WAR THREATENS SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE

Eastern Carolina Tobacco Markets To Open Sept. 3rd

GEORGIA BELT OPENS AUG. 8

Opening Of Auctions In Greenville This Year To Be Two Weeks Later Than Last Year; J. W. Dunnington, Farmville, Va., Succeeds J. S. Ficklen As Association Head

White Sulphur Springs, West Va., June 28.—(AP)—The Tobacco Association of the United States announced today the sales markets would open in Georgia on August 8, South Carolina on August 20, Eastern North Carolina on September 3, Middle belt on September 17, Old belt on September 24 and the dark fired Virginia market on November 20.

Announcement of opening dates was made after the association received from its sales committee a recommendation that selling time in any one market day be limited to not more than six hours.

J. W. Dunnington of Farmville, Va., was elected president of the association, succeeding James S. Ficklen of Greenville, N. C. W. A. Goodson of Winston-Salem, N. C., A. B. Carrington, Jr. of Danville, Va., and L. L. Gravelly of Rocky Mount, N. C., were named vice presidents.

Last year Eastern Carolina markets opened on August 22.

Mrs. Mary Tucker Claimed By Death

Mrs. Mary E. Tucker, 83, died at 3:30 a. m. at her home, 1301 Chestnut street, after a prolonged illness. The funeral will be held from the old homeplace, near Spring Hope, Saturday at 3 p. m. The pastor of Spring Hope Methodist church will conduct the service. Burial will be in the family cemetery. Mrs. Tucker was a member of a prominent family and was extensively related.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Hunnicutt, of Greenville, a brother, Mr. J. T. Edwards, Spring Hope; a sister, Mrs. Anne Batchelor, Spring Hope; three grandchildren, Mr. Russell Tucker and Mr. Edward Tucker, Spring Hope, and Mr. W. R. Hunnicutt, of Greenville.

Appeals For Aid To Hungary's Red Cross

Budapest, June 28.—(AP)—Hungary's war minister, General Karolyi, appealed today to the public to "give quickly" hospital trains, ambulances and medical supplies to the Hungarian Red Cross.

With Hungary's claims for the return of Transylvania from Rumania on everyone's lips, the general remarked to his radio audience: "I trust you will understand what this appeal is all about."

Greece, Germany Sign Economic Agreement

Berlin, June 28.—(AP)—Greece and Germany signed an economic agreement today by which Germany obtains goods of particular interest to the Reich, the German wireles reported on advices from Athens.

Greece is the second country which was aligned with Britain and France to sign an economic agreement recently with Germany. Her neighbor Turkey has concluded a trade pact with the Reich.

Willkie - FDR

Washington, June 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he would be glad to talk about foreign affairs with Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president.

Nazis Greet Peace Talk With Declaration That 'Cannons Are Speaking'

School Girl Slain

Strangled with the skirt of her play suit and her skull apparently fractured, Ruth Goren, 15-year-old high school girl was found dead in a wooded area of University City, a suburb of St. Louis, Mo. There was evidence of a fierce struggle between her and her assailant.

WILLKIE TALKS FOR THE PRESS

Answers Numerous Questions Asked By Reporters

Philadelphia, June 28.—(AP)—Wendell Willkie said today he had "already accepted" the republican presidential nomination, to which he rocketed overnight and would go before the national convention this afternoon "to say hello" to the delegates who acclaimed him party leader.

Talking to reporters as delegates trooped back to the convention hall to pick a running mate for the man so widely acclaimed 1940 party leader shortly after midnight, Willkie said in answer to questions:

"The selection of a vice presidential nominee was 'a job for the convention.'"

Formal notification ceremonies of nomination and the formal acceptance probably would take place at Elwood, Ind., his birthplace. Congress should stay in session because of "the difficult international situation."

The "outstanding issues" of the forthcoming campaign would be "national unity, building an adequate national defense and rehabilitation of the national economy."

He intended to resign from the presidency of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, public utility holding company Monday.

His victory was a 47-day expression of "the will of the people" and he would make a "very aggressive and widespread campaign."

He would be "delighted to see President Roosevelt" to discuss national defense, adding with a grin, "I think one should be most courteous to his predecessor."

Authorized Berlin Circles Declare Any Attempts At Settlement Will be Useless As Long As Churchill Continues To Assert Britain Desires War To The Bitter End

Berlin, June 28.—(AP)—Germany's reply to any peace feelers from London is an unequivocal statement that "cannons are speaking" authorized sources said today.

These sources declared that if certain British circles are endeavoring to bring about peaceful settlement with Germany, these overtures are of no account to the Reich so long as British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government keeps saying it wants war to a bitter finish.

"That is the war we are giving them," these sources said. The authorized sources commenting on peace rumors in London said that the Churchill government after all had the power in its hands while other circles, no matter how influential and how well connected they might be with friends in Germany, could not speak for Britain authoritatively.

"We have no reason to attach importance to all these rumors of peace feelers emanating from London," one of these sources said. "On the contrary, it often looks to us as though the Churchill government itself launched these rumors in order to have a straw to knock down afterwards. Chamberlain (former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain) for instance vigorously denied he is at odds with Churchill, yet the peace rumors were based on an alleged disagreement between these two statesmen."

Little Ayden Girl Succumbs at Home

Little Minnie Carroll Wooten, seven-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Wooten of Ayden, died at her home this morning at 8:45 o'clock following a week's illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. J. C. Moye, Free Will Baptist minister of Snow Hill. Burial will follow in the Jones family cemetery in Greene county. The little girl was born in Greenville, but moved to Ayden with her parents five years ago. She had completed the first grade in the Ayden schools.

Sea Scouts Ask Work To Earn Some Money

Charles H. Whedbee, skipper of the local Sea Scout unit, today advised that members of the crew needed money to maintain the boat and purchase uniforms and were willing to work for it.

Any person needing his yard or vacant lot cleaned up, or any other similar work is urged to see Mr. Whedbee or Sam Dees of the county farm agent's office and one of the Sea Scouts will be dispatched at once.

The skipper said that his mates would guarantee all work.

Germany Says Allies Planned An Invasion

Berlin, June 28.—(AP)—German charges that the Allies were on the point of extending the war just before Germany launched her offensive on May 10 were made today in a two volume White Book issued by the Nazi foreign office.

At the time of the Nazi invasion of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, Germany in notes to those countries said that the Allies had planned to use their territories in striking at the Reich.

WILLKIE WINS NOMINATION IN SIXTH BALLOT

First Time Candidate Had Ever Sought Office

SECOND CHOICE TO BE SELECTED

New York Utilities Executive Promises To Give His All To Bring About Prosperity

Philadelphia, June 28.—(AP)—Wendell Willkie, the business man who mussed his hair and turned into a politician overnight, won the republican presidential nomination today after the widest balloting spree of any recent convention.

He wrested the presidential nomination from whoping delegates on the sixth ballot shortly after midnight. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, his forces badly shattered, and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan had freed their supporters to join the mad rush toward the New York utilities executive.

Senator Taft of Ohio his lines crumbling in the stampede, finally fell before the onrush. Then the result was declared unanimous.

Only the vice presidential nomination and the closing convention formalities remained to be disposed of this afternoon. Senators Taft and Vandenberg along with Dewey turned second place aside. Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican floor leader, was understood to be Willkie's choice, but McNary said at Washington he had informed Republican leaders that he would not accept the vice presidential nomination.

The 48-year-old Willkie, never before a candidate for public office, learned of his nomination in his hotel suite crowded, with enthusiastic friends.

"I am very appreciative, I'm very humble and very proud," he said. "I intend to give everything I have to bring about American prosperity, building an adequate national defense and restoring national unity."

Call Red Cross Meet To Discuss Campaign

An important meeting has been called by officials of the Pitt county chapter of the American Red Cross to be held at the Women's club building tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider plans for furthering the local campaign to raise funds for the Red Cross War Relief.

Plans Being Mapped By Business Women

The executive board of the Business and Professional Women's club held a "most enthusiastic" meeting at the home of Miss Martha Lee Cullen last night, at which time plans for the coming year were discussed.

Mrs. J. D. Simpson is president of the club. The executive committee is composed of the officers and chairmen of the various committees, most of whom were present for last night's meeting.

CLASH FORECAST IN NAZI-RED INTERESTS

(By The Associated Press) A clash of German and Soviet Russian interests as a result of the Red Army's march into Bessarabia and northern Bucovina appeared today in Nazi reaction to the Soviet Union's triumph in Rumania.

Officials of the German legation at Bucharest charged that the Russian coup was a British inspired trick to create a new front for the European war, but that Germany would act only if her own territorial and economic interests were damaged.

Rumania Yields To Russian Territorial Demands

With Russian troops and planes swarming along the frontier, King Carol of Rumania yielded to a stiff Soviet ultimatum, demanding huge territorial concessions. This map shows the territory Carol agreed to yield: (1) the northern part of Bessarabia, (2) the province of Bessarabia, once a part of czarist Russia; and also full Russian control over the ports of Tulcea and Constanta. (3) Meanwhile the Rumanian army was massed in Transylvania apparently to resist any attempt by Hungary to claim Transylvania, formerly a part of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. The map shows how Rumania was made up of land formerly belonging to Russia, Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria.

Nation Stands To Lose Much Of Leaf Exports

MCNARY TO BE RUNNING MATE

Appears To Be Unanimous Choice Of Delegates

Philadelphia, June 28.—(AP)—Nomination of Charles L. McNary of Oregon as the running mate of Wendell Willkie was forecast today by Gov. Harold Stassen, floor manager for the successful presidential nominee.

He said the Senate Republican leader was the outstanding choice of the convention delegates.

At Washington, Sen. McNary said that he had told Republican leaders that he did not want the vice presidential nomination, but if the convention nominated him in face of this he would be "a good soldier" and accept it.

Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan went so far as to say "he already has taken it" when asked whether McNary would accept.

Floor managers said that in the call of states Arizona would yield to Minnesota and that chairman W. S. Minor of the state's delegation would nominate McNary.

Governor Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut told reporters "we are all agreed on McNary and I think he'll take it."

To this Walter L. Toole, Oregon delegate, added, "You can put it down he will accept."

"Willkie wants him and he is going to be nominated," Toole said. The party needs him and wants him. He will be an excellent candidate.

"His farm record will have great appeal in the west and he will poll more votes than any other vice president."

President Ficklen Addresses Tobacco Association

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 28 (AP) — Tobacco growers of the United States face the immediate prospect of losing "from two-thirds to three-fourths of our total tobacco exports," President James S. Ficklen of the tobacco association of the United States told members of the organization today.

"If it develops that neither Great Britain nor the countries now occupied by Germany can import any of the 1940 crop, which seems likely," Ficklen said in an address prepared for delivery at the association's annual convention, "and the other countries of the world do not increase their purchases, and it seems unlikely that they will—China being a possible exception—our total exports will drop to approximately 120 million pounds, of which other types will account for 70 million pounds, and flue-cured 50 million pounds."

He said that "it is not known whether exchange will be provided for the 170 million pounds of leaf which British firms hold under option."

"It is possible that a production quota may be put into effect restricting the output to a lower figure for the duration of the war," he continued.

"If credit arrangements can be made, and I hope this will be possible, whereby payment in the form of exchange is not required to take delivery of the tobacco under option, it seems less likely that a quota will be invoked."

"How much of this lost business will eventually be regained depends entirely upon the outcome of the war. An ultimate loss seems inevitable. It is purely a question of the extent of the loss."

Under present disturbed conditions, Ficklen said, "it appears probable that the commodity credit corporation will again find it necessary to buy from the 1940 crop. Probably confining their purchases to the export types as they did last year."

"While such action on the part of the government seems fully warranted and absolutely necessary now, it must be remembered that we cannot operate indefinitely under a policy of piling up surpluses in the hands of the government without bringing an ultimate day of reckoning."

A referendum has been called for July 20, at which time the farmers will vote on both a three-year control plan and a one-year plan."

As one of the harassing problems confronting the tobacco industry, President Ficklen pointed to shipping conditions, which, he said, "have become more unsatisfactory than they have been at any time during the present century."

"Instead of having an ample supply," (Continued on Page Two)

GREATER ARMY FUNDS LIKELY

Increased Appropriations Indicated By Roosevelt

Washington, June 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt indicated today that increased appropriations would be sought for the army, but offered no suggestion on the amount.

He intimated that the added funds would be used to place large orders for defense equipment. Asked at a press conference whether it had been brought to his attention that the army was drafting a program involving new and large amounts, the chief executive asserted that probably the best way to put it was like this:

"When new production facilities are created it is cheaper in the long run to give a sufficiently large order to keep them going at least for a while."

It is now being determined, he said, whether in some fields of procurement it would not save money to give expanded orders now so as to assure industry it would get part of its money back.

For instance, he said, more airplanes might be ordered than there are appropriations at present to cover, the objective being to build up to the goal of 50,000 aircraft backed by production capacity of 50,000 a year.

It had previously been reported that President Roosevelt intended to seek an immense boost in the defense program that would more than double the $5,082,310,080 already appropriated and shatter the arms bill of the peak World War year.

Winterville Again Subscribes to Fund

One of the most encouraging reports in the local Red Cross War Relief campaign was received from Winterville today.

Winterville had a quota of $100, a sum which the little community raised immediately after the call went out.

Today Mrs. A. D. McLawhorn, Winterville chairman, reported that an additional $38.50 had been raised in her community, bringing to $138.50 the total contributed by citizens of that community.

The latest report included: Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McLawhorn, $5; reunion of Smith family at St. Luke's church, $20; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Morris, $1; Mrs. F. C. Carroll, 50 cents; Miss Betty Tripp, $2; Mr. and Mrs. T. Ray Oglesby, $5; cash $5.

This amount brings the total to $864.67.

Nazis Blame British With Setting Trap

Declare Soviet Move Into Rumania Inspired By Britain In Attempt To Create New War Front; Little Balkan Countries Massing Forces; Nazis Renew Raids; British Sink Transport

By The Associated Press War clouds blackened over southeastern Europe today.

King Carol, II's little Balkan kingdom of Rumania, after yielding to a stiff Russian ultimatum, rushed most of its 2,000,000 troops to the Hungarian frontier.

Hungary and Bulgaria called up reserves.

Turkey sent her fleet into the Black sea, stripped for action and ready to defend the Dardanelles against any attack.

In Bucharest German legation officials charged that the Soviet move into Rumania was a trick "inspired by Britain" to create a new war front.

Germany is avoiding any such trap, they said, and concentrating on the main task ahead—the assault on Britain herself.

The situation was becoming hourly more grave, threatening to explode the famous Balkan "powder-keg" in a clash of bitter and age-old racial hatreds.

Bulgarian regulars were sped by train from the Turkish frontier to the Rumanian border.

Official quarters in Bucharest said they were informed that Hitler had sent a telegram to Joseph Stalin asking the Soviet dictator to "meet Rumania half way."

Russian troops, heavily reinforced by tanks and planes, poured across the Rumanian frontier shortly after dawn—swiftly following up the Russian ultimatum to Rumania which expired at 10 p. m. (3 p. m. EST, yesterday)—and occupied four cities in the ceded provinces of Bessarabia and Bucovina.

While world attention shifted to the Balkans, the main European struggle between Britain and the Nazi-Fascist axis powers was marked by new German air raids over the British Isles and the torpedo sinking of a heavily-laden 8,000-ton German transport by a British submarine off the south coast of Norway.

The sinking incident, although comparatively minor in itself, may have disclosed one of the first clues of the scene chosen by Hitler for his heralded invasion of England.

If the German transport was a troop ship laden with soldiers en route to Norway it may indicate that the Nazi fuhrer has decided on the conquered Scandinavian kingdom as a spring board for his assault.

German bombers raided Britain for the seventh time in 10 days. The British government said there was "no serious damage" and "very slight casualties."

Gives Song Recital

Harold Haugh, the New York tenor, who is teaching voice at Duke University this summer, gave a song recital at the College last night that captivated his audience not only because of his beautiful, flexible and powerful voice but by his gracious, charming personality.

The program had a wide range from arias from oratorios and selections from operas to soft, lovely melodies, all on a high musical level, pleasing to the non-musical in the audience as well as to the musicians. The informal touch given by the singer's explanations, reading of translations of the Schubert songs and pointed and helpful comments, created a fine spirit of co-operation between listeners and singer.

The first half hour was broadcast, with Dean Tabor making the explanations to the radio audience.

Two numbers from Handel's oratorios opened the program, "Comfort Ye," a recitative, and "Every Valley," an aria from "The Messiah." One could see why the singer has made a reputation for his oratorio and religious singing.

A group followed of four contrasting numbers, the soft and the powerful alternating, two by Purcell, "When I am Laid in Earth" and "I Shall Upon the Dog Star," and two by Haydn, "She Never Told Her Love" and "Sailor Song."

The interpretation of the "Ode from Ossian's Poems" was excellent, carrying to his audience the spirit of the great composer, Francis Hopkinson, announced as "the first native American composer of considerable musical stature."

In the group of six Schubert songs, two of which were sung in English, the arrangement again was by contrast, and these gave opportunity for versatility of tone and technique. His sympathetic reading of the translations and his clear German diction made these more enjoyable.

The same wise contrasting of the soft, melodious, and the dramatic, lulling numbers made the final group of five English songs highly pleasing. These were "Go Lovely Rose" by Roger Quilter; "The White Peacock" by Arnold Bax; "Song of the Palmyrs" by Martin Shaw; "Song in the Night" by Marshall Bartholomew; and "Arise O Sun" by Maude C. Day.

The three encores were "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" from "Prayer" from the last act of Wagner's "Lohengrin," and the "Hills of Home." The spontaneous applause and the reluctance of the audience to leave gave evidence of the excellent impression made.

The singer said he had never sung to an audience that responded so well or that pleased him better. They caught his mood and meanings. The accompanist was Herbert Livingston, of the music department of the University of North Carolina. The two were brought together when Mr. Haugh came to Carolina to sing in oratorios last year.

Mr. Haugh (pronounced Haw) will be at Duke only the last term of summer school. This is the first of the song recitals he will give in the state.

Fewer N.C. Schoolhouses But Worth Much More

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, June 28.—In 1938-39 North Carolina had only a little more than half as many school houses as in 1914-15, but they were worth eleven times as much.

Going back a bit further to 1899-1900 there were about seven school houses for every four in 1938-9, but the value in the latter year was sixty-six times as great as at the opening of the current century.

Getting around to figures, reports of the department of public instruction show that in 1899-1900 there were 7,166 school houses valued at $1,695,250; in 1914-15 the number had reached an all-time peak of 8,049 with a value of $10,434,117; while in 1938-9 there were 4,324 school houses with a total value of $459,018.

The number of school houses tended to increase during the first fifteen years of the century, but in 1915 there began a period of consolidation which has seen the number of school houses decrease steadily every year to the present.

Since 1931-32 the decrease has been uniformly about 100 a year. The value of school property (the figures are for the buildings only and do not include garages, bus equipment and teacherages) increased very rapidly from the beginning of the century to the last of the boom years, 1929-30; going from $1,695,250 to $10,421,315. There then set in a recession in values which continued until a low for the decade was reached in 1934-5 at $108,599,972. Since that year the graph of valuation has gone steadily up and the current year, for which no data are yet available, is expected to show a continued climb from last year's figures.

The 4,325 school houses of 1938-9 were divided 2,183 for whites and 2,141 for Negroes, approximately evenly; but the valuation showed no such equality, with white schools appraised at $101,823,593 while valuation of Negro schoolhouses was only $14,615,423.

Thus the average value per enrolled child for North Carolina white school was $46,644 as compared with $270 back in 1900. Value of Negro schools per enrolled child had increased, but by no means correspondingly. Here the figures show the present average for Negro school houses is $26,023 as compared with $132 in 1900.

There is a wide variation in values in the various school units of the state. The average value of school property for white children based on average daily attendance ranges from a high of $302 in Currituck county to a low of $38.46 in Cherokee, from the extreme eastern to the western end.

Among Negro schools the per child value of school property ranged from $185.34 in Stanly to $8.76 in Alleghany.

The value of schoolhouses also varied among the administrative units. The 18 school houses for white children in Johnston county average $110,384 each and thus rank first in this respect. The 31 houses in Cherokee with an average value of $2,710 are at the other end. Johnston county also holds first place in having the highest valued schoolhouses for Negroes, the average of the nine houses being $37,514.

Among the 35 city units the range in value of school property for white children in relation to average daily attendance is from $385.69 in Asheville to $95.66 in Oxford. The average value of school houses varies from $461,607 in Asheville to $28,143 in New Bern.

Reid's Store Opening Set For Saturday a.m.

Reid's Stores, Inc., located at Dickinson avenue and Eighth streets will formally reopen following its closing because of a destructive fire, tomorrow morning.

In observance of its re-opening the management has arranged for a big re-opening sale.

Clinic For Cripples Set For Next Friday

The State Orthopedic clinic will be held next Friday in Greenville from 12:30 to 4 p. m.

This clinic takes all types of cripples, both white and colored, free of charge who are unable to afford private treatments. It is desired, though not required, that patients be referred by a physician or the welfare officer, and that the patient bring such note to the clinic.

The clinic is set up to serve especially the counties of Beaufort, Carteret, Pamlico, Pitt and Tyrrell, though patients from other counties who desire to come may do so.

The clinic is conducted by Dr. Hugh A. Thompson, orthopedist, Raleigh. This clinic has been running for something over three years and is now serving a large number of cripples, adults as well as children, in this area.

The Pitt county health department offices are located at the corner of Third and Greene streets, Greenville, N. C.

TO ALL LANDOWNERS IN THE EDGECOMBE COUNTY DRAINAGE DISTRICT No. 2:

You will take notice that it is the purpose of the Board of Drainage Commissioners of the Edgecombe County Drainage District No. 2 to issue bonds for the payment of the total cost of the improvement to be made in said District, in the total amount of One Hundred Thirty-six Thousand ($136,000) and that said bonds are to bear interest at the rate of four per centum per annum.

and that such interest is to be payable semi-annually on February 1st and August 1st, and that said bonds are to be dated July 1, 1940, and are to be payable in annual installments as follows, viz:

SIX THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED DOLLARS ($6,800) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1944 to 1948, inclusive;

SEVEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($7,000) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1949 and 1950;

SEVEN THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS ($7,500) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1951 and 1952;

EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLARS ($8,000) of bonds on February 1, 1953;

EIGHT THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS ($8,500) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1954 and 1955;

NINE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($9,000) of bonds on February 1, 1956;

NINE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS ($9,500) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1957 and 1958; and

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($10,000) of bonds on February 1st in each of the years 1959 and 1960.

Any landowner in the district not wishing to pay interest on the bonds may, on or before the 5th day of August, 1940, pay to the County Treasurer of Edgecombe County the full amount for which his land is liable, which for Class 'A' land is $12.50 per acre; for Class 'B' land is $10.00 per acre; for Class 'C' land is $7.50 per acre; for Class 'D' land is $5.00 per acre; for Class 'E' land is $2.50 per acre; said amounts having been ascertained from the classification sheet and the certificates of the Board showing the total cost of the improvement. The lands on which the assessments are so paid shall be released from liability to be assessed for the said improvement, but such land shall continue liable for any future assessment for maintenance or for any increased assessment authorized under the law.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — Clare Maxwell, of Life magazine, and Charles H. Babb who deals in airplanes, are two of the best wing shots in the country. They are also play pigeon experts, and they are enthusiastic about the miniature pigeon range on the midway at the World's Fair. This range is similar to a regular shooting gallery with the exception that the automatic 22-rifles are munitioned with shells that shoot a mustard seed pattern of tiny lead pellets. The game is 8 shots for a quarter, and the miniature pigeons, or discs, are sprung from tiny traps shooters stand. It is nothing for Maxwell or Babb to break 98 of 100.

The story of Babb's proficiency with guns is interesting because he has only one hand. He has offices at Glendale, Calif., and at the La Guardia Airport in New York. Babb buys and sells old planes. He is the man who acquired most of the old Ford trimotor jobs and sold them to companies in South America, where they are used to transport lumber out of the high mountainous regions. One plane, in one hour, can equal the work of a heavy pack train in two weeks.

Maxwell is an editor who follows the shooting seasons throughout the country. He was telling me at dinner the other night his plans for a return to the duck parades of the Arkansas swamps this winter. All arrangements have been made. Last year he brought back a quota of plump mallards from Arkansas, by plane, and gave a magnificent duck dinner for Charles Rochester, Hotel Lexington managing director; Babb, Jack Frye, TWA president, and this correspondent.

The pigeon range at the Fair is not the only shooting gallery in operation along the noisy midway. Like those at Coney Island and at other parks and pleasure resorts throughout the metropolitan areas, they have taken on overtones of the war. They have brought themselves up to the level of the headlines.

This means that clay pipes and ducks are being replaced by swinging parachutists and airplanes.

"Mow 'Em Down" is the cry around one remarkable stand, where BB machine-guns are in operation. These machine-guns are operated by compressed air, and you get 50 shots for a dime. The 50 shots last about two seconds. You shoot at miniature planes suspended from the ceiling by rubber strings. An interesting point about these machine guns is that private ownership is illegal. They are available only for exhibitors and shooting galleries. They are not practical for private ownership because they are fed "air" by a line similar to the "free air" line for your car at gasoline stations. When I was a kid BB-shot were lead. Now they are cut from steel and copper coated. The effect is that they are easy to follow with the eye, and shooting these machine-guns gives the impression of filling the air with tracer bullets.

There are 36 establishments in Manhattan alone that have taken the name of the New Deal, and these range from restaurants and liquor stores to garages, neckwear companies and a dairy. There is also the New Deal Export Company and the New Deal Steam and Hot Water Heating Company. On the other side of the ledger, however, it may be announced that Manhattan sports the G.O.P. eatery, a night hamburger stand not far from the Harlem River.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood.—Bette Davis never will take any academy awards for murder—her heart is just not in it. She spent a whole day at it and still wasn't sold on homicide. All she had to do was pump lead into a fellow who had done her wrong. Miss Davis was dressed, you might say, to kill. . . very feminine and fragile in a long, floaty lavender dinner gown, her only costume jewelry her smoking, blazing gat and the metallic glint in her eye.

Toward the end of the day, after some 17 "takes," she was plum tuckered out.

Miss Davis, to begin with, had left no doubt as to her stand on murder and firearms in general.

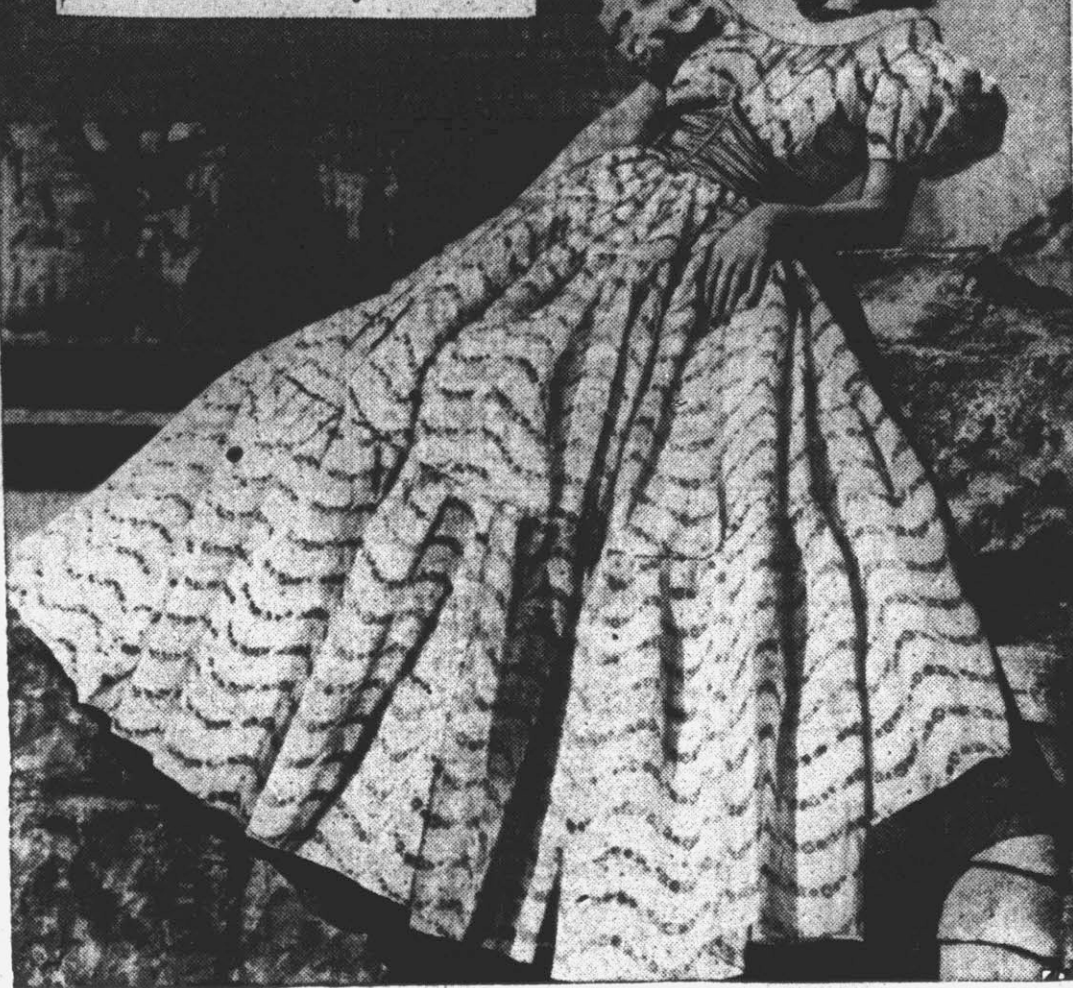

"I," she admitted to Director William Wyler, "am a Fourth of July girl—the kind who runs to hide when the fireworks go off. I'm scared to death of 'em."

The business at hand was the opening sequence of "The Letter." The late Jeanne Eagels made a highly successful talkie of it a decade ago. The art department had turned a whole stage into a tropical rubber plantation, bathed in moonlight. There was no moon, but the set dressers had plenty of paint. They painted the brown, rubbery "floor" with heavy black shadows. Infinitely careful that a palm tree should not cast a shadow like a rubber tree's, and vice versa. They shadowed everything, the native huts, the shrubs, the old oaken bucket at the well. If the rubber trees, authentically ringed and tapped to yield (from concealed cans) a milky fluid, were really magnolias that certainly was not the camera's business.

The camera on a boom covered most of the set for the atmospheric, sinister beginning. It opened with a shot of the flowing "rubber," withdrew to peek into a native hut or two, paused briefly at a white cocktail (which said "Oh, hello!" the first time and sent them back for a new shot) and then panned to the closed door and the big thatch-roof house.

As the camera approached, unseen, Miss D's first shot rang out. The door opened, and the man who done her wrong (David Newell) staggered out, followed by One-

Fashion Salesmen Are Playing Hob With Calendars

By AMY PORTER

AP Feature Service Writer

You can always tell when summer really starts.

You look into a store window, and if you see fur coats and long-sleeved dresses, why then you know it's time for a heat wave.

You know it for sure if you go into the store and try to buy an organdie evening dress to take on your vacation. The salesgirl almost certainly will tell you, "Sorry, the organdie season is over. Let me show you our new things in black satin."

Black satin! Who wants black satin when it's 90 in the shade?

But that's how it is in the dress business. The shops and the weather are out of tune. It's been a joke with men for years, the way women buy straw hats in December and fur coats in August.

Now things are getting worse. The season has been pushed several weeks earlier than it was last year. When hot weather really comes the only summer clothes you can find in the shops are a few tired-looking numbers hanging on the "reduced" racks. If you want fresh things, you have to buy fall fashions.

Women themselves are beginning to complain and retailers are worried. Retailers argued the question at the National Retail Dry Goods Association convention in Chicago. The hurry-up boys insisted they had to start the season early to make a profit. Besides, they said, women who waited till after July to do their summer shopping were looking for bargains. Let them buy reduced and shop-worn merchandise. Women with money to spend are tired of summer things said these gentlemen. After all, they'd worn them since the winter resort season. They were ready for dark, prophetic-of-Fall fashions.

Those opposed to rushing the season say the present situation is artificial, annoying to shoppers and expensive. Expensive because it takes special advertising campaigns to sell out-of-season clothes. But if even one store in a town offers fall clothes early, other stores have to follow suit, or lose sales. So the retailers probably won't do a thing about it. Women shoppers—if they really want action on this problem—might be able to get it by starting a letter campaign to their local stores.

Gun Davis. He staggered to the porch column, leaned against it, received five more shots in quick succession, and fell down face first in the gravel walk—out of the scene, out of the picture.

Somewhere between the first and twelfth "takes" of this intimate gun-play, Mr. Newell had to be relieved briefly to have his sides and chest taped for strained muscles, but he kept on dying bravely, as bravely as Miss D kept on shooting. Miss D, who doesn't approve of murder anyway, had some little trouble acting like an impassioned killer. Once she cried, with bravado, "I'm beginning to enjoy this." It didn't sound convincing. But Miss D is an actress, and Art won't over-see her.

Mr. Newell, somewhat bruised at the end of the day, said, "It's a pleasure to fall for Miss Davis."

It looks like fall, but it's meant for summer—this straight-and-narrow dinner costume with its ultra-smart short coat of gilded wool challis. The coat can be worn with day or with evening things.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

IN GOD'S MIND ONLY
Each generation marvels at the lack of vision displayed by former generations.

On a suburban branch railroad running out from one of four great cities, the stations are all on the north-bound side of the tracks, while practically all people who buy tickets take the train on the south side of these tracks. This arrangement involves a great deal of inconvenience for everybody.

Why did they build the stations where they did? For the simple reason that some years ago all the first residences were on that side of the tracks where people would take the north-bound trains. Acres of forest stretched out on the other side of the tracks, and no one could believe that these trees would some day be felled and a city rise up on that ground. But that is precisely what has happened. By far the choicest properties are now to be found on the acreage which only a few years ago was covered with trees. The railroad officials could not see in the old days beyond a few choicest mansions. They refused to believe in progress.

The best recipe for avoiding that sort of thing is to keep an open mind. Some years ago people said the arctic regions could never be used; today they are much sought after as airplane bases. Don't say,
"I never will," or "such and such a thing will never come to pass."
Knowledge of the future is in the mind of God alone.

DON'T CONFUSE ISSUES

There is a small group of defeatists in this country who seem to have become persuaded to the view that opposition to totalitarianism requires totalitarian methods. They observe the success of the dictator-ridden nations in creating gigantic military machines in a brief period of time, and reason that a form of dictatorship must be exerted here if the United States is to swiftly build its armed defense to the necessary level.

Anyone who believes that has forgotten or never knew the history of this country.
We have met great crises before—and we have met them as a free people. When emergency comes, all Americans —worker, capitalist, executive, farmer—forget their differences, and join their resources in the interest of the common good. And no dictator is needed.

That is happening in the present emergency. Big business men and little business men have pledged themselves to do all in their power to assure the swift completion of the defense

The Real Conquerors

REC MANNING

program. The great basic industries of this country—the railroads, the utilities, the steel companies, the machine makers—are prepared to do whatever is necessary to meet the exigencies of the future. They are prepared to cooperate with government to the limit, to the end that democracy may be perpetuated through democratic methods.

America has never had a dictator—and America doesn't need one now. Americans aren't robots, who must be treated like the cogs of a machine. Americans are individuals, determined to do the finest job they ever did in the interest of their country. Those who talk of the need for dictatorial powers to save democracy, of ruthless government domination of business and industry, would destroy our traditional way of life which has proved its strength in times of greatest danger. They would destroy the very thing they profess a desire to save, namely freedom and opportunity.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinner

Washington.—This is the story of two young men who have more "telephone numbers" than any young men I ever heard of.

The young men are L. W. Lawder and Edwin Rice, a couple of Washington boys who surely did make good with the national Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Here's how it was. The Jaycees, as they have copyrighted themselves, decided to hold their 1940 convention in Washington. The only check-in on success of previous conventions was a dearth of dates.

So the national president of these young business men overflowing with civic exuberance appointed Lawder and Rice to do something about dates.

As Lawder puts it: "It was up to us to see that no man came to the convention wanting a date for the social events who couldn't get one.
And man, was that an assignment!"

How To Do It

Here's the way it was done, according to Lawder (just in case you are having a convention for young men only and want a hint):
"Ed and I spent a couple of months trying to work out a plan that would get results. Finally we sat down and made a list of all the gals our friends knew who might be eligible for blind dates.

"When we got through we had a list of 60 girls. We invited all these girls to a party and put our problem in their hands. There wasn't a one who let us down. They went out and solicited the aid of all their friends and when the list was in we had more than 500 girls who were willing to pitch in and make the Jaycee convention a success.

"That was swell but that wasn't half enough so we turned next to the social organizations in the various departments. We went before their meetings, explained what we were up against and asked for volunteers. That way, we got 500 more girls.

"Every one of these filled our cards, listing their ages, heights, weights, coloring (blonde or brunette), their home towns and in many cases their preference in types of men.

"In two nights we have filled dates for 925 men. Those were for the dance one night and the boat ride on the Potomac the next night.
And the only complaints we have had are that some girls were too tall or too short, too chunky or too thin. Maybe it's strange, but we haven't had a complaint yet from any girl. Guess that speaks pretty well for the Jaycees, doesn't it?"

Few Complaints

Well, that's the story and in the midst of war and world confusion, some sort of conclusions should be drawn about the American way of life.

I sat in the Junior Chamber convention's "date bureau" in the Mayflower for a couple of hours and listened to the applicants and complainants. The latter were very few.

The former very numerous in spite of the fact that more than 900 already had been dated up for two big social events.

Here's one from Mobile, Ala., that was typical: "Boy, that little girl you fixed me up with last night was sure a lamb. Boy, was she sweet.
How about doing as well by me tonight?"

"If she was that all right, why didn't you get another date with her tonight?"
"Look here, man. I can't go taking chances like that. Two dates with a girl like that and I'd be getting serious. No sir, man, get me another date tonight and if she ain't so swell as that babe last night, it'll be all right with me. Whew!
I can't take chances like that every night."

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: The handsomest young man Ray has ever seen, a Gerald Beaufort, boot salesman of London, arrives on the post. Felicia Bridewell, the hostess, Colonel Pennant, the command-ing officer, Adam and Kay are still discussing the chaplain's case at lunch.

Chapter Four Felicia's Shopping

"HE WAS just leaving Field-stone Inn," continued the Colonel, "where he had dinner when he saw a man walking along the road and stopped to ask him how far it was to Fort Michigan. The man said ten miles, and that he was going there him-self, so Henry told him to get in. Unfortunately he didn't get a good look at the fellow's face—he had on a soft hat pulled down over his eyes and he didn't have much to say. Henry described him as a small man, short and rather slender. They had covered about nine miles when he pulled a gun and, a few minutes later, directed Henry to turn onto the dirt road back of the post."

"They ought to be able to trace the car," Gerald said reflectively. "Oh, they've found that. I had word just before noon—it was abandoned about twenty miles from here, between here and Chicago. It had been well driven, too—you see, the car was bought new in Chicago yesterday and driven directly here, so the troops knew just what the mileage reading should be, and it was almost exactly twenty miles short of three times what it should have been. If you follow me, in other words, the car could have been driven to Chicago from here, then back to the place where it was abandoned."

Felicia looked thoughtful. "Any clues in the car?"

"None. The luggage was gone—it was empty as when he bought it; and there wasn't a fingerprint in the car, not even Henry's. It must have been gone over carefully and wiped clean by the thief, who probably had to pull some very unsavory job in Chicago last night." The colonel's face darkened. "If it's one of my men I'll get him if it takes until Christmas."

Gerald leaned forward and looked at the older man in some surprise.

"What makes you think it's one of your men, sir? Surely that doesn't follow?"

"Only because this incident so closely resembles one that preceded it, one which we have good reason to believe involved some-one on the post."

He went on to tell them of the affair of the taxicab, which I had heard from Adam that morning.

"The presence of that regimental insignia in the cab is rather good proof," he concluded. "Pleasant thought, observed Felicia brightly. "A gangster right on the post with us, Immerman, that's the second desert you've brought Miss Cornish; and with all deference to her taste and her figure, I can't believe she wants two helpings of bread pudding."

But Gerald was still pursuing the subject.
"And you say, sir, that the taxi driver was also—er, divested of his clothing? What a beastly criminal! You'd think one might at least leave a garment or, what I mean to say—at least his boots. Man is so helpless in bare feet."

"Probably the idea exactly," said Adam. "Wonder they weren't put permanently out of the way."
"That's so, too. Can't have been very desperate, eh? Just in a hurry." Gerald Beaufort paused, a serious gleam in the gray eyes.
"I say, sir, did they get away with all the poor chaplain's belongings—uniforms and all?"
"Everything. He was in civilian clothes, but he had a small trunk full of his uniforms and accoutrements in the back of the car. Even a full outfit of the new blues—damned expensive. I can tell you. And of course they can't be sold for a fraction of their cost—pure vandalism."

The fringed gray eyes were dreamy.

'Too Attractive'

"MUST ask when I can see him. Bit of business, what? Boots, belts. Must see what I can do for him."

Mrs. Bridewell pushed back her chair.
"Bit of business for me, too," she remarked tartly, giving the Englishman a withering glance of which he seemed happily un-conscious. "I'm a good shopper if I do say it, and he sounds helpless."

She rose, put down her napkin. "Boots and belts, indeed!" she said scornfully. "What he needs is shirts and shorts, and I'm the one to see that he gets them with what money he has left."

Five minutes later, having of-
ing, she turned her back on the rest of us who had dropped lazily into easy chairs on the veranda and, her spike heels tap-tapping across the polished floor of the lounge, made for the guest wing. She was not a tall woman, but her slenderness and the slim perfection of her navy-blue slacks and shirt made her appear so. Her hair, which she wore always in sculptured ringlets, was uniformly gray; but looking at her now, at the fast smoothness of her bare arms and the spring of her step, I doubted if she was forty.

To my considerable annoyance, Gerald Beaufort sprang to his feet and pursued her, after only the most perfunctory excuse.

"Too bad," said Adam, eyeing me sympathetically. "Losing the old grip."

"You mind your own business."

"Very pretty, Girlish Rush."

"And don't be a fool. But I say again what I've said before: that Felicia Bridewell is altogether too attractive a woman to be hostess for a crowd of bachelors. It's—why it's—"

"Go on, say it," urged Adam, grinning. "I've heard you on he subject."

"And together we chanted—
"It's downright unfair!"

Adam had gone back to duty, and I had retired to my rooms with every intention of doing some work when I discovered that I was out of cigarettes. I do my heaviest smoking when I am at work; and, like most writers I can seize on the smallest excuse to postpone the final, evil moment of facing a blank sheet of paper.

Insignia

I ALMOST collided with Felicia Bridewell in the corridor. She was dressed for the city and carrying a suit box, and for a moment I thought she was annoyed to see me. But the annoyance proved to be for her errand.
"They've sent me the wrong girdle. They were having a big sale of them yesterday at Mar-shall Field's, and I'm afraid the kind I want will be sold out, so I have to go back."

"I should go into Chicago and collect some unfinished mail to scripts," I said, pursuing another excuse for idleness. "I didn't expect to have time to work when I came."

"I'll let you know when I go again," she promised. "I've got to call up a friend tonight, and I may be late getting back."

I said, "O.K. Drop me at the Post Exchange, will you?"
She gave me the box to hold while she unlocked her cell of the long garage behind the club and backed out her Ford coupe.

"Do you mind just keeping that on your lap?" she suggested as I climbed in. "The lock of the lug-gage compartment sticks—that's another thing I have to see about today. I don't know why I don't just move into Chicago and com-mute out there."

She hesitated. There's that poor soul of a chaplain, too, without any clothes. Suppose I ought to offer to get him some panies, at least. Won-der what size he wears."

She stopped in front of the Post Exchange and I got out.

"I believe I'll stop by the hospi-tal," she said. There was a wicked gleam in her eye. "It will be worth it just to see his face. Perfectly strange female popping in and demanding to know what size shorts he wears."

With little persuasion I would have rejoined her in the car, but she waved her hand in casual farewell, said, "I'll tell you about it," and the little car shot away from the curb.

There was only one clerk in sight in the salesroom and he was waiting on a soldier. I drifted over that way. There was a tray full of assorted metal insignia on the counter between them. In his hand the soldier held a little pin formed in the shape of sabers crossed below the number of the regiment.

"A pair of these," he was saying. "I gave a couple to my girl. You know what suckers women are for this stuff."

I laid a dollar bill and a quarter on the counter and asked for a carton of cigarettes. The clerk turned, reached a practiced hand to the shelf, and suddenly the trayful of insignia was scattered all over the floor. The soldier knelt down with his back to me and began to collect them with fumbling fingers; but it was not until I was nearly home that I realized why that had seemed a familiar sight.

The soldier was Immerman, the waiter at the club. Immerman was still on my mind as I combed my hair up on top of my head and put on a long-skirted or-gandie dress. Adam must have come in late that night, for he had not stopped in for a cigarette and a chat as he sometimes did.

I went into the lounge early, hoping for a word with him alone, but he and Gerald Beaufort were together in the bar, waxing friendly over cocktails. I declined their invitation to join them and settled myself on the veranda with a magazine, hoping Adam would join me presently. For some reason which I could not explain, I was reluctant to tell of that incident at the Post Ex-change in front of Gerald.

marle at 10:30 Saturday morning, with a parade extending to the park. At noon there will be a barbecue dinner for invited guests. At 2:30 McNutt will do his dedicating.

North Carolina's No. 1 speaker, as well as citizen, Governor Clyde R. Hoey, will be present, as well as many other notable such as Representative "Farmer Bob" Doughton and State WPA Administrators W. P. McGinnis.

There seems to be no holding of any event nowadays without selec-tion of a queen, and the park dedi-cation will be no exception. Besides that there will be a water carnival, an archery exhibition, a swimming and diving exhibition and a forest fire control demonstration. Judge R. R. Ingraham, Albemarle is chairman of the committee which did all this arranging.

Incidentally, the way to get to Morrow Mountain is by taking Route 27. It's about 40 miles east of Charlotte and within easy reach by motor of Greensboro, High Point and other cities of the Piedmont.

Thomas W. Morse, superintendent of state parks, was an enthusiastic when he talks about Morrow Moun-tain park:

"It isn't just another playground."

With upraised arm, Rep. Joe Martin (right) acknowledged cheers as he took over the permanent chairmanship of the Republican na-tional convention at Philadelphia. At the left is Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who had served as temporary chairman. Martin, house minority leader from Massachusetts, will use that gavel in Stassen's hand to pound the way to a platform decision and a presidential candidate.

he says, "but a vast area in which hundreds of thousands of care orn individuals may commune with na-ture, relax from routine life and find many forms of outdoor recreation to build up their bodies and refresh their minds."

When he speaks of "vast area," Morse is right by comparison with all other state parks. Morrow Mountain is by far the largest.

It includes 4,136 acres in the Uw-harrie mountains. Most of its acre-age was donated by public spirited citizens, who gave 1,220 acres including the mountain itself. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morrow of Albemarle made the biggest single contribution—1,060 acres. Stanly county chipped in with 1,381 acres, while 1,535 acres were bought with a special appropriation authorized by the general assembly.

Morrow Mountain's recreational area is centered at its 240,000 gallon swimming pool with a modern bath house, seats for spectators, a chil-dren's wading pool and a sun bath-ing area. The WPA built them. There is a road system of six miles built by the CCC and the state highway department. Three large parking areas, 20 miles of fire and truck trails and stone entrance gate were built by WPA.

A mobile operating theater for dealing with brain surgery has been prepared for the British army at the front.

Texas fish hatcheries produced more than 5,000,000 fish last year and the state expects to double production in 1940.

Goldsboro Continues To Retain Jinx Over Greenies

HAMILTON TEAM SCORES 11-6 WIN IN ALL-STAR GAME

TAKE 'HEADER FROM LOCALS

Ladies Night To Be Observed Here Tonight

The Goldsboro team continues to retain its jinx over Rube Wilson's Greenies and last night took both ends of a double-header the first 10-1 and the second 1-0.

The Greenies will have another opportunity to break the magic spell held by the Bucs tonight, however, when one inning of a protested game will be run off and the two teams will compete in the regular scheduled contest.

The second game of a double-header with Goldsboro on June 18 Umpire Tom Hanna called the game at the end of the sixth with Goldsboro leading 3-0. Greenville protested that the game was called before the deadline of 11:50 for starting and inning and the protest was sustained and ordered resumed at the seventh inning. Only one inning will be played since the game had been billed as a seven-inning affair.

The fans will get another break tonight, the local management having decreed "Ladies' Night."

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair; 80, good.

1. Who is this youngster who set new shot put records and what university did he represent?
2. What horse won the Santa Anita Handicap and why was his victory particularly important?
3. Which league won the spring All-Star baseball game in Florida?
4. Who did Joe Louis fight in February and March and what were the results?
5. Who won the National A.A.U. handball championship?

Sports Exam Answers

1. Al Biazio of Georgetown University.
2. Seabiscuit. It was important because Seabiscuit, in a comeback, won $86,650 and became the biggest money winner in turf history with total earnings of $437,730.
3. The National league, 2-1.
4. Louis outpointed Arturo G. G. in February in 15 rounds and knocked out Johnny Paycheck in March in two rounds.

Potts of Blount-Harvey Team Credited With Win

Team Number Two, headed by Hamilton of the Pepsi Cola entry in the softball loop, last night defeated Team Number One, managed by Dudley of the Double Cola boys by the score of 11-6.

The Number Two team, picked as second best, overcame the one run scored by the Dudley team by making three in their half and never relinquished the lead.

Paul singled for the Number One team, advanced on an error and a passed ball and came home on Hatten's single. Second team got their three on successive singles by Hobgood, E. Waldrop and Williams and an infield out.

Neither team was able to score again until the fourth, when the second team got two on Potts, Griffin and Bryson. First team made two in the fifth when Aycock singled. Armstrong was safe on an error, but was retired when Brewer reached first on a fielder's choice, with both men scoring on an error. Hamilton's team more than matched the two by scoring three on hits by Hobgood, Cosart and Williams, the last coming home on an infield out. The team added two more in the sixth. Griffin singled but was out when Brewer reached first on a fielder's choice and scored on Hamilton's double. Hamilton reached home on an error. The winners' final tally came in the eighth when Phillips homered, the only four bagger of the evening.

The Dudley team made their final two runs in the seventh. Aycock and Armstrong, the first two up, drew walks. Armstrong went out at second with Brewer getting on via a fielder's choice. Both Aycock and Brewer scored but that was all allowed to reach home.

Hark! A G.O.P. Free-For-All

Temper flared and 'tis even said some fists flew in a free-for-all fight that broke out on the floor of the Republican convention in Philadelphia during the demonstration for Wendell Willkie after his name was placed in nomination for the presidency. The battle centered on efforts of some Willkie followers to snatch the New York state standard and place it in the Willkie parade. The Willkie men and disciples of Candidate Thomas E. Dewey are shown struggling for possession of the standard. The delegation chairman finally decided to let the Willkie boys carry the standard.

MOSQUITOES

Keep Waking Up Baby?

Here's what to do. Before baby's bedtime, close nursery windows and doors. Use a good sprayer and fill the room with a mist of Bee Brand Insect Spray. When you go back, the only mosquitoes will be dead ones on the floor. Don't use other insecticides. It has no clean cedar fragrance that soon disappears. And Bee Brand really kills flies, mosquitoes and other flying insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use in the home. Insist on genuine, quick-killing Bee Brand Insect Spray—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 28.—(AP)—Nomination of Wendell L. Willkie as the Republican presidential standard bearer was credited by many in Wall Street today for one of the sprightliest stock market upswings of the month.

In fast dealings, with utilities in front, leaders bounded up one to more than four points at the start. Profit taking soon crept into the list and slowed the pace appreciably. Top marks consequently were substantially cut at the close. Transfers were around 1,200,000 shares.

Local Kiwanis Meets Tonight In Falkland

The regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club will be held tonight in the Falkland school building, with supper to be served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. C. H. Mayo is chairman of the committee in charge of the supper. The program will be in charge of the Kiwanis Education committee, composed of Chairman Dink James and C. D. Ward. The feature of the program will be a report by T. E. Wilson on the recent international Kiwanis convention held at Minneapolis.

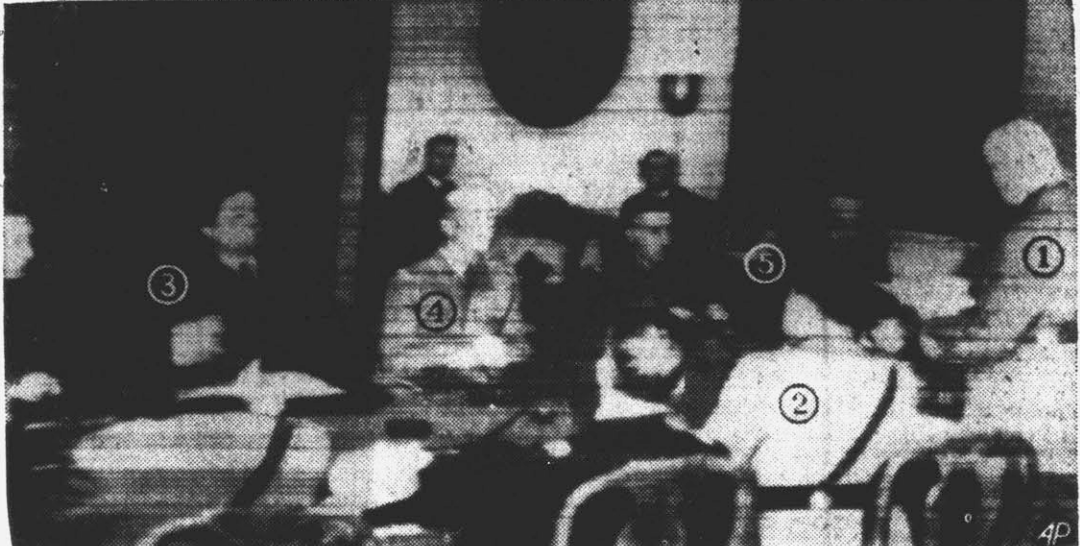

Members are requested to meet at the Proctor hotel at 8 o'clock and leave for Falkland in a body.

Willkie Does His "Quarterbacking" At Breakfast

Wendell Willkie, New York utility executive seeking the Republican presidential nomination at Philadelphia, does lots of his "quarterbacking" on vote-getting strategy at breakfast. And here's Willkie in a breakfast huddle with Governor William H. Vanderbilt (right) of Rhode Island talking over GOP affairs.

France Learns Italy's Armistice Terms

This radiophoto from Berlin shows the armistice conference of French and Italian delegates outside of Rome, June 23. The German caption said these French-Italian leaders were: (1) Gen. Mario Roatta, assistant chief of staff of the Italian army, reading the armistice terms. Italy's Foreign Minister Count Ciano is at Roatta's left (2). Leon Noel (3) sits across the table next to Charles Huntziger (4), both members of the French delegation. Rear Admiral Maurice LeLuc (5) also of the French delegation, is opposite Roatta.

Five Are Tried In ECTC Conference City Court Today

Five defendants faced trial at this morning's session of Municipal recorder's court.

Augustus Smith, colored, charged with disorderly conduct and assault on a female with a deadly weapon, was convicted only of simple assault and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

Herman Barrett, colored and Jack Rollins, white, were defendants in a case charging disorderly conduct and mutual assault with a deadly weapon. Barrett pleaded guilty and was given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon payment of a $10 fine and court costs. Rollins was convicted of assault and given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of a $10 fine and costs.

H. H. Harris, white, convicted of drunkenness, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Odie Grover Barfield, white, was convicted of careless and reckless driving and speeding and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of a $5 fine and court costs. The defendant's driving license was ordered suspended until he was paid the sum of $143 to A. E. Hobgood for property damages sustained in a traffic collision.

Pays Penalty For Slaying Of Wife

Raleigh, June 28.—(AP)—The State executed Lee Flynn, 44, of McDowell county today for the murder of his wife.

Flynn was the first McDowell county person executed since hangings at the county seat were abandoned in 1910.

The man had confessed his crime, saying he was arguing with his wife about her conduct and lost his temper. Evidence at his trial was that he dragged his wife into his yard, told his seven-year-old daughter to come and "kiss your mama goodbye" and then shot her through the head.

Shelprose Holland of Duplin county is the only man on death row who now has his death date set. He is scheduled to die August 16 for the murder of his stepson.

The other six men now on death row include Leslie Howell, convicted of murder in Wayne county.

To Add Defense Tax To Theatre Tickets

Theatre-goers will feel the effect of the huge national defense bill effective Monday, according to an announcement today by T. Y. Walker, local theatre manager.

Mr. Walker said that the tax would not affect regular admission tickets at the State theatre, the levy applying only to tickets selling above 20 cents.

Persons purchasing adult matinee tickets to the Pitt theatre will pay an extra three cents defense tax and four cents will be added to tickets for evening performances.

Health Offices Open Each Wednesday p.m.

For the information of the public, Dr. Ennett, the local health officer, calls attention to the fact that the health department offices are open on Wednesday afternoons.

Not only is Wednesday afternoon a venereal disease clinic period, but is also a time when vaccination for typhoid fever, diphtheria, etc., is done.

Vaccinations are also done Saturday mornings, and the Greenville venereal disease clinic is open on Saturday morning from 8:30 to 11:30.

BOOM SEEN IN NEW BUILDING

Residential Construction Continues Fast Pace

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 28.—Continued boom in residential building kept North Carolina's building record for May from taking a sharp drop, it appears from figures just released by the Department of Labor's statistical division.

While non-residential construction, additions, alterations and repairs were slumping markedly both from May 1939 and from April of this year, residential building increased over the corresponding month of last year by 46.7 per cent in number of building and 88.5 per cent in estimated cost.

For May, including all types of building, there was an increase of 30.5 per cent in number of buildings, but a decrease of 21.5 per cent in estimated cost.

In tabular form, May, 1940; May, 1939, April, 1940, looked like this:

Residential Buildings
Number	May, 1940	May, 1939	Apr. 1940
Cost	$1,357,832	$720,235	$1,324,755
Non-Residential
Number	89	92	118
Cost	160,989	1,191,070	288,776
Alterations, Etc.
Number	388	304	414
Cost	271,888	368,740	404,764

Charlotte led the 21 cities of more than 10,000 population in all three classes of construction—residential, non-residential and alterations, etc. Among the smaller cities reporting to the Department of Labor, Hickory led all with an estimated expenditure of $50,450. Henderson took second place with a total of $78,850 and had the largest program for one-family dwellings. Hickory had the largest expenditure for non-residential construction.

From the 30 towns of from 2,500 to 10,000 reporting, there were permits issued with an estimated expenditure of $562,215. This included 127 new residential buildings estimated to cost $368,225, 20 non-residential buildings estimated to cost $144,290, and 61 permits for additions, alterations and repairs to cost $49,300.

From the larger cities the residential permits included 305 one-family dwellings to cost $1,073,422; 34 two-family dwellings to cost $100,460; 3 one-family or two-family dwellings with stores or shops therewith; and 19 multi-family dwellings to cost $175,350.

The 39 non-residential buildings were divided: 1 amusement and recreation place, $15,000; 5 churches, $17,400; 11 factories, bakeries, ice plants, laundries and other workshops, $27,275; 1 public garage, $3,000; 37 private garages separate from dwelling, $6,094; 9 gasoline and service stations, $37,635; 4 office buildings, $38,000; 7 schools, poultry houses, contractors' temporary offices, etc., $795; 10 stores and other mercantile buildings $14,490; 4 other non-residential, $1,300.

Americans spend about $600,000,000 a year on candy.

The Italian peninsula is eight times as long as its average width.

About 500,000 Italians live in New York City; 2,000,000 in the U. S.
