BOARD RULING IS UPHELD BY U. S. TRIBUNAL

Review Of Reinstatement Order Declined By Court

REPUBLIC STEEL LOSER IN CASE

Supreme Court, In Another Decision, Agrees To Review Contempt Conviction of Harry Bridges

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to review a National Labor board order directing the Republic Steel Corporation to reinstate 5,000 or more Ohio employees who participated in the 1937 "little steel" strike.

This left in effect a decision by the federal circuit court at Philadelphia sustaining the reinstatement order, except for 40 employees.

The cost of the order to the Republic Steel Corporation, the Labor board said, must await future determination.

A petition for a review of the circuit court ruling asked by a group of unions of the corporation employees known as the "Central Council of Steel Plants" also was denied by the Supreme Court.

Saturday Big Day For ABC Officers

Pitt County ABC officers had an unusually busy week-end, locating and destroying one 50-gallon capacity still, arresting two Negroes on charges of transporting and another Negro on a charge of possessing bootleg liquor for sale.

Will Lathan, Greenville Negro, already under indictment in Superior court for selling ABC liquor, and William Ebrum, Carolina township Negro, were arrested by officers near Stanton's mill Saturday morning on charges of transporting when a gallon and a pint of the contraband were found in the automobile being driven by Lathan.

Saturday night the ABC officers arrested Offie Hunter, Negro, in Bevoir township on illegal possession for the purpose of sale. The officers reported the Negro threw one pint in the fireplace when they started to enter his house and that they found part of another pint of bootleg liquor on his person.

The officers located a still about a mile and a half from Stakestown on Saturday afternoon. The Swift Creek distillery was destroyed by dynamite. It was said to have been a new outfit, having been run only a few times. It had been operated only a short time before officers located it and the fire was still smoking.

The officers found a 50-gallon doubler, a 10-gallon keg, a 300-gallon beer box and 20 gallons of spent beer. No one was at the still when they reached it and the freshly-made whiskey had been moved.

Norway Accuses Allies With Breach of Law By Laying Mines Off Coast

Government, Shocked By Placing of Mines In Norwegian Territorial Waters, Charges Open Violation of International Law And Demands That Allies Remove Them At Once

Oslo, April 8.—(AP)—Norway, shocked by the laying of allied mines in Norwegian territorial waters, at dawn today immediately charged Great Britain and France with an "open breach of international law" and demanded that the mines "be removed at once."

As soon as it became known that the allies had violated Norwegian "sovereignty and neutrality" by laying the mines and patrolling the affected regions with warships.

Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht, in a public statement, charged that the allies had violated Norwegian "sovereignty and neutrality" by laying the mines and patrolling the affected regions with warships.

"The Norwegian government," he said, "protests gravely and solemnly against this open breach of international law. The Norwegian government must demand that such mines be removed at once and that the guard by foreign warships cease."

Koht charged Britain with violating an agreement of last March 11, which, he said, provides that all Norwegian goods, including contraband, could be sent from Norway to Germany.

The cut was suggested in President Roosevelt's annual budget, but Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) told his colleagues that the chief executive had failed to name the agencies involved.

Byrd's resolution asking such information developed in a brief clash between him and Democratic Leader Barkley who objected to a statement in the legislation that "repeated requests to have the directors of the budget identify or enumerate" the agencies "have been denied."

Barkley said the resolution "carries the implication that the budget director has refused to give the information to the House or the Senate."

"It is a truthful implication," Byrd snapped back. "He has refused to give it to the senator from Virginia except in confidence and I did not want it that way."

Byrd refused Barkley's request that the resolution be amended to delete the reference to past requests for information and the chamber then approved the proposal without dissent.

DEWEY TO VIE WITH FRD FOR VOTES IN WEST

Strength Of Each To Be Tested In Illinois Vote

MUCH INTEREST IN KEY STATE

New York Prosecutor Also To Match His Strength With Vandenberg in Nebraska Vote Tomorrow

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—The 1940 presidential try-outs feature Thomas E. Dewey tomorrow in the double role of seeking a new farm belt victory over Senator Arthur Vandenberg and measuring vote-getting powers in the mid-West with President Roosevelt.

The New York prosecutor meets Vandenberg, whom he trounced last week to win Wisconsin's 24 delegates to the Republican National Convention, in Nebraska's preferential primary.

Convention delegates are not directly at stake, but another Dewey triumph over the Michigan senator would threaten to make a "stop Dewey" contest the dominant factor in the republican's race.

President Roosevelt is unopposed in the democratic preferential ballot in Nebraska, but his vote tally in relation to the republican turnout will be watched for hints of political trends.

A more direct test of Roosevelt-Dewey popularity occurs in Illinois, where the president is opposed by Vice President Garner in the preferential primary. Dewey supporters, lacking an opponent, are endeavoring to pile up a vote adequate to support claims of a Republican trend in this key state.

ILLINOIS MAN ASSUMES POST

Lieut. Governor Stelle Sets Self Up As Governor

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—(AP)—Lieutenant Governor John Stelle proclaimed himself acting governor of Illinois today in a dramatic last-day primary campaign move and was met with a warning from Attorney General John Cassidy that his proclamation was "absolutely null and void."

Shortly after Lieutenant Governor Stelle, "insurgent" candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, issued a call for a special session of the legislature on April 30, Attorney General Cassidy advised administration officials the move was "not supported by the constitution."

One of Stelle's first moves as "acting governor" was to prepare a letter which he said removed from office Finance Director, Samuel Nudelman, one of Governor Horner's closest advisors, on charges of incompetence and malfeasance in office.

German Sources Report British Plot Uncovered

Allies Accused Of Trying To Extend War Arena

Berlin, April 8.—(AP)—Authorized German sources today revealed to foreign correspondents details of what they described as a gigantic British plot to make the Danube impassable and to carry the war into the Danubian basin, that is, Southeastern Europe.

The plotters, these sources said, planned to send a half dozen barges loaded with dynamite up the river, blast the channel and blow up bridges.

More than 100 British army, navy and air force men who were to have participated in the coup were arrested by Rumania police before they had time to carry out their design, the Germans said. The barge fleet was reported to have been seized directly South of Bucharest.

The chief plotter was described by the Nazis as an English vice-consul at Bucharest, who, they said, actually was the chief of the British secret service in Rumania.

ART FESTIVAL HUGE SUCCESS

Sixth Annual Affair Concluded Sunday Night

The sixth annual Community Art Festival, which was held in Greenville for the past six days, staged and sponsored by the Woman's club, headed by its president, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, and presented with the assistance of all local organizations and enterprises, was brought to a triumphant close Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, with a splendid program given at the high school auditorium and sponsored by the local ministerial association.

At this time the large crowd in attendance was entertained by a solo number, "Come Ye Blessed," which was sung by James Dees, who has an excellent voice. Mr. Dees was accompanied at the piano by Miss Eva Hodges.

Lewis Sidney Bullock, conductor, presented his Eastern Carolina Symphonic singers in a delightful concert of sacred selections. A religious drama, "And He Came to His Father," which was presented under the able direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose, concluded the program. The drama was marked throughout by fine interpretation and very good acting. The cast of characters was composed of the following local people: Misses Ruby Grant and Elizabeth Wilson, Messrs. Richard Walser, Edward Conway, George Tyndall and Louis Skinner.

Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, an enjoyable program, which was sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club, was presented at the Woman's club. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, welcomed the overflow audience and presented Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, president of the sponsoring group of women. Mrs. Ragsdale, in turn, introduced the program chairman of her group, Mrs. J. D. Simpson. Mrs. Simpson presented Miss Hilda Oeburn, director of the Greenville Federal Art Gallery, and Miss Oeburn very pleasingly introduced the outstanding Negro artist of our state, Rex Goreleigh of Greensboro, who addressed the audience briefly, before the presentation of the musical part of the program.

Rex Goreleigh, who has made for himself something of an imposing record, traced, with a sure hand, the progress of his race in art and (Continued on Page Six)

Norwegian Fishermen Report Germans Started Jumping Into Sea After Torpedoes Loosed At Nazi Vessel Which Failed To Heed Warning; Many Bodies Washed Ashore In Southern Norway

Arendal, Norway, April 8.—(AP)—At least 150 Germans and 80 horses were lost today when a British submarine fired two torpedoes into the German steamer Rio de Janeiro, four miles off the Norwegian coast.

Norwegian fishermen reported there were more than 300 Germans aboard the vessel, which they said failed to halt when ordered by the submarine to leave.

The submarine then fired two torpedoes. Fishermen said the Germans started jumping overboard into the icy waters of the Skagerrak.

Many of the Germans drowned and their bodies were washed ashore at Lillesand, on the Southern tip of Norway.

After the first torpedo had fired nearby Norwegian fishing boats started to pick up survivors from the water. Then the second torpedo was sent into the ship, killing numerous Germans who were struggling in the sea.

Norwegian authorities were unable to explain why the 5,261-ton freighter was cruising within sight of the Norwegian coast carrying 300 men and 80 horses.

A steady stream of fishing craft brought survivors and bodies to Lillesand, where the injured were given hospital treatment.

Oslo, April 8.—(AP)—A Norwegian schooner reached Norway today with between 40 and 50 German and British seamen aboard and half a dozen bodies on deck, following a battle in the North sea in which a British vessel and a German and a German submarine were sunk.

According to the crew of the schooner, two German submarines attacked the British vessel which was armed. The schooner herself was so close (Continued on Page Six)

Evans-Yelverton. Goldsboro, April 8.—Miss Sara Hall Yelverton of Goldsboro and Plato Garris Evans of Greenville were married in a beautiful ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Goldsboro at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, April 8. The bride's pastor, the Rev. J. Smith, pastor of the church, officiated.

The church was decorated beautifully with white flowers and evergreens. Before a background of long-leaf pine and fern were tall floor baskets of Easter lilies and white gladioli. White cathedral candles burned in graduated candelabra. The chancel and choir rail were outlined with Southern smilax, and the chancel was banked with Easter lilies and gladioli and candles in candelabra.

Mrs. Georgia Lee Bynum, Miss Barbara Cuthrell and Mrs. T. A. Early gave a program of wedding music preceding the ceremony. At the notes of the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin", the ushers, David Evans and G. T. Evans, Jr., of Greenville, brothers of the bride-groom, Lawrence Moyer, of Maury, and Robert Yelverton of Goldsboro, brother of the bride, entered the church by the right and left aisles, and took their places.

The maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Grant of Mebane entered alone.

The bride entered the church with her father, Paul Yelverton, who gave her in marriage. She wore a wedding dress of white satin, a Schaupp model of Calle de Luxe satin fashioned with V neckline, long sleeves, puffed at the top, and fitted to form a point over the hand, fitted basque with bias bands outlining the hips, full circular skirt shirred on at the hip line, and very long circular train. Her wedding veil of illusion fell from a fitted cap trimmed with a halo of orange blossoms, and extended beyond the train of her dress. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, L. B. Garris of Greenville. During the ceremony Miss Cuthrell played softly "Liebestraum", accompanied by Mrs. Bynum. At the close of the ceremony Mrs. Early sang as a benediction one verse of "O Perfect Love". Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played as a recessional.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yelverton, parents of the bride, entertained at a reception at their home. Guests were the members of the wedding party, members of the immediate families, out-of-town guests here for the wedding, and young friends of the bride and bridegroom.

In the receiving line were: The bride and bridegroom; Mrs. Paul Yelverton, mother of the bride, Mrs. G. T. Evans of Greenville, mother of the bridegroom, and Miss Elizabeth Grant.

Following the reception the bride and bridegroom left for an automobile trip to New York City and other Northern points. For traveling the bride wore an ensemble of navy blue, navy blue shoes and bag, gold straw hat, and gold gloves, and a corsage from her wedding bouquet.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yelverton of Goldsboro. She attended Salem College and is a graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She has been much entertained since the announcement of her engagement.

Mr. Evans is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Evans of Greenville. He was educated at State College, Raleigh, and was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is associated with the Garris-Evans Lumber Co. at Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans will be at home after their trip, at 1501 Dickinson Avenue, Greenville.

Vesper Services. The North Carolina State College Deputation team gave a very inspirational program on economic, social, and international problems today at the College Y. W. C. A. Vesper service on Sunday evening.

Miss Lucy Ann Barrow, a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, introduced G. J. Howell, president of the State College Y. W. C. A., who in turn introduced the other members of the team.

Jacob Tinga, who spoke on "The Christian and the International Situation", began by giving a story illustrating the situation in world affairs today. The nations who have the opportunity to reach the raw materials first do not give the small backward nations an opportunity to get their share of the material. The question before Christians today is summed up in the words of Dr. N. Z. Koo, "Does your nation or God come first?"

Kenneth Wommack began his talk by saying that it is necessary for a Christian today to be concerned about the affairs of the present world. He gave an example of a small religious group that tried to better conditions among their own group without making it a worldwide affair. He said there are countries of people today who have failed to let Christ enter into their lives, with the result being an economic chaos. It is necessary for all Christians to come to God's service and help remedy this condition.

Beginning with "Give us this day our daily bread" Edward Bryant said that capitalism does not give the masses of people opportunity for work—gives material sense of value, makes a goal of all things materialistic. The Christian must ally himself with some group that is living up to this ideal and work with it, being concerned about world society, rather than being himself as an individual.

Hubert Willis gave an interesting discussion of the race problem in the South today. He told of the difficulties the Negro has when he tries to make his place in the world. In contrast to this, he gave examples of some of the worthwhile contributions the Negro has made to the United States. O. J. Howell made the place of the Christian in the world today even more definite, by saying that it must be an individual issue. One may shape his life by coming in close contact with outstanding religious personalities, by coming to God in time of crisis, and by having an inward desire to become a truly Christian person. Christian students today may come to know God through prayer and worship.

Bishop Dedicates Church In County

The Grimesland Methodist church was dedicated with an impressive ceremony conducted by Bishop W. W. Peele, resident Bishop of the North Carolina Conference, Sunday evening at eight o'clock.

Rev. J. A. Russell, District Superintendent of the New Bern District, assisted in the ceremony and introduced Bishop Peele to the large congregation.

After the sermon, the trustees presented the church to the bishop, who uttered the formal words of dedication and led the congregation in the dedication ritual.

The first building erected on the site was known as Jones' chapel in honor of the donor of the building lot. It was a rough, board structure with a fireplace in one end and a pulpit in the other, and served the twofold purpose of a church and a free school.

The old building served the needs time, Joe J. Tucker gave the sum of $500 for the construction of a new building. This new building continued to be the meeting place of the Methodist people of Grimesland until 1928.

In this year during the ministry of Rev. J. F. Starnes the movement was started to build the present structure. The work on the building was completed the following year under the ministry of Rev. W. B. Humble.

The pastors who have served the church since 1929 are: Rev. W. B. Humble, 1930; Rev. I. J. Strawberry, 1931-34; Rev. F. E. Dixon, 1935; Rev. P. R. Davis, 1936.

Mrs. J. J. Lewis, the widow of Rev. J. J. Lewis who served this church in 1923 lives here and is an active member of the Grimesland church.

Rev. W. A. Crow is the present pastor.

Like most college bands, the orchestra grew in popularity through frequent dance engagement at various colleges throughout the South.

In addition to his sweet music—Dean Hudson carries a versatile show.

Bertrand Russell Fights For Job — And Sex Marks The Battleground

AP Feature Service
 Denied a post in the City College of New York on the grounds that he "has taught in his books immoral and salacious doctrines," Bertrand Russell, the famous British philosopher, has started a court fight for vindication.

Although his popular reputation rests on his supposed advocacy of advanced sexual theories, C. C. N. Y. faculty members say less than one per cent of the lines in Russell's books deal with sex. They say he has considered sexual matters only in so far as they are part of the general problem of human conduct, and has spent most of his time exploring abstruse subjects.

Russell has written many books and articles dealing with logic, higher mathematics, languages, the philosophy of religion, of psychology, of mathematics, of education, of history, of the state. At present, he is working on a book on art and language. At least one of his works, "Principia Mathematica," written in collaboration with Alfred N. Whitehead of Harvard, is considered one of the world's great books.

Despite his interest in abstract philosophy he has a down-to-earth program for human behavior. "In human beings," he says, "three things seem to me particularly desirable. They are: Scientific method, friendly feelings, and an interest in life and the world." He does not regard moral codes as infallible or faultless and believes it is the business of philosophy to strive to improve them. He was born on May 18, 1872, of noble English stock. Although a member of the British peerage, as Earl Russell of Kingston Russell and Viscount Amberley, the philosopher prefers to be known as plain Bertrand Russell.

WHAT HE PREACHES —

"NATIONALISM is undoubtedly the most dangerous vice of our time, far more dangerous than drunkenness or drugs, or any of the other vices against which a conventional moral education is directed."

"WITH THE ECONOMIC independence of women, marriage as it has existed since men took to agriculture is likely to end."—"I shall not teach that faithfulness to our partner in life is in any way desirable, or that a permanent marriage should exclude temporary episodes."—"Americans should indulge in marital infidelity to preserve their homes."

"THE ARGUMENTS in favor of a great degree of freedom in education are derived not from man's natural goodness but from the effects of authority, both on those who suffer it and those who exercise it. Those who are subject to authority become either submissive or rebellious, and each attitude has its drawbacks. What is wanted is neither submissiveness nor rebellion, but good nature and general friendliness both to people and to new ideas."

"ABLE YOUNG post-graduates in America seldom have the breadth of culture or the sheer extent of education that is to be found in the same class in Europe, but they have a love of knowledge, an enthusiasm for research and a freshness for intellectual initiative which in Europe has usually given place to a bored and cynical correctness."

WHAT HE PRACTICES —

RUSSELL was sentenced in 1918 to six months in a London jail for a crack that the American army "will no doubt be capable of intimidating strikers, an occupation to which the American army is accustomed at home."

DIVORCED from his first wife in 1921 after he had been charged with adultery, Russell remarried. He and his second wife were divorced in 1935—he was again charged with adultery. In 1936, at the age of 64, Russell married his secretary. At present, the Russells' family consists of Bertrand, the youthful Mrs. Russell, two children by his second wife, one child by the third.

CARRYING OUT some of his educational ideas, Russell established an unusual school in Hampshire, England. There the youngsters came and went as they pleased, attended classes when the spirit moved them, did and said whatever they chose, ran around nude in warm weather. The school didn't make money, however, and conservative parents avoided it.

IN 1938, Russell came to America to lecture at the University of Chicago. Later he switched to the University of California at Los Angeles, where he teaches mathematics and philosophy. Next, he is scheduled to lecture at Harvard. He was supposed to begin a two-year stay at C. C. N. Y. in January, 1941, teaching logic and the philosophy of mathematics and of science. A court, however, voided his appointment.

Question In Mathematics Is Posed By Candidates

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, April 8. — Less than 7 weeks before the first primary voting on May 25, four gubernatorial headquarters here in Raleigh have posed a big question in mathematics to your Raleigh reporter.

Here it is: How are four candidates going to get into a second primary which by law is limited to the two high men?

Yet there are going to be four in that second primary, your reporter has the word of four ordinarily truthful men (three state managers and a candidate himself) for this unusual bit of squeezing.

And the only reason the matter is further complicated by making it six instead of four is that two of the candidates haven't headquarters here and your reporter was unable to get in touch with any authorized spokesman for them. If such could have been found there's no doubt that they, too, would have laid claim to progress assuring them of getting into the runoff.

Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton himself, and the State managers for J. M. Broughton, A. J. Maxwell and Lee Gravelly gave your reporter statements, each and every one of which fairly reeked with optimism.

Here they are:
 Lt. Gov. Horton: With the primary just seven weeks ahead and with the upswing in sentiment in support of my candidacy increasing with such rapidity, I am thoroughly convinced that I am definitely in first place in strength among the voters of North Carolina and that on May 25 I will be even farther in front, in the No. 1 position, in the matter of votes.

"This statement is based upon an analysis of reports received from every part of North Carolina and reflects the mature opinion of members of my State Headquarters staff county managers and other friends throughout the State, together with my own honest belief.

The gains in popular support accorded my candidacy in the past three weeks, particularly, have been tremendous. In all sincerity I am confident that I will be the next governor of North Carolina, and I am keenly appreciative of the support which makes me so confident of this development."

Burgin Pennell, State Manager for A. J. Maxwell: "There is a very definite trend toward Maxwell which is becoming more and more evident every day. We have felt all along that the appeal of Mr. Maxwell's program coupled with thorough county organization would put and keep up ahead of the field. Our organization is clicking, and the candidate is getting about over the state. We are particularly gratified at the way business men are rallying to him.

"Extravagant claims don't count in the ballot box. We do not claim to have the battle won. We do know that Mr. Maxwell is gaining ground more rapidly than any other candidate, and both headquarters staff and field workers are putting plenty of pep into the campaign."
 Crayon C. Efrid, State Manager for Lee Gravelly: "My recent visit into the Piedmont and Western North Carolina convinces me that our efforts to sell Lee Gravelly and his business administration idea to the State are meeting with success on all fronts.

"During the week Senator Gravelly was greatly encouraged by reports concerning his campaign in the eastern part of the state.

"Our organization is progressing satisfactorily throughout the state. Lee Gravelly fundamentally is not a politician, but his program is meeting with immense success wherever people learn of his plans for North Carolina in the event of his election.
 "I am pleased to report that there is no pessimism in the Gravelly camp."

E. B. Denny, State Manager for J. M. Broughton: "We are pleased with the progress our organization is making throughout the state, and reports are continually reaching us from every part of the state that Mr Broughton's strength is taking definite form and growing daily.

"It appears that the people of North Carolina are not only definitely impressed with ability, character and qualifications of Mr. Broughton, but it appears to be their opinion that he is definitely leading the entire field in his race for the Governorship."

Your reporter did not intentionally ignore the other two candidates regarded as really being in the race; but neither Tom Cooper nor Paul Grady had headquarters here and neither candidate could be reached for a statement about the progress of his campaign.

Strength For The Day By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE FATE OF LIARS

Some one has said that one lie must be thatched with another or else it will soon rain through. And a literary man of a century or two ago said, "He who tells a lie is not sensible how great a task he undertakes, for he must be forced to invent twenty more to maintain one."

It is easy enough to tell a lie, but mighty hard to tell only one. Every time a person lies, he throws a set of circumstances into disequilibrium, and every sort of subterfuge must be resorted to if he would keep the unstable mass from falling into ruins about him.

The nemesis of a liar is twofold. First he must keep himself in a constant state of fear and turmoil by buttressing each new lie with an alibi, and then he must submit to that deterioration of mind which leads him at last to believe the things he tells.

The hell to which a man lies finally lead him is that he gets to the place where he believes what he says and is plagued with shameful consciousness that he is the only person in the world who does.

SAFETY PRACTICE IS NEVER-ENDING JOB

The list of cities of 5,000 to 10,000 population who did not have a traffic fatality during 1939 included four North Carolina cities, Tarboro, Canton, Asheville, and Mount Airy. In the case of Tarboro congratulations are certainly in order since this is the second successive year that it has received a certificate of award for no fatal traffic accidents.

Accidents do not just happen, they are the result of someone's negligence or willful recklessness, and when a town or community becomes safety-minded and talks and practices safety and caution, accidents are cut to a minimum. There can be no rest periods if North Carolina is to continue to decrease its traffic fatalities. We must practice safety day in and day out throughout the year if we are to accomplish the desired results.

Washington Daybook By Jack Stinnett

Washington—The capital certainly has cashed in on that gift from Tokyo—the Japanese cherry trees. What the Tournament of the Roses is to Pasadena, the Mardi Gras to New Orleans, the annual county fair to Midriff City—so is the annual Cherry Blossom festival to Washington.

But the capital fathers have a problem that makes any that might arise in those cities seem trivial. From February on, committees from the board of trade, merchants, innkeepers, historical societies and transportation companies are in constant session with the weatherman, horticulturists and the park department. The problem is: When will the cherry blossoms blossom?

If they're Wrong Records for years back show the capital's 3,000 cherry trees have burst their buds, anywhere from March 20 (single blossom trees and the only kind in the Tidal Basin, where they always take those pictures) to May 1 (the double-blossom varieties). With five weeks to guess in, you can see what a problem the capital fathers have picking a day. When they pick wrong there's nothing to do but postpone the blessed event.

Once they have hit on a date, though, the mills of the business gods start grinding and Washington prepares for its biggest season of the year. Excursion trains run from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities. The hotels jam to the brim escapes.

Prom beaneries to department stores, the merchants hawk their wares in Cherry Blossom sales. Traffic becomes a shambles. Cars by the tens of thousands pour across Flood Gate Bridge down into Cherry Blossom Lane. Pedestrians clog the pathways. Amateur photographers snap atrocities on miles of film. Old inhabitants swear oaths and take their annual vows never to mingle with this mob again.

A Queen, Too

Even as in the orange, cotton, tobacco, apple and other festivals of other cities, the Cherry Blossom festival has its queen. Just to show how widespread is becoming the affair here, this year's Queen Rose Collifore lists among her princesses, Shirley Tholen, Leavenworth, Kas.; Alice Betty Nichols, Chicago; Grace Dexter, Dallas, Texas; Jane Winchester, Wilmington, Del.; and Rosemary Burns, Shreveport, La.

And all of this, because 28 years ago, the city fathers of Tokyo persisted (the first batch of trees they sent over were buggy and had to be burned—so they sent a second batch) in playing hands-across-the-sea.

But don't get me wrong. I love Washington, the cherry trees—and all the hocus-pocus that goes with both of them.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 8.—Mrs. Anna Kitchin Joyce, State Women's manager for Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton was just a little late for breakfast Saturday morning all because she is a firm believer in the old adage that "Friday night is sure to come true—if told before breakfast."

It seems that Friday night she had a beautiful dream—Horton had led so far in the first primary voting that there would be no necessity for a second primary.

"When I got up, I was determined to tell that to somebody before breakfast if I had to talk to the elevator boy or stop some stranger between the Sir Walter and the cafeteria," she said.

Mrs. Lee Gravely keeps perhaps the most comprehensive scrapbook on the current gubernatorial campaign.

Senator Gravely's press chief, Vernon F. Sechrist, says that she gets every possible clipping and pastes them almost religiously. Not only that, but she has the scrapbook properly divided and indexed according to subjects. She has one part for her husband's clippings, another for those pertaining to State Manager Crayon C. Eard, and so on.

Lynn Nisbet, Maxwell press representative, was fresh back in Raleigh from the Sandhill section on Saturday.

Here in Raleigh there was quite a touch of frost in the air and so your reporter remarked: "Well, maybe the frost got some of the peach blossoms, but it's nothing compared with the frost that's going to hit this crop of candidates on May 25."

"Frost, hell!" snapped Lynn. "That's going to be a complete freeze out."

A. J. Maxwell is still in the lead in number of county managers announced to date—at least so far as this bureau has been able to keep track of them. Maxwell has already announced his chief in 40 counties. According to what appears to be reliable information this is more managers than Maxwell had at the end of the 1932 campaign when he polled more than 100,000 votes.

LITTLE SPINNIER

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: One by one Brenda meets the other occupants of the Bohemian board-sparrow, red-headed Isobel Burke, who thinks she's in love with Mac; good-looking Eric Mason; and Adelaide Rostetter, the absent-minded landlady.

Chapter Three Plans For A Party

"The last of the Burnhams come home," exclaimed Adelaide. "The Street will want to celebrate it."

"The Street?" Brenda looked up from her coffee cup inquiringly. "Why should the Street want to celebrate? . . . You mean this street?"

"The Shortest Street in the city," was Adelaide's impressive reply. "Surely your dear aunt has told you about it?"

Brenda nodded, the dimples coming and going in her smooth cheeks. "But she didn't tell me my appearance would be the signal for a celebration!"

"It'll probably be a garden party at the VanNess's," Eric suggested. "They have the biggest lawn. Or perhaps Dr. Wilson's daughter will make it a tea instead," he added hopefully.

"Or both," was Isobel's pessimistic opinion. "With perhaps open house at Judge Harper's thrown in!" She put another lump of sugar into her cup as though to fortify herself against so much social activity.

"But—why?" Brenda looked about in bewilderment. Her hostess and the hovering maid appeared to be the only persons pleased at the prospect. Mac looked resigned, Eric frankly gloomy, and Isobel prepared to believe the worst. "Why should they entertain for me—celebrate my coming? They don't know me. I've never been here before in my life."

Isobel enlightened her. "The Street is a community in itself. A sort of club in a way. If you've ever lived here, you have a life membership. If—as in your case—one of your ancestors was an original settler, you're a charter, active, and honorary member, all at the same time. In thirty years only two of ten houses have ever changed hands; this one and the last one on the other side of the street. That house—"

"Ahem!" exclaimed Mrs. Rostetter loudly. "It's just as Isobel says, Brenda dear: you belong to us here on The Street, and we must do something to mark your homecoming. I'll telephone Maud Wilson right after breakfast. In the meantime—"

"In the meantime," Isobel interrupted, "I've got to go. Miss Burnham, if it would amuse you, I'd like to take you down to the studio some day. Eric, going with me or walking?"

"Walking today, thank you!" "Isobel has a car," the mistress of the house explained. "She and Eric often drive downtown together."

"And Mac?" Brenda inquired, sending a side-glance toward the advertising man.

Adelaide said innocently: "Oh Mac never will ride with Isobel, he prefers walking. And she's a good driver, too, Eric says."

Mac smiled and went on with his breakfast composedly.

All But One AFTER the three wage-earners had gone, Mrs. Rostetter placed herself before the telephone and called, cry by one, all the families who lived on The Shortest Street. All that, save one, Brenda directed her attention to this omission.

"Don't the Minturns still live in the last house on the other side of the street?" Aunt Anne had told her about Miss Mamie Minturn—"

Adelaide's soft mouth pursed itself disappointingly. "The Minturns sold their home three years ago. A man by the name of Saltus lives there now—Hugh Saltus."

Up in Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton's headquarters Saturday everybody was exuding optimism at every pore. They even fell to discussing the possibility that their candidate might lead so far in the first primary that there would be no second one.

One young lady worker said the only objection to that would be that they'd miss a month of fun and excitement if things ended May 25.

"Oh, that's all right," exclaimed Mrs. Mary Pollard. "We could just spend that month celebrating—it would be worth it."

Lee Gravely is confident that he has the support of practically all the tobacco warehousemen, auctioneers and others connected with the big weed industry in North Carolina.

Paraphrasing a famous cigarette ad: "With men who know tobacco best it's Gravely two to one (or better)." Worth Freeze, China Grove banker, was today named Maxwell manager for Rowan county. He is often called Rowan's "Ambassador of Good Will."

YESTERDAY: The Shortest Street is a community in itself, Brenda met the other occupants of the Bohemian board-sparrow, red-headed Isobel Burke, who thinks she's in love with Mac; good-looking Eric Mason; and Adelaide Rostetter, the absent-minded landlady.

Chapter Four The Reception

ADELAIDE thinks Hugh Saltus treated his wife badly and forced her to leave," Isobel told Brenda.

"But why? Why does she think so, I mean?" Isobel grinned. "Because he's an artist, my dear. Adelaide distrusts artists on general principles. She's a snooty old thing, owing her a big bill. He said he was a 'black and white.' That's what Adelaide always calls him anyway: 'that black and white' that skipped without paying his bill. She's not awfully keen on writers either, she continues warningly. 'Not unless they're strictly commercial like—like Mac.' Brenda noticed the involuntary softening of her voice at the mention of that name. 'If you hadn't been a Burnham, and the niece of your aunt, I doubt if she'd have taken you to a trifle. Brenda's small chin rose a trifle. It was not for anyone named Rostetter to refuse a Burnham anything! Isobel, reading her thoughts, grinned again.

"But Adelaide owns the house, you know," she reminded the newcomer. "She paid hard cash for it. Even if everybody in The Street—with exception of Hugh Saltus, of course—is prepared to fall on his face at the sight of a Burnham, the fact remains that this is a boardinghouse and you're just one of the boarders in it."

She spoke deliberately, half hoping to lure Brenda into a display of temper such as Mac had hinted at. She wanted desperately to find flaws in this girl's character. Beside the pretty and dainty person Brenda was, Isobel felt more than usually awkward and gauche. She was convinced that Brenda was badly spoiled. It would be a trifle gratifying to have her fly into a passion now over Adelaide's aversion to writers. Instead Brenda murmured: "Thank you for reminding me of that, Isobel. I expect I needed it. As for the writing part, I hope to convince Adelaide of an innocent occupation. Her mind went back to Saltus. 'Does everybody on The Street feel that way toward him? I mean—is he more or less an outcast here? Hugh Saltus, I mean?'"

"We-ell—" Isobel considered the subject. "Mac and Eric like him. They're always popping into his studio. Poor old Dr. Wilson sneaks over there whenever his daughter's vigilance is relaxed. But most of the women avoid him. They think his cartoons are bitter, even a little suggestive (they aren't really!) and they resent the mystery she's corrected herself. 'It isn't that they resent it, I think, but just that Hugh won't discuss the subject with them!' She rose, stretching her arms wearily. 'I'm calling it a day! 'Night, Brenda!'"

The next few days saw much running back and forth between the houses on The Shortest Street. Conferences were held in living rooms, in bedrooms, the most important of all in kitchens. There was, blessedly, no servant problem on The Street. Most housekeepers ruled over and were ruled by a dusky servant who had been in service for a score of years. If death (and it was only death) that removed the cooks of The Shortest Street) deprived a family of its faithful retainer, there was always a daughter or a niece ready to step into the waiting place.

Mrs. Rostetter's Grenadine was the daughter of Pearl, who had tied the sashes of the little Burnham girls forty years ago. Therefore menus and guest lists were as closely scrutinized in The Street's kitchens as they were in the parlors, and mistresses and maids conferred long and tirelessly.

"Social Sponsor" IN THE end an evening reception was decided upon. "So the gentlemen can all attend," said Miss Wilson elegantly. In Miss Wilson's world, the women were not only gentlemen and she had a way of pronouncing the word which called up visions of conservatories, and bouquets in silver holders, and lace-edged handkerchiefs. "And even the schottische," Isobel said, "though I wouldn't recognize the dance if I saw it!"

There was to be what Miss Wilson called a "collation," too; chicken patties, tiny sweet pickles, hot biscuits and preserves, a quivering tomato aspic, iced coffee and, to top it all, brick iced cream and chocolate jar cake. Brenda, accustomed to the more sophisticated suppers of New York, gasped at this menu.

"Cocktails?" she had asked Mac somewhat timidly. "He smiled and shook his head. 'My dear child, The Street grows on the Devon Rum.' " "Is Hugh Saltus to be invited?" the guest of honor further demanded.

of the Trail. But it had old Cot single action .45's, known as "peace makers," and these came in cap and ball, or cartridge models.

Then there were the miniature bottles of spirits which are only two inches high, and which are now available in only six states in the Union. In Reno, every bar, drug store and restaurant has them, and they sell from a quarter to 60 cents apiece. All the standard brands of Scotch, rye and Irish whiskeys, as well as cordials, gins and anything else you can think of, are available in miniature. They are just like the big bottle on the locker-room shelf, with the exception that they hold only about a pony full. These should be kept as souvenirs and as something with which to edify and entertain one's friends. Any man who would open one and drink its contents is the sort of barbarian who would pillage a temple, or hock his wife's wedding ring for a can of beer.

"What could he have said to her?" Isobel speculated. "She was like a gay little girl at a birthday party a minute ago; now she looks simply furious!"

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker

RENO, Nev.—In this column I am going to try to sort out a few of the postcard impressions a man picks up between trains in Reno.

I got a kick out of a pawn shop called The End of the Trail, because there you can see a wonderful collection of old second-hand frontier guns which no doubt figured sharply in the boom-town adolescence of this mining district.

One in particular is a pepper pot gun, a pistol that has nine barrels which can be fired separately, or collectively. Another is a "life preserver," meaning a small gun built into a pair of brass knucks. They are also used to build a small, sharp knife into the knucks, so that as you brushed a man's jaw you also could lay him wide open, but I Reno citizens, or at least the did not see one of these at The End downtown citizens, dress pretty western. Not so many go in for boots, but most of them wear those big hats and neckerchiefs, and also frontier-style shirts, which are of broadcloth and have yoked shoulders, buttons from cuff to elbow, and over-sized breast patch pockets. It may be that this is a holdover from the "Virginia City" premiere, but it seems to me the women go in for western motif more than the men. You see hundreds of fringed, knee-length buckskin skirts of tan, white and black, with fancy vests of the same color and material. You may have noticed that only this year the east began to feature satin and chiffon houses, with mannish collars and wide bishop sleeves. Heno women have been wearing these for years.

Walking the street are a great number of young men with black beards. It seemed reasonable to identify them as members of some sect, but that is an error. They are University of Nevada students preparing to celebrate Founders' Day.

The title of "Eminence" was conferred upon Cardinals by Pope Urban VIII on January 10, 1631.

In early England forgers were punished by having their ears cut off.

Graham Picks Yankees And Reds To Repeat In 1940

ENDS TOUR OF SPRING CAMPS

Check-up Indicates 39 Winners Still The Tops

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service
New York—A month spent hopping about the Florida palm and palmetto belt observing the big league baseball clubs in spring training has convinced me that the Yanks and Reds are again the class of the majors.

Cincinnati may have a dog-fight all the way with the St. Louis Cardinals, but the Reds should win by a nose—maybe Ernie Lombardi's schnozzle—just as they did last season.

The Yanks should have an easier triumph but their margin may be smaller than in any recent year, for Boston and Cleveland have strengthened their offense.

Here's The Lineup
With the start of the season still a few days off—and anything likely to happen during the long summer chase—here's the way the pennant races look to me:

American — 1.
New York 2.
Boston 3.
Cleveland 4.
Detroit 5.
Chicago 6.
Washington 7.
Philadelphia 8.
St. Louis 9.
National — 1.
Cincinnati 2.
St. Louis 3.
New York 4.

Dillon-Graham
York, 4. Brooklyn, 5. Pittsburgh, 6. Chicago, 7. Boston, 8. Philadelphia: The Yanks go to bat with the same club that won the world championship last summer, plus some new young pitchers. Boston expects Dominic DiMaggio, the rookie outfielder, to add power to its attack but the Red Sox's real hope lies in a group of young tossers. If Herb Hash, Jim Bagby and Woody Rich come through to aid Joe Cronin's other regulars, headed by Old Man Mose Grove, the Bostonians might give Joe McCarthy's gang a fit.

Cleveland looks stronger with a fine keystone combination in Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau, an improved outfield and a pitching corps that may be hard to beat. The Indians have a great pitcher in baseball in Bob Feller, who may hit the 30 mark this year.

Too Many Ifs At Detroit
Detroit has too many doubtful spots. Hank Greenberg and Rudy York have yet to prove themselves as big leaguers in the outfield and at first base. Charles Gehringer is aging. Dick Bartell is aging. And, after Buck Newsum and Tommy Bridges, the pitching is uncertain. Chicago and Washington are about in the same class with the Tigers and this trio should battle it out for fourth, fifth and sixth positions. Seventh and eighth positions are reserved for the Athletics and the Browns.

St. Louis has more power than any other National league club and the Cards made a great fight for last year's championship. They may win this time. But from his corner the Reds seem a little stronger, chiefly because of a better infield and a couple of guys named Walters and Derringer.

Perhaps Walters and Derringer won't win 52 games between them as they did in 1939 but Derringer and McKechnie has Junior Thompson, Whitey Moore and John Hutchings to take up the slack. Vince DiMaggio and Mike McCormick offer better protection in left field.

Cards Have Old Problem
The Cardinals' infield problem is apparently as unsettled now as a year ago. Manager Ray Blades has a flock of young pitchers who may come through but they can't be counted on.

The Giants, a poor fifth last year, may be the loop's surprise team. The pitching appears better than anyone had expected. And Terry seems pleased with his quartet of rookies—Infielders Babe Young, Mickey Witke and Glen Stewart and outfielder John Rucker. On a hunch we're selecting the Giants to finish third.

Brooklyn's pitching and outfield troubles likely will hold the Dodgers down to fourth. The Pirates, with new blood in the outfield and several good looking young pitchers working under frisky Frank Frisch, should move up a notch to fifth, with the Cubs, Bees and Phillies following in that order.

It's been 14 years since Chicago finished out of the first division, but the Cubs will surprise me if they climb above sixth.

Christopher Sold

Red Christopher, second baseman on the Greenies team last year, has been sold to the Harrisburg Senators of the Inter-State Class B league, it was revealed today by Manager Rube Wilson of the local club.

The price the Greenville club received for the ace infielder was not revealed.

The Harrisburg team is training here and Christopher is to report on Wednesday of this week.

At the same time it was announced that Ed Black, who went to Memphis, Tenn., on an option has been returned. Vincent Smith, catcher who was sold outright to the Memphis club, however, is with that team now.

Diamond Ace From 'Back When' Says They're All Sissies Now

By ROBERT MYERS
AP Feature Service

Phoenix, Arizona—Whippercracking Frankie Frisch, new boss of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was sitting around swapping baseball yarns and keeping an idle eye on the hotel door to see that the midnight curfew hour was observed by his erstwhile bad-boy Buccos.

One thing led to another and presently Frisch was talking about training camps, the conditioning of ball players and ball players' ailments.

"Now the other day," Frisch declared, "I looked in our dressing room. They got enough stuff in there to stock a hospital. Cotton bandages, ovens, heaters, operating tables, splints, knives, scissors, they got every thing."

"Why, I remember when all they had in a locker room was a bottle of rubbing alcohol, and they hid that because somebody'd be likely to drink it."

Prima Donnas New
"Now days," he went on, "if a ball player gets a belly ache, he moans around like he's gonna die. Or if he twists a muscle in his little finger, he's got to see a specialist and go on crutches for a week."

"I remember one time I got a spike in my hand. Cut clear down in the bone. Put my hand up to my suit and it got covered with blood. Came in to the dugout and the Old Man, that was John McGraw, looked at it and laughed. Told me to have the trainer to pour a little alcohol in it and go on back.

"Hughie Jennings leans over and says, 'Why say, man, that ain't nothing. I remember, the time I broke my leg going to first base. The bone was sticking out at the ankle and I didn't know nothin' was wrong until I pulled up at second.'"

"No Nursing For Pirates
Or maybe he was thinking of the years he presided as ringmaster for the celebrated crackpot team of the present era, the Gas House Gang at St. Louis. Whatever it was, he resumed:

"Another time I got spiked in my toe. Inch deep. The trainer threw a lot of iodine down it. I swung and hit him and ran out, damned near naked as a jay, on to the field. Lucky no one was in the park."

"The next day the Old Man says, 'Wrap it up, cut a piece out of your shoe, and get out there.' I told him I couldn't, but sure enough in the ninth, I'm run in to pinch hit. Nearly killed me. And I was out of the lineup for three weeks."

"Hope you didn't get nursed around in those days."

It sounded very much like a hint that the pampered Pirates won't get much nursing from their new skipper, either.

Harrisburg Loses, 11-6 To Reading In 1st Game

Total of 30 Players Take Part In Exhibition Tilt

A total of 30 players participated in the loosely played game between Harrisburg and Reading of the Inter-State Class B league here yesterday afternoon.

It was the first game of the season at Guy Smith park and the Harrisburg team, training here, was defeated 11-6 by the Reading team, training at Edenton.

Harrisburg used four pitchers and Reading three. The home team lost a good opportunity to score when, with the bases loaded a hard ground ball was heading for the outfield when it struck one of the Harrisburg runners, automatically retiring him and holding the other runners on base.

The biggest thrill for the game came on two successive homers by Harrisburg players.

Reading made two in the first frame, while holding Harrisburg to one and the visitors never relinquished the lead.

team, Dr. Massey had the low score of the day, with a 74. Captain Allen of the winners had a 76, as did I. J. Edwards.
Thirty Greenville golfers participated, in the match, with 15 on each side.
The tournament provided keen competition throughout the entire week and at the conclusion of the match, Dr. Massey's Slicers were host at a dinner in honor of Mr. Allen's winning Hookers.

Local Golfers Go To Goldsboro Wed.

The Greenville golf team, currently in a tie for the loop lead with Tarboro, will go to Goldsboro for its weekly match in the Eastern Carolina Golf Association league Wednesday afternoon.

Goldsboro also will be host to the Farmville team on Wednesday afternoon, the loop's double header for this week having been set for the Wayne county capital.

Tarboro will play at Rocky Mount and Wilson at Kinston.
Believing that Tarboro will have its hands full in coping with Rocky Mount, the locals will be especially anxious for a win over Goldsboro, which would put them in the undisputed lead, in case Rocky Mount takes Tarboro for a loss.

King Henry VIII, in 1533, ordered flax grown in England.

RUBE LIGHT IN TODAY'S WORK

Long And Ed Black Here; Caligiuri Reported Ill

Manager Rube Wilson this morning paced his team of rookies thru a light workout, composed chiefly of batting and fielding practice.
Because of the weather, the team was late in getting started and the skipper was more or less light on the team, following three hard days last week.

If the weather permits, however, Rube will have the boys down at work tomorrow and he intends to bear down on them from now until the season opens on April 25.

Howard Ellis Long, left-handed pitcher who joined the Greenies late in the season last year, is back and may be with the club this year. Long is classed as a rookie, having played only about 20 days last year. He hails from Gastonia.
Ed Black, who was optioned to Memphis, Tenn., last year, also was back in camp today. He is a veteran and whether he will be kept here or sold was uncertain.

Manager Wilson received a wire from Freddy Caligiuri this morning stating that he was being detained on account of illness, but hoped to be here soon. Caligiuri, Morris Wilson, both pitchers, and Manager Wilson are the three veterans on the Greenville team this year.

The next exhibition contest is scheduled for Friday afternoon, when the Greenies will meet Sunbury at Guy Smith park. The Sunbury team of the Inter-State league, is training in Kinston. Harrisburg will play Sunbury there on Thursday.
The Greenies and Harrisburg play here Friday night, April 19th, and also on Sunday, April 21.

M. A. BRINKLEY HEADS BRANCH

Metropolitan Makes Annual Financial Statement

M. A. Brinkley is manager of the local branch of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which organization today is publishing its annual financial statement. Others on the Greenville staff are Earl Daniels, J. E. Parkerson and J. F. Carr. Almost exactly 25 years ago the Metropolitan became a mutual company; that is, the shares of the stockholders were bought in and retired. Thus, for the past quarter of a century the Metropolitan has been operated solely and exclusively for the benefit of its policyholders.

The Old Policies Have Kept Pace. Not only does the purchaser of new insurance receive a more attractive contract today than the purchaser of a similar policy received in 1914, but the holders of previously issued policies are also finding them much more valuable contracts today than when they bought them. For, unlike automobiles, where improvements usually are limited to new models, the Metropolitan has added its improvements to most of its outstanding models of policies.

The Metropolitan has consistently endeavored to improve its policy contracts, give added benefits, remove restrictions, and to be liberal in its relations with policyholders as sound principles of management and current conditions would permit. This attitude helps to explain the remarkable growth of the company in the quarter century since its public-spirited stockholders turned it over to the policyholders.

Art Festival Huge Success

(Continued from Page One) brought to mind, also, the achievements of the Negro in the fields of music and literature. The artist outlined his own individual progress, referring to the early handicaps and difficulties which he experienced on his rise to recognition. He showed no less than did Booker T. Washington, that no matter under what skin, merit is in the long run recognized and rewarded. The festival exhibit of paintings, hung in the club house, included two oils and four watercolors done by this artist.

Following Gereleigh's brief address, the Negro Methodist choir, under the direction of Nina Cherry, presented a program of delightful readings, Negro spirituals and other musical numbers, which was enjoyed and appreciated very much. The choir sang "Swing Low, Sweet Charlot," by special request, as an encore number. People who attend the festival programs, look forward from year to year to this performance of the colored people of the community as their contribution of art entertainment and service to the local project.

Observers further pointed out that the new mine fields laid by the allies in Norwegian territorial waters were relatively high up. Norway's coast and that any attempt by German vessels to sweep the fields clear would expose them to attacks. At the same time, it was held to be entirely likely that Germany was planning some form of counter move.

Festival programs were featured by such prominent men as Holger Cahill, of Washington, D. C., national director of the WPA Art Program, who spoke in Greenville on Tuesday evening, and the brilliant W. T. Couch of Chapel Hill, N. C., director of the University Press, who was the principal speaker on Thursday evening, of festival week. Both of these notable men were honored at dinner at the club house on the respective evenings of their arrival in Greenville.

Local newspapers gave during the week many columns of space to the covering of the six days of festival activity and Sunday evening's program concluded the whirling activity and gala festivities of 1940's community art event, which attracted to Greenville prominent guests from many sections of the state and elsewhere.
