifetime he had never had an outstanding or overwhelming sorrow; that he and his wife lived a lovely and happy life together, and the only real valley through which he had ever passed was when just a year or two ago she had been taken away.

But as he crumpled up on the street there came over him the realization that at last he had something hard to face. He said that there flashed through his mind a wonderful sense of gratitude for the many happy years he had been granted and the realization that here now was a time when he should rely in simple trust on the Lord. "It was a great experience," he said. "As they picked me up and put me into an ambulance there came over me a deep peace and happiness which has not lessened through all the months to this very hour. It was wonderful," he continued, "the peace God provides for people when they most need it."

As he leaned upon my arm and went on talking about the joy of living even in old age with a half-broken body, I had an added insight into the wise providence of God.

TRADE TREATIES SHOULD BE CONTINUED

The fight against Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade treaties has begun in the Senate. In was our opinion that our foreign trade policy, as set up by Mr. Hull, has been the outstanding accomplishment of the New Deal. It offers the one means whereby we can get away from some of the Republican-built high tariffs that have worked to the disadvantage of the farming areas of the country. While we feel that the greatest of care should be exercised in the negotiation of these treaties in order that we do not place ourselves at a disadvantage, we do believe that the plan should be continued.

PROPHECY ABOUT TO BE FULFILLED

Reading from our yesterday's "Forty Years Ago" column, The Reflector at that time was discussing the need of more industries for Greenville and made the statement "As tobacco is not an ironclad, never dropping never failing business, something must take its place sooner or later." As we view the present situation, now faceted by the tobacco growing sections of this state that statement of forty years ago might have been a prophecy that is now about to become true.

Before Pitt county and its towns can really gain financial independence there must be something to supplement our income from tobacco. Our farmers must cease depending entirely on tobacco as their only means of livelihood and devote a portion of their time and efforts to the production of other commodities and our towns must see to the establishment of canning and packing plants to process the products of our farms and procure other forms of industry that will create steady pay rolls throughout the year.

Cotton was once King in this section but in time Tobacco pushed it from the throne and for many years has reigned as the principal means of support for this section. The throne of tobacco is now tottering and falling into ruin and to take its place there must be a democracy wherein not one crop will rule but where many crops of various kinds will be united together to bring about a reign of prosperity. A more varied farm and industrial program for this section is essential at this time.

Washington.—John W. Davis, one-time candidate for President, was arguing a case before the United States Supreme Court. He came to a stop.

"Mr. Chief Justice, how much time have I left?"

Chief Justice Hughes solemnly consulted his timepiece and reported: "Exactly one minute."

Mr. Davis considered only a half-second and then bowed. "Mr. Chief Justice," he said, "I present that to the court with my compliments."

Off-season football story: Colonel Philip Fleming, white-haired but youthful looking (he's 53), Wage-Hour Administrator, has on his record a string of slick accomplishments but the army will always remember his brilliant engineering best for putting army football on the map.

Called to West Point as athletic director in the years that followed the war, Colonel Fleming's orders read something to the effect: "Put Army athletics on top of the heap."

And what did the colonel do? He went right out and got West Point the toughest rival he could find—Notre Dame—and built the Army Notre Dame game into the annual classic that it is.

Incidentally, he found in his greatest rival one of his closest friends—Knute Rockne.

Our colorful Congressman, Senator Josh Lee (Okla.) says, "I've seen grasshoppers so thick they ate up everything on the farm except the mortgage. Why they even ate the feathers off the turkeys."

That makes it Josh Lee, A. B., M. A., LL. B., and M. P., Senator, and that last is for Master of Fabrication.

Senator Sherman Minton (Ind.) says, "Some of the most pernicious politicians I have known in my life have been bankers."

Ill refer that to the American Bankers Association, Senator, without comment. I owe a couple of those gentlemen some money.

Representative Edward J. Hart (N. J.) speaking of a judge of his acquaintance, said, "A survey of this antics on and off the bench for many years makes, as words sometimes whether he doesn't often use a pinwheel for a pen and a square cage for a waiting table."

I'll bet some of the literary critics are trying to find out Representative Hart's name. They didn't think of that one when they were reviewing James F. Moore.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey (N. C.) says, "A man who is the father of penitentiaries or of prison reform is under disability. One cannot function in politics as a lawyer or as a contractor."

Why not say, Senator, simply that a man in jail can't function, and leave the professions out of this?

Representative John D. Dingell (Mich.) says, "Imagine General Washington, Lafayette, Kosciuszko, Pulaski, Von Steuben, Barry, Perry, Grant, or Lee hesitating, shrinking, and slinking away before the shadow of the starving, scraggly Russian bear which is being led to destruction by a desperate scab paperhanger." The world on fire ignited by two-headed run amuck millions of innocent people robbed, murdered, raped and deported; men, women and children shot down as though they were mad dogs; property destroyed, churches desecrated and bombed; fortunes confiscated, and a trail of broken hearts and suicides left in blood-drenched Polish and Finnish soil—and we are afraid we might offend Stalin and Hitler!

Well I will say, Mr. Dingell, you're not!

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Aunt Hannah takes a house in Alameda, and turns over her Chicago interests to Allen. Tomi figures that the Tolands visit cost her 720 frogs. The Tolands refuse to pay for their board.

Chapter 27 Train Trip

"I WANT to win myself," Tomi told Pierre.

"Need anyone know?" asked Pierre seriously.

"I would know," answered Tomi.

"Then, cherie—" he came close, his arms extended—"let me lend you the money. We can slip it in, a little at a time. No one will know the difference."

"That isn't honest, Pierre," Tomi objected. "I couldn't play underhanded."

Pierre shrugged his shoulders. "Do you think Allen Bartell is playing an honest game with you?" he asked.

Tomi shook her head hopelessly. "It doesn't matter what he does. I don't have to live with him. I do have to live with myself."

"Tomi, don't you see that is why a woman fails in business? She is too inherently honest to fight fire with fire. Do you want Bartell to win?"

Tomi stood up resolutely. "Bartell is not going to win," she stated emphatically. "I still have a fine chance. The Tolands threw me off the track, but I can make up the time I lost there. You're a dear, Pierre, to want to save me, but it's my fight."

"You'll win!" Pierre shook her hands, warmly.

"Abe," Tomi called him back in. "I want you to check the number of frogs we'll have available for sale between now and the last of October. See where you can cut down on feed cost."

Pierre remained after the others had left. "You won't let me help you with the book-keeping, Tomi?"

"It's nice of you, Pierre, but I've been a bookkeeper."

"My salary could be suspended," he offered.

"Oh, Pierre, if there were only a few more men like you. No, dear, the principle of the will is that I should prove my right to the farm. That is something I must do alone."

"My valiant," murmured Pierre.

Tomi went over her market list. Everything within the radius of three hundred miles had been scoured. No further markets there were available. She'd have to extend her territory. But how could she do that and cut her sales cost?

"I can't let Pierre live in cheap hotels and dine at hamburger stands. I'll simply have to go back on the road, myself."

But where? The sensible thing would be to go to the places where the greatest number of markets were within the smallest radius. Los Angeles was the answer.

Tomi acted quickly. The next day was Saturday. She could take the Daylight Limited on Sunday, rest Sunday night and be fresh for work Monday.

She telephoned for reservations the next morning. She could take a train from Oakland at seven-forty Sunday morning and get to the next with the Limited at San Jose. She sent Abe for her reservation, then started to pack.

Dotty hovered over her, pressed clothes, checked lingerie, assured her she would keep the two me and the million frogs well fed, and contented.

At sunset Tomi from Dotty's window, watched a strange procedure at the pens. Old Abe had erected a pulley line across the mam market pen. He was standing at one side working the pulley. Occasionally he would let out a triumphant "whoop!"

she would forget frogs, forget the Tolands, forget Pierre, Abe, Dotty, forget Allen Bartell.

What a relief. She sighed deeply. She might as well look at the passengers. Two business men were seated across the aisle. In front of her she could see two pairs in two black heads. They could belong to duds or to interesting people.

And ahead of them? Tomi stood up in protest. She sat down quickly. The head reclining against the back of that seat had crisp, wavy hair, light brown shot with gold. There couldn't be another head like it in these United States.

The train was speeding between tan velvet hills, between fruit farms, trees heavy with fruit, between more hills. The conductor appeared for the first time.

"I simply must move to another car," Tomi told him.

"Not a chance," said the man. "Every seat is sold."

The head two seats beyond hers moved. Shoulders appeared. The head turned and gray eyes dancing with golden lights appeared, stared at her in shocked surprise.

Allen Bartell came quickly to her. "Imagine seeing you here," he exclaimed. "Mind if I take this chair?"

"How did you know I was going to be on this train? I watched to see if either Abe nor Dotty telephoned."

Bartell shook his head. "You're the most conceited girl I ever met," he disparaged. "Here I am, due in Superior Court in Los Angeles tomorrow morning, and you assume I've taken an eight-hundred-mile trip for the pleasure of your company."

Nothing could have silenced Tomi more effectively.

"However—" the golden lights were dancing again—"as long as we're both here, suppose we indulge in some promises. We'll pretend we've just met. I... I've picked you up. I don't know you; you don't know me. We're just a couple of streamliners passing in the night."

Tomi shook her head. "I fell for that game once," she remarked. "But as long as we must ride the same train, let's pretend we know each other. Let's admit we're both fighting for the same thing."

"Sold!" agreed Bartell, and extended his hand.

"Nary A Frog Leg"

TOMI could not be altogether sorry that Bartell was on the same train. He knew every point of interest, told her the story of the various missions, seemed to know the reason for the existence of each and every spot at the base of towering hills to the west of King River Valley and said they were homes of cattle ranchers he had visited.

He even knew the intriguing-looking gentleman sitting opposite them in the diner, and introduced him to Tomi as a railroad official, the patron saint of that particular train.

Tomi didn't know how the conversation was switched to food to how the line purchased its supplies, but during the conversation she learned, vaguely, that the commissary department was headquartered in San Francisco.

Later, escorted by the official they inspected the train from one end to the other. Tomi marveled at the tiny kitchenette in the buffet car, the equipment of the bar in the club car, and enthused over the kitchen of the diner.

A huge ice compartment held the perishable goods; steaks, roasts, chickens, fish.

"And nary a frog leg," teased Allen.

Tomi looked at him, quickly but he was talking to the official. He left her alone as soon as they returned to the car.

Tomi nestled down in the seat, adjusted the blind, and sat staring on the unbelievable beauty of the scenery; miles of blue water fading to amethyst at the horizon line, and when the road-bed curved, purple hills that dropped straight to a line of white sand.

"And nary a frog leg," repeated Tomi. She sat up. That was her cue. And Allen Bartell had given it to her. Unconsciously he had placed the weapon her black army would use to win the farm from him. Tomi swayed from one end of the train to the other before she finally located the official. From him she obtained the name of the head of the commissary. She sounded him out on the idea of frogs' legs as a delicacy commensurate with the other fine features of the Daylight's service.

"It is an interesting idea," he conceded, "but not in my jurisdiction."

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, March 28.—Word from Nash county indicates that Van Sharp Watson, something of a stormy petrel in the 1933 House without opposition.

In the 1933 legislature Watson, who had been an ardent supporter of Dick Fountain in the 1932 governor's race, was sharply critical of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus. He was for a long time practically at dagger's point with Bill Fenner, veteran Nash legislator, but it is reported that the two at least speak now.

Mrs. Lina Flowers, efficient and attractive Rural Electrification Authority office worker, reports that her private survey of Honey Hill, Bogue township, Columbus county, indicates that Horton and Broughton are in the lead.

Whereupon her boss, Dudley Bagley, cracked: "And as goes Honey Hill so goes the State"; but J. M. Grainger, REA engineer added: "The only reason the vote wasn't split three ways is that there are only two voters there."

Incidentally, Mrs. Flowers is complaining about her private "electric chair." It seems that during the winter while she has been wearing wool dresses she has from time to time been really jolted if she happened to touch the metal back of her up-to-date steel and leather chair. She couldn't make out what was happening, but Engineer Grainger quickly demonstrated that rubbing of the wood dress on the back of the chair charged the metal to a point where it gave off a terrifying electric spark when touched.

Here's how the State Board of Elections kept Republican members of the county boards from being officially invited to the schools for election officials being held all over the state.

The state board simply invited the chairman and the secretary of all county boards to attend. There are no Republican chairmen or secretaries, as every county is composed of two Democrats and one Republican and naturally the one G. O. P. man has no chance to be either chairman or secretary.

There isn't any objection to the Republican members attending the school sessions, however, and the whole thing was done without any opposition from the minority members of the state board.

A belated story has just come to light of how close Sam Morris, prominent Raleigh Republican, came to being a candidate for his party's lieutenant governor nomination.

There had been no talk right up to filing date, of any G. O. P. candidate for the office, so Sam got the necessary papers, filled them in, wrapped seven dollars up in them and hung around waiting to slip in at the last minute and pay his filing fee; but along in the shank of the afternoon Forrest Witten of Salisbury, who had been expected to run for governor, paid up and formally entered the lieutenant governor's race.

Whereupon Morris went back to his office, unwrapped the seven dollars and filed his application in the waste basket.

There are indications that Gideon Boswood, who got in the hat of the Department of Conservation and Development on several occasions during the 1939 Assembly, will come back to the House this year unopposed. Ed Johnson, perennial leader of one of Currutuck's bitter factions, is said to have decided to quit politics.

Greenville Golfers Win Over Wilson And Goldsboro

REYNOLDS MAY PACES LOCALS

Displays Mid-Season Form to Mark Up 74 Score

Greenville golfers, paced by Reynolds May who displayed mid-season form to score a smashing 74, really "hot hot" yesterday afternoon and scored victories over the Wilson and Goldsboro teams.

The locals apparently were out for revenge for the defeat suffered last week at the hands of Rocky Mount and came back strong to trim the league-leading and league champion of last year, Wilson team by the score of 40 to 13 and Goldsboro by the one-sided score of 49 to five.

Some nice scores were made by the locals, with May's 74 being trailed by Local Champion Massey's 77. Anderson of Wilson shared low score honors of the day with May, each getting a 74. Bud Lane, with 78, was second low scorer for the Wilson team. Goldsboro's Poole and Roberts each made an 83 to share honors for their team.

Local golfers participating in the matches and their scores follow: Massey, 77; Allen, 79; Potts, 80; Smart, 81; Campbell, 78; May, 74; Lane, 78; Poole, 83; Roberts, 83; Waldron, 85; Lane, 82; Casey, 81; Moore, 90; M. K. Blount, 91; Barrett, 80; Proctor, 90; and Kilgo, 85.

Bob Bailey, local pro, has announced that he is planning to arrange a series of week-end tournaments in the near future and much interest is expected to be evidenced in the competition.

College Contests Not Played Today

The scheduled baseball game between High Point and East Carolina Teachers College, to have been played today at the local college, was called off, and the Pirates' next contest is not before next week.

The Pirates are scheduled to engage Campbell college here Tuesday afternoon.

In addition to the Tennis-High Point baseball game, a tennis match between the two to have been played here this afternoon also, was postponed.

Local Rookie Has Keen Eating Eye

Gail Kennedy, rookie infielder of Sheppard, Mich., signed by the local baseball club, writes Manager Rube Wilson that he is anxious to get started, especially since this is his first year in professional ball.

The player is 19 years old, six feet, one inch tall and weighs 170 pounds. He is a switch hitter, but throws right handed. Playing in a semi-pro league, he has a batting average of .419 last year. He has played semi-pro ball for the past three years and has made quite a record in his home community.

Kennedy adds that he is an American of Scotch-Irish descent.

New Stadium—AP—The new football stadium at Wake Forest will be ready for use next fall. Work on the structure, which has a seating capacity of 15,015, began in March.

Fans Get A New Baby To Cheer With Young In Giants Infield

By DILLON GRAHAM

Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

Winter Haven, Fla. — Bill Terry, bringing New York baseball fans another Babe to cheer this spring, New Yorkers applauded the prodigious feats of Babe Ruth in Yankee Stadium, Babe Dahlgren, Gehrig's successor, was the lone Babe last year. Come mid-April the fans can stop on the Manhattan side of the Harlem river and yell for Babe Young in the Polo Grounds.

Babe Young is the handsome young slugger Terry is bringing up from the Southern association to replace clumsy Zeke Bonura at first base.

Babe, corralled most of the slugging honors in the Southern a year ago and was voted the association's most valuable player. He was the leading run-driver with 137, top in hits with 223, out front with two-baggers with 50 and in total bases with 362.

Young lost the batting championship by a fraction of a point to Bert Haas, another first sacker who is having a trial with the Brooklyn. He hit 364 and was also among the home run leaders with 21.

Did Well Last Year—Young, 22, was one of the 22 named to the Southern's All-Star team. His biggest day was against the Boston Bees when his pair of homers drove in all the Giants' winning runs.

Young is a better fielder than Zeke but he isn't as steady as Terry would like. The Babe has his lapses. And then no one knows just how well he'll hit big league pitching. But Terry is going to start him and give him every chance.

Babe is a New Yorker, from out in Astoria. He went to Fordham and hit 398, 44 and 407 for three seasons of intercollegiate ball. He wanted to join the Yankees. He spent a day or so working out at Yankee Stadium but he saw enough of Lou Gehrig to figure that a first baseman had no opportunity with the McCarthy forces. So he signed with the Giants.

BABE YOUNG thinks he'll get some cheers

Started At Richmond—His baseball career began in 1937. He hit 322 for Richmond in the Piedmont league. Then came trials with Nashville and New Orleans in the Southern in 1938. But he wasn't quite ready, so he went back to Richmond and hit 352. Then he returned to the Southern, with Knoxville, a year ago and burned up the league.

Young hits left handed, stands 6 foot 3 and weighs 185 pounds. The success of the Giants this year is going to depend largely on Young and the two other rookies Terry is grooming for infield spots, second baseman Mickey Witke from Newark and third sacker Glen Stewart from Jersey City.

Young hasn't any idea of ever being the hitter that New York's other Babe was but he believes he'll do enough slugging to draw cheers from the Polo Grounds fans.

DATE IS FIXED FOR FESTIVAL

Tulip Fete to Be Held in Washington April 18

Washington, N. C., March 28.—Eastern Carolina's most colorful bit of pageantry, Washington's Fourth Annual Tulip Festival, will get under way April 18 with a city-wide street scene reminiscent of similar festivals in the Netherlands celebrating the advent of the flower season.

During the two-day event the entire city of Washington and Beaufort county will enter into the spirit of the occasion, donning Dutch costumes and joining in the merry-making.

An interesting program which has been in preparation for months and includes a water carnival, baby parade, pet parade, a pageant with a cast of more than 200, will be presented. Also featured on the program will be a chorus singing by a group of Dutch colonists who came to Beaufort county some time ago settling in the Terra Ceia section where they devote most of their time to the cultivation of tulips and bulbs for distribution on northern and eastern markets.

TIME IS FOUND TO CALL WIFE

Gravelly Phones "Missus" Each Day Of Campaign

Raleigh, March 28.—In the midst of trials and tribulations incident to conducting a campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, State Senator Lee Gravelly pauses at the end of each day (provided he isn't near enough to get home in person) to tell her what has occurred during the previous 24-hour period.

Nor does Candidate Gravelly have to place what the telephone folks term a "person-to-person" call, because Clark Gravelly will be waiting at the other end of the line in Rocky Mount.

Born at Richmond, Va., 47 years ago, Mrs. Gravelly was Mary Clark Ho-nagle before her marriage. Her grandfather, the late Colonel Carrington, was mayor of Richmond 30 many years. She attended the Southern Seminary in Virginia and was living in Ashland, Va., when she and Lee Gravelly were married on August 2, 1916. He was a student at Randolph Macon College at the time. The couple moved to his home in Rocky Mount.

While ill health has prevented her participation in many activities in recent years, Mrs. Gravelly remains a member of various clubs and other organizations in Rocky Mount where she was formerly very active. When the Western Carolina Sanatorium was established at Black Mountain a wing was named for Mrs. Gravelly.

The Gravellys have two children, a daughter and a son. The daughter, Lulu Carrington Gravelly, is 21. She is a graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and is this year's Queen of the Rocky Mount Gallopade, the big spring festival held annually in the Nash-Edgecombe capital. The son, Lee Gravelly, Jr., is a freshman at the University of North Carolina. He is Southern Conference freshman wrestling champion in the 165-pound class.

COACH BUNN HEARN

Ninth Season—Coach Bunn Hearn, who is embarking upon his ninth consecutive season as head baseball coach at the University of North Carolina, faces an ambitious four-game schedule next week.

The Tar Heels will be pitted against Harvard Monday, Cornell Tuesday, Michigan Friday, at Washington and Lee Saturday. All of these games will be played at Chapel Hill on Cameron Field.

Coach Hearn was a celebrated pitcher before going into the coaching field. He established a world's record in 1931 by pitching 20 scoreless innings for Toronto of the International League against Jersey City. He allowed no hits for the first nine innings and was touched for only seven during the remaining 11 stanzas. Thompson and Brandon were the opposing hurlers. Darkness halted the game.

Coach Hearn later played with the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals, Boston Braves and several Piedmont League clubs. He was a member of the all-star team selected from the Giants and White Sox that made a world tour in 1914. Carolina's best team under Coach Hearn was the brilliant 1933 outfit which won 20 of 21 games and with it the State and Conference championships.

Coach Hearn has sent to the major leagues an impressive list of players during the eight years he has been head coach at Carolina. Among the better known players are Burgess Whitehead, New York

Giants; Lew Riggs, Cincinnati Reds; Nate Andrews, St. Louis Cardinals; Johnny Humphries, Cleveland Indians; and Johnny Peacock, Boston Red Sox.

Baseball Stockholders To Meet Friday Night

Directors to Be Named to Operate Club This Year

A meeting of stockholders in the Greenville baseball club has been called for 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the court room of the new city hall.

Approximately 85 local individuals have subscribed stock in the new corporation. To date some $1,600 has been raised through the sale of stock. The original pool was set at $3,000, subscribed in $10-a-share stock.

Spokesmen declared that every person who has purchased stock in the club is urged to be present and each was being advised personally by telephone.

It is the idea to make the club a community project, with as many persons interested as possible.

After directors are chosen a president and other officials will be named and they will immediately begin making plans for the operation of the club this year, training for which is scheduled to start next Thursday. Some of the other clubs in the loop already have started training. The season opens on April 25th.

THE BATTLE OF THE CENSUS:

It'll Cost The Jobs Of 6 Congressmen

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer

Washington.—Political heads will roll in the 1940 battle of the census. How many heads is problematical. It depends on: How fast southern mothers produced children during the last 10 years. How many Joad families swapped misery in Oklahoma for misery in California. How many southern lads and lassies chose the old homestead for their part in the storm of the depression, instead of the big cities in the north. Moreover, congressmen must decide what to do about the decennial man-under-the-bed—reapportionment!

If you take (1) the latest mathematical doodles of the Census Bureau, put 'em on a slide rule, and (2) assume the automatic reapportionment law of 1929 will survive the battle of the census, then you find at the end of your trail a glibbet for six congressmen.

At least six legislators from the northeastern and midwestern states will lose their $16,000-a-year jobs. And six congressmen from the South and Far West will grow where no congressman has sprouted since 1930.

That means a gain of at least 12 votes in the House of Representatives for the South and Far West by 1942. They'll pick up six actual votes, and benefit also by the death of six northern votes.

You can find plenty of statisticians who figure the northeastern states may lose more seats than that. Some say 10 or even 12 seats, instead of six. But the mathematical wizards who figure out reapportionment for me took the conservative side of the street.

Always A Struggle

The decennial battle of the census is as old as the nation. As regular as death and taxes, one of these struggles has rolled around every 10 years for 150 years running. Most of the fights have been settled behind the locked doors of congressional committee rooms, without the public shedding of political blood.

But the two! Whew! and right out in the open, where anybody could get a ringside seat.

Roughly speaking, these battles were miniature Civil wars—the South vs. the North. The men from down under defied the Constitution and the Founding Fathers in 1929. They blocked any reapportionment at all, and thereby saved themselves from losing seats to the growing North.

In 1929, the struggle was even harder, and dirtier. The South tried to bar aliens from the reapportionment count given to Congress by the census bureau. The East has several million aliens. The North retaliated by trying to bar negroes. Both amendments to the reapportionment law passed. It took three days of sizzling conferences to kill both.

Today, the same old struggle is brewing, only the shoe's on the other foot most of the time. The South's depression-damaged emigrants, and high birthrate, and the West's migrations, should give the southerners and westerners six more seats—if everything goes according to Boyle.

Enter Senator Tobey

But that's where Senator Charles William Tobey's sidestep on the income questions comes in. For if enough citizens respond to the Senator's excitement—and excitement over one's private affairs is a pretty contagious kind—then the regular census might conceivably suffer from errors and slammed doors.

Some congressman might take the same view as Congressman Daniel Reed of upstate New York, when he says:

"The census bureau has had the respect and confidence of the people of this country for 150 years. . . . However, just as sure as no action is taken by Congress to stop this snooping program into income, outside the census law, it is going to end in such a way that the value of this regular census is going to be destroyed!"

The Congressman from New York did not go into details. But suppose the representatives who hail from all the sections liable to lose members in the 1940 census should take the same stand. There are 274 of those fellows, enough to block a new reapportionment law, the same way the South blocked it in 1929.

Another Detail

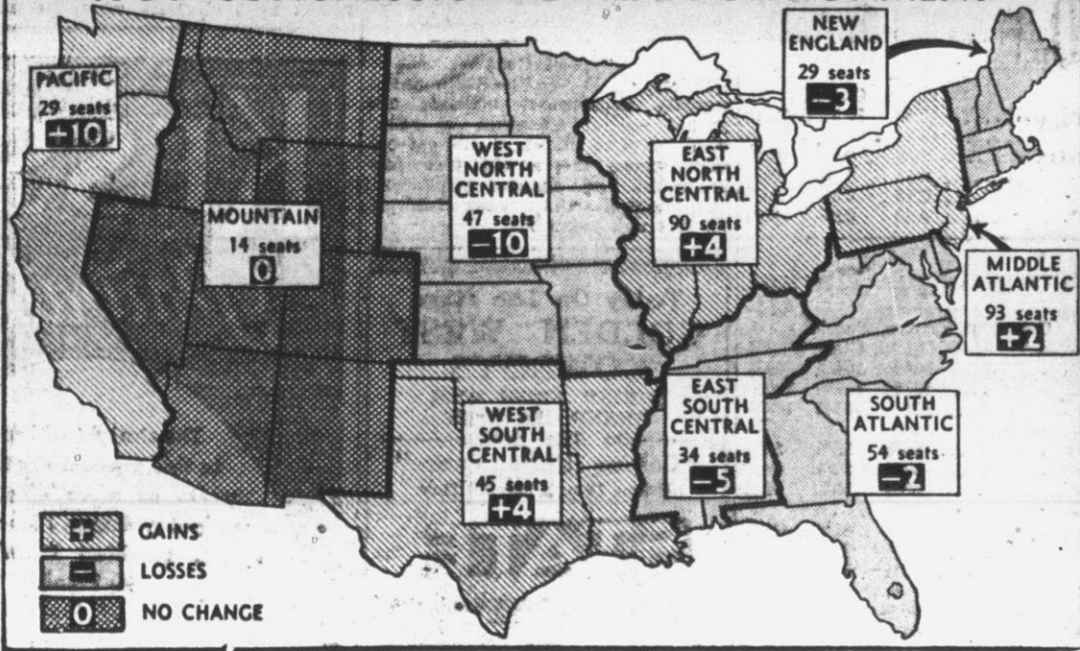

Then there's that "lame duck" technicality. By a fluke, the lame duck amendment makes the President report the census to the wrong Congress.

Under the 1929 law, the President is directed to report the 1940 census to the second regular session of the 76th Congress. That's the Congress now holding forth on Capitol Hill. But the census will hardly be begun before that session is history.

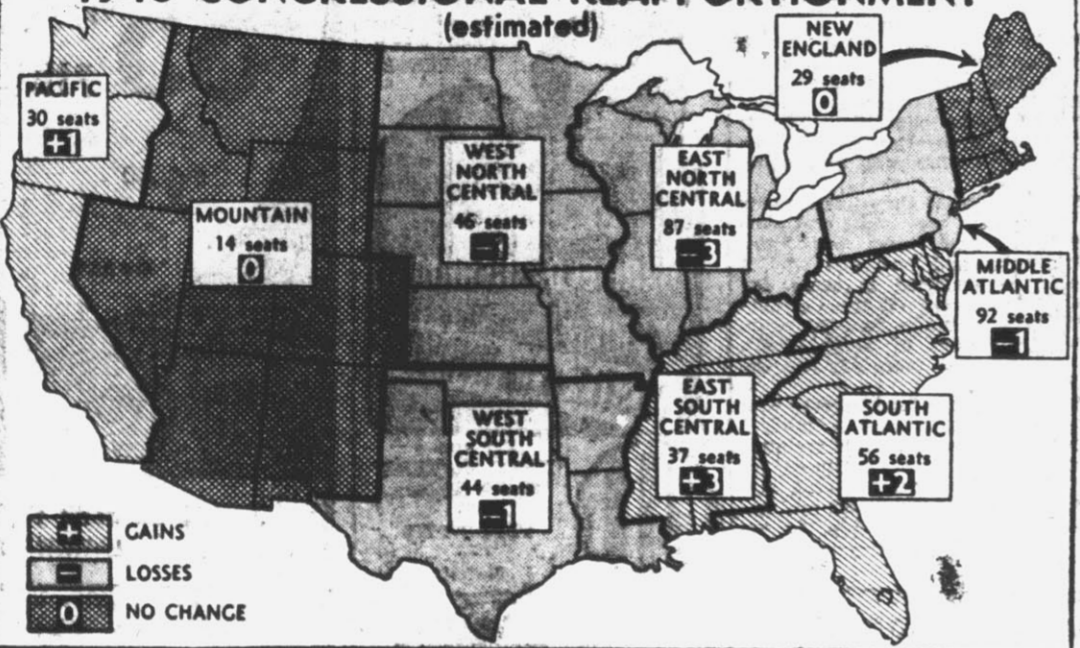

The census will be ready for the first session of the 77th Congress, however, and the President doubtless will report to that Congress. But a technically-minded house with a mind to blocking reapportionment possibly could tell the House clerk to ignore the President's report because he made it to the wrong Congress, i. e., contrary to law. And since the House clerk is the man who tells the states how many representatives they are entitled to under the census, that trick could block automatic reapportionment based on the 1940 census.

Senator Vandenberg and President Roosevelt and the House census committee are trying to keep this technicality from meddying the reapportionment waters through an amendment to the 1929 law. But that movement isn't so all-fired popular with lots of members of the House of Representatives. So some of them tacked that old bar-to-gent's amendment onto the Sen-

1930 CONGRESSIONAL REAPPORTIONMENT

1940 CONGRESSIONAL REAPPORTIONMENT (estimated)

WILL THE PENDULUM SWING BACK? These maps show how the Congressional representation changed after the 1930 census, and how it may change after this year's. Figures on the forthcoming reapportionment are based on the 1929 law and an estimate of what the 1940 census will show. Note that some sections that lost ten years ago will probably gain this time.

ator's amendment. Moreover, many a member of the House resents that 1929 reapportionment law. It came from the Senate, remember. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, to be exact, and they don't like the Senate keeping the House's house in order. Not a bit of it. Besides, that law would freeze the House of Representatives at 435 members.

Your Worry, Too But, goodness knows, if House members try to put any more seats in their crowded chamber they're going to run into trouble. Doubtless some of the new congressmen would find themselves out in the capital corridors, competing against historical art for the tourist trade. No. That's not practical either, so the whole thing adds up to the census battle of the century either on the floor, or behind closed doors, or both.

You and I could say pish and tush, and forget it if it weren't for the fact that your representation in Congress is at stake. More Trouble Complicating the 1940 battle of the census is the Reapportionment law of 1929, which fixes the membership of the House of Representatives at 435 members. Proceeding by a method known as the "method of major fractions," the 1929 law allows each state its share of 435 representatives for each 280,000 persons or major fraction thereof. If the same law is on the books when the 1940 census is reported, the average number of constituents of each Representative will increase to about 300,000. That's because the population is still going up, but not the size of the House. Each state can district itself as it pleases—a fact that gives rise to "rotten borough" troubles in several states.

COUNTY AIDES ARE SELECTED Candidates Continue to Appoint Local Managers

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, March 28.—Press departments of the three candidates for governor who seem to be actively pushing organizational work with a vengeance, continue to grind out releases announcing county managers, while the candidates themselves speak or hold conferences in various sections of the state.

Withal, the same dark cloud of deep purple apathy continues to wrap up the great mass of voters everywhere, according to all reports reaching this Bureau. Nowhere does anybody seem to be getting mad at anybody, and when there is a lack of animosity in a political campaign there is always, on the surface at least, a corresponding lack of enthusiasm manifested.

Nevertheless the rival headquarters are toiling valiantly and in course of time they may be able to stir up something. Tom Cooper is reported to be on the very eve of launching his statewide sound-truck argus in search of the gubernatorial Golden Fleece; but there is so far no real indication that even the colorful Wilmington mayor is preparing to pull enough rough stuff to get under the hide of his rivals. There are those who feel that Tom is making a big mistake by not opening fire with all barrels in every direction, but if he plans to do so he has kept it quite carefully concealed.

Paul Grady, from whom also much color was expected, continues to carry on a rather mystifying sort of campaign. With no headquarters here, and no apparently well-ordered press plans, he isn't making the headlines with enough frequency to stir his followers to enthusiasm and harder efforts. Lee Gravely, too, isn't causing much of a hubbub in the public prints nor in such conversation as comes to your reporter's rabbit ears. His headquarters here report that State Manager Crayon C. Efrid has done a big stint of organizational spadework and will soon begin a barrage of announcements about

Increase Is Reported In Nation's Exports

Exports from the United States to South America amounted to approximately $329,000,000 in the calendar year 1939, or an increase of nearly ten per cent over the preceding year. This is the largest figure for many years and helps to offset the decline in exports to Europe resulting from the war. "This increase in exports to South America is of great importance to the American farmer," states the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau. "Europe has had to shift its purchases here from agricultural products to military supplies. South America, on the other hand, is not only buying more agricultural products from the United States, but Broughton and Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton—continue to create about all the noise that is being made.

Emercy Denny, Broughton state manager today announced appointment of Allston Stubbs, secretary and treasurer of the North Carolina Bar Association, as Durham county manager. "This followed announcement of other managers, as follows: W. Carl Muehman for Lee county; W. B. Hunt, Lexington, and Harry Lee Lambert, Thomasville, as co-managers for Davidson; and John Verne Maxwell, Burlington, for Alamance. Maxwell's Cumberland setup was revamped with appointment of a committee to work under County Manager O. C. McFadyen, the group including Recorder's Court Judge Walter S. McTae, S. W. Tillinghast, Fayetteville's fire chief, J. D. Crockett, former alderman; and Donald McQueen, Fayetteville's mayor pro-tem.

Maxwell headquarters also announced two mayors from western cities as county managers—J. Frank Ray of Franklin for Macon county, and E. B. Whitaker of Bryson City for Swain. Horton headquarters gave your reporter no announcements of managers.

In its observation of a special Christian Endeavor week, the Farmville colored school is presenting a program of advancement in the field of public education, that is highly lauded by the best element of the entire community, both white and colored. The purpose of these meetings is to teach, in a very plain and simple way, just what constitutes Christianity and how and why it should be practiced in every day living. No reference to creed or doctrine is being made. Just the plain, simple teachings of Jesus Christ, as it pertains to every day life, are being held up. This program is a step forward in this direction and is receiving the hearty support of the entire community. Thursday night will be Law and Order night and will be sponsored by the Boy Scout Troop.

Where Knowledge Is Costly Pueblo, Colo.-(AP)-It's six dollars extra if you "know the judge" in Justice S. A. Bates' court. A speeder, arrested by Staet Patrolman Earl Ormsbee, made a grandiloquent gesture. "Okay, give me a ticket," said he. "I know the judge."

Those were costly words, for Justice Bates made no sign of recognition next morning when he assessed a $9 fine, $6 more than a first offender pays when he admits he was moving too rapidly. CLOSED OUT Sapulpa, Okla. (AP)-A few telephones at City Hall went dead but the city got its man alive. One of two shots fired at an escaped prisoner snapped a phone cable. He was caught later that day.
