BROUGHTON LEADS; HORTON 2ND; MAXWELL 3RD

HARRIS LEADS FOR 2ND POST

Thad Eure Runs Ahead of Veteran Pete Murphy

Charlotte, May 26.—(AP)—J. M. Broughton stepped out with a commanding lead over his opponents in today's Democratic primary as returns were compiled from 1,625 of the State's 1,913.

The Raleigh lawyer had 120,987 votes as compared with 87,588 for the second man, Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton of Pittsboro. Not far behind was Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell, in third place with 80,519.

On the face of the returns it appeared that Horton would be in a position to demand a second primary to decide the nomination.

L. Lee Gravelly of Rocky Mount was fourth with 53,516 votes. Wilmington's mayor, Thomas E. Cooper, was fifth with 27,066 votes. Paul Grady of Kenly was a poor sixth with 13,559 votes. In last place was Arthur Simmons of Burlington, who received 2,108 votes.

For the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor, B. L. Harris of Roxboro was far in the lead, but he likewise was far from having a majority. Returns from 1,529 precincts gave him 112,023 votes with W. Erskine Smith of Albemarle in second place with 95,059 votes. L. A. Martin of Lexington had 59,341 and Dan Tompkins of Sylva had 27,881.

Three Ayden Men Face Liquor Count

Pitt County ABC officers, along with Officers A. W. Sawyer and Herbert Harrington of Ayden, yesterday arrested Asie Robert and Eugene Harris on a charge of transporting illicit liquor.

Officers said the trio were nabbed on the Gum Swamp road about a mile from Ayden.

The charge against the men will be aired tomorrow morning in Municipal court at Ayden.

WAR BULLETIN

Berlin, May 26.—(AP)—Germany has trapped and is ready to destroy the entire attack army of France, an authorized source declared tonight.

The decisive Nazi military operations in The Netherlands, Belgium and northern France, he continued, has been accomplished by just one-third of Germany's 5,000,000 first line troops.

Issue Statements

Raleigh, May 26.—J. Melville Broughton, Raleigh's entry in the seven-way gubernatorial primary early today declared he would win the gubernatorial race on June 2 if there is a second primary.

Simultaneously word from the headquarters of Wilkins P. Horton, who trails Broughton, came a statement that the lieutenant governor would renew his campaigning "Monday morning." This was a definite indication Horton would seek to overcome the lead of Broughton in a second vote.

Said Broughton: "1331 precincts give me a lead of 26,900 votes over my nearest opponent (referring to Horton). In the event of a second primary I feel confident thousands of other Democrats will support me on June 2. I feel that I shall win in the event of a second primary."

Greenies Triumph 12-3 Over Wilson

Rube Wilson's Greenies last night scored a 12-3 victory over Wilson's Tobs in a slugfest that was highlighted by the superb hitting of Bennie Crowe, new rightfielder, who comes to Greenville from the Bi-State League.

Bennie, in his first-inning debut, poled a 320-foot homer over the left wall with Forbes and Jenkins, who walked, on base. He blasted another homer over the left wall in the fifth with Jenkins, who singled on base. In the eighth he hit a board-rattling double to right scoring Jenkins, who singled.

Freddie Caligiuri, who hurled nine-hit ball in the Greenies' win, gave the fans a treat in the fourth when he hit a 320-foot homer over the left wall with Thornton, who singled, on base.

Hitting features among other locals saw Thornton get three hits in four trips, and Harold Forbes, Bill Shelton and Harry Jenkins with two for four.

New Puzzle, Story Appear This Issue

The attention of subscribers are called to the fact that a new chapter in the serial story currently running in The Reflector appears in this Election Edition and also that a new crossword puzzle appears.

Both the story and "crossword puzzle" had to be left out one day during the past week and this means it being used to bring them up to date.

New York, May 25 (AP)—At least half a million German soldiers have been "lost" during the last 10 days, a German language short-wave broadcast from London said today. The announcer, heard here by NBC, said the estimate was made in Paris.

CHURCH FORUM 8:00 TONIGHT

F. C. Harding To Speak At Christian Church

The talk on "America and War in Europe," by F. C. Harding at the Eighth Street Christian church tonight, which is scheduled to begin at exactly 8 o'clock, will be concluded at 9 o'clock promptly, in order that those attending will have ample time to return to their homes and hear President Roosevelt in his fireside chat at 9:30.

Lively discussion by members of the audience is anticipated during the final portion of the hour when Mr. Harding will lead an open forum relative to his speech. No member of the audience will be called upon by the presiding chairman, but all will be invited to volunteer during the discussion.

In view of the gravity of the present hour in world affairs, preparation will be made to accommodate a large audience which is expected to attend this talk and forum led by Mr. Harding.

The salary of the Prime Minister of Great Britain is 10,000 pounds (about $35,000 at present rates of exchange) per year.

5th District Race Is Won By Hodges

Gravelly In Fourth Place In Gubernatorial Race

Every incumbent on the county Board of Commissioners was re-elected in Saturday's primary and M. Brown Hodges of Grifton defeated J. Dixie Cannon for the post which has been vacant since the death of W. O. Jolly.

J. Con Lanier defeated Arthur B. Corey for the State senate post, getting 4,919 votes to the incumbent's 4,565, a majority of 354 votes.

Dr. W. I. Wooten led the ticket for the county's two seats for the House of Representatives and was trailed by S. O. Worthington, one of the incumbents. J. S. Moore, the other incumbent, did not offer this year. J. A. Staton ran third and J. W. H. Roberts fourth. The vote was: Dr. Wooten 5,280; Worthington 4,134; Staton 3,856; Roberts 3,631. According to preliminary figures, Worthington lacked 93 votes of polling enough to stave off a possible call for a second primary by the third man.

Amos O. Clark was high man in the three-way race for Register of Deeds, polling 3,520 votes, as compared with 3,220 for Roy T. Cox and 3,050 for J. H. Manning.

Charles Whedbee rolled up a total of 6,127 votes as compared with 3,008 by Sam B. Underwood, Jr., in the county solicitor's race. Whedbee is the incumbent. Dink James, judge of the tribunal, did not have opposition. In winning Whedbee polled the largest vote of any candidate in the county.

In the county commissioners' races, each present member of the board defeated his opponent. J. Noah Williams, the present chairman, defeated Harvey Tripp 5,927 to 3,503 in the first district. In the second district David T. House, Jr. was the only member to be re-elected in 1938, won over Gordon W. Roebuck 5,097 to 2,831. House polled the second largest vote of the primary.

In the third district G. H. Pittman of Falkland defeated G. E. Trevathan of Fountain 5,433 to 3,298. G. S. Porter of Simpson will continue to represent the Fourth district, having won over Marvin W. Smith 5,432 to 3,569.

M. Brown Hodges polled 4,701 to 4,174 for Dixie Cannon and will represent the Fifth district, a post which has been vacant since the death of W. O. Jolly.

Little Theatre Season Closes. Greenville Little Theatre members request the honor of your presence at the Third street school Thursday night at 8 p. m. to enjoy the final production of the season.

Rehearsals have been in progress for the past several weeks, under the able direction of Mrs. J. H. Rose, Richard Walker and Dr. James B. Hawes, so when the curtain rises—prepare yourself for an evening of entertainment.

"Red Flannels", a comedy written by Sylvia Smoots, and directed by Dr. Hawes, centers around Grandpa Buxton, owner of the bank, who insists on wearing his "red flannels" summer and winter. His daughter-in-law, who is trying to arrange a matrimonial dinner party for her daughter, Josie, and the famous artist, Mr. DeWonsky, is humiliated by Grandpa's attire—his "red drawers" showing, and plans to destroy the underwear. That plan starts a run on the bank, because Grandpa had always said—

Well, we'll let the cast save the surprise ending for you. It's a true portrayal of family life of today, but unlike in the fact that red flannels are not quite the vogue anymore.

The other two plays are "Roseland" by J. W. Barrie, and "Cottie Mourns" by Patsy McMullan. Three plays and a million laughs for the entire family.

E. C. T. C. Alumni Meet.

At the regular Friday evening Vesper Service at East Carolina Teachers College Friday evening—Miss Bessie Fay Hunt, a member of the Freshmen class and the incoming chairman of the World Fellowship Committee of the Y. W. C. A. talked to the group on the life of the great Christian leader, the Japanese, Toyohiko Kagawa.

After reading a passage from the first chapter of Romans, Miss Hunt told of the background of Kagawa's family, of his early school life at Japanese Temple and of his introduction to Christianity at a government school at the early age of fifteen.

Later Dr. Kagawa devoted himself to the ministry. He did great work in the slums, and tried to make the people with whom he was working aware of the condition among the poor there. While working in the slums, Dr. Kagawa developed tuberculosis.

This Japanese leader came to America in 1914 and went to Princeton. Inspired by what he saw in the conditions in labor here, he returned to Japan and threw himself into the development of labor unions. In 1930 he took the position as head of relief in Japan, but refused any salary.

This man forever works for the "Good of the Kingdom and God," said Miss Hunt, "and when you consider what he has done and what he is doing, you know his life really counts."

CONVENTIONALITIES
Fires were comfortable again this morning.

The cold spell does not help crops much.

Several young men will go from here to Hobgood on bicycles early Monday morning to view the eclipse of the sun. It will not be total in Greenville.

John Randolph returned Friday night from Central America, where he has been for some time, holding a position with a railroad company as civil engineer.

The amount of tobacco sold on the Greenville tobacco market during the past season up to May 1st was 12,299,993.

Glee Club at Methodist Church
The Greenville High School Glee Club will render the special music at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Sunday morning at the worship hour. One number, "Spacious Firmament" by Haydn-Matthew, will be given by the Boys' Glee Club, and two others, "Rejoice and Sing," Bach, and "Listen to the Lambs," Dett, will be by a mixed chorus. These will be directed by Miss Ona Shindler, instructor at the High School. This Glee Club won several honors at the State contest at Greensboro this year and will be heard with interest Sunday morning at the Methodist church.

Rev. Clegg to Preach
Rev. E. R. Clegg, of Nashville, N. C., will preach at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The Pastor, Rev. Thomas McGee, is attending a Jurisdictional Conference of the Church in Asheville this week. There will be no Evening Worship in the local church this Sunday evening.

"Family Relationship Study Group"
Thursday evening, May 23, a group of husbands and wives of Eighth Street Christian Church met in the reception room of the church to discuss "The Essentials of a Wholesome Home." This group will hold a series of meetings during the coming year to study ways in building Christian homes.

Dr. Raymond Morgan of Atlantic Christian College was the principal speaker. An open forum discussion was held after Dr. Morgan's speech. The highlights of Dr. Morgan's talk were as follows:

"The home today is as essential as in the long ago. The home and the church are brought together in a relationship, each helping the other."

"We are a part of a large movement throughout the nation to make more enduring marriage and better home life."

One of the most important principles in home-making is co-operation with a capital "C". Without co-operation we are sure to fail. The best place to experiment with democracy is in the home. If we cannot be democratic in the home we cannot be democratic anywhere.

"In order to have co-operation in the home there must be co-operation in money matters. Co-operation in discipline of children is an important phase. Small children and even babies are observant of attitudes and are sensitive to disagreement between parents. Order and discipline for ourselves is significant too."

We should have a common objective for our homes. What is a home for? A Christian home will have agreements about what a home is for.

A creative atmosphere is necessary. There should be encouragement and a place to give every person in a home an opportunity to follow his own interests and to develop their special abilities.

Constant affection is very necessary. Children must feel secure. Home should be a safe place where children are understood, appreciated and cared for. It is not the right kind of affection that spoils children. Love is the basis of good home life for parents and children. Families by Architect Randolph Evans. It is an excellent example of what might be termed contemporary American as distinguished from early American or modern. It conforms to no architectural period except the present and is the sort of home that will blend harmoniously into any American suburb where small ones predominate.

For the sake of economy a part of the basement is shown on the plan. This, of course, could be extended to the full basement under the entire house, if desired. An unusual feature is the attached garage that opens to the rear. This permits the use to add unobtrusively to the apparent size of the house. A covered terrace over the garage entrance makes it possible to enter the house through the kitchen from the garage comfortably in bad weather.

The living room is both unusually large and of a shape that interior decorators delight to furnish. The rear alcove opening off the kitchen serves for dining purposes. With some rearrangement of stairs, a double flue chimney could be installed and a fire place made to lend added attractiveness to the living room. Three-way light and ventilation distinguish both the living room and the master bedroom. Closets are unusually large and well located for a small house. The stair arrangement is most convenient. Directly at the rear door are the cellar stairs so that, if coal were used for heat, ashes could be removed without tracking up the house. The stairs to the second story open off the living room practically at the front entrance.

Spacious living in small quarters is amplified by carefully planned economical electrical service. Correct wiring to each outlet assures full voltage electricity with no waste between the meter and the point of use—a common complaint in many small homes.

Convenient outlets are where they will be needed for kitchen appliances, dining service, portable lamps, radio, clocks and other electrical devices in common use today. Lighting switches are arranged so that it will not be necessary to step into a room, hall or stairway without light. Thus the electrical requirements indicated on the floor plan assure safety, economy and the extra convenience which characterizes modern living.

According to Mr. A. C. Tadlock of the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., this house can be built as $3500.00. On an amortizing mortgage the house could be paid for, including principal and interest, for as little as $25.00 a month. Working drawings and recommended specifications for the construction of this house may be seen at the offices of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

First Presbyterian Church
Come to Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. and preaching service at 11:00 a. m., May 26 at the Presbyterian church. What can you offer as an alibi? The weather is fine, the times are fitting, the service helpful and needed in a day like this. The church school is "for the whole family". Bring the children. Two fine adult bible classes will welcome you. The large Men's Bible Class still grows and invites you to study the scriptures taught by A. E. Gibson. Miss Kate Lewis will teach the Women's Class.

Preaching service at 11. The pastor, Dr. Boyd, will speak on "The Purge of Burning Fiery Furnaces". This will be a study of one of the original "purges and the rise of Nationalism" in ancient Babylon. The Lord Jehovah delivered then, and He can deliver men now from such "fires and purges". But men must have faith of the "three Hebrew Children" to claim His deliverance.

The Sunday School at Meadowbrook meets at 9:45 a. m. and the preaching services are conducted every Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m. You are invited to come to these services. Many friends from Greenville are attending the evening service. The Young People meet at 6:45 for vesper services.

Hollywood Sunday school is growing. It meets at 2:30 every Sunday afternoon. Miss Kate Lewis and Mrs. F. W. Brown teach classes. There were 57 present last Sunday. Dr. R. S. Boyd will preach at 3:15 Sunday and each fourth Sunday regularly at this hour. The public is invited to attend these services.

WPA Art Gallery Receives Support

The Greenville WPA Art Gallery, at the corner of Fifth and Cotanche streets, and which is operated under the Professional Service division of the WPA program, joined other similar projects in observing open house.

The purpose of the gallery is to make contributions of permanent value to the community, endeavor to create a widespread interest in the arts, thus producing an increased demand for the service of artists in private industry.

The gallery also is functioning for the purpose of stimulating an interest in art among the citizens of the community of Greenville.

It features exhibitions from this section of the WPA art project in the national capital and also sponsors a series of talks on each exhibition.

Two clubs have been formed for children. They are a sketch club and puppet guild. The community is urged to use the gallery as a meeting place and such has been made on numerous occasions.

The gallery began operations June 22, 1939, and has enjoyed an attendance for all activities of 19,046 and has had visitors from 16 states, Canada and from 100 towns and cities in North Carolina.

Miss Hilda Ogburn has served as director of the gallery since it was opened here and is ably aided by a corps of five members.

Chamber Commerce Directors Meet Set

DR. REYNOLDS ISSUES APPEAL

Calls For Physical Preparedness Program

Raleigh, May 24.—Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, state health officer, has issued an appeal to the people of North Carolina to begin at once a program of physical preparedness.

"A desperado and his gang are loose in the world. They are running amuck, destroying civilization, leaving in their wake death and destruction among innocent, God-fearing nations and individuals.

"Our President has called for a program of preparedness designed to give us protection against this sinister force, involving a billion and a half dollars, which amount will be increased as necessity demands. This will give us mechanized units, airplanes, submarines and other material with which to defend ourselves if this should become necessary.

"These mechanized units, however, will avail us nothing unless we enter into a definite program of physical preparedness. Let us not repeat the mistakes of 1917, when our manpower was 33 1-3 per cent unfit for active military duty. It is of paramount importance that the individual becomes physically fit before he offers himself for the service of his country. It is only through physical fitness that he will have the mental alertness, the healthy eye and the physical endurance to make the quick decisions necessary for the successful prosecution of a war and then prosecute these decisions. If we must fight to preserve our heritage, let us man our machines of war with men whose eyes are clear, whose hands are steady and whose nerves are of iron.

"We can begin this program of physical preparedness no earlier than now. Tomorrow it may be too late. As state health officer, I earnestly call upon our people to take advantage of every means that science, through a benign Providence, has placed at our disposal to make us physically fit. Let the work of immunization against preventable diseases begin now. Let our people take stock of themselves and make the unwavering decision for physical preparedness.

"North Carolina was first at Bethel. Let it be first in physical preparedness. We gave the world the airplane, war's most modern and effective weapon. Let us also pioneer in giving our nation the best there is in manpower.

"God spare us from the desperado—deliver us from war. But in war or peace, 'God give us men!'"

SEES FLANKER AS CURE FOR SHIFTING DEFENSE

Seattle (AP)—Coach Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington predicts a wider use of the flanker in intercollegiate football this fall.

Phelan, addressing a clinic of high school football coaches, offered the flanker as an offensive antidote for shifting defensive lineups, such as five, six, seven or even eight man lines.

Jimmy has used a flanker for the past three years or so. A halfback takes his position wide of the end. "Having the flanker out there means the defense will have to watch him," Phelan explained. "This opens up the defense for thrusts into the vacated zones. The flanker can figure in pass plays, on reverses, as a blocker or merely as a decoy."

Short Cut To Safety

Detroit (AP)—How to get out of trouble with the bases full and no one out was demonstrated in a local high school baseball game recently by Pitcher Al Thielmans of St. Ambrose.

Facing a pinch hitter for the De La Salle team, Thielmans suddenly whirled and threw to second base to nip Er Skotzke for the first out. He assumed the pitching position and threw a ball to the batsman. Catcher Bill Lendzion whipping the ball to third where Jack Goyke was tagged out.

Now with two men out and Geo. Detloff on first, Thielmans again stepped to the rubber, eyed Lendzion's signal and suddenly whipped the ball to first where Detloff was nipped.

De La Salle never recovered from the shock and Thielmans breezed in a 5 to 2 winner.

PERHAPS HIS SCORE IS TWICE AS BAD

Bellingham, Wash. (AP)—Wally Linsley, sports editor of the Bellingham Herald and a former golf professional, writes that he has found the perfect lone wolf golfer. "He plays two balls, one against the other," Wally says, "uses different clubs adds up the score separately and then pays off the winner by transferring the cash from one pocket to the other.

"He does his own caddy (double) cures for each ball and in case of heated argument, doesn't speak to himself until the next Sunday."

A picture of this lone wolf, Wally feared, might wind up as a double exposure.

similar to that of General Robert E. Lee in the War Between the States. Lee was a brilliant general, but he needed western horses and wheat, northern iron and textiles. The Union's huge, but bungling, land and sea forces choked off these essential supplies without which Lee could not hope to win, no matter how brilliant his blitzkriegs, no matter how daring his lightning thrusts.

Hitler is in the same position. He cannot force Britain and France to their knees so long as they can cut off his food and oil, his iron and copper. So, the big unanswered question is today, just as it was last September, "Can Hitler's air force pulverize the French army and smash the British navy?" America, to be safe, however, must now prepare for an unfavorable answer. A Hitler-controlled Europe immediately changes the entire outlook for American security. If the Germans win, we will inevitably tangle with them over the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine. Hence, a German victory means a gigantic increase in our tax bills to cover defense costs for this country.

Hitler Victory Costly

It means an immediate outlay of $5,000,000,000 for a second navy to replace the British navy which is now patrolling the Atlantic for us. In addition, we must spend at least $3,000,000,000 more per year to maintain a sufficient air and land force to back up the two fleets. We would need an Atlantic navy because we cannot afford to take our present fleet out of the Pacific. Not only must we protect ourselves against Germany, but also against Japan. Her navy is growing by leaps and bounds. It is difficult to get accurate figures, but many observers believe the Japanese navy is now about 75 per cent as large as ours. One of the biggest reasons for these gains is the fact that Japan gets twice as much ship for every dollar she spends as we do.

The wide disparity in costs is due to the varying prices for labor and raw materials. There is no eight-hour day in Japan, no 5-day week, no labor unions. We are furnishing Japan with many of the essential materials with which she builds her battleships. To Der Fuehrer and Il Duce, the United States is crazy to supply Japan with the materials she needs to build a huge navy whose main purpose is to menace the United States. Hitler and Mussolini would put a stop to such practice in less time than it takes to tell about it. In the tremendous defense job that faces us, nothing—neither labor leaders nor wage-hour restrictions—must be allowed to stand in our way as they did in France.

More Efficiency Needed

If Germany's blitzkrieg wins, we will be living in a hostile world. Totalitarian governments will face us on all sides. For our own security, we must inject some of the efficiency of the dictator nations into our own democracy. As the first move toward such a goal, we need a spiritual awakening which will emphasize that courage is the only security and progress comes only through willingness to sacrifice. There is no question that Hitler chose 1940 because he was sure there was nothing to fear from American intervention. He knew that 1940 would be a year of political disarmament in America.

Many suggestions have been made in the last few days calling for a coalition government. My feeling is that whoever wins the election this November should include in his cabinet representatives from all parties. There are great sums to be spent and great problems to be solved. These vast sums should be expended under the direction of a coalition cabinet. "Politics" must be prevented from handicapping us in this gigantic task. Moreover, as a solution of our domestic problems, it will give the nation renewed confidence if all candidates will promise to bring a Coalition Cabinet to Washington!

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SUFFERING HAS COSMIC SIGNIFICANCE

There is an engaging story in the gospel of Mark which relates how an unsuspecting rustic by the name of Simon of Cyrene, who was standing at the roadside as Jesus passed by bearing His cross, was compelled to take that cross when our Lord could no longer bear it, and carry it to the top of the hill.

Read in one of his epistles spoke of filling up the sufferings of Christ. Throughout the New Testament there seems to run the teaching that every time a Christian suffers, his pain is in some way added to that of the crucified Christ and becomes a part of the great experience by which humanity is saved. Christ's suffering, of course, was sufficient to save all men; but it is a thought that should cheer us in the midst of our sorrows and troubles to realize that the loving God reaches down and picks up our pain and trouble, places them alongside the pain and trouble of our Lord and invests them with heavenly glory.

As we bear our cross today, we are helping Christ bear His cross. And everyone who suffers and does so in the spirit of Christian faith should allow his heart to be comforted with the realization that on this day, far distant from the tragic day of crucifixion, he is again helping the Lord Christ bear His cross up the rough road to Calvary.

GUARD MEMBERS SHOULD GET TIME OFF

The National Guard usually considered our second line of defense in reality is our first line of defense from the standpoint of ground forces as each of the units is complete while the regular army is a skeleton organization.

During the coming summer the guardsmen will have to remain in camp three weeks instead of the usual two-weeks summer training period and naturally there are some employers who do not like to let guardsmen in their employ off for the training period. Taking into consideration, however, the great value a well trained National Guard will prove to this country in time of peril employers should consider it a patriotic duty to see to it that members of the guard are not penalized because of the longer training period this summer.

The following item from the Wall Street Journal speaks a fine attitude on the part of the financial institutions toward having our country well prepared to defend itself if and when it becomes necessary.

Leading financial institutions in New York City, including the largest banks and the New York Stock Exchange, are planning complete co-operation with Army officials in their program of extending training periods of National Guardsmen. Extensive Army maneuvers are planned for a three-weeks period during August. Most of the New York National Guard regiments already have received orders to participate in these maneuvers, while others have been ordered to extend the regular summer encampment from two weeks to three.

A survey yesterday indicated that the leading banks here will follow their usual policy of granting loans to employees who are members of the National Guard. In addition to continuing their pay during the three-weeks training period, most banks are planning to give these employees an additional week's vacation. Employees of the New York Stock Exchange who are enlisted in the National Guard already have been informed that they will be given pay during the three-weeks training period.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington.—For weeks there hasn't been a night that midnight oil hasn't been burning in the gray ramshackle Department of State building.

The 44-hour week has become more than twice that for many officials and a lot of their underlings. Foreign relations must be kept intact. Scenes abroad change swiftly. Raise your finger from the world's pulse one moment and the hint of a new and vital flux may be lost. But if you think Secretary Hull's boys in the home office of American diplomacy are overworked, pity the men in the field, sweating over the new problems that a war raises. Besides their regular duties they are working for the Allies. In Berlin, Brussels, The Hague, Copenhagen and Oslo, the United States embassies or legations have been authorized to handle all the business of Great Britain, France, Canada and Australia, and in some instances that of Belgium, Luxembourg, New Zealand, South Africa and Egypt.

Courtesy Doesn't Pay
This is all a matter of international courtesy. Nations who have gotten themselves into a mess don't pay a dime for their labor expended in their behalf, although they do make an honest effort to defray all cash outlays involved.

The first obligation generally is seeing that the representatives of the nation represented get safely out of the country. For example, when Hitler crashed through Holland and Belgium, it was our legation at The Hague and embassy in Brussels which assisted the French and British representatives in getting safe passage home. In September, 1939, when England finally tossed down the glove, Alexander Kirk, United States charge d'affaires, helped Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador, get his "30 men, seven women and two dogs" onto the sealed train that carried them to the Dutch border. Next, United States representatives take over the records of departing officials, place the United States seal on the buildings left behind, and settle down to try to straighten out the problems left in their hands.

We're The Mouthpiece
Not the least of these is the business of transmitting messages between countries that no longer speak to each other. When Belgium wanted to notify Germany that Brussels was an open city—that is, unfortified and not subject to bombing—the whole business was transmitted through the U. S. embassy. The Belgium state department passed the word along to the embassy; the embassy passed it along to the U. S. embassy in Berlin, and from there it went to the Nazi state department in the form of a formal note. The answer was passed back.

On the other hand, Germany warns Antwerp that, unless she surrenders immediately, the city will be considered a military objective, subject to the worst that the Nazis have to offer. This word goes through the American embassies and the answer is handed back to Berlin.

So, if one of our European diplomatic staff members rises up during his two hours of sleep and shouts "to hell with the Nazis," I think the Germans should understand—and bow at least as deeply as Sir Neville Henderson.

HIGH TIDE

Chapter 12
Room For Rent
JOHNNY pushed the chair out to the walk, then came back to Jan who was scraping food remnants off plates and stacking dishes to be washed. In the unkind glare of the overhead light she looked tired, he thought. Damn it all, why couldn't she take the job and hire someone to do this drudgery!

He said as much. "I couldn't," she sighed. "You saw how Lance behaved. I wish you hadn't mentioned it in front of him. It's bad for him to be aroused that way." She didn't tell him she felt like a worn-out buffer from constantly trying to keep things running smoothly in the growing trust company of her household. For Lance, despite his good resolves, had not apologized for storming about Derek. Instead he had chosen to ignore the whole episode with the consequence that it hung like an opaque curtain between them. Granting that she was entitled to romance, to a sweetheart, he yet resented it should be a man of whom none of them knew anything.

"I'll dry the dishes for you," Johnny offered in an unexpected access of generosity. His actions broke her bad mood, for he was so afraid he'd get a drop of water on his too perfect clothes that he stood far back from the drain-board and reached for dishes with an awkwardness worthy of a movie comic.

When they finished Johnny put his arms around her and peered anxiously down into her weary eyes. "I wish I could take you out of all this, Jan. I'm crazy about you, honey. I will take you out, too, the minute I get my own band."

"If I let you," she parried, too tired to resent his arms about her because they were, somehow, comforting and friendly. He came to her and laid his cheek against her bright, tousled hair. "You're so little and so sweet," he said, gently stroking her shoulder.

The kitchen door swung inward and Derek observed the tableau. "Sorry to intrude," he barked, "but I would like some lotion. My face burns like the very devil."

Jan, embarrassed, shy, drew away from Johnny, detaching the blue handkerchief over Derek's forehead. "What do you feel guilty? Certainly she meant nothing to Derek."

"I'll get it for you," she offered, hurrying to the little chest over the sink and taking out a bottle of honey and almond lotion.

While Johnny watched, glowing, she poured some of the liquid into her palm and distributed it over Derek's forehead, face and neck. By the time she finished Derek was grinning.

"Did I enter before or after the kiss?" he inquired impudently. Jan glared at him. "That's hateful of you."

"Oh, don't mind me, folks. I'm an ideal chaperone. Right now I intend retiring and leaving you all alone."

"Listen, you," Johnny began, but Derek was already through the door.

Jan giggled helplessly. "He's terrible—absolutely outrageous—and so delightful!"

"Not to me he isn't," Johnny growled. "I don't see anything funny about it. He's just a part of my life when he leaves this house for good! Well, I guess I better be getting to the club. See you later, honey."

Another Coney Island
JAN, alone in the big silent downstairs, took her account book from the kitchen cupboard and settled down at the table, worrying a stub of pencil with her teeth. Taxes were due in April. Outrageous taxes, because the house chose to sit on a choice piece of beach front. She could not possibly pay the taxes with what she had saved and what little money would be coming in.

Upstairs there were five bedrooms, all in use. Derek, she decided, would have to give up his room and either put up a tent on the roof or take the davenport in the living room, for she must have another twenty dollars a month to add to Johnny's twenty and Norma's forty. It was fortunate that Norma liked boarding with them, as she was so little trouble and the extra money was a life saver. Eighty dollars a month plus a little now and then from Derek and the sale of Lance's plane models would pull them through.

She found a hammer and a few tacks, located the "Room for Rent" sign she'd used last year and tacked it up at the side of the front door. Putting down the hammer, she shoved her hands into the pockets of blue jeans and strolled up toward the pier, thinking she'd drop in and talk to Frank awhile. The night was clear and chill. A slice of moon hung like a suspended cradle over the water and thousands of clean, white stars dotted the upturned cup of the sky.

Several persons called to her as she passed them and she smiled answer. Most of the concession owners had been here every season for years. They formed a clanish resident colony all their own which was closed to transients. Jan was accepted almost as one of them. They liked her, trusted her, these curious people, spawn of carnival and circus who shouted all summer long at prospective customers with complete and hardened indifference to heckling and staring, happy when warm summer nights drove hordes of "bucklers" to their gaudy beach stalls. This new world had opened to her fascinated eyes only two years ago when, of necessity, she had to leave school and care for Lance. Every moment of freedom she spent in exploring what seemed unusual, bizarre, and intriguing in the small west coast replica of Coney Island.

Little by little these people became accustomed to seeing the small, blue-eyed girl with the shy smile. In due time she was permitted the run of the shows. She learned more from these elemental, boisterous, shrewd people than any book could have taught her about their sort of life. Her young years, often shocked, heard of bloody battles, drunken mischief, faithless wives, roving husbands, and all the colorful doings of nimble-witted show people.

Jan passed Frank's office at the life-guard station, saw through the window he was talking to some men, and went on out to the pier and she liked to just stand here and look down at the water battering night and day at the pilings below.

Usually the unremitting roll of the surf lulled her, but tonight it did not. She kept thinking of Derek and of Johnny, wishing that scene in the kitchen had not occurred. Not that it mattered. Derek had made that quick clear on the rooftop the day he kissed her. Nevertheless, it made her miserable to think he had seen her the first time she had ever been in Johnny's arms, and probably the last.

Too Sensitive
"AM I falling in love with Derek?" she wondered. If this was love, she thought, she rather skip it. One moment of exaltation; the next depression. She was becoming too sensitive, too vulnerable. "I ought to get rid of him," she thought, and the thought made her feel empty.

Soon after she reached home Norma returned with Lance. He greeted his sister with feverish enthusiasm, telling her in detail all about the airplane sequences of the picture. He liked Gable and Tracy, he said, and the scenes were almost too real.

"Tell her what happened," Norma prompted, looking a little white, more than a little disturbed.

"Remember all the photographs of me when I won the west coast air races?" he asked, his face radiant. "After the picture tonight the lights went on, Jan, and somebody recognized me. Pretty soon everybody in the place was craning to see me, saying 'That fellow was the pilot. He knows all about it. He was over at the Lockair Plant.' They crowded around me, Sis, and talked to me and wanted my autograph."

They talked a while longer, waiting for Frank. Jan had stopped in just long enough to tell him of Lance's theatre venture and he'd promised to run when the show was over. When he came, taking Lance upstairs, Norma seized Jan's hands, squeezed them fearfully.

"I didn't know," she whispered. "Test pilot was just a name of something to do with aviation. Oh, Jan, I couldn't bear it if Lance were ever to fly again! I'd go mad imagining disaster. How did you bear it?"

"I didn't know, either," Jan told her quietly. "He never loved me near the field. I was in school I didn't learn how dangerous it was until—until I got sick inside."

Their hands clung a moment in silent understanding, then Jan said, "Let's make coffee and sandwiches for the men and stop being tragic!"

Following Derek's advice to forget her painting awhile, Jan sprawled in a sun suit on the beach before the house the afternoon, watching the hordes of people crawl around on the sand, for all the world like ants, happy because the sun was hot and the water not too cold, overjoyed to see their white flesh burning a painful red, uncaring of tonight's itchy blisters.

Through her amber glasses she saw a smartly-dressed young woman turn in on the short cobbled walk to the red house and scrutinize the "for rent" placard. Springing up, Jan caught her just as she reached the wide oak door with the curtained port hole set in its upper half. "I'm the landlady," Jan smiled. "Did you wish to see the room?"

Rains Block Both Baseball And Softball Games Here

WILSON PLAYS HERE TONIGHT

Ladies to Be Guests of Management of Club

Both the softball and regular baseball games scheduled for here last night were blocked by rain which started shortly before time to start play.

Fans, however, will have the opportunity tonight of seeing the Greenies engage the league-leading Wilsons.

As a special attraction, the management of the local club has announced that ladies will be admitted to the stands free.

In softball circles three games were rained out. Girls' teams from the college and Davis Hosiery company were to have played at Third Street park immediately preceding the two regular scheduled contests.

Blount-Harvey was to have engaged Water and Light and Tadlock was scheduled to face R. C. Cola. The games probably will be played on Wednesday night of next week. Only one other game on the schedule remains to be settled. A contest between Carolina Dairy and Carolina Sales was cut short last week by rain.

On Monday night softball will be resumed with R. C. Cola playing Carolina Dairy and Pepsi Cola meeting Carolina Sales.

TWO SOFTBALL GAMES SUNDAY

New Bern and Greenville Teams To Play Here

Softball fans will be treated to a double header at Third Street park tomorrow afternoon, the games to be between local teams and two from New Bern.

The first game will start at 3 o'clock, with the New Bern Rats playing the Carolina Sales team. The local team has been setting a fast pace recently behind the stellar pitching of Dudas, a college student, who holds the strike-out record for the Greenville loon. Ten of the 21 outs were accredited to strikeouts in Carolina Sales' last game.

The second game will be between the New Bern Maola team and the local R. C. Cola team. The Royal Crown team won its last game after having been in a slump for the past several prior contests. At the start of the season R. C. Cola was tied for the league lead until topped by Double Cola.

N. C. BEACHES TO OPEN EARLY

Raleigh, May 25.—Most years North Carolina's beach resorts do not open their season until June 1, at the earliest, but this year practically all of them have increased their facilities and already are open for the business of supplying rest and recreation to vacationing visitors.

The unusual variety of shore activities is accredited to the increasing popularity of the North Carolina shore. The surf, inlet, and Gulf Stream fishing is nationally known. There are unique attractions such as the Wright Memorial at the birthplace of aviation, the famous "Lost Colony" play, the Hatteras and Fort Macon parks, and quaint Ocracoke which once harbored the pirate Blackbeard and later provided the life-line of supplies to Washington at Valley Forge.

At Kill Devil Hill and Nags Head additions have been built to four hotels and a number of new cottages are under construction. Manito has rebuilt throughout the area of last year's fire and has added new tourist accommodations. New fishing boats have been added to the fleet around Oregon Inlet. New boats and more quarters are available at Hatteras and Ocracoke.

At Morehead City and Beaufort construction has been underway for months. A new public beach has been built at Fort Macon. Southward the Hurst and Onslow beaches, small and new developments, offer some of the smoothest grounds.

Next are Wrightsville and Carolina Beach, two of the largest resorts in the state and both within a few miles of Wilmington. At both these favorites there has been much new construction this year.

All the resorts apparently look for a record season this summer. Judging by the way in which they have been improving and building.

Then comes Southport, well known to fishermen who visit Frying Pan Shoals. Across the harbor is Fort Caswell, now a family resort. In the mouth of the Cape Fear is Bald Head, semi-tropical and last are Holden Beach and Seaside, small but growing.

What should the 1940 streamlined dancing girl possess? The answer is given by exotic Luana, pictured above. Luana, a vivid Latin-American personality, now touring this country for the first time, declares that the perfect dancing girl is tall, slender, beautiful, possessor of individuality, personality and intellect. Luana, creator of the colorful "Danse Savage," has been widely recognized as possessing the ideal attributes for a dancing career. She believes that the American stage offers girls with determination and ambition, unlimited possibilities. Luana, a standout attraction, is now featured with Billroy's Comedians, which with a company of eighty people, including many lovely girls and fifteen featured vaudeville acts here tonight for one performance only in its huge tented theatre, located at the old fair grounds, opposite Guy Smith stadium.

"Billroy's Comedians," the greatest of all touring theatrical ventures is presenting a two hour production at their well-remembered popular prices, with ladies free, when accompanied by one paid adult admission. The doors of the big tent open at 7:15 p. m., with overture by The Rhythm Swing-Operators. Ambassadors of Swing at 7:30, and the performance starts at 8:15 sharp.

STATE IS HIT BY SPY FEVER

Talk Of Espionage Heard On All Sides At Raleigh

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, May 25.—Raleigh is in the throes of spy fever.

Tales of all sorts of espionage and underground activities are as current as political rumors about the governor's race, and that's very current indeed.

The stories are told with all sorts of embellishments and detailed specifications, but so far nobody has been able to get really provable fact out of any of them. Everybody seems to know all about these spies except the authorities and the new men who have tried hard to run them down.

One of the suspects is a "Mr. Bevo" (Shades of Prohibition Days!) who is some 30 years old and is attending State College and a member of the R. O. T. C. unit there.

Apparently the only basis for the variegated yarns about him is that he is above 30 years old—(which is occasion for surprise that he is a collegian) and the added fact (the grave import of which must be immediately apparent) that he lives in a trailer and has a family.

That's the Bevo story, boiled down to its essentials.

It's on the same solid foundation as the equally graphic story of Mr. Peach—or Peatros—or something, the old antique dealer, who, it is averred with much wealth of circumstance, was caught with a sketch of Fort Bragg, a map of the mouth of the Cape Fear river, the wicked fellow, it is also detailed at length, also tried to send $35,000 to Germany.

Seattle (AP) — In boosting the value of municipal golf courses, Councilman Robert Harlin told colleagues that the Jefferson Park municipal links here is the only public course in the world to produce two players on a single Walker Cup team. Scotty Campbell and Harry Glavan of Seattle, both graduates of "Jeff" were 1936 Walker Cuppers.

Chain Store Council Offers Dairy Month

Norfolk, Va., May 24.—Efforts to increase dairy product consumption and to help the growing dairy industry of the south during National Dairy Month in June will be supported in every way possible by chain stores in Georgia and the Carolinas. Thos. P. Thompson, managing director, Southeastern Chain Store Council, announced here today.

He declared that the acquaintance of the public with the healthful qualities of dairy products, as well as the economies to be enjoyed by using more of them on family menus, would undoubtedly be instrumental in developing greater consumption and larger local markets.

"An increase of a bottle per day in per family consumption," he pointed out, "would mean a large percentage increase in fluid milk sales, and would also be productive of improved health conditions."

In his opinion, Mr. Thompson said, the consumption of ice cream, butter and cheese could and should be greatly increased during the month-long campaign for promoting dairy products.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, May 25.—(AP)—Despite confusing war news, Wall Street appeared in no mood to batter the stock market today and in the final hour leaders rallied fractions to three points.

Late buying in steels and aviation helped the speculative temperament and tended to offset sluggishness in a few other departments. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

ACTS TO CURB FIFTH COLUMN

Gov. Rivers Orders All Licenses Revoked In Ga.

Atlanta, May 25.—(AP)—In an unprecedented move aimed at "fifth columnists", Governor E. D. Rivers directed today that the business, occupational and professional licenses of all Georgia aliens be cancelled on June 1.

The executive orally instructed Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head to revoke the permits effective that date. Immediately after this was announced Head and Rivers went into consultation to determine if exceptions would be made of aliens who have applied for citizenship by that time.

The revenue department was unable to say at once how many persons would be affected or to estimate the value of the businesses involved. This step was the most drastic of several taken by Rivers this week in a campaign against subversive elements.

Included in these was a proclamation requesting that all aliens register with police units and be fingerprinted. This proclamation brought a threat of court action from the American civil liberties union.

Tribute Is Paid to Late President

"A trail-blazer in the field of education," and one "whose influence will live on after his name is forgotten," President L. R. Meadows called Dr. Robert H. Wright, first president of the East Carolina Teachers College in an address in his memory Friday at the college assembly.

President Meadows prefaced his talk by reading from the Apocryphal book of Ecclesiasticus the passage called "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men."

Then declaring that he considered it a privilege to talk to the student body each year on or near Dr. Wright's birthday, and to introduce to them this man who had meant so much to the College, Dr. Meadows said, "President Wright stood on this platform where I am standing, and rested his hand where mine now rests, not scores but hundreds of times, and spoke to audiences like this one."

Dr. Wright came from a fine family, the speaker said, a family that was interested in education and religion. His mother was a teacher and the mother of a number of teachers. He was blessed in his environment, too, for it gave him something to struggle against, as he was reared in the reconstruction period. He was a rich little poor boy rather than a poor little rich boy.

"If you sometimes get discouraged in trying to get an education," said Dr. Meadows, "remember this man who worked his way through college, even though he had to enter late and earn his own money."

Many people today say that one purpose of a college is to develop personality. President Wright had that already—he was a remarkable personality, said the speaker, and went on to give a number of incidents showing the kindness of his subject.

Meter - Miser Offers Additional Economy

Saving money is one of the important reasons for buying an electric refrigerator, so it is interesting to note that this year the makers of one leading refrigerator have announced that its already low operating cost has been greatly reduced.

This cold producing device is the same type of long wearing, dependable rotary compressor previously used; but through an extensive program of experiment and research the company originally developed its has been able further to perfect its performance.

"Millions of users are familiar with the meter-miser cold making mechanism in their electric refrigerators," said Jesse Smith, local Frigidaire appliance dealer in commenting on the latest development in this famous device. "But this year the meter-miser has been designed to operate at even less cost, at the same time giving equally as much refrigeration power as in the past."

"Laboratory technicians have been busy for months conducting every conceivable type of test on the meter-miser in order to give it extra efficiency and greater current saving operation under all conditions. That their efforts have been successful is evidenced in the announcement that the 1940 meter-miser provides an abundance of controlled cold at a material reduction in cost."
