Another Week Of Sharp Debate Is Begun In Senate On Burke-Wadsworth Conscription Measure

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee approved today a $5,800,169,277 appropriations bill providing funds for the beginning of construction of a "two-ocean navy" and for equipping an army of 1,200,000 men.

The committee acted while on the Senate floor there began another week of sharp debate on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. Differences between Senate and House drafts of legislation authorizing the mobilization of the National Guard delayed final congressional action on that measure.

Despite Wendell L. Willkie's endorsement of some form of selective service, anti-conscription forces were confident that the Senate would vote to defer a draft until the new year instead of approving the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Two Young Fliers Airplane Victims

Canton, N. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Two young men were killed in the crash of their airplane atop Beaver Dam mountain, eight miles north of here today.

They were identified as Donald Philip Letourneau, 19, and Alton Vance Morrison, 23, both of Toccoa Falls Institute in Georgia.

State Highway Patrolman J. A. Sullivan said several witnesses saw the plane go into a nose dive, but were unable to explain why it did.

Fall Term Of Court Under Way In County

A one-week civil session of Pitt Superior court was convened here this morning with Judge C. E. Thompson of Elizabeth City presiding, but it was indicated after the calendar had been called that all cases marked for trial would be disposed of by Wednesday night.

Several of the cases marked for trial the latter part of the week probably will be tried during the first three days.

The civil session will be followed by a criminal term, with Judge Thompson also presiding. The session opened the fall term.

Final Half Holiday Of Summer This Week

Store clerks and employees of other business houses will get their last half-holiday of the summer this week, according to the plan adopted by the Greenville Merchants Association at the start of the summer.

The Wednesday afternoon holidays always come to a close on the Wednesday preceding the opening of the Greenville tobacco market. The market opens on Tuesday, September 3, and therefore the stores will be open on Wednesday afternoon, August 28, but will observe the holiday on Wednesday of this week, August 21.

To Cross Road

With the Tar river having reached a 19-foot stage at 1 o'clock this afternoon and still rising, highway crews, including convicts, were busy placing sandbags along the highway just north of the Greenville bridge in anticipation of the stream reaching the roadway.

The river is expected to reach 22 feet by Thursday morning and at this stage is expected to cross the road between the bridge and Respass' place.

Workers this afternoon were removing debris which had collected around the pillars of the Atlantic Coast Line railway bridge across the stream.

Total Blockade Against Britain, Say Nazi

Germany announced a "total blockade" against the British Isles, coupling it with the specific warning Germany would not be responsible for the fate of the U. S. refugee ship, American Legion, bound from Petsamo, Finland, with nearly 900 passengers, if the boat maintained her planned course near the island of Rona (4). Germany claims her nine mine fields, barring the British Isles, closed entrances to Irish sea (3 and 4) and already have destroyed three ships near Isle of Mann (1).

Predict Satisfactory Prices On Border Mart

Millions of Pounds of Tobacco Already On Floors

By The Associated Press—Millions of pounds of tobacco were carried to the 16 border belt markets today while farmers, buyers and warehousemen alike predicted that opening prices tomorrow would be satisfactory.

Farmers were pleased over prices paid at the start of the south Georgia sales season while farm specialists said that prices would be bolstered by a short crop and the recently-voted three-year control program.

Most of the sales supervisors believed that prices would exceed the 15.6-cent average of last season. Yet from at least one market came word that the offerings were poor and opening prices were expected to be low.

Several markets, particularly in South Carolina, reported that growers had experienced difficulty in preparing and getting their weed to market because of last week's heavy rains.

17 Defendants In City Court Today

Seventeen defendants faced trial in Municipal recorder's court this morning.

The cases follow: Dave Creech, white, drunkenness, 30 days or costs; Ed Smith, James Bundy and Glenn Brantley, white, gambling, pay $5 each; Roy Lee Ross, white, disorderly conduct and using profane language, not guilty; Jacob Barnhill, Negro, drunkenness, 30 days or costs; Wade Murphy, white, riotous and disorderly conduct and using vulgar and profane language, prayer for judgment continued; Jarvis Parker, Negro, larceny of dress from Reids store, six months, appeal and bond set at $200; Jesse Speight, Negro, riotous and disorderly conduct and damaging personal property, 30 days or payment of costs; Willie Harper, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon, not guilty; Willie Harper, Negro, liquor, 60 days on streets; James Wilson, Guilford Webb Emma Morris and Ellis Fagan, Negroes, liquor, not guilty; Tobe Taft, Negro, riotous and disorderly conduct, 30 days or court costs.

Bullitt's speech, Clark added, amounted to "an appeal to the American people to go into an unprovoked foreign war now for which he said they are not prepared."

This, he asserted, "comes mighty close to being false to the republic which put him where he is."

Bullitt, ambassador to France, made the address yesterday in Philadelphia. He urged adoption of conscription and supported aid for the British fleet.

FOUR VICTIMS TO HIGH WATER

Floods At Goldsboro And Kinston To Be Worse Than Expected; Tar Still Rising At Tarboro And Expected Exceed Bank Here By 10 Feet

Roanoke Rapids, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Flood waters of the Roanoke river, swollen to unprecedented proportions by recent heavy rains, rolled seaward today, leaving at least four dead, hundreds homeless and thousands thrown out of employment in this section.

After reaching a record crest of 58 feet at Weldon, the river was reported falling rapidly there today. But further down its course the muddy flood surged over lowlands, inundating crops and threatening highways.

Red Cross workers joined federal and state relief agencies in evacuating those in danger and taking care of the homeless. Property damage was described as "tremendous."

One death in the vicinity of Wilsonton was attributed to flooded conditions. Willie Forsythe, 13-year-old Negro, drowned yesterday while swimming in the flooded waters of Black Creek.

The Raleigh Weather Bureau said the Roanoke at Weldon was 56.3 feet this morning, 25.5 in flood. A nine-foot overflow was predicted for Williamston by Thursday.

Floods at Goldsboro and Kinston, it was said, will be heavier than expected because of a heavy rise in the Little river which joins the Neuse near Goldsboro. At Goldsboro the Neuse was slightly more than two feet over its banks and was expected to go seven feet over by Thursday. At Kinston a four-foot flood was forecast by Saturday.

At Tarboro the Tar river was nearly 11 feet in flood with a 12-foot overflow expected tomorrow. At Greenville the stream was 18.6 feet, 6.8 in flood, and was expected to be 10 feet over its banks by Wednesday.

WICKARD GETS CABINET CALL

Named By President To Succeed Secretary Wallace

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Claude R. Wickard, Indiana farmer, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to succeed Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, as Secretary of Agriculture.

Since last winter Wickard has been under-secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Roosevelt also sent to the Senate the nomination of Paul Appleby of Maryland to succeed Wickard as under-secretary.

Appleby has served as an assistant to Wallace since he entered the cabinet in 1933.

Wallace's resignation, effective on September 5, was announced in an exchange of letters released today. On that date Wallace said he would probably begin active campaigning as Mr. Roosevelt's 1940 running mate.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said Wickard was promoted because of President Roosevelt's desire to have the Agriculture department directed by someone from within its own organization.

Wickard is operator of a large farm which specializes in the production of corn and hogs. He came to the department several years ago as a lesser official in the AAA.

PUSH PLANS ON U. S.-CANADIAN JOINT DEFENSE

Roosevelt Confers With State, War And Navy Heads

MUTUAL DEFENSE BOARD PLANNED

Group To Start Immediate Studies Relating To Land, Sea And Air Defense Problems

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt initiated conversations with State, War and Navy department officials by telephone today to get their suggestions for naming American members to a joint Canadian-American defense board which he hopes will be set up Thursday.

An agreement to create the board was reached yesterday at a conference at Ogdensburg, N. Y., between the President and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

White House officials said the chief executive hopes the board's first meeting to consider mutual defense problems of the two nations could be held early next week.

The place for the meeting has not yet been disclosed. A presidential aide said, however, that was not important since subsequent meetings would be held in both Canada and the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt had no callers today, the temporary White House said but arranged to make a brief talk tonight to his Dutchess county neighbors over a single radio station.

The talk was described as intended to be entirely of local interest. Originally Mrs. Roosevelt had arranged to make the address last June, but had to cancel the engagement.

A joint statement issued after the meeting between the President and Mr. McKenzie King yesterday said:

"The Prime Minister and the President have discussed the mutual problems of defense in relation to the safety of Canada and the United States."

"It has been agreed that a permanent joint board of defense shall be set up at once by the two countries. (Continued on page six)

BRITISH LEAVE AFRICAN POST

Withdraw Troops From Somaliland Garrison

Rome, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Italian troops have broken second British defense line outside the port of Berbera in British Somaliland and the defenders are retreating to their ships, the high command announced today.

Today's communique said an Italian column had captured La Faruk and pressed on beyond it.

It said the troops were in pursuit of the British, whose retreat was made additionally difficult by the fact that their ships in the harbor were being hammered "constantly" by Italian air bombing planes.

The high command also reported British air raids on the important Italian industrial cities of Milan and Turin, but said there were "no victims" and "insignificant damage."

The high command claimed "effective bombardment of the air port of Sidi Barani, Egypt, and of encampments and armored cars south of Sollum."

London, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The war office announced tonight that the British had withdrawn from Somaliland.

The announcement said the withdrawal was decided upon as an alternative to reinforcing the British garrison there with reserves which would be of greater use in places more important to the prosecution of the war.

"All guns except two lost in the early stages of the action have been embarked," the announcement said. "A great part of the materials stores has also been evacuated and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away."

Perspiring Willkie Accepts

Was a hot day in Elwood, I. d., as Wendell L. Willkie accepted the GOP presidential nomination. Beads of perspiration covered the forehead of Willkie who proposed in "dead earnest" that President Roosevelt meet him in a series of public debates on major campaign issues.

Robert L. Humber Says Britain To Check Nazis

Does Not Think Nation Can Be Conquered By Air

Robert Lee Humber, native son of Greenville, who, with his French-born wife and two young sons, has just arrived at the home of his father, R. L. Humber, expressed the opinion today that Great Britain would be able to "hold out" against Germany.

Mr. Humber declared he thought it was impossible for one country to conquer another with air force alone, citing Madrid as a basis for his contention, and added that he believed the British navy would prevent German troops from crossing the channel in sufficient numbers to overpower the British.

He added that while bombers could cause considerable damage and suffering, it was necessary for the infantry to follow up these air raids to make the military invasion effective. He recalled that Madrid was bombed day after day, but never was captured as its ground forces refused to yield.

He said that the Germans landed some tanks in Rotterdam by air-planes, but expressed doubt enough could be landed in Britain to prove effective. He added that Rotterdam was not on the alert as is England.

He said that England has a well organized home guard and that the entire nation was on the watch for parachute troops.

"England is destined to receive severe punishment from German bombers, but the English people have the moral stamina to withstand this punishment," he declared. He said that in his opinion the moral stamina of the British people is unexcelled and that they were prepared to go through the present crisis and were confident of victory.

He reminded of the old adage that Britain never wins a battle until the last one.

He had praise for the present British government, saying that it (Continued on page six)

Traffic Heavy In This City Sunday

Highway traffic in Greenville was unusually heavy yesterday as much of the north-south traffic was routed over U. S. 17 via Williamston and through Greenville.

The road from Greenville to Bethel and from Bethel to Williamston was crowded throughout yesterday by through traffic and by Sunday motorists heading for sights of the Roanoke river.

The heavy traffic through this city is expected to continue for several days, according to Lieut. Lester Jones, commanding officer of Troop A of the State Highway Patrol.

U. S. 17 probably will be closed by Wednesday or Thursday, Lieut. Jones declared, adding that engineers had predicted water would go over the dam there by that time. The high water may even wash out the dam despite the fact convicts and highway crews were kept busy yesterday placing sandbags along the edge and otherwise strengthening it against the threatening high water.

NEW DECREES FOR DEFENSE ARE ADOPTED

With Indications Pointing To Early Attempt By Germany To Smash Britain By Direct Invasion, British Launch New Assaults On Nazi-Held Positions On French Coast

London, Aug. 19.—(AP) All of Britain was made a defense area today as the nation, already fighting in history's greatest air battle, got set for a life or death struggle to defend its soil.

With the Germans apparently nearing the zero hour for their attempt to smash Britain into submission by direct invasion, the British launched a thundering attack against the Nazi-held French coast and claimed their air fighters were parrying Nazi air blows with an increasingly favorable advantage.

The order to make the isles a defense area subject to a moment's notice to drastic edicts by closely cooperating civil and military authorities was issued as a "precautionary measure" by the Ministry of Home Security.

Regional commissioners for England, Wales and Scotland will have authority, "subject to control and direct of the Ministry of Home Security, to issue directions or orders required for the purposes of defense within their respective areas."

Although there were no new regulations in Britain, the new order authorized "any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landing by air or sea to be introduced without any delay in any part of the country in which they are required."

Berlin, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Nazi air scouts were reported ranging the British coast today as Germany multiplied signs that she was getting ready to try a decisive blow against Britain.

Two British planes were shot down near Ramsgate at the mouth of the Thames estuary and a third was seen falling in flames to the sea, DNB, official German news agency reported.

But the air fighting was apparently minor as the German fliers carried out what was described as "armed reconnaissance" to check up on the effect of their air seige and presumably search for new targets.

German reconnoitering planes, accompanied by fighters, were able to take photographs at low altitudes over southern England with little hindrance, DNB declared.

British Spitfires tried to form a barrier to the German planes, it said, but only in a few instances were able to engage them in battle.

Dairymen Invited To Coming Cattle Sales

Raleigh, August 19.—John A. Arvey, Extension dairyman of N. C. State College, today called the attention of North Carolina dairymen and farmers to two outstanding sales to be held in September. The first of these will be the Jersey Cattle club sale to be held in the Southern States Fairgrounds near Charlotte on September 3; the other is the joint sale of the North Carolina and Chester County, South Carolina, Guernsey Breeders to be held at Chester, S. C., on Sept. 16.

E. F. Gullede is sales manager of the Jersey event. Twenty cows, 15 springing and 8 open heifers, and three bulls will be offered from the auction ring.

North Carolina Guernsey breeders will consign 25 select cows and springing heifers to the South Carolina sale, Arvey reported.

Gurganus-Foley.
Beautiful in its simplicity and setting was the marriage Sunday morning, August 18, at eleven-thirty o'clock at Farm Memorial Methodist Church, when Miss Julia Foley became the bride of Mr. George Alton Gurganus of Bethel and Roanoke Rapids. Reverend T. McM. Grant officiated. The ceremony was witnessed by members of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The church was simple and beautiful in its nuptial green and white, with large floor baskets of white asters and gladioli, flanked by ferns forming a background for the ceremony.

Mrs. G. E. W. Hadley rendered a program of nuptial music, and she accompanied Mr. Aubrey Tilley, who just prior to the ceremony sang "Until," by Sanderson. "Benediction," by Lutkin, was sung by Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Parkinson, Mrs. John Karsnak and Mr. Tilley. The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. Edward Hoell Foley, who gave her in marriage. She wore a traveling dress of sheer navy blue crepe with matching accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of pink roses and gypsophila.

The bride had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Helen Foley, who wore powder blue crepe and lace with navy accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of pink and blue asters.

The groom was attended by Walter Clayton Whitehurst of Bethel, as best man. Ushers were Tom Vincent Davis and Sam Smith of Roanoke Rapids.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Foley of this city, is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College. For the past two years she has been a member of the faculty of the Roanoke Rapids public schools.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. J. A. Gurganus and the late Mr. Gurganus of Bethel. He received his education in the Bethel public schools and the University of North Carolina. At present he is employed as druggist at the Rosemary Drug Company in Roanoke Rapids.

After August 25 they will make their home in Roanoke Rapids.

Library News

Librarians concerned over world conditions are asking what libraries can do to help. Mr. Carl Milan, secretary of the American Library Association, answers in the July, 1940, Library Journal: "Expand and intensify our efforts to increase understanding and appreciation of American democracy." With this idea in mind, the Sheppard Memorial Library has recently acquired "Democracy," a book for children, by Ayllis and Omar Goslin.

A few years ago it would have seemed unnecessary to attempt to define the principles of democracy for a ten or an eleven year old. Today it is obviously important, that people, even so young as this, understand the aims and ideals behind our form of government.

In this book the democratic principles of freedom, tolerance and equal opportunity are explained in two ways. The seven short chapters reduce this abstraction to terms within any youngster's own experience. The carefully chosen photographs build up a graphic impression of the purposes of democracy even more strikingly than the text. The pictures appear in pairs on facing pages. For example, a left-hand picture shows a puppet operated by strings with the caption, "Dependent on a String." Opposite is the photograph of an acrobatic team successfully performing a difficult balancing stunt in which each man plays an essential part. The caption reads, "Dependent on One Another."

This is an all important and timely book for young Americans. We should not allow our children to take for granted the privileges and responsibilities of our democracy when the youth of other countries are being instilled with opposing ideals of life.

A Strike For Beauty, A Spare For Health

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

For several years there's been a theory that you can stretch your way to beauty, that the more you stretch, the more beautiful you are. Now the theory is: The more rhythm you get into regular stretching, the more health and the more grace you add to your beauty.

So it's a heyday for sports like swimming, tennis and bowling. The better you play the game, the more rhythmic stretching you're supposed to do and the more graceful you should become.

Take bowling, for example. The new season will soon open.

Swear By It
Feminine bowling enthusiasts swear by bowling as an aid to changing a bulky midriff of relaxed muscles into healthy slenderness.

They also say good bowling helps put roundness into too-thin necks and chests.

Many women bowlers recommend careful timing and correct footwork, not only to add to the skill of your game, but also to develop proper balance of your weight and improve posture.

The stance is all-important, they insist. And the way to get it, they say, is to stand 15 to 20 feet back of the foul line, with your body at full height, your weight on both feet and your shoulders parallel with the foul line.

Go Slow At First
If you're going to get the most out of a game in the way of fun and better figure, they say, take it slowly at first and in small doses. Then progress, if you wish, toward an hour of bowling a day to keep the bulges away.

Mary Jane Hebert, a champion, found her way to health via bowling after an accident left her with a disabled leg.

LIFE OF COPS NO HAPPY ONE

Famous Quip Confirmed By Survey In This State

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, August 19.—In one of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas there is a line: "The policeman's lot is not a happy one."

This quip of the famous musicians is amply confirmed by the study recently made by the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

To begin with only Durham, Lumberton and Raleigh fall to require most of their men to work seven days a week, though there is some balm in the fact that all given vacations, usually ten days.

The highest salaried police chief is Charlotte's who earns $3,300. Longest hours are worked by the chief in New Bern who is on duty no less than 15 hours out of every 24.

Police chiefs are paid from $1,622 to $3,200, but they, and their men, generally work twelve hours a day seven days a week.

In cities of 12,000 or more the patrolmen and clerks are paid from $1,200 to $1,500 a year; and in these larger municipalities the work day is eight hours.

Pay in the smaller cities is approximately the same as in the larger, but the patrolmen and clerks work 12 hours daily instead of eight.

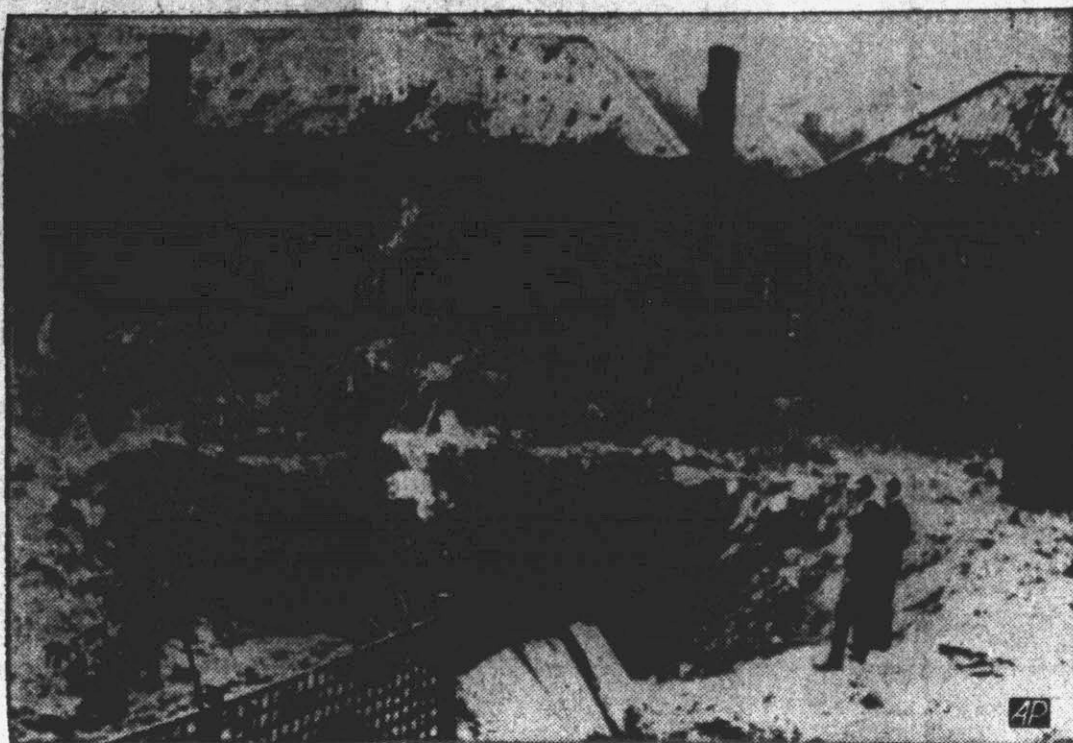

These facts were turned up in the League's study of police salaries, work hours and vacation periods in 45 of the State's 58 municipalities of more than 3,000 population.

Eleven cities reported having assistant chiefs, ten have fingerprint operators, five superintendents of radio and five identification chiefs.

BUILDS MODEL OF SHIP ANCESTOR COMMANDED

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Walter Hull, whose great-grandfather commanded "Old Ironsides" in her famous battle with the English ship Guerriere in the war of 1812, is finishing a scale model of the ship that relative Isaac Hull piloted to victory. A sailor since childhood, Hull has built many models for the Milwaukee public museum, and the American frigate Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides," will be placed on exhibition there. Hull's family came from Barnstable, England, and founded Barnstable, Mass., in the seventeenth century. His grandfather, the late K. C. Barker, a former mayor of Detroit, Mich., was commander of the International Yacht Club of the Great Lakes.

Nazi Calling Card At Croyon

This cablephoto from London shows a bomb crater made August 15 when Nazi air bombers raided the Croydon district, an airport suburb of London. The Air Ministry announced that every plane taking part in the Croydon raid was downed before it returned to Germany. But bigger raids struck the light little island the following day.

Hitler's Bomb Wrath Let Loose On London

This cablephoto from London shows, according to British censor-approved caption, a dwelling smashed by a German bomb which was dropped in southwest suburban London during the mass raid over the city of London and its environs August 16. Firemen and air raid precautions men view the wreckage.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

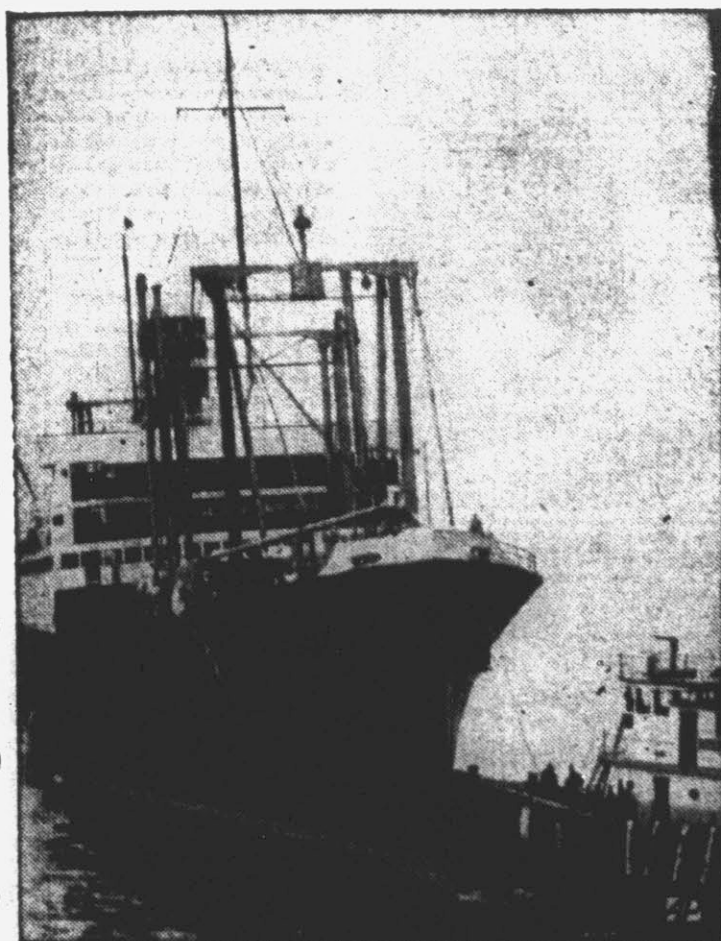

By Robbie Coyle

Hollywood.—What will keep Shirley Temple off the New York stage next season, if anything does, is sentiment—her parents' sentiment. They have Shirley in a regular school now, where she's making friends with regular schoolmates after years of movie-set schooling, and they don't want to uproot her. . . . The money doesn't matter, and no fooling. . . . Funny thing is that Nat Karson, the young Broadwayman who wants to co-star Shirley with Bill Robinson in a musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" (and has won at least the Temple interest), is sentimental too. . . . "It's a question of a little girl and what's best for her," says Nat. "I know it, and I can't high-pressure them while I know it."

Laird Cregar, who played "Oscar Wilde" here on the stage, will be in "Hudson's Bay Company" with Henry Fonda. . . . It's hard to believe what with Frank Capra's interest in modern life, that he'll do "Don Quixote" after "Meet John Doe," but that's the word from headquarters. . . . The satire on chivalry, of course, will have modern implications or it won't be Capra. . . . All was not roses between James Cagney and Anatole Litvak, his director on "City of Conquest." . . . After the finish, Cagney shook hands and said sincerely, "Working with you Toke, has been quite an experience!" . . . Is there a better diplomat in the house? . . .

Groucho Marx, on the "Go West" set, discourses on the sad fate of "poor Marion," his wife for 20 years. "A comedian's wife hears over and over, in all sorts of locales and before all manner of people, the same nifties her husband tosses out to study audience reaction. . . . She not only must listen with apparent interest and amusement, but often she must leap into the breach to become the foil. . . . She knows all the answers to his merry quips. . . . It's the comic's curse that he has to be 'funny' around other people. Unless he tries they say he's funny only when someone else writes his material. That's ruinous. . . . So he struggles to be a merry fellow and his wife suffers. . . ." (Groucho is sobbing now.) "No wonder she becomes a great home lover and shudders at going out in public. At home the comic doesn't have to be funny."

U. S. Refugee Ship In Danger Zone

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

PRINCIPLES NEVER CHANGE

People throughout the world seem to have lost faith in authority. They have lost faith in the authority of government, and whereas twenty-five years ago practically everyone paid lip service at least to the ideals of democracy, there are millions of people in the world today who believe that democracy is the worst of all possible forms of government. People have lost faith in many of the moral sanctions. It is useless for us to say the world is more pure and honest than it once was. The patterns of dishonesty and immorality change with the passing years, but the vices remain. People today are no longer shocked by behavior that would have shocked all right-thinking people a generation ago. Immorality today frequently does not cut people off from the society of their friends. The world has come to the place where it shrugs its shoulders at such derelictions and maintains that right and wrong are largely a matter of custom.

History shows what happens to nations which deny the authority of moral sanctions, and this nation of ours and any other which tries to deny the validity and universality of moral principle will discover how barren and vain is such procedure. God has established the world in which we live upon spiritual principles which are as unchanging as physical principles.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinner

Washington. — Occasionally, a word dropped here has strange repercussions. Because a Texas reader had more than passing interest in one of these columns, there is a new word of doing things in the office of Herbert E. Gaston, assistant secretary of the treasury.

It happened this way: In those days when the Nazis were blitz-krieging France and the Red Cross was bemoaning the fact that money from its current campaign was not readily available, the Texas wrote the treasury department with a plan for financing immediate Red Cross aid.

The letter went into Gaston's office, where thousands of letters are received daily.

One of Gaston's assistants read it and answered with one of those formal letters—you know, 202A—something to the effect that "Your suggestion has been received and filed for consideration by the proper authority."

Learned Of Grady
The Texas was a bit miffed but did nothing about it until he ran across one of these columns, in which the story of James P. Grady who told the man who is slowly revolutionizing the contact of government departments with the public by teaching thousands of clerks and assistants how to write courteous and intelligent letters.

Grady, knowing Gaston personally, telephoned him with the idea of ribbing him, but Gaston refused to rib. He insisted that Grady have a talk with him.

The talk lasted a couple of hours and as a result there's a new setup in Gaston's office.

Things aren't done there any more as they used to be done and the gentleman in Texas will be happy to know that nobody else will catch form 202A if he writes in with a good suggestion.

Where's The Cup?
Here's one the newsboys overlooked: Major Paul McGahan is an earnest and devoted American Legionnaire.

Some years ago he donated to the District of Columbia Legion a beautiful cup ("why, it cost me 80 bucks," he says, "and that was wholesale") to be given each year to the post gaining the most members.

This year the cup was won by the Police post and Major McGahan was asked to present it.

After properly lauding the post for its fine work, McGahan merely handed the Police post commander a sheet of paper and concluded: "I can't tell you how happy I am that you have won this honor, but if you want the cup you'll have to go out and find it. It was stolen last night."

For Carrying Subs
Add to the war inventions now pouring forth upon the army and navy from the fertile brains of inventors: A submarine carrier!

As I get it, the mother boat would have a lot of funnels running through her hull at waterline.

In these, tiny submarines would be berthed while the big ship scoured the seas.

When the enemy was sighted, the little submarines would run out and descend on the enemy like a school of death-dealing guppies... get the job done... and come home to rest in the hull of the mother ship.

Short Shots
Raleigh, Aug. 19—Wake county's Young Democratic fight kept up briskly until an hour or so before the meeting Friday night, when it collapsed in a heap. And so young Carey Dowd was named president "by acclamation."

Inside story of the maneuvers which led to the peaceful solution hasn't yet become known.

Comes this bit of comedy from the Salisbury office of the State Employment Service, via the N.C.E.S. News:

Salisbury Interviewer: "You say you like to cook. What can you cook best?"
Applicant: "I like to cook groceries best."

The State News Bureau has done a fine piece on Judge "Bill" Bramham, of minor league baseball, whom it credits with most of the growth of minor leagues from 11 in 1932 to 44 this season.

The article relates how Bramham was such a fine baseball man that he was once president of four leagues at the same time. It neglected to carry through with the fact that every one of the four "blew up."

Wade Ison, State College athletic publicist, closes as brief on practicing of freshman football beginning September 10 thus: "A promising squad is anticipated by the mentor."

If stories of the material gathered under auspices of the Wolfpack club are true, Wade is an expert in understatement.

So far as this fall's State varsity goes, there can be no occasion to talk about the "furriners" in the lineup.

A survey of the roster of 51 cam-didates called to begin practice September 1 reveals that no less than 42 are Tar Heels, one is a Tennessee, one is a Floridian, three are Pennsylvanians, three are New Yorkers and one is a West Virginian.

Carl Goerch's "State" this week carries four pairs of counties which are not only geographic neighbors, but which are together in the alphabetic list of counties.

They are: Davidson and Davie; Haywood and Henderson; Montgomery and Moore; Stokes and Surry.

That's the entire list, but there are at least nine other pairs of counties beginning with the same letter and joined geographically.

Alleghany and Ashe; Camden and Currituck; Cherokee and Clay; Craven and Carteret; Caldwell and Catawba; Catawba and Cleveland; Mitchell and McDowell; Pasquotank and Perquimans; Wayne and Wilson.

And maybe there are more, this list is given without looking at a map or checking up.

"Look, the weather forecast for today is much more favorable!" exclaimed your reporter's spouse after reading Friday afternoon's paper. "It says 'Mostly cloudy with scattered showers,' which will be quite a relief from the constant rain we've been having."

Man About Manhattan

Charlottesville, Va.—The personnel of this movie caravan from Hollywood and New York is scattered all over the Virginia countryside.

Miss Carroll, Mr. MacMurray, Mr. Rutherford and the other principals are staying at the Farmington Hunt Club.

Leigh Whipper, the splendid negro actor who played the part of the stable hand in "Of Mice and Men" so well on Broadway, and who plays the role of "Uncle Ezekiel" in "Virginia," is staying with the junior of the Charlottesville Daily Progress, on Vinegar Hill.

Edward H. Griffith, the producer-director, and his staff are maintaining quarters at the Monticello Hotel, in town. The Paramount press staff has leased Piedmont Manor, a magnificent estate about 12 miles out of the city. Piedmont is in the old time tradition, with white columns and a winding approach.

The house sets about a quarter of a mile from the road, and originally the grounds included 6,000 acres. These acres have dwindled to about 600 now, but the view is as breathtaking as it ever was. When you stand on the veranda and gaze across the valley to the blue-tinged hills, the beauty of it gets in your eyes.

One of the unlooked-for contretemps of this pilgrimage to the Old Dominion has turned out to be what Director Griffith calls "a rather expensive Act of God."

They tried to foresee all the eventualities, but they missed on one thing. This is the year for 17-year locusts. When the locusts sing, they drown out the actors. The sensitive microphones pick up everything.

In desperation (because the delay was costing money) Griffith ordered ropes attached to the tree-tops. He hired 20 men to tug at these ropes, hoping that the disturbance would lull the little pests into silence. But it didn't work.

Griffith mopped his brow and sighed. "These locusts are more temperamental than any star I ever saw," he said. "They are preening themselves, confounding them, and their love-making is costing Paramount $2,000 a day."

Finally, somebody remembered that the pests never sang after a rain. So a fire truck was obtained

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: Taylor, the manager of El Cabrillo Rancho, has offered $50,000 for the ranch. Constance Cabrillo's family is eager to sell but she knows the money will soon vanish. She decides to go to California and investigate.

Chapter Three

Fuller's Junction

CONSTANCE CABRILLO stopped twice enroute to the airport, once to telephone and learn that the plane was leaving at seven and to make a reservation on it, the second time at her office where she spent a precious half-hour closeted with the head of the realty firm.

That man wiped his brow as she whisked away.

"I hope she never tries to sell me the Empire State Building," he wheezed to his secretary. "I'd buy it."

"Shall I lie to the family for you?" asked the secretary sympathetically.

"If you will," he replied, wearily, and listened to the young woman inform the Cabrillos that he had sent Miss Constance on an important mission; that he did not give out information on prospective purchases of out-of-town ter-

"No," she admitted, "but I had hoped to hire a cab which would take me to El Cabrillo Rancho." "El Cabrillo," mused the man. "Oh, you mean Taylor's ranch." Constance immediately hated Taylor. So the countryside already thought of her home as belonging to the manager, did they?

"Well, now," the station master continued. "Can't say as there's a cab within a hundred miles, but Sam," he called, and one of the loafers separated himself from a milk can. Is Min renting out Tim's car these days?"

"Shore is," drawled Sam. "Two bits an hour, lest you like a flat rate, and promise of pay for repairs. Min ain't aimin' to pay no more on that bus. It like to look all Tim's insurance to fix it so it'd run agin' after Tim-killed himself in it."

Constance swallowed, but it was Min's Tim's car or the next train back, and where would she wait for the train? There wasn't a hotel in sight. She could see the entire town from where she stood, and only a barber shop and post office, a general store and undertaking parlor and a garage were visible.

Sam offered to take her to Min and grew loquacious on the way. "Bet you're a-goin' out to see Felen," he offered. "He shore has a way with girls. Been back from college goin' on six years, but itory, consequently he could not tell them where she was; that she kept an overnight bag at the office, packed for such trips.

There was a sudden lifting of the fog.

Constance garaged her car, signaled a cab and drove to the airport, smiling a little at the thought of a Cabrillo taking a trans-continental trip with no more luggage than she carried.

She thought of the Cabrillos for the next sixteen hours while the big ship roared through the sky: under stars, under sunshine, under plains misty with the first fall rains, over mountains blazing white with their new mantles of snow.

As the ship circled in over San Francisco Bay, she thought of John with a guilty start, and wondered how long he had waited for her.

She felt as lost and alone as the plane looked in that sea of fog, and later, breakfasting at the airport, wondered if she had done wrong; if it hadn't been the Cabrillo in her that had caused her to throw her hard-earned commission away on this trip when she might have paid bills with it.

By noon, boarding a local train which would steam its way to the town nearest the ranch, she was trying to comfort herself with the thought that her father wouldn't have left that provision in the will if he hadn't expected her to act as she was acting.

And then she relaxed. Outside the window were tawny hills glowing purple in the distance; pale golden valleys dotted with grazing herds; fruit orchards, crooked limbs holding tattered yellow leaves.

Then came the redwoods. The train plunged into a dusky cavern of them, seemed to nosy a stream half-hidden in a thicket of young bay trees, and finding the bank, proceeded along it at an insolent pace.

Hours passed and Constance dozed to sit up, alert, at the brakeman's call of "Fuller's Junction!"

'Taylor's Ranch'
THE train was in a clearing now, the hills falling away to give the river clearance to the sea, and when it stopped, Constance looked out from the vestibule to find fog rolling in, in vast, wet billows which settled down, crushing the few buildings of the junction into nonentity.

She felt her spirit crushed with the foreboding outlook, and when the train pulled out she felt it was her last link with civilization. "Expectin' to be met?"

and before each shot the giant hose played on the trees, whipping them down with artificial rain. The ruse worked.

There also is on this set a young man named Sterling Hayden, who is making his first picture. Hayden is a yachtsman and sportsman but he doesn't know anything about riding. All his medals for seamanship did him no good when he climbed on a stepladder. He didn't even understand horse lingo, and so the laugh of the camp now is the way Director Griffith gives Hayden direction in nautical terms. "Okay, Hayden, hard astern," yells Griffith when he wants the actor to back up his horse. The riders of the

PLAY MARTINS HERE TONIGHT

Caligiuri Racks Up 17th Win Of Season Saturday

The Greenies split even on the week-end play, Freddy Caligiuri getting his 17th win of the season in a game with Snow Hill here Saturday night and the locals suffering a 6-5 loss to the Williamston Martins yesterday.

The Martins will play the Greenies tonight at Guy Smith park and Harry Jenkins is scheduled to hurl for the locals.

The Greenies also will be at home tomorrow night when they meet New Bern in a postponed Caligiuri night program. Tickets distributed last week for Caligiuri Night will be good for tomorrow night. The honor player is scheduled to hurl one of the games with the Bears, the first of which is to start at 7:30. Appropriate exercises will be held between the two games.

In getting his 17th win this year the Greenville ace proved effective in the pinches and took the Billies 5-3, although each team got 10 hits. The Greenies had one big inning, the fifth, in which they scored four. They had pushed one across in the fourth frame.

The locals dropped a tough one to the Martins in Williamston yesterday afternoon. They scored three in the fourth to take the lead after the Martins scored one each in the second and third. The lead was short-lived, however, as the Martins got another in their half of the fourth to knot the count at three-all. The Greenies again took the lead in the sixth and the Martins again knotted the count in the seventh. Neither team was able to score in the next two innings and the contest entered the extra-frame stage. Greenville got one in the tenth and things looked good for the locals, but the Martins matched it in their half and then held the Greenies scoreless in the eleventh.

The Martins scored in their half of the eleventh to win the verdict.

SELL OUT SOON FOR DUKE - UNC

All Tickets Expected To Be Gone In Short Time

Chapel Hill, Aug. 19.—Less than 2500 tickets for the Carolina-Duke game remain unsold here and at Duke, and they are temporary seats in the east stands and down in front of the concrete stands, athletic officials of the University of North Carolina announced today.

Although the public sale opened yesterday, a limit is being placed on the number of tickets being sold to any individual, in an effort to prevent scalping.

"At the present rate of sale, we may have to announce a complete sell-out any day now," officials said. The ticket office said a number of squeaks were coming in from alumni who felt the date of their applications should justify more desirable seats.

"You will be doing us a great favor," an athletic official said, "if you will explain through the press and radio that eight thousand of the 24,000 seats in the concrete stands had to be reserved for students and faculty of Carolina and Duke before any orders could be accepted from alumni. This left only 16,000 and of these all within the 20-yard lines had been sold by July 3, only three days after applications were acceptable, and all seats in the concrete stands had been sold within two weeks after the alumni sale opened July 1. We have adhered strictly to the policy of filling applications in the order of their acceptance. We felt that was the only fair way to handle them."

STAGE ALL SET FOR SOFTBALL

Hope To Start Play-Off Series At 8 Tonight

If the weather permits, the postponed championship play in the Greenville softball league will get under way at Third Street park tonight at 8 o'clock with the winners in the semi-finals. Double Cola and Pepsi Cola meeting in the first of a seven-game series.

Double Cola will be the home team tonight, having wound up the regular season at the top of the standings. The team by virtue of winning the regular season play will receive a trophy, with a larger one to go to the winner of the play-off.

Only one game is scheduled each night and the first team to win four games will be declared the winner.

Pepsi Cola defeated Blount-Harvey in the semi-finals, while Double Cola won over Carolina Sales. The semi-finals were completed two weeks ago and were postponed until after the Eastern Carolina invitational softball tournament. Since completion of the tourney rains have held up start of play, but if the rains hold up today the final will get under way tonight on schedule.

MAKING PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Democrats Clear Decks For Fall Victory March

Raleigh, August 19.—The Democratic party has put a new crew in charge of its campaign machinery and are now ready to open vigorously its campaign to insure the normal majorities for the national, state and county tickets.

A clean sweep, from constable to president is the objective; and there are no signs of unusually heavy storm clouds on the political horizon.

Everywhere it is conceded that in some of the counties, notably such industrial strongholds as Guilford, Gaston, Mecklenburg, etc., there is going to be considerable disaffection among the business tycoons, who hate President Roosevelt and feel that they will be backing one of their own in Wendell Willkie, a big utility executive until after his nomination by the Republicans.

On the other hand new party leaders, State Chairman E. B. Denny, Vice Chairman Mrs. McCain and Secretary Arch T. Allen, while saying nothing very definite for publication at this time, are obviously optimistic of the usual party success in November.

Those who make it their business to keep tab on the public's political pulse share this optimism to a great degree, although they are almost unanimously of the opinion that the Roosevelt majority will not be as overwhelming as it was four years ago.

In 1936 the President ran nearly 75,000 votes ahead of Governor Clyde R. Hoey. There is a suspicion that this time, Governor-to-be J. M. Broughton will likely run slightly ahead of the President, though you can get an argument on that in some quarters.

Even so, there is nothing to indicate that the Broughton vote will be materially less than the Hoey support of 1936. Even if it should be, however, the Democratic candi-

Queen Alice Has Her Worries

Alice ranks Helen Jacobs as the No. 1 title threat.

AP Feature Service

It's been a long while since Alice Marble had to congratulate a conqueror. And on her play this year against all comers it would seem her undefeated stretch probably will continue into 1941 without interruption. Queen Alice, though—says Queen Alice—has her worries. Several fast-rising youngsters and a pair of veterans are constantly nipping at her heels and one of them may—just may, mind you—hit a one-day peak brilliant enough to topple the Californian in the nationals at Forest Hills. Alice considers the veteran Helen Jacobs as the player most likely to dethrone her. Helen carried the champ to three terrific sets in the 1939 finals.

Sarah Palfrey, last year's No. 3 U. S. women's player, is another court veteran considered dangerous.

Among the newcomers, California's Virginia Wolfenden might give the queen trouble. She carried Alice to three sets last year, top. Pat Canning, Pauline Betz, Helen Bernhard, Dorothy Bundy, Mary Arnold and Hope Knowles are other tennisists who have shown enough to be classified as possible contenders should the fierce game of the champion let up for just a few sets, Alice, though, shows no signs of letting up. And so the experts say it looks like another Marble year.

Alice may worry but her game fails to show it.

DATE COULD YIELD EVEN 10,000 VOTES TO HIS REPUBLICAN OPPONENT AND STILL COME IN COMFORTABLY AHEAD.

Hoey polled 542,139 to 270,843 for Gilliam Grisson; while Roosevelt's total was 616,141 to Landan's 223,283.

Democratic leaders are convinced that there are not 100,000 disaffections, but even if there were, Broughton could still win by something more than 70,000 majority, and it would take a switch of almost 200,000 votes, or one in three from his 1936 total, to put Roosevelt in the losing column.

And so it appears to most analysts that any talk of a Republican success in North Carolina this year is pure hog wash and nothing else. It would take a frenzy of fanatical fervor, such as defeated the Pope in 1928 in North Carolina, to swing the state and there is no outward evidence that the Third Term or New Deal issue has roused the State in general to any such pitch.

Democratic big wigs are even sincerely confident that very few seats will be lost in the General Assembly. They say that such disaffection as does exist is to be found mostly in the heavy-voting industrial counties where the party has such a wide margin it can stand a great deal of ticket slashing. On the other hand, they contend, there is no sign that the Democrats of the ordinarily close counties are going to do anything other than vote against the "Damned Radicals" as usual.

All 4-H club members who are planning to attend the short course at A. and T. College, Greensboro, N. C., will please let me see you some time this week. We have this office Monday, August 26 at 8 o'clock a. m. Be on time to avoid any delay in starting. Please come to the office as soon as you can.
A very fine district meeting was held by the farmers at New Bern August 14-15. Attendance was large, and everybody enjoyed the outing. While the summer is yielding many good things to eat, please lay some of them aside for winter. During these shifting scenes one can't tell what will take place, so it is well to prepare for winter. Right out of the dry spell into the rain, and it might be for all we know right out of the heat into the cold and snow. See that you have 57 pints of vegetables for each one in the family, a good winter garden, plenty of feed for livestock and food for family, chickens to lay and some to eat, hogs to kill and plenty of wood on the yard.—Dennis DuPre, Negro County Agent.

Part Of Throng That Heard Willkie

So thick was the sweltering crowd that heard Wendell Willkie accept the Republican presidential nomination in Elwood, Ind., that it was even difficult to find Willkie himself as he spoke into the microphones. Willkie (arrow) is shown here speaking before the crowd estimated at between 150,000 and 250,000. This shows one section of the huge throng.

Floods New Ammunition For Anti-Diversionists

By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, August 19.—The damage to North Carolina's highways from current flood waters is already providing opponents of any diversion of highway funds with new argumentative ammunition.
The amount of this damage is as yet undetermined and it will likely be some time before any really accurate estimate can be made. It appears, however, that it will run into the millions, in view of the number of bridges washed out and the extent of damage to surface by washouts in many sections.
The diversion opponents are now resorting to the chief catch-word of those who have argued against them—"emergency." In the past it has been constantly dinned into the public's ear that highway funds should not be held sacred so that they could not be used for other purposes in an "emergency."
Now the "emergency" shoe is on the other foot and foes of diversion are pointing out that an "emergency" affecting the highways and making more money necessary for their maintenance can arise even more quickly and with less warning than can one affecting the general funds. General fund "emergencies," they say almost always give plenty

Demonstration On Grading Arranged

Raleigh, August 19.—Plans for a series of tobacco grading demonstrations in the principal flue-cured counties of the state were announced today by L. T. Weeks, extension tobacco specialist of N. C. State College. They will continue through October 21.
Hugh W. Taylor, tobacco marketing specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is cooperating with Weeks in arranging for the instruction at the grading schools. He has assigned W. L. Bradsher and J. O. Armistead, federal specialists, to help the demonstrations. Weeks said that county farm agents of the Extension Service will make local arrangements, including setting times and selecting sites for the schools.
The scheduled announced by Weeks includes Pitt, September 10 and 11.
Weeks said that two demonstrations will be given daily in a county. They will be held in grading sheds of centrally-located farmers.

At some other point, but added that it was a war of machine against man.
The Frenchman on the street wanted France to continue the fight even after the invasion of Paris by the Germans, according to Mr. Humber.
Asked if he thought it would be useless for France to continue the fight, Mr. Humber answered indirectly by declaring that what the country needed was a "Clemenceau, a tiger—but it had none." He added, however, that Reynaud was a man of sound courage and opposed to the end the proposal to ask Hitler for terms. He said that the Petain government took the position that men could not be matched against machines in warfare, but added it did not take into account the determined stamina of the French people.
Mr. Humber said he believed it would have been better for the French army for the government to have retired to some peninsula possession or even to South Africa if necessary than to have asked for terms.
He said the French men and equipment could even have been transferred to Britain and the interim used in reinforcing the motorized equipment.
The French citizenry, he said, felt it was better to perish than to live as slaves.
Mr. Humber was certain there will be a resurrection. "This is not the end for France," he said.
"This is definitely the end of one epoch and the beginning of another," he asserted, adding "the new age will not be based on nationalism, which method has proven to be incompetent, but will be based on international society."

He cautioned, however, that if America sends food to these invaded countries, such shipments should be carefully supervised in order to make sure that it was distributed to the suffering natives and not fall into the hands of the Germans.
Mr. Humber in a comparison of King Leopold of Belgium and the late King Albert, said the son lacked some of the most outstanding qualities of his father and Leopold severed some of the closest ties between his country and France. Mr. Humber recounted how Leopold had placed Germany and France on equal basis in their relations with Belgium.
The comparison was brought out preliminary to a reply to the question of the cause and effect of Leopold's capitulation.
He said the Belgian soldiers themselves did not want to give up the fight, and that the capitulation of their king came as a surprise to them. Mr. Humber termed the king's act as treason and declared it unconstitutional in that the monarch was unable to get a single minister to sign the order, as was required under Belgian laws regarding such a decree by the king.
After relating how the French and British had confidence in the Belgians, Mr. Humber related how King Leopold had allowed French soldiers to stand at the border for hours before asking for aid, and during which time the German legions were entering Belgium and establishing defense positions on the Albert canal, key to the nation's defense. Mr. Humber said that if the French had been allowed to enter immediately after the German invasion of Belgium they would have been able to establish positions on the canal and to have offered effective resistance to the Nazis.
The withdrawal of the Belgian army from the Allies' lines without any advance notice to Britain or France left the Allies in a position which forced them, too, to retreat, declared Mr. Humber, who paid high tribute to the French soldiers, saying that no army was superior in military quality. He added that they were trained magnificently, but unequipped for a mechanized war such as the lightning one Hitler has conducted.
After the Belgians withdrew leaving the British and French forced with the problem of fighting their way to a channel city, Mr. Humber said the Allies decided on Dunkerque and declared that the capture of that coastal city from the Germans was one of the most heroic acts in the history of warfare.
The effect of what Mr. Humber termed the "treason of Leopold" will never definitely be known, he said in reply to a question if he believed the Allies could have held out in France if the Belgians had not capitulated.
He said that after the bloody battle of Flanders the French were confident that they could establish lines
