PLANS TO APPEAL
FOR '40 PROGRAM

Co-Author To Ask
President To Delay
Returning Bill Until He Talks With Proponents

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—Rep. Fulmer (D.S.C.) said today he had learned indirectly from the White House that President Roosevelt had vetoed a bill to extend the federal crop insurance program to cotton.

Fulmer, co-author of the legislation, said he and other advocates of the measure planned to appeal to the President at Hyde Park to delay returning the bill to the House until they had an opportunity to discuss it with him.

Fulmer said he would try to impress upon the chief executive the fact that while losses might be expected under the cotton insurance phase of the program at the outset, the cost would "be nothing compared to what the government is spending now in relief of distress due to crop failures resulting from floods, droughts and similar disasters."

Martin Minister
Succumbs at Home

Rev. William T. Pollard, 70-year-old Free Will Baptist minister of near Robersonville, died at 10:30 o'clock last night following an extended illness of about two years.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lillie Harrison of near Robersonville, by Rev. E. L. Alboms, Free Will Baptist minister of Tarboro, assisted by Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist minister of near Robersonville.

Rev. Mr. Pollard had held pastorates in Pitt and Martin counties and also was engaged in the farming industry. About nine years ago he moved from Pitt county to just across the line in Martin county.

He is survived by his one daughter and one son, Willie Pollard of Everetts, 23 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Banker Addresses
College Students

At the College assembly Friday, J. H. Waldrop, a former student and a member of the E. C. T. C. Alumni Association, talked to an interested audience about his days on the campus in 1910, and urged the students listening to help build up a strong alumni group; and Mrs. Louis Gaylor, a member of the same class, responded to her introduction with a comment on the value of her diploma and a statement of the importance of cooperation of students and former students with their alma mater.

They were introduced by J. B. Cummings, of the faculty advisory committee, who presented also Miss Estelle McCles, the Alumni Secretary.

Mr. Waldrop gave the students of this year a picture of the campus life in 1910 when he was one of 17 boys in a student body of 222, with a faculty of 13 members. Contrasting first in size, he spoke of the student body which last fall passed the 1200 mark, the faculty that now numbers over eighty-five and the growth from five buildings to over 25.

Calling President Wright "one of the gentlest and kindest men I have ever known," and speaking with pleasure of 30 years of association with him, he told of experiences with him and other members of the early faculty, and paid tribute to each.

"There were many differences, said Mr. Waldrop, in the social life then and now, and illustrated his point with some of the early regulations. Going to college then was more a business, a real job, than now, perhaps, but was also fun, he declared.

There is a contrast, too, in the fixed course of that time and the wide choice of courses possible now. Mr. Waldrop closed with a statement that he had once figured up the amount contributed by the state to the education of a student at the college and had found that North Carolina then was making a contribution of around $300 a year toward the expense of each student. This being true, he concluded, every graduate owes something to the college and the state. Each should work for the college and support it as he can best through the Alumni Association.

Nazis Sweep Through Norway

The shaded area on this map shows the portion of Norway under control of the Germans in the wake of allied withdrawals from their front lines and landing places above and below Trondheim. British and French troops continued to press against Narvik (1) but the Allies withdrew in the Namsos area (2). Nazis continued to pour into Trondheim (3), although British planes bombed Oslo (4) and other German air bases. The white lines indicate air bomber distances from Germany's Sylt air base to British objectives. The black lines show distances from new German air bases in Norway.

Settlement

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—The Sinclair Oil company has reached a settlement with Mexico over seizure of oil properties, reliable sources here and in Mexico City said today.

In State Department circles, however, the opinion was expressed that the diplomatic controversy over expropriation would continue.

The other United States company involved in the expropriation controversy, the Standard Oil of New Jersey, has not reached any agreement, it was said and the belief was expressed that the Department would continue to demand prompt indemnification of this company or submission of the problem to arbitration.

Secretary of State Hull suggested arbitration to Mexico some time ago and Mexico's reply, which is understood to reject this suggestion, is now being decided by the department. It will be made public tomorrow by the two governments.

The Mexico City report of the Sinclair Oil settlement was that an agreement had been reached for the delivery of Mexican oil to the Consolidated Oil company (Sinclair).

Talk for as much as a minute to each of a dozen politically-wise people who usually know the answers. Get out a pencil and paper and figure the State county by county. Look long and hard into a crystal ball. Toss a coin. Do almost anything, in fact, except ask the candidates or their managers—you get pure hokum there.

After doing all that you'll probably still be wandering around in circles, scratching your head and eventually deciding "To the Devil with it, what do I care who's going to win anyway"—that is, unless you are in one of the categories enu-

A Stockholm newspaper said Nazi troops were occupying the deserted city and occupying other points in the region deserted by the Allies.

Col. O. B. Getz, acting commander of the Norwegian forces in the central area, who yesterday asked Germany for an armistice district, issued a new order of the day this morning in which he said that effective today the fight against the Germans was finished.

Scotland Neck, May 4.—(AP)—E. L. Keeter, 61, Weidon night watchman, was convicted in Halifax Superior court last night on second degree murder charges in connection with the slaying of Deputy Sheriff William Pope, 24, of Weidon, April 3.

Judge Leo Carr sentenced Keeter to serve 30 years. The jury had deliberated two hours.

Your Raleigh reporter has tried just about all the methods of prognostication known to ancient or modern science or metaphysics; and hasn't yet formed an opinion satisfactory even to himself.

The latest approach was to make a painstaking survey of reports reaching him about every county in the state—listing the candidates who they indicate, will run one, two and three in each county; recapitulating by assigning a value of 3 to first place, 2 to second place and 1 to third place; then adding up each candidate's score.

The result was to indicate again an astonishingly close battle among the generally conceded top three. Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton, J. M. Broughton and Allen J. Maxwell.

Military Command
Accuses Allies of "Incomprehensible Action" In Leaving
Without Notice

By The Associated Press.
A 25-day German blitzkrieg has brought almost two-thirds of Norway under German sway and ousted allied expeditionary forces from all but the northernmost region.

Organized Norwegian resistance collapsed in the wake of the allied withdrawal, which cost Britain not only strategically important Norway, but aroused a storm of bitter domestic criticism against the Chamberlain government.

Norway's central military command asked the invading Germans for an armistice and accused the Allies of "incomprehensible action" in not giving them due notice of their retreat.

As the Norwegians laid down their arms, swift-moving German forces poured into new territory, occupying Namsos, Grong and other central points.

There was some scattered guerrilla resistance by Norwegians, but in the main fighting was over for them.

Allied troops remained in Norway only in the Narvik sector, where they are trying to oust German forces around the ore port and the French War Ministry at Paris announced today that allied forces had surrounded 3,000 or 4,000 Germans in the Narvik sector and that the positions of the Germans there was desperate.

At home the Chamberlain government faced a mounting barrage of criticism and members of the Prime Minister's own Conservative party verged on rebellion in protest against the government's conduct of the war.

Local Club Hears
Professor Hollar

Historical relationships between the United States and Canada were discussed by Prof. E. C. Hollar of the East Carolina Teachers College, faculty at the Greenville Kiwanis club's regular weekly meeting last night.

Mr. Hollar stressed the friendly relations which have existed between the two countries, pointing out that the border between the two was not fortified.

He explained that Canada's only means of protecting its coastline was the British fleet and pointed out that if this were destroyed, the neighboring country would be entirely dependent upon the United States.

The speaker reviewed relationships of the two countries from their settlement, recalling that they had participated in four wars against each other. He reminded that since 1812 the two have lived in peace, although a border dispute was arbitrated in 1842.

He declared that it was necessary to both that peace continue to reign between the two.

Mr. Hollar's address was in line with the club's observance of the anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot agreement, making possible 100 years of unfortified border and no naval forces on the Great Lakes sufficient to be used in time of war.

Dr. J. M. Barrett had charge of the program and presented Secretary D. C. Moore, Jr., who read messages from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

Special music was provided by Vernon Kutmeyer and Orville Morton.

Besides those on the program, the club had one guest, Albert Clark of Clarksville, West Va.

DECLARE FAIR
HUGE SUCCESSMore Than Seven Hundred Attend
School Affair

Last night's "School Fair," attended by more than 700 parents and high school pupils, caused many comments by enthusiastic faculty and students as they dismantled exhibits and put library and classroom facilities back into working order this morning.

"The largest crowd of visitors ever to attend a Greenville High School function," said J. H. Rose, superintendent, "were 500 or more parents present which means a great deal to both students and faculty."

"It was a grand success as a demonstration of parents' interest in the schools," said Miss Ona Shindler, whose Mixed Chorus won new acclaim for its part in the program.

"Not only our visitors but our own faculty and students learn more about our school from an affair of this kind," stated Herman Dally, a member of the committee which arranged the meeting.

"No one had to work too hard, due to the fine cooperation and zest shown by the entire faculty and student body," said Miss Evelyn Buchanan, mathematics instructor.

"This is about the finest thing we've ever done at Greenville High School," said smiling Janie Eakes, president of the student body.

"Next time," said Miss Zell Jones, junior high school teacher, "we must have everyone register. Some of these folk couldn't stay for the program in the auditorium and we have no way of knowing just how many have visited us."

"Visitors and students can see from these exhibits how big a part art plays in their daily lives," said Vida Dittmer, art instructor.

Willie, the janitor, was especially impressed with the music. "I like that 'Listen to the Lambs' said the dusky custodian. When told that Nathaniel Dett, the composer, is a Negro, Willie's face was one happy grin.

Vester Mulholland thought the whole affair "beaps of fun." "We all find lots of kick in preparing for a thing of this sort," said the principal and faculty advisor of Green Lights, Greenville High School newspaper.

Bruce Suggs, Bert James, and W. E. Hooker, members of the local Board of Education, were present and appeared pleased with the proceedings. "We have a wide awake high school that we are all proud of," said Mr. Hooker.

The committee who arranged last night's program and the two public relations meetings held earlier in the year are: Miss Helen Durah, Miss Shelby Mitcham, Mrs. Luther Herrick, Mrs. Maude B. Bowen, Remy Lefkowitz, Herman Dally, Wallace Boorne, chairman, and Miss Vida Dittmer who acted as art adviser for this meeting.

Rome, May 4.—(AP)—A warning that Italy would fight off any attempted attack from allied naval forces massing in the Mediterranean was sounded today in authoritative circles.

This warning followed publication of British and French naval movements.

The authoritative editor, Virginio Gayda, wrote that "the Italian nation does not yet really understand exactly what particular design inspired the joint decision of England and France to reinforce their war fleet in the Mediterranean."

An allied battle fleet yesterday reached Alexandria, Egypt, in the eastern Mediterranean near the Suez canal.

Gayda said that it is certain that the Mediterranean is keeping "completely quiet."

"It is not the first time that Italy sees concentrated in the Mediterranean with openly anti-Italian aims fleets of England and France operating in accordance with joint political plan," Gayda said.

"Nevertheless, she never was impressed and has continued the free carrying out of her policy toward protection of her legitimate national interests of defense of her views of the highest European interests."

Watch Stalin, Not Mussolini
Babson Says Russian Bear Holds
Trumps In War Game

St. Louis, Mo., May 4.—World War II has just started. Up until the time Hitler embarked on his Scandinavian campaign, there was always the possibility of a settlement around the peace table. Now this last hope of avoiding hostilities has been sabotaged. The war may well be a long one. Certainly, I see no hope of peace this year. Furthermore, I strongly believe that Russia—not Italy—holds the winning cards in this gigantic war game.

You read in the papers that Italy will soon be in the war on the side of Germany, but in my talks with army officers and governmental officials of England, I learn they have no fear of Italy. These men recognize that the Germans are a wonderful people; they did not want to go to war against them. But they have no fear of the Italians. Besides, the Italians do not like the Germans, nor do they like to fight. Mussolini is now in a bad fix. He has a big army in Ethiopia. In order to keep his supply lines open to Ethiopia, he must go through the Suez Canal. This is absolutely controlled by France and England.

If Italy should declare war on the Allies tonight, the Canal would be shut up tight tomorrow, and Italy's Ethiopian army would be on the spot. Of course, I Duce could send another army to the Balkans and perhaps take Yugoslavia and Rumania. The British and French have over half a million men in the Near East with the idea of protecting the Balkans. If Italy went into the war to help Germany she could perhaps break through to the Black Sea, but she could never get that Allied army. It would need only to withdraw into Turkey so that it could not be surrounded or penned up.

Moreover, Italy has a very vulnerable coast line. Practically all her big cities are on the coast while her industrial cities are within a few

Berlin, May 4.—(AP)—Germany officially reported today a British battleship and a heavy cruiser were sunk, one cruiser was damaged and one destroyer hit in heavy German air action yesterday off the Norwegian port of Namsos.

An official announcement said constant attacks by German warplanes were carried out on a British naval unit which had taken aboard allied troops withdrawn from the Namsos region.

The announcement also reported raids yesterday off Narvik in the far north, stating that eight British sources declined comment of the current war that German command's claim that a British battleship had been sunk by air attacks off Norway.

The British have not acknowledged the loss of a capital ship through air bombs since the war began.

ish warships and transports were sunk or badly damaged in the attack there and at Namsos.

The heavy cruiser reported sunk was described as a vessel of the "York" class.

(The York is a vessel of 8,250 tons and has a normal crew of 600 men).

Berlin, May 4.—(AP)—Germany asserted jubilantly today that her bombing planes had sunk one of the mightiest vessels of the British navy—a 30,000-ton battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class—off Norway's west coast.

The sinking was said by the German high command to have taken place yesterday off Namsos, the port from which the last British troops in central Norway re embarked yesterday.

Authoritative sources said it was the first time since the beginning of the current war that German aircraft had been set out with specific orders to keep after a designated battleship until it was sent to the bottom.

Adolf Hitler and Air Marshal Goering were represented as overjoyed at the news of this latest German success, which they were said to regard as equivalent to the defeat of an army.

(Vessels of the Queen Elizabeth class, of which there are five, normally carry a crew of 1,124 to 1,184 men).

It was also announced today that an enemy submarine had been sunk by a pursuing German U-boat after it had been sighted and bombed by a German reconnaissance plane.

German authorities said that numerous hits were scored on the battleship during the attack, which the communique said, was carried out by five bombers, but it was thought that one bomb must have struck the powder magazine.

That alone, it was said, could have caused the flames which were reported to have shot up over 1,500 feet into the air.

Open Forum Discussion

Dr. R. L. Hildrup, professor of History at E. C. T. C., will lead an Open Forum discussion at the Eighth Street Christian church Sunday night, May 5, from 8 till 9 p. m. on the subject of "Democracy and Christianity."

Previous forums, led by Dr. Frank, Miss Helen Dugan and Dr. Toll, have gained considerable popularity in the community. They are designed to bring before interested people in the community subjects of current importance for discussion. Dr. Hildrup will speak for a portion of the hour, at the conclusion of which the audience will be invited to ask questions or comment.

Brown-Crockett

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Godwin Crockett of Williamston, North Carolina, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ann, to Mr. Abner Herbert Brown of Williamston, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Freeman Brown, of Oak City. The wedding to take place in June.

Lutheran Church

On Sunday morning the summer schedule will go into effect at the Lutheran Church of Greenville. Throughout the summer months the regular Sunday morning worship will be held at 8:30 instead of at 11 o'clock.

The members and friends of the Lutheran Church are asked to note this change in time. The services will be conducted in the Rotary Club building as usual. In his sermon on Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. R. L. Landeck, will speak on the inspiring words of Jesus, "I Am The Light of the World."

First Presbyterian Church

The Church School meets at 9:45 Sunday morning. Several changes are being made to take effect May 5. J. Nat Harrison, the new superintendent and A. B. Stallworth, assistant superintendent, will have charge. W. S. Brown, retiring superintendent, will go to Meadowbrook and conduct the Sunday School there which begins at 9:45 A. M. also. This was an action voted on by the Meadowbrook pupils themselves. It is hoped that it will prove a help to attendance, especially with the approaching warm weather.

The Men's Bible and the Women's Bible Class will no longer meet together for the worship program, but will go directly to their class rooms and each conduct worship programs at 9:45 a. m. Through the kindness of a friend, a piano has been placed in the Women's parlor, repaired and tuned ready for them to use on Sunday, May 5.

The morning hour for preaching service is 11:00. At this service the pastor, Dr. Boyd, will speak, discussing the subject: "Infant Church Membership," or the baptism of infants.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
May 4, 1900.

Fire Anniversary.
One year ago tonight Greenville had its last big fire, burning both sides of Evans street from Fourth street to the bank on the West side and to James Long's store on the East side. That is now the best looking part of the town.

SMALL CHAT
May is giving us a cold spell. Fire was comfortable this morning.

The town is having the ditch which crosses Dickinson avenue near the American Tobacco Co.'s factory, cleaned out and tilling put in. At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen held on Monday night the Alderman for the Lights and Wells committee reported that some new street lamps had been purchased and put up since last meeting.

Red Oak H. D. Club.
The Red Oak H. D. Club met in the community building Wednesday afternoon with thirty-one present. The subject, "Weeds and What To Do About Them" was discussed by several members. Attempts will be made to cut them before they go to seed this year. The major subject "The Arrangement of Furniture" was given by the agent. Red Oak is planning a community fair this fall. Mrs. B. L. Tyson, chairman of the citizenship department, urged each woman to register and to vote on election day.

Belvoir H. D. Club.
The Belvoir H. D. Club met Thursday afternoon in Mr. Farrior's room at the school. Mrs. Viola Brown and Mrs. Rufus Simmons are new members. Mrs. C. F. Wildman gave a review of "The Whitehouse Gang" written by her cousin Earle Lorker.

County Choral Club.
Attendance at the Home Demonstration Choral Club was trebled yesterday afternoon. Several very lovely numbers were practiced. Next time—May 24—we shall send out an 8. O. S. for Bethel, Farmville, St. John, Meadowbrook and Ballards. Perhaps it will not be such a busy season. Song books are being ordered. If you wish one your order should come in at once.

Club Schedule Next Week.
Greenville 4-H Club—Tuesday at 3:30 p. m.

Bethel H. D. Club—Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. with Mrs. T. L. Craft.
Red Oak 4-H Club—Wednesday at 8:00 p. m. with Grace and Mimi Tripp.

Farmville H. D. Club—Thursday at 3:00 p. m. in the club building.
Littlefield H. D. Club—Friday at 3:00 p. m. with Mrs. C. L. Worthington.

CHICOD NEWS

Services tomorrow at the Salem church at 11 o'clock. Let us have a large attendance.

The commencement exercises of Grimesland school was well attended by people of our community. The different programs were all enjoyable and instructive. On last Sunday evening, the Rev. Hoff of Williamson, delivered the Baccalaureate sermon. His was a most interesting message, instructing the Seniors to press onward, never failing, in the strength of our Maker.

On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, the Seniors gave a program entitled "Twenty Years Hence", which was very interesting, displaying the highest qualities of home talent.

Hon. Lee Gravely, candidate for Governor, made the principal address to the Seniors and audience. We were indeed fortunate to have such a distinguished guest as speaker.

Mr. Carr, our principal, delivered the diplomas in a most gracious manner, in Mr. D. H. Conley's absence.

There were 24 graduates.
R. L. Little delivered the seventh grade certificates to a large class of 27. We were indeed glad to have Mr. Little, a member of our Board

Plays Tonight

LES BROWN

The May Day dance at East Carolina Teachers College, sponsored this year by the Lanier Literary Society, will be held tonight in the Robert H. Wright Building, with Les Brown and his orchestra on hand for the music.

Sponsors representing the society, Elizabeth Meggs, Cleo Burney, Margaret Reed, Audrey White, Nell Beppard, and Ruth Wood Pritchard, and their escorts will take part in the grand march. The march will be led by Miss Mary Helen Guldge, chairman of the social committee, and her escort, Joe Tunstall.

Among others who will take part are the presidents of the Poe and Emerson societies, Misses Iris Davis and Meta Virginia Hammond; the May Queen, Miss Dorothy Reed Miller; the May Day maid of honor, Miss Christine Harris; and the maids in attendance at the afternoon's festivities, Misses Sarah Ann Maxwell, Eloise Bone, Marguerite Britt, Millie Gray Dupree, and Mildred Jane Taylor.

The decorations, suggestive of the May celebration, will be in pastel shades, with the Maypole as the theme.

Chaperones include Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Guldge, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert ReBarker, Miss Alma Brown, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wright, Miss Rosaline Ivey, Miss Mary H. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brown, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. McGinnis, Miss Mamie Jenkins, Miss Gussie Kuykendall, and Miss Marguerite Austin.

of Education. The invocation at this occasion was by Rev. W. A. Crow.

Miss Russ gave her musical recital on last evening in the auditorium. A large crowd attended.

The participants on the program displayed quite a bit of talent in three most appropriate selections rendered.

Birthday Party.
Little Harold Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Mills, will entertain a number of his little friends at a birthday party this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Jethro Mills.

Black Jack News

Arthur B. Corey of Greenville was a business visitor here Thursday. Friends of F. L. Gaskins will regret to learn that he is ill at his home.

L. H. Mills is seriously ill at her home. Tom Purser was a visitor here on Thursday.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. W. S. Dixon is able to be out again. Joe Waldo of Raleigh was a visitor here Thursday.

Misses Punney Muriel Mills, Mildred and Juanita Adams, Vivian and Esther Smith and Marvin Harper were visitors in Greenville Friday afternoon.

Wildly Wallace of Washington was here on business Thursday.

CHURCH SERVICE
Sunday, May 5, Rev. Mack Present, of New Bern, will hold church services at the F. W. B. church.

Across the road from the church service will be conducted by Rev. Ben Carve of Kingston in the Free Will Holiness church. Sunday school at 10 o'clock and preaching at 11 o'clock.

Special selections by the Adams sisters, Bessie, Rosalie and Mildred, will be rendered. Mrs. A. A. Pool will accompany at the piano. Another selection will be played by the Pool sisters, Berna and Imogene. Please attend one of these services.

BELL ARTHUR NEWS

MRS. TYSON HONORED

On Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Davis, Mrs. Bruce Strickland honored Mrs. Flanagan Tyson, the former Miss Julia Carson of the local faculty, with a miscellaneous shower. Each guest wrote a favorite recipe or a method for keeping a husband and these were compiled in a booklet and presented the bride. Mrs. Tyson was called to answer the door bell and a real colored washerwoman presented her with a huge laundry basket laden with gifts. The guest of honor received, opened and gave thanks for the gifts in a most pleasing and charming manner; the event was a complete surprise to her. The hostess was assisted by Misses Myrtle and Lillian Harris, Marjorie Carraway and Olive Tyson in serving an iced drink and assorted cakes. Mr. and Mrs. Tyson are making their home at Ballard's Cross Roads.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Strickland were in Greenville Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Little of Farmville spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. J. B. Little.

Mrs. Charlie Parker of Belvoir visited her daughter, Mrs. C. D. Smith Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Thorne of Farmville were here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Walker of Wilson visited Mrs. Mack Smith on Thursday.

Dr. Joe Smith and Sam Underwood of Greenville and Roy Cox of Winterville were among the guests at the school picnic Thursday.

John Barclay of Wilson and T. B. Attmore of Raleigh were the speakers at the graduation exercises on Thursday morning.

By JACK SPAIN
(Mayor of City of Greenville)

When people first began to concentrate on this locality, as a cross roads, there was neither civic nor community interest or pride. Each man was interested in his own welfare from a selfish viewpoint. As time went on, the population increased, different enterprises sprang up over night, and our people began to trade among themselves, each citizen specializing in certain professions or businesses. Then they learned that each was dependent upon the other for various necessities and as a result, our people saw the beginning of community spirit and growth.

Then the necessity of government was discovered in order that all people should have the same rules in their business, regulation of their personal conduct and a better place in which to teach and educate their children. City Government, Schools and Churches were formulated and supported by this idea of community spirit and enterprise. So today, we find ourselves living in a modern city, governed by its people, with all the advantages of modern inventions, with numerous churches and schools and every kind of business and profession represented. Yet the fundamental backbone of everything in Greenville, which we have and cherish, depends upon our cooperation with our people and our businesses in order that we might give our children a city worthy of their best efforts.

BOOST GREENVILLE, TRADE AT HOME, and we will continue to have a city that our children will be proud to grow up in.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ASK MUCH AND GET MUCH

Everybody has a gift which can be used to the glory of God. There is a little woman in a certain church who has the gift of leading people to be generous in their contributions. She is not able to give a great deal herself—although she gives generously of what she possesses—but she has a perfect genius for quietly persuading others who do have plenty to give as God has prospered them. Some one told me recently of how this woman went to a meeting one evening and at the door found a tiny receptacle with a sign above it saying, "Free-will offering for those who care to give." She disappeared for a few minutes and came back with a large receptacle and a sign which read, "You are asked to make your contributions generous." They received that night ten times as much as they had ever received at a similar meeting.

Ask for much and you will receive much. The Bible makes it very plain that God wants us to ask for much, and when we ask for much, we get it. Never make your request to God petty, or what might be called "reasonable." Ask God to do the impossible for you.

If you will approach God with a cup, He will give you an alms; if you approach Him with a receptacle as big as you can carry, He will fill it to overflowing. (All rights reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

WALLACE ASSAILS CLASS TAXATION

In a letter to a House of Representatives committee, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently expressed his unqualified opposition to the Patman anti-chain store bill.

The bill, said the Secretary, would "discourage and prevent" efficient methods of marketing and distribution, instead of promoting them as "sound public policy requires." And, he added, state taxes on chain stores already are so high that passage of the Patman bill would obviously drive the large chains, as well as many of the smaller systems, out of business.

Mr. Wallace has plenty of company in his condemnation of such business, job and opportunity destroying laws. A number of important labor unions have gone on record with similar views as regards the Patman bill and kindred legislation. So have a long list of newspaper associations. So have the major farm organizations. So have representative consumer organizations. So have typical business groups, such as the San Francisco

Chamber of Commerce which recently assailed the bill in the most positive terms, stating that "such use of the taxing power is un-American and unsound and increases the cost of distribution and raises the price to the consumer."

Recent news from Washington indicates that, in the opinion of insiders, the Patman bill has the slimmest chance of becoming law—the tremendous public opposition it has awakened has apparently made it extremely distasteful to most Congressmen. And now the public should turn its attention to other and similar laws—including those which are now on the statute books, as well as those which are perennially proposed. Once you use the law to ruthlessly destroy one man's business, no man's business is safe. There is no room in a democratic country for class laws and class laws. — (Industrial News Review.)

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Mother's Day gift memo: Give her a book, a ponderous, 924-page report of a congressional committee.

It sounds a bit silly, but mothers with sons of military age will love it. They can take a slight of comfort where they least expect it—from the gold-brained boss man of the U. S. army.

The good news is buried deep in an obscure paragraph of the pound-and-a-half book. Turn to Page 5 of the volume titled:

MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT, APPROPRIATION BILL FOR 1941

Plunge right in to the fine print at the top of the page. "Last year the report of your committee contained the following statement:

"The 75-millimeter gun is being supplied in foreign armies with the 105-millimeter weapon, which has greater range and fires a heavier missile. Our ordinance department is developing such a gun, and undoubtedly soon will be ready to go into production. If that is to be the field weapon of the future, the committee questions the wisdom of spending large sums on the old 75's."

Look! This, Mom! To which Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, open your eyes. Mom, here's your present-replied:

"Concrete fortifications and masonry villages of European battlefields may dictate a need for a weapon firing a heavier projectile than does the 75-mm. gun, but our forces would rarely be confronted with such targets in this hemisphere."

Those five lines of print mean just this: You can take a deep breath of relief. The wisest professional military men in these United States doubt that they'll be drafting your boy to fight in Europe any time soon.

That's the army's best judgment. They're deadly serious, these big boys in the staff command.

Why Not?

REC-MANNING

Theirs is the tremendous job of protecting this country, its thousands of miles of coast line, its vital industrial centers, its 130,000,000 people. It's enough to make any soldier serious, and they give it their best thought.

The 75's Suit Us O. K.
But, bolder down their best thought crystallizes into this portentous set of facts: (1) The 75-millimeter gun is adequate for the U. S. army's needs, because (2) only the concrete emplacements and masonry structures of Europe dictate the need for heavier artillery, so obviously (3) the army isn't figuring on any expedition to Europe. They're experimenting with the bigger gun, sure. They keep up with the times. They've got to. But they still say the 75's will do. Read another phrase from Gen. Marshall's report again, for more comfort: "...but our forces would rarely be confronted with such targets in this hemisphere." Repeat it: "this hemisphere."

Open the atlas, now. Nary a bit of Europe is in this hemisphere, is it? Doesn't look as if the army had any trips across water in mind for Johnny, does it?

Write your congressman for Page 5 of the report. You won't be crazy if you have it framed or sleep with under your pillow. Nothing very literary about those five lines, but they're mighty important. So have a swell time come Mother's day, Mom—you just had a present, compliments of Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, U. S. A.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 4—The straw poll of Fuquay Springs Independent presents an unusual feature from which the paper draws the conclusion that one of the Lee Gravelly-Paul Grady-Tom Cooper trio is sure to get in the second primary. Here's how the Independent sums it up:

"Much has been written that would tend to establish Broughton, Maxwell and Horton as administrationists or conservatives, and Grady, Cooper and Gravelly as anti-administrationists or liberals. If we divide the total vote (in the paper's poll), on this basis we find that the co-called administration ballot totals 52.2 per cent, leaving the opposition a per cent of 47.2. In the gubernatorial primary of 1936, Governor Hoyt polled 55.4 per cent as against 44.6 per cent for Dr. McDonald. While the Independent straw vote has been gathered from so restricted an area as to defy any comparison with the statewide vote in 1936, it is somewhat of a remarkable coincidence that there is so little deviation in the percentage as between the administration and the anti-administration of 4 years

Chapter 27
Crises
YESTERDAY: Brenda comes to really know and love The Street as everyone rallies around to help Adelaide. Even the recluses, Mrs. Wick and her daughter, come out of their seventeen year seclusion.

"WHO," demanded Eric, coming in a few minutes after they had taken their leave, "were those women? I can't believe yet that I really saw them. They look like—like—Brenda, were they people, or figments of my imagination?"

"They were Mrs. Wick and her daughter Frances," she enjoyed the look of stupefaction in his face. "They came to pay a neighborly call, and to ask if they could help us in any way. I told them they could. I asked them to go downtown and pay the bills for us."

"You—what?" He sank into a chair as if his legs would no longer support him. "Honestly, Brenda, I can't decide whether your recklessness amounts to a sort of courage, or if you're so simple you just don't realize the terrifying things you do! Of course the Wicks refused."

"Of course they did no such thing," was her composed answer. "They took the bills with them, and said they would pay them—in cash."

The front door closed softly and Eric gave a feeble hail. "Mac! Mac! Come in here and listen to what Brenda's done now!"

There came a day when Dr. Stern pronounced Adelaide's illness critical. It took them all by surprise. The household had settled into a fairly comfortable routine of nursing, of receiving callers, of planning meals. Adelaide's fever had been banished and she seemed to Brenda's inexperienced eyes neither better nor worse.

The Wicks were proving a source of unflagging interest to The Street. Staunchly had Mrs. Wick gone forth that first day in her outmoded clothes; but upon her return boxes of significant sizes and boxes began to be delivered at her door. A genuine thrill went up and down the block when mother and daughter appeared for the first time in the smartest and most up-to-date of outfits.

"And I don't know what we'd do without Mrs. Wick," Brenda confessed. "She runs the house with her more than I do. I wish she'd been doing it all her life."

Mac's eyes searched her face. It seemed to him thinner, it was certainly paler, than when she had come.

"You must get out more, Brenda," he said abruptly. "With Isobel preparing for her quarterly recitals, and Eric and me both having extra work, too much is falling on you."

Making No Effort

SHE shook her head. "I have a lot of help! As I said, Mrs. Wick is a regular Rock of Gibraltar. She and Frances come in every day and I simply dump the bills and budgeting into her lap and she straightens everything out. How a woman of such force could have shut herself up for all those years I do not see."

"I think"—Mac looked thoughtful—"since I've seen her I've come to the conclusion that she did it to cure Frances. Giving her a huge dose of her own medicine, do you see?"

"Too big a dose, I should call it!" "But I suppose she didn't know how long it would last when she began. You know how people drift along from day to day until something wakes them up and they realize that years have passed."

"Well, she's a comfort and a joy, at all events I don't know what I'd do without her until Adelaide gets well."

There seemed no question that Adelaide would get well. True, she seemed not to sleep much but as she did not complain, Dr. Stern's attention was not called to it. Indeed, it was difficult to know whether she was asleep, or lying quietly with her eyes closed most of the time. She tried to get up to eat the dainty meals Brenda brought her, she swallowed her tonic unquestioningly.

And then the day came when a fine line appeared between the young doctor's thick eyebrows, and he drew Brenda into her own room and closed the door.

"Mrs. Rostetter is not trying to get well," he announced bluntly. "Unless she makes an effort I'm afraid she's not going to pull through this."

"Wh—what!" Brenda whitened, and caught at the back of a chair for support. "Not pull through? Why, there's nothing really wrong the matter with her now, is there? Since the fever left?"

"Nothing organic. But she's weak, and she's making no fight. Instead it looks to me as if she's trying—unconsciously, you know—to slip away from something that's troubling her. Have you any idea what it is?"

"Not the slightest. And, Dr. Stern, I do think you're mistaken." A fleeting smile took the edge from this contradiction. "She's not a worrying person—anything but! She has no near relatives to be concerned about, no financial cares—What on earth should make her worry?"

"I don't know. What I do know is that if something isn't done to rouse her, to make her want to get well, she's not—going to." He eyed her speculatively. "Who is her closest friend? I mean, in whom would she be most likely to confide?"

"I—don't know. You see, I haven't been here very long myself. But I'll ask the others. She's lived on The Street a long time; surely somebody will know what's worrying her—if she is worrying."

"She's worrying all right; or perhaps I'd better say she's given up worrying and resigned herself. A hopeless sort of resignation, you know; a sort of death-in-life itself." He turned toward the door. "It's up to her friends, Miss Burnham. I can't do any more than I am doing."

After his departure, Brenda slipped back to the sickroom and stood looking down at Adelaide. Now that her attention had been called to it, she realized that since the brightness of fever had been quenched in Adelaide's eyes, a sort of dull misery had replaced it. The mouth drooped pitifully. One hand, strangely white and soft now, lay lax against the neatly folded sheet.

Trying Days

BRENDa wanted to stoop above her and cry urgently: "What is it, Adelaide? Tell me what's the matter and I'll do my best to make it right!" But delicacy restrained her. In spite of the intimate services she had performed for her landlady in the last weeks, she was after all almost a stranger to Adelaide. It was for her older neighbor to win her confidence—if it could be won.

That evening she told her fellow boarders what the doctor had said. None of them had the faintest idea what the trouble could be. Not money, both Eric and Mac were sure. The house was clear and what the four young people paid her more than cared for expenses.

"It must be something that happened while she was in Springfield," Isobel said confidently. "You remember she came back a changed woman from what she used to be."

"She was ill then," Eric protested. "But Dr. Stern thinks she mightn't have been—or only slightly, at any rate—if she hadn't had something on her mind."

Brenda rose decisively. "The thing to do is to ask the older people who live on The Street: Miss Ormond, and Judge Harper, and the rest. They're far more likely to know than I do."

They began that very evening with the Judge. Eric crossed the street to explain the situation to him.

"Any luck?" asked the others hopefully as the front door opened to admit the young man.

"None. Judge Harper says that we who are in the house with her probably know more of her than anyone else. He says he'll be glad to come and see her tomorrow, if we think best, and try to get her to tell him. It might be that being a lawyer—"

Brenda was firm in her refusal. "Not till we've tried some of the others—some of the women. We can't have Adelaide given a sort of friendly third degree by everybody on The Street. Let's talk to Miss Ormond about it."

"I've got to be on my way," Eric said. "So do you, Isobel. Mac."

"I'm afraid I must go, too," was Mac's reluctant answer. "Can't we let it go till tomorrow sometime?"

Brenda? And by the way, who's sitting with Adelaide now?"

"Maud VanNess. Do you think she—?"

"Good Lord, no! Don't mention the idea to her. She'd be scaring up an imaginary romance for Adelaide—"

The next few days were trying ones for the amateur nurses. Brenda tactfully approached everyone who lived on The Street save the Wicks, who had retired into their self-imposed seclusion soon after Adelaide bought the Burnham house, and Maud VanNess. Even Grenadine was asked if she knew what might be worrying her mistress.

In every case they drew a blank.

Blue Mold Found In Eastern N. C.

Raleigh, May 4.—(AP)—Eastern North Carolina tobacco farmers, already well behind schedule in transplanting, are facing new delays because of increasingly severe attacks of blue mold. Dr. Luther Shaw said today, following a tour of Pitt county.

Dr. Shaw, extension plant pathologist at N. C. State College, found that the tobacco disease had inflicted "heavy damage in the last ten days. Cold weather he said had caused blue mold to spread rapidly."

"Some farmers were able to get out their plants before the recent attack," he added. "Those who were not so fortunate will have to wait until the epidemic abates before their plants will be ready for the field."

To The Voters Of The Second Ward

Let's Give Each Section Of Our City Representation

In the past it has been customary for both the east and west sections of the Second Ward to have representation on the Board of Aldermen. In Monday's city election J. A. Watson, now representing the west end of the ward, is seeking re-election and is being opposed by a candidate from the east end of the ward. The eastern section now has a representative whose term will not expire until next year and the election of another alderman from that section at this time would leave the western section without representation.

On the basis of these facts we urge you to vote for

J. A. WATSON

(This space contributed by Second Ward voters who feel that every section of our city is entitled to representation on the Board of Aldermen)

Locals Meet Wilson Here Sunday; In Goldsboro Today

Manager Rube Wilson's Greenies suffered a shut-out at the hands of Goldsboro at Smith park here yesterday afternoon, only three members of the local team reaching the Wayne hurler for safeties.

Greenville's three hits were garnered by rookies, one each by Watson, Kracke and Deluca.

Morris Wilson held the Goldbugs to eight hits and four runs, but the Greenies never even threatened, their three hits coming in separate innings.

Goldsboro scored two in the first frame on a single, an error and another single, and added one each in the third and fifth.

Greenville will complete the two-day series with Goldsboro in the Wayne capital this afternoon and return here for the Sunday game at Smith park with the second-place Wilson nine.

Continuing his efforts to strengthen the Greenies Manager Wilson announced today that a new shortstop Brody of Wilkes Barre, Penn., would arrive this afternoon and probably would see action tomorrow.

The locals defeated Wilson in the first game of the season—this is the only victory for the locals—and fans are hopeful that Wilson will return the Greenies to a winning streak after having dropped eight straight.

PHANTOM NINE DEFEATED 3-2

Fourth Straight Conference Loss For Local Team

The Phantom nine of the Greenville High School journeyed to Kinston yesterday afternoon and lost their fourth straight conference game by a slight margin of 3-2.

Although the local nine was defeated, it was, doubtless the best showing made by them this season. Mickey Wetherington was the winning hurler, although Bill Taylor, star pitcher for the Greenies, yielded only 4 hits and struck out eight batters. Wetherington was touched for eight hits.

Leaders in the Kinston victory with the bat were Hardman with 2 for 4 and Howard Chapin with 2 for 3. The leading hitters for the Phantoms were Curry and Harrington with 2 hits apiece.

Flelding honors went to Chapin, Kinston's centerfielder and Greenville's Crawford, who roams the left field position. Crawford snagged a long line drive to left-center which looked like a one-handed catch of James' long fly to center field.

The locals scored in the second and seventh innings. Their first run came when Williams walked and James singled to right field. The next score came on a long double by Polly Williams with Curry on second.

Man About Manhattan
By George Tucker

New York—The Tuckers have moved in and taken over everything in town, including Grand's Tomb. We picked up a paper at breakfast this morning, and, by George, everything in it was just Tucker, Tucker, Tucker.

Sophie Tucker got back to town and was loudly kissed by Eddie Cantor. Eddie Tucker was at NBC in complete charge of all kid programs. Johnny Tucker, the song-writing fireman, was coining new tunes on Tin Pan Alley. Tommy Tucker, the orchestra leader, had moved into a Manhattan nightspot. And Orrin Tucker, with all 98 pounds of Wee Bonnie Baker at town, made his New York debut at Park Avenue hotel.

It was Sophie, known affectionately to her cafe intimates as "the best damn caballero in all damn Mexico," who had the first opening. Broadway gave a heart-warming demonstration of how much it loves this sponge-hearted sentimental old thing of the honky-tonks by making Nick drag out extra chairs that had been used in months at the Versailles. And when Eddie Cantor moved out on the floor in an unprogrammed appearance, and kissed her, and told her that without her Broadway would be just another Stradivarius without strings. Sophie had to reach for her hankie. After she received her composure she kissed Eddie back and sang three more nostalgically reminiscent confessions on international love.

If Orrin Tucker's first New York appearance was an artistic triumph for himself and the black-eyed Miss Baker, it was not without its overtones of melancholy for the young maestro. His best friend, Lou Diamond, who had flown in just to attend the event, dropped dead.

There is one sentimental angle to this demise that the papers have not enlarged. Lou Diamond was a Paramount executive. He and Orrin had been friends for years, ever since Orrin made some short subjects for him four years ago. Thereafter he made it a point to attend all of Tucker's openings. He flew to Chicago for his opening there. He had flown in, only a few hours born within sound of the bells of the Bow Church in Cheapside, London, York, appearance has been called a "Cockney."

They Don't Laugh At Brooklyn Now!

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

Brooklyn—The Brooks are no longer the Daffy Dodgers. They're Durochers' Devastating Dodgers now. The surprise team of baseball. The peppiest, most inspired club in the majors.

The Dodgers were finally stopped by the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday after having won their first nine games of the season.

During the regime of Uncle Wilbert Robinson of the Brooks were baseball's Daffiness Boys. Fans always were guaranteed a laugh watching them. You never could tell when one base runner would overrun another or when an outfielder would be hit on the conk by a fly ball.

But those days are gone. The Dodgers are playing a fast, scientific, thrilling brand of ball. They have a go-getter showman in Boss Larry MacPhail and a cocky, confident manager in Lippy Leo Durocher. The Flatbush Fusiliers won't need many breaks to win the National league flag.

Brooklyn, perhaps the best baseball town in the land, is completely batty over the Dodgers. Some 30,000 turned out on a cold, rainy opening day. And thousands of them were among the 38,000 and the 51,000 who jammed the Polo Grounds for Brooklyn's games with New York. Brooklyn got a big bell out of the Dodgers' three straight wins over the Giants.

MacPhail Moves In
The Dodgers' upsurge began when Larry MacPhail, the smartest showman and idea man in the game, took charge before the 1938 season. Larry is largely responsible. He bought the players and Durocher directed them. MacPhail began housecleaning right off the bat. There are just nine players left on hand from the mediocre squad he inherited: Pitchers Fred Fitzsimmons, Luke Hamlin, Van Lingle Mungo and Forrest Pressnell. Catcher Babe Phelps. Infielders Durocher, Pete Coscarart, John Hudson and Harry Lavagetto.

Starting the Phillies with a wad of greenbacks in 1938 he bought first baseman Dolph Camilli for $45,000, purchased Whitlow Wyatt Milwaukee hurler, drafted Pitchers Hugh Casey from Memphis and Bill Crouch from Nashville and grabbed Pitcher Ito Taniulsi from the Browns and Outfielder Ernest Kov from the Yankees via waivers. Then Larry swapped Buddy Hassett and Jimmy Outlaw to Boston for Outfielder Gene Moore and Pitcher Ira Hutchinson.

Last year MacPhail bought a pair of outfielders, Jim Riddle from the Giants and Fred Walker from Detroit, and traded tosser Bill Poseidel to Boston for Catcher Al Todd.

And since last season Larry really has been throwing the money around. He handed Louisville $45,000 and several players for Shortstop Hal Reese, paid Free Agent Roy and his wife were with Orrin's mother, in the Empire Room, sharing in the festivities and watching the applause that was being enthusiastically led from a ring-side table by Art Jarret and Betty Grable. Diamond suddenly pushed his chair back. He murmured a faint "Oh." He slumped down and in a few moments was dead.

As for wee Bonnie, everyone here is simply nuts about her. She doesn't sit with the orchestra throughout the evening, as most vocalists do. She comes down only for dinner and supper shows, but on those occasions she sings all you ask her to. On her opening night, for which there were 999 supper reservations, she sang nine encores. When she comes out you can hear a pin drop. She is barely five feet in height. Ted Nicholas, an Indianapolis, Ind., boy who is Tucker's manager, tells me she wears size 4½ shoe. She is the first girl on record who ever commercialized a sigh. Tucker himself is a tall young man with black curly hair and a wide, half-sly grin. I would guess that he is now among the nation's top four or five dance bands.

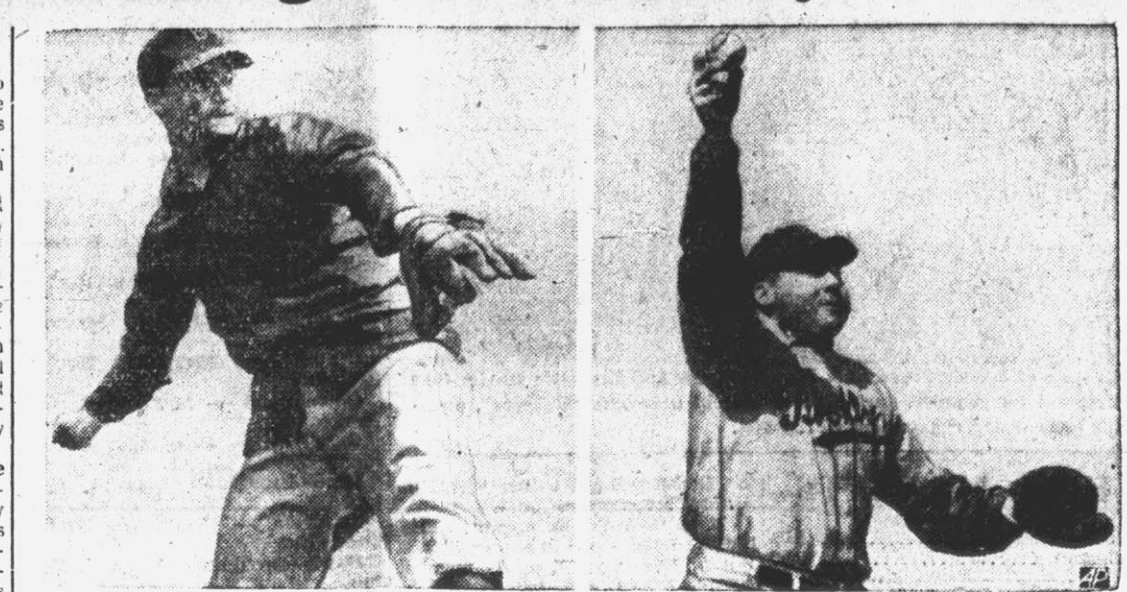

Gratitude—That Bounced
Garden City, Kans.—(AP)—W. H. Streeter purchased a couple of meals and located a job for a tramp. The fellow came back to express his gratitude and insisted on paying for the dinners.

He tendered a $7 check he said he had earned. Streeter deducted the price of the meals and gave him the change.

The check bounced—a neat forgery.

The Swiss confederation is based on 3,000 communes (counties) and 27 cantons (states).

LUKE HAMLIN

HUGH CASEY

ROY CULLENBINE

JOE VOSMIK

CHARLES GILBERT

Cullenbine $25,000 to sign and then gave the Red Sox $25,000 for Outfielder Joe Vosmik. Then he went out and bought Pitchers Carl Doyle from Memphis, Max Macon from the Cardinals and Jim Carleton from Milwaukee. Larry signed Wes Ferrell, free agent pitcher, traded Al Todd to the Cubs for Pitcher

Newell Kimball and Catcher Gus Mancuso, bought Outfielder Charles Gilbert from Nashville and Catcher Herman Franks from the Cardinals.

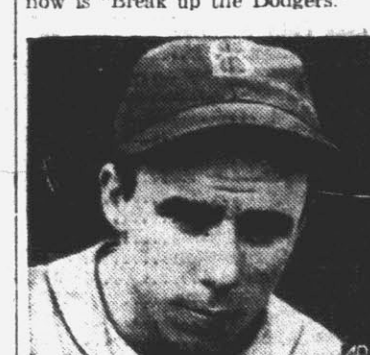

They're Something New
Now he has a real contender. There's no better infielder in the league than Camilli. Coscarart, Lavagetto and either Durocher or Reese. Larry has a complete new outfield, Vosmik, Cullenbine and Gilbert. The catching is good. He has had better early season pitching than any other club and the chances are the hurlers will hold up. Luke Hamlin, who won 20 last year, looks for another good season. Hugh Casey, who won 15, is booked to win 20. Whit Wyatt, probably the best of the bunch when in shape, will be a winner if his knee, injured last season, doesn't trouble him. Carlton, Doyle, Fitzsimmons, Mungo, Pressnell, Macon and Taniulsi round out a corps of capable aides from among whom Durocher and MacPhail hope to find another starting pitcher.

The Dodgers are riding high, wide and handsome now. And they're likely to surprise their critics and keep it up. In fact, the cry out around New York's Polo Grounds now is "Break up the Dodgers."

Despite the cold and, for a while a light drizzle, two of the best softball games of the season were played last night, with Double Cola eking out a seventh-inning 11-10 victory over Water and Light, while Tadlock won over Blount-Harvey 11-9.

Trailing 10-5 when they came in to bat the first of the seventh, the utility boys proceeded to mark up five runs to knot the count, but the Double Cola team made the needed run on a double by Hatem and a single by Ed Wells to win the battle after two men were out. Double Cola's big inning was the fifth when that team made five runs on a triple by Register, an error, another error, a walk, a base on balls, a fielders' choice and Hatem's home run.

The winners had marked up two in the first on one single and two errors; two in the second on a walk, a single, another walk, Dudley's double and Jim Wells' single; one in the third when Clark doubled to bring in Hatem, who had walked.

After scoring one in the first on singles by Roebuck and Barnhill; one in the second on Langley's single, a walk and an error; three in the fifth on a single by Bryson, an error, a walk and Small's double, the Water and Light team got busy in the seventh to give Tadlock's real score by knocking the count at 10 all. Markham, first man up on error, Bryson was on on an error, Roebuck doubled, scoring two, Barnhill doubled to score Roebuck and came home on Terry's single, who scored on an error.

The Blount-Harvey vs. Tadlock game was anybody's victory up until the fifth, when the insurance team made four to take a 8-5 lead. The four-run rally came on a walk, error, single by Turnage and a home run by Butner. Two errors and a double by Jones produced two in the second on an error and singles by Turnage and James; two in the third on an error, two walks, a fielders' choice, and another error—two runs and no hits, and one in the fourth on singles by James and Hale.

Blount-Harvey's big inning was in the second when that team made four when they got on on an error, Potts singled, Clark was safe on an error and Pittman and Sumrell singled. The team made two in the fourth when Pitts walked, Tripp singled and Sumrell singled. One more was added in the fifth when Blount, who had drawn a walk, came home on errors. The team's final two tallies came in the seventh, but fell two short of knocking the count. Alton Barrett drew a walk and scored on Gibbs' single, Gibbs came home on Blount's single, but the next two men were out, after the first man up had gone out at first, to end the game.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, May 4.—(AP)—Fears of unexpected European war developments over the week-end caused the trimming of speculative sales in today's stock market.

Trends were indefinite until the final hour, when light selling put a number of leaders down fractions to a point or so. The fact offerings were never forced was comforting to bullish proponents, who recalled that reactivity in the past several weeks usually has accompanied rising prices. Transfers approximated 350,000 shares.

Many Participate In Fox Hunt At Red Oak
Approximately one hundred men and a larger number of dogs participated in a fox hunt in the Red Oak community this morning. The hunt started at light and continued on through the morning.

The party, composed of sportsmen from Greene, Wilson and Edgecombe counties, stopped for a mid-morning meal about 9:30 o'clock and after enjoying a barbecue "snack" at Humble's store, resumed the hunt. When the hunt halted for the barbecue meal two grown and five young foxes had been caught.

The dogs could be heard throughout that section as residents enjoyed the hunt, as well as those participating.

Convict Is Killed Trying To Escape
Raleigh, May 4.—(AP)—Cary prison camp officials said today that Steve Gryzwana, Jr., 18, sent up from Cumberland county, was fatally wounded in an escape attempt today.

Gryzwana, Prison Superintendent Oscar Pitts said, jumped from a truck which was bringing a prison work gang back to the camp and was shot by Guard W. O. Rex.

Prison records show that the prisoner was sent up from Cumberland county in April to serve a five to seven year term for larceny and robbery and that his home was in Otis, Ind.

So there your reporter is out on not one, but one hundred limbs. If no more than half of them break, it will be something of an achievement. It should be remembered that in many the present outlook will change substantially as various sorts of pressure is brought to bear in various sorts of ways—also, that some are so close that they can change radically overnight.
