SPOTLIGHT ON VOTE TODAY IN PENNSYLVANIA

Interest In That State Centers On Guffey's Race

NEW DATA FROM NATIONAL SCENE

Downey Joins Anti-Third Termers; Norris "Afraid" Roosevelt Will Not Accept Nomination

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Primary election voting in Pennsylvania, with interest centering on the efforts of Senator Joseph Guffey to win Democratic renomination, was accompanied today by these developments on the national political scene:

1. President Roosevelt disclosed plans for what the White House called a "non-political" 21-day trip across the country in June at a time when the republican convention will be in session.

2. Senator Downey (D-Calif.) joined anti-third term ranks in the midst of a California primary fight among delegate states supporting Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Garner.

3. Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), a third term advocate, told reporters that he was "afraid" the President would not run again. "I think he would like to retire and get a rest," Norris said.

4. Republican Chairman John Hamilton proposed that members of the party's platform committee meet well in advance of the June 24 convention to begin their complicated task.

Today's Pennsylvania balloting held no special significance from a national standpoint, although convention delegates were being chosen by both Democrats and Republicans.

President Roosevelt was unopposed in the democratic preferential primary, which does not bind the delegation. The republican ballot bore the name of no presidential aspirant.

Senator Guffey was opposed for renomination by Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man. Both are new dealers.

Canadian Official Visits Roosevelt

Warm Springs, April 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt authorized a secretary to say that the visit of W. L. MacKenzie King to the little White House today had no political significance and "no question of American or Canadian policy is involved."

William D. Hassett, presidential aide, made the statement for Mr. Roosevelt shortly after the dominion official arrived at Warm Springs to be the guest of the chief executive.

Although the President sought to discourage speculation about his conference with the Canadian prime minister, reporters thought it would be strange if some matters of international significance was not mentioned by the two.

"The President has authorized me to say," Hassett asserted, "he hoped so unwarranted conclusions, deductions or assumptions would be drawn from Mr. MacKenzie King's visit."

Nazis, Allies Square Off In Norway

Preparatory sparring having ended, Germans and allied forces were engaged in fierce fighting in at least two sectors of Norway April 22. There was a battle line (1) north of Oslo and the Germans apparently had driven a salient (arrow) into the line, aiming at Lillehammer. More fighting took place in the Trondheim area (2) and fronts had been established at Bergen (3) and Stavanger (4). Meanwhile Swedish forces downed a German plane which flew over fortified islands of Gotland (5).

Administration Assails Wage-Hour Amendm'ts

Wallace Objects To Proposal By Rep. Barden

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The administration directed a double-barrelled attack on proposed wage-hour amendments today in an effort to offset farm state demands for increased exemptions under the 18-month-old law.

Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, and Secretary Wallace criticized bills by Representatives Norton (D-N.J.) and Barden (D-N.C.).

Wallace objecting to suggestions for exemptions of farm operations beyond the first labor of producing crops, said last night in a radio discussion with Fleming:

"I think the wage-hour act is a decided benefit to farmers. Not all farmers, unfortunately, understand how the law works. Such groups apparently have been able to convince some farmers that the wage-hour law will injure them."

Fleming added: "Regardless of what political spokesman for certain interests may say, I can not believe that the pitiless exploitation of any group of our people can work out to the advantage of another group."

Both officials pointed their remarks against three sets of wage-hour amendments which will come up for debate in the House Thursday. All three would exempt certain "white collar" workers, employees in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands and telegraph messengers from the minimum wage and maximum work week standards.

White Man Freed Of Larceny Count

A Pitt county jury, after receiving the case just yesterday afternoon and deliberating all the morning, brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case charging Casey Dunn, Pitt county white man, with larceny.

The jury reached its verdict about noon. Dunn was charged with breaking into a filling station in the Belvoir section.

Wilton Stancill and Robert Stancill, white men, were acquitted at yesterday afternoon's session of charges of hunting out of season and without licenses.

The date of the precinct meetings is fixed by the State Democratic Executive committee.

The county convention will be held in the court house here the following Saturday, May 11, the date upon which registration books will be closed.

Labor Chief Seized

George Scallie, ex-convict and powerful sub-chief of the American Federation of Labor, is shown in New York after his release on $40,000 bond pending trial on charges that he collected $100,000 from hotels and other business firms in a labor extortion racket. He is president of the Building Service Employees International union.

Noted Orator And New Dealer Declares Failure Of Chief Executive To Make A Statement Is "Green Light" Enough To Signify His Willingness To Accept

United States Senator Joshua Bryan Lee of Oklahoma, addressing a YDC District rally here last night, declared that failure of President Roosevelt to make a statement was "green light" enough and called on the Democrats of North Carolina to send a delegation to the National Convention pledged to the chief executive.

"Make no mistake the people want Roosevelt. I believe he will serve again, but the move is up to you," he told the approximately 350 democrats gathered in the armory for the rally.

The Oklahoman warned that other candidates were in the field and that it was up to the supporters of Roosevelt to act at once. "Let him know that we are counting on him. Now is the time to unleash the devil dogs of democracy."

In urging support of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt, Sen. Lee declared that no substitute would do. "I believe Roosevelt has the best grasp on world economic and domestic affairs of any man living today," he added in advocating a draft Roosevelt movement.

The Senator, erstwhile University of Oklahoma professor, cited statements by Washington, Jefferson, Grant and others to substantiate his contention that former great presidents were not opposed to a third term in times of crisis. Washington he declared, advised the people that they should not deny themselves the best man in times of emergency. He added that Washington was an old man when he declined a third term and that he retired to Mount Vernon and died soon after leaving office.

He quoted Jefferson as saying that he would seek a third term rather than see this country turned over to a monarch.

In support of a third term, Sen. Lee declared that Roosevelt probably had done more for this country than any other man, but he added, "The job is not finished and times are too critical to change our leadership now."

"Roosevelt is the only man that Wall Street fears," he stated and asked "Isn't this reason enough why he should lead us again in 1940?" as the crowd applauded.

"Why should we trade a certainty for an uncertainty?" he queried. In answering criticism of dictatorship, the senator observed that "we have had eight years to see how he has used his power" and there is no reason why he will not continue his policy of upholding the law.

"He is the greatest friend of the people," he concluded.

High Point Chapter Of Alumni Organized

A High Point chapter of East Carolina Teachers College Alumni Association was organized, and held its first meeting, on April 16 with Mrs. C. R. Hinshaw (Kathleen Spain). Officers for the Chapter were elected as follows: Miss Ruth Modlin, president; Miss Madeline McCain, vice-president; Miss Lillian Parrish, secretary-treasurer; Miss Susan Spence, reporter; Mrs. C. R. Hinshaw, program chairman; and Mrs. Worth Ivey, social chairman.

The Chapter will hold its next meeting early in May, when Mrs. Julian Franklin (Georgia Smith) will be associate hostesses.

Miss Estelle McClees, Alumni Secretary, had been in High Point on April 6, and had discussed plans for the organization.

March Of Time Deals With American Youth

In the United States today there are 21 million young men and women between the ages of 16 and 24. A full inventory of facts on these young Americans has been compiled by the American Youth Commission in Washington, a privately-endowed, non-governmental organization made up of leaders in sociology, industry and education.

Using the findings of this commission as a starting point, the March of Time, in its latest issue entitled "America's Youth—1940," presents an absorbing film story of the lives and problems of the nation's younger generation—what youth wants and needs, what youth is thinking and doing, and the countless small details which make up the picture of youth as it today.

The picture will be shown at the Pitt theater Thursday and Friday.

ECONOMY BLOC REDUCES FUND

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee made another economy effort today by cutting $23,585,930 from the House-approved $1,021,639,700 appropriation for the Labor Department and the Federal Security Administration.

The biggest reduction—$25,000,000—was made in the $280,000,000 House allocation for the Civilian Conservation Corps. That and other cuts were offset in part by increases.

Changes included a $1,045,000 addition to the $5,105,000 House allotment for the wage-hour administration.

Despite the reduction under the House appropriation, the Senate committee total of $998,054,670 was $32,066,028 over President Roosevelt's budget estimates and $24,746,800 over the appropriations last year.

Another Senate committee heard from Major General H. H. Arnold that planes manufactured for the army were being delivered "on schedule," despite heavy foreign orders.

Arnold, testifying on the government's foreign plane sale policy, told the naval committee the policy should result in considerable improvement in type of aircraft in this government's fleet.

Mrs. Flye's Father Is Claimed By Death

Jesse B. Lee, Sr. of Dunn, father of Mrs. Charles R. Flye of Greenville, died at his home last night at 11:40 o'clock.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home on Broad street in Dunn.

Europe Subject Of Address To Lions

Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, of the English faculty of the college, spoke last night at the Lion's club on the spots and scenes of Western Europe she saw last summer that have since come into the limelight in headlines and news reels in connection with the war.

Saying that of the seven countries which she visited last summer, three—Germany, France and England—have since become belligerents, and two others, still neutral, have been put in a precarious position, she went on to tell of significant events and places seen in these countries. So far as she could judge, only two of them—France and Holland—really expected war.

Her picture of Germany she got from her trip over and back on German boats and her trips between the Rhine and the Moselle rivers, on which she was really following the zigzagging of the now famous Siegfried line. In Munich she saw the famous Nazi beerhall that was later the scene of the attempted bombing of Hitler, and stood under the windows of the room where Hitler and Chamberlain "signed away Czechoslovakia."

She was delayed at the German-Italian border at Brunner Pass where Hitler and Mussolini soon afterward had their famous conference. It was easy, she declared, to sense a dislike between the German and Italian.

TENDERS PLEA TO EVASION OF INCOME TAXES

Annenberg Admits Withholding $1,217,296.73

BIGGEST INCOME CASE IN HISTORY

District Attorney Declares Government Has Not Agreed To Make Any Recommendation

Chicago, April 23.—(AP)—M. L. Annenberg, defendant in the largest criminal federal income tax case in history, pleaded guilty today to evading $1,217,296.73 of income taxes for the year 1936.

The plea by the wealthy Philadelphia publisher and former head of an international racing empire, was entered to the fifth count of an indictment accusing him of evading $3,258,899.97 in taxes for the years 1932 to 1936, inclusive.

Fifty per cent penalties and a six per cent interest would bring to $5,548,384.89 the aggregate which the federal government claimed against him.

A plea of guilty to the fifth count also was entered by Joseph Hafner, alias Samuel Goldfarb, a business associate of Annenberg, who with 11 others was accused of aiding and abetting the publisher in the alleged evasion.

William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, informed Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson before a court room packed with defendants, attorneys and spectators that the attorney general had directed him to advise the court that at the time of sentencing Annenberg and Hafner the government intended to dismiss all other counts of the indictment and other income tax indictments against them.

"The government," Campbell continued, "has not agreed to make any recommendation as to the sentence to be imposed on the foregoing pleas of guilty."

Still Is Destroyed Near Black Jack

Pitt county ABC officers located and destroyed a 100-gallon capacity liquor still in Chicot township, about three miles south-east of Black Jack, this morning.

The officers said the plant was practically new, apparently having been operated once or twice. They expressed the opinion it was operated about Sunday.

The still was located at a site only about a quarter of a mile from where one was destroyed last month. Dynamite was used to destroy the plant and equipment, composed of 50-gallon steel drum, two 50-gallon wooden cookers, a 50-gallon condenser, a 10-gallon doubler, a copper coil, about 100 gallons of new beer, some buckets a hoe, etc.

Approves Washington Runyan Creek Bridge

Raleigh, April 23.—(AP)—The State Highway Commission announced today approval by the United States War Department of a linking Washington, N. C., with Washington Park.

The span, to cost an estimated $25,000, would afford a nine-foot clearance for pleasure craft entering a yacht basin on the north side of the bridge.

Highway engineers now must make an allocation for the project before construction can begin.

Civic Club Hears Of 4-H Club Work

Boys and girls in the number of five hundred and fifty participate in the 4-H clubs in Pitt county which are supervised by C. D. Griggs, assistant to the Pitt county farm agent, with the cooperation of the federal government and State college to improve rural life by teaching home making and better agricultural practices. Mr. Griggs spoke to the Greenville Rotarians last night on work of 4-H clubs in Pitt county. He indicated Elmer Tucker as the outstanding boy in carrying on projects for the past three years in Pitt county under the 4-H.

In 1936 Elmer won second place in corn projects; in 1937 he was corn champion; in 1938 he carried on beef, calf and corn projects winning prizes for beef calves at the State Fair in Raleigh, and corn champion again; in 1939 he won the tobacco project championship which netted him a scholarship to State College and a prize from a fertilizer.

Allied Pressure Against Germany Being Increased

U.S. Attache Killed

Capt. Robert M. Loscy (above), assistant United States military attaché at Stockholm, Sweden, was killed at Dombas, Norway, during a German bombing raid. He was the first American killed on land in the current European war. His mother and a sister live in Brooklyn, N. Y.

London, April 23.—(AP)—The British war office reported today that a "sharpe engagement" was being fought north of Trondheim. German-held port on the Norwegian west coast.

The German high command acknowledged today that the British navy had opened fire on the Norwegian port of Narvik. The population of the town apparently had taken to cover in response to an earlier British warning that Narvik would be shelled.

The Germans insisted that the British were making no effort to land troops, although it was presumed in neutral quarters that they would try to land forces after clearing the way.

Four hundred miles south of British, French and Norwegian troops joined forces in an encircling movement against Trondheim strategic railway terminus and port in German hands since the day of invasion. To the east of Hamar, 60 miles north of Oslo, the fighting continued with all reinforcements arriving to relieve the embattled Norwegians.

The British repeated their aerial blows at German air bases in Norway and Denmark.

As the allies increased their pressure on the Germans in Norway, French military authorities in Paris said that the position of Sweden had become the "dark side" of Scandinavian war situation and that "important events appeared imminent." It was suggested Germany might invade Sweden.

Meanwhile, the British government issued a statement listing German warship "casualties" since the start of the war, not counting "a large number" of submarines and compared this with only British warships sunk, including submarines and an armed merchantman.

As against the British claims successes against German ships, Berlin said today that 14 British transports and war vessels had been sunk or damaged off Norway. Nazi bombers in the last 48 hours asserted that gun clubs had been organized by union members for regular target practice.

"The Communists leadership with its control in the union," he added, "could stampede the men into a strike."

"They have the absolute power if they see fit to exercise it."

In replying to questions by J. B. Matthews, committee aide, concerning "revolutionary activities in the transport workers union," O'Shea asserted that gun clubs had been organized by union members for regular target practice.

"They have these guns for the same reason that these 17 Christian Front people had them?" inquired Rep. Thomas (R-N.J.) and O'Shea asserted.

The committee met defiance today from another Communist party leader, Andrew Onda of Cleveland, who refused to supply names of other communists lest such action subject them to "black-listing" by employers.

All Milk Sources Receive A Grades

In keeping with the Pitt county milk ordinance based on the United States Public Health Service milk ordinance, J. H. Moore, Pitt county sanitary inspector, and J. T. Welch, Greenville city sanitary inspector, through the local health department, today released the grades as per the grading below.

The pasteurization plant in Greenville receives milk from the following dairies, all of which received an A grade: Brantley's dairy, Pinetops; Blount's dairy, Bethel; Little Creek dairy, Farmville; S. T. Lewis dairy, Farmville; Androski's dairy, Pinetops; Harvey's dairy, Washington; Taylor's dairy, Everetts; Barnhill's dairy, Greenville.

The Carolina dairy pasteurization plant, Greenville, also is Grade A. The dairies furnishing milk in the county outside of Greenville, all of which received Grade A, are: East View dairy, Bethel; Oak Lawn dairy, Farmville; Pecan Grove dairy, Farmville.

The health officer expressed regret that the per capita consumption of milk was so low in Greenville and in Pitt county, generally, and stated that milk should be looked upon as an essential part of the diet of persons of all ages, the old as well as the young.

BRITISH FORCE BOMBS NARVIK

Population Of Norwegian Port Apparently Had Taken To Cover Following Warning City Would Be Bombed; Allied Troops Join In Encircling Movement Against Trondheim

WHASSIS VEHICLE CONQUERS SNOWDRIFTS

Pine Bluffs, Wyo.—(AP)—Kenneth Smith, of the south star mail route has "crossed" a truck with a passenger car, added airplane tires and produced a contraption which conquers the deep snowdrifts of his way. He cut down the chassis of a truck to passenger car size, added a sedan body and placed low-pressure airplane tires 15 inches in diameter and 42 inches high under it. Drivers of ordinary cars and trucks who have tried to follow Smith's trail say the machine is a real "snowmobile." It will go through drifts where the car with tires of ordinary size sink to the running boards.

Christian Science Church.

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies, Sunday, April 21. The Golden Text was from Matthew 20:28. "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon were the following from the Bible, "And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation. To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God." (II Cor. 5: 18-20). The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed, will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and be sorry, he has little part in the atonement,—in the atonement with God,—for he lacks the practical repentance, which reform the heart and enables man to do the will of wisdom. Those who cannot demonstrate, at least in part, the divine Principle of the teachings and practice of our Master have no part in God. If living in disobedience to Him, we ought to feel no security, although God is good. (Page 19).

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By Robbin Coons Hollywood.—So you want a divorce? Not Dick Powell and Joan Blondell. Deliver them. They're playing "I Want a Divorce" as a stepping-stone to something they want, "I Want a Divorce" is just a title.

Not that they weren't afraid of it. Joan is from the stage, where superstitions come by the truckload. Didn't they hear what happened to Bette Davis that time she was signing a contract?

At that time, studios were very solicitous about the "divorce clause" in contracts. Players had to sign away their right, for a specified time, to take their marital troubles to a judge. Bette Davis looked at her divorce clause, read it announced she was signing under protest. Because Bette just had married Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., and nothing Bette and "Ham" Well, it happened like that ever, ever would happen to Bette and Dick. It was a sort of funny when they looked at a script called "I Want a Divorce."

But they took it anyway. In the picture Dick and Joan get married, but they aren't the ones who want the divorce. It's Joan's sister in the picture, Gloria Dickson, who wants one. (In real life, too, I understand, she wants a divorce from Perc Westmore.) In the picture, she wants a divorce from Sidney Blackmer, who in real life already has one from Lenore Ulric.

In fact, when you look over the cast, there are mighty few in it who haven't had a divorce. Conrad Nagel has; so has Frank Fay, And Joan and Dick have, too—the divoices they got before they married each other. But here those two are together in "I Want a Divorce." That is different. Put a happy marriage under a title like that, and it should spell box-office. And it just may work out their way: out of their "Divorce" title they conceivably could work into a perpetual Mr. and Mrs. teaming—in comedy.

Since its beginning in 1935, the unit farm demonstration program in Western North Carolina has been a means for encouraging better land use and improved cropping systems.

Commissioner Scott stressed the value of the inspection service begun by the Department last year. "An important feature of this season will be continuation of the program to assist farmers in better packing and handling methods," he said. "Inspectors will devote a part of their time to assist growers in modern marketing procedure in an effort to bring them maximum prices for their crops."

BERRY SEASON TO OPEN SOON

Some Of Strawberry Auctions to Open Late This Week

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 23 — Autoneers who work mostly by sign language, in sharp contrast to the loud-chanting sellers of tobacco, will begin sale of North Carolina's strawberry crop within a very few days.

Some of the markets are likely to open late this week, with the others opening next. Harry T. Westcott, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, said today.

There are markets at Chadbourne, Tabor City, Burgaw, Wallace, Rose Hill and Mount Olive. The Wallace mart advertises itself as the largest in the world.

Commissioner of Agriculture Kerr Scott has assigned 45 inspectors, under supervision of the market's division, to the auction sheds to certify and inspect berries as to grade. Last year's crop brought farmers approximately $1,316,000 as the berries averaged $2.80 per crate.

This year's crop is much shorter as to acreage, but increased yield per acre is expected to make up for much of the reduction. Last year's acreage was approximately 7,900, with this year's about 2,000 acres less. Last year's yield was 506,000 crates. Commissioner Scott estimates that this year's crop will reach 502,000 crates, only a fraction of one per cent off from 1939.

"An important feature of this season will be continuation of the program to assist farmers in better packing and handling methods," he said. COOPER WANTS BAILEY'S POST

Said to Be Reason for Mildness in Present Race

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 23 — Some seasoned observers hereabout have begun to explain the comparative mildness of Tom Cooper's campaign on the theory that he has senatorial aspirations and is running against Josiah W. Bailey harder than against his six avowed rivals in the current gubernatorial sweepstakes.

The Wilmington mayor hasn't said no—in fact he would doubtless deny it in no uncertain terms and probably with at least average sincerity for a politician.

Just the same, those who think he has his eye on Washington wouldn't believe his denials and would continue to cite what they believe are entirely logical reasons for their suspicions.

The argument is that Cooper is entirely too competent a politician not to realize that his best chance for the Governor's nomination would be to raise merry Cain from the back platform of his sound truck at every cross road and in every city of the State.

Thus, it is contended, Cooper wouldn't have taken without a trace of resentment the decision of Durham officials not to let him use his truck in the Bull City. On the contrary, running for the governorship alone, Cooper would have eagerly seized the chance to claim he is being prosecuted. He might even have defied the ordinance and got himself locked up—all of which would have been "smart" politics, as the folks see it.

It is also pointed out that Cooper has studiously refrained from attacking anybody by name. He has shrieked about the "Raleigh gang" and lambasted "those organized politicians," but he has been all sweetness and honey to any specified individual.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy have bobbed up in a political race, and here is why...

Not long ago young Mickey was starred in a picture called "Young Tom Edison" and shortly thereafter Spencer Tracy played the lead in another film that depicted the late, great Thomas A. Edison as a mature man.

Now forget about the movies for a moment. Harold G. Hoffman is campaigning for the governorship of N. J., Edison's state, and aiding him in the campaign is his 19-year-old daughter, Ada, who makes five and six speeches a night. The former governor's opponent in this race will be Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, who is now in the Pacific observing fleet maneuvers.

In Trenton the other night, where she was speaking, Hoffman was asked what she thought of the coming race. "It ought to be a lot of fun," she said, "running against Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy this fall."

After 13,000 miles in a trailer, which he has named "Grand Hotel," because everything happens to that trailer, Hal Kemp is back in New York and not quite sure whether traveling by plane and train isn't the best way after all. On his trip he ran into nothing but sleet and rain. At Asheville, N. C., he returned from a dance to find his trailer in flames.

Near Lula, Ga., it skidded on the road and overturned. Near Spartanburg, S. C., it was stalled for hours in a snowdrift. In Opelousas, La., he awoke with a start to find his hotel on fire. In Nashville, thieves broke into the trailer and stole a set of the band's uniforms. At Johnson City, Tenn., Jack LeMaire, his vocalist, lost his overcoat in a restaurant. And driving in a fog near Indianapolis he ran through a farmer's picket fence. Outside of this, not a single thing happened, except that two of his musicians got married on the trip, two others became fathers, and he, himself, celebrated his first wedding anniversary.

Leslie Howard has an interesting confession in the current World Digest, and one that followers of this actor's career will find hard to believe. "I am one of those unfortunate people to whom any kind of public appearance is an embarrassment," he says. "I always sympathize with those wretched children who are made to exhibit their talents at parties. I myself never suffered thus as a child, for the simple reason that I was utterly devoid of gifts; but from the moment when, offered accidentally and accepted economically, I got my first job on the stage and sheepishly daubed my face with grease paint, I had an inner conviction that this was the most embarrassing occupation in the world. This belief far from being modified by experience, I find to be only intensified with the years. I can conceive all women at all ages wanting to act, and I can conceive certain men of an adolescent age wanting to act, but the idea of middle-aged or elderly men getting any satisfaction out of painting their faces, putting on costumes and wigs and giving vent to their emotions in public is something I cannot understand."

More than 2,000 varieties of strawberries have been described and introduced to American growers in the past 150 years, says E. B. Morrow, State College Experiment Station horticulturist.

So The British Navy Took Another Chance— That's The Way It Came To Rule The Seas

AP Feature Service

Britain's sea war with Germany is right in line with England's thousand-year-old policy—to bank on naval power for conquest and defense.

Since the ninth century, Britain has fought dozens of important sea battles, but none more crucial than these:

1. With the Spanish armada in 1588.
2. With the combined French-Spanish fleet off Trafalgar in 1805.
3. With the Germans in the North Sea in 1916.

In all three, England's survival as a strong nation was at stake. Historians may write that the North Sea battle of April, 1940, added a fourth to the list.

Britain first became a great sea power in the sixteenth century, after the discoveries of Columbus, Vasco de Gama, and the Cabots turned Europe's attention to the possibilities of expansion.

The First 'Navy King'

Henry VIII, rich with the spoils of the expropriated church, poured money into expansion of the fleet, developed ships exclusively for fighting, lowered the heavy cannon into the "broadside" position.

Under Elizabeth all this bore fruit. Drake, Frobenisher, Raleigh and Hawkins ravished the gold-dripping Spanish Main. In 1587, Drake "singled the King of Spain's beard" by a daring raid on Cadiz.

The following year, the great Spanish Armada set out to crush England's smaller English fleet met it in the Channel and cut it to pieces. That was the beginning of the end for Spain as a power.

'Middle Class' Navy

The next great period of British sea glory came when the rising, revolutionary middle class established the Commonwealth in 1649. The regular fleet, loyal to the Royalists, joined the Dutch Parliament gave command at sea to Robert Blake. In seven years, Blake defeated the Royalist fleet, the Portuguese, the Dutch, the pirates of Algeria and the Spanish, and made the British fleet a power in the Mediterranean for the first time.

Under Queen Anne the British rose to new triumphs. At Vigo, in 1702, Admiral Rooke destroyed a combined Spanish-French navy, later beat the French at Malaga.

U. S. And French Win

The American Revolutionary war brought reverses to the English. The newly-reorganized French fleet joined with the Americans and inflicted heavy defeats on the British. In 1782, however, Rodney trounced the French fleet off the Grasse at Guadeloupe. In the War of 1812 the British fleet blockaded America.

Napoleon, after he fell from power, commented: "In all my plans I have always been thwarted by the British fleet." The French Revolution and the appearance of Napoleon found England prepared with a group of top-notch commanders—Jervis, Duncan, Cornwallis, Keith, Howe, Hood, Collingwood and Nelson—who did as much as anyone to break Bonaparte's power.

In 1793, Hood occupied Toulon and Howe crushed the French fleet. In 1794, Hood captured Corsica and the British beat the French three times. In 1796, the fleet seized the Cape of Good Hope. In 1797, the British crushed the Spanish off Cape St. Vincent. In 1798, the British foiled a French invasion of Ireland, and the same year the British won command of the Mediterranean by shattering the French in the Battle of the Nile. In 1799, the Dutch fleet surrendered, defeated. In 1800, the British seized Malta. In 1801, the British attacked Copenhagen and smashed the Danish fleet. Then, in 1805, Nelson covered the combined French-Spanish fleet off Trafalgar and beat it so badly that Napoleon was finished, although the war lasted 10 years more.

For a century after the Napoleonic wars, Britain remained supreme at sea. By 1861, the British had evolved the principle of the modern gun turret, and by 1880 were building "class" of ships in recognition of the concept that a navy's strength depends greatly on the matched quality of the ships composing it. In 1905, the British began working on a monster steel ship called the "Dreadnought."

World War Test

Britain entered the World War as queen of the seas. Nevertheless, one big question worried Allied strategists: Might not the German fleet be strong enough to break their blockade?

The test came May 31, 1916, when the British and the Germans met off Denmark in one of the great naval encounters of history, the battle of Jutland.

Hostilities began in the afternoon, raged through the whole night. When it was over Britain had lost 3 battle cruisers, 3 cruisers and 8 torpedo boats. Germany had lost 1 battleship, 1 battle cruiser, 4 light cruisers and 5 torpedo boats. In personnel, Britain sustained losses of 177 men captured and 6,097 killed; Germany lost 2,545 killed, none captured.

Apparently, therefore, Britain was the loser. Actually, the British were left in undisputed mastery of the North Sea. The German fleet never again challenged the British.

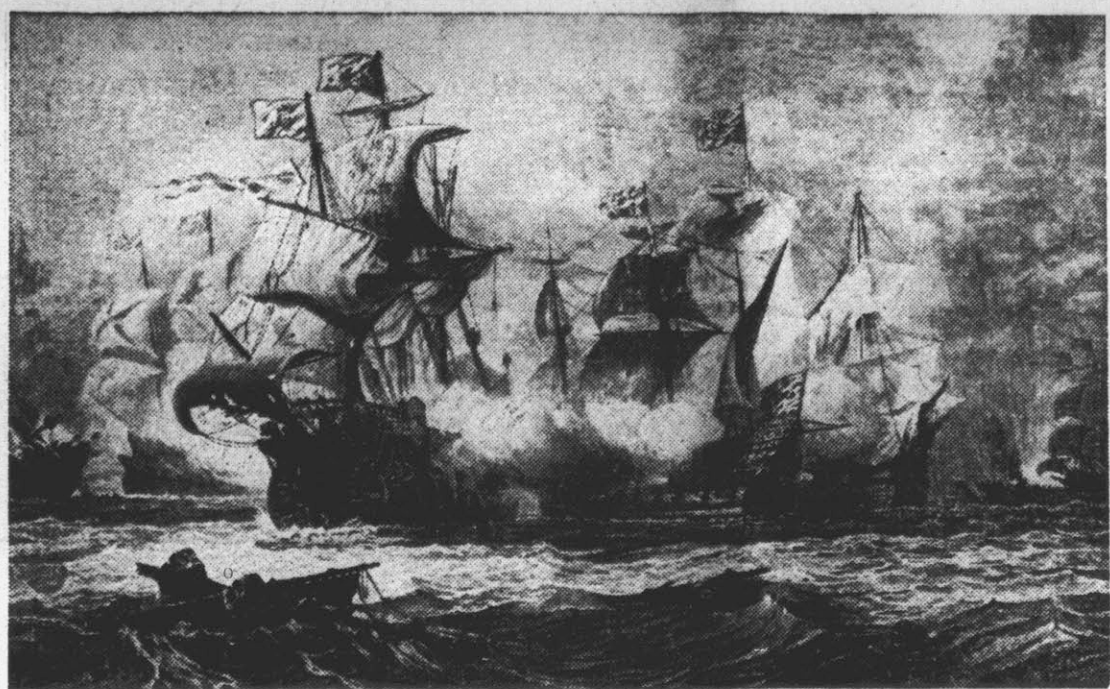

At the beginning of the present war, Britain had a far larger navy than Germany. The Germans counted on their vastly superior air force to even things.

Subtle Attack

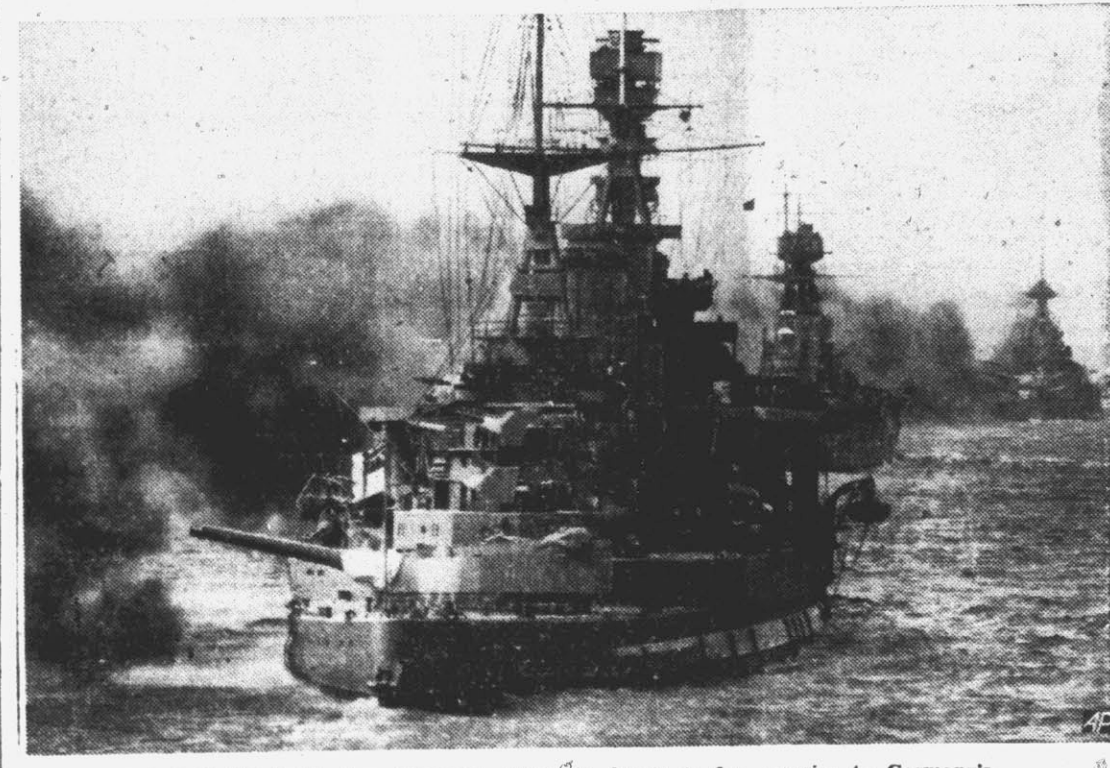

Bucharest.—(AP)—Should Russians march into Bessarabia, Rumania plans to use brandy as well as bullets to repulse them.

In the last war, when Russians were in Rumania as allies, Rumanians say they guzzled all the liquor they could get their hands on and that their drunkennes resulted in several defeats.

As a strategic move, a reliable informant said, the general staff has moved big stocks of cheap brandy and vodka into the frontier region, to make liquor easily available to the Russians if they enter.

The Spanish armada gave the British navy its first crucial issue.

Today's British battle line (Renown, Hood, in front) is far superior to Germany's.

Accredited Lists Shows School Progress In N.C.

Reflector Bureau

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 23—Progress of North Carolina's school system is vividly shown by the increase in the "accredited" list for elementary schools from 1924 to the 1937-8 school year, the superintendent of public instruction points out as an analysis of the "accredited" statistics as published in this month's issue of "State School Facts."

These figures show that in 1924 (when the "accredited" system was introduced) only 56 out of 3,791 white elementary schools qualified, while for 1937-38 out of 1,884 elementary schools 1,626 in the county and 258 in the city systems' 578 are duly "accredited" (390 in the county, 188 in the city systems); and what is more important is that 56 per cent of all white pupils are attending accredited elementary schools. This compares with 36.4 per cent for 1929-30, the first school year for which enrollment percentages are available.

For Negro schools the progress has not been so rapid yet even a casual glance shows that much has been accomplished. It was not until 1928-29 that any Negro school made the grade. In that year two out of 2,240 attained it. In 1937-38 there were 27 accredited Negro schools out of 2,173.

It should be pointed out that no less than 2,022 of those not making the accredited list for Negroes failed on the requirement that calls for at least one teacher for every grade and a six or seven-year course of study. So actually there were only 151 schools which passed this test and were otherwise eligible.

A total of 1,029 white schools likewise had less than seven teachers, leaving 855 otherwise eligible for accredited honors.

In order to be an accredited school the following minimum standards must be met: in addition to the length of course and teacher per grade essentials already mentioned:

- (1) A majority of teachers holding Class A certificates; (2) a minimum term of 160 actual teaching days; (3) an average attendance of 32-36 pupils per teacher; (4) an accurate scholastic, attendance and health record for each pupil enrolled; (5) a minimum equipment with reference to (a) library, (b) supplementary readers, (c) dictionaries, (d) maps and globes, (e) special classroom materials for art, music, penmanship, etc.; and (6) an adequate and sanitary building.

Only one county system in the state (Lenoir) has all its white schools on the accredited list, while at the other end there are a dozen (Alleghany, Camden, Cherokee, Chowan, Clay, Dare, Halifax, Hertford, Hyde, Watauga, Wilkes and Wilson) which have no accredited schools at all.

In the city groups there are 17 of thirty five systems with 100 per cent accredited schools (Asheville, Durham, Gastonia, High Point, Rocky Mount, Goldsboro, Kinston, Salisbury, Shelby, Concord, Elizabeth City, Greenville, Hamlet, New Bern, Roanoke Rapids, Statesville, and Tarboro). This refers to white schools.

There are only four county systems with any accredited Negro schools (Lee, Warren, Nash and Hertford).

Five city systems have all Negro schools on the accredited list (Gastonia, High Point, Salisbury, Hickory and Lexington). At the other end 21 city systems have no accredited Negro elementary schools (Asheville, Winston-Salem, Goldsboro, Kinston, Burlington, Oxford, Wilson, Leaksville, Henderson, Concord, Greenville, Hamlet, New Bern, Roanoke Rapids, Statesville, Tarboro, Mt. Airy, Washington, Marion, Canton, Reidsville and Thomasville).

SENATOR LEE OF OKLAHOMA URGES DEMOCRATS TO DRAFT ROOSEVELT FOR THIRD TERM

down-trodden and the people will show their confidence in him at the polls," he added, and recalled that every preferential primary had been a demand for Roosevelt.

At the beginning of his address Sen. Lee announced that he brought greetings from Congressman Warren and Senators Bailey and Reynolds and added that he was happy to make an address under the auspices of the Young Democratic Clubs. He reviewed his personal history in brief, recalling that his father was born in Union county of this state; he was born in Alabama, later settling in Oklahoma.

He stated that he was a school teacher turned politician and also recalled that he was a graduate of law, although he had never practiced the profession, "preferring to make an honest living." The quip brought smiles and laughs as many of those present were lawyers. In recalling his school days he drew the comparison that a "teacher makes his bed and lies in it, while the politician makes his bunk and lies out of it." He added, however, that he had been a politician only a short while. The Oklahoma man was elected to the House in 1934, later successfully running for the Senate.

The speaker, after the few remarks in fun, opened his address with the statement that Roosevelt had not finished the job he had undertaken and added that while he did not look for an immediate statement from the chief executive, he did not believe he wanted to leave a task unfinished. He advised that the president could not decide the third term issue, "he can only accept or decline your decision." It is no use to wait for the president to declare himself, if the people prefer to change the two-term precedent, then it should be changed. He observed that if we had the direct ballot system of naming a president there would be no doubt of the outcome and then asked, under this situation why should we not instruct our convention delegates to support the chief executive, "thereby carrying out the true sense of democracy."

"The Republican party is showing some signs of life," he remarked, adding "I thought after 1936 it was dead for good."

He said that the most life the party was showing was in criticism. He declared that leaders of that party were declaring that they would carry out Roosevelt's program but better and with no cost.

"No Republican candidate has advocated outright repeal of a single one of Roosevelt's programs," he observed and added that the people were not being deceived by the criticism of the republican candidates.

Speaking of Thomas E. Dewey, GOP candidate, Sen. Lee declared he only had a "prosecution record and a mousetrap" without any program of his own. Of Taft the senator declared "he has a good name and a good waistline, both of which he inherited from his father and neither of which he carries as well."

The criticism of the Republican record in Congress, the speaker declared members of the party, along with some "reactionary democrats," had voted against every administration program which, Sen. Lee said, "would have taken up the slack. He specifically mentioned the relief, social security and farm bills.

"These Republicans are the same ones who marched under the Liberty League banner in 1936," he added.

The remark which drew the loudest applause of the evening was when the speaker declared that "when prosperity comes back in full measure it will come through the barn door."

In defending new deal spending, the senator stated that unlike an individual, who, when he has spent his money it is gone, the government by spending money puts it into circulation. "It sets up redistribution and starts pumping money out of Wall Street in Main Street."

The new deal policy simply is taking from those who are able and providing jobs for those who are unable to find private employment otherwise he remarked.

"Which is better," he asked, "100 men with a million dollars or a million men with $100 each?"

"Money being spent by this administration is spent by Americans and for Americans," he contended, as compared with the huge sums which went abroad under Republican regimes.

Declaring that "we might have made some mistakes," the speaker asked "are we going to burn down the barn to kill a few rats?"

"Don't look at the little superficial things that are wrong, compare conditions today with those of 1932," he admonished, "it is a question of what the Republicans have done to us and what the Democrats have done for us."

In discussing changes in the party, he gave his listeners what he termed a lesson in political science. He declared that times have changed and that improvements have been made to "streamline" the party, and bring it up to date. He declared that we are inter-dependent because of the increasing complexities of civilization. "The government can not ignore the needs of the people without suffering."

"It is just as much the duty of the government to prevent the financial powerful from oppressing the poor as it is the duty of the government to prevent the giant from crushing the child," he declared.

He review the days just before the Democratic administration assumed office. "This country has not forgotten the last hundred days of the Hoover regime, when class revolution threatened the nation," he declared and continued, "in those dark hours came a voice calling a crusade for a new deal, the voice of Mr. Roosevelt."

S. B. Underwood, Jr. president of the Pitt county YDC club, presided over the meeting and presented Mayor Jack Spain, who made a brief address of welcome.

YDC officials and candidates recognized were: Paul Liverman of Plymouth, district YDC president;

Miss Patsy Davenport of Greenville, district YDC vice-president; Forrest Pollard of Durham, State YDC president; Miss Beulah Langston of Raleigh, State YDC vice president; Miss Mary Graham Croom of Raleigh, national committeewoman; Libby Ward, speaker of the 1939 House of Representatives; Paul Grady, gubernatorial candidate; Erskine Smith, candidate for Lieutenant Governor; Kerr Scott and Weyland Sprull, candidates for Agriculture commissioner; Thad Eure, candidate for re-election as Secretary of State.

Members of YDC clubs represented at the meeting were presented. Included in the group was the recently organized East Carolina Teachers College club.

Following Senator Lee's address, Chairman Underwood called on Dr.

Paul E. Jones of Farmville, chairman of the County Democratic Executive committee, who praised the speaker's address and the spirit exhibited at the meeting.

Hoover Taft, State YDC organizer, introduced Sen. Lee, paying high tribute to the Oklahoman, regarded as one of the ablest speakers in Congress, a reputation which was fully justified at his appearance here. Mr. Taft declared that writers, fiction, magazine, scenario, etc., had turned to the South for subjects and added it was because of the South's abundance of outstanding men, and added that Mr. Lee was one of these, "having been born in Alabama of a father born in North Carolina, educated in Tennessee and later moving to Oklahoma."

Strength For The Day

A GLORIOUS BUNGLER Stanley Jones tells the amusing story of how a simpleton was mightily used by Christ in a series of evangelistic services.

It seems that the minister holding these services asked for volunteer workers, and among those who presented themselves was a middle-aged man known throughout the community as not entirely normal.

The minister of the church was at the prominent man's office early the next morning. "My dear brother," he said as he entered the office, "our church owes you a great apology."

Certainly, as Stanley Jones said, nobody could do personal work in a more bungling fashion than did the simpleton, but the Lord uses even the words of fools to bring to shame the wisdom of the worldly wise.

The Young Democratic rally here last night was a success from the standpoint of an enthusiastic gathering together with an interesting speaker, but frankly we do not agree with Senator Lee, whose subject might well be titled "A Third Term For Roosevelt or Nothing." Instead of dealing with the ideals and accomplishments of Democracy, the Senator dwelt almost entirely on "Mr. Roosevelt's unfinished task", declaring that there were no hands capable of substituting for those of Franklin D. Roosevelt in guiding the ship of state of this nation, and urging the Young Democrats to take every step possible to see to it that the North Carolina Democratic State Convention sends a delegation to Chicago instructed to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. We reiterate that we do not agree with Senator Lee's belief that there is no one capable of substituting for Mr. Roosevelt, for the Democracy we have learned from early childhood did not teach us that out of more than 130,000,000 people in this great nation of ours there could be but one man capable of being head of our government. It is indeed a sad picture for our Democratic form of government if we share the Senator's apparent belief that all will end unless we break all precedents of our more than 150 years of progress and place Mr. Roosevelt in the White House for a third term. There has never yet been a man-made job that some-one else beside that particular job holder could not fill equally as well, and we believe there are other men in the Democratic party fully capable of taking over the reins of our government.

Levy Levee Chapter 17 'Interference' 'DO YOU think a woman proud enough to refuse your money all that time—to make no effort to patch up the quarrel—do you think she tolerates your finding her in her present circumstances?' asked Brenda. 'Linda is proud,' he said again. 'Proud as the devil!' 'You're not exactly a lamb for meekness yourself, my Hugh! Now listen to Auntie. First, write the bank and find out whether she's using the money you pay in for her—'

He gestured impatiently. 'No need to! Of course she's not. I see all now. Why was I fool enough to think she'd accept money from me when—when—'

'Be careful! You're not to tell me about it, you know.' She paused, her thoughts busy with this intriguing problem. 'Let it alone, Hugh,' she said at last. 'I mean—give me a day or so to think what should be done. It will have to be the right thing. One false move, and your Linda will have found—'

'My Linda,' he muttered, passing one big clever hand over his forehead. 'My Linda! How I wish she were—again!' His caller's grave face brightened. 'Grand! Fifty per cent of the situation is okay, at any rate. If I'd had both of you to struggle with—'

He snorted. 'If you thought for one minute, Brenda Burnham, that Linda's leaving me was by my wish—with my consent—any— then you're not the smart girl I considered you.'

'Practically everybody on The Street thinks you ordered her out!'

'Then practically everybody on The Street is a fool!'

'Perhaps, Hugh, do you feel perfectly well? It's getting fallish, you know—and lots of people have flu and flu can so easily get into pneumonia. Don't you feel a little feverish and achy?' she inquired hopefully.

'What the dickens?—Brenda, are you losing your mind? I am in excellent health, thank you. Not that it matters,' he tacked on with bitterness.

LITTLE SPITEFIRE

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: Brenda's letter from New York says that Linda, Hugh's wife, is clerking in a bargain basement. Hugh can't understand it because he sends Linda $500 a month.

HE GRINNED. 'Didn't I tell you we have no secrets here on The Street? No, Dorothy didn't tell me Mrs. Arnold did. She called me up at the office this morning and poured out her woes.'

'Called you up at the office about Dorothy's hair?' Brenda was aghast. She leaned forward urgently. 'Mac, tell me! That was what I was going to ask you. Is there anything the matter with Dorothy's hair?'

'Nothing that I know of—save its small size, Dorothy's mind,' he elaborated. 'Is so small you're always falling off the edge of it and bruising yourself. Now you're warned, Brenda! Keep off! Let Dorothy and Mrs. Arnold settle the vexed question of curls or no curls.'

She sighed. 'I thought a telegram to Linda, saying that you were at death's door—'

'We'll; there might be two opinions about that! Oh, calm down, little Brenda! I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Great Scott! Haven't I put my fate in your hands?'

'Oh, Hugh, have you?' She was pleased and proud. 'I'll do my very best for you, I promise you. She rose for the second time. 'I'll run on back now and think. There must be some simple, natural way out of this thing, and we'll find it; you'll see!'

'Hereafter,' she pronounced grimly, 'you're to telephone me when you get these mad urges to visit Hugh Saltus! At least I can see that you're chaperoned!'

THE other letter which interested Brenda that morning was from Ned Barrow. It announced that its writer would return by the end of the week, and demanded to know what she had done for his cause with Elaine Abernathy.

'Thank goodness this presents no complications,' the girl mused. 'I shall have a straightforward talk with him, and either prove or disprove that story against him. There's to be no silly misunderstanding in this case!'

Despite herse, her mind dwelt on Mac. Since their latest quarrel he had preserved a sort of armed friendliness; politeness, at all events. He inquired each evening as to the progress of her book; she in turn made courteous comment on his newest advertising display. She knew all about those displays by this time, envied Mac his crisp, succinct use of words, his economy of expression, his secret she believed him possessed of a somewhat rare ability—and would have died before admitting it to him!

B. Benton in a mighty close race in Johnston in 1938, will have to do it again if he is to hold his seat. J. C. Pitman, Lee 1937 but out in 1939, is again a candidate. Ashby Robinson who won his very first political race for the House in 1939 is trying for the McDowell Senate seat this time, opposed by L. J. P. Cutlar. Jerry Hughes is trying to do a third-term act in the First where it isn't often tried. Roy Rowe, Pender 1937, is without opposition. J. Con Lanier who couldn't beat Arthur Corey in Pitt last time is trying again. Rockingham's J. Hampton Price, 1939, drew E. M. Rush for an opponent. Rowan's E. C. Gregory must beat B. B. Miller, Jr. or else. Lin Mallentine, 1937 and 1939, has two Wake foes.

It was late, but inevitable. At last there is beginning to develop at least a nite of animosity in the current gubernatorial race. Supporters of J. M. Broughton and Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton are beginning to growl at each other just a little bit, though not loud enough to prestage much of a dog fight.

It does irritate Broughton followers, however, for Hortonites to tote photostatic copies of the lobbyist record showing that the Raleigh lawyer represented what they choose to call "slot machines" in 1937. As a matter of fact the company has nothing on earth to do with anything resembling the famed and obnoxious "one-armed bandit" type of slot machine. Stewart and McGuire, the firm in question, sell only legitimate machines which in turn sell merchandise such as peanuts, etc.

Still another straw poll has come to your reporter's attention, and it, too, Broughton leads, making him first in three and second in the only other one this bureau has seen. The Fuquay Independent finds that 34.3 per cent are for Broughton, 31.2 per cent for Paul Grady, 15.6 per cent for Tom Cooper, 12.5 per cent for A. J. Maxwell, 6.2 per cent for W. P. Horton, and none for Lee Gravelly or Arthur Simmons.

In that same poll the Independent shows State Senator L. Y. Ballentine getting 100 per cent of the ballots, but naively explains that may have been caused, in part, by the fact that it "inadvertently" left his principal opponent's name off its ballot. That probably did have just a little to do with it.

WORSER THAN WAR

Are we at war with one another? Or do we realize this fact? An eighth grade civics class of Greenville High School is attacking this problem with all seriousness and intelligence. These young people can see the need for a drastic change of driving habits. Surely they will make better drivers, and after reading these facts you should strive to do the same.

A person who exceeds the speed limit and takes long chances, is not accomplishing anything that could not be done by a child or the simplest dumb person. Either of these could press the accelerator. Our nation has engaged in six major wars since 1818 birth of 1776. In total these wars extended over a period of fifteen years. The number of American soldiers killed in action or died from wounds during these fifteen years of war was 244,357. Now look at a fifteen year peace-time record of death on the highways.

In 1923-18,031. In 1937-40,300. This is an increase of close to two thousand yearly, which brings the peak year of 1937-40,000. The total deaths from automobile accidents over this peace-time period of fifteen years, 1923-37 is 441,912. A ghastly number that registers a total of 196,943 or almost twice as many deaths from accidents as in all the wars that this nation has fought!

Do you know how quickly you can stop your car? There is a reaction time in which your car travels a considerable distance before your foot is applied to the brakes, then a greater distance after you apply the brake before your car is stopped. This total distance increases greatly with speed.

At 20 miles per hour the reaction time is 22 feet, and the braking time is 22 feet. A total brakeage distance of 44 feet. At 60 m.p.h., a car travels 44 feet reaction time and 198 feet after the break is applied. These are distances traveled while thinking to apply the break, and after the brake is applied, before the car is brought to a stop.

No doubt there are many people who will say this is not true. They are drivers who should really check their knowledge or stay out of a car. Because these records are actual figures that have been derived from tests made by the National Safety Council. These tests were made on good conditional roads, with tires at their best, and the brakes in excellent condition. These facts were obtained from

Greenville Planning Gala Opening Game on Thursday

PLAYS WILSON AT SMITH PARK

Parade To Precede Opening Game At 3:30 P.M.

The Greenville baseball directors and, in fact, the whole town, are planning for a gala opening here on Thursday afternoon when the Greenies pry the lid off the 1940 baseball season at Guy Smith park with the Wilson Tobs as the opening day foe.

The two teams will square off at 3:30 o'clock, the contest having been set for an afternoon tilt.

The game is scheduled to follow a parade from the court house square, along Evans street to Dickinson avenue to the Atlantic Coast Line tracks.

It was considered at one time asking the merchants to close their stores, but this idea was abandoned, because of the fact that many out-of-town shoppers come here on Thursday and these patrons would be greatly inconvenienced if the stores closed their doors.

The Greenies were scheduled to engage the Harrisburg Senators in a contest at Guy Smith Stadium tonight, following yesterday's 8-2 defeat at the hands of the Sunbury, Pa., team at Kinston. Rain which started about 2 o'clock threatened to force postponement of tonight's contest.

Skipper Rube Wilson continues his attempts to shape his group of rookies into a well-rounded team. Approximately two score are on the roster at present.

Require Children To Buy $1 Tickets

Children under 12 years of age will be sold season tickets to the local Coastal Plain baseball games this year for one dollar, it has been decided by the Board of Directors of the Club.

In former years children have been given tickets, but it was decided this year to charge the small fee. The children, however, will be subject to regulations laid down for them to observe and if these are flagrantly violated the ticket will be redeemed.

Children's tickets may be purchased either from H. A. White and Sons on Evans street or The Flanagan Buggy Company on East Fourth street.

When chopping, cotton left thick in the row will put on more bolls early in the season and will be better able to produce higher yields under boll weevil conditions.

Crops varieties demonstrations to determine adaptability and best yields are being started throughout the state, report farm agents of the State College Extension Service.

This is to remind you that Sunday, April 28th, is 4-H club day. In your own community 4-H club members are to take part in the church program, Sunday school or prayer meetings. Be sure that each club member attends some church.

Where it is possible to do so each 4-H club member should wear the 4-H uniform.

Keep this question bright in mind, "What Can I Do to Make My Community Grow and Glow?" Now that schools are on the verge of closing, don't forget while your teachers are away to go back to the school grounds and see that they are kept in order all summer, this will help to make your community look better. Watch the baby chicks grow. Don't allow them to get cold during these cold snaps.

As soon as possible make a roost for them when they are about two weeks old, this will draw them from the hover.

I trust all 4-H club members will put the 4-H club pledge in practice this summer. This is it: "My head to clearer thinking, My heart to greater loyalty, My hands to better service, and My health to better living for my club, my community, and my country."—Dennis Dupree, Negro county agent.

Wilson Is Counting On Its Corps Of Pitchers

Tobs Have Eight Carryovers From Last Year's Team

By ED W. DAVIS
Wilson, April 23—Despite the fact the Tobacconists boast eight carryovers from last season their prospects for 1940 are just about as uncertain as a wetherman's prediction for an April opening day.

With a young and untried infield the status of the Tobs will be in doubt until well after the season is underway, but meanwhile Skipper Frank Rodgers is counting heavily on the clubbing of his outfielders and the cunning of his chunkeys to keep the team's head above water until the infield has shown its ability under heavy cannonading.

Return of Luis Olmo, the hard-hitting Puerto Rican fly-chaser, settled the outfield problem of the Tobs. Olmo's status was very uncertain for a time and he put in an appearance on the day his probable successor fractured an ankle sliding into home plate. Olmo will patrol the right pasture, the sure-fielding Tob skipper will cavort in centerfield while in left will be found the ever-dependable Earl Carnahan.

In the infield, composed entirely of new faces as far as Wilson is concerned, are two dangerous men and two who are yet to show their ability to stand the withering fire of a 128-game campaign. The dynamiters are Phil Morris, first baseman, who pounded the apple at a 377 clip for Avden in 1938, and who is counted on heavily as a spearhead of the Tobs offensive, and Angelo Mariana, third sacker, who pucks a sette, teh local high school flinger who made good in a big way last season, Jack Threfall, Joe Talley, all limited service men and Firpo Creason, veteran fast baller. Threfall and Creason have not yet hit their stride. Bissette has been handicapped by a torn ligament in his back and Talley is still teaching school.

Two newcomers are expected to break into the Tob hurling corps, however. They are Karl Williams, righthander, who was with Greenville two years ago, and Claude Ungerer, rookie southpaw, and a couple of others who promise development.

All in all the Tobs loom as a more dangerous team offensively than in 1939 but indications are the inner defense will not be as impenetrable. However, that remains to be seen. But if their expected batting prowess materializes it will more than offset the miscues they'll make by a wide margin.

While not making any claims to the 1940 pennant Manager Rodgers frankly says he expects to have a contender, a team that will be in the thick of the fight from the opening gong to the final day. He's counting heavily on his hurlers and if they come through another successful year faces the Tobs.

DEMAND NOTED FOR SOYBEANS

Increase Of 400 Per Cent Shown In U.S. Exports

Raleigh, April 23.—(AP)—Soybean exportation from the United States this year will depend largely on the progress of the European war, as well as the situation in the Orient. C. B. Williams, head of the State College Agronomy department, pointed out today.

In the six-month period between September, 1939, and February, 1940, the United States exported 2,637,000 bushels of soybeans, 86.1 per cent going to Canada and 7.5 per cent to the Netherlands.

In the corresponding period one year later, 10,913,000 bushels were exported, 31.2 per cent entering Canada and 60.7 per cent going to the Netherlands. This represented an increase in exports of more than 400 per cent.

Contrasting the 1938-39 period and the 1939-40 period, Williams pointed out that Canada increased her imports of the beans by 50 per cent, while the Netherlands showed an increase of 3,238 per cent.

The total production of soybeans in the United States in 1939 was approximately 87,000,000 bushels; 17.4 times the production in 1924, the first year accurate figures on yields were available.

At the present time, indications point to an 18 per cent increase in soy bean production this year. If exports increase in the fall and winter of 1940-41 as much as they did in the 1939-40 period, farmers may expect a fairly good price for their beans.

As an indicating trend, Williams explained that No. 2 yellow soybeans sold in Chicago at 88 cents a bushel in 1939, and $1.14 in 1940.

Pruning Brings Results
Wenatchee, Wash.—(AP)—A shave and a haircut for some of the yellow pine in the Wenatchee National forest costs about 14 1/2 cents. CCC crews work these pruning lower branches off the trees, up to a height of 18 feet. Trees picked are the smaller ones, with a diameter of from six to eight inches and a height of 30 to 35 feet. The timber trimmed in this manner eventually makes lumber free of knots. Forest Supervisor Walter H. Lund explained. On each of 580 acres near Lake Wenatchee some 40 trees were picked out for such special pruning and for six feet around each tree brush was also cut away. The CCC workers average about a half an acre a man a day.

Good pasture is the great diet balancer, in the case of hogs as in the case of other livestock, according to Ellis Vestal, swine specialist of the State College Extension Service.
