AFRICA HOLDS SPOTLIGHT OF EUROPEAN WAR

Italian Troops Strike At British Possessions

COLUMN DRIVES AGAINST EGYPT

Three Other Columns Moving Under Blazing Sun To Thrust At British Somaliland

(By The Associated Press)
The war spotlight, focused for weeks on the English channel and North sea, switched today to Africa, where three columns of Italian troops moving under the blazing sun were driving into British Somaliland, while another force thrust into Egypt.

Thus the grim game for domination of a continent was being played out in one of the hottest spots on earth—in the area between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland on the steaming Gulf of Aden.

The British communique announcing the new action noted optimistically that the British were prepared to resist the Nazi allies. Closer to Europe, Italian troops were also reported by the Italian high command to have advanced into Egypt from Libya.

The place and the extent of these operations were not disclosed. Another Italian column already has thrust deep into northern Kenya colony adjoining Ethiopia.

British air raids last night on Kiel, important Nazi naval base, and the great port of Hamburg were reported by the British Air Ministry. German anti-aircraft fire drove off a large number of British night raiders attempting to attack Hamburg before dawn, the German radio reported.

Official Reports On Funds Of Pitt

County Treasurer J. Vance Perkins today made public the regular fiscal year-end report showing the amount of county money held in the several banks of the county as of June 30.

The report showed the following cash balances, current and sinking funds, in various banks of the county:

- Guaranty Bank and Trust Company and its branches—current fund, $68,783.21; sinking fund, $187,945.25; State Bank and Trust Company, current fund, $67,712.04; sinking fund $27,416.88; First National Bank of Ayden, current fund, $9,032.62; sinking fund, $24,403.71; Bank of Farmville, current fund, $5,019.36; sinking fund, $17,739.15; Bank of Winterville, current fund, $7,713.85; sinking fund, $3,291.02; Bank of Fountain, sinking fund, $2,420.11.

All of the banks in the county have been designated as county depositories.

The report of the treasurer also showed that the various banks had complied with the act requiring them to provide sufficient depository collateral to cover the deposits.

Maryland Tobacco Is Displayed Here

Four bunches of Maryland air-cured tobacco taken from the Waldorf, Md., warehouse operated by R. Keel of this city, was brought to Greenville today and left on display in the Reflector office.

Mr. Fleming and Wayland Sermons brought the tobacco back with them after having gone to the Maryland tobacco center to return Mr. Keel.

The tobacco is much darker than that produced in this section. Mr. Fleming reported that part of the tobacco sold for 40 cents and the remainder for 4 cents per pound and added that the air-cured leaf was selling "good."

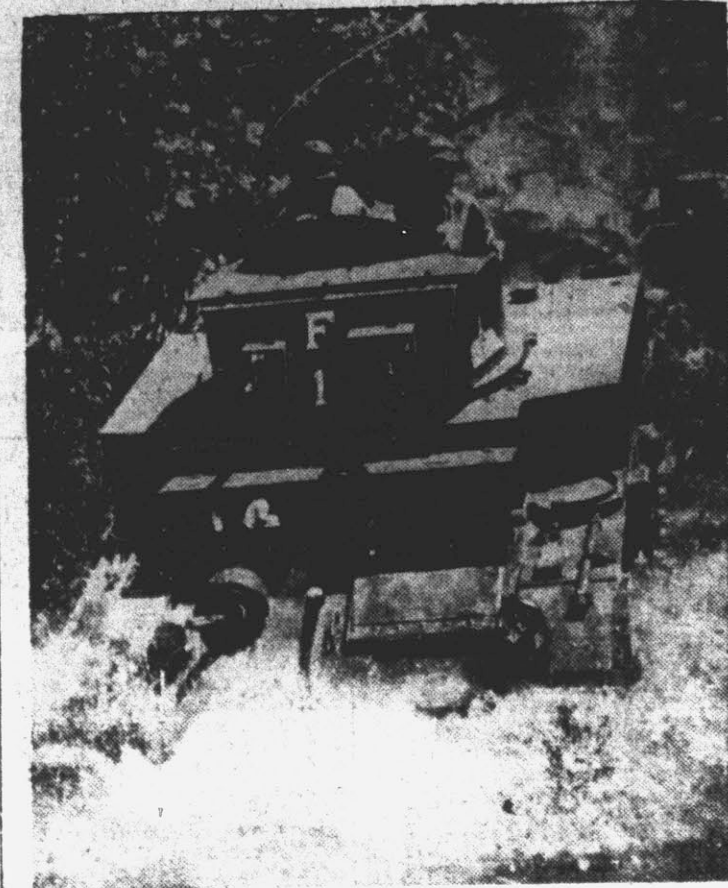

The tobacco now being auctioned was grown last year, the entire stalk cut and kept hanging in storehouses during the winter. The selling seasons in Maryland are much longer than in this section. The season started in May and probably will continue until October.

PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFULS:

PLEASE NOTE
Milwaukee—(AP)—Suspicion that handsome Mayor Carl P. Zeidler brought out the women's vote in the April election was borne out by a breakdown of election statistics by the city election commission.
Figures showed that while the men's vote was 244 greater than in the 1936 election, the number of women's votes jumped 3,392. The net result was an all-time high of 215,172 votes.

Secretary Of State Hull Calls On American Public For Individual Sacrifice

Willkie Would Preserve Present Farm Program

Plans No Change Unless Better Plan Evolved

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today that he did not favor changing the present farm program unless a better one is gradually evolved.

Willkie added in a statement shortly before his scheduled plane departure for his Colorado Springs, Colo., vacation resort that he would "not take away any of the benefits gained by agriculture during the past few years."

The nominee voiced his appreciation to those who attended his farm conference here yesterday and added he recognized "as farm leaders have recognized that the welfare of agriculture requires industrial recovery, too."

"I shall therefore exert myself to the utmost as President to create new jobs in the cities and thereby produce more purchasing power for American farm products."

"If elected President," the nominee continued, "I will not take away any of the benefits gained by agriculture in the past few years. I do not favor changing the present farm program unless a better one is gradually evolved."

Budget Of County Formally Adopted

The county budget calling for a 70-cent tax rate was formally adopted by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners in regular monthly session yesterday.

The budget was adopted in virtually the same form as tentatively passed at the July meeting.

Adoption of the budget was the principal business of the session, at which various routine matters were taken up and reports of the several departmental heads read.

E. W. Braxton, charged with the county's campaign to see that unlisted automobiles are placed on tax books, reported that 390 letters had been sent to persons believed to own automobiles not on the tax books. The report showed that as a result of the campaign 115 cars, valued at $50,094 had been placed on the books. It also disclosed that 63 letters had not been delivered and that 106 had been delivered but not replied to.

Mr. Braxton was instructed to continue his campaign and especially "to after" the individuals who had received the letters but failed to reply.

Members Of Pitt Bar To Hear J.H. Waldrop

J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company will make the principal address at the regular meeting tonight of the Pitt County Bar Association.

Cabinet Member Urges "Hard Personal Service" To Help Keep This Country At Peace In Consoling Against Complacency In The Face Of Current Terrific Problems

Washington, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull called on the American people today for individual sacrifice and "hard personal service" to help keep the nation at peace.

Without mentioning specifically the controversial question of conscription, he counseled against complacency "in the face of terrific problems and conditions" and declared: "The one and only sure way for our nation to avoid being drawn into serious trouble or actual war... is for our people to become thoroughly conscious of the possibilities of danger, to make up their minds that we must continue to arm and to arm to such an extent that the forces of conquest and ruin will not dare make an attack on us or on any part of this hemisphere. To this end each citizen must be ready and willing for real sacrifice of time and of substance and for hard personal service."

"In the face of terrific problems and conditions and until the present serious threats and dangers have disappeared we can not pursue complacently the course of our customary normal life."

Hull's views were expressed in a statement prepared before he left for a resort to rest from his work at the Havana conference of the American foreign ministers which ended last week.

At Havana Hull said it was "agreed that full and adequate preparations for continental defense could not be taken too soon if the threatened danger from abroad was to be checked and terminated."

There was general agreement also, he said, that "if the peaceful nations of Europe had thus promptly organized themselves for self defense on the most effective cooperative basis, the chances are that their situation and that of Europe would be vastly different today."

SEN. GILLETTE FIGHTS DRAFT

First To Raise Voice Against Proposed Measure

Washington, August 7.—(AP)—Senator Gillette (D-Iowa), opposing a bill to authorize the President to call the National Guard and the officers reserve to active duty, asserted in the senate today that it would be a "crime" to upset present laws governing mobilization of the guard.

The Iowa senator contended that many guardsmen had enlisted with the understanding that they would be called into federal service only in time of war.

He asserted that it would be an "injustice to change the premise on which federal service would be required by giving the President the right to order the militia into service now."

"In behalf of members of the National Guard and having in my thoughts the heartiest sympathy with every effort that is being made to build up our national defense, I can not see a crime like this committed without protesting," Gillette declared.

His was the first voice raised in opposition to the measure and Gillette himself said he believed "a great majority" of the Senate favored the bill.

Cotton Loan Rate To Be Disclosed

Washington, August 7.—(AP)—Rep. Fulmer (D-SC) said today he had received information indicating Secretary Wallace would announce the 1940 loan rate for cotton the latter part of this week and it probably would be on the same basis as last year.

Fulmer joined southern senators in urging the secretary to announce the rate at the earliest possible time in order, he said, to give some advantage to small growers.

The loan was not announced last year until November and Fulmer said small growers already had sold most of their cotton by that time and could not take full advantage of the federal assistance.

U. S. ENVOY TO BELGIUM CITES NEED OF FOOD

Fears Famine Unless America Sends Supplies

DECLARES FOOD BEING RATIONED

Ambassador Cudahy Asserts Leopold Will Be Applauded When True Facts Are Made Known

London, Aug. 6.—(AP)—John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, declared today that unless supplies of food from America reach Belgium by mid-September people will be reduced to a condition "close to famine."

Cudahy said he would present the situation when he returns to the United States next week and "further present the reality of dealing with force as the only power."

The ambassador declined to amplify this remark, leaving some of his hearers with the impression that he meant the United States must be prepared to deal economically and politically with Germany as the dominant power on the continent of Europe.

"When the truth is known about King Leopold (of the Belgians) his decision to surrender will not only be accepted, but will be applauded," Cudahy declared the question of United States supplies of food was "academic" until "Britain knows where she stands."

He said he understood the Ministry of Economic Warfare at present would refuse to allow any supplies of food to reach the Belgians.

"Their situation is very, very serious," he said. "Belgium imports 75 per cent of her wheat. Present supplies with severe rationing—half a pound of bread per person per day—will last until September 1 or at the best until early October."

"If you gentlemen think the continent is a howling hell now, what do you think it will be this winter?"

STRONG WINDS ON GULF COAST

Tropical Storm Rumbles Near Louisiana-Texas

New Orleans, August 7.—(AP)—Carrying winds close to hurricane force of 75 miles per hour, a tropical storm rumbled toward the Louisiana-Texas Gulf coast today and was slated to move inland near Franklin, La., in a few hours.

The year's first severe Gulf disturbance already has disabled several vessels. Persons in low and exposed places between Bay St. Louis, Miss., and Galveston, Texas, were warned to flee the dangerous east and southeast winds and accompanying flood tides.

While this blow heralded the arrival of the tropical hurricane season in the Gulf, the Jacksonville, Fla., weather bureau reported another disturbance moving west-northwestward near Haiti.

Caution was advised in the southeastern Bahamas, where the center was supposed to pass late today, but the bureau said the winds in this storm were "only fresh to moderately strong" and showed little tendency to rise.

Los Angeles Jury To Hear Evidence

Los Angeles, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A county grand jury met today to receive evidence from District Attorney Byron Fitts of alleged widespread Communist subversive activities on the Pacific coast.

Fitts said that there were some "big names in Hollywood" among the 45 persons subpoenaed to appear before the jury, but two persons who said they had heard they were to be summoned—Actor Lionel Stander and Director Herbert Bierman—denied receiving subpoenas.

Fitts said all of the witnesses would be asked to explain their connection with the Communist party and to tell whether they attended meetings where forcible overthrow of the government had been urged. He added that he had accumulated a "startling amount of evidence" pointing to a plot to kill prominent Americans and bring about revolution.

German Raiders Continue Jabs At British But With Little Apparent Results

AWAIT START OF BLITZKRIEG

Expected Invasion of Island By Germany Remains Only A Threat As British Planes Fight Off Isolated Bombing Attacks; Reported Expanded Nazi Activity Causes Concern

By The Associated Press

German raiding planes jabbed at Britain again today, but the attacks were scattered and apparently relatively slight and the blitzkrieg invasion remained only a threat.

As Britain fought against isolated bombing attacks in northeast and southeast England and Wales, her people discussed the chances of an invasion attempt. Some thought the attack might come within a few days, some thought a fortnight, some longer. All assumed that if it did come the British air force would have to fight attacking planes coming in waves of as many as 500.

British reports say the Germans have been busy preparing in northern France and also in the Baltics. There are even rumors of enemy activity in Norway with Italians being sent there. The Germans were reported to be making ready to embark troops in the Baltic as they did when Norway was invaded.

There was talk among Germans, too, about the attack on England, but no hint of when it might be expected.

The British Air Ministry said today a German bomber had been shot down off the east coast of England and the German high command's communique claimed eight British aircraft downed yesterday in battles over the English channel.

A British Admiralty announcement said 18 British merchant ships, totalling 65,891 tons, and 120 allied ships totalling 7,000 tons, were sunk by the axis powers in the week ending July 29.

A German communique fixed the losses of "enemy merchant shipping and shipping usable by the enemy" at 442,674 tons for the three weeks' period of July 9 through July 31. Of this total the Germans said 344,174 tons were destroyed by submarine, 98,500 tons by surface craft and 215,000 tons by the air force.

The communique said the air force also sank 31,650 tons of warships in the period weekly losses of warships in the period weekly losses of 32,000 tons of warships and 328,000 tons of merchant shipping.

Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring, commanding the Nazi air force opposite England, said he has definite knowledge that new weapons of conquest have been perfected for use against Britain.

Spanish reports said 19 British warships left Gibraltar hurriedly on Monday morning and after starting toward the Mediterranean cut back toward the Atlantic.

Dr. Keuzenkamp Is Heard by Local Lions

Dr. C. F. Keuzenkamp addressed the regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Lions club, held at the woman's club building last night.

Dr. Keuzenkamp interestingly discussed experiences encountered by his daughter, Miss Cornelia Keuzenkamp, in her flight from Belgium and France following the outbreak of hostilities.

Forbes Girl Hurt When Hit By Auto

The condition of Margaret Forbes, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Forbes, who was struck by an automobile driven by Quinn Bostic near her home on the Washington highway last night about 7:30 o'clock, was reported today to be "slightly improved."

According to Lieut. Lester Jones of the State highway patrol, the little girl started across the road directly in front of the automobile and that it was impossible for the driver to avoid striking her. No charges have been preferred against Bostic.

Lieut. Jones quoted a companion of the injured girl as saying she tried to keep the Forbes girl from running onto the highway.

The injured girl is in Pitt General hospital with a serious injury to the head.

Christian Science Church. "Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies, Sunday, August 4.

The golden text was from Psalms 43:1, "O God, thou art my God... Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Beloved let us love one another; for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love. No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us." (I John 4:7, 8, 12).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy. "People go into ecstasies over the sense of a coporeal Jehovah, though with scarcely a spark of love in their hearts; yet God is Love, and without Love, God, immortality cannot appear. Mortals believe in a finite personal God; while God is infinite Love, which must be unlimited."

Miss Brown Entertained. Asheville, Aug. 4.—Miss Lucinda Brown, who will be married Saturday to James Parker Dees of Greenville, is being entertained at a number of social events.

Wanne Shoot A Duck? Your Chances Should Be Much Better This Fall

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington. — You can't count your ducks until they're hatched—or in the bag—but shooting prospects definitely are winging higher for the 1940 duck hunter.

Uncle Sam's duck census takers say the migratory waterfowl population has jumped 15 per cent since last year. They figure roughly there are about 65,000,000 on the American continent this year compared with some 57,000,000 in 1939.

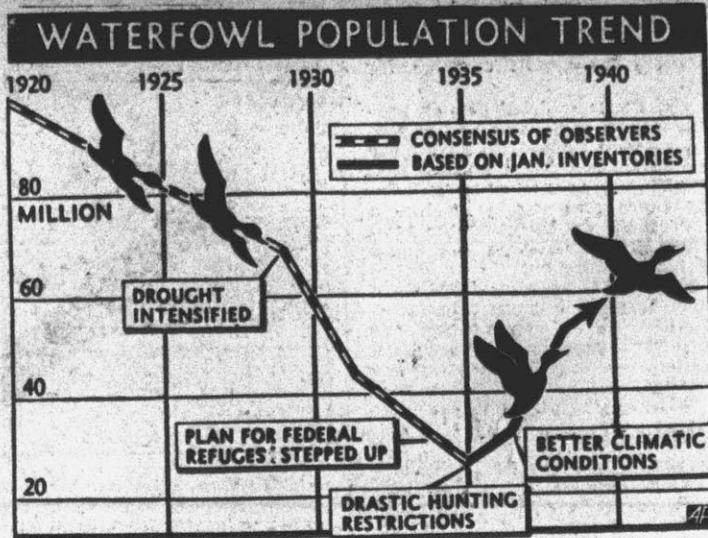

Furthermore, drought in western and northern regions didn't materialize as extensively as was feared in the spring. Water-supply conditions are rated generally good in the breeding grounds.

The number of waterfowl has doubled since a population low of 30 to 32 million was reached in 1935. The duck comeback is attributed to drastic action by the Federal government, with cooperation of the states, to prevent a threatened extinction and to better climatic conditions in the nesting grounds.

Refuges Started
Emergency funds were provided by Congress and the sale of duck stamps was inaugurated in 1934 to finance the purchase and maintenance of waterfowl refuges. Simultaneously, the government and states tightened restrictions on duck hunting to curtail the heavy annual slaughter.

Although the hunting season does not open in most regions until October, the 1940 duck stamps are on sale now at postoffices throughout the country. The stamps, which must be purchased by all migratory waterfowl hunters more than 16 years old, cost $1. These are in addition, of course, to state licenses.

The sale of these stamps dropped from 635,000 in 1934 to 448,000 in 1935 but has increased since then to more than 1,000,000 a year. The number of national wildlife refuges has been increased from 102 to 260, more than half of these areas being primarily for migratory waterfowl.

Increases Not Uniform
The Fish and Wildlife Service (formerly the Biological Survey) reports a marked lack of uniformity in the percentage of duck increase this year in the four major "flyways." As in the past the Atlantic and Mississippi flyways included most of the waterfowl. The Central Flyway showed a large decrease in all waterfowl while the status of birds in the Pacific flyway remained almost at the 1939 level.

Here's a brief summary of the comeback status of various species:
The mallard and pintail are making the best recovery among the various species of ducks.
Black ducks show a slight decrease, which may be more apparent than real.
Canada geese population is greater than last year but increase is not so large as expected. (May reflect excessive slaughter in one or two areas.)

Canvasbacks have increased satisfactorily, blue and snow geese have increased considerably and whistling swans have suffered a slight reduction.

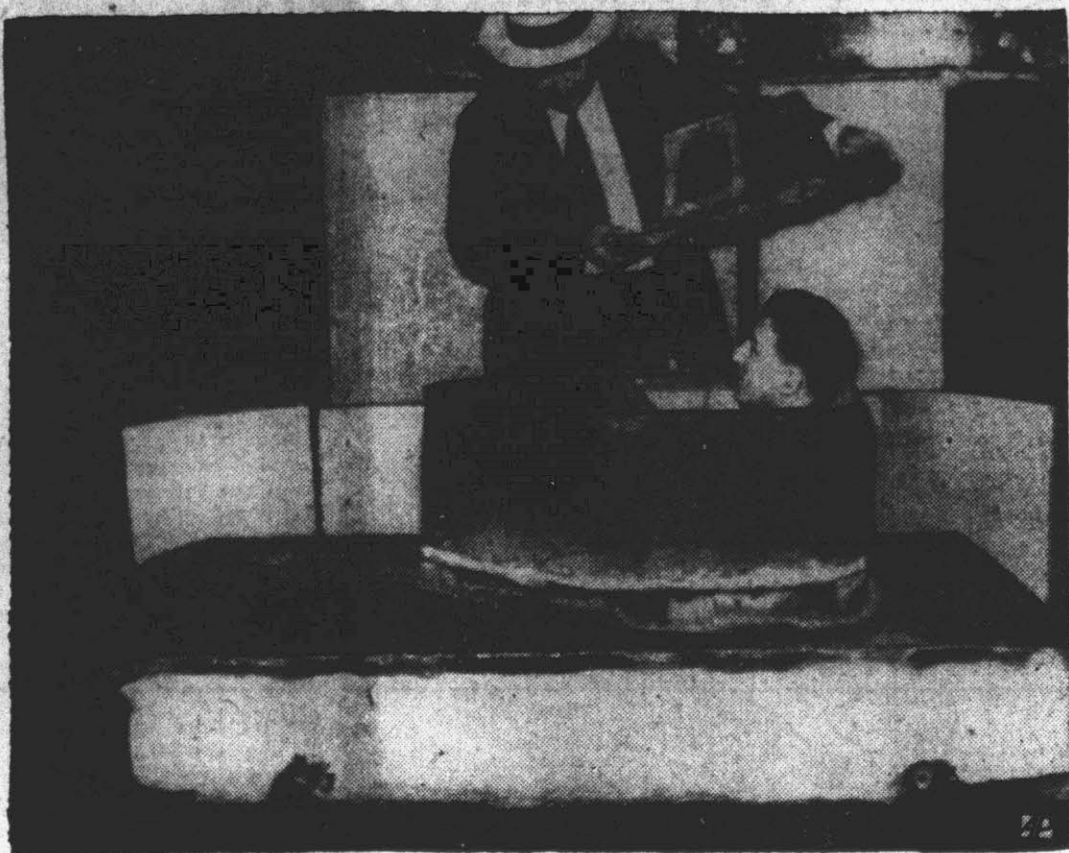

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT, IN AIR—High above Randolph field in south Texas, the "West Point of the air," an Air Corps cadet practices his flying lesson, using one of the field's 300 basic training planes. By the spring of 1941, it is expected that the field's present output of 250 basic trained pilots every five weeks will be raised to 450 for same period.

Here was the scene at the English channel town of Dover July 29 during the height of a German air raid in which the British claim to have destroyed 17 planes. Note the anti-aircraft fire around the planes in the sky and the exploding bomb beyond the ships.

Sub Figures In Extortion Scheme

A city-detective at Milwaukee, Wis., sits inside a tiny, homemade submarine while another detective holds the conning tower hatch after police had discovered the under-water contrivance which they said was planned as a means of getaway in a stranger-than-fiction extortion and bombing scheme. Police arrested three young Milwaukee men. The submersible was discovered in one of their basements. One of those arrested said he planned to pick up extortion money as it was dropped from an airplane over Lake Michigan. He then planned to submerge and effect his getaway.

BITTER PILL—FOR AN ENEMY—At least one "John Public" inspects first-hand a bomb-resisting pillbox demonstrated to army and navy leaders in Washington at an isolated spot along the Potomac. Built of concrete in five hours, complete with gun opening and trench approach, the pillbox supported weight of three men a few hours later.

Joe Vosmik scored, putting the game on ice for the Dodgers. Catcher Joe Lopez didn't join the discussion but another Pirate, First Baseman Elio Fletcher (center) did. The verdict stood despite Frisch's argument and the Dodgers won both games.

City Buried For Centuries Believed Mayan's Outpost

AP Feature Service
New Orleans.—A buried city which may represent the southernmost advance of ancient Mayan civilization is being unearthed in western El Salvador by a Tulane University expedition.
The first season's work has uncovered walls, floors, steps, pyramidal terraces and a tomb, constructed with a plaster-like substance of metallic clay and fine volcanic cinders. A cache of carved jadeite jewels also was uncovered.
Sixty grass-covered mounds, the largest more than 100 feet high, indicating the buried city some 20 miles from San Salvador, capital of the republic. The mounds are in a small valley excessively dry between rainy seasons. Nearby are the San Salvador volcano, last active in 1917, and the Izako volcano, active the past 200 years.

The expedition is under the direction of Maurice Ries of the Tulane Middle American Research Institute. He believes the city has "definite Maya characteristics" and was the southernmost point at which Mayan influence had been reported. Walls and steps, Ries said, are similar to those unearthed during the last three years near Guatemala City by archaeologists of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The expedition was financed by Hollywood—"Tom Brown's School Days." Screenplay by Walter Ferris, Frank Cavett, Gene Towne, Graham Baker. Directed by Robert Stevenson. Principals: Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Freddie Bartholomew, Jimmy Lydon, Josephine Hutchinson, Billy Halop, Polly Moran, Hughie Green, Ernest Cossart, Alec Craig, Gale Storm, Ian Fuiton.

There's an appealing Mr. Chipsish quality to this version of Thomas Hughes' widely read novel of English school life in the 1840's. The story is of Dr. Thomas Arnold's struggle to elevate the then low standards prevalent in the schools—to replace lying and cheating with the honor system and a sense of responsibility. It is an interesting yarn, well told and well acted by Sir Cedric (as Arnold) and a group of boys who are mostly American but serve convincingly enough as little Britons.

The boys of Rugby are wild ones when Dr. Arnold takes over, firmly stressing his intonation to give Rugby a new and worthy character. Tom Brown (an engagingly homely face and a telling sincerity of performance) becomes the focal point in the struggle. A courageous lad, he challenges the reign of the school bully (Halop, ex-Dead End Kid) and is solidly backed by the better element led by East (Bartholomew), until it appears that Tom has violated a fundamental tenet by "telling tales." Tom carries through his period of disgrace and finally justifies Arnold's faith.

It's an interesting projection of school life—the Rugby customs, the "bullying" (or hazing, as we here call it) the inter-class rivalries. Polly Moran, as the inn-keeper who deals in Murphies (roasted potatoes), makes a welcome return to pictures.

"Untamed." Ray Milland, Patricia Morrison, Akim Tamiroff. Romance and melodrama in the great north country, adding a wild snowstorm to Paramount's catalogue of Technicolor catastrophes (latest of which was in "Typhoon"). Adapted from Sinclair Lewis's "Mantrap," last filmed with Clara Bow, "Untamed" is the story of the waif (Morrison) adopted and married by the older, unromantic Easter (Tamiroff) and saved by the handsome doctor (Milland) who has gone north to forget.

"Cross Country Romance." Gene Raymond, Wendy Barrie. If this seems familiar while you're laughing at it, it's merely because the "It Happened One Night" formula has been put to use again. Raymond (back on the screen after a two-year absence) gives an amusing characterization of a young doctor whose trailer becomes the refuge of a bride-elect who has run out on her wedding. It's good comedy, played with considerable spirit, and suggests a re-teaming of the principals.

"The Captain Is a Lady." Charles Coburn, Beulah Bondi, Virginia

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dimick, New York socialites who participated in the field work. Dimick, an engineer, surveyed and mapped the area. Mrs. Ries was expedition photographer.

Grey, Helen Broderick, Billie Burke, Coburn is a sailing man, husband of Angle (Bondi), confined to an old lady's home. Here he is known as "Old Lady 31" (Just as in Rachel Crothers' play of the same title) and the comedy is based on his plight. Pretty funny stuff at times.

Strength For The Day

BETTER STILL—RESTRAINT

Have you pondered the power of restraint?
A business man recently showed another business man a copy of a letter he had written in which he had analyzed a business situation which was crying out for readjustment and correction. "The best thing about your letter," said the man who read it, "is its restraint. You could have said so much more but you didn't, and what you left unsaid expressed itself more eloquently than you or anyone else could have expressed it."

Very often the things we leave unsaid in life are expressed for us in a way we never dreamed possible. To meet a tirade with calm and quiet reason turns the person who makes the tirade into a fool even in his own eyes. To overlook an affront is to make everyone much more conscious of its despicable nature than if one had protested against it. To meet bitterness with understanding is to draw the fangs of these poisonous serpents.

The spiritual universe in which we live is so constructed that when we exercise restraint, vast powers, which are manipulated by a higher hand than ours, swing into action and achieve what we could never achieve ourselves.

TIME TO PLAN FOR THE FUTURE

The sending of the Imperial Tobacco Company buyers to the Georgia markets to purchase tobacco for the government is welcome news to this section in view of the fact that it assures government purchases of Imperial grades on this year's markets. Growers must understand, however, that the government cannot continue indefinitely a policy of purchasing the surplus from each year's crop without hope of disposing of same. Our tobacco growers are fortunate that they are assured of government aid during the next three years of the recently voted crop control program, but during this time they should be making the necessary adjustments in their farming program in order that they might be able to make a living without depending solely upon the uncertainties of tobacco production. A balanced farming program is essential to Eastern North Carolina farmers, and while they are being subsidized by the government is a good time to begin to get the program in operation.

THEY DON'T LIKE IT

Information has come from some of the other counties in the First Con-

sional District that, like Pitt County, there is dissatisfaction among the voters at the turn of affairs brought about by the announced coming resignation of Congressman Lindsay Warren and the almost inevitable appointment of Mr. Warren's secretary, Herbert Bonner, of Washington, to succeed Warren as the Democratic nominee in the November election. According to available information, the District Executive Committee has not yet received Mr. Warren's formal resignation as the party nominee and it is the belief of some that such resignation will not be effected until it is too late for the committee to call a primary even if it wanted to do so, which apparently it does not, because a majority of the committee members are reported to be pledged to Bonner.

While the present set-up is entirely legal and Mr. Warren has the perfect right to delay his formal resignation until the last minute, and the committee has the perfect right to appoint a successor without a primary, many of the voters in the various counties feel that the whole thing was a cut-and-dried autocratic act and, frankly, they don't like it. This growing dissatisfaction will certainly not work to the advantage of Mr. Bonner in the primary two years from now if he receives his nomination by appointment now without the people being given a voice in the selection.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — The Washington scene has changed more rapidly since the New Deal took over in 1933.
Three administration veterans, wheel horses in the Democratic party who have been around here some time, have departed. There is some possibility that a fourth will follow. It'll never be the same Washington without "Big Jim" Farley, "Cactus Jack" Garner, "Lou" Johnson, nor without Paul McNutt, if he goes home too, as some of his friends say he will.
Most missed perhaps will be Farley, the big genial fellow who came down with "The Boss" in 1933, packed at the Postmaster General's desk and for seven years gave all he had and for seven years of seeing that the mail went through and keeping the Democratic party machinery running smoothly.
Farley will be hard to replace. Target of all the abuse of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats, he stood the potshots without

They Just Don't Know Where To Start

AS both the orderly and the chaplain seemed disposed to linger and continue the subject, I took my overnight case and my rejected manuscript and went off down the hall to Felicia's room. But it did strike me as odd that Sandra should have been filling her medicine bottle in the dark. And there was something else the orderly had said that rang the little bell in my mind. Something that for the moment eluded me. Felicia was in. She came to the door looking pale and weary. I told her I had decided to leave in the morning and had come back to do my packing. Was there a vacant guest room where I could spend the night?
"Yes, plenty of them. But why don't you stay with me? I'm not looking forward to the night alone."
I saw then that she looked as she had the night her car was stolen. Even her steel nerves had been shaken by this last catastrophe.
"All right," I said. "If you're sure you want me."
"The only thing I'd like better is a whole troop of cavalry, armed to the teeth."
"Has the guard been withdrawn from my room?"
"I suppose so. I haven't seen anyone around since noon."
"Then there'll be no objection to my getting my things."
"I don't know. Perhaps you'd better ask Colonel Pennant."
"Oh, he didn't say I couldn't," I told her brightly.
I put a period to that by taking my case into the bedroom. I left my hat there, too. But the big manila envelope and my pocketbook I bore with me back to the sitting room.
"I may as well pack that," I said disgustedly. "Barren fruit of my visit at Fort Michigan."
"What is it?"
"Rejected manuscript. Sent it off on Monday and back it comes on Friday. Nice going."
"Quick work," she commented. "It's even got an air-mail stamp on it."
"Why, so it has. I didn't notice that. Rosabelle is getting lavish. Now what might that mean?"
"You might find out by opening it," Felicia suggested dryly.
"No, wait! There was a letter, too." I opened my pocketbook and took it out. "Another air-mail stamp. Curiouser and curiouser."
I was conscious of Felicia's eyes as I opened the letter and scanned it hurriedly, murmuring phrases aloud.
"Dear Miss Cornish, this starts off swell but about the middle it starts to go haywire. Sounds like two stories mixed up. I'm rushing the manuscript to you as I need it for the November book. Please clean it up and fire it back."
"Nerts," I commented, thrusting the letter back in my bag. "She needs new specs. Well, I might as well go to it. It's tonight. I've a notion to send it back without changing a line. She wouldn't know the difference—they're a dizzy lot, these love-pulp editors."
"Sounds like it," said Felicia indifferently. "Speaking of dizzy reminds me the chaplain wants some more towels. Wonder if the laundry can bleach that black stuff he puts on his rash? And when I collected the linen from Jeff's room this morning there was a towel that looked as if he had been polishing brass with it. Honestly, people show less consideration."
"Animal At Bay"
SHE had started out, but she paused at the door.
"I'll be back in a minute. Need any help with your packing?"
"No thanks. I just brought a wardrobe suitcase. I can pack it in a half-hour. I may as well do it now and get to bed. I want to catch an early train."
I followed her out into the corridor, where we separated. Subconsciously, while I hesitated at the door of my room, I heard the sound of her tapping heels diminish and cease as she rounded a corner. Then I mustered courage to turn the knob.
The door was not locked. I opened it slowly, carefully, half expecting to feel it impeded by the prone form which had been there in the morning. But it swung in easily enough and, my hand on the light switch, I prepared to follow it.
Then I saw that there was already a light in the room. A dim, furtive light, over by my worktable. Someone was bending over the table, focusing a small flashlight on something that lay there. Someone who had not heard me at the door, or noticed the light

Garner Career Over?

Farley's split with the President over the third term was merely the final straw. The breach in the relations had been widening for a couple of years as President Roosevelt turned more and more to the inner circle New Dealers and less to old campaign manager with his confidences and plans.
Nobody who was with Farley in those closing days of the convention could fail to see how deeply hurt he was that he had been brushed aside as the group that had its nucleus in Harry Hopkins, Senators "Jimmy" Byrnes and Alben Barkley took over.
Farley might have quit the government anyway to repair his personal fortunes, but he would rather have done it under different circumstances and with less misgivings for the future of the Democratic party to which he has been so devoted.
When Vice President John Nance Garner departed for Uvalde, Texas, the other day, it was a grim, tearful little knot of friends who saw him and Mrs. Garner off at the station. It was no secret that Garner was embittered by the "third term." His friends say that he may never return to Washington, but whether he does or doesn't, it probably is the end of his long political career, as I pointed out here some months back.
With Louis Johnson, the 200-pound, machine-gun talking lawyer from Clarkburg, W. Va., who threw Army defense measures into high gear, as Undersecretary of War, it was not a question of the "third term." But he was the victim of changing politics that put Republican Henry L. Stimson in as Secretary of war. It was no secret that Johnson felt he was due the Secretary of War post.
When he didn't get it and was not rewarded at Chicago by a nod from the President that might have made him Roosevelt's running mate, he too departed. President Roosevelt had offered him the job of executive assistant in charge of the national

McNutt For 3d Term

McNutt's position is more complicated. An original third-termer, his disappointment came when the President didn't throw the Vice-Presidency wide open.
The question now is whether McNutt's withdrawal in behalf of Henry Wallace will be rewarded. It is high up on the list of those mentioned for Farley's two jobs but the inner circle New Dealers have kept him at arm's length ever since he has been here.

Short Shots

Raleigh, August 6.—The sudden death in Raleigh Saturday night of Fab P. Brown takes from a business more than a century old the last of the name. In 1836 H. J. Brown started an "undertaking business" in Raleigh. He trained his son, John W. Brown, and when the founder died John took over control and carried on. He trained his son, Fab, who for the past thirty odd years has directed the business. Fab has no son and while the established business long since incorporated, may continue and prosper and retain the name, it will not have a member of the Brown family to head it.
There has seldom been a larger congregation to attend a funeral in Raleigh than that which assembled yesterday to pay last tribute to the man who had for so many years officiated at the burials of Raleigh folks.
Probably the confusion about Thanksgiving last year didn't have anything to do with it, but reports received by the agricultural department, division of markets, indicate that fewer turkeys are being raised this year than usual. One might think that two Thanksgivings would require more turkeys, rather than defense drive, but his friends here express doubt that he will accept.

Casual Slaughters

North Carolina farmers who have tried out the growing of hay as a side line crop have experienced difficulty in selling it, because legal requirements for mixed feeds did not recognize barley as an ingredient. These regulations have been modified to some extent, and barley may be used as a substitute for certain other ingredients if permission to make the substitute is first obtained from the Department of Agriculture.

She's shown with New Orleans beauty cup she won.

The mother and child returned to Adel to permit a physician to examine the child. The father of the child and the leader of the religious sect, both in jail on charges of assault with intent to murder, went on a hunger strike to protest their arrest.

Greenville Defeats Kinston 1 to 0 In 10-Inning Affair

ONLY FEW SEE GAME OF YEAR

Caligiuri Gets 16th Win In Pitchers' Duel

The sprinkling of spectators that witnessed last night's game between Greenville and Kinston at Guy Smith stadium were rewarded by being present for one of the best games ever played in the circuit.

For nine and one-half innings neither team was able to score—in fact, only two Greenville men and one Kinston player had been able to reach second base up to that time.

In the last half of the tenth, however, Benny Crowe singled, Harry Jenkins laid down a perfect bunt to advance him to second and Rusty Hellickson came through with a hefty single to send Crowe home and win the game for Freddy Caligiuri.

Freddy allowed only two hits. The first came in the second inning when Overton laid down a drive between Shelton at short and the second base. He never advanced; however, the second Kinston hit was only a break in favor of the Eagles. Bator lifted a high one to the infield. Skipper Rube Wilson started for it, but it was apparent he would not get under the ball in time. Caligiuri then attempted to get under it, but fell in the attempt and the ball fell to the ground and had to be scored as a hit, even though it was within reach of both the catcher and the pitcher. The next man up walked and Bator took second—the only Eagle to advance that far. The next man up hit into a double play, however, to check the threat.

This timely play was one of five during the game—three by Shelton, Kracke and Rocky and two by Stringfellow, Lapiana and Bator.

McCullough also turned a fine exhibition of pitching for the Eagles. He held the locals hitless for five innings—the first Greenville to get a single being Freddy Caligiuri.

Fielding honors of the evening went to Harry Jenkins who made a back-handed stab at a hot liner and threw to first while off balance to nab the runner. Bill Shelton and Kracke also did some commendable scintillating around second base. Not a single error was chalked up during the game and with the exception of Bator's fly which fell in the infield not a single miscue was seen.

Four More Games On Schedule For Tonight

The two Greenville entries in the Eastern Carolina Invitational tournament, being sponsored here by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, came out victorious in their first round play last night on a program which presented four games between teams among the fastest in the state.

The local R. C. Cola team scored a 5-4 victory over the Wilson Aces and Carolina Sales defeated the Tarboro Yankees 11-8.

R. C. Cola will play again tonight, meeting the L. Harvey team of Kinston which drew a bye.

In the other game of the evening Rocky Mount's Caramount mills defeated Tarboro's Runnymede team 12-1.

Another feature program is arranged tonight, with the Greenville R. C. Cola vs. Kinston. Harvey's team starting things off at 6 o'clock. At 7 o'clock Mayo of Tarboro will engage Rocky Mount's R. C. Cola team, to be followed at 8 o'clock by Maola of New Bern and Roanoke Mills of Roanoke Rapids.

The 9 o'clock game will be between Dr. Pepper of New Bern and Blount-Harvey of Greenville, with the 10 o'clock and final game being between Gulf Pride of Kinston and Neuse Lodge of New Bern.

Scout Here

Chief Bender, scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, was among the spectators in Guy Smith stadium last night as the Greenies took a 10-inning 1-0 game from the Kinston Eagles. Freddy Caligiuri is regarded as the Greenies best prospect for sale to higher company and the Philadelphia scout certainly had an opportunity to see Freddy at his best last night as the hurler allowed only two hits—one of them a freak—in the 10 innings.

GREENE TO TRY TRENCH SILOS

Movement Result Of New Interest In Livestock

Raleigh, Aug. 6.—Construction of the first trench silos in Greene County is planned by three farmers, Howard M. Ellis. Extension agricultural engineer of N. C. State College, reported today. He said that there are few silos of any kind in Greene County, and no trench silos, according to Farm Agent A. J. Harrell.

Ellis said that he recently accompanied Harrell to the homes of the following farmers where he helped plan for trench silos: Richard Mewborn and Alton Mewborn of Snow Hill, Route 3, and E. A. Rasberry of Snow Hill, Route 1.

"All three of these farmers plan to construct trench silos in the near future," the Extension engineer stated. "This is a direct result of increased interest in livestock, particularly beef cattle. Interest in livestock is mounting through Eastern North Carolina, and this is stimulating interest in allied agricultural engineering projects."

Ellis also reported on a recent visit to Pender County, where he consulted with and advised W. F. Chadwick, W. C. Savage, E. T. Batson, and P. A. Edmunds, all of Burgaw, R.F.D., about home water systems. The Extension specialist's assistance in helping the farmers was arranged by R. R. Rich, county farm agent, and P. A. Edwards, supervisor of the Farm Security Administration.

On the same trip, Ellis said that he helped to promote interest in water systems in Duplin County. Reporting on this visit, Ellis said "I worked with L. F. Weeks, assistant farm agent, and Miss Hattie Pearl Mallard, home agent, in Duplin in planning a complete water system with a hydraulic ram to pump water from an artesian well. This system was demonstrated on the farm of W. D. Rouse at Magnolia.

Prof. Epps Selected On State Committee

Professor C. M. Epps, head of the colored schools in Greenville and one of the most prominent Negro educators in the state, has been named on a three-man state committee to handle activities in connection with the 400th anniversary celebration or the anniversary of Hernando Desota, noted for his discovery of the Mississippi, a feat in which four Negroes participated.

The celebration will be held in Memphis, Tenn., and the committee for this state was named by Gov. Hoyt at the request of a Negro organization in that city.

Duke Of Windsor Sails To New Appointment

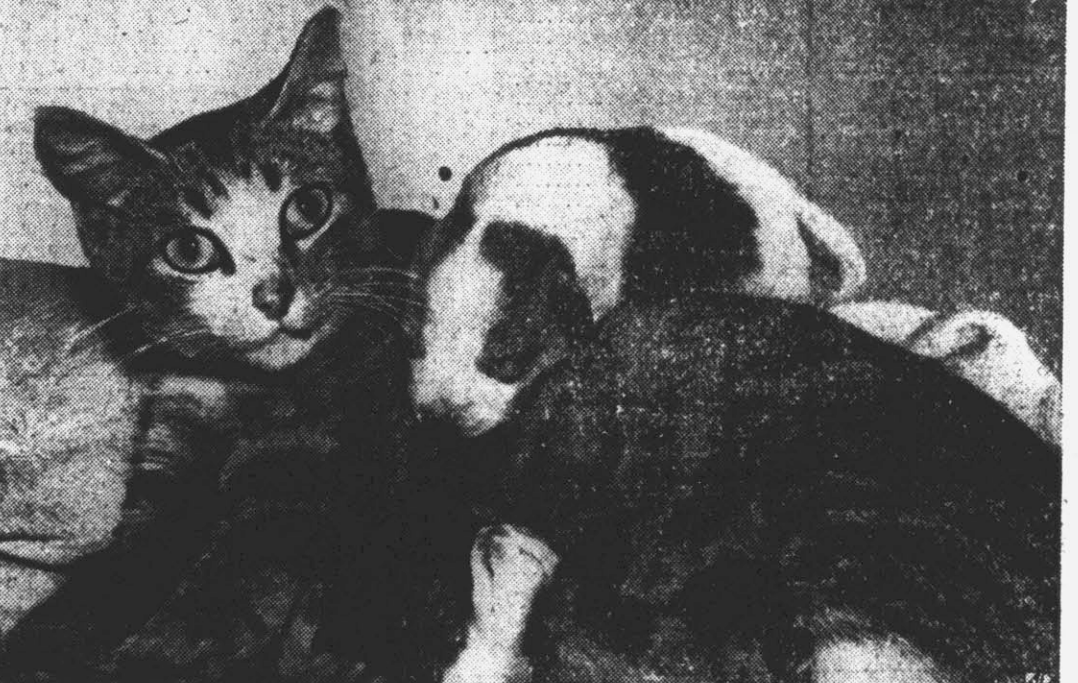

The Duke of Windsor, straw hat in hand, shakes hands with an Associated Press correspondent in Lisbon August 1 as he climbs the gangplank of the S. S. Exralbur, on which he and his American-born Duchess sailed for Bermuda. From there he was to go to Nassau to take up duties as Governor-General of the Bahamas. Behind the Duke is Sir Walter Monckton, an adviser.

Rising from the English channel onto an empty and unguarded British shore, this fantastic war machine, plastered with Nazi emblems opens its forward guns in the first step of Germany's invasion of England. Clouds of German warplanes swoop to the attack and another amphibian monster may be seen in the background. The giant tank is the brain child of Montague B. Black, one of England's leading artists. Black says he got the idea from German propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels.

Eure Predicts Reduction In Democratic Majority

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Aug. 6.—Despite the names of some "big folks" in North Carolina who have made headlines recently by announcing their support of Willie for President in November, there is little danger of North Carolina slipping out of the Roosevelt column. That is the unqualified opinion of Secretary of State Thad Eure who has just returned to Raleigh after some days out over the state.

Mr. Eure admits finding a good deal of coolness toward a third term and even more coolness toward Mr. Wallace for vice-president, but he failed to find any considerable revolt against Mr. Roosevelt. Attitude of many life-long Democrats was that they wished the President hadn't insisted on running and on selecting his running-mate, but that since he had so insisted they are going along all the way with him.

Mr. Eure finds none of the same spirit which existed in 1928 and which resulted in North Carolina going into the Republican column that fall. One of the main differences, he points out, is that the 1940 "revolt," if it can be called that, is without responsible leadership, while in 1928 one of the ablest and best loved political leaders in the state headed up the anti-Smith elements.

"I find a large number of regular Democratic party workers," said Mr. Eure, "who are going to vote for Roosevelt and Wallace, but who are not going to bestir themselves as usual to get out a big vote for the ticket. This will quite likely result in a reduced majority for the national ticket, and it may also cut down the normal majority for the state ticket. There is a possibility of the Democratic majority falling as low as 100,000, but I think it will be substantially more than that. And I'm not worried at all about prospects of losing the state."

MOISTURE FOR BARNS NEEDED REPORTS MUCH HIGHWAY WORK

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Aug. 6.—The current detour bulletin issued by the State Highway and Public Works Commission, lists 93 construction projects which to some extent affect traffic. These 93 projects represent 574.3 miles of construction or improvement, and five major bridge projects. Of course there are many more repair and construction jobs under way on the state's more than 10,000 miles of improvement highways, but those listed in the semi-monthly detour bulletin are those which occasion trouble to travelers.

On nearly half of the 574 miles, or to be exact, on 279.7 miles of it, traffic is maintained over the project. In some instances it is one-way traffic, and in others the requirement is for slow speed and careful driving.

There are 427.2 miles of detours around construction jobs, 302.4 miles of it over paved roads and 124.8 miles over top soil or dirt roads. It will be noted that if the detour mileage is added to the mileage over which traffic is maintained, the result will be to show 706.9, as against 574 miles of main highways under construction. The difference is explained by the fact that frequently a very short repair job or new bridge will necessitate a detour of several miles over other roads.

The long time policy of the highway commission of detouring thru traffic over roads as nearly as possible of equal grade with the road under repair, occasions longer detours than would be necessary. On the other hand, travelers have found from experience that they encounter less grief by following designated detour routes rather than seek some short cut across dirt roads.

Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers Losing Much Money

Raleigh, Aug. 6.—Lack of moisture has been costing flue-cured tobacco growers thousands of dollars in the quality of their leaf in the curing barns, L. T. Weeks, extension tobacco specialist of N. C. State College reported today. The leaf is failing to "yellow" before it begins to dry out.

"This serious condition can be overcome to some extent by putting moisture in the barn while 'yellowing' tobacco," Weeks advised. "There are a number of ways to add the necessary moisture during the yellowing period of curing tobacco."

"One of the most common ways," he explained, "is to stretch a wire just above the fire joints in the curing bar and keep wet sacks on this wire. A tub of water just outside the barn will make it easy to change the sacks frequently when the ones on the wire become dry. If the sacks are kept thoroughly wet, the necessary moisture will be evaporated in the barn to yellow the tobacco before the leaf begins to dry."

Weeks also recommends the use of water sprinkled over the floor of the barn where the wet sack method is not practical. "The floor of the barn should be kept thoroughly saturated during the yellowing process," the specialist said, "but too much moisture later in the curing period might cause damage, so care must be exercised in using this method."

When the tobacco dries out before "yellowing" undesirable colors frequently result and off-color tobacco is penalized on the warehouse floor by the buyers. "Growers should remember that tobacco is called 'the golden weed' not only because of the money it brings in, but because of its rich yellow color," the extension man declared.
