ANTWERP CAPTURED BY GERMAN FORCES

DISCARD USUAL RESTRAINT ON DEFENSE BILL

Sub-Committee Votes To Allow Immediate Spending

RUSHING ACT TO SENATE FLOOR

Measure Approved by Group Carries Both Regular Army And Emergency Appropriations

Washington, May 18.—(AP)—Discarding the usual restraint on when new appropriations may be spent an appropriations sub-committee sped a $1,827,491,724 army bill toward Senate action today after inserting a provision to make the full sum available for emergency defense purposes as soon as the measure becomes law.

The measure, as approved by the Military sub-committee, carried both regular army funds and emergency appropriations asked by President Roosevelt Thursday as part of his unprecedented peace-time rearmament program. Emergency funds included a lump of $132,000,000 to be spent at the President's own discretion.

Ordinarily the funds would not become available until the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, but Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) reported that the subcommittee wrote in his amendment to make all funds available as soon as President Roosevelt signed the bill.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval committee meanwhile whipped into shape legislation to give Mr. Roosevelt extensive emergency powers to suspend federal labor and financial regulations which, Vinson said, might hamper the quickening drive to re-arm.

Vinson said he would have a comprehensive bill providing for suspension of wage and hour standards as applied to federal contracts among other things—ready for committee approval Monday and would seek "prompt action by the House."

The chief executive himself closely followed major developments of the huge program. Vinson made his proposal for increasing the President's emergency powers after hearing testimony by Navy Department experts as to "bottlenecks and delays."

ANTWERP FALL IS HEAVY BLOW

Had Been Rated As One Of Strongest Positions

By The Associated Press

Military men have rated Antwerp as one of the strongest fortifications in Europe.

But the Germans say they have captured it now, even more quickly than they did in their 1914 drive through Belgium.

Berlin declared it fell quickly today after the allied line in Belgium had to fall back from the defense of Brussels to preserve contact with the battered and imperiled allied line in northern France.

Its fall to the Germans may prove far more costly to the Allies in this war than it did in the last.

First, it would give the Nazis a new wedge on the North sea coast—the closest they have come yet to the channel ports from which they might launch an aerial blitzkreig on England.

Second, Antwerp provided a strong anchor for the Allies' northern flank on the Western front and therefore a position of vital importance to their whole defense structure.

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 18.—A governor's race practically devoid of issues is reflected quite truly in a state Democratic platform which does little except "point with pride" to achievements of the past.

There are 17 general paragraphs and a conclusion to the platform adopted Friday; but in the entire document there are only three "pledges" and one "recommendation" for the future.

Elsewhere it is a matter of "endorsing," or "commending" or "congratulating." Of all the paragraphs only one begins with a definite, fixed "pledge" to advocate anything whatsoever—and that one constitutes a paper victory for the West, a victory which was assured by reason of the fact that nobody could possibly vote openly against obeying constitutional mandate. The one paragraph in question is brief and to the point "We pledge our Representatives and Senators in the General Assembly to re-apportion legislative representation according to the census of 1940, regardless of

BOMBS STRIKE ON OIL TANKS

Hamburg and Bremen in Germany and Nazi-Held Bergen Norway, Targets of Successful Aerial Attacks

London, May 18.—(AP)—The Air Ministry today reported hits on oil storage tanks in Hamburg and Bremen during a night raid on Germany by British fliers.

Some of the storage tanks were destroyed and others were heavily damaged, it said.

British raiders also successfully bombed German oil tanks at Bergen, Norway, the ministry announced.

Reports of the raid and of an air battle in which nine British fighters shot 10 German bombers over France yesterday came amid an admittedly perilous situation to the Allies on the Western front.

An authoritative spokesman declared that the situation of the allied troops on the Western front "is very serious, but certainly no worse, and possibly a little bit better," than yesterday.

The German advance in northern France, he said, "has very much slackened, perhaps only temporarily, but exhaustion of German units taking part in the operations is apparent."

The British and Belgian lines in Belgium, he asserted, had to go back in order to conform to movements southward. He emphasized, however, that "there was no question of a break through or of troops retiring in confusion."

The British press admitted that the Allies were facing "the darkest hour" since 1918, when their World war armies were hovering on the brink of a crushing defeat.

German Pocket In France Widened At Heavy Losses

APPEAL NOTED FROM DECISION

Fertilizer Companies Seek To Halt Investigation

Winston-Salem, May 18.—(AP)—Attorneys for Swift and Company and International Agricultural Corporation this morning gave notice of appeal of the decision of Judge John J. Hayes denying them a temporary injunction in the fertilizer investigation to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Hayes decided Wednesday that the grand jury probe of the fertilizer industry was being carried out in complete accordance with the court's wishes and that the jury was entitled to the full use of the International and Swift records.

Notice of appeal was given this morning in district court as Judge Hayes heard various technical motions filed both by the government and the fertilizer firms.

Oregon Democrats Favor Third Term

Portland, May 18.—(AP)—Oregon democrats recommended President Roosevelt for a third term today.

The President swept past Vice President Garner seven-to-one in yesterday's presidential primary to win the states 10 delegates to the Democratic National convention. Nearly half the states precincts—711 out of 1,693—gave Roosevelt 30-194 against Garner's 4,918.

Republicans presented Senator McNary, Oregon, a greater presidential nomination endorsement than the combined democratic count for Roosevelt and Garner. He tallied 36,124 in 666 precincts.

French Doggedly Resist Savage German Thrusts

Paris, May 18.—(AP)—The Germans, hurling wave after wave of tanks into the stiffening French lines today widened the pocket they had carved out in the great battle in northern France, but at the expense of what the French called tremendous casualties.

The French met the German onrush in Vervins and Avesnes sector on the western side of the pocket with massed artillery fire, doggedly determined infantry and their own heavy mechanized units.

The Germans were estimated to be using between 2,500 and 3,000 tanks in the French pocket and French artillery at some places was firing point blank at the lumbering monsters.

Great numbers of these, accompanied by masses of planes and followed by lighter units and infantry were striking through the Vervins region toward the Oise river and through the Avesnes region toward the Sambre river.

The French reported the German progress was only "slight" in the Avesnes sector. The principal effort seemed to be around Vervins, where French artillery not only was pouring shells against the German tanks, but French said they had brought up enough of their own tanks to hold the ground.

The French command said that after the experiences of the last few days the French had learned how to deal with the German tank onslaughts.

Cooperation Gains Headway Babson Cites Growth Of Cooperative Spirit In Job-Seeking

Worcester, Mass., May 18.—More and more people are coming to the belief that the solution of world economic troubles does not lie in Communism, Fascism, or State Capitalism. Rather, they believe it lies in a 100 per cent cooperative system. I am now attending a large church convention where this thought is being discussed. Cooperatives envision the entire world developed into cooperative groups for buying, job-seeking, health, insurance, etc. For cooperatives to succeed, however, their leaders must be inspired by a religious fervor—not merely by a desire to save a little money.

Consumer cooperatives have not made as much headway in the United States as in Great Britain, although they have grown steadily. The chain stores have done for us much what the consumer cooperatives have done for Great Britain. As handicaps in the paths of chain stores are built up, however, there may be a greater need for consumer cooperatives. Low farm prices will fertilize the ground for more marketing cooperatives in rural areas. Recently the cooperative spirit has been given a tremendous boost by the Blue Cross Hospital plan and may be due for another big victory in the White Cross Doctor program.

Forty Plus Club
But the real triumph of the cooperative movement in the last year is in the employment field. The Forty Plus club of Boston has been the pioneer in this cause. Many readers have already heard of this movement which has fanned out across the United States and into Canada. As the name implies, all members of the club are over forty years of age and have earned over $4,000 per year. Tired of the constant objection, "Forty is the age deadline for new employees here" a group of these men formed the Forty Plus club two years ago.

The members go out to seek jobs, not for themselves but for the others in the club. A meeting is held once a week to discuss each job that has been uncovered. If someone in the club has the qualification (Continued on Page Two)

Nazi Forces Now Within 60 Miles of City of Paris

Capture of Antwerp Considered Major Victory for Hitler's Troops; Advance Unit of Nazis Take Point 60 Miles From French Capital; Dutch Cease to Offer Resistance

Berlin, May 18.—(AP)—Germany's mighty forces raced into strategic Antwerp today, while to the south their left wing thundered to within 60 miles of Paris, authorized sources said, and to the north their right ring mopped up in southern Holland, where resistance on islands of Zeeland province crumbled.

Heavy attacks by Nazi warplanes against enemy troops reeling back under the impact of the on-rushing warriors were reported by the high command to have turned the allied withdrawal into a retreat which "at a number of places resembled a rout."

Three high points of the pounding drive in the west toward the Belgian and French channel ports facing England and toward Paris stood out in German reports:

1. Advance guards in northern France cut through within 60 miles of Paris, while the main army is within 100 miles of the French capital.

2. Antwerp was entered today following a sweep in Belgium which netted Brussels, 28 miles south of Antwerp, and Louvain.

3. The last vestiges of Dutch resistance on Walcheren island, part of Zeeland province, was eliminated as the Dutch army commander offered his capitulation, while on the islands of Soestwien and South Beveland more than 2,000 Dutch and French were captured.

After smashing a 62-mile wide hole in northern France in the Maubeuge-Montmedy region, the German army dashed on madly in a rush for the French capital.

The German high command told of the speed and the weight of the drive south of Maubeuge, which is about 120 miles air line northeast of Paris.

"South of Maubeuge German armed forces penetrated French frontier fortifications, dispersed two enemy divisions and pursued the retreating enemy beyond the upper Sambre (river) in a southward direction as far as the upper Oise (river)."

"Infantry divisions are now closing following up in tremendous marches. Many prisoners among the defeated French troops were made and large supplies captured."

A DISTINGUISHED GUEST
Greenville's most distinguished guest this week was Bernice Kelly Harris, of Seaboard, N. C., who talked to the American Association of University Women and their guests in the Woman's Club on Wednesday evening.

She is the author of two recent and much talked-of books, "Purslane" and "Folk Plays of Eastern Carolina." In these books, Mrs. Harris has contributed a real bit of literature. She has used a language that is real and salty, to record the little events in the lives of simple folk. Purslane has already proven its worth to such an extent that England is publishing it this summer. The title will be changed to "Pate's Siding," because the English people are not acquainted with purslane. (To us pursley, a native weed.)

In speaking those who have the urge toward creative effort, Mrs. Harris stressed the need of using material that is near at hand. She regretted that Southerners fail to value as highly as they should the wealth of material that surrounds them, that material that outsiders so often come in and make use of. She said that there is more humor, more drama, more romance beneath southern skies than can be found anywhere else. A few North Carolina writers have so witnessed this colorful atmosphere that they have with pride tried to show it to others. Mary Bledsoe, of Charlotte, is one of them. She has seen in the mountain folk a unique people, who though they live isolated lives, have a high sense of value and a genuine love of nature. "Shadows Slant North" is as true a picture of western Carolina as "Purslane" is of the eastern section. The scene of her book is laid near Blowing Rock, and her love of the mountains and the hill people is evident from the first chapter to the last.

Another east writer is Marian Sims, also of Charlotte. She goes to the resort towns to get the characters she writes about, choosing the socially prominent, the restless, highly emotional individuals. "Call It Freedom," her second book of any importance, was widely read by the younger book club members. "Memo of Timothy Sheldon" her latest book, is very light and emotional, but at the end returns to normalcy. Her first book, "The World With A Fence," is being read by those who read "Call It Freedom" and want to read more of her writing.

Then there is Paul Green who so thoroughly loves and appreciates the southland. He has a genuine philosophy of life and is an inspiration to those who are creative. Read his "Out of the South" and enjoy the life of a people in dramatic form. The books mentioned above are on the shelves of the Sheppard Memorial Library.

A PRAYER FOR PEACE

War, the ruin of all lands—It takes the young and even the old. How could God's people be so bold To fight and kill, ah! be so brave As to cause our youth a horrid grave Without even song or prayer? We sometimes feel all in despair. In America we still are free. But just how long we none can see. Perhaps the Leaders of our land Will lend to them a helping hand. But amid all rumors of false or truth O God! May we not have to give our youth.

—Mrs. Milton Tucker.

A ball tossing relay directed by Inez Allen was next on the program. The old, old fashioned game of "Statues" was a scream. The group was divided into two parts and each group presented a stunt. One group gave imitations of famous people and the other gave a song and poem number. Cakes, oranges, home-made candies and bananas were served and delicious "mousse" was served from a lovely white container. All had a delightful time.

tions for the job, he is endorsed by the Placement Committee and an interview is arranged with the prospective employer (whose name is not revealed until then). If no one in the organization is capable of filling the job, a notice is sent to all other Forty Plus Clubs. No member of the club can accept a position that is offered directly to him! The idea is that each member of the club is selling jobs for every other member. This is the Golden Rule working in business!

Unselfish Employment Agency
Results obtained by the Forty Plus clubs have been amazing. Figures show that 270 members of the Boston club alone have been returned to industry in the past two years.

This cooperative job-seeking movement is performing a wonderful service not only for the unemployed executive but for the prospective employer. The Forty Plus club acts as a high-grade, unselfish, cooperative employment agency whose only reward is the satisfaction of seeing its membership decrease! No commissions are involved, either from the employer or from the club. Expenses are taken care of by voluntary contributions of the members.

The same idea is being worked out by the Quota club of the Professional Women's groups. Moreover, for the past seven years a very effective plan has been operated at Babson Park and is known as the "School for Positions." Each group of students goes through an intensive course of self-analysis, vocational guidance, job salesmanship, morale building. Each member of the class carries with him when seeking a catalogue of the qualifications and experience of all other members of the class. When a member finds an opening that he cannot fill himself, he checks his catalogue with the employer and suggests an interview with another member of the class who is qualified.

Business Needs Such Spirit
Readers can undoubtedly cite many other plans to show that cooperative job-seeking is becoming a great success. Many observers believe that the spirit of these movements must be introduced into other branches of business. The success of the Forty Plus clubs and similar experiments in cooperative job-seeking clearly indicates that the desire of one man to help another is not dead. If the latent power of this Golden Rule could be reawakened and harnessed through some practical cal church leadership (in the way the rural problem is being tackled in certain parts of the United States and Canada) we would go a long way toward solving unemployment—still the biggest and most pressing problem facing the United States!

Poppy Day Sales To Help Disabled

When the citizens of Greenville put on their memorial poppies on Poppy Day, May 25, to honor the World War dead, they will be helping children of dead and disabled veterans to a fair start in life according to Mrs. J. L. Evans, child welfare chairman of the Greenville unit of the American Legion auxiliary.

Money contributed for the poppies will help maintain the Auxiliary's child welfare activities during the coming year, she explained. Much of it will go into emergency aid for families left dependent by the death or disability of a veteran, helping keep the home together until a permanent means of support can be found, keeping the children in school and preventing the father's patriotic sacrifice from handicapping their development.

In their joint child welfare program last year, the Legion and Auxiliary brought aid to $95,342 children of veterans. A total of $1,968, $22.26 from Legion and Auxiliary resources was expended in this program. Much of this money was made up of the dimes, quarters and dollars placed in the contribution boxes on Poppy Day.

"Hardships and exposures of war service are striking down many of our veterans in the prime of life," said Mrs. Evans. "Almost every veteran now dying or becoming disabled has dependent children. Unless he has established legally that he is disabled in the war, the government can do nothing for his family. The auxiliary is determined that no children shall be left in need because their fathers served the country, and with the help of the patriotic citizens who wear poppies on Poppy Day, we are able to carry out this determination."

Seven Paroled By Gov. Clyde R. Hoey

Raleigh, May 13—(AP)—Two men serving sentences for second degree murder and five short-term prisoners were paroled today by Governor Hoey.

The two in prison for slayings were Lonnie Deans, sentenced in Johnston county in August, 1932, and Paul Holmes, sentenced in Harriet county in May, 1933.

Generals Pick Belgium For Battleground, An Old Story From J, Caesar To A, Hitler

AP Feature Service. It was no accident that the soldier poet wrote about the poppies of Flanders fields.

Those fields and all the lowland plains have been a battleground for the nations of western and of central Europe since time immemorial.

The reason simply is that it's the best spot on the western front for armies to get at each other. Rough terrain makes the upper Rhineland more difficult.

When Caesar blitzkrieged Gaul 2,000 years ago he called the Belgae the bravest of the tribesmen. Even then Germanic tribes were pressing against the Gauls on these plains. Later German invaders, upon the breakdown of Roman power, drove through Belgium.

In the Middle Ages the populous, prosperous lowlands were seized by the dukes of Normandy, and in 1516 they were subjected to the Hapsburg emperor, Charles V. Spanish tyranny brought about the revolution that gave the Netherlands freedom, but left Belgium under Spanish or Austrian control until the French Revolution.

and the Germanic states against him, and the grandiose schemes of France's grand monarch were drowned in bloodshed on Flanders fields.

For centuries England had had a special interest in the lowlands because it was there that her wool was manufactured into fine cloth. And about this time it became evident England would never agree voluntarily to the domination of the lowlands by a major power.

So when Napoleon annexed this territory to France in 1801, he had a war on his hands. The last shot was fired at Waterloo, in Belgium. Belgium was then united willy-nilly to Holland. Soon she revolted and set up independently. Thereupon Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia and Russia signed a treaty recognizing her as a "perpetually neutral" state.

That treaty held good in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, but by the time the World War rolled around, German strategists had evolved the Schlieffen plan. It proposed the defeat of France by an end run through the lowlands. Germany carried it out to the extent of overrunning Belgium, but bogged down in the muddy Flanders fields. Following its World War experience with a scrap of treaty paper, Belgium abandoned guaranteed neutrality in favor of defensive alliances. After Hitler, however, she renounced these treaties in the hope that no power could point a finger at her as lacking in neutrality and good intentions.

But once more blood flows on Flanders fields.

Roosevelt's Reason For 50,000 Planes

This map illustrates the warning President Roosevelt sounded in his address to Congress as to routes that could be used by an enemy power for air attacks on the United States and other republics of the western hemisphere. The boxes list the flying time he quoted from possible enemy air bases to strategic points in this country, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and South America. The dotted arrow indicates the direction from South Pacific islands that could be used as bases for attacking forces.

DID IT EVER STRIKE YOU?
What would your home sell for if all the stores in this town were permanently closed?

By W. H. WOOLARD
Vice-President Guaranty Bank & Trust Company

Wherever people congregate the extra steps we take, to serve our neighbors and friends, and in addition thereto we get pleasure out of it.

Now there is another side to the picture. Those engaged in business should give their patrons due consideration, and make every reasonable effort to offer their customers the same goods and on equal terms obtainable from our cities. Naturally the home business house is in personal touch with most of its customers, either through its managers, officers or employees, and it is to mutual advantage that the trade be given such service and courteous treatment that it will want to supply its needs at home instead of going elsewhere.

Strength For The Day
By EARL L. DOUGLASS

REAL SERVICE IS UNCONSCIOUS SERVICE

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Thus did Jesus put His finger on the whole crux of the matter regarding Christian service. The opportunities are round about you every day. He said: "There are hungry people to be fed, not only with food but with all that kindness and understanding which will turn their hearts from discouragement into joy. The world is full of lonely people; take the stranger to your heart and bless him with a warm fellowship. The naked are to be clothed; not only those who actually shiver in famine-stricken countries, but those who need covering and protection from the inclemencies of the world in which we all live. The sick both of heart and body are to be comforted and healed. The prisoners, not only those who languish behind the iron bars of the law, but those held in the bondage of weakness and appetite cry out for the visitation of your counsel and help.

Don't lose an opportunity to do good, was our Lord's dictum, and don't scan the horizon with the expectation that some opportunity for service will arise which will make you conspicuous among men. On the last day God will love best those humble men and women who served him amid those opportunities that came daily about their feet, and as they served were so unconscious of their kindness that when the Lord commended them, they cried out in astonishment: When Lord, we serve Thee in such wonderful ways.

The campaign for votes in the first primary is now entering its last week and judging from the swarms of peanut politicians around the candidates either they are being disappointed or the candidates are getting a real shakedown. While it is, almost too much to hope for, we sincerely wish the day would come when each and every candidate who enters a race in this county would absolutely refuse to spend as much as one nickel in the way of paid workers or handouts or loans to the petty politicians who are actually parasites on the candidates and worth little or nothing to them as vote getters.

The world stood idly by, unbelieving, while the madman of Europe made preparations for what has now become the world's most horrible slaughter and now the realization comes too late for some of the countries to take necessary steps to protect themselves. Now that America has waked up to the fact that despite a nation's ideals, it must be am-

The Sixth Column

ply prepared to protect these ideals by force, if necessary, we are beginning to see the light and prepare ourselves to meet any emergency.
Despite our errors of the past, we Americans like to think of ourselves as the world's greatest nation, but along with such thinking there is the necessity of being prepared to protect this greatness. At heart we are a peace-loving nation but now that we are coming to realize the seriousness of the present world situation it is up to us to follow thru on the proposed plans of national defense and not stop until we have placed ourselves in such a strong position that there can be no question of our security.

Washington Daybook
By Jack Stinnett

Washington — You would think that a park service guide, who had a visit from President Roosevelt, would have a happy tale to tell his grandchildren. But not the guide who tends the Ship Museum in Yorktown.
In a tight little one-door building that looks more like a white barn than a museum, the Yorktown repository has three British cannon dredged out of the York river. They are relics of the great battle of 1781.
The park service had recreated in the museum the gun deck of a British frigate and mounted the cannon. They had sent to London for dope on handling such cannon.
Guides drilled for weeks, in the motions of loading, cleaning, aiming and firing.
Then, one day word spread about that the President was coming down. The President has a definite yen for naval history. He's an expert. He has called some of the navigation records often have proved him right. The museum was interested. Its crack guide was selected to put the guns through their paces.
The presidential party arrived — and the United States secret service wouldn't let the president go inside.
There's a rule, it seems, that no President of the U. S. A. can enter any building with only one exit.

Book review: For those who came in late in the big war, take a tip from the headlines and read Sir Neville Henderson's "Failure of a Mission."
Sir Neville was the British ambassador to Berlin from 1937 to the outbreak of the second World war.
You might think his account would be of course, some of it there —but he has leaned over backward to be fair and his appraisals of many Nazi leaders, including Goering, are almost complimentary.
The villains of the piece are Hitler, Von Ribbentrop and Himmler.
At one point, the British ambassador says:
"If I were entitled to apportion the blame for the tragic and ghastly war which we have now entered, I should do so as follows: firstly, the overweening ambition and the ever growing megalomania of Hitler; secondly, the self-interested advice of Herr von Ribbentrop and of the small clique of Nazi veterans and gangsters . . . to whom, for their services in the struggle for power, were given many of the plums of viety . . . and thirdly, Himmler and his blackshirted S. S. and secret police."

To me, the most amazing revelation in the book is the record that the German army general staff had every one of its blitzkriegs worked out to the most minute detail even before the move against Austria.
Tying in with this are reports in Washington that German army plans for every contingency, including Switzerland and the Balkans, are on file. These plans, it is said, number 12, and the twelfth is a gigantic maneuver for the invasion of England—a scheme for cutting Great Britain in half and waging a war to the death.

More than a month ago military folk were whispering that May 10 was the date for the Nazi crash into the Netherlands. Even when the Norwegian campaign was opened, army and navy insiders winked and said: "Wait until May 10."
Not all the rumors that float about Washington are hokey—most, perhaps—but not all. You'll have to choose for yourself.

EDITH

YESTERDAY: Jan puts Johnny in his place. She is pleased when Lance finds Derek a good listener, although "too close-mouthed" about himself.

Chapter Six
No Work No Eat

"YOU asked Derek not to tell me about his suicide attempt?" repeated Lance. "Because of my reaction? Don't be a silly goose, Sis. In my opinion it takes a lot more courage to live than die. I told him so, but he didn't agree.
Please, honey, don't ever let anything like that worry you. I know when I get these fits of depression I say I'd rather be dead, but I don't mean it. Not so long as I have you. I guess I just have to let off steam when the pressure gets too high."

She dropped to her knees beside his chair and laid her cheek against his hand. "He wants to stay here with us, Lance. I've got a crazy idea I can do something for him, ready to try somehow. Have I a crusader's complex, do you think?"

"A too developed maternal complex, I'd say. You always did drag in stray cats and pups when you were a little kid. Mother used to have a fit, but Dad always made up excuses for you."

"It seems like more than four years since—"

"I'm glad they went before this happened to me. It would have hurt them so. She sensed his withdrawal from the pain of remembering. Her next one: "It doesn't seem very proud to be keep the fellow here. Jan, we have so little as it is and we've talked of taking in another roomer this summer."

"Lance, will it be all right if I promise to make him useful?" she pleaded. "I'll try to make him a paying proposition. If I can. There's jobs to be had around here with summer coming on. Maybe Captain Turple will take him on one of his fishing barges."

Lance patted her wind-tumbled hair. "All right, baby, if it'll make you happy to have a stray man to fret over."

"Johnny was so mean about it this morning," she said in a little-girl voice against the woolly blanket. "He suspects Derek of everything from larceny to mayhem."

"Well, I hope Johnny isn't right," Lance sighed.

She looked up, defiance in her deep blue eyes. "You don't think he's a criminal, Lance?"

"I don't know anything to think Jan. But your man had better make good or Johnny and I will both annihilate him!"

Put on the defensive she deliberately submerged any doubts she herself had. "He's a fine person," she declared. "I'll prove it to you. Wait and see."

She stirred to action. She would find Derek and tell him he had to get a job right away.

But Derek was nowhere in the house. She found. He must have gone for a walk, and here she was in a mood to talk to him without mincing words. Later she might not be, her moods were so evanescent.

Disturbed, nervous, not nearly so sure as she'd tried to make Lance believe, she sought the grand piano and the soothing touch of its keys. Although she did not practice enough, her fingers were well, her fingers were light and facile and drew comfort for her from the classics she loved. In the semi-dusk of the familiar, friendly living room she dropped to the piano bench and let her fingers drift into the sad beauty of Schubert's Serenade.

Smooth Mask

ENRAPT, singing the words softly to herself, she didn't hear the door open nor did she see Derek come in. When the last tone sighed into silence she looked up and saw him. The expression on his face startled her, hurt her in some vague manner she could not comprehend: It was an expression of torment, of agonizing frustration.
Then a smooth, blank mask covered it and she felt as if, for a fleeting moment, she had been permitted to look into his soul.

"Derek," she began, "I have something to say to you—"

But he fled upstairs with the panicky step of a man pursued by ghosts, leaving her alone with the echo of Schubert.

Jan emptied the contents of her coin purse on the kitchen table.
Eighty-nine cents and two three-cent stamps. "And four people to feed," she waited softly to herself. "Johnny's rent is due tomorrow, but that doesn't help me tonight. And I ought to get Derek a razor and toothbrush and comb. I suppose I could borrow money from Norma if she gets home in time, but I hate to do that. I guess I'll make a meat loaf. Hamburger's cheap enough."

Lifting her old black sweater from the hook on the kitchen door, she mumbled to Neptune.
"Thirty-five cents ought to do it.
I've got plenty of potatoes, but—"

Scott scoffed: "A man must be very weak in the head or in the knees only to carry a cane."

There was no question that the Roosevelt ribbons predominated.
Some wore Roosevelt and Broughton ribbons, some Roosevelt and Maxwell, others Roosevelt and Horton; but almost every be-bagged person had Roosevelt in the combination.

Your reporter heard more favorable comment on the keynote address of Hilda Ramsey than upon any similar speech in years. The Asheville newspaper executive really "went to town."

Only man on the convention stage in white summer clothes was State Auditor George Ross Pou. He parked himself squarely in the center where he couldn't possibly be missed.

Man About Manhattan

New York.—Lunched with Charles Gorham today, and he told of an interesting experiment his publishing house, Doubleday-Doran, already has under way. They are bringing out biographies of all the important men in the United States—intimate, revealing studies of such places as Gloucester, Baltimore, Seattle, New Orleans, San Diego and others which have romantic histories and which have played historic roles in the growth and development of this country.

Gloucester is being written by James B. Connolly, an authority on Gloucester history, and San Diego is being handled by Max Miller, who wrote "I Cover the Waterfront" and "He Went Away For Awhile." The story of Baltimore's port will be told by Hamilton Owens, editor of the Baltimore Sun. Archie Blinn, author of "Lightship" and "The Laurels Are Out Down," will handle Baltimore. The editors wanted Lyle Saxon ("Famous New Orleans"), or Roark Bradford, famed for his Negro stories, but they had other commitments and had to decline. It seems to me this is an assignment any author would leap at. The Port of New Orleans is unlike that of any other port in the world. It stretches back through centuries. It is a port of oil and bananas, of cotton and shrimp, and trappers and black-robed priests. Let's hope that the man who writes it puts his heart into it.

Still another note from the publishing world—though from the fictional side—concerns that modern history of the Revolution scene.
Kenneth Roberts, distinguished for his novels of those early American who fought with, and later against, Benedict Arnold, he now is turning his hand to a novel of the Revolution from a Tory point of view.
This is something that never has been attempted by an American author.

While we are discussing authors, let's go back a moment to Robert M. Sherwood, the lanky, thin-faced playwright, whose newest drama, "There Shall Be No Night," has caused such a disturbance among political and news commentators, as well as students of the drama.
Mr. Sherwood thinks too little of an enlightened nature is being said about Europe in this country, and he bitterly alludes to Congress as "a body of Chamberlains."

The suppression of intellectual discussion, in his opinion, is a sort of "conspiracy of silence," that leaves the public dangerously blindfolded. He thinks people ought to speak out, clearly and forcefully, on all issues, "Congress," says he, "is always maintaining the fiction that we are hopelessly dumb in foreign affairs, and the slick European politicians are too much for us. The contrary is true. Hughes, Stimson, and Hull were a wonderful string of secretaries of state; our foreign policy has been the most intelligent of any great nation on earth."

Kracke Gets Single And Double For Greenville

Sonny Kracke, Greenville second baseman, was the only Greenville player to hit safely off the hurling of Leonard (Bulpen) Berry of the New Bern Bears in last night's Ladies night affair at Guy Smith park.

The Bears took the decision 2-0. Greenville's hurler, Brown, didn't do so bad himself and pitched a game which usually would win. He allowed only five hits. While the Bears played errorless ball, misuses helped the Bears get their first run, in the fifth. Gene McCarty singled and went to third on Forbess' error and scored when Askew was safe at first on Nick Deluca's misuse.

New Bern scored its other run in the seventh on a single by Hug, a sacrifice and a double by McCarty. Berry held the Greenies in check throughout. Other than Kracke, who doubled in the first and singled in the sixth, only two Greenville players reached first base, Jenkins and Samocki drawing walks in separate innings. Jenkins stole second, but was left on base.

MONDAY NIGHT'S GAMES
Car. Dairy vs. Blount-Harvey.
Double Cola vs. Car. Sales.

Double Cola defeated Tadlock, 22-10 in the first softball game last night to keep its record clear of defeats, while Water-Light rallied to score five in the seventh and upset R. Cola, 8-5.

The first game was a rather close affair until the fourth frame, when Double Cola batted around twice to score 14 runs on as many hits. In all, Double Cola made 23 hits, led by Register with four for four.

The Water-Light victory over R. C. Cola proved to be a much better game, with score being tied three all at the end of the third. R. C. Cola added two in the fourth on a triple by Whichard and a couple of errors, however, and the game entered the seventh inning with the bottlers leading 5-3.

Water-Light came to bat and Fly led off with a single. Evans singled and the fielder errored the ball. Fly scored and Evans taking third. Harris went in to run for Evans. The next two men went out and things looked dark for the boys who provide the light. Bryson singled, however, to bring in the tying run. Roebuck walked and Brewer singed, which mixed with two errors brought all three men home. Wilson doubled, but was out on Meeks' infield ball.

This was the Phantoms' second victory of the season over the Quakers. Both the boys and the girls won in the first meeting of the two teams.

Goldsboro's points came in the No. 5 singles and the No. 3 doubles. John Roberts of Goldsboro defeated Billy Hyde 6-2, 6-1 and Roberts and Andrews defeated Bobby Babcock and Ben Miller 6-3, 6-2 for Goldsboro's other point.

Captain Joy Flanagan continued her fine play by pacing the girls with a 3-1, 3-0 victory over Jane Wood.

The girls played short sets because of approaching darkness and a late start.

PHANTOM NINE LOSES 11 TO 4

Handed Setback By Strong Roanoke Rapids Team

By LARRY JAMES

Coach Herman Dally's local high nine was handed a 11-4 setback at the hands of a powerful Roanoke Rapids team yesterday afternoon. The game was played in that city and marked the sixth conference loss for the local Phantoms this year.

On the mound for Roanoke Rapids were Byrd, Sewell and Harnes, while Bill Taylor hurled for Greenville. Byrd pitched six innings of no hit, no run ball and proved to be a hazard to the Phantoms in every respect.

The Jackets' big inning was the fourth in which they scored five runs. The big blows in this inning were singles by Wright and Howell defeated Mary Emma Rouse 3-2, 3-0; Joy Flanagan and Jane Scoville defeated Kelly and Yelverton 3-2, 3-1; and Shirley Warren and Eloise Warren defeated Winslow and Thompson 3-0, 3-0 (default).

Taylor reached first on an error sending in Curry and scored on James single to end the scoring for the day.

The Greenies were able to secure only three hits in the entire ball game. The hits were made by Curry, Harrington and James. Roanoke Rapids leading batters were Brown with 2 for 4 and Wright with 2 for 5, scoring Harrington. Then Bill

THE LEADING CANDIDATE

NOW IS THE TIME
when one of the distinguished candidates for Governor is especially equipped for this high office.

NOW IS THE TIME
when his sterling qualities and outstanding ability present to the voters of North Carolina, and Pitt County in particular, the best reason why the citizenship of Pitt County should unite in selecting him as best fitted for our standard bearer in the present campaign.

PARTICULARLY
is this true when Pitt County has not given a majority vote to the candidate nominated in the primary for the past 24 years.

NOW IS THE TIME
when this idea so generally prevails through the entire county that we have an opportunity to rally around such a standard bearer whom all the citizens of Pitt County and the entire state can be proud to have as Governor of North Carolina.

Music Committee Presents Program

Members of the Music committee of the Greenville Kiwanis club put on their own program at last night's meeting, singing several numbers and then, with all members and guests, gathered around the piano and enjoyed a songfest.

H. A. McDougle, as chairman of the committee had charge of the program. He, Berry Bostle and George Woodward, with Mrs. R. A. Tyson at the piano, offered several numbers.

Guests who spoke briefly were Hal Burnett, connected with the new radio station here, Heman Pulverson, high school coach, and Roy T. Cox of Winterville. Other guests were B. Vernon Cox and John G. Clark.

It was announced that next week's meeting would be held in the Red Oak community house, on Friday at 6:30 o'clock.

Civil Court Term Opens On Monday

Judge Walter J. Bone of Nashville is scheduled to preside over a two weeks civil term of Pitt Superior court, opening here Monday morning.

Uncontested divorce cases are set for Monday of each of the two weeks.

J. Frank Harrington, clerk of the court, declared that the calendar listed two cases that would take two days each if they reach the jury stage. The two are W. J. Nichols and wife vs. Lena Mae Kinsauls, et al. to redeem property sold under mortgage, and that involving the will of Pennie Johnson.

Another case of interest slated to come up is that of Randolph Corbett vs. C. E. Spear, Arden Jeweler, alleging false arrest. It is set for trial on Thursday, May 21. The will case is set for Monday, May 27, and the land case for Monday, May 20.

THEY RUN, SING, KNIT

Cheyenne, Wyo.—(AP)—Now that she's out of the war zone, Helen Moore, visitor from Edinburgh, Scotland, can tell about air raid warnings. "You grab your knitting or your sewing and run for the shelter," she says.

People who can afford them have private shelters; others run for public shelters that accommodate from 25 to 50 people. Inside, they sing hymns and popular songs for amusement.

Miss Moore says she saw an enemy plane only once—a crippled German ship that crashed, killing the crew.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 18.—(AP)—Stocks tumbled to new lows for more than two years in today's brief market as war fears persisted in Wall Street. With the ticker tape frequently behind as much as four minutes, pivotal issues were down one to more than four points at the worst. There were intermittent recovery periods when dealings slowed. At the close extreme losses were reduced in most cases, with steel, aircraft in particular steadying. Here and there modest advances were to be seen. Transfers were around 1,500,000 shares.

Politics Warming Up For May 25 Primary

With the primary only one week off, politics, especially local, are beginning to "warm up" following yesterday's State Democratic Convention.

Small groups could be observed in Greenville and elsewhere throughout the county, gathered to "talk things over."

Challenge day was observed at the various polling places with the registrars on duty, but few if any registered persons were challenged.

The high point of ambiguity and obscurity was reached in taxes and finances. When this section was read before the platform committee one member remarked with obvious satisfaction "that's as non-committal as we can possibly make it and still say anything."

The general impression is that since the platform was silent as to the dead about any changes, it can be taken as indicating approval of the present tax structure.

Conspicuous by their absence were any references to the sales tax or to liquor.

Taking up the platform section by section, the first three endorse (1) "the record of the National Administration under the wise and courageous leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt," (2) the distinguished record of the North Carolina delegation in the National Congress, and (3) "the progressive and humanitarian record of the state government under the inspiring leadership of our great and popular governor Clyde R. Hoey."

There was no discussion of the fact that endorsement (1) is flatly in contradiction with endorsement (2) on many questions and with respect particularly to both United States Senators who have been at odds with the National Administration as often as they have been in accord with it.

Section (4) dealt with public education and praised Democrats from Aycock on, in addition to "recommending" teacher retirement.

Section (5) pledged better libraries, while Section (6) averred the party is "to be congratulated" upon support of a progressive health policy.

Section (7) dealt with roads. It asserted that the "constant endeavor has been to so improve the secondary roads that they will be passable all the year round." An amendment was adopted in the committee adding that "this is our first and primary objective," when there was expressed opinion that secondary roads are of more importance than "elimination of dangerous curves and widening of narrow roads." Allocation policy of Governor Hoey was "commended," and then came the sentence already quoted about diversion.

Section (8) was an innocuous statement that there is a program of highway safety. Section (9) recited expenditures for Social Security purposes without a word of commendation, condemnation or recommendation. The program is called "the beneficent plan provided by the Democratic party."

Section (10) was agriculture. The legislation of the last General Assembly was lauded and it was added that this "attempts well for continuation of a united effort to build a great diversified agriculture in this mighty commonwealth and aid in providing adequate marketing facilities."

Section (11) had to do with industry and labor. Growth of industry was termed "gratifying." Good relationship between capital and labor "bespeaks a healthy social and economic condition." An amendment not in the original draft was added "We endorse the principle of collective bargaining and equal justice to labor and capital."

Section (12) pointed "with satisfaction" to the advertising program, but said nothing about continuing it. Section (13) recited that many public buildings have been constructed. Section (14) was taxes and finances. It said taxes haven't been raised yet and debts have been reduced. It "commended" this "marvelous record."

Section (15) was the pledge for reapportionment, section (16) "commended the parole and probation setup. Section (17) lauded judicial administration and the final paragraph called for "faith in our great heritage of liberty, the right of peaceful public assembly, etc."
