OF BLOCKADE
IN CARIBBEANHull Declares
American Nations
InvestigatingALL INFORMATION
IS BEING SOUGHTSecretary, However,
Neither Affirms Nor
Denies British Ships
Have Taken Up Station

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—Secretary Hull reported today that the American nations jointly were gathering all possible information on the reported British blockade of the French islands of Martinique, in the Caribbean.

While he continued neither to confirm nor to deny the reports that British warships had taken up station around the island, the Secretary of State told a press conference the reports were being studied in all phases in line with the hemisphere policy of continual consultation on all common economic, political and military problems. Such consultations, Hull asserted, are a means of defense against actual or threatened danger.

Asked whether this country in support of the Monroe Doctrine might call the reported blockade of Martinique to the attention of the British and French governments, Hull replied that American nations had not yet gathered full information on the situation.

The British and French embassies here said they had received no reports of a blockade of Martinique. One British official noted, however, that British ships had been cruising in the vicinity of the West Indies since the war began and asserted that their presence near Martinique would not indicate that a blockade had been set up.

Accidents Result
In Civil Action

Two civil suits involving highway accidents, one inflicting injuries and the other death, were filed in Pitt Superior court yesterday.

Both plaintiffs are colored.

The plaintiff in each was represented by H. L. Swain of Williams.

Maggie Williams, administratrix for her late husband, Cullie Williams, is suing H. Glenn Norman of Martin county for $15,000. The complaint alleges that the Williams was traveling along the Parnell-Bethel highway on May 4, 1940, when he was struck and killed by an automobile operated by one of defendant's agents. It claims that the truck was being driven in a careless and reckless manner, at a fast rate of speed, with insufficient brakes and lights.

The other suit was filed in behalf of Daniel Morning vs. J. L. Gurganus and asks $2,500. The complaint alleges that while in the employ of the defendant, Morning was thrown from a truck owned by the defendant and operated by one of his agents. It claims that the truck suddenly started off, throwing the defendant to the ground and that one or more of the truck wheels ran over him, inflicting injuries to the head, spine, leg and foot.

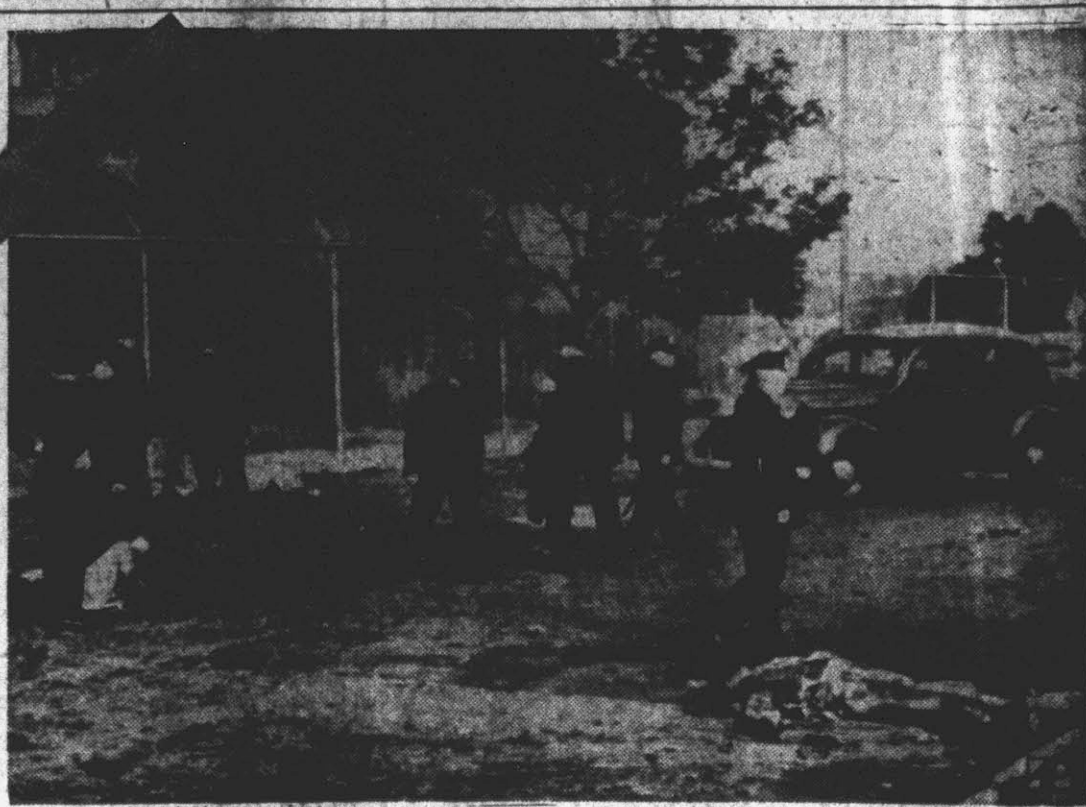

Pitt War Benefit
Fund Is Now $972

Contributions to the Red Cross war relief fund exceeding $200 from both the Grimesland and Pactolus communities, combined with a local donation, today elevated the amount to $972.67 as compared with $919.42, contributions through yesterday.

Mrs. C. J. Satterthwaite turned in $20.75 in contributions from the Pactolus community, but did not list the individual contributors. F. Badger Johnson, Jr., contributed $5 and Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker, chairman of the Grimesland drive, reported the following contributions from her community:

Jesse Hardee, 50 cents; Willie A. Hudson, $1; J. B. Tucker, $1; Harvey Stokes, $1; Clarence Stokes, $1; Mr. Porter, $1; Mrs. Ernest McGowan, $1; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Mills, $2; Mrs. S. T. Porter, 25 cents; Jodie Chapman, Negro, 25 cents; Oscar Hardee, $1; Mrs. H. L. Lewis, $1; Miss Oma Blis Lewis, $1; cash, $1. Red Banks Home Demonstration Club, $5; Robert Mills, 50 cents; Mrs. J. R. Mills, 50 cents; Leo Hawkins, $2; Mrs. E. H. Boyd, $1; L. T. Hardee, $1; Mrs. H. B. Hardee, $1; Mr. Marshander, 50 cents; B. J. Edwards, 50 cents; Bob Edwards 50 cents; Mrs. Johnnie May, 25 cents; Snodie Arnold, $1 and H. H. Porter, $1.

Bomb Kills Two, Wounds Five At World's Fair

Two police detectives were killed and five other persons were injured by the explosion of a bomb shortly after it had been removed from the British Pavilion at the New York World's fair. Three of the victims are shown lying on the ground just after the blast. Their position and condition indicate the terrific force and searing heat of the explosion.

From 250 To 300 To
Be Here for Quarterly
Session

42—FIREMEN—Sherwood Brockwell, Raleigh, State fire marshal, will deliver the principal address in the city hall. The general session will be preceded by a barbecue dinner to be held in Harris-Rogers warehouse.

Mayor Jack Spain will welcome firemen and fire chiefs from the 23 Eastern Carolina towns to be represented at the meeting. Remarks of welcome also will be extended by J. Nat Harrison, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and Dave Mosier, president of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Jerome B. Flora of Elizabeth City, president of the North Carolina League of Municipalities and former president of the State Firemen's Association, will offer the response.

Greenville firemen will play host to the visitors at the dinner to be held at 7:15 o'clock.

George Summerlin of Mount Olive is president of the East Carolina Firemen's Association and will be on hand for the program. Fire Chiefs of several large Eastern towns and cities have expressed their intention of attending the meeting.

This will be the first quarterly meeting of the Eastern firemen held in Greenville in five years.

Business Outlook For Summer
Babson Says It Is Armaments
Versus Peace

Manchester, N. H., July 5.—Business activity in the next two months should constantly improve as a whole, although some lines and localities will suffer due to European conditions. Statistics show that business is picking up every day, unemployment is declining, and there is a much better spirit among all business men. With newspapers full of uncertainties regarding wars, national conventions, and other depressing items, it is a relief to focus one's attention on the good news coming from the domestic front.

The outlook for the next few weeks is tied up with the defense program and the European war. The best authorities say, "the war will last three to five months or three to five years, but they refuse to say which." Huge British orders (which include the former French orders) plus America's own armament program should, however, keep the heavy industries rolling in high speed for some time to come. On the other hand, if the European war ceases before the American defense program can get well under way there may be a temporary setback. Yet, before the end of the year, business should be far better in this country than it is now.

Says 3-Year Control
Would Insure
Prices

Clinton, July 6.—(AP)—Flue cured tobacco growers must make their choice among three courses in a crop control referendum July 20. J. B. Hutson, assistant AAA administrator, told farmers and business men at a mass meeting here today. He outlined the alternatives as:

1. No control, a consequent summer crop and rock-bottom prices on a glutted market.

One-year control, which would result in a 10 per cent reduction of marketing quotas and a probable drop in the price average of 14.8 cents a pound established last year.

3. Three-year control with no reduction in quotas next year and prices probably at least as high as 14.8 cents.

If three-year control is adopted quotas could be doubled or trebled if the tobacco export trade, crippled by foreign wars, is revived, Hutson said.

A recent amendment to the federal farm act prevents the reduction of quotas by more than 10 per cent, he added.

"However," he said, "allotments can and will be increased if the demand for tobacco increases; if we are able to regain some of our lost foreign markets; and when we reduce our present surplus of tobacco."

Hutson was scheduled to speak in Smithfield at another mass meeting this afternoon.

$15,000 Civil Action
Is Withdrawn In Pitt

The $15,000 alienation of affections suit filed in Pitt Superior Court recently by W. D. Clark against Edward Morris of Tyrrell county has been compromised. It was revealed at the clerk's office today.

No details of any possible compromise were available, since no record was filed, the suit merely having been withdrawn so far as the official documents show.

WILL QUESTION
ALIENS IN U. S.

Set Of Questions May
morrow

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A thorough-going effort by the government to discover the fundamental attitude of resident aliens toward the United States was indicated today with the disclosure that immigration officials may draft tomorrow a set of questions to be asked the foreigners.

Under a law signed by President Roosevelt a week ago the nation's 3,600,000 aliens must register and be fingerprinted during a four months period beginning September 1. The law sets forth certain basic questions to be asked of each one at the time of registration.

These questions which must be answered under oath will furnish basic information, such as the date and place of entry of the alien into this country, the activities in which he has been and intends to be engaged, the length of his stay and his criminal record, if any.

Other questions have been studied for several weeks. One of them may be designed to disclose what organizations the aliens have been affiliated with.

Effort To Blast
Plant Is Thwarted

Baton Rouge, La., July 6.—(AP)—Three men carrying four sticks of dynamite were surprised as they attempted to enter the grounds of the Dupont Ethyl plant near Baton Rouge last night.

Sheriff Newman Debetton said the men escaped, leaving the dynamite behind them. Searchers found evidence of fresh digging at the base of a fence around the plant. The dynamite was found just inside.

The sheriff ordered an extensive search. Bloodhounds were being used.

The huge storage tanks, which contain finished tetraethyl lead, are girded in high grade gasoline, are near the point where the men apparently attempted to enter the plant.

Belvoir - Falkland
Teachers At Meet

Chapel Hill, July 6.—The Belvoir-Falkland school of Pitt county is represented by two teachers in the rural workshop, a new type of rural school laboratory recently set up by the University Summer school.

These representatives are: H. H. Deaton, principal, and Miss Marquerite Rogerson, seventh grade teacher, both of whom are doing intensive work in the field of home-school-community relationships. One of the six major study groups, Mr. Deaton is chairman of this group and Miss Rogerson is secretary.

One hundred rural teachers and principals are working together in this thorough-going study of rural education. They work in small groups, pooling their research and experiences in attacking the various problems they face in their own schools. There are twenty-three separate work groups.

Pittman And Other
Senators Back
Hull's Stand

AROUSSED OVER
GERMANY'S NOTE

Nazi Action Seen As Attempt To Justify
Any Possible Future
Violation Of Monroe Doctrine

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A charge that Germany is laying the foundation for a challenge to the Monroe Doctrine came today from Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) following Secretary Hull's declaration that the United States would uphold the Doctrine.

Aroused by a German note rejecting America's interpretation of the policy as "intenable," Pittman and other Senators seconded Hull in his assertion that it remains a "basic policy" of this government to prevent "aggression" in the Western hemisphere.

Well-informed circles viewed the Secretary's statement as one of a series of apparently coordinated administration efforts to reassure other American republics in advance of the Pan-American conference in Havana.

Other developments regarded in the same light included:

1—A State Department notice to the German embassy that German officials in this country must refrain from public criticism of the government.

2—President Roosevelt's denunciation of compromise and appeasement sentiment and his contrast of American and "totalitarian" methods.

3—Secretary Hull's statement that the reciprocal trade program remains a fixed policy and that the "only alternative, especially after the war, would be the destructive force of totalitarian autocracy."

Congressional reaction followed the same line. Denying any German implication that the United States is meddling in Europe, Pittman told reporters that such a charge "may have been made as a justification for a future violation of the Monroe Doctrine."

If such a violation is attempted said Sen. Connally (D-Tex.), "we are prepared to defend it with all of our resources." Connally is a member of the Foreign Relations committee headed by Pittman.

Rites Sunday For
Fountain Citizen

J. R. Tugwell, prominent farmer and well-known citizen who spent his entire life in the Fountain community, died suddenly at his home at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. He was 77 years of age.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. H. M. Wilson in charge, assisted by Rev. C. B. Marshburn, both Farmville ministers.

Mr. Tugwell is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mattie Moore Tugwell; three sons, W. D. Tugwell of Aberdeen, J. R. Tugwell of Fountain and L. S. Tugwell of New York city; two daughters, Mrs. B. L. Phillips of Fountain and Mrs. S. M. Plana of Farmville; one half-sister, Mrs. Watt Parker of Farmville.

Methodist Pastor
Kiwanis Speaker

The Rev. T. McM. Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, speaking to members of the Greenville Kiwanis Club in a regular meeting last night, told the Kiwanians that organized German espionage rather than the powerful blitzkrieg accounted for Nazi victories.

Rev. Grant cited concrete examples of German "fifth column" activities of countries now under its subjugation and after admitting faults of the English, told the Kiwanians that "the peace we have enjoyed for a century is an English peace." He approved American aid to England with supplies, but not with men.

Last night's program was in charge of Dave Moore Jr., Tom Wilson and Charles Wilkerson. Harold McDougall was assisted in leading the singing by Bennett Moseley, Ed Batchelor, Dr. R. S. Boyd and D. H. Conley. The singers were accompanied by Mrs. Ray Tyson. An attendance prize went to Betty Bostic.

May Erect Structure

tamuskeet

Raleigh, July 6.—(AP)—The Highway Department has virtually concluded a survey on the possibility of constructing a hard surface road across Lake Mattamuskeet, federal refuge for migratory birds, Governor Hoey revealed today.

Purpose of the survey, the governor said, is to determine whether a road could be built across the six-mile wide lake and the approximate cost of the construction.

If the Highway department decides that the route is feasible and if the cost is not prohibitive, the federal government will be asked for permission to construct the road. The WPA then would be asked for funds to help defray expenses.

Four Willkie Views Found
In State's Capital City

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, July 6.—Sufficient time has now elapsed since the G. O. P. nominated Wendell Willkie to present something like an accurate roundup of sentiment on Raleigh's Capitol Hill, where the "boys" have of late been diverted from their favorite State politics to consideration of the national scene.

There are to be found three very distinct schools of thought, with a fourth composed somewhat of a mixture of those belonging to the other three.

First, there is the majority sentiment that the Willkie-McNary ticket is a good one, and that if it is elected the country will have a virile American administration. Not many in this group will admit that Willkie will win, though, it is evident some of them think he will, or that some of them think he will, or

Arrives In Berlin Following Conquest
Of The West

Berlin, July 6.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler arrived at Anhalter station at 2:58 p. m. (7:58 a. m. EST.) today on a triumphal home-coming from his conquest in the West.

Berlin was ablaze with celebration.

Church bells pealed. Bands and orchestras played on every street corner.

From the railway station to the chancellery all the streets were packed with Germans shouting a welcome to their fuhrer.

Hitler climbed into an automobile and started on his triumphal journey through his capital.

All Nazi district leaders, all available admirals and high army officers stood along a red carpet beside Hitler's train.

Youth organizations in the station raised a tremendous din with bugle and drum corps and shouting.

A few minutes after he arrived at the chancellery, Hitler appeared on the balcony alone and smiled at the crowd below him. The crowd sang the popular war song "We Are Sailing Against England."

Hitler did not speak, merely smiling acknowledgement of the vociferous welcome.

Fear Battle Off
Coast Of Morocco

Valencia, Spain, July 6.—(AP)—Fishermen from Alcoy hurriedly put into this port today, alarmed by evidence of what appeared to be a battle between naval vessels and planes off the French Moroccan coast.

The fishermen said they had seen a large number of airplanes flying over a squadron of warships of uncertain nationality and that they had heard heavy explosions indicating fighting was going on.

The second class is composed of Democrats and New Dealers who welcome a clearcut issue. This school sees Willkie as the very personification of Big Business. Spokesmen (self-appointed, of course) of this group say this is the first time the real bosses of the Republican party have been honest and daring enough to come out in the open. They contend that the issue is not quite simple—shall the American people be handed over, bound and gagged, to Big Business or shall the government continue to be administered for the good of the ordinary, everyday citizen. They predict renomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

BRITISH SHIPS

Despite Determination
Not To Allow
French Fleet to Fall
Into Hands Of Axis
Navies Strong Units
Said to Have Reached
Base Of Toulon;
Destroyer Reported
Sunk

By The Associated Press
Britain's resolve that the French fleet shall not be added to the axis navies pitted against her led today to another British-French fight in the Mediterranean, while France declared strong units had reached the safety of her great naval base on the Mediterranean, Toulon.

A dispatch from Vichy, seat of the French government, said the 1,378-ton French destroyer Frondeur went down off the island of Crete under fire of British warships. The vessel was running for a home port under terms of the German-French armistice. A French gunboat was reported torpedoed off Algiers.

But, said a Toulon dispatch, the 26,500-ton French battleship Strasbourg, presumably the one of that class which escaped the fight with the British at Mers el-Kehir, had arrived at Toulon. With her, the dispatch said, had arrived gunboats, a number of destroyers, gunboats, and submarines.

The French Naval Ministry informed Berlin that in view of naval strife with Britain, the French naval bases in the Mediterranean would not be disarmed.

Thus, in effect, the French navy was divided against itself. Some units still were under sway of the British fleet in Alexandria harbor, others were in British ports, firm in the possession of Britain. The Toulon units apparently were set to resist any British attempts to take them.

German and Britain lacked at one another from the air.

The German high command said a British submarine had been sunk in the North sea and oil tanks at Plymouth were fired by aerial bombardment.

Britain said her Royal Air Force bombed German landing fields and naval bases yesterday and during the night.

At Cairo, the British air force reported successful raids on Italian bases in Africa.

The Italian high command declared British land attacks were repulsed in northern Africa.

Britain, mustering man power against invasion, called another class of conscripts to the colors, bringing a total of 3,000,000 men under arms in the United Kingdom.

Activity Reports
Asked Of Bund

Washington, July 6.—(AP)—A bill to require the German-American Bund, the Communist party and similar organizations to report their activities to the attorney general got a "clear track" signal in the Senate today as congressional leaders were rounding out a program tightening restrictions on aliens.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) announced that a Senate Judiciary subcommittee would call G. Wilhelm Kunze, New York bund leader, when it begins hearings Monday on a House measure requiring registration of political organizations substantially controlled or directed by a foreign power.

To Observe Lord's Supper.
All Presbyterians in the city and their friends are invited to attend the observance of the Lord's Supper next Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church. This church observes the supper quarterly, the first of January, April, July and October. Dr. Boyd has returned from Montreal, N. C., where he attended the General Assembly's Educational Association for the past week, and will give the communion meditation and administer the elements. The hour is 11 o'clock.

Normally this is an occasion for heart-searching by all who profess to be Christians and seek to follow the Saviour; but these are times that urge every professed lover of Jesus Christ to humble himself and seek God's grace and favor for a world in the clutches of sin. Truly all need to humble themselves and pray, that God may heal our land.

Sunday School at Meadowbrook at 9:45 a. m., and at Hollywood at 2:30 p. m. Preaching services at Meadowbrook Chapel at 8:00 p. m. Dr. Boyd will speak. The community and friends are invited to all these services.

AP Feature Service
Indianapolis.—Why Brother, Inc., makes money by doing just that for customers who don't want to. Richard T. Miskimen, 29, president, secretary-treasurer and all the vice presidents, calls the new business a "thoroughly diversified personal service."

His prospectus, on the kind of fine bond paper ordinarily reserved for wedding invitations, tells just how diversified. Why Brother offers, for a price, to:

Shop, mail Christmas cards, sit up with baby, put the cat out or mow the grass;

Answer the telephone, remind you of a luncheon date, meet a train or hold your place in line outside a crowded moving picture theater;

Get you a servant, an errand boy, a ticket to a show, a ticket to Oshkosh, publicity, flowers or a drink; and Plan a party or write you a speech.

"We will be happy to do, and will do," the letter sweepingly sums up "anything for you at any time."

Miskimen, a University of Illinois man and an ex-newspaper reporter, says his friends forced him into business.

"I got tired of doing things for people and not getting paid for it," he explains. He has a one-room office, a full-time stenographer, an errand boy, unemployed college men and some 20 servants on call.

Miskimen's biggest job was rubbing out a woodpecker that was waking up a suburban neighborhood every daybreak. A man with a shotgun went out three mornings before he killed the bird. The fee was $2.

How does he like his work? "I'm havin' a riot?" Miskimen chuckles.

Two Pitt Robberies Under Investigation

Members of the Pitt county sheriff's office today were investigating two robberies, one of two large hams last night and the other of the Dixie sandwich shop in Winterville Thursday night.

The hams were stolen from the smokehouse on the farm of Joe Mays on the Falkland highway after the lock on the door had been broken. The hams were unusually large, weighing 40 or 45 pounds each, it was reported.

The Winterville sandwich shop has been the victim of robberies on frequent occasions. Only about $3, mostly in pennies, was reported missing from the shop. The place was entered after a brick had been thrown through the window.

YOUR MOTHER Scorned!

We're going back to barbarism! "The Mortal Storm" spares no one—not even defenseless parents and innocent children. All are treated as combatants and destroyed or shackled! For the incredible but factual truth see this electrifying picture starring Margaret Sullivan, James Stewart, Robert Young, Frank Morgan. Coming to the Pitt Wednesday and Thursday.

The 'Most Tempting Air Target'

EARLY in the Christian era, a busy little mercantile city grew up on the Thames. Native Celts called it "Llyn-din" or "lake fort." Tacitus wrote it "London-ium."

London became the world's largest city (pop. 8,500,000), heart of an empire embracing one-fourth the earth and its inhabitants.

The last invaders were William's Normans in 1066. In the next 900 years of insular security, the empire arose. Men like Shakespeare, Raleigh, the Bacons, Gladstone walked London's crooked streets. Napoleon was crushed; London's Trafalgar lions (one at left) became Empire symbols.

Today, London's miles of docks; communication lines are broad targets for war's new dimension—airpower, bombers. Here are sights of London:

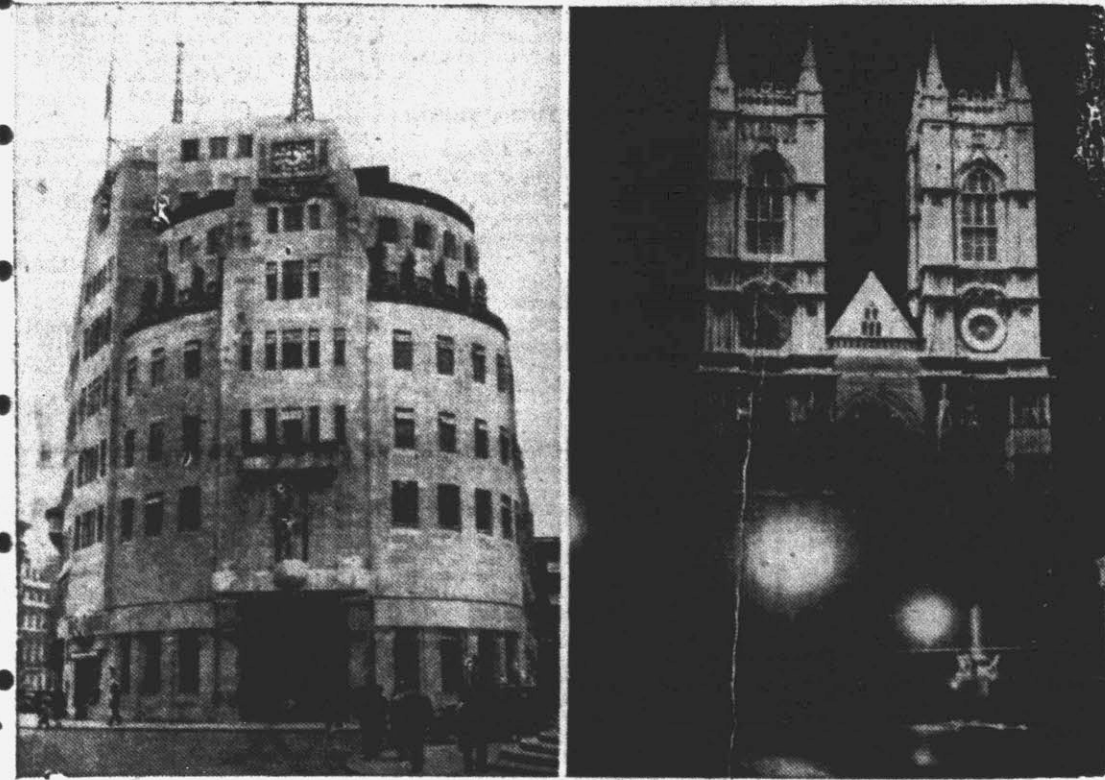

MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS meets in this big building on the banks of the Thames under 318-foot Clock Tower and its "Big Ben."

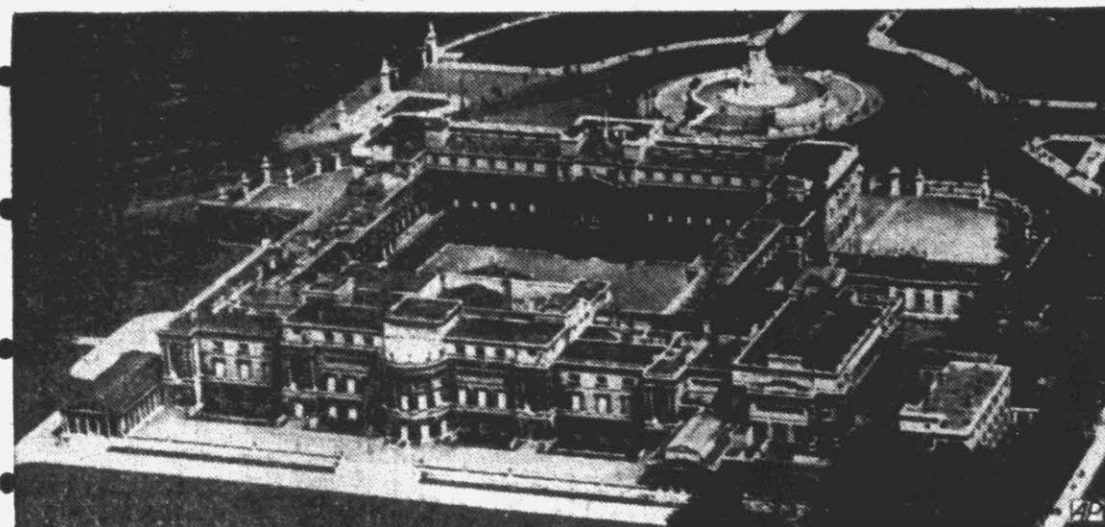

TRAFALGAR SQUARE—tribute to Nelson and his crushing defeat of Napoleon's sea power in 1805. Nelson's 17½-foot statue (above) stands 170 feet above heart of London. Current events recall his historic order before that battle over Gibraltar: "England expects that every man will do his duty."

MOTHER CITY OF LARGEST EMPIRE

MODERN BUILDINGS dot London, like OLD LANDMARKS are cherished. Kings this of government - controlled British get crowns, also graves in old Westminster Abbey.

KING'S HOUSE—Buckingham—has been royal residence since Victoria's day. King's family lives in left wing. Regimental band plays in front daily at 10:30 a. m. for the changing of the guard.

THE TOWN'S DARK SIDE

FOGS, SLUMS are part of London tradition. Nature's blackout (above) was snapped in mid afternoon last September. Ancient, damp dwellings (below) furnish housing problem. Few homes, however rich, have modern central heating.

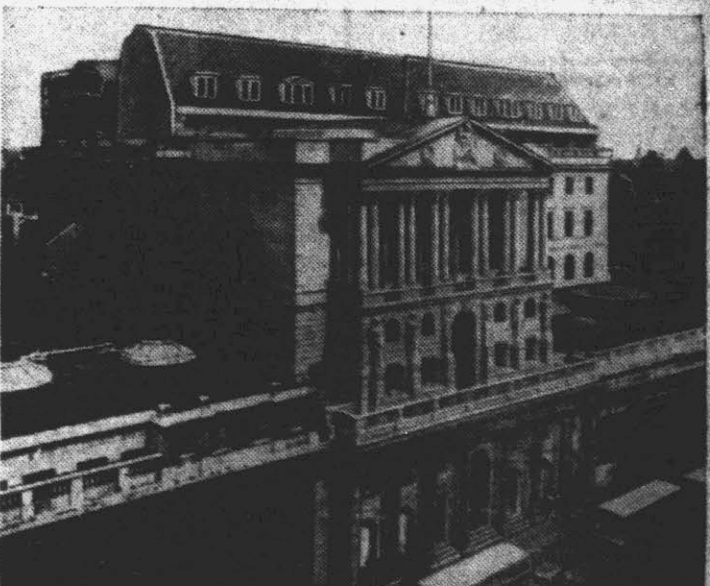

CENTER OF WORLD'S COMMERCE

The Port of London (world's largest) in peacetime handles more than two billion dollars worth of goods—62,000,000 tons annually. The five dock systems extend 69 miles, from the city to the sea.

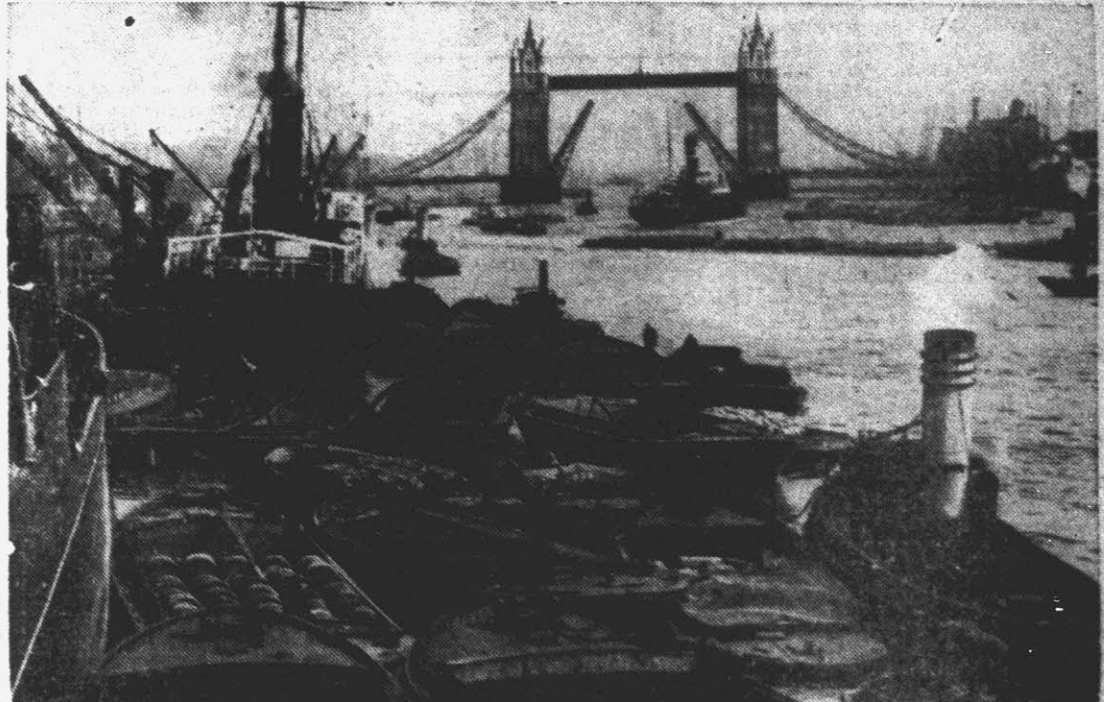

Here, the 10,000 merchant vessels of the Empire, steamers to windjammers, are registered, insured, and oftentimes directed on their routes.

Ships' holds disgorge all manner of cargo from all seas. Thus London's marts fix the prices for most of mankind's needs.

"No other target in the world compares with London for potentialities of destruction" says the recently published "Handbook of War."

OLD LADY of Threadneedle Street (Bank of England, founded 1694) is private bank, handles national debt, banks other banks.

TEN THOUSAND ships and big navy ply all seas for Empire and London. Here's busy waterfront. In background is Tower Bridge, near Tower of London, historic prison and execution spot.

LONDONERS HAVE THE QUAINTEST CUSTOMS

BEEF-EATERS (Yeomen) in scarlet dress regularly search Parliament's cellars since they nipped Fawke's Gunpowder Plot in 1605.

WAXWORDS of Mme. Tussaud is century-old effigy show.

HYDE PARK, right behind Buckingham Palace, is an open forum for citizens in peacetimes. Above a May Day demonstration.

LOYD'S Lutine Bell rings out news of ship losses to insurers.

FIRST CITIZENS of London, of Empire—King George and Queen Elizabeth—live in medieval splendor, parade for subjects.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRY LIGHTING A CANDLE

China has been suffering a great deal the past few years as the scourge of war has stamped the life of many of its people into the earth. What many do not realize is that Chinese leadership, driven from the seaboard, has led a great trek into the interior and has there set up a new and better empire.

One of the leaders of new China said to a friend of mine recently, "I had rather light a candle in the darkness than to curse the darkness." There he is, far from the surroundings amid which he was born and reared, and he prides himself that his daily task is to hold aloft one lighted candle that men may find their way through the darkness.

Many people curse the darkness. They say it is unjust. They accuse God of being either weak or heedless in a world where evil often prevails over good. But there are others who light a candle and hold it high above their heads. They are not able to do much, perhaps, but at the midnight hour they can keep their faith, they can be cheerful, they can be courageous; and this helps to light others along the path-way and save them from precipice.

Cursing never does any good. If darkness is round about you, light whatever candle you have and hold it as high as you can. The higher you hold it, the wider will be the radius of its light.

YOUR RED CROSS

By JAMES WHITFIELD

(Publicity Chairman Pitt County Chapter Red Cross)

"In an age when we hear so much of progress and civilization, is it not a matter of urgency, since un- happily we cannot always avoid wars, to press forward in a human and truly civilized spirit the attempt to prevent, or least to alleviate, the horrors of war?"

His was the sentiment of Henri Dunant in 1862 and his declaration describes perfectly the attitude of the American Red Cross today in its efforts to reduce the blitzkrieg of human suffering left in the wake of the relentless military efforts of territory-loving dictatorial powers.

When Norman H. Davis made a nation-wide appeal for $20,000,000 to be used exclusively for extending aid through the French and British Red Cross Societies and through responsible operating organizations, $4,000 was the goal set for Pitt County. To date contributions by peace-loving residents of the county have not reached the quarter mark of the proposed quota.

In extending this aid the American Red Cross is not confining itself to any limited categories of relief. Its aid is mainly in the form of contributions of such supplies as medical and hospital supplies and surgical dressings for the sick and wounded of the armed forces; food for sick and wounded civilians; food to meet particularly emergencies; clothing for civilian refugees and garments for hospital patients; ambulances and other forms of transportation; and any other form of aid which may be deemed most effective and useful in helping those who are facing the almost immeasurable task of meeting the needs of these suffering millions.

Many Pitt County residents have not heeded the cries of "refugees to nowhere" and have not yet realized the significance of keeping the Red Cross flag of mercy in the air. Writing in terms of the refugees, one person familiar with conditions abroad put it this way: "No armored plate protects them. No supply train brings them food. No commander finds them a place to stay when night falls. No expert strategist tells them where to continue their weary trek, or how. Father and grown son are not there to help them. All hope is behind them; in front lies nothing but horror and frightful uncertainty. War strikes the civilians first and makes them suffer most. Battles are fought in the streets of their small towns and on the fields of their small farms. Invading battalions crush their homes, shops and schools. Foragers seize their crops to feed soldiers, and confiscate their livestock to haul supplies."

Walter Lippman, well-known newspaper columnist, declared recently: "When we are suffering, you do not appeal to decent men. You inform them of the need. You tell them how it can be met. To tell them more than that is to treat them as if they were not fully human and had no conscience and did not know the difference between right and wrong. No doubt reasons can be advanced—if there were time we could all think up no end of reasons—why charity is better than cold-blooded indifference, why men have a duty to their neighbors, why the saving of a life is a sacred obligation."

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinner

Washington—Around this town, the boys have come to one conclusion: This is going to be one of the tightest campaigns in the history of American politics.

The reason, of course, is the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie. The Peck's bad boy of Indiana has been scrapping ever since he could double his fists hard enough to dent in the comforter on his crib. Somewhere along the line, he found that there was more money, success, fame and enjoyment in fighting with something besides your fists. Now, with words, ideas, personality and business caniness, he has maneuvered himself into that world's championship which is open only once every four years and which has been won by only 32 men in 150 years—the contest for the presidency of the United States.

The fact that Willkie is the G. O. P. candidate is what makes everyone round here so positive it is going to be a knock-down, drag-out battle—no matter whom the Democrats name at Chicago.

Gather 'Round, Folks
Let's dig a little deeper and I'll tell you why they are so certain about it.

In the first place, Willkie is a talker. His worst enemy (if he has one who is purely personal, the fellow has never stumped for an answer, although he has plenty worth listening to) is the Republican party recognizes that Willkie is an exceptional platform and radio presence.

There's no need now to analyze it, but it's a sort of all-American approach. Willkie is a well-educated Indiana farmer, and that's what he talks like. He's no spellbinder and he's no Billy Sunday-William Jennings Bryan. But he does have something of all of those which he combines with a disarming intimacy. He seems to say, even when he's talking on the radio, "Gather around folks, I'll tell you all I know—and what I don't know, I'll tell you I don't know."

Add to that a canny mind that seems never stumped for an answer and the answer is always worth listening to, whether you agree with it or not. In other words, here is a speaker worthy of the best—and with the physical stamina of an elephant. The Democrats—no matter who they are—are going to have one tough time keeping up with him in number of speeches made, whether it's on the radio or "stumping the sticks."

Now, bearing all this in mind—combative, platform and microphone ability, and stamina—toss in the fact that Willkie agrees with President Roosevelt and the Democrats on the principles of almost every major issue—and what do you have? Probably the most formidable opponent to the Democrats that the Republicans could have found.

Up To Democrats

Don't think for a minute that the Democrats here don't realize this, and that they aren't turning it over and over in their minds this very minute. That's why I can pass along the coming campaign is going to be one of the tightest—this country has seen. The only thing that could prevent it would be for the Democrats to name a weak sister, crawl off in a corner somewhere, and hope that lightning would strike Wendell L. Willkie.

That's what the Democrats are saying among themselves. By a fluke or by the clever manipulations of Mr. Willkie or somebody, the tables have been turned and it's up to the Democrats to stop the man that Old Guard Republicans couldn't.

Just how it is to be done is even now being worked out behind the scenes. It won't be long before the first opposition guns will be fired. President Roosevelt and his administration have never been ones to sit around and see what's going to happen. Nobody has ever accused the President of being short on political strategy or long on leisure.

Exactly what turn the battle will take is almost impossible for me or even the experts to envision now. But it's going to be exciting enough to sit around and see what's going to happen. Nobody has ever accused the President of being short on political strategy or long on leisure.

Raleigh, July 6.—The State-Federal wage-hour campaign in the lumber industry will continue next week with the Federal under Senator Inspector Fred J. Cox moving headquarters to New Bern, while the State forces base themselves at Greensboro.

Already the campaign has resulted in reference of 16 cases to the legal unit of the Wage and Hour Division. This is in addition to the number of cases the inspectors and the division were able to settle without recourse to legal action. Restitution of back wages has been ordered in 11 cases.

So far the campaign has extended into 26 eastern North Carolina counties. Activities in this state are part of a nationwide campaign being carried on simultaneously throughout the country.

C. W. E. Pittman of the N. C. State Employment Service tells this: A Negro worker was hurriedly asked to join a group of migrants leaving North Carolina's potato section to proceed up the coast.

"Just a minute," he told the crew boss, "I'll get my 55 pieces of furniture."

"Fifty-five pieces of furniture!" exclaimed the boss, "You know I can't take that along."

"It won't be no trouble, boss," said the Negro. "I'll just give it my overalls, my deck of cards and my pair of dice."

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: The only clues in the burnt car are a box of paper currency reduced to ashes and a regimental insignia. Later, at a bridge party, Sandra mentions knowing the new chaplain.

Chapter II The Movies

I COULDN'T help noticing that Mimi was lonely, with the loneliness of one who is fighting a losing battle alone. I didn't know what the battle was about. I thought it concerned Julia; and in a way I was right. And I did not consciously refuse her offer of friendship. Rather, I did not recognize it for more than a hospitable gesture. I wish now that I had gone to see her as she asked. I wonder if it would have made any difference.

Chairs at the next table scraped back and two women came toward us. Felicia's racy chatter preceded her. I don't remember what she was talking about. I was looking at Mimi, whose back was turned to them, and I saw her stiffen. Only for an instant. As they took their seats she was again her normal, friendly self.

I went to bed early that night to make up lost sleep, and the next morning we rode again. Adam had not yielded to my weak plea that it really wasn't safe. He again wore his service automatic in its holster, and of course nothing happened. Nothing except that my muscles, grateful for a day's rest, cooperated a little and I began to sense dimly why people who ought to know better climb on horses and go lumbering about the countryside.

"There's no hop tonight," Adam observed as we walked the horses back toward the post. "It's the odd Friday night. What would you like to do?"

"But you're going to that party the Dumbbards are giving for Sandra?"

"Oh no I'm not. Not without you to brighten things up. I've been to their parties."

I looked at him in dismay. "But, Adam, I don't want you refusing invitations because I'm not included. I'm not your guest—well, in a sense I am. I wouldn't have the privilege of staying at the club if you hadn't secured it for me. But if we were staying at the same resort you wouldn't feel called upon to drag me everywhere."

"How do you know I wouldn't?"

"I'm a simple, direct man, I do what I like to do, as far as possible. And in this case it is possible. I don't have to accept that old hatcher's invitations for the entirely delightful reason that I rank her husband a few files."

"What does that mean?"

"It's improbable break for him, when he might not be appointed a brigadier general while I languish in the ranks of the mere colonels—I say, barring that, almost impossible future event, he will never have an opportunity to write an unfavorable opinion of me on my annual efficiency report—an opinion that I am a fellow lacking the social graces. If you must know, she's got an old maid sister living with her, and it would be so nice to keep her right in the regiment—I'm a man of mature years, you understand, old enough to evaluate at their true worth the froth and frivolity of mere youth."

Our laughter soared off across the flat landscape. The horses tossed their heads and looked back at us, eyes rolling.

We went to the movies that night. I liked the little post theater. It was new and clean and uncrowded, with the friendly informality of a small club where all the members know one another. Tonight the block of seats reserved for officers was nearly empty, probably because of the party for Sandra. Felicia was there with a woman Adam told me was an army nurse. They were a few other officers and their wives with whom I had a bowing acquaintance.

Gray And Tired
"I EXPECT Gerald Beaufort would have been glad to come with us," I said while we waited for the lights to go down. "Wonder how he spends his evenings?"

"Smiling his eyelashes," Adam growled. "Oh! So that's why you wanted me to go to the party!"

"Having no secrets from you makes life a little dull," I complained. "Don't you think you might learn to dissemble? How would you like me to X-ray your mental processes?"

To my surprise he looked suddenly gray and tired. And then I decided it was only a trick of the fading light. The theater was growing dusky. The newsreel had already begun.

Shortly after the feature picture started someone came in and sat down near us. I was not sufficiently curious to spare a glance from the screen, and it was not until the picture was over and the lights went on that I saw it was the chaplain.

He looked as if he had sat next to a snake when he recognized us. He ducked toward the side entrance, but was halted there by the congestion of leisurely departures and had to let us overtake him.

I doubt if I would have known him by his face alone which, as Mimi had implied, looked as if it had been the target of professional flits. His eyes were swollen nearly shut, his lips were puffy and his cheeks mottled and discolored. Bandages swathed his hands, and he bore himself as if other parts of his anatomy still suffered. But he was in uniform, not too well fitting, and the silver crosses he wore left no doubt of his identity.

Adam said, "Good evening, Chaplain. It's Chaplain Henry, isn't it? You'll forgive me for not being sure, but your appearance is considerably altered."

The chaplain started him a suspicious glance, but Adam seemed only gently concerned.

"Ah yes. Yes indeed. Quite so. I'm afraid I did not see you at first. Major Drew, I believe. And—er—the young lady."

Adam formally introduced us, and the little man so far regained his composure as to bob his head at me. But he did not meet my eyes, and I knew that he was remembering the extreme informality of our last encounter.

As we emerged into the hot darkness of the summer evening he would have escaped us, but Adam held him in conversation. Drew, from him, the admission that he had been released from the hospital that afternoon and that he was going back now to bachelor quarters. So, as we were going there too, there was nothing for it but to fall into step with us.

Inside the theater I had been amused by the sound of pedantic syllables falling from the swollen lips of that ruffian countenance. But as we strolled along in the friendly darkness I began to realize what it would mean to such a painfully serious man to be the subject of a whole garrison's mirth.

The added fact that he was a chaplain made it something of a tragedy. A chaplain's duties are broader in scope than those of most men of the cloth. He conducts a weekly nonsectarian service for such of the garrison as care to attend, but his chief work is among the men. He is rather like a social director. Red Cross Club and a Y.M.C.A. all in one, and Adam had told me that I good chaplain is the enlisted man's guide, counselor and friend. It would be too bad if this were to impair his usefulness by making him only a figure of fun.

"A Ruined Man"

HE WAS thawing, a little under Adam's sympathetic attention. I kept out of the conversation because I thought he would prefer not to be reminded of my existence, and presently he was doing all the talking, recapitulating, in a rather plaintive way, the circumstances of his arrival on the post. Adam put in a quiet question now and then, but the chaplain seemed unable to add anything to what he had already told.

"They've given me back my car," he said in conclusion. "Naturally I have been unable to drive it as yet—my hands—but I expect to find it has been abused. I think one need hardly doubt that a ruffian of that type would have no compunction at driving new car at a high rate of speed."

"Probably not," Adam agreed cheerfully. "And if he seems like the same man stole Mrs. Bridgwell's car he sped himself to his own punishment. A punishment considerably more drastic than the law would impose."

"That is so," agreed the chaplain. "The ways of providence are strange."

Did I imagine it, or was he a little impressed that providence had taken a hand in his revenge? We entered the club by the door of the guest wing. My rooms were the first on the right. I asked them both in, but the illumination of the corridor must have reminded the chaplain of his embarrassing plight, for he declined and patting stiffly toward the rear of the building. We watched him until he reached a door near the end of the corridor—the quiet rooms he had requested—then I preceded Adam into my sitting room.

"That's a ruined man," he said somewhat compassionately.

"What do you mean?" I asked although I thought I knew. And I was right. Adam's thoughts had been paralleling mine.

"I mean that soldiers are like children in one respect, at least. Once let them get the idea that a thing, or in this case a person, is funny, and they will never take it seriously again."

Julia had taken me at my word and put in an appearance shortly after breakfast that morning. I had stopped work long enough to make her welcome, then turned back to my typewriter.

She spent the morning prowling back and forth in my two rooms, as noiseless and as passionately restrained as a caged cat. Or she would lie stiff and silent on the studio couch, smoking cigarettes, lighting one from another with quiet ferocity.

Suddenly she muttered a hurried goodbye, snatched her hat and left. I called after her to ask her to stay to lunch, but she did not seem to hear me.

"Hello, Jeff," she was saying breathlessly, out in the corridor. "Hello."

His voice, like himself, expressionless.

Faltering footsteps, an instant of charged silence. Then "Be seeing you," it was Julia's suddenly too-jawny voice.

"Yeah."

Footsteps again, diminishing rapidly within the building. And from my window I had seen Julia's departing back, too straight in compensation for the weight of her defeat.

Dry forces were not a bit enthusiastic about him in the primary. They regarded him as quite likely to do just what Governor Clegg did. He did in 1937—which was exactly nothing at all. Chances are they still look upon him with that same spirit of suspicion.

There are stories to the effect that Mr. Broughton is committed definitely to a "do nothing" policy and when the issue arises. He is said to have given several Wake county politicians direct assurance that he will take no part in the liquor controversy.

Williamston Triumphs 5-3 Over Greenville Greenies

BILLIES PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Jenkins And Shelton Bright Spots In Local Attack

Greenville had one big inning — the sixth — last night as Manager Red Swain's Williamston Martins turned in a 5-3 victory over the Greenies. This was the eighth win in nine starts for the visitors.

In the sixth Harry Jenkins blasted a three-run double to left field to put across the locals' only runs. Two more singles loaded the bases, but the side was retired with the winning runs on the sacks.

Harry's parents — here from Gastonia — were in the stands and he treated them to another nifty double in the fourth inning. Jenkins, along with Bill Shelton, paced the Greenville attack with a .500 percentage for the night.

Williamston scored a run in the first inning on a single by Taylor, an error and two passed balls by Harold Forbes. In the Martin's seventh an error by Kracke produced two runs. Then Forbes attempted a catch that rightfully belonged to Wilson, collided with the Greenville boss, and the winning run crossed the plate.

John Delaney returned to the Greenville fold last night, but the blunders of his mates overshadowed his pitching. Ted Miller, who relieved Gardner, limited the locals to one hit in his turn.

Bill Shelton handled nine chances in fine style to feature afield for the locals.

Greenville will play Snow Hill in the Guy Smith stadium tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

DOUBLE COLA AND R. C. COLA WIN IN SOFTBALL TILTS

HOW TO BAT

AP Feature Service

Golf professionals tell their pupils not to try to hit the ball. The same caution applies to batting in baseball. A moderately hard swing, well timed and smooth, will produce a longer hit than a terrific swing whose timing is off.

Every player has to work out a batting technique of his own. My method of hitting worked out pretty well last year when I won the National league championship but other fine hitters probably would be unable to hit their weight if they attempted to adopt my style. And I couldn't do anything with their methods.

The bat should be held with a firm but light grip. A tight grip that almost squeezes the bat in the hands hampers timing and flexibility. Most long hitters use an end grip, holding the bat near the handle. Players who depend on placing short hits rather than on distance generally use a choke grip, with the hands several inches up from the handle.

Stand Erect

When you step up to the plate you should be standing fairly erect. The hips and shoulders should be level with weight equally distributed between both feet. The bat should be held free and back, ready for a forward step into the ball as it approaches the plate. Sluggers, who have a longer swing, generally stand well back from the plate while the choke-hitters stand fairly close.

Most major leaguers choose bats weighing around 34 or 35 ounces and about 34 to 35 inches in length. A too heavy bat ruins timing and players should select sticks that feel good in their hands and are easy to swing.

It is generally dangerous to try to out-guess the pitcher. It is better to just stand relaxed and prepared for any kind of delivery. Adopt the stance that leaves you comfortable and loose.

Clever batters improve their averages by watching their rivals' defense. Maybe an infielder is playing too deep or an outfielder is out of position, a place-hitter can sometimes bang a safety through one of the various "holes" that sometimes are open. When the infield is playing deep, a hitter can dump down a punt and beat it out or when the outfielders are far back he may tap one over the infield for a Texas leaguer.

Pick Your Spots

A hitter's orders are determined by the circumstances of the game. If runners are on second and third, he may try to hit hard to clean the bases. He may try to hit behind the runner if a team mate is on first. He attempts to send the ball between first and second. A hole is there for the first baseman has to stay nearer the bag than usual.

There are two kinds of bunts. The sacrifice bunt is usually expected by your rivals. Its purpose is to advance a base runner, with the odds heavy against your beating it out for a hit. The offensive bunt requires surprise and speed. The batter must be moving toward first when he bunts. He can either drag his bat across the ball or push it into the ball.

Keep your eye on the ball all the time. Watch rival players for any giveaway sign of the pitcher's intentions or for any spot which is unguarded. Swing the bat freely with a firm but light grip. And you'll get your hits.

MONDAY NIGHT'S GAMES

R. C. Cola vs. Tadlock.
Double Cola vs. Carolina Sales.
Carolina Dairy vs. Blount-Harvey.

Double Cola won a 5-3 decision over Tadlock in the first game of last night's softball program and in the second engagement R. C. Cola eked a 5-4 victory over Water and Light in the seventh inning.

The loss dropped the utility boys into a tie with Carolina Dairy for the cellar position.

Tadlock was the first to score, getting one in the initial frame when Wingate got on and scored on errors, not a single hit having been made. Double Cola matched it in the second when R. Gaylord got on on an error, stole second, went to third on Register's single and scored on a throw. The key leaders took over the lead in the third when they scored two on Hatem's home run. Tadlock added one in the fourth when Wingate made his second run, this also being accounted for by errors. The insurance team also made one in the fifth when Duncan tripled and came home on Turnage's fly to left. This ended the scoring for Tadlock, but, with the tie scored, Double Cola pushed two across in their half of the fifth. Aycock tripled with Hatem on the virtue of an error. Aycock came home on the throw in.

R. C. Cola got one in the last half of the seventh to win over Water and Light, which has had a losing streak lately. With the score knotted at four-all, Holbrook was safe at first on an error, went to second on Parks' single, third on Howard Waldrop's single and came home on Fetter's bingle. The winners had scored one in the second when Fetter reached and made the circuit with errors chiefly responsible; two in the third, and one in the fourth.

Meanwhile, Water and Light had scored two in the second and momentarily held the lead, and one each in the fourth and fifth, the last tally coming on Bryson's home run.

With The Swimmers

By WARREN FICKLEN

Last night the Greenville Senior boys and girls swimming team defeated Tarboro in the Tarboro pool by a combined score of 54-51. Although the boys lost 40-35, the girls won by a 19-11 score.

High scorer for the meet was Jane Harrison, Greenville girl, who made a total of 13 points. Placing first in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events, and second in the 100 yard breaststroke, accounted for her points. Jack Edwards was high scorer for the Greenville boys. He racked up his eight points by finishing first in the 100 yard backstroke and second in the individual medley.

The Greenville boys were defeated, but to do this Tarboro had to use two boys who had swum on the varsity swimming team at the University of North Carolina, namely, Nicholson and Boykin. Together the boys made 13 points, nearly half Tarboro's total score. I think that locals did very well up against such competition as that.

The local pool will be closed tomorrow, and up until Tuesday afternoon. This is being done so that the pool may be emptied completely and the sides and bottom can be scrubbed.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the juniors and midgets will compete in their second meet of the season. The Green Dolphins opposed by Kinston, will be in home waters and stand a good chance of defeating the said team.

The locals may not be in tip-top shape but they will certainly

Political Quiz Answers

1. Sen. Charles L. McNary of Oregon, nominated by Republicans as Wendell L. Willkie's running mate.
2. True. The Democratic party advocated its two-thirds rule in 1936.
3. (a) While it is political custom to select running mates from different areas, the Constitution decrees that electors, voting for a president and vice-president, can vote for only one man from the elector's own state.
4. Root, 29-year-old New York attorney, generally is credited with starting the Willkie boom. Davenport resigned as editor of Fortune to handle the Willkie publicity.
5. Willkie won on the sixth.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 6.—(AP)—Leading stocks held to a narrow pathway in today's brief market as traders generally found little inspiration either way in domestic and foreign developments.

Despite the post-holiday apathy, transfers of around 150,000 shares for the two hours compared with 113,320 in the like Saturday of 1939. Slightly irregular price changes still were to be observed at the close with plus signs a trifle in the majority.

the steel industry harder than most others, but not necessarily. Inventories in consumers' hands are said to be even higher than in 1937. Our own armament program would take up the slack later on, but there would be a let-down before this happened.

Armament industries are just beginning to feel the effects of the defense program. How much they will add to the business total in the next couple of months is uncertain just now. Investors, business men, and workers should, however, keep in mind that this nation is entering upon the biggest armament program ever undertaken by any nation at any time. Therefore, what is now on the books is mere sampling. It is expected that a billion dollars will be spent to increase present shipyards, munition, and arsenal capacity merely to take care of the huge orders which will be placed.

Retail trade is remarkably good. It is running 10 per cent or more above a year ago. Best comparisons with 1939 levels are coming from the industrial areas of the Midwest, poorest from the South and Pacific Coast. Rising payrolls mean that these gains should continue.

Record Tourist Season
Tourist business: Due to the war in Europe and the hesitancy of cruising even to the West Indies, South America, Alaska, and other places, all tourist money will be left in this country and Canada this year. The greater efforts which the railroad and bus lines are making in developing travel and the continuation of the two world fairs indicate that this summer will see the largest vacation season on record.

Politics: The general impression is that the platform and nominees of the Republican Party are a very constructive move. It surely should make F. D. R. "cool ten" before he runs for a third term. Already the market acts as if Willkie and McNary have a real chance.

Security and commodity prices are steady to stronger. In fact, they have recovered one-third of their May break. Dividend payments are generous, earnings are tremendous. Securities are actually cheaper today in relation to earnings than at any time in the past twenty years.

The business outlook for the summer, therefore, is good. There may be set-backs due to cancellation of orders and psychological reactions. Any set-back, however, would be from an already high level of activity. Hence, I believe that business this summer should be even better than it was last July and August. If the war continues, our armament program will be added to the current level of activity, giving us the second best Summer's business since 1929—maybe even the best! In saying this I am not forgetting the horrors in Europe.

I have just received a request to join in petitioning President Roosevelt to appoint a day of prayer in connection with the European war. I believe in prayer, but I believe in doing everything I can first, before turning things over to God to do for me! I also believe in praying that my will shall be in accordance with God's will. I do not believe in asking God to bend His will to suit me. Furthermore, God says to me: "Only when the leaders of all the nations will unite at one place to pray sincerely for guidance can I answer their prayers for peace." I wonder how many readers of this column feel likewise—or am I wrong?

The third class quite evidently fear Willkie. In this group are the most rabid of the rabid New Dealers (some of them only recent converts. They don't like the personal appeal Willkie has and as a result they are bitter in condemning him.

There really is a fourth group, much smaller in numbers and including some of those already accounted for in the first three.

Included here, also, are some who have heretofore guessed pretty well what was going to happen in politics.

They suggest the possibility of a real coalition, and an endorsement of Willkie by the Chicago convention, thus eliminating any hard fought fall campaign. Admittedly, but therein lies one of its best chances of coming to pass, Mr. Roosevelt being so given to the breaking of political precedents.

This group points to the almost identical foreign policy of Roosevelt and Willkie. They point to the need of national solidarity in the face of emergency. They feel that nothing could be more discouraging to Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini than for the United States' two major parties to bury the political hatchet and present a united front against foreign aggression and intrigue.

They say it would be the finest way in the world for Mr. Roosevelt to go down in history as a real statesman who put his country's welfare far above personal or partisan considerations. They say,

No part of this composite "they," however, is willing to accept Senator McNary as vice president. The idea seems to be for the Chicago convention to nominate Willkie for president, along with some liberal Democrats (preferably from the South) as his running mate. In this connection are heard the names of Senators Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, Allen Barkley of Kentucky, even Pat Harrison of Mississippi (though he isn't always termed "liberal"). Also the names of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Speaker Bankhead of Alabama.

Many officials around the Capital laugh at this idea, and will not even discuss it seriously but some recall the almost complete breakdown of old-line party affiliations. They quote news dispatches of North Carolina Democrats aiding Willkie's nomination.

The coalition suggestion is intriguing, at least, even if nothing more.

Local Theatre Short Endorsed By Legion

The short subject, "The Flag Speaks," to be shown at the Pitt theatre on Monday and Tuesday of next week, is heartily endorsed by the American Legion and officers and members of the local post are urging Greenville and Pitt county citizens to view the short on one of these two days.

"The Flag Speaks" is a stirring saga of the Stars and Stripes in technicolor. It is narrated by John Nesbitt.

Uncle Sam Calls Scout Executive

Tomorrow John J. Sigwald, scout executive will leave for a 28 days assignment to Fort Moultrie, S. C. in his capacity as Captain in the Reserves. While away (until August 2) from his scout executive duties and while Alfred Hodges the assistant Scout executive is away at the Schill Scout Reservation at Mendham, N. J., taking the six weeks executives training course, the Scouting work will be carried on by the many volunteers in scouting in this as well as the nine other districts of the East Carolina Council. Executive Sigwald received his promotion to captain in January. He went to Citadel at Charleston in 1919 to start his interest in military. In 1926 he entered scouting professionally. All three of his former assistants, all who have lived in Greenville have "made good" after some two years' training. Mr. Hodges, the newest assistant, especially is doing a fine job, his many scout friends declare.
