TO HEAR MORE WITNESSES ON TRAINING BILL

House Committee Reverses Action Of Last Friday

SECRETARY KNOX WILL BE CALLED

General Pershing and Former Secretary of War Woodring Also To Appear Before Group

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Suddenly reversing themselves, members of the House Military committee decided today to call five more witnesses, headed by Secretary Knox, to testify on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill. Although chairman May (D-Ky.) announced that hearings had been closed last Friday and the committee voted 11 to 10 in a stormy session not to hear further testimony, the members decided at what was described as a "love feast" this morning to reverse themselves and proceed with brief public hearings.

In addition to Knox, General John J. Pershing, Harry Woodring, former Secretary of War, Louis Johnson, former assistant Secretary of War, and Hugh S. Johnson, newspaper columnist, will be heard next week, probably Tuesday.

Commenting on yesterday's session with Rep. Paddis (D-Pa.) asserted that some opposition to the legislation came from fifth columnists. May told newspapermen:

"We have our sharp moments, but we can always walk out with our arms around each other."

Prompt enactment of the compulsory military training legislation was recommended in the Senate by the Military committee with the statement that "reasonable prudence demands an immediate and substantial increase in our armed forces."

"It would be criminal," the committee reported, "to give the nation a false sense of security by the mere possession of defense armaments, and a corresponding lack of trained men."

Wrecks Reported By State Patrol

Members of the State Highway Patrol investigated two wrecks in this section yesterday—one just before midnight and the other yesterday morning.

Mrs. Melba E. Johnson of Greenville and Frank P. Taylor of Arapahoe were drivers of two automobiles involved in collision about one mile south of Bethel on the Greenville highway last night. The Taylor car was pulling a small trailer and the two vehicles struck as they passed, causing only slight damage and no personal injuries.

Mrs. Studie D. Corey received head injuries when she was thrown against the rear glass in a collision between an automobile being driven by a son, Preston Corey, and a pickup truck being operated by J. J. Elks, magistrate of Grimesland. The accident occurred at the underpass on the New Bern highway. According to members of the patrol, Mr. Corey was preparing to turn into a drive-way and the truck hit the car in the rear. Mr. Elks also sustained injuries and was taken to the Tayloe hospital in Washington. Mrs. Corey was treated at the local hospital.

Waldrop Is Heard By Pitt Bar Asso.

J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company, addressing the Pitt County Bar Association last night, presented the responsibilities of serving as trustee of property owned by minors, widows or other persons who inherit the property.

Mr. Waldrop also discussed the difficulties of investing funds and the importance of accurate accounts.

He brought out the advantages of those having interest in estates having that interest protected by institutions such as trust companies having facilities and employees to keep accurate records of receipts and disbursements to be accounted for in final settlement of property held in trust.

The meeting was well attended and Mr. Waldrop was congratulated by members of the bar for his services in developing the subject.

The September meeting will be addressed by Albert Coates of Chapel Hill.

Mountaineers Rescued After Vigil

Faye Plank, 36, (left) of Bremerton, Wash., and H. Karl Boyer, 28, (right) of Seattle are shown as they clambered down 9,000-foot Mount Shuksan where Miss Plank and an injured companion were marooned 22 hours before rescuers reached them. When the three of them neared the summit Miss Plank's friend slipped down a ledge and plunged past the others. They were linked by a rope, so Boyer lowered her to a precarious perch on a three-foot ledge and then started the descent to bring up help while Miss Plank stayed up on guard.

BRITISH NEEDS ARE OUTLINED

Laborite Says Nation Must Draw On U.S. Reserve

London, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A government spokesman told Britain today that to win the war she must now "embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American national defense preparations."

Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister without portfolio, speaking in the House of Commons on Britain's war-time economic problems said:

"The need to supplement our own production by drawing up the vast and invulnerable capacity of North America has immensely increased since the fall of France."

"While but a few months ago we were placing orders with American industry to supplement the deficiencies in combined allied production," Greenwood declared, "we now need to embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American defense preparations."

Greenwood said there had been organized a committee composed of himself as chairman, Neville Chamberlain and Sir Kingsley Wood to direct the nation's economic war policy.

Greenwood said the committee was a war-time experiment with the task of concerting and directing the work of all ministerial committees dealing with economic problems.

He said Germany and the territories he has overrun are facing famine this winter and that next spring the pinch will be even worse.

Local Woman Gets Letter From Cousin In England

Mrs. L. H. Smith of this city has just received an interesting letter from her cousin, Mrs. A. G. Cooper of 63 Chapel street, Wath-on-Dearne, Rotherham, Yorkshire, England. The letter was dated July 17.

The letter had been censored, a sticker used to close the envelope stating that it was opened by examiner 5470. No portions of the letter had been deleted, however.

The writer expressed concern that former letters had not been received and on the health of various members of the family, the letter stated "we are trusting in God and the bravery of our soldiers, airmen and sailors and we shall try to do our part when the time comes."

The writer expressed the opinion that people in this country were getting a "lot of wrong broadcasts from Germany, telling you of our sufferings, but don't believe them."

Sales Get Under Way About Mid-Morning Tomorrow

(By The Associated Press) N. Confronted by scant export prospects, but heartened by promise of prices bolstered by better-than-average leaf, Georgia and Florida tobacco growers trucked the season's first offerings to warehouses today preparatory to tomorrow's opening sales.

Auctioneers will start their chant about mid-morning on 15 Georgia and two Florida markets and early prices were expected by growers and warehousemen alike to give indication of the 1940 trend.

A year ago opening day prices fluctuated in a 20 to 30 cents range. Thereafter prices dipped and the season's average for Georgia's 98,000,000 pounds was 12.82 cents.

Although Great Britain, usually purchaser of about 150,000,000 pounds annually, is not a factor in this year's sales, buyers of the Imperial Tobacco Company were expected to bid as agents for the Commodity Credit Corporation. The move, tobacco circles said, would approximately offset the withdrawal of Imperial and other companies because of the European war.

The two Florida markets reported slightly less than 2,000,000 pounds of tobacco on the warehouse floors. There were no figures available on the widely scattered markets in the 15 Georgia cities. A sustained campaign to slow down the marketing of the crop, however, was expected to lessen the pressure on the warehouses and reduce the volume offered at the first sales.

Progress Report
Kansas City.—(AP)—Last summer, Herbert Wright's bantam hen laid an egg on a cook stove. The other day Wright found her cackling near his motor car hood. He investigated and found six bantam eggs in the car's splash pan.

The only thing we have to put up with is higher prices."

The letter told of aged men filling in jobs where younger men had joined the defense forces and related that the women gathered each week for a "knitting bee" to make garments for the men at war. It stated that tea and biscuits were served, with each person attending contributing six pence, the funds going to the soldiers.

It told of air raids along the coast, but stated that no attacks had been made in the section from which the letter was written, although an occasional enemy plane was seen.

The letter closed by inquiring of Mrs. Smith if she heard "our prime minister's broadcast." It further asked "isn't he grand? I only wish the government had taken more notice of him a few years ago," pointing out that developments proved he was correct in warning the country that it was facing a serious threat.

SHAKEUP SEEN IN DIPLOMATIC GERMAN CORPS

Changes Expected In Western Hemisphere Staffs

HAVANA PARLEY BEHIND ACTION

German Authorities Said To Be Perturbed Over Concern Felt In American Republics

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A shake-up of German diplomatic and consular staffs in the Western Hemisphere was forecast in reliable quarters today as a result of measures adopted at the Havana Pan-American conference against fifth column activities.

German authorities were said to be perturbed by the determined attitude of the American republics and by the manner in which some West officials have aroused concern in the countries where they were stationed. A possible withdrawal of a considerable number and their replacement by diplomatic officials less active as Nazi party members was expected by some well informed persons.

Washington developments relating to foreign agents' activities included:

1. The Interstate Commission on Crime demanded an investigation of what it termed "Nazi-Fascist use of attaches of legations and consulates for subversive propaganda and other fifth column activities."

2. The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced its field officers would go on a 24-hour daily schedule to expedite investigations of fifth column suspects.

3. The House passed and sent to the Senate a measure to permit the FBI to tap wires in investigations of sabotage, treason and espionage.

One German agent in the United States believed listed for early recall to Berlin was Dr. Gerhard Westrick, commercial counselor of the German embassy, whose operations in New York have received widespread publicity.

WRECKS CLAIM MANY IN STATE

Wrecks In Various Counties Of State Revealed

Thirty-six of the 3,709 highway accidents in North Carolina during the first six months of 1940 occurred in Pitt county, according to a six months summary just released by the North Carolina Highway Safety Division.

Pitt county's 36 accidents were classified as follows: Four fatal, 15 non-fatal, and 17 involving property damage only.

For the state as a whole, there were 317 fatal accidents, 1,418 non-fatal and 1,974 property damage accidents the first six months of this year.

Eighteen North Carolina counties maintained clean slates the first half of this year with respect to traffic fatalities, these being: Alleghany, Bertie, Caldwell, Camden, Caswell, Chowan, Clay, Currituck, Gates, Greene, Hyde, Jackson, Onslow, Perquimans, Person, Randolph, Tyrrell and Yancey. Four of these counties, Alleghany, Chowan, Hyde and Tyrrell, reported no traffic fatalities in 1939. Eighteen other counties reported only one fatal accident each for the first six-month period.

Forsyth led the state in total number of accidents reported, with 348, and Guilford led in the number of fatal accidents with 20.

Two hundred and seventeen of the 317 fatal accidents occurred on roads in rural areas, 13 in towns of less than 500 population, 8 in towns from 500 to 1,000 population, 19 in towns from 1,000 to 5,000 population, 16 in cities from 10,000 to 25,000 population, four in cities from 25,000 to 50,000 population and 38 in cities from 50,000 to 100,000.

The University authorities are now working on plans to provide emergency seats to seat additional thousands and have reservations already in hand for several thousand of them.

APPROVE PLAN TRAIN PILOTS

Action Taken By The Trustees Of University of N.C.

Raleigh, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina approved plans for training of about 800 airplane pilots a year today and directed that compulsory physical education be instituted at the Chapel Hill unit immediately.

Unanimously, the board then approved Robert M. Salter of Ohio State University as director of the state experiment station, with Dr. Leonard David Bayer of Ohio State to become associate director, both effective October 1.

President Frank P. Graham submitted recommendations providing for purchase and expansion of the present airport at Chapel Hill and expansion of training facilities, including purchase of its own flying field for N. C. State here. Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte offered the resolution providing for immediate physical training to all undergraduate students at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Graham told the board that one of its members, Richard J. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, had agreed to give $5,000 a year for 10 years for the agricultural research program. Salter will head and that the general education board would make $5,000 available in six years.

"Without these funds we could not have obtained this man, ranked as one of the nation's five top men in agricultural research," President Graham asserted.

The Parker resolution directed President Graham to negotiate with the War department for a military training program and set forth "that until regular military training can be established at Chapel Hill pursuant to this resolution, the president and faculty establish physical instruction as nearly equivalent to regular military training as possible and require all under-graduate male students not physically disqualified or excused by a faculty committee for exceptional reasons to take such training."

JUST CHARGE IT OFF TO EXPERIENCE

Tulsa, Okla.—(AP)—A boy, wanting extra money, started a lawn cutting business. One man gave him a lawn to cut; told him the address. The boy arrived late in the afternoon, and got the job half done before dark. He locked his tools in the garage, came back the next morning and finished up. When he went to collect the woman of the house said:

"I didn't tell you to cut the lawn. You must have the wrong address. Furthermore, I should charge you fifty cents for storing your tools in my garage overnight."

Gaining In Intensity With Many Already Missing

New Orleans, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Gathering force as it struck inland, a tropical storm slashed at the Louisiana-Texas coast with 70-mile-an-hour winds today and full hurricane warnings were ordered from Lake Charles, La., to Sabine, Texas.

The Weather Bureau urged that "every precaution" be taken between Lake Charles and Port Arthur, Texas and predicted the center of the blow would hit slightly east of Port Arthur in a few hours.

Nineteen persons were reported missing and thousands were marooned in the wake of the storm which previously had been carrying winds of only 50 to 60 miles as it skirted the Louisiana coast. Upward revision of the wind estimate placed the velocity only five miles short of the full hurricane strength of 75 miles an hour.

The two-day-old storm pushed Gulf waters to near record heights in the many lakes and bays that dot the coast and sent trappers and fishermen scampering for refuge to court houses, schools and other public buildings located in land.

Rural Electric Lines In State Worth $22,000,000

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, August 7.—Rural electric lines in North Carolina have a value of slightly above a thousand dollars a mile, and have an average of five and a half customers to the mile. Every one of the hundred counties in the state has some Rea line mileage, although Tyrrell county has only a mile and a half.

Guilford county has the most lines with 797 miles, and Davidson is a close second with 706. Durham tops the list in customers per mile and Pamlico is at the bottom. Durham's 199.05 miles of rural power lines serve 2,803 customers, an average of 14 per mile, while Pamlico's 14.61 miles has only 25 users, about 1.7 per mile.

Lines built membership co-operatives through loans from REA amount to 30 per cent of the total, serve 21 per cent of the customers and represent 27 1/2 per cent of the total cost of all rural lines.

Public utility companies, privately owned, are responsible for 14,195.43 miles of all lines, representing an investment of $14,789,676.90, and serving 92,332 customers.

Municipalities, which have extended lines into surrounding country, have built 1,322.6 miles, at a

BRITAIN SEEKS WAR SUPPLIES

Negotiations Started For Purchases From U.S.

Washington, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The British government started negotiations here today for the purchase of "hundreds of millions of dollars" worth of tanks, artillery and other war supplies in addition to all previous orders.

Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent, who presented the program to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, told reporters that his government was now seeking the purchase of many types of supplies not previously purchased in this country. He emphasized tanks and field artillery.

The British previously bought some old artillery that the United States army had left over from the World war, but the new program calls for new weapons.

Only a few German bombers were reported over the British Isles during the night. Two districts in Scotland and the Bristol channel area were bombed, but the British government said "damage was negligible and there were no casualties."

Officers Destroy Two Stills In Pitt

Pitt county ABC officers, assisted by Constable Jasper Lee Mills of Chicod township, this morning located and destroyed two distillery plants in the county, one near Black Jack and the other in the Penny Hill section of Belvoir township.

The first still was located about three miles southeast of Black Jack. It was a 50-gallon steam plant composed of a 50-gallon drum used as a boiler, a 50-gallon doubler, another 10-gallon doubler and a 50-gallon condenser.

The other still was composed of a 50-gallon steel drum used as a cooker and a 50-gallon condenser.

Neither still was in operation, but beer was found at both places, 150 gallons at the one near Black Jack and 25 gallons at the plant in the Penny Hill section.

TROOPS MOVED TOWARD EGYPT

Blows Already Struck At British African Positions Indicate Mussolini Ready for "Hour Of Destiny" Of Which He Spoke In Declaration Of War Two Months Ago

(By The Associated Press)

Italy gave every indication today that Premier Benito Mussolini was ready at last to risk the battle which may make or break his African empire.

Reported troop concentrations on the Libyan-Egyptian border close to the eastern Mediterranean shores, blows at Kenya and British Somaliland and air raids on Haifa, Palestine, and other British positions in the Near East strengthened the belief that the "hour of destiny" of which Mussolini spoke two months ago upon the declaration of war, was at hand.

The British were even warned to expect some Italian successes in the African campaign.

The opinion was voiced in some quarters that the threat of a Nazi blitzkrieg against England was perhaps nothing more than a diversion in the strategy to conquer the African continent, seize the Mediterranean and the Suez canal, and thus break the British empire's lifeline to the Far East.

The raid on Haifa, important oil center, was the third since the war began. Gasoline tanks and port facilities were reported by the Italian high command to have been badly damaged.

There were other raids in East Africa, on the air and naval bases of Aden and Berbera and land advances into British Somaliland.

Possession of Suez would be the realization of one of Mussolini's dreams, but official circles at Cairo appeared confident the British could hold it with their veteran desert troops even in the face of numerically superior forces of Italians reported ready to advance across Egypt.

The warning to the English to expect Italian successes came from the Daily Express, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production and member of the inter-war cabinet.

Only a few German bombers were reported over the British Isles during the night. Two districts in Scotland and the Bristol channel area were bombed, but the British government said "damage was negligible and there were no casualties."

Conoco Mile Dial Is Free To Public

The Conoco mile-dial, being offered free to anyone requesting one at any Conoco station, as advertised in a newspaper campaign including The Reflector, tells at a glance the mileage a person is receiving with his automobile.

The mile-dial is attractive and can be pasted on the windshield or kept in the glove pocket. It tells at a glance how many miles per gallon a motorist is receiving.

The Conoco says that anybody can yell more mileage, but challenges motorists to make an accurate check—free—with one of its mile-dials.

A person is not obligated to purchase Conoco gas to secure one of the mile-dials. All he has to do is stop at a Conoco station and request one.

NAME 'DIXIE' IS TRACED TO PRE-WAR BANKNOTE

Houston, Tex.—(AP)—A New Orleans bank may have been responsible for the term "Dixie," applied to the land below the Mason-Dixon line.

Henry E. Elrod, Houston engineer, believes that the Citizens Bank of New Orleans was the originator. The bank's 10-plastre notes, issued in 1852, were printed half in English and half in French. On each note was the word "Ten" and the corresponding French word, "Dix."

Southerners called the bills "Dixies." In those days, states issued their own money. The New Orleans bank was prosperous and its notes circulated widely throughout the South, which came to be known as the land of the "Dixies," and finally, Dixieland.

N. C. MEETING OF LABOR SET

State Federation Convention In Durham Aug. 12-14

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, August 6.—Officials of the North Carolina Federation of Labor announce completion of the program for the state convention to be held at the Washington Duke hotel, Durham, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, August 12-14.

The convention will hear both the present governor and the next governor of North Carolina, as well as a number of nationally known figures in organized labor.

The Monday morning program will be devoted to the usual preliminaries of organization, such as registration of delegates, addresses of welcome and response, etc. At that time, too, will be heard all three members of the Durham legislative delegation.

COMMON COURTESY—

—ON CAMPING TRIPS

AP Feature Service
Camping is a grand, modern way of playing pioneer—for a week-end or a vacation. It will be more fun if you plan it in advance.

You might consult a seasoned camper about what to take.

Here are some of the things he'll tell you:

Take the most comfortable clothes you have to suit the climate; nothing elaborate or fragile. Shoes you're sure you can walk in comfortably for hours on end. An old sweater or jacket that can get rain-soaked without harm. A flashlight for each member of the party is a help.

Advance about what eating and bedding equipment each will need.

If there's a tenderfoot in the gang, don't take it for granted he'll know what he needs; give him some hints so he won't show up with too much baggage and too few necessities.

It's very important to limit the baggage for the trip. And it's important to have a first aid kit in the general equipment.

At camp, always be a good sport. Do what the others want to do at least part of the time. If they want you to swim and you're really scared of water, tell them so. If you admit it, you'll probably find somebody willing to teach you enough swimming to help you get rid of the fear.

It's necessary to wait on yourself of course. Speed up your dressing time when you find you're holding the others back. And take your turn in keeping the cabin clean. Don't spoil chores or play because you can't live up to your know-it-all-about-camp promises.

RANKS OF 'IMMORTALS' THINNED IN FRANCE

Paris.—(AP)—The French Academy has resumed its regular Thursday meetings with the roll of the "forty immortals" whittled down temporarily to four.

Present at a meeting July 11, first since the fall of Paris, were Andre Bellessort, Secretary of the Academy; Cardinal Baudrillard, Abel Bonnard, and Abel Hermant, who has been writing for "Paris Soir."

The others left for the provinces.

The first U. S. President who was born an American rather than a British subject was Martin Van Buren.

"I'm With You" — Secretary Hull

Secretary of State Cordell Hull (left) stepped from his apartment in Washington near the broadcast studio and congratulated Gen. John J. Pershing (right) on his radio appeal for selective military service and quick aid for Britain. "If there is anything we can do to help save the British fleet," said Pershing, "we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it."

Hollywood

By Robin Coons
Hollywood.—"Maryland." Screenplay by Ethel Hill and Jack Andrews. Directed by Henry King. Principals: Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter, Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charles Ruggles, Hattie McDaniel, Marjorie Weaver, Sidney Blackmer, Ben Carter.

Two years ago 20th Century-Fox threw a technicolor spotlight on horse-racing in "Kentucky," giving Walter Brennan a role with which he copped an academy award. The present essay does the same for "Maryland," but throws the plum to one Ben Carter—or lets him take it.

Aside from the technicolor beauties of wood, field and stream, the excitement and color of fox hunts and the climactic race, "Maryland" travels well-worn paths, innocuously and pleasantly leading up to the Big Race. What lifts it above routine are the sequences assigned to Carter and his Negro fellow actors, who play a generous part in the plot and give it a needed shot in the arm.

Carter (previously effective in "Little Old New York") plays Shadrach, the unregenerate, dice-weak spouse of Hattie (McDaniel), cook in the Maryland manor of Charlotte Danfield (Bainter). Charlotte is a born horse-lover, turned against horses by the riding accident which killed her husband. She clears out her stables and dismisses her trainer (Brennan) who sets up his own farm conveniently nearby for Charlotte's daughter (Joyce) to provide the romantic interest.

Mama's horse-fear and son's horse-love precipitate conflict on the big question of son's riding Uncle Bill's prize entry in the Maryland Hunt Cup race.

This is all well enough but "Maryland" really comes to life when Shadrach is seduced by Dogface's rattling dice, losing Hattie's burial society premium, and in desperation turns to shouting religion. The picture runs the risk of offending here, but the sequences of Shadrach's salvation are nevertheless a riot of comedy—and the "salvation" provides a good plot twist.

The cup race, filmed at its last running, is exciting and beautiful, but Carter and company are still the hits of the show. Carter, by the way, is an actor only by avocation. His real business is agency, and he collected fees from most of the Negro players in the film.

"Andy Hardy Meets Debutante." Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Judy Garland, Ann Rutherford, Diana Lewis.

Best of the recent Hardy Family films, this one has Andy in straits arising from his claim that he knows a city glamour girl (Lewis) Script and treatment emphasize comedy and slight the more serious elements of recent Hardys, which is to the good. Garland, with a couple of songs and a good role, adds considerably to the entertainment quota of a sprightly drop-your-worries movie.

"My Love Came Back." Olivia de Havilland, Jeffrey Lynn, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Charles Winninger.

Good-humored if strained, comedy of errors about a music student, her boy friend, and the rich old geezer with not entirely philanthropic ideas in her direction. Full of good music, played straight and also in ingratiating swingtime. Enjoyable, even though you don't believe a frame of it.

THIRD-HAND NEWS SEEPS INTO FRANCE

Grenoble, France.—(AP)—News took roundabout ways to reach newspapers in the unoccupied regions of France following the collapse of resistance.

Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble, leading provincial newspaper of the French Alps, had more foreign news than most other French papers because it was close to Switzerland. Even so its dispatches began like this:

"Bern—A dispatch from Budapest reports that a Rumanian newspaper hears, according to news from Berlin, that . . ."

or "Bern—The Swiss radio announces that the Swiss Telegraphic Agency learns from its Rome Correspondent that it is reported from Belgrade that an official spokesman told the press that Yugoslavia, which has no obligations toward Rumania regards the situation (the Soviet Bessarabian grab) as an observer."

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRIMMING NEVER PAYS

Be sure of this—no one appreciates honesty and strength of character more than do people who lack these things themselves. Even the most careless liver or the man most flagrant in his disregard of moral principle has a sneaking admiration for the people who live their lives on a basis different than that upon which he lives his.

Charles II was number one scally-wag of English history, yet to him the young William Penn, who addressed him as "Friend Charles" and spoke to him seriously about his evil life, was one of his subjects whom he loved the best. And old Thomas Kenn, who publicly rebuked the king for the way he carried on with Nellie Gwynne, was the clergyman whom Charles insisted on making a bishop against the advice of his counselors and the man whom he called to share his soul as he lay on his death bed.

Don't make the mistake of believing that you command yourself to worldly people by being like them.
They will have no respect for you if you are not better than they. The only way to call forth anyone's respect is to be your natural self, and the finer the quality of your soul, the more will people be conscious of this and appreciate it.

No one admires a trimmer, and least of all do people admire the man who trims his principles to suit his surroundings.

DEFENSE COST MUST BE SHARED BY EVERYONE

Every person in the United States must feel the burden of the new defense program if it is successfully carried through, Roger W. Babson warned in a recent newspaper column. National spirit is as important as the acquisition of the material weapons for defense, and only by sharing in the cost can the responsibility that everyone must accept be brought home to individual citizens.

Mr. Babson was alarmed at the proposed new excess profit tax, believing it an attempt to make business carry the defense burden alone.
This would so penalize expansion and discourage employers that the program would not bring about the expected upswing in employment, he opined.

Commenting on the cry of labor for shorter hours and higher wages, he said this attitude "seems to be the same as that which destroyed
France and which threatens England. . . I have found few people who have any understanding of what we face in the months ahead to provide adequate defense."

America must get back on the foundation established

He Will Tip The Scales

in its infancy—where hard-work, self-denial and independence were the cardinal virtues. Individuals must realize that national defense is a personal responsibility, and be not only willing, but eager to share in the burden of making this country safe from aggression. Character —among politicians, business men and workers—will "dictate the security, the progress, and the future of the New World—and the Old!"

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson

Washington, — Note to Wendell L. Willkie: If you go through with that "factory door campaign" idea you are talking about, won't you be taking a leaf from the campaign tactics of your young floor manager, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota?

That 33-year-old South St. Paul flash waged his campaign for the governorship on a shoestring and used a back door and street corner method of campaigning. He climbed into a car and covered his state like a midday sun. He traveled more than 50,000 miles and averaged about nine speeches a day, nearly always to small groups—often no larger than those which might assemble on any street corner at lunch time.

It was effective for Stassen, too.
He knocked a powerful political organization into a cocked hat and swept into office with so many votes to spare, they tell me, that the old-line politicians out that way haven't recovered yet.

Whether you, Mr. Willkie, can use that same method as effectively by rapping on factory doors and calling out the workmen for one of your informal chats is another question. I'll sure take a heap of travelin' between August and November to get around to even a small percentage of the factory doors in this country.

If you want a little advice from somebody who doesn't know anything about campaigning, although I hear that's the kind you are getting most of, here it is: The political trulators around here are saying you need only about five to seven million votes over the win. And since there are about 10-000,000 unemployed, why don't you make your speeches before closed factory doors?

A Brand New Formula
Note to Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas: Is it true what they say about O'Daniel?

One of the boys tells me that in this year of unorthodox politicking, you went right out and told the good people of Texas "The reason that I want to be reelected is that I've been a failure?"
If that's how it was, Governor, you certainly get the potted palm for the most unorthodox campaign ever to net victory this year. Of course, I understand you explained that the reason you had failed in your own estimation was because the voters didn't give you a legislature. But that's just heating it on. Who ever heard of a man winning a campaign by belaboring the electorate?

(Note to readers: This isn't Governor O'Daniel's first venture in political unorthodoxy by any means.
A couple of years ago, he was a radio flour salesman and just happened to mention in one of his broadcasts that with 12 or 13 candidates out for governor, he thought he might get in the race himself.

The mall response to that was terrific. O'Daniel got convinced and jumped in. He waged a campaign with hill-billy music, on a platform of "The Ten Commandments and $30 every month for the old folks.")

The Boys Are Outsmarted

Note to Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff: When Congress acts on the President's request for authority to call out the National Guard and reserve officers for military duty, you are probably going to have about 30 or 40 unhappy Washington newspapermen on your hands.

When things began looking so black a few months back, about that many boys around here, with military experience, dashed down to the war department and got themselves reserve commissions or got their reserve commissions renewed.
They were going to be smart. If war came, they were going to be officers.
Now, if and when the President calls up the reserves, those boys have got to do a year's service. Are they mad!

Short Shots

Raleigh, Aug. 7.—The Greensboro
News in its leading editorial yesterday sort of took the State Hospital
"to ride" for its request of the Budget Commission for $92-000 for construction of a water system. On its face the proposition does look absurd. The News editor admits he doesn't know anything about the care and treatment of insane. Also he doesn't know much about the local situation with respect to the State Hospital and the Raleigh water system. Not many citizens of Raleigh know much about it, so a Greensborougher may be pardoned for his ignorance.

The water supply for the city of Raleigh comes primarily from Lake Johnson on Walnut creek. If that source is inadequate, Lake Raleigh, on the same creek, is called upon.

and if that fails there is an auxiliary source at Rand's mill on Swift creek.
Point in all the present argument is that Lake Raleigh belongs to the State Hospital, along with a good many acres of watershed around it.

What the hospital wants now with the requested $92,000 is to set up a filtration plant and private water system so that it can use its own water directly from the source, without the necessity of it passing thro' the city mains and filtration system. What the Budget Commission and the General Assembly will do about it remains to be seen. This column expresses no opinion of the economic soundness of the idea. But in simple justice to the hospital authorities it should be remembered that the proposition is for more effective use of a vital asset already owned, rather than launching out into experimentation in an alien field.

The North Carolina News Bureau

has discovered a young man almost as versatile as George Washington.
Tom Fearing of Manteo last week won a prize for proficiency in goggle fishing—a sport which he took up just a month ago. Tom is also captain of his own fishing boat, and during the "Lost Colony" season he takes five separate minor roles in the cast of that play. During the winter off-season for his other activities he takes up tickets at the Metropolitan Opera in New York.
When not busy at other pursuits he helps his poppa run a drug store at Manteo.

Speaking of that goggle fishing episode: This is a new sport for Eastern Carolina waters. The first public contest was held this year, and hereafter it will be an annual event. Scene for the contest is among the wrecks of old vessels off Kill Devil Hill.

Additional hope for relief from the sales tax was offered by Governor-nominate Broughton in his address to the Food Dealers convention in Raleigh Monday night. Mr.

Casual Slaughterers

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: Key arranges to sleep with Felicia, then goes to her old room to pack for an early departure. Jeff is there, holding Sandra's shorthand notebook which was missing that morning. He says he is trying to find something Sandra wrote and put it in a safe place.

Chapter 38 The Vanishing Notebook

"HOW did you get here?" I demanded.
"Walked out," he whispered back, grinning sardonically. Sent the secretary for a tray and the damn fool left the door unlocked."

"Well, you're walking right back in," I told him grimly. "Of all the fool stunts! Climb out that bedroom window on the side and wait for me in Adam's car. Here's the key to the garage cell. And keep an eye out for the sentry along the back row."

He did not argue with me. Maybe he thought if I knew as much as Sandra I might be equally dangerous. At any rate, he departed informally by the window, and I had just started into the bedroom to latch the screen after him when Felicia came in.

"Anything I can do?" she asked. I pretended I was coming out of the bedroom instead of going in.
"No, thanks. I've been sorting my papers and just remembered something I left at the Pennants." I said, inventing hastily. "I'd better go to bed. I'll take Adam's car."

What if she should offer to go with me? I held my breath, but she didn't. I opened the door and held it for her, then I turned off the light and went out, closing the door behind me.

"Guess I'll get out of this girly," she said with a yawn. "I'll probably read for a while, but if I'm asleep when you come in, your bed is the one farthest from the door. And for gosh sake don't creep in quietly unless you want me to wake up and scream my head off!"

Jeff was sitting dutifully in the car. I backed it out and turned it down the row toward the hospital.

"For a girl, you've got guts," he observed presently. "How do you know I'm not a murderer?" "I don't know it. I hope for Julia's sake you're not. But walking out of the prison ward tonight isn't going to make matters look any better for you."

"Dan had put me in arrest in quarters I would have stayed there," he said resentfully. "I guess he really thinks I killed her. It's funny how few people will keep believing in you when things look black. Sandra certainly acted as if she thought I killed Ivan. But if she did why did she marry me?"

"Now you're asking something. You said awhile ago that it wasn't for love. There aren't many reasons for a woman marrying a man she doesn't love, and you can sum them up in one word—gain."
"But what would she gain through me? I haven't anything but my pay, and she was pretty well fixed financially. At least she spent twenty thousand dollars in a couple of years—no without having something to show for it."

Painful Subject

"JEFF! You don't suppose she gambled it away on the market?"

"No. She doesn't know a stock from a bond."
"Did she ever tell you how it was invested, or how much come she has?"
"Not me. I wouldn't have listened. I didn't want anything to do with it. If my father wanted her to have it—"

He stopped, but not before bitterness had crept into his voice again.

I hesitated for a moment, but something made me pursue the painful subject.

"Julia tells me your father left you a house in Memphis and your great-grandfather's farm in the Ozarks."
"The Memphis house is so heavily mortgaged even the bank won't take it over. And the Ozark property—maybe you don't know it, but land up there isn't worth the paper the deed is written on. I pay the taxes on it for sentimental reasons. The old gentleman loved it, and Julia and I had fun there when we were kids. There's another nice little tract of Sandra's; she never even saw the place, but she was plenty sore when she found out that I've willed it to Julia. You'd think she'd be satisfied."

"Wait a minute," I said, my breath coming a little uneven. I slowed the car to a crawl. "Are you sure that property is worthless?"

"No doubt about it—nothing but rocks and hills. Why?"
"But is there anything Sandra might have got hold of that you didn't know—a railroad, or some project like Boulder Dam, or oil—Oh, I don't know anything about real estate, but mightn't there be some reason for Sandra to think it was valuable?"
"You don't dam a brook," he said. He sounded grimly amused. "Neither do you build railroads where there's no place to go. And"

Broughton said that his recent campaign for the gubernatorial nomination was waged on the slogan "Take the sales tax off the dinner table" and that he is now more than ever convinced that the promise implied in that slogan can be realized during the next legislature.

Incidentally, the Food Dealers convention brought several high powered politicians to the speakers' table. Mr. Broughton was introduced by Libby Ward, speaker of the last House of Representatives. Governor Hooey also spoke, being presented by Reg L. Harris, Democratic ARGENTINA SIGNS—Another signatory to a document drawn by 21 American republics to protect foreign possessions in the western hemisphere from aggression was Dr. Leopoldo Melo (above), who headed the Argentine delegation at Havana. The conference lasted 11 days. Dr. Melo is expected to come to Washington, D. C., for an official visit with President Roosevelt.

Man About Manhattan

New York—Last week we told you something about a black cat named Friday and a white pup named Thursday of which we are very fond. But we made no mention of Cynthia-Ann, who is called Tim for short, because it really wasn't Tim's story, for one thing, and our space was running short for another.

But Cynthia composes the triumvirate at our house. She is 13 years old and a fine old battle-axe she is. Cynthia is a tortoiseshell Persian-angora that I have had ever since she was five weeks old. She tolerates Thursday and Friday but does not accept them. She is grumpy at times and not given to nonsense, which is her right. Because she has missed death by dogs, lightning, and pneumonia too many times to have much faith in hoodlums who would make her life miserable if she didn't turn on them now and then and administer a good whipping.

There is one thing about Cynthia that puzzles people at times, especially people who know and understand cats. Her tail seems a little short for her body. Not long ago a guest at our house, while ratiocinating out some catnip, turned around and said, "Say, this cat has an awfully short tail, hasn't she?"

The answer is, yes, Cynthia's tail is short. About two or three inches shorter than it used to be or has any right to be. It was an accident, just one of those strange things that sometimes happen to cats in houses where live newspapermen who go out without bothering to close the door behind them.
One day a big wind sprang suddenly up and caught hold of the door and slammed it shut just as Cynthia was passing out of the door. The force of that slammed door pinched off her tail . . . it pinched off a good two inches of the plume . . . You never saw such a tall as Cynthia's. Or heard such an agonized shriek as she let out when the door caught her . . . Well, I administered a little first aid, which was all right in a little while, and between me and a big saucer of juicy red salmon, we made her forget all about her short tail. Then I picked up the end of her tail and took it up stairs. Next day, when I came back from the office, it was still there. So I tied a string around it and hung it on my tie-rack, and it's still there . . . It's been dangling from the rack with my neckties for nearly three years.

Most people seldom realize that the personalities of cats are far more distinctive than those of dogs. As a matter of fact, I never saw two cats that were alike in any way, yet I have owned dogs with the sameness of peas. Our cats don't even speak the same language. One craves fish and fowl, the other red meat. One goes out only at night; the other will go out night and day. When they sing, they sing in different keys. Friday enjoys a prow in the rain. Cynthia wouldn't be caught dead in even the faintest suggestion of a summer shower. One of our cats likes snow. The other shudders at the thought of snow.

On the other hand, dogs usually like what you like. They will follow you through rain and fog. This isn't because they are more

Greenville Handed 9-1 Setback At Hands Of Tarboro

LOCALS SCORE ONE IN EIGHTH

Two Teams to Tangle At Guy Smith Park Tonight

The Greenvilles were handed a 9-1 setback at the hands of Tarboro last night as Mosser fanned 11 local players and allowed only five hits.

Helleckson was the only Greenville player to get more than one hit, getting two for three. The Greenville catcher also accounted for the local's single run. With one out in the eighth, Crowe and Jenkins drew walks, Scragg fled to left field, but Helleckson singled to score Crowe.

Tarboro meanwhile had scored one in the first, four in the second, three in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Mosser was effective, although a bit wild. The first six men to face him went down via the strikeout route. He walked seven men.

No Softball

All softball games scheduled in the Eastern Carolina invitational softball tournament for tonight have been postponed on account of rain and wet grounds. The decision was reached shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon by officials of the tourney and managers of teams in the various towns were notified.

As usual, the Center Terriers won Tuesday morning against the East Braves by a score of 17 to 6. In the first three innings the Terriers scored 11 runs, more than enough to win the game.

All players on both teams played bangup ball; but the Terriers out hit the Braves 12 to 9. Both pitchers hurled a fine ball game.

Leading batters for the winners were: Jack Minges with 2 for 2 and Henry Andrews with four for five. The Braves were led at bat by Connor Merritt, hitting two for three. Theodore Lupton, the pitcher, and Jack Scott were next best with 500 each.

The boys on the various playgrounds are enjoying the league very much and appreciate this opportunity which has been made possible for them.

Plans are under way for a field day on Friday August 16th. This will be the closing day of the Greenville-N. Y. A. playgrounds.

Every year, about 5,000 doctors are graduated from the 77 high-standard medical schools in the United States.

TRAINING MEN FOR DEFENSES
 Nation-Wide WPA Vocational Schools Operating

Skilled men which America needs for national defense are being produced at North Carolina College of Agriculture and Engineering, Raleigh, and in other schools at Greensboro, Charlotte, Durham, Wilmington, and Canton, under the nationwide WPA project for the vocational education of defense workers.

Warfare is not merely the front line. The men behind the guns, the men behind the planes are as essential to modern mechanized warfare as the men who fire the guns or pilot the planes.

For each plane kept in commission, there must be a corps of 20 men, each specialized in his particular duties. In proportion, the service of supply to keep tanks, other units going is as necessary as those trained to drive the tanks—man their guns.

Editorial, speech, editorial, the man on the street, one overlapping the other, clamor for trained men to run the machines. Armored trucks, dive bombers, submarine chasers, torpedoes, 75 mm. guns are not automotons.

But first and foremost, before war implements can be operated, they must be made—skilled workers are needed for that. After production, skilled personnel is needed to service the battle wagons of land, sea or air.

From industrial centers are many reports showing dire need of craftsmen. An article released by the Associated Press on July 22 has this lead paragraph: "Faced in a time of national emergency with an unprecedented skilled labor shortage, industries in this center of the nation's machine tool business are crashing through the bottleneck with a costly training program." "Men literally are being picked off the streets and taught tooling steel within minute clearances."

This WPA project is the first major step in the National Defense Training Program, and the initial number of enrollees in North Carolina schools is 500. Hundreds of others will be assigned. In the nation, upwards of 50,000 WPA workers and up to 50,000 other persons will be trained in established public vocational schools this summer and fall.

The project is sponsored by the National Defense Advisory Commission. As co-sponsor, the U. S. office of education has made available $7,500,000 in addition of $9,781,340 allotted from WPA funds. The sponsors' representative in North Carolina is T. E. Browne, director of vocational education, state department of public instruction.

Let's look closer at the college unit for operating principles—for all are the same. It is a new kind of school which has commenced at N. C. State College. It is staffed by regular instructors from the college faculty. Though students must satisfy entrance requirements, no college credits are awarded. With them in tens of thousands more like them, Uncle Sam is developing his human resources for jobs in industries essential to national defense.

New FHA Records Set So Far In '40
 Greensboro, Aug. 7.—Nineteen forty to date has been a record-breaking year for the Federal Housing Administration in North Carolina, according to Aubrey G. McCabe, FHA state director. He said that the first seven months this year has seen new records established for each phase of FHA activity in the state.

Each month this year, McCabe said, has seen an increase over the same month in 1939 both in number and dollar volume of applications for FHA insurance on home mortgages. The total for the first seven months is almost 47 per cent greater in number and 44 per cent in dollar volume over the corresponding period last year.

October, 1939, with 364 applications for FHA insurance on home mortgages totalling $1,537,900, was the record month through 1939. This record fell in April of this year when 368 applications aggregating $1,618,800 were received and a new high was recorded in May with 425 applications totalling $1,833,400.

WALKING WEATHER—Al E. Smith (above), the "Happy Warrior" and former Democratic presidential nominee who "took a walk" on Roosevelt's candidacy in 1936, is still walking. In New York, he pledged support to Willkie.

SHE'S GOOD, TOO—If there are any sour notes, "Robbie" is too polite to mention them, since the player is his chum, Betty Marbury of Baltimore. "Robbie" was befriended by the Marbury family after his escape from a cat.

What Will The Windsors Do To U.S. Styles?

By ADELAIDE KERR
 AP Feature Service Writer
 Several million Americans—style-wise and otherwise—are watching to see whether the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will spring any surprises in styles when they reach the western hemisphere.

As two of the world's most famous fashion plates they have started many a mode on its way. So style scouts in New York and the smart set in Nassau, where the duke is to be installed as Governor of the Bahamas, are going to keep both eyes wide open—particularly for tips on evening and sports clothes that can go places in American resorts.

They Wonder
 They wonder a lot of things: Will the Duke appear at dinner parties in one of the new colored dinner suits that caused a stir in Palm Beach last winter? Will he dash around in the new knee-length khaki shorts (British army officer style)? Is he going to wear a fishnet shirt? Or will he content himself with the nondescript things he's been wearing since his abdication?

And what about the Duchess' sports clothes? She didn't wear shorts or slacks in Europe—didn't think them good taste. Mainbocher made her sports frocks, which butted down the front, with detachable shorts to match. Will she wear those again in Bahama and if she does will that make the trousered mode for women sag? What will she choose for hot-night evening dresses—she who hates frothy frocks? And will she wear some dazzling new jewel gadget on her suits?

Time was when Edward, Prince of Wales, was England's "glass of fashion" and Saville Row's most famous and successful traveling salesman.

A Bright Kerchief
 He launched golf knickers and wore big Glenurquhart plaids; sportsmen gaped, then did likewise. He donned double-breasted suits and tallors on two sides of the Atlantic were besieged with orders for them. He tucked a bright handkerchief in his breast pocket, wore a waistcoat to match his dinner shirt, snapped down the brim of his fedora and half the male population of two continents scrambled to do the same thing.

Then came Wallis Warfield, abdication and exile—and Edward shed his sartorial glamour. In Austria, where he awaited his marriage, he was rarely seen in anything but casual tweeds and homespuns. Friends pointed out that he was trying to stay out of the spotlight, it's going to take a good hard look.

They also said that as prince and king he had always dressed for the public rather than to please himself and that he really liked comfortable old clothes.

When he went to his wedding he took but two new suits. All the fashion talk about that historic marriage centered about the trousseau of the former Mrs. Simpson who had been voted one of the smartest women of the world in 1935. That trousseau made history. The wedding gown with its incurving waistline provided the greatest silhouette influence of the next three years.

A Good Look
 Since her marriage, the Duchess' wardrobes have made fashion news around the world. Her simple, almost stark, chic; her slim suave scroll trims, her love of glittering sequins (which lifted a few eyebrows) and her off-the-face hats were all temporary—and copied.

Her wardrobe went into temporary eclipse when she donned a uniform for war work, but it's back in the limelight now. How are her suits cut? What will she wear for formal official luncheons? How will she settle the hot weather hat problem, since she doesn't like big hats? The fashion world has no idea, but trying to stay out of the spotlight, it's going to take a good hard look.
