SITUATION IN EUROPE GROWING GRAVER

Roosevelt Proposes Air Armada Of 50,000 Warplanes

DECLARES AIM IS STILL PEACE

Chief Executive, however, in message to Congress requesting $1,182,000,000 in emergency defense funds, asserts nation stands ready to give services and lives for liberty.

Washington, May 16.—(AP)—An air armada of 50,000 warplanes was advocated by President Roosevelt today in a personally delivered message to Congress asking a $1,182,000,000 emergency national defense program.

"Our ideal, our objective is still peace—peace at home and peace abroad," Mr. Roosevelt told a tense and solemn joint session of the Senate and House. "Nevertheless we stand ready not only to spend millions for defense, but to give our services and even our lives for the maintenance of our American liberties."

A huge warplane program was put forward by the chief executive as a long-range goal. His more immediate recommendations, Mr. Roosevelt said, were designed to give the nation a modern, well-equipped army and industrial-military resources capable of leading the defense of the western hemisphere in a world of lightning war.

In addition to his goal of 50,000 warplanes in readiness for action, Mr. Roosevelt also held out to Congress the objective of gearing the nation "to the ability to turn out at least 50,000 planes a year."

The president and commander-in-chief spoke gloomily of "ominous days" abroad — "days whose swift and shocking developments force every neutral nation to look to its defenses in the light of new factors."

The president broke down his request into $896,000,000 in immediate appropriations, of which the army would get $546,000,000 and the navy and marine corps $250,000,000 and $100,000,000 would be at his disposal "to provide for emergencies affecting the national security and defense."

In addition, he asked the legislators to authorize the government to enter into contracts totalling $286,000,000 to be paid for by appropriations later on.

Of the latter, the army, navy and marine corps would receive $186,000,000 and the President $100,000,000.

Explaining the purposes of the huge new defense fund, Mr. Roosevelt said it would be used for four things:

- "First, to procure the essential equipment of all kinds for a larger and thoroughly rounded-out army."
- "Second, to replace or modernize all old army and navy equipment with the latest type of equipment."
- "Third, to increase production facilities for everything needed for the army and navy for national defense. We require the ability to turn out quickly infinitely greater supplies."
- "Fourth, to speed up to a 24-hour basis all existing army and navy contracts and all new contracts to be awarded."

Nazis Continue Drive Against Maginot Line Along 110-Mile Front

Hand-To-Hand

With the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium, May 16.—(AP)—Hand-to-hand fighting of the fiercest kind swept through the sun-splashed streets of Louvain this morning as picked troops counter-attacked three times to throw out Germans, who had gained a foothold on the eastern fringe of the town.

In the late afternoon the British were busily digging in after a day of furious combat in which an early German advantage had been overcome by three furious attacks by the British infantry.

The Germans had withdrawn outside the town and artillery of both armies was busy—the Germans shelling the British position in the environs and the British guns hurling metal over the town into the German lines in the country behind it.

SUGG TO HEAD TOBACCO ASSO.

Group Endorses 3-Year Crop Control Program

B. B. Sugg, Greenville warehouseman, was named president of the Eastern Carolina Tobacco Warehousemen's Association in annual session of that body in Rocky Mount today. The association went on record as endorsing the three-year federal farm crop control program.

Mr. Sugg succeeds W. E. Penner of Rocky Mount, R. C. Rankin, sales supervisor on the Greenville market, was named secretary.

The warehousemen heard an address by P. P. Spruill, Rocky Mount banker and former president of the North Carolina Bankers Association. The speaker discussed the present conditions and their effects on tobacco and other farm products in this section. While admitting the outlook was not bright, he declared that if "we hold our heads and keep our feet on the ground everything will work out all right in the end."

Resolutions of respect for J. M. Hogwood of Farmville and B. H. Bunn of Rocky Mount, both of whom have died within the past year, were unanimously passed by the association.

Other officers elected were: J. R. Brooks of Kinston, vice president; directors, W. Z. Morton of Greenville, H. H. Lewis of Kinston, Hob Anderson of Wilson, I. M. Little of Robertsonville, N. L. Perkins of Smithfield, H. J. Johnson of Tarboro, L. R. Bell of Goldsboro, Garland Hodges of Washington, J. C. Carlton of Farmville, Jimmie Taylor of Williamston and H. P. Foxhall of Rocky Mount.

Hails Action On Wheeler-Lea Bill

J. Nat. Harrison, Chamber of Commerce president and head of the local port commission has been advised from Washington that the Wheeler-Lea bill which would have placed all waterway traffic under the Interstate Commerce Commission has been referred to committee with instructions that inland waterways together with traffic along tributaries thereto be exempted from the provisions. The action indicates the death of the bill with the result that the inland waterways traffic will continue free to serve the best interests of the sections it reaches.

Mr. Harrison was profuse in his praise for Congressman Lindsay C. Warren through whose efforts the bill was kept from passage. At the time of the presentation of the bill to congress last summer, Mr. Warren pointed out that such a measure would defeat the purposes of the inland waterways and deprive great sections of the country of the benefits to be derived from the cheaper water traffic rates. Under the provisions of the measure the Tar River project now nearing completion would have been of little benefit in the way of cheaper freight rates for this section. Mr. Harrison declared that Congressman Warren's successful fight against this measure will mean the eventual savings of great sums by this community in the way of cheaper freight rates as the result of water transportation facilities.

German Forces Wage Attacks In Seventh Day of Drive After Having Already Netted Practically All Of Netherlands, Half of Belgium and Small Section In Northern France.

Berlin, May 16.—(AP)—German forces attacked heavily today along a 110-mile front from Antwerp to Sedan in the seventh day of the sustained drive, which already has netted them all of The Netherlands, except the province of Zeeland, half of Belgium and a small section of France.

The high command reported the Allies yesterday "accepted the fight" in the Antwerp fortifications northeast of Brussels and along the Dyle defense line, from there south through central Belgium to Namur.

Southeast of Namur, 50 miles from Sedan, the high command said "our divisions expanded their successes" by crossing the Meuse and "again defeating French armored units."

French counter attacks south of Sedan, it said, were repelled, while the Germans pressed the attack toward the Maginot line itself, farther to the southwest, to take into their hands more of the strip between the rival fortified lines.

Hand in hand with the furious fighting on the ground, German air forces saw heavy action. The high command reported it broke up enemy troop concentrations and destroyed tanks, while losing only 18 planes compared to "definitely established total losses of the opponents" yesterday of 93 planes.

It declared two destroyers and three merchantmen were sunk by air bombs yesterday off the coast of The Netherlands and Belgium and two destroyers and four merchantmen were "hit severely," while a submarine torpedoed a tanker and an armed merchantman.

Enemy flights over Western Germany last night, the high command said, caused "immaterial damage," but killed and injured a number of civilians.

AIR ASSAULTS UNLEASHED ON GERMAN LINES

Royal Air Force Conducts Offensive Against Enemy

TONS OF BOMBS ARE RELEASED

Land Forces Meanwhile Join Belgian Army In Attacks On Nazi Troop Concentrations

London, May 16.—(AP)—Great Britain's Royal Air Force has unleashed its greatest bombing attack on military objectives in Germany east of the Rhine and has thrown its power into the Belgium fighting with extensive attacks on Nazi troop concentrations and communications lines.

"Many tons of bombs," were released in "attacks that lasted throughout the night," the Air Ministry declared.

The Royal Air Force operation east of the Rhine was called a "big offensive against the enemy's road and rail communications."

Fires broke out and heavy explosions resulted, it was said.

Allied war communiques declared that Germany's big push through the low countries was being slowed down by the stiffening resistance of land and air forces.

British Tommies thrown into the raging Belgian line were said by headquarters communiques to have "successfully held back serious German attacks" in hard fighting.

Waves of Allied planes were said to have broken up mechanized forces massed by the Germans in a drive to capture Brussels and turn the flank of French fortified lines.

A British headquarters communique declared that since the start of the lowlands offensive, the air force, with the British expeditionary force has destroyed at least 124 German planes, while 23 have been downed by anti-aircraft fire.

Wounded from fighting zones, between 200 and 300 British casualties, half of them stretcher cases, arrived at Liverpool early today from France and Norway.

Administration Attempts To Lessen Effect Of War On American Agriculture

Upwards of $400,000,000 To Be Asked Of Congress For Price-Bolstering Loans On Surplus Crops In Face Of Closing of Foreign Markets To Farm Products of This Nation

Washington, May 16.—(AP)—With the war closing many foreign markets to American farm products, authoritative sources said today that the administration plans to ask Congress soon for upwards of $400,000 for price-bolstering loans on 1940 crop surpluses.

Such funds would supplement the $750,000,000 farm subsidies and benefits tentatively approved by both the House and Senate in the Agriculture department supply bill.

Farm officials are viewing the foreign market outlook with anxiety. Secretary Wallace predicted yesterday that exports during the coming fiscal year would be 30 per cent smaller than this year. Sharp reductions in foreign sales of cotton, wheat, tobacco, fruits and pork products are anticipated.

Under existing legislation the agriculture department is authorized to make loans to producers on surpluses at rates tending to bolster and hold prices above levels that the supply and demand otherwise would dictate.

However, funds available for such loans were said to total less than $100,000,000. Through loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and congressional appropriations $1,000,000,000 has been made available to the Commodity Credit Corporation for such loans.

About $900,000,000 of this amount is now tied up in loans or in commitments taken over under foreclosure.

"Proserpina and Sam," a fantasy by Herbert White Lee, dramatics student, was entered in the North Carolina play writing contest, though not a winner, receiving favorable comment. Rosalee Brown, Margie Dudley, Herbert Lee and Ralph Hunter are in the cast. Clifton Britton, practice teacher is director.

Americans Are Advised To Leave Italian Soil

Another Message Is Sent to Premier Mussolini

Washington, May 16.—(AP)—The White House said today that President Roosevelt had sent another communication to Premier Mussolini of Italy in an effort to prevent the spread of the European war.

Stephen Early, White House secretary, told reporters that "this communication that went out was one of a series" and was not "within itself any new separate appeal."

Rome, May 16.—(AP)—American diplomatic authorities today advised United States citizens to leave Italy as soon as possible.

The United States consulate sent the following circular to American residents in the Italian capital:

"The consulate has been directed by the embassy to call the attention of American citizens residing in the Rome consulate district and advise of returning to the United States at the earliest possible moment."

It was understood that other American consulates in Italy were issuing the same advice.

Ambassador William Phillips delivered a message from President Roosevelt to Italian authorities yesterday for transmission to Premier Mussolini, it was learned.

The embassy declined to add anything to the Washington announcement that the message was sent in an effort to prevent the war from spreading.

Troops continued today to protect British and French embassies in Rome against possible demonstrations. None materialized.

Local Radio Station Gets Unlimited Time

Julian J. White, who is the government licensee of Greenville's own radio station, WGTC, now under construction, received word yesterday that he had been granted permission by the Federal Communications Commission to operate the station unlimited time, both day and night time hours.

The original permit issued by the Federal Communications Commission provided for day time operation alone. Mr. White contended that this limited service would not best serve Greenville's radio listeners and applied to the commission for unlimited time operation. It was to this request that a favorable reply was received yesterday.

Planes And Tanks Clash On Front In Meuse Area

General Melee Reported From Namur To Sedan In Northern France, With Armored Units Plunging Forward Ahead Of Infantry; Fighting General After Week's Operations On Two Lines

Paris, May 16.—(AP)—Thousands of warplanes and tanks clashed in an unprecedented battle of movement along the Meuse front today, involving a situation so serious and confused that the high command withheld all but the barest details.

A general melee ensued from Namur south to Sedan in northern France—scene of the fiercest German attack—with armored units from either side cutting loose from their infantry and plunging boldly forward to strike the enemy from the rear.

A War Ministry spokesman said the Germans were meeting powerful resistance as they pushed deeper into Belgium at three different points on the west bank of the Meuse, where they crossed yesterday.

Fighting was general after a week's operations on two great lines. One running from Antwerp to Sedan in France.

The second line runs from Sedan along the Franco-German border to the Vosges mountains. In this area the fighting was characterized principally by artillery duels between opposing fortifications.

In the Sedan region itself the French claimed the Germans were blocked in an attempt to deepen a pocket they drove into northern France yesterday.

A French war office spokesman acknowledged that the German army, following up advantages gained after crossing the Meuse between Sedan and Namur, continued to push forward in the face of strong allied opposition.

He said the enemy, flinging armored shock troops far ahead of the main body, was striking at the rear of the French forces in an effort to cut them off in the area between Sedan and Namur.

A great battle is progressing and the situation is "serious," he said.

CZECH SOIL FAVORABLE FOR HERB CULTIVATION
Prague.—(AP)—Self-sufficiency in every field, coveted goal of the Reich, is being brought one step nearer to realization by intensified cultivation of medicinal plants and herbs.

Bohemia and Moravia have been found by Czech geologists to possess not only the climatic conditions, but also a qualitatively high-grade soil, most favorable for such cultivation.

The Ministry of Agriculture of the Protectorate inaugurated a large program for 1940 to make the first big-scale growing of these herbs a success.

Germany will thus be able to annually save several million marks Carman of Ayden, are spending medicinal plants.

... A SUMMER "MUST"

With the warm days ahead, a whole Tender Made bone-in ham in the refrigerator is a standing "must." I suggest serving it hot for the first meal, then later as a cold meat platter, and later in zesty entrees, sandwiches and evening snacks.

TO SERVE HOT. Wilson's Secret Process Tender Made Ham is ready to eat, just as you buy it. To serve it hot, however, have it at room temperature. Then place in an open roaster and heat in a moderate oven (350° F.), allowing 5 minutes to the pound. Remove from oven, take off rind, score and pat in brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon of ground cloves. Return to hot oven (450° F.) for 20 minutes to finish heating, and baste with 1 cup of juice from spiced crabapples.

TO SERVE COLD. Cut in thin, even slices and arrange attractively on a platter. Garnish with parsley and a border of spiced crabapples.

Certified Frankfurters En Casserole

Cook one 9-oz. package of elbow macaroni in boiling salted water. When tender, drain and rinse with cold water. Melt 3 tablespoons Clear Brook Butter, blend in 3 tablespoons flour and add 2 cups milk and season with 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, a dash of cayenne, salt and pepper to taste. Cook, stirring until thickened. Add all but 2 tablespoons of a package of Wilson's Certified Pimento Cheese, grated. Add the macaroni and 6 Wilson's Certified Frankfurters, cut in 1/2-inch, bite-size pieces. Pour into large casserole. Combine remaining cheese with a few dry bread crumbs, and sprinkle on top. Cook 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350° F.). Brown under flame. Serves six.

RICH LEMON FILLING

Lemon cheese curd is an old English favorite. It is simply delicious for small tarts, jelly roll, as a sandwich spread with cream cheese or as a cup custard or ice-cream topping. Melt 1/2 lb. Clear Brook Butter in a double boiler. Add 1 lb. sugar and unstrained juice and grated rind of 5 lemons. When sugar is dissolved, add 4 Clear Brook Eggs, beaten. Cook, stirring constantly for 10-15 minutes. Cook over simmering burner until of a thick, honey consistency (about 1 1/2 hours). Pour into covered containers. Stored in refrigerator, will keep indefinitely.

New Weapon' Destroys London—In British Movie

LONDON has been watching, with interest, a movie that shows what might happen in a German air raid. The film, "Bombs Over London" is now being shown in the United States. This scene from the picture how a blackout fails when moonlight, reflected from the Thames, leads enemy aircraft to London Bridge.

ATTACKING robot planes are picked up by the beams of the city's defensive searchlight system.

PANICKY RESIDENTS flock into air raid shelters. The film, based on Hitler's threat of an unknown weapon, shows an attack by planes controlled by a combination of radio and television.

DESTRUCTION is rained on the London waterfront, as the enemy, a country called "Grovinia," pursues its careful plans. At the same time the attack is carried to industrial centers and airdromes.

Strength For The Day
By EARL L. DOUGLASS

RELIGION IS REAL
It is for some people, and wherever this is true it is a costly extra.
In fact there is real doubt as to whether or not it is worth what people pay for it in such cases.

When religion is an "extra" and for whom? It is an "extra" when men and women put it some place else than first, and it is an "extra"
for those who want it only as an adjunct of respectability or as a convenience. Many people belong to church because it's the thing to do.
They go when the weather is too bad for golf, or when they don't have a week-end engagement, or when fancy moves them. Of course they go at Christmas and Easter.
Furthermore, they want to be sure by membership in the church, that they will have someone to baptize marry, and bury when the need arises in the family.

Now whenever one pays for religion
under these circumstances is too much, and for the simple reason that they are, under such conditions, getting nothing vital that religion has to offer. What religion offers us is the forgiveness of our sins and the release within our hearts and from high heaven of those powers which make triumphant living possible. Religion, when it is real, gives us something;
and what it asks in the way of cost is not a pittance of cash but the opening of the doors of our hearts to the most high God may fellowship with us and we with Him.
(All rights reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

Of course the weather
has been against baseball so far but even taking the weather into consideration the interest shown locally in our baseball games has been far too small. Greenville now finds itself placed in the position of having to withdraw from the league unless its citizens evidence more interest by attending the games and supporting the team. The matter is one that is entirely up to our people.
Either we want baseball or we don't want it, and it is up to you to decide by your actions.

There is no denying the fact that our country needs to be more adequately prepared for its defenses and we repeat our previous suggestion in this column that by converting a large number of the present unemployed
into soldiers, production
along all lines would necessarily have to be stepped up which in the end would decrease unemployment to the minimum and at the same time place America in a position to defend itself, come what may. We believe enough money has been and is being wasted in various government projects, which

Just How Far Away Are We?

if wisely spent for increased
army, navy and air forces,
would give us all the defenses
we need to protect the entire western hemisphere.

GERMAN IDEA OF
FREEDOM

Broadcasting to German youth, Dr. Robert Ley, chief of the German Labor Front and Nazi philosopher, recently gave the official National Socialist definition of freedom. "A man is free,"
he said, "first, when he can eat, drink, dress and live as and where he pleases or finds necessary; second,
when he can wander out into the world wherever and however he pleases, and,
third, when others honor and esteem his labors. That is the true meaning of the word
freedom."

In giving these three points, Dr. Ley indicated they were what the German nation is now fighting to gain. Observers wondered whose "honor and esteem"
the Germans are gaining by the unending chain of broken promises and the ruthless persecution of millions of Jews, Czechs, Poles and other conquered peoples.

Apparently the general
phrase "a man is free" is accepted as apply only to Hitler-minded Germans—the rest of the world does not count.

Washington
Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington. If the rest of the country is like Washington, it is also a little more than a little more than Winston Churchill, who as Prime Minister of Great Britain, has for the first time in nearly four decades of public life, appeared in the hands of the people in his hands.

Somebody around the world
I have found a few people who know him intimately and have called on them to get a better sense for an intimate view of the man who will guide the destinies of the Allies against a Nazi war machine which is rousing up momentous success over Europe's little nations.

The 66-year-old Prime Minister, whose trademark is a black coat, is fat, elderly, stout. But his looks are deceiving. He is tempestuous, meteoric and combines recklessness with the most fantastic tenacity. Lord Asquith, under whom he served in one of his nine cabinet posts said, "Winston has genius but not judgment." You couldn't convince the English people of that.

He's Half American

It's typical of Churchill that when Sir Neville Chamberlain was attacked for withdrawal of the troops from Norway, Churchill came to his defense and temporarily, at least,

prevented the political rout of his superior. Yet Churchill, in the last World War, was the man who shouted that if the Scandinavian countries could be brought in on the side of the Allies, the war would be over in less than 15 months.

As far as I can find out, without reading a history of the British Empire, he's the first Prime Minister who is half American. His mother was Jenny Jerome of New York.

The men who have influenced his life and for whom he has had much veneration include his father, Lord Randolph Churchill; Lord Hugh Cecil, died in the wool; Tory
lord George, Sir Francis Mowat, conservative of the strict Victorian school; and Bourke Cockran, a famously Tiger of New York's rearing Nineties.

Churchill once was an honored guest of Kaiser Wilhelm II, but he has become the symbol for almost everything in the British people the Germans hate and fear. There's no love lost on his side. From the first, he has been one of Hitler's evilest critics.

When he talks about the Nazis,
he's at his snarliest. Frequently he ends his tirades with, "In the end, we'll break their hearts."

Know, Flanders Field.

Winston Churchill has intimate knowledge of Flanders Fields. It was there, 22 years ago, that his father, an ancestor, Marlborough, fought most of a ten-year war against France, capturing many formidable strongholds and winning the battles of Ramillies, Oudenard and Malplaquet. In recent years, Churchill has written a brilliant sixvolume biography of Marlborough, tracing his campaigns step by step across what is modern Belgium.

He Just Missed.

Unlike many statesmen, Churchill has been under frontline fire. In the middle years of the World war, he left the government to become a major in the trenches—once leaving a dugout after two hours of letter-writing just a few minutes before it was blown to smithereens.

For the first 11 years after Great Britain's armed forces took up airplanes, he was chief of one branch or another of aviation. When he was first chief of the Royal Naval Air Forces, they had five planes, five pilots. For some years, he piloted a plane himself, but gave it up after several crashes.

He's a violent enemy of red tape
and refuses to abide by the petty regulations of minor officials. He works from 9:30 a. m. to 1 or 2
a. m., often reminds associates
that work and pleasure are the same thing. Nevertheless, he has a hobby;
it's the same as that of Gen. Gustave Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies. It's oil painting.
Churchill also is an amateur bricklayer. He has been a journalist, war correspondent, and novelist.

He's an avid collector of cartoons
in which he appears and chuckles over all of them. A little hobby out

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 16.—All the candidates for lieutenant governor should throw their support to Colonel Arthur Simmons as soon as they hear about his expense account, filed in the office of the Secretary of State.
Simmons promises "nominated and elected, not to go to seed. I shall resign after two years, the lieutenant governor to be governor."
The Almanac man's expense account was decorated by pasted clippings of his platform. He reported contributions of $205—all but $5 of it from a brother who lives in Michigan. The five-spot, he reported,
came from "War Veterans, Charlotte."

Tom Cooper reported in his total contributions of $1,668 an item of "1 cowboy hat," valued at $13 and presented by Tom Whisnant of Salisbury.

First definite signs of summer
were observed in the Capitol Wednesday when electric fans were carried into all the offices.

There has been nothing at all dead
about the Funeral Directors convention in session here this week; and it hasn't yet been decided which five of the gubernatorial candidates will need embalming services immediately after May 25.

The convention, incidentally, is the one which forced postponement of the Democratic state convention
one day in order to avoid a conflict of dates.

Oscar Barker of Durham, a candidate for Congress in the Fourth,
was here Wednesday to file his expense account in person.

He says that in campaigning his district he finds that the greatest applause drawer is a pledge that, if elected, he will never vote to send Americans abroad to "fight in any of Europe's wars."

Your Raleigh reporter was "tipped" by one of the gubernatorial headquarters that organizations will be set up in Johnston county by at least four candidates—the idea being that Paul Grady's campaign has been such a total flop as to make the capture of Johnston's vote possible.

On the other hand one of the best-informed politicians in the state told your reporter that Johnston is still at least 85 per cent for Grady and scouted the idea that there is any real chance of taking any great part of it away from the Kenly man.

Explanation of the Grady flop
most often offered hereabout is that in his previous statewide races the Johnston man has the advantage of hot "anti" fights. In 1936 when he ran for Lieutenant Governor, for instance, he was beneficiary of the McDonald drive against the powers that were. Still later, in the 1938 campaign against Utility Commissioner Stanley Winborne, he got the votes of those who are against the utilities and who regarded Mr.
Winborne as the very personification of subservency to the utility interests.

This time Grady is on his own and must get votes "for" and not "against," which alters the case considerably.

of which Hermann Goering also derives a lot of pleasure).
If he could be said to have one quality for which even his most outspoken enemies have great respect, it is courage. Not even the Nazis ever have questioned that.

Can Britain Hold These Gates To Mediterranean?

AP Feature Service

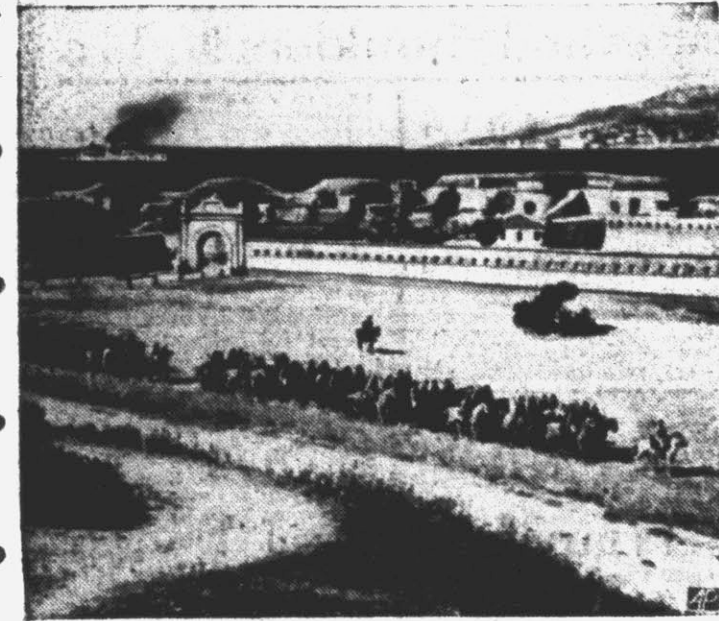

If the war spreads to the Mediterranean, these four gateways of that sea will be major objectives of the belligerents' warships and bombers. For whoever holds these gates holds the Mediterranean.

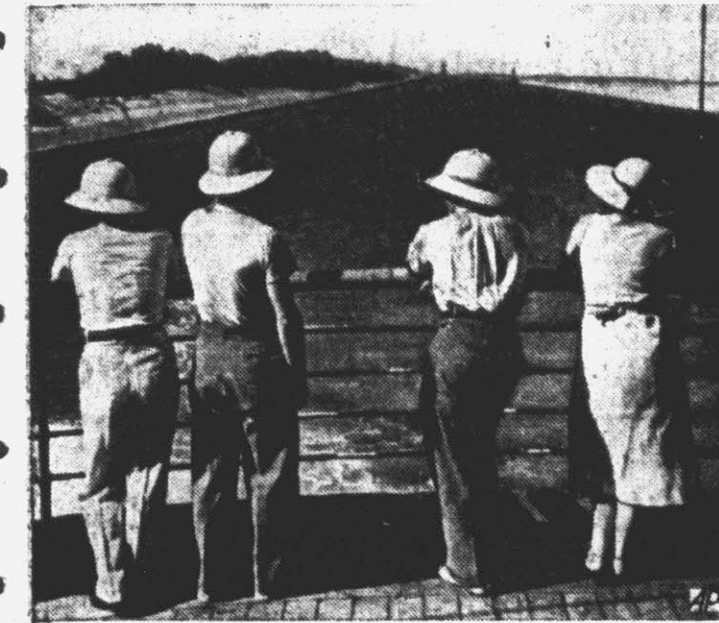

GIBRALTAR is Britain's 1,400-foot rock at the southern tip of Spain. It's honeycombed with gun galleries whose batteries can fire across the strait to African shore. Here's where British stop all traffic to search for German contraband.

MALTA is a 90-square-mile island, 60 miles off Sicily, 180 miles off Africa, controlling important mid-Mediterranean channels. Above is principal harbor, Valetta, a huge British naval base. It was center of operations during World war.

DARDANELLES (Hellespont of history) is held by Turkey, ally of the Allies. Heavily fortified, 35-miles long, four miles wide, it controls commerce to Balkans, southern Russia, is the key to the eastern Mediterranean. British couldn't take it in World war.

SUEZ CANAL, 100-mile waterway from Mediterranean to Red Sea, saves Britain from having to go around Africa to get to India and Australia, is Italy's best route to Ethiopia. One ship sunk at narrow point might block traffic. British have naval base at each end.

GAIN IS NOTED IN SEED TESTS

Field Men Chiefly Credited With Big Increase

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 15.—North Carolina's seed laboratory in the Department of Agriculture made practically twice as many tests during the two years from 1937 to 1939 as were made in the period from 1934 to 1936, unimpeachable statistics in the Department prove.

From the very nature of the testing work it is certain that the field inspectors of the Department are chiefly responsible for this tremendous increase in tests made to assist the farmers of the state in getting good seed; and to them must go the principal credit for the increase from 17,699 to 34,799.

Four Raleigh reporters took it up.

on himself to dig up these figures—and some others—after seeing in the public prints campaign statements attributed to State Senator C. Wayland (Rippling Waters) Sprull, who is opposing Commissioner Kerr Scott in the coming primaries.

From the Sprull charges it appeared that the principal duty of the seed inspectors is to buy up samples of seed and send them in for analysis; but a completely objective study of the setup reveals that such purchases are a completely negligible part of the inspectors' duties.

To begin with no seed in bulk is ever bought. Samples of this type seed are furnished the Department without charge by the state's seed dealers. The vast majority of seeds sold in North Carolina are "bulk" seeds such as lespedeza, cotton, soybeans, small grains, clovers, corn, grasses, etc., and the volume of package seed in comparison is pitifully small. Hence any attempt to set up the number of packet seeds purchased by an inspector as the standard of his efficiency is completely misleading.

Sprull stated, according to press accounts of his speech that "during the last two months one of them (seed inspectors) bought $1.35 worth of seed and turned in a bill to the State for $560.13. The other one bought $1.67 worth of seed during the months of February and March and sent a bill to the state for $566.83 for expenses."

The facts, proved by the auditor's report, are that during these two months the two inspectors whose expense accounts were the heaviest had combined expense accounts amounting to $622.14 (E. J. Harrington $320.13 and C. H. Luterio $302.01), while all four inspectors of the department combined showed total expenses of $1,101.27, less by $15.69 than the total for two alleged by Sprull.

The facts also are that during these two months (February and March) the Seed Laboratory of the State Department of Agriculture tested a total of 3,498 individual samples of seed, practically all of which were gathered and sent in by the four inspectors or which were sent in by dealers as the result of visits and requests made by the inspectors.

Furthermore, far less than one per cent of the seed tested for farmers and dealers had to be bought, or, in other words the four inspectors were responsible for securing more than 99 per cent of the 3,498 sam-

Many Volunteers In Poppy Day Sale

Call for volunteers to serve in the American Legion Auxiliary's Poppy Day forces is being enthusiastically answered by the young women of Greenville. Mrs. R. D. Whichard, poppy chairman of the Greenville auxiliary unit, announced today.

Organization of the workers who will distribute the memorial poppies throughout the city on Poppy Day, May 25, is proceeding rapidly. The women who are offering their services are being assigned to teams, each of which has a definite part of the city to supply with the little flowers. Working in relays, they will be on the streets throughout the day.

The response to the call for Poppy Day workers is very gratifying, said Mrs. Whichard. "It shows that the spirit of patriotism is very much alive in the women of Greenville today. All will serve as unpaid volunteers, every penny of the money contributed for the poppies going to the Legion and Auxiliary activities for the disabled veterans and dependent families of veterans."

"It is a real sacrifice for many of these women to serve on Poppy day. They must leave their homes and put in hours of hard, unaccustomed work. Their only reward will be to see the poppies blooming on every coat in tribute to the nation's heroic dead and to feel their comrades grow heavy with contributions for the war's living victims. I am sure everyone in Greenville will appreciate what they are doing and will respond gladly to their appeal to wear a poppy."

Stewart is Senior Loop "No-Hit" Umpire Cincinnati. (AP)—Bill Stewart shouldn't have much trouble winning an unanimous nomination for umpire-who-knows-most-about-National-league-no-hitters. Stewart was behind the bat in the last two no-hitters pitched in the senior loop. Most recent was Tex Carleton's effort for the Dodgers against Cincinnati. Stewart also worked behind the bat the night Johnny Vander Meer of the Reds upset the Dodgers for his second straight no-hitter back in 1938. Stewart says Carleton "was plenty fast and mixed his speed with sharp curves. His control was good and his sidearm delivery had the righthanded Cincinnati batters backing away from the plate—and when they did that his pitches went right over it and past them."

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Beyond saying his name is Derek, the impudent young man will tell nothing about himself. He informs Jan that she is responsible for him from now on.

Chapter Four

TANCE is cheerful! Jan defended. "At least most of the time. He—he has courage." "And I haven't. Well, in case no one ever told you, it takes courage to die. Did you tell your brother about me?"

"Not about your trying to—"

"Drown myself?"

"Please don't tell him," she asked quickly.

"Afraid it might put ideas into his head? That's childish psychology. So he believes I'm just a poor devil who overestimated his strength and swam out too far, is that it? Let's see, I could be a lone orphan, just kicked off the WPA, with no place to go."

"Lance and I are orphans," she said shortly, "and the only things which keep us off government relief are two roomers and Lance's model planes."

"Sorry. I have a penchant for stepping on people's toes. So now, on top of all your troubles, you have me. Why on earth didn't you leave me alone? Or do you go looking for trouble?"

"I hoped you'd be pirate treasure or ambergris," she retorted. "I'm going looking for some cheap clothes for your right now. Maybe I can find something at the salvage store."

As he appeared completely mystified she explained that Sea Tide had five stores overflowing with clothes, furniture, cooking utensils and odds and ends which, purportedly, were salvaged from steamships and railroads. "I doubt if it is," she said, "but it's just a colorful way to dispose of cheap junk."

"What, won't I have a Bond Street cutaway?" he pleaded.

"You'll be lucky to get a pair of blue jeans and a shirt! And," she added triumphantly, "you can't go along to interfere with my choice."

"Meaning you're too proud to be seen with a man in a pink shirt? False pride, I contend. Mind if I postpone meeting your brother until I have something besides this pink shirt to wear? I shall try to make a good impression, seeing that I'm to be a permanent guest here."

"Correction, please—we can't afford guests. If you stay here, you will be obliged to work for your keep."

He sighed, lugubriously. "I hope it will be a pleasure."

"She didn't want to say it, but she couldn't resist. By the appearance of your hands you have small acquaintance with work of any sort."

Holding up his fingers he squinted at them ruefully, flexing the joints. "Never worked a day of my life. Hurry up with those clothes, will you?"

Slipping into a short tan reefer she started out for the store, her thoughts in jumbled chaos. This was definitely the most exciting thing that had ever happened to her. It would be grand to have someone gay and young around the house, even if he was a non-committal potential suicide! Who was it said something about the unknown ways being more fascinating than the known?

Millionaire Wastrel?

SO he'd never worked! Perhaps that was exactly what allied him. Her mouth tightened with sudden purpose. Her imagination, rampant again, had him a millionaire wastrel who had gambled away his inheritance and desired death rather than poverty or hard labor!

Derek left alone, hugged the quilt about him and began reeling. He opened cupboard doors and peered at stacks of flowered dishes, shining pans, and groceries on neat, clean shelves. He pulled back the curtains at the kitchen windows and observed the unprepossessing rear of a sandwich stand where old paste-board cartons and tin cans littered the sand.

Quietly opening the door leading to the rest of the house, he entered a square dining room paneled with dark oak and furnished with a ship's table and plain, spindle-legged chairs. He went on, interested now to the living room which took up most of the downstairs. Curtains of close, fine net covered the windows, shutting out idly curious glances of passersby. There were varnished cases against the walls filled with all shapes, sizes and colors of sea shells, a ship's compass, a model of a wheel and a ship's log book. He took this last and thumbed through it, found it was the log of the Singapore Moon, a cargo ship plying between the west coast and the Orient. The captain was one Peter Merriner. The last entry read briefly:

"June 8th, 1935. Two hundred miles off San Pedro. Barometer falling, fear bad storm. Storm upon us... burst boilers... ship sinking. I will put the crew in the two lifeboats with papers and records. There is one seat left, but my wife refuses to leave me."

"An example of true love," Derek muttered. "And what of the children left alone?" He replaced the book, observing how stained and warped it was from salt water. So this, briefly, was the tragic story of Jan's parents. Had it ever puzzled and hurt her, he wondered, the fact of her mother's deserting her children for her husband?

On the mantel over the stone fireplace he saw a framed photograph of a trim merchant ship, "Singapore Moon" was scrawled in bold vertical letters across the bottom. He went on to the tall bookcase, literally crammed with books, at the right of the fireplace. Stevenson, Kipling, Jack London, Emerson, Dickens, Balzac, Shelley, Byron, Milton, Shakespeare, a King James Bible—and all looked as if they had been read and re-read.

"Cheerful morning," he grumbled and went on around the room, touching his finger-tips to the comfortable davenport, the slip-covered easy chairs, the marine-patterned parchment lamp shades, but ignoring entirely, as if by determined effort, the most beautiful piece in the entire room: a concert grand piano of lustrous polished mahogany.

Touch Of Pugnacity

FEET on the stairway arrested his tour of inspection. Johnny Benton swung around the newel post at the bottom of the steps and stopped dead to stare at the apparition in the pink bed quilt.

"What the deuce!" he exclaimed, his eyes popping.

"Where's your 'I inquire the same'?" "I belong here," Johnny asserted, a touch of pugnacity in his tone.

Derek regarded Johnny's spotless white beach ensemble with morose eyes. "So do I belong here," he said.

"Since when?" the other man demanded, advancing into the room.

"Since yesterday afternoon. Do they actually have clothes like those in these salvage stores?" he baited joyfully.

His bait was ignored. "It's darned funny Jan didn't tell me about you. Jan's something queer going on around here. What are you doing in that quilt?" "Trying to keep warm." Disregarding him, Derek picked up a magazine and appeared absorbed in its pictures, irritably at ease in his trailing quilt.

"Look here, fellow," said Johnny, reaching Derek and grabbing hold of the pink covering. "I'm looking out for Jan and I want an explanation from you!"

Derek said nothing, just looked down at Johnny, measuring him. A squinting, hateful sense of inferiority curdled Johnny's insides and his hand dropped to his side. "Well, it all seems pretty thick," he mumbled.

"That's better," Derek complimented. "Since you are the self-professed protector around here it's only fair to inform you Miss Merriner rescued me from pelagic waters yesterday."

"Pel—what? Say, you—Jan!" The front door opened and Jan said: "I see you're up, Johnny. This is my new handy man, and Derek, this is Johnny Benton, one of my roomers who plays a swing trumpet at the very ultra-swing Surf Club in Santa Monica."

Johnny turned his eyes suspiciously from one to the other. He didn't like the way things were going at all. He did not stop to rationalize his sudden bristling before, but there it was. Then he spied the clothes over Jan's arm. "What you got there, Jan?"

"Some clothes for Derek." She extended white duck trousers, white cotton polo shirt and tennis sneakers. "Do get off that ridiculous quilt and put these on. He ordered smiling against her better judgment at the storm brewing on Johnny's face.

Derek took the articles, hoisted up his "sarong" and ran up the stairway.

"So," Johnny accused, fussing with the green silk scarf at his neck, "you pulled him out of the ocean yesterday and this morning you're buying him clothes and calling him by his first name! Who is he, anyhow? Where does he get off with those airs of his?"

"Oh, for goodness' sake, Johnny, calm down," she scolded. "I know nothing about him except he had to have clothes and food."

"Well, now he's got 'em you can send him on his way," he asserted.

A flush of temper tinted her cheeks. "Did you ever try really hard to mind your own business, Johnny?"

He said aggrievedly, his thick lips sulky. "You don't need to get so after all, Lance can't look out for you and I'm just thinking about your good. This fellow might be a thief, a dangerous maniac, anything. Maybe he escaped from Alcatraz!"

"And swam all the way from San Francisco to Los Angeles," Jan had to grin.

To be continued.

Blitzkrieg Means Lightning That Strikes In The Night

PROPAGANDA

Germany's invasions follow much the same pattern. Propagandists headed by Propaganda Minister Goebbels (above) help prepare for them, assert they were brought on by threats to German interests.

BOMBERS

Zero hour, between midnight and dawn, brings out swarms of bombers, which try to paralyze opposition by striking at communication lines. A major objective during the first hour of the invasion of Holland was the Rotterdam airport. Usually the defense has been weakened by activities of Nazi agents or sympathizers. Excuse for action against lowlands was that the Allies had planned to attack Germany through them.

AIR SOLDIERS

Advance agents of army drop from skies to take strategic points—or are landed in transport planes if airports have been won. Dutch charged that sky soldiers wore Dutch army uniforms.

Timed with traditional German precision, land forces strike in motorized columns. These roar ahead swiftly to catch defenders by surprise, to reinforce the advance agents, and to mop up opposition. While Nazi air soldiers were battling far in the interior of Holland, the land forces tried to clear the way to them by striking across the border at various points. To be successful these forces have to break thru fortified lines.

Convention May Develop Fight On Personalities

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 16.—North Carolina's Democratic hosts will gather here tomorrow with the only prospect of a fight a matter of personalities rather than of principle.

With more than 75 of the delegates under instruction from their counties to support the renomination of President Roosevelt, there seems no possibility that the principle of a third-term endorsement can be subject of a floor or committee battle.

With Governor Clyde R. Hoey still the most popular figure in the state, there is not even an outside chance that endorsement of his administration will be anything but unanimous.

With all the gubernatorial candidates on record in favor of teaching pensions, nobody will be able to raise a fuss there.

With reappointment of a mandate of the constitution, it will be impossible to muster any opposition to a resolution endorsing it in principle, though there may be all kinds of battling before ever it becomes an accomplished fact.

And so it goes when considering any of the issues which confront the people and the party.

But when it comes to the selection of the delegates who will cast North Carolina's 26 votes in the Democratic national convention there is a distinct possibility that there will be wrangling and jangling, rowing and jowing, before final results are in.

There's no guarantee of a fight even over this, as all hands appear anxious to avoid one if it can possibly be done.

The Roosevelt people, for instance, will go to great lengths to meet the wishes of factions which are not too enthusiastic over FDR and his New Deal.

It can be said without any shadow of doubt that Governor Hoey can be named a delegate at large by acclamation, and will, if he wants the honor, be made chairman of the Tar Heel delegation. Even the most rabid New Dealer who will have any convention influence is agreed to that.

There will likewise be no real opposition to State Chairman R. Gregg Cherry as an at-large delegate; and the same can probably be said of National Committeeman Lon Folger and National Committeewoman Beatrice Cobb.

While the North Carolina Senators have been sent to the last two Democratic national conventions as delegates at large, there is no long-standing custom which decrees they shall go. During his long tenure of office, the late Senator F. M. Simmons seldom went to the conventions, nor did his long-time colleague Senator Overman.

A strong possibility for one of the at-large places (there will be eight, with half a vote each if custom is followed) is Dr. Ralph McDonald, a prime mover in the North Carolina for Roosevelt movement. He may be chosen by his district caucus, however, which would leave an opening for another on the group of eight.

As for the delegates from the various districts, there is no possibility of forecasting their identity. In cases where the Congressmen want to go, it's practically certain he can get the honor. Beyond that, there's nothing much to be forecast.

The delegation once elected, there will come up the matter of national committeeman to be chosen by the members. Months ago there was talk of the governor standing for the place now held by Lon Folger.

but he has stated plainly he is not a candidate and it looks as though Folger will be renominated without opposition.

Asheville newspaperman Hiden Ramsey is to make the State Convention Keynote speech, which seems to make it certain there will be no resounding praises sung for Roosevelt and the New Deal. On the other hand, Mr. Ramsey is a very practical man and is hardly likely to insult or ignore the achievements of the Democratic national administration. The permanent chairman won't take over until, as Secretary Libby Ward says, "everything is about over," so his choice is not a matter of great moment.

Altogether it looks like a convention without great fireworks, though there is plenty of explosive matter ready to go boom if ever the fuse should be lit and given just a bit of time to get going.

Even an agreement of leaders would be no warranty that floor fights would not be made against the Senators if they try for the delegation; but it is likely that any agreement made by the big wigs could be made to stick even in the face of opposition.

Greenies Break Even In Double-Header With Billies

HONOR LADIES FRIDAY NIGHT

LOCAL GOLFERS SCORE 26-22 VICTORY OVER KINSTON

Locals Drop First 6-5; Win Nightcap 8-0

Bill Teller, Richmond rookie recruit, allowed nine hits—the same number as Greenville got, in yesterday afternoon's nightcap of a double-header against Snow Hill at Guy Smith park—but he kept them so well scattered that the visitors were unable to score and the locals won 8-2 to even the twin bill.

A larger crowd than usual witnessed the bargain bill, but the attendance was below what officials feel it should be.

A determined effort is under way to have the stadium practically filled at tomorrow night's "ladies' night" fete.

Greenville came from behind in the first game to pull within one run of knotting the count, but was unable to catch up.

In the nightcap, however, the locals made two each in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth, while holding the visitors scoreless. Two double plays helped the Greenies take the seven-inning affair.

Greenville high school baseball team will roll into Roanoke Rapids tomorrow afternoon seeking revenge for a 25-0 defeat handed them early in the season by the Yellow Jackets.

Greenville won their first game last Friday from the Tarboro Braves. This game counted as two wins, because of an early-season rained-out game. The Daily-coached boys got off to a bad start this season and have lost five games. Teams that have won over the Green Phantoms are Washington, two wins; and Roanoke Rapids, one win.

After tomorrow's game the Phantoms will play two games with

Yank's Champ - To - Chump Flop Is Puzzler

AP Feature Service

New York.—Yankee fans have always felt that "It can't happen here"—too much power, too much pitching, too much class. Now that it has happened here, now that the Yanks have experienced a prolonged slump, the fans can't figure it out.

Plump pilot Joe McCarthy fidgets his bulk on the bench. He can't figure it out either. This is a strange scene for baseball, the picture of Joe fretting and wondering what to do next, experiencing some of the woes that have become daily routine for managers like Casey Stengel of the Bees and Connie Mack of the A's.

The Yanks in last place? The world champions in the cellar? It's unbelievable.

The players are bewildered. They grin, uncertainly, and say: "Manana. Tomorrow. Tomorrow we'll start to go!"

He's A Sphinx

McCarthy is a quiet man, stung with his talk. During the years that his team has been world champions he has kept his own counsel. Rarely has he conversed freely. And now that trouble has struck his forces, McCarthy is even more tight-lipped.

Slumps come and go. He can't believe that his team won't some day catch fire and smash its way back to the top. But, how much longer? There isn't much he can do. Even if he wanted to, he couldn't make a trade within the American league. It would be difficult to corral a valuable player from the National loop.

And does he want new players? Should he discard one of his own stars because of a slump, perhaps a temporary lapse? Only a few weeks ago his team was hailed as the greatest in the land.

Individually, his players ranked at the top, or around it. Can these players suddenly have dropped to minor league calibre?

Around the league they're wondering whether this is just a short-lived stretch of trouble or whether the Yanks actually have begun to disintegrate. This team already has stuck together longer than any of the other great machines in baseball history. Has the law of averages caught up with it?

Crossetti at short, Dickey behind the bat and Ruffing and Gomes among the pitchers are old in baseball age but the others are in their peak years. The team really isn't old.

Perhaps it is just that everything has belted the Yanks simultaneously. The batters aren't hitting, the pitchers aren't pitching effectively and the fielders have been guilty of silly errors. Never before in McCarthy's long regime have the Yankees lost eight straight games. Never before has the defense appeared as weak. Never before has such a fighting star as Crossetti been removed for a substitute.

They Aren't Hitting

None of the Yankees, save Joe DiMaggio and Buster Mills, late starters, and Buddy Rosar, reserve catcher, are hitting over .300. The great Dickey has a puny .169 mark. Charley Keller, the youngster who was expected to challenge for the batting crown, is hitting .240, so poorly that he was benched.

Yankee fans are worried, but not frantic. They point out that the Yanks have won by large margins for four years and that they can afford to give the other teams this early lead in the manner of a head-start and still whip them.

It is too early yet to say. But one thing seems certain: the Yankees, if they should regain their old stride, aren't going to run away with this race. Boston, Cleveland and Detroit are definite threats. The St. Louis Browns are greatly improved. The A's and the Senators are more formidable. None of these clubs are coming to be set up.

Only time can fathom the Yankee riddle. The next few weeks should clarify the situation and as they pass slowly by McCarthy must sit on the bench and fidget and fret and wonder.

JOE MCCARTHY: There Isn't Much He Can Do

To Be Here Saturday Night

Jesse Owens, Olympic track champion and world's fastest human, will present his streamline track exhibition at Guy Smith Stadium on Saturday night, May 18, at 8 o'clock. The Jesse Owens performance will follow a barnstorming exhibition game, involving the colored champion Ethiopian Clowns vs. Oscar Charleston's Toledo Crawfords, formerly of Pittsburgh. Arrangements for this combined attraction, which has been breaking park attendance records throughout the nation since Owens' triumphal return from the Olympics in 1936, were completed only after numerous exchange of wires and phone calls with the Syd Pollock Baseball Bureau of North Tarrytown, N. Y., sponsors of the current tour.

Never in the history of any sport has a champion approached Jesse Owens' record, either for speed or versatility. In personal popularity he ranks second to none, due to his engaging personality and devotion to his people. What Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey are to boxing, Bill Tilden to tennis, Joe DiMaggio and Babe Ruth to baseball, Jesse Owens is to the track, and more, Jesse holds or has equalled the world's records in 11 recognized track events. He broke three of these world's records and tied another within a period of two hours at the Big Ten track meet in Ann Arbor, Mich., when, as a member of Ohio State University, he gave the greatest one-man exhibition of speed and endurance ever witnessed in this Goldsboro. This will end the season for the Greenies.

The starting line-up for the Green Phantoms will be Bill Taylor, Charles Williams, Troy Riddle, Buddy Harrington, Marvin Stocks, G. A. Stroud, Larry James, Eddie Curry, and Cecil Crawford. The starting line-up for the Yellow Jackets is not known, but it is thought to be the same as it was in the game played earlier in the season by the two teams.

Pepsi Defeats Tadlock; W-L Takes Car. Sales

Carolina Sales was held scoreless until the fifth, when they scored five on two errors, a home run and a walk and two singles. The team added its final sixth in the seventh when it batted all the way around. Dudash and Hart each got three for four, one of the former's being a homer, to lead their team at bat. They were the only members of the team to connect for more than one safety.

The Water and Light boys scored four each in the first and second, three in the fourth and three in the fifth to pile up their 14 runs, which proved enough, although the losers came back strong in the latter part of the game.

Greenville Climbs In to Tie For Second Place

Greenville golfers yesterday afternoon took a match from Kinston 26-22. The match was rained out the first week of scheduled play and was made up on the locals' open date. Kinston also engaged Tarboro and won 26-9.

Only one more match is scheduled in the Eastern Carolina Golf Association loop before the annual championship play, set for Rocky Mount on June 5.

Wilzon defeated Goldsboro 30-19 to climb into the lead, while Rocky Mount won over Farmville 55-10.

Wilson meets Tarboro and Kinston on her home course in the final matches of the schedule next week and stands to clinch the league championship. Greenville

A list of Coastal Plain league players with batting averages of .300 or more through May 12 was released today by Thurman Vick of Kinston, league statistician, showing only four Greenville players with that average or better.

Droid, with .458 topped the list. Teller had .364, Brown .333 and Kracke .301.

Hammonds of Goldsboro, with .668, topped the list followed by Bartnick of Williamston, .625, Talley of Wilson, .467 and Droid.

A record of Greenville hurriers shows that Teller, with three wins and two losses, led in that division, followed by Willson with one win and four losses. Calliguri with one win and one loss was the only other Greenville hurler with a win to his credit as of the date the figures were compiled.

Five Greenville pitchers have been released, but none of them won a game.

Local golfers scoring points follow: Heath, Dr. Brown, Waldrop and Fetner, three each; Campbell, Edwards, S. Moye, L. Herring, J. Moye and Bryan, two each; Potts, Ruffin, one each.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 16.—(AP)—The stock market greeted President Roosevelt's billion dollar armament program today with a swift buying rush that pushed many prices up one to six points.

Steels and aircrafts were the chief beneficiaries. The buying got under way while the President was speaking and the tickers fell behind transactions on the floor—but only a minute behind and only for a short time. About 2,000,000 shares changed hands.

WHEAT QUOTA IS ANNOUNCED

N. C. Gets 400,512 of 62-Million Acre Crop

Raleigh, May 16.—North Carolina has been allotted 400,512 acres of the 62 million acre national wheat allotment for 1941. Horace Godfrey, AAA compliance officer of N. C. State College, announced today. There will be no marketing quota proclaimed for wheat this year, he said.

The 1941 wheat allotment, nationally, is the same as for 1940. Godfrey announced, "and this indicates that the wheat farmers of the United States are making progress in stabilizing supplies under the AAA program. Although marketing quotas will not be in effect next year, commercial wheat farmers of the state will receive acreage allotments, and if they plant within these allotments, they will be qualified for the various other advantages of the farm program, such as conservation payments, crop insurance, parity payments if provided, and wheat loans if such loans are made."

Godfrey also announced that 202 North Carolina farmers took advantage of "all-risk" crop insurance on their wheat in 1940, the first year that this service was offered to them under the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation program. The far Heel farmers insured 20,085 bushels of wheat produced on 2,013 acres.

The crop insurance plan allows the farmers to pay their premiums in the form of wheat, which is stored by the federal government as a part of the ever-normal granary reserves. The farmer's crop is insured against all unavoidable hazards, such as hail, drought, and flood.

A Fixed Amount Of Gold

Great Falls, Mont.—(AP)—After the concrete foundations of the new Civic Center Building were constructed, the contractor discovered there was gold in the gravel he had used.

Running about 25 cents to the ton, the contractor said the gold was so fine and of such small quantity it couldn't have been recovered from the gravel. But about $750 worth is in the foundations.

Cute, What?

Akron, O.—(AP)—When four-year-old Frankie Vance ignored his mother's plea to come to dinner, he explained: "Can't eat, mamma, me got a fire upstairs."

After firemen checked the blaze, Frankie confessed: "Me got the matches from daddy's Sunday pants. Did the firemen hang up daddy's pants?"
