DIES ASSERTS NAZIS ACTIVE ON THIS SIDE

Declares German Propaganda Being Disseminated

PROPOSES LAW AGAINST ACTION

To Seek Enactment Of Law Forbidding Operation Of Foreign-Controlled Organizations

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Representative Martin Dies, declaring that many German-Americans were being compelled to help disseminate Nazi propaganda in this country through fear for their relatives abroad, announced today that he would seek enactment of a law forbidding the operation of any foreign controlled organization in the United States.

Dies, chairman of the House committee investigating subversive activities, said he and his associates had obtained "definite evidence" that the country was being flooded with Nazi propaganda sent free through the United States mails.

"The evidence shows," he said, "that there is a definite program in this country: first, to prevent any adequate national defense; second, to prevent this country from assisting England; and third, the presence of foreign agents in key industries in America places them in a strategic position for espionage and sabotage."

Dies, who began a series of private hearings in New York this afternoon, said he was convinced that the axis powers had set up a central agency in Europe for the distribution of propaganda in this country.

"Under existing postal regulations," he said, "the dissemination of this propaganda does not cost Germany anything."

Tar River Waters Receding Rapidly

The Tar river here was receding rapidly today and had gone down to 16.4 feet after having reached a crest of 22.2 feet last week.

B. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather station, said that the stream probably would be back in its banks by Wednesday morning.

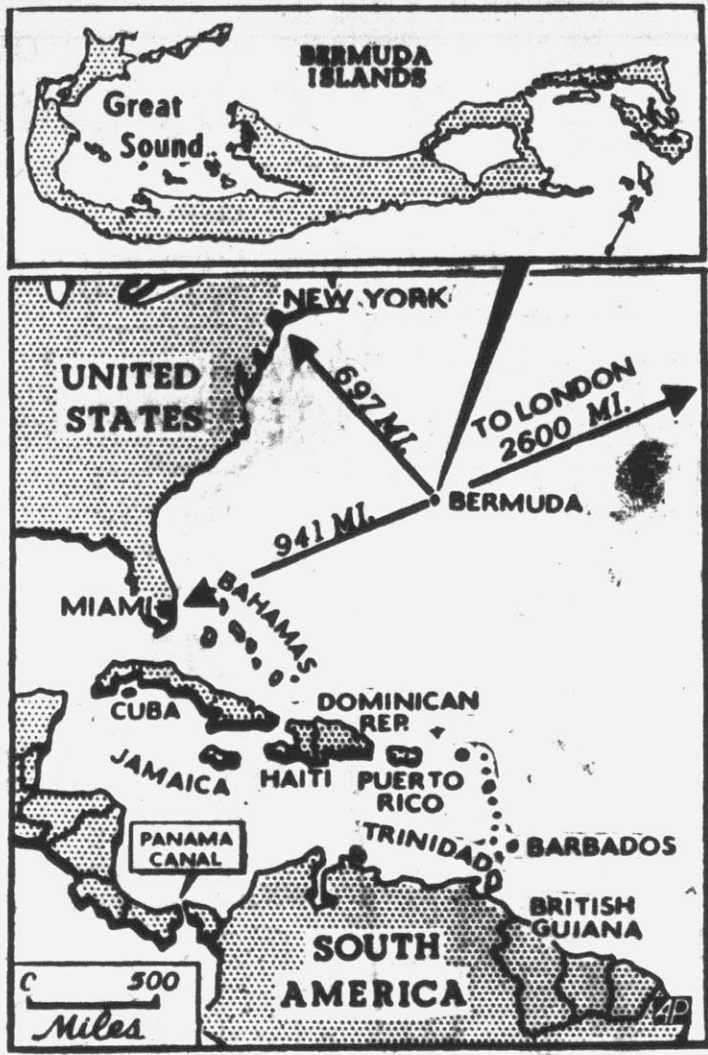

Mr. Clark said that damage, mostly to crops, reported to date totaled $25,000 or $30,000. He also added that farmers had reported savings of $4,000 or $5,000 as a result of warnings that the river would flood.

Figures Contained In Report Based On Treasury Statistics Reveal That Large Contracts Outstanding Despite Fact Procurement Funds Still Tied Up In Defense Bill

Washington, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Defense Commission reported to President Roosevelt today that contracts for 6,747 army and navy planes were outstanding as of August 17, despite the fact that funds for much of the aircraft procurement program were still tied up in the $5,008,000,000 defense bill.

The figures were contained in a report based on Treasury department figures which were brought to the White House by Robert Horton, publicity director of the commission. The report said that as of August 17 contracts were "in the works" for 3,916 army planes, including 2,029 combat and observation planes, and 1,887 of other types, primarily training planes.

For the navy on that date, Horton said, contracts had been let for 2,831, including 1,221 combat and observation and 1,610 other types, mostly training.

Horton explained these figures covered contracts outstanding for planes yet to be delivered. Dates of delivery for the planes were not disclosed.

He was licensed to preach by the North Carolina Methodist conference about 1890 and served numerous pastorates throughout the state until 1930. His last pastorate being Kitty Hawk, N. C. He then came to Greenville to live and had resided here since.

Mr. Bruton is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Mattie Hearne Bruton, and two sons, Gaston Swinell Bruton of Sewanee, Tenn., and Lawrence A. Bruton of Alliance; one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Bruton Mann of Newport.

SENATE VOTES LIMIT NUMBER OF CONSCRIPTS

Only 900,000 To Be Under Training at One Time

REACH DECISION AS COMPROMISE

Sen. Sheppard Declares Limit on Number of Draftees Will Hamper War Department Plans

Washington, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Senate acted today to limit to 900,000 men the number of conscripts who might be in active training at any one time during peace under the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill.

The limitation was agreed to on a voice vote as a compromise between a proposal offered by Senator O'Mahoney (D.-Wyo.) for a limitation of 1,000,000 men and an amendment by Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.) for a limitation of 800,000.

Previously the bill had carried no limitation and Senator Sheppard (D.-Tex.) told his colleagues that it was the War Department's plan to train 3,400,000 conscripts in the next five years.

It was the War Department's intention, Sheppard said, to create a "possible army" of 4,000,000 men by early 1945.

Sheppard stated this goal during debate on enactment of conscription legislation. He coupled with it the statement that to limit the number of peace-time draftees to 900,000 during any one period would "seriously cripple" the War Department's plans.

Surviving besides her husband are three sons, Earl S. Jackson of Greenville, V. A. Jr., and Richard B. of Grimsland; four daughters, Mrs. Ed Galloway of Grimsland, Mrs. Leslie Fleming of Fayetteville, Mrs. Lloyd Whitchard of Grimsland, and Miss Edith Jackson of Grimsland; one brother, Butler Nooney of Columbia, N. In addition to these two highways, the Pillsborough bridge near Falkland is closed while repairs are being made to the fill.

BLAST COAST FOR 30 MILES

German Bombers are Sent Storming Over England In Retaliation For Royal Air Force Raid Over Berlin Yesterday; Nazis Reported To Failed In Attempt On London

London, Aug. 26.—(AP) German warplanes failed today in attempts again to pierce London's defenses, but massed Nazi raiders smashed at a 30-mile stretch of the south coast and showered several bombs on a wide area inland.

Two big waves of German bombers headed toward the capital were turned off by British fighters in a 10-minute battle in the clouds about 20,000 feet over the southeast coast. Machinegun and cannon fire of fighters escorting the bombers died away as the Germans made for home without breaking through, at least three of their planes falling as the battle's toll. Fourteen German planes were reported downed previously.

An air raid alarm earlier sent Londoners underground for the sixth time since Saturday, but the metropolitan area was untouched.

An Air Ministry spokesman said the German air forces had suffered a "very sharp reverse" in daylight raids and that increasing night attacks apparently indicated a change of tactics.

(German reports said British planes were downed in air fighting today at a rate of five to every German plane lost).

London's millions went scurrying to shelter at 3:26 p. m. (0:26 a. m. EST) when alarm sirens screamed, but they emerged again when the all-clear signal was given 37 minutes later without any sign of raiders or any activity by the city anti-aircraft guns.

Crossing the southeast coast in swarms, the Germans attempted to reach London after day-long attacks on Dover and Folkestone.

The day's biggest battle raged over Dover, the English channel port only 22 miles from the French coast. Four of the attackers were down here.

Folkestone, a town of 35,000 population, bore the brunt of the heavy attack in which two of the German attackers were shot down after creating scenes of horror among the population. (Folkestone is southwest of Dover and 26 miles from Boulogne, France.)

South Foreland, sparsely settled sandy wastes northeast of Dover near the royal military school, was the scene of the day's third major attack.

The dull roar of bombs was heard at intervals through the raging battle all along the coast east of Dover to Folkestone, at the lower tip of "hell's corner."

The German attackers and British challengers battled desperately for almost two hours, the planes plunging so low over Folkestone that RAF men guarding the barrage balloons opened fire on the raiding craft with rifles.

Judge Thompson States Duties Of Grand Jury

J. E. Dees Of Greenville Heads County Group

The first criminal session of the Fall term of court was convened here this morning with Judge C. E. Thompson of Elizabeth City presiding and a new Grand Jury, with J. E. Dees of Greenville as foreman, was drawn and sworn in at the start of the session.

In addition to the foreman, the new Grand Jury, to serve six months, is composed of the following: Hubert Mozingo, D. C. Jackson, J. C. Williams, Elias Nobles, L. T. Hardee, Jr., R. H. Worthington, Leslie Jones, Nathan Barnhill, C. V. Anderson, W. P. Young, Tomby Jones, David H. Smith, John H. Tugwell, Jr., Z. W. Brown, Claude Harrington, Vernon B. Cox and Jim Jones.

After the members were sworn in Judge Thompson outlined at length their duties and a history of the Grand Jury system.

The origin of the system is of very ancient origin, he declared, going back for many centuries. "It is an institution of English speaking countries of historic interest by reason of the obscurity surrounding its origin, its gradual development and the part it has played in some of the most stirring events in the history of the Anglo Saxon race," he continued.

He said that the Grand Jury system stood out as a barrier against persecution in the struggles which formerly arose in England between the powers of the king and the rights of the subject.

Christian Science Church. "Mind" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies Sunday, August 25.

The golden text was from Daniel 2:20, 21. "Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever; for wisdom and might are his... he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever. A-men." (Romans 11: 33, 34, 35).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. "The understanding that the Ego is Mind, and that there is but one Mind or Intelligence, begins at once to destroy the errors of mortal sense and to supply the truth of immortal sense. All the objects of God's-creation reflect one Mind, and what-ever reflects not this one Mind is false and erroneous, even the belief that life, substance, and intelligence are both mental and material."

Book Review
"How To Read A Book." The art of getting a liberal education—by Mortimer T. Adler.

One of the surprises of this year in the book world is that thousands of people every day are buying a book that tells how to read a book. It is true that self-improvement books are having their day, but who would have predicted that a book by a college professor on how to read a book would become the best-selling non-fiction book of the summer. The popularity of the book seems to be due to the fact that people are really eager to learn how to do everything better. And its success should give us reasons for faith and hope in humanity.

The author, Dr. Adler, a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, says that reading is "the basic tool in the living of a good life," that it should be an active, not passive understanding, and that a book that is worth reading deserves three readings. The first reading is for analysis, the second for interpretation, and third for criticism and evaluation. These three readings form the basis for his rules for reading. Naturally, he has no patience with the person who reads for conversational benefits, or just to keep busy, or as a reward as one who is seeking a liberal education. And the author believes that the art in getting it lies in learning how to read a book. Quite true, since education is only begun when one leaves school or college.

The book appears to have been written for the average reader, the first half is easily read, the last half requires study. And he who studies it will be well paid. But when Dr. Adler makes his list of books to be read he falls far short of the average reader. One would have to learn how to read the books he mentioned or they would not be read. Probably that is why the book was conceived.

A Step At The Time

Next week it is "books."
All schools begin next Monday. The warm dry weather continues with us.

There may have been hotter summers than this, but we do not care to make the acquaintance of such. The Baptist Seminary at Ayden opened this morning with sixteen pupils, with prospects for a good school.

The old foot bridge on Evans street across the Academy branch has been torn down to make room for the sidewalk to be built in its place.

Remember, Congressman Small will meet with the people in the court house tonight to discuss the matter of establishing rural free delivery in Pitt county.

You can look out on any street even to "Buzard Roost" and see that Greenville is growing, and folks who see us only semi-occasionally are just astounded at the progress we are making.

ACTIVITIES OF THE BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMAN'S CLUB

Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth of Washington, D. C., member of the Board of Veterans' Appeals of the U. S. Veterans Administration, will make the keynote address which will open the southeast regional conference of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Bristol, Tenn., on August 30.

Mrs. Howorth will review the program theme of the Federation for the current biennium, "Business Women in a Democracy." Though she is now chairman of the public affairs committee, she was program coordination chairman when this study was set up, and is thus well qualified to speak on this subject. Mrs. Howorth's address will be followed by a discussion in which six state program coordination chairmen of the southeast region will take part. Among them will be Mrs. Oriana B. James of High Point, who, until her recent election as state recording secretary, was program coordination chairman for North Carolina.

Other speakers who will be heard during the conference, which will continue through September 2, are: Dr. Linnie L. Maffett, national president, of Dallas, Texas; Miss Irene H. Armes, director of field service, of New York; Miss Margaret Hickey of St. Louis, Mo.; and Miss Myrtle Ellen LaBarr of Greensboro. Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward of Washington, D. C., member of the Social Security Board, will also be heard at a luncheon to be given on Sunday, September 1.

Conference headquarters will be at Hotel Bristol, and the conference chairman is Mrs. Amelia S. Copenhafer, president of the Tennessee Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Jadeation In Jellies.
It is advisable to work with small quantities of jellies for jelly making—from 6 to 8 cups is plenty. The jelly can then quickly be made up, which lessens the likelihood of over cooking. Over-cooked jelly will not stiffen and will be impaired in flavor and color.

Billions for defense? Billions for relief? Yes, and billions for water.

A cup of water is a simple thing. Dipped from the old oaken bucket or caught at the town pump, its origin is simple, too.

But the cups of water with which millions of Americans quench their thirst are not supplied so simply.

Water for American cities—and for millions of acres of productive farm land—is available only as a result of great expenditures for dams, tunnels, and aqueducts, with the inevitable accompaniments of law suits, special elections and even sacrifice of human life.

At no time in American history have water projects had the attention they are receiving today.

Cities are prospecting for water as for gold. In the western half of the nation not only do the cities concern themselves with filling their mains, but tens of thousands of farmers rely on extensive systems of water storage and delivery for irrigation.

Always Close Race

Los Angeles and New York offer good examples of the lengths to which man must go in obtaining water. It has been a close race between the cities' engineers on one hand and the expanding needs of growing populations on the other.

The founders of Los Angeles discovered large underground basins easily tapped with artesian wells. The supply seemed endless, but in a few years the wells dried up. The city then looked to the Sierra Nevada range for more water and built the Owen river-aqueduct. Los Angeles continued to grow, as did its many neighbors. The Owen river water was not enough.

The solution came with the building of Boulder Dam and a $220,000,000 system of ditches, tunnels, siphons, pumps and reservoirs extending for 242 miles across desert and mountain ranges.

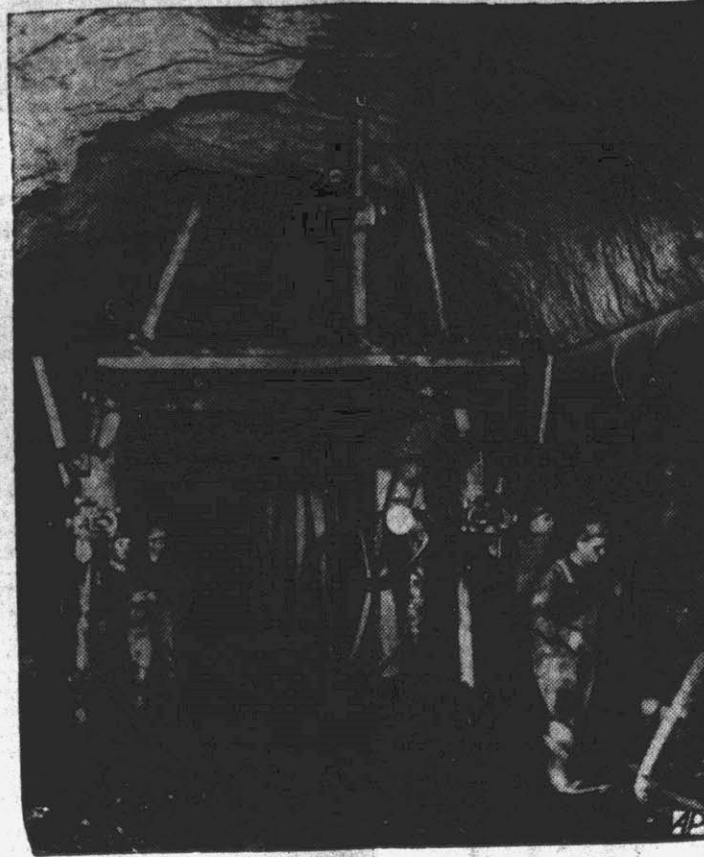

Problem Since 1898

Water for the city of New York has been a problem since 1898. One source after another has been tapped, but demand always has been close on the heels of supply.

Latest attempt to solve the problem is the building of the $300,000,000 Delaware aqueduct, scheduled for completion in 1945. New York gained access to water from the Delaware river basin only after an injunction, started by the state of New Jersey, had been carried to the United States supreme court.

Mining for water. These men work at depths as great as 1,515 feet on the 85-mile tunnel that will carry water from the Delaware watershed to meet the threat of a water shortage in New York City.

Approximately 7,000 men are engaged in construction, working at depths of 313 to 1,515 feet on a tunnel which will extend through solid rock for 85 miles. Despite safety measures, there are frequent accidents, some of which have been fatal.

New York will get 540 additional million gallons of water daily. This compares to an average daily consumption at present of approximately ly a billion gallons. Completion is scheduled for 1945.

National Symbols

Grand Coulee dam, "biggest thing on earth," Fort Peck dam, the TVA dams in the Tennessee basin—these are national symbols of the current interest in utilization and control of water. They have set the pace, but they represent only a small part of the program.

Under construction in Utah is a $13,000,000 project which will bring to Salt Lake City and its environs a new supply of water. In Colorado the reclamation bureau will be engaged for several years in a development which will divert water across the Continental Divide.

For Cities And Farms

Getting nicely started in California is the great Central Valley project for stabilizing the flow of the Sacramento river and for restoring water supplies of several cities and a vast irrigation farming area. Scheduled for completion this year in Nebraska is a $36,000,000 project involving a dam which will be second to Fort Peck among the world's big earth dams.

In Texas, New Mexico, Idaho, Oklahoma, Arizona and other states are water projects with cost figures running into tens of millions.

Yes, a cup of water is a simple thing. But water in the life of a maturing nation is a billion dollar item.

Women Keep 'Death Watch' In Capitol

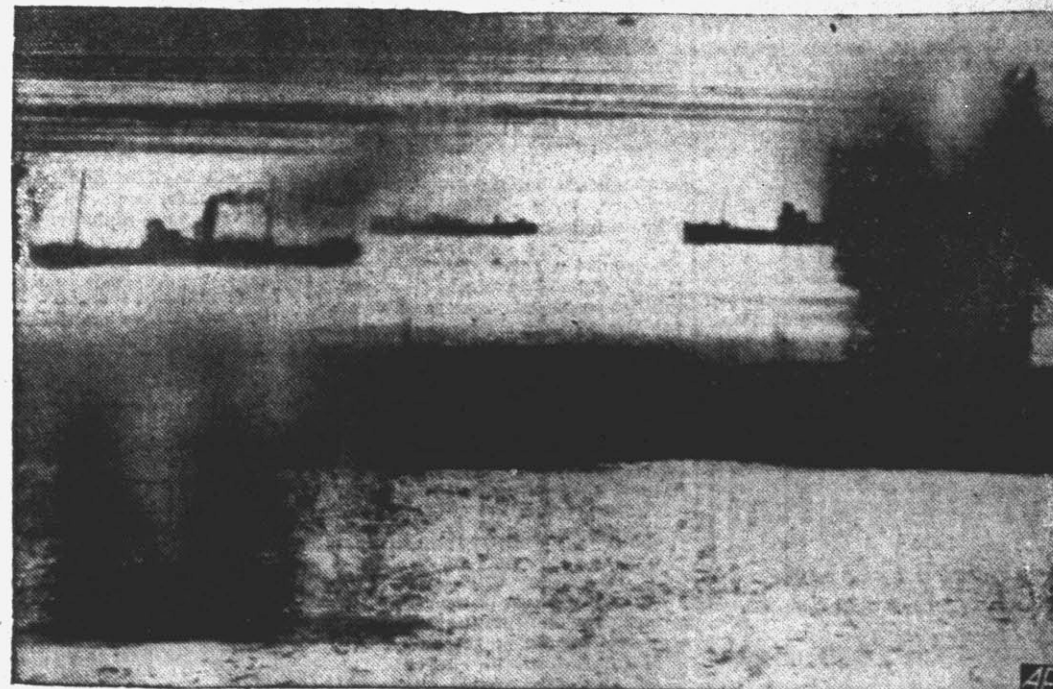

Wearing heavy black veils, the women, who hanged an effigy of Florida's Senator Claude Pepper on the capitol lawn in Washington, were back on the job next day—this time as keepers of a "death watch" on the compulsory military training bill. They are shown in the senate reception room.

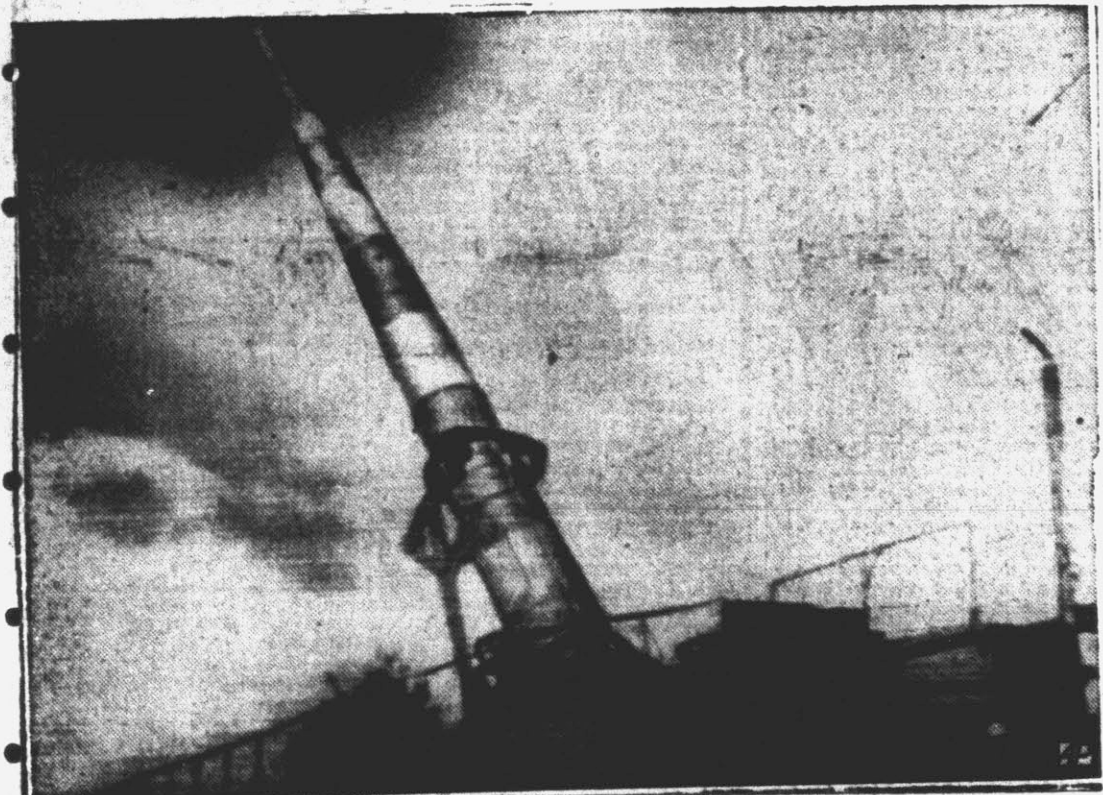

Two United States army officers and seven enlisted men perished in the crash of an army bombing plane 43 miles east of Denver, Colo., during a routine training flight. This picture shows the scattered wreckage of the plane which apparently exploded. Parts of the bodies of the victims were found hundreds of feet from the wreckage.

British Convoy Escapes German Land Batteries

This dramatic cablephoto from London shows part of the mile-long British convoy which was bombarded by big German guns on the coast of France as the ships steamed up the English Channel August 22. According to the caption approved by the British censor, two shells had just fallen near the ships when this picture was made. The black streak is part of the original picture but it was not explained.

Germany's 'Big Bertha' Fires Toward England

The caption approved by the German censor says this radiophoto shows one of Germany's long range "Big Bertha" cannon belching smoke as it fired from its position on the French coast opposite England. The Nazis described the firing as "practice shooting" for the purpose of finding their range. Twice during the night of August 22 the "Big Berthas" opened up with heavy cross-channel artillery shelling and smashed buildings in Dover, England, 22 miles away.

AH, SWEET VICTORY!—All smiles is Claire Byers and why shouldn't he be? He landed this seven-foot sailfish in the Gulf of Mexico. It being the second sailfish caught off Galveston, Tex., this season. Galveston anglers say that sailfish are rarely found as far north as was this one, so they're combing the waters for brothers of this finny fighter.

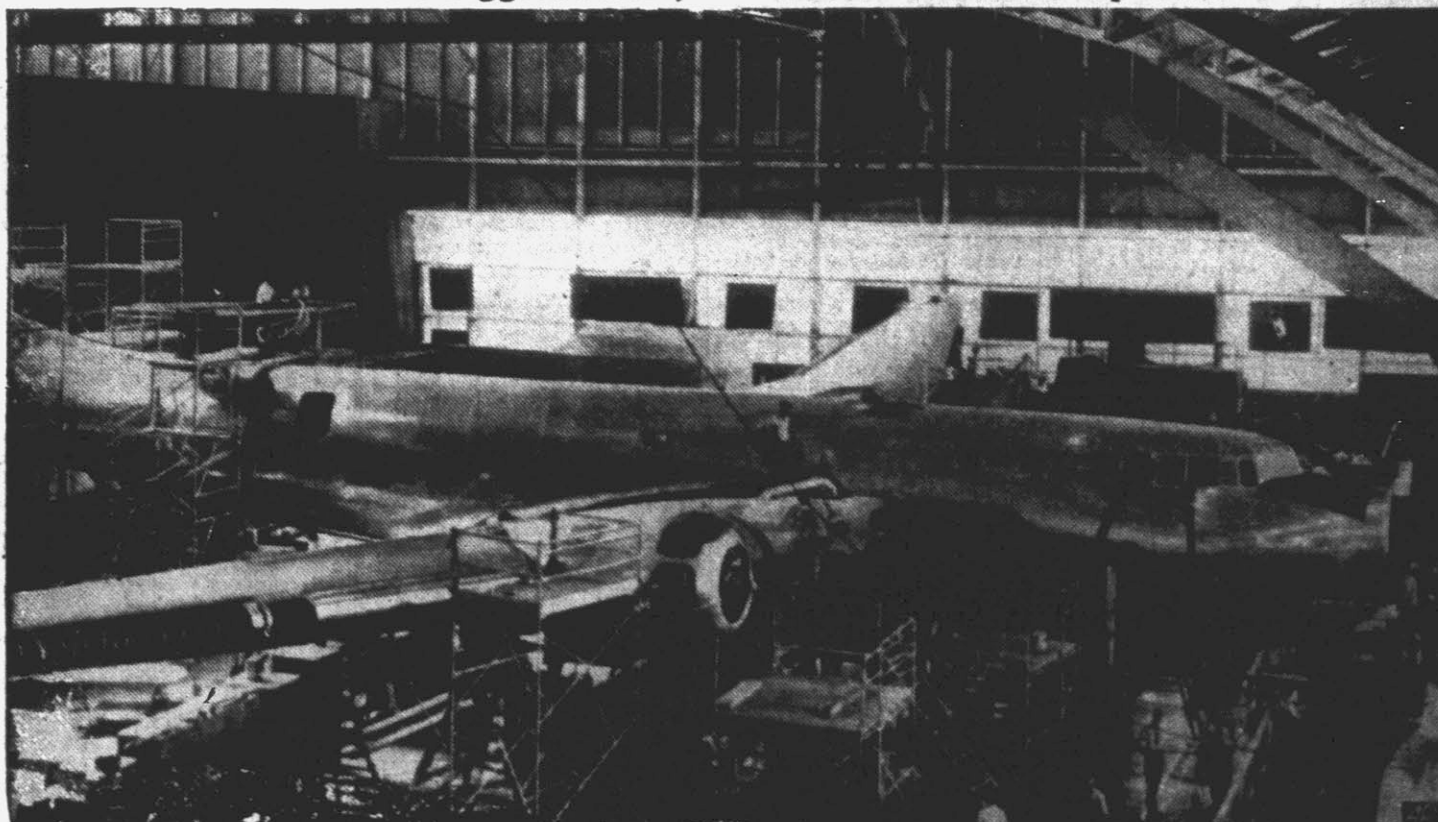

BOSTON TEA PARTY NO. 2—This Boston tea party's a mild affair, compared to that revolutionary episode in 1773. D. W. Dean, Nevada U. graduate, is federal tea-taster for Boston. In a year he'll judge samples from 24,000,000 pounds of tea.

Shown in custody of police at Mexico City is the man accused of fatally wounding Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian revolutionary leader, during an attack with a pickaxe at Trotsky's home. Police said he gave his name as Jacques Mortan Vandendriehd, 36, a native of Persia. He was wounded and overpowered by Trotsky's bodyguard.

World's Biggest Plane, U. S Bomber, Near Completion

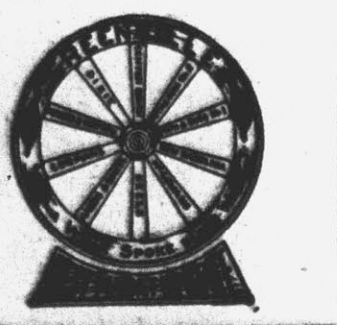

The four-motored army bomber, B-19, largest and most powerful plane ever built, is shown nearing completion in the Douglas Aircraft company plant at Santa Monica, Calif. Nose, wing and tail sections have been joined and much of the interior is finished. The plane is so big that all of it could not be included in one picture inside the hangar. It has a wing spread of more than 210 feet and will weigh over 140,000 pounds fully loaded. Its four motors, totaling 8,000 horsepower will give it a range under some conditions of more than 7,000 miles. Comparison of the size of the men working on the ship give an idea of its tremendous size. It will be wheeled out of the hangar for ground checks prior to test flights some time this fall.

Strength For The Day BY EARL L. DOUGLASS

BURDEN BEARING Somehow, somewhere, sometime, we all have to cast our burdens upon the Lord, for they are too much for our shoulders. We can carry them but we cannot carry them alone.

Washington Daybook BY JACK SIMMONS

Washington—Topics for a capital tea-party. Jumbled politics—Big Ed (Edmund M.) Toland, Democrat, one-time G-man, former assistant United States attorney general, and contributor to the Democratic party in 1932, winds up his job as general counsel of Virginia Rep. Howard W. Smith's committee investigating the National Labor Relations board and leaves Washington with a Willie button on his lapel.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Aug. 26—A lot of people figure that every act of the government of North Carolina is—and a few of them have the nerve (or maybe it's just plain gall) of the Alamance old timer who has recently written Charles Ross, general counsel for the Highway Commission, complaining bitterly about R. G. Browning, location engineer.

Hopkins Loses Aide Ed Noble, Republican manufacturer of that candy with a hole left a hole in Secretary Hopkins' Department of Commerce when he resigned as undersecretary. Noble announced that he was returning to private life where he believed he "could better serve the defense program" than as chief departmental aide to Hopkins, who has been for some time one of the President's chief aides in matters political.

Although Hopkins held the reins in the presidential third term nomination at Chicago, political chatter has it that he is not continuing (as is customary) in the driver's seat and that Edward J. Flynn, new chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has let it be known that he doesn't want any back-seat driving from Hopkins or any other members of the New Deal inner circle.

Corcoran Starts Talk Tommy Corcoran, the young balding Irish attorney, who has been second to Hopkins among New Dealers, close to the White House, has gone off on a vacation. His going at this time is one of the favorite gossip topics at Washington tea parties.

Put all of these facts and speculations into a Washington drawing room, add a generous sprinkling of political kibitzers, guessers and know-all's, and you'll understand why capital tea parties these days are a dissonant and confusing babble.

That caused considerable eyebrow lifting in many circles; until investigation revealed that there have been repeated, and apparently well-founded reports that the Fuquay Springs man is actively engaged in boosting a Willie for President movement in his neck of the woods, which, quite naturally, disqualified him in the eyes of his Young Democratic sponsors. John C. Baskerville, head of the Governor's Hospitality Committee, came back from the West and the taking of motion pictures for Fox Movietone News, with glowing reports of the tourist business in that section.

He said it seems certain that visitors to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park will exceed one million for the season, certainly if President Roosevelt is able to make a dedicatory address at New Found Gap on Labor Day.

Resort operators in the West also say that tourists are not only coming in larger numbers, but on the whole they are staying longer," said Baskerville.

The only event of its kind in the world, the annual Mozart Music Festival will be held in Asheville over a three-day span, beginning today. It's the fourth year of the festival.

Because of its unusual character, the Mozart event has gained nationwide fame, and attendance this year will include leaders of music organizations from all sections of the south and many visitors from the midwest and north.

Most promoters declare that free passes are the worst affliction they have to bear; but Manager J. S. Dorton of the State Fair goes about bragging about the fact that he annually puts out more than three-quarter million Annie Oakleys for the school children of North Carolina.

This year, Raleigh school day will be Tuesday, October 8, while school day for the state at large will be Friday, October 11. Thursday of Fair week will be vocational education day.

Man About Manhattan BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Harry Carey has the same sort of homespun, ingratiating appeal that made the late Will Rogers so beloved. If you, called Harry Carey a second Will Rogers I think he would resent it. He isn't trying to be another Will Rogers. He sells an entirely different brand of peanuts. But they had a lot in common, especially in their speech. I mean, Harry talks out of his heart, and that is the way Will talked too. Harry likes to tell stories, and to discuss crops, and he can tell you all about a new antidote for the hoof and mouth disease, if you own stock or care about such things.

You sometimes think of a leathery-skinned, bronzed cowhand sitting on a fence whittling a stick when you think of Carey. That is because he owns a ranch, and because he can really ride, and because he has played so many cowboy parts in the movies.

But actually, he is a former New York lawyer. Actually, he used to play football for N. Y. U. He is up in Maine now. He and his son Dobe are playing father-and-son roles in "Ah Wilderness" in Skowhegan. He says he wants to play on Broadway before he does any more work in pictures.

That picture work brought out one of the countless stories that Carey can tell, if you pin him in the corner.

This story happened in Africa, where MGM had sent Carey and so many others after the story that is now cinema history, "Trader Horn." Originally, it was to be silent. They had wallowed in the jungles and parched and thirsted until they began to think that if they ever got back to civilization they would nev-

MEMORY OF THE MOON BY JEANNE BOWMAN

YESTERDAY: Young Taylor is "cleverer" cousin who Constance asks his reason for leaving the ranch. Questioning Meg, the housekeeper, Constance learns that someone telegraphed the Taylor's that she was coming.

Chapter Nine Like An Older Sister DON had sent the wire. But he was her brother. Didn't he understand the must be making the trip for the good of the school family, his good as much as anyone's? Couldn't he see beyond the end of his nose, or didn't he care about any tomorrow?

And if he didn't, and Donna didn't, and if her mother too was only interested in the present, then it was up to her to look to their future. Constance stood up, after her one brief moment of shock. "You're holding dinner for me, Meg, come on . . . and thank you, dear."

Peter Taylor wondered if Constance Cabrillo had undergone a sea change in Meg's room, or if she had changed places with some older sister. The young business woman who came into the dining room seemed years older than the rather-haired youngster who had gone in.

And the change was deeper than a change of clothing. He questioned Meg with his eyes and Meg, standing behind Constance's chair, signaled back, a ludicrous gyration of eyebrows and eyes which sought to express commiseration, sympathy and an appeal to Peter to be kind to the girl.

"What would you like to do this afternoon, Miss Cabrillo?" Constance seemed to bring herself back to the present. "You haven't said how long you intended remaining. I'd like to plan a few trips for you, some eating and drinking, well, show you around the ranch."

"Thank you," Constance answered thoughtfully. "I do want to see the ranch, but not today. Is Beachport within easy driving distance?"

"Two hours along the coast road; may I drive you there?" "No, I thank you. And about my visit, I had intended going back tonight. Now I may stay several days."

Taylor asked no further questions of Constance, but when she had hurried down the hill, he called Meg to him. "What happened?" he demanded, bluntly. "Come on, Miss Cabrillo after she went into the room with you, Meg. He eyed her suspiciously. "You know something; out with it!"

Meg shifted from foot to foot, her face red, her apron fluttering with the agitation of her hands. "And if I do, you spoiled son of a black Ingham, should I be tellin' you and breakin' my promise to her?"

Taylor shook his head. She had Maria eating out of her hand before she was well in the house, and now you. And both of you woman-haters. "Faith, it's a woman-hater y'are yourself! Watch she doesn't have your nibblin' from her fingers. "You needn't worry about me. She's a Cabrillo."

"And is she now?" Meg's hands came to her hips. "If she is, she's the odd one, if what you've been tellin' me is the truth about them. Poor pet, you stand there condemnin' her, and she with her heat-hat on her head, don't you git yourself out and fix up a fest for tonight, festa of whatever it's called. She's on vacation. Give her something to remember when she's back in her job, slavin'—"

Two hands came belatedly to Meg's mouth, and her skirts whirled as she rushed into the house with her head bowed. Taylor betwined her tongue further betrayed her vow of secrecy. "Work!" Peter flung after her. "If she works she isn't a Cabrillo!" And he went out on the hill to see Constance, alone, going to the little cemetery.

Only A Longing CONSTANCE walked on leaden feet. She stopped at the picket gate to notice how well the graves had been tended, how clear the paths, then moved on to her father's grave. For a long time she stood, conscious of the stillness about her. She had no grief to bring to this grave, only a longing. "If you could tell me what I should do," she murmured. "With the world so troubled, did you mean I should keep this place as a haven for them?"

There was no answer there and she started out, to stop at a moment which meant that she had shaft towards the heavens, as though the one beneath it had deduced eternity and demanded admission. Constance smiled slowly. So that was the answer. It was there, out in the stone—"You win what you fight for." Old Michael Malone believed that Constance could picture him wrangling a choice seat in the hereafter. She saluted the shaft and hurried back to the ranch, unaware of a man on a hilltop who watched her, a strange, unwilling tenderness in his eyes.

There was no tenderness in the eyes of Constance Cabrillo when she ordered Juliano to have her car brought around and someone, preferably Dolores, who knew the road to Beachport, with it. "Even Dolores, resplendent in see-colored suit, blue hat, white shoes and black stockings, was subdued by the Cabrillo countenance." Juliano, Constance leaned on the driver's seat, "who handles the Cabrillo affairs at Beachport?"

posed to be whispering confidential information, but was almost screaming. Even the natives knew something was wrong. Finally they went ashore and built a camp and cooked dinner, and while they were eating the doctor who was with the group on location yelled something to the second engineer. The man looked at the doctor, and the doctor up. The doctor had the grand man set a test. A few minutes later they came out, the doctor laughing and the engineer grimacing sheepishly.

They were in Africa, remember. Mindful of the perils of jungle fever, the second engineer had been tearing himself up to taking 25 or 30 grains of quinine a day as a precaution he had become temporarily deaf.

Brinkley, Kingston Negro, about 11 o'clock Saturday night on the Greenville-Bethel highway at a point this side of the Country club driveway.

Officers said Bullock drove his car to the left of the center of the highway, striking the Negro's car. Neither driver was injured, but both cars were badly damaged.

NAZI PLANES UNSUCCESSFUL IN REPLY TO FIRST BRITISH ATTACK ON GERMAN CAPITAL (Continued from page one)

war on the German capital, the Air Ministry announced. RAF planes dumped bombs on Berlin armament factories, while other formations raided additional military objectives in the Ruhr and elsewhere in north-west Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Berlin got its first taste of an air raid today when four waves of British bombers, swooping above a protective ceiling of clouds, skirted spectacular German anti-aircraft fire and dropped incendiary bombs on the fringe of the city.

Berlin's population huddled in cellars and shelters for three hours and four minutes during the early morning, but informed sources said only one three-room garden cottage in the northern suburb of Rosenthal was damaged by fire and that there were no casualties.

The high command said it was the first time British planes have flown over the German capital, but it was Berlin's fifth air raid alarm.

Germans said one of the raiders was shot down. The high command said the "aimless" bombing hit only non-military objectives.

Willkie May Urge Conscription Act

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Unless Congress acts quickly on conscription legislation, it was disclosed today by Wendell L. Willkie's headquarters, the Republican presidential nominee probably will make a speech soon urging its prompt passage.

In his acceptance address Willkie expressed approval of "some form of selective service." He himself has had nothing to say for quotation since that time, but aides said he favored immediate action.

Talking with reporters on defense legislation in general, Willkie called for a speed-up of military plane construction.

"I want to commend Senator Byrd (D-Va.) for his inquiry as to why 100 days have gone by since the President said we needed 50,000 planes," he said, "and only 343 planes have been ordered for the army, navy and marine corps. None will be delivered in this calendar year and some will not be delivered until 1942."

Guardsmen Slated For Camp Jackson

Washington, Aug. 26.—Army officers disclosed today that at least two divisions together with several smaller units would train at Camp Jackson, S. C., this winter.

The 30th National Guard division from North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina and Georgia has been assigned to the South Carolina post. This outfit is composed of some 18,000 men.

In Boston, Secretary of War Stimson served notice that National Guardsmen holding civilian jobs important to the nation's rearmament would not be called into active military service and urged that their military positions be filled by others "before the guard units are brought to active duty."

Local Tobacconists Return From Georgia

It was stated that the Georgia market centers already have sold close to 90,000,000 pounds, compared with a pre-season estimate for the year of 80,000,000 pounds. The average for the season to date was said to be approximately 15.50 compared with 12.80 last season.

The officer said a settlement was reached at the scene of the accident and no arrest was made.

Huge Improvement in Gulf Gasolines

To measure the quality of a gasoline, no hocus-pocus is needed. There is a scientific test that shows the comparative anti-knock value of any motor fuel.

The shorter figure above represents the former "mark" in that test of GOOD GULF. But look at the second figure! It shows how much the NEW GOOD GULF has been stepped up—a step up so great that this great gasoline now surpasses North Carolina specifications for premium fuels. Try Good Gulf and see what a difference it makes in your car.

Above, at left, is the pre-improvement "mark" of GULF NO-NOX—for years one of America's best premium gasolines. But hang on to that hat again as you look at the other figure! It shows how much GULF NO-NOX has been lifted over its old high—a high that by far exceeds North Carolina specifications for premium fuel. And when you consider that the old NO-NOX was knockproof under all normal driving conditions, you will marvel at the performance this new gas gives.

Introduce your car to Gulf No-Nox today at the Sign of the Gulf Orange Disc.

RUMANIA-RUSSIA WAGE BLOODY BORDER CLASH

British Air Force Bombers Attack Germany And Italy

BERLIN ONE OF RAF TARGETS

Government Buildings Along Wilhelmstrasse British Objectives; Italian Industrial Centers Subjected To Assaults; Few Casualties From All-night Nazi Raids

(By The Associated Press)
British Royal Air Force bombers attacked both Germany and Italy in far-ranging sorties before dawn today and the British Broadcasting Company asserted that government buildings along the Wilhelmstrasse in Berlin — where Adolf Hitler's chancellery is situated — have been among the targets bombed.

In London the Air Ministry reported that the Royal Air Force delivered a successful attack upon a number of important military objectives in the axis territories. Six tons of bombs were dumped in 40 minutes on Italian industrial targets, the Air Ministry said.

The Italian high command acknowledged that British raiders scored hits on the Fiat plane and tank factory at Turin and attacked other points in the face of "violent air and anti-aircraft reaction." One British bomber was reported shot down in an attempted attack on Milan, in northern Italy.

Nazi warplanes flocked back over Britain this morning, renewing almost night-long assaults which kept London's millions awake during a six-hour raid ending at 3:40 a. m.

Few casualties and little damage was reported in the German night raids.

Berlin's 4,000,000 residents experienced their second air raid alarm in two days, lasting 40 minutes, and Nazi authorities admitted that one British plane sped over the capital. They said seven others were turned back by anti-aircraft fire 40 miles west of Berlin.

The lone Royal Air Force raider sighted over the German capital, dropped bombs, Nazis said, but the raid drew an angry warning from DNB, official German news agency, that any "criminal attack" by British planes on non-military objectives would be repaid by bombs marked "made in Germany."

Hitler's high command, reporting on yesterday's greatly intensified aerial warfare, said British troop concentrations in south England, airports and the big naval base at Portsmouth were bombed.

Revised claims by the belligerents on yesterday's operations in the aerial war were: Britain, 46 German planes shot down against 15 British lost; Germany, 70 British planes destroyed against 21 Germans lost.

High Standing Is Continued Present Winterville School Maintains Reputation

The present Winterville school system is a continuation of the old Winterville Preparatory school, an institution sponsored and supported for many years by the Missionary Baptist church.

The Preparatory school prospered for many years and had a high reputation in Eastern North Carolina. Its academic standards were high and the faculty was noted for its splendid training and strong leadership of young people.

By 1923 the Pitt County Board of Education had taken over the preparatory school and was rapidly consolidating in Winterville the small schools of Winterville township.

During the term of 1923-24, the Winterville school had 14 teachers. Last year, 1939-40, the school had 23 teachers, an increase of 65 per cent in the 16-year period from 1923 to 1939.

All special departments now in vogue in the public schools are in the Winterville curriculum. These courses are Home Economics (George-Reed) Vocational Agriculture, Commerce, Public School Music, Piano, and Voice.

A new ten-room high school building has an auditorium-gymnasium, unit of adequate dimensions for the community's need. There are special buildings for agriculture and home economics. Play ground space is adequate for the present enrollment of 721 pupils, 203 of this number are in high school.

Several factors have contributed to the growth of the Winterville school, chief of which are as follows:

1. The preparatory school made the community school-conscious.
2. The graduates of the Prep school settled in the neighborhood and were interested immediately in the consolidation program of the county board of education.
3. The location of the school has been a factor in its growth. It is in a thickly populated area that is easily accessible.
4. Experienced teachers with tenure, longer than in the average school.
5. Unified community effort. The faculty for 1940-41.

HOUSE GROUP ADOPTS LIMIT ON DRAFT BILL

Committee Quickly Lines Up With Senate Vote
VOTE ON DRAFT EXPECTED TODAY

Chairman May Of Kentucky Predicts Committee To Act Favorably On Bill By Nightfall

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Quickly lining up with the Senate, the House Military committee voted today to limit to 900,000 the number of men who could be given military training at any one period during peacetime under the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill.

Chairman May (D-Ky) announced that the vote was "pretty one-sided." He predicted that the committee would approve the entire draft legislation later in the day.

The committee also inserted in the draft bill the reemployment provisions of the legislation authorizing a year's training for National Guardsmen. These sections would call on employers to reinstate trainees upon satisfactory completion of their year's service and if court action were needed to get jobs back would authorize district attorneys to represent the men.

Senator Johnson (D-Col) opposed peace-time military conscription as a "waste" of one billion dollars annually, while advocates confidently predicted final Senate passage by tonight.

Sen. Burke (D-Neb), co-author of the bill, told reporters "we'll pass this before we quit tonight," and Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate Military committee supported the forecast.

Johnson, one of the few members of the Military committee opposed to the Burke-Wadsworth bill, told the senate:

"We hate Mr. Hitler, but we are about to strike our precious liberty a death blow by adopting his Prussian ideology of conscription. I can see the smirk on his cold expressionless face as the United States stabs democracy in the back because of him."

Chamber To Hold Membership Meet

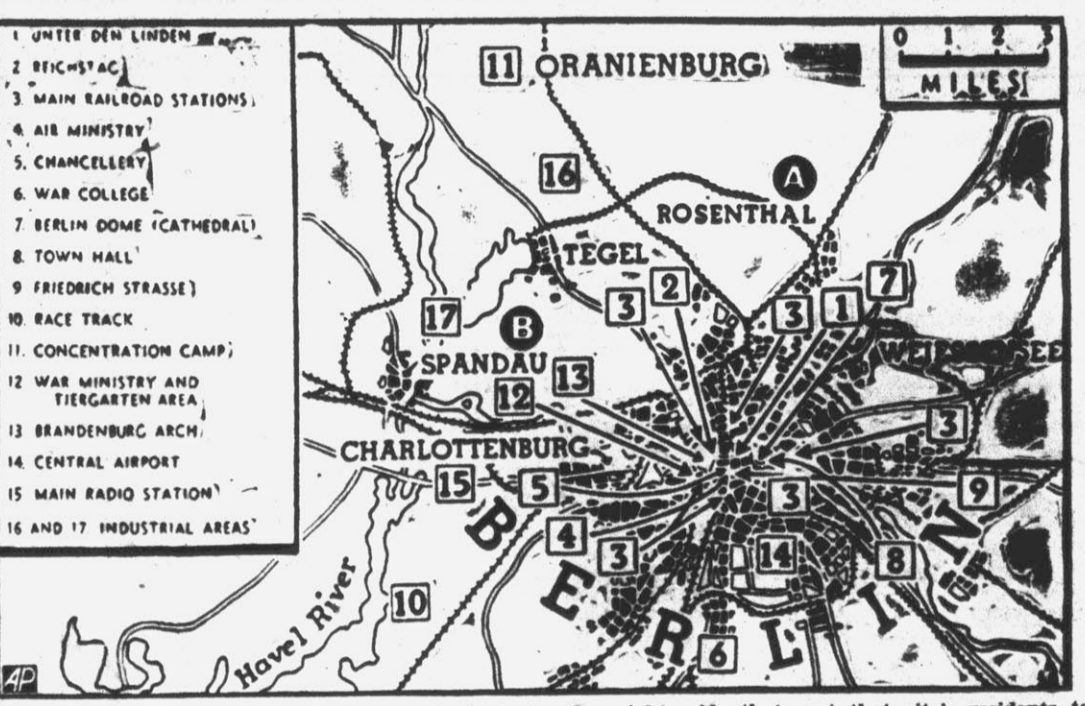

A full membership meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce will be held at some date in November. The Board of Directors of that organization in regular session last night having gone on record as favoring more such meetings in order to keep the members better advised on activities of the chamber.

The idea behind the movement is to give all members an opportunity to have a more definite part in the formation of policies and in order to carry out this plan the entire membership will be called to periodic meetings throughout the year.

The secretary, Willard T. Kyzer was instructed to arrange for such a meeting in November.

The board pledged active assistance to the Tobacco Board of Trade in the interest of promotion of the local market for the coming season.

British Fliers Launch Attack On Berlin

British fliers pierced the clouds over Berlin in Sunday night raids that sent that city's residents to underground shelters for more than three hours. Hundreds of German anti-aircraft guns fired on the waves of bombers and kept up a deluge for hours. Nazi authorities said a number of incendiary bombs fell in the suburb of Rosenthal (1) and one bomb struck north of the industrial community of Spandau (2). Numerals and accompanying legend indicate important Berlin points.

MEET CALLED TO FILL POST

Committee Slated To Name Rep. Warren's Successor

Herbert C. Bonner, chairman of the First District Congressional Democratic Executive Committee, today called a meeting of the committee to be held at Blenton on Friday September 6, at 11 a. m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress to succeed Rep. Lindsay C. Warren, whose resignation as a member of the House of Representatives has been sent to Gov. Hoy, effective October 16.

The committee is composed of one member from each of the 14 counties in the First district. W. I. Bissette of Grifton is Pitt county's member.

A movement was started in the county to have the committee call a primary to secure the wishes of the people. The move apparently failed, although prominent democrats in other counties expressed agreement with the principle.

One contention advanced by Pitt county democrats was the fact that the congressman had come from Beaufort county for years and that it was time for Pitt county, with approximately one-third of the district's voting strength, to have a representative in Congress, or at least an opportunity to vote on one.

The campaign went so far as to advance the names of several Pitt county men.

With the primary move apparently having failed, Pitt democrats will have to wait until the 1942 primary before offering a candidate to the voters.

Tension Increased In Southeastern Europe As Further Reports Relate Hungarian Bomber Shot Down By A Rumanian Plane; Military Preparations Speeded In Both Countries

Budapest, Aug. 27.—(AP) The Hungarian foreign office announced today that a plane marked with Rumanian insignia shot down a Hungarian bomber over Hungarian soil this morning and diplomatic dispatches from Bucharest reported a bloody border clash between Rumanian and Russian troops.

The Bucharest reports, neither confirmed nor denied officially in the Rumanian capital, said the border clash started Sunday morning and caused hundreds of dead on both sides and the loss of at least two fighting planes.

The reports of clashes cause a sharp increase in tension in Europe's frontier negotiations between Hungary and Rumania attempting to settle Hungary's claims for the province of Transylvania.

Bucharest was full of reports, which officials refused to confirm or deny, that there had been encounters between Hungarian and Rumanian planes over the disputed province of Transylvania.

The Hungarian foreign office announced it had sent a protest to Bucharest over what it claimed as an "unprovoked and murderous attack."

Military preparations in Hungary, already on a virtual war footing since the practical collapse of attempts to negotiate the settlement of the Hungarian claims on Rumania for Transylvania, were noticeably speeded up.

Artillerymen on the Rumanian border region were ordered to load their guns with live shells. Anti-air raid precautions continued over Budapest and other large Hungarian cities.

Hungary cancelled all army leaves. Foreign diplomatic quarters expressed belief quick intervention by Rome and Berlin was essential if the Rumanian-Hungarian relations, not to mention the Soviet-Rumanian situation, was to be saved from rapid "deterioration."

Budapest, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Diplomatic dispatches from Bucharest today reported a bloody border clash between Rumanian and Russian troops, resulting in hundreds of dead on both sides and the loss of at least two fighting planes.

The fighting, which the dispatches said occurred in northern Moldavia, was reported to have started late Sunday and lasted several hours. It was resumed yesterday.

A foreign military attaché at Bucharest who wrote the dispatches, estimated that more than 300 Rumanian soldiers were slain.

Just two months ago Rumania bowed to a Russian ultimatum agreeing to cede the Soviet Union Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina. As the Russians marched in early in July to take over their gains, there were clashes between the re-

Here is a grand sandwich filling: Mix together 2-3 cup salmon, 1-2 cup white cream cheese, 1-4 cup finely minced celery; 1 teaspoon each of chopped parsley, pimientos and sweet pickles, 1-8 teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons salad dressing or mayonnaise. Chill and use as filling for approximately 18 sandwiches.

Let It Thicken.
If the pieces of fruits in your jams and butters keep coming to the top of the jars, try this: When the jam is done, let it cool in the utensil in which it was cooked. This thickens it. Then pour the jam into the jars or glasses and seal.

Two more dry goods stores will be opened here this fall. There are three grocery stores, one coach shop, two soda fountains, one hotel, one high or preparatory school, three churches, one barber shop, a nice sample room and several other places of interest.—J. T.

Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

By ALFRED HITCHCOCK
Motion Picture Director
(Tending wickets for vacationing Robbin Coons)

Hollywood—Once a movie fan wrote me to inquire: "What is this thing called the Hitchcock touch in your pictures?"

I'm sure I can't answer unless I simply say "I try to do the unexpected." I think folks go to the theatre to be shocked, surprised and thrilled. I don't think they go to "figure out" a picture so much as they go to be swept away from their problems by something new, novel and exciting.

We live in an exciting age and most people expect their entertainment to move along at a fast pace. I find most theatre-goers want to participate in an exciting story. I think every film fan always will want to be the third person at every wedding, in every love scene and in every exciting happening in a picture. So, I like to give them plenty to keep them interested, participating and excited about.

I think the camera (which represents the audience) should keep moving, weaving in and out, getting as close to intimate scenes as possible. I think a stationary camera makes a picture's action seem impersonal. Frequently I take the camera way up in the air or down beneath the earth or water level to give the audience an intimate touch.

I know there is a very thin veil between comedy and tragedy oftentimes. It's fun to create such delicate situations, let them play with the emotions a moment or two, and then turn into a pleasant surprise. Maybe that's the Hitchcock touch, but to me it's fun.

I think one of the most important elements of present day pictures is casting players who don't look like actors or caricatures. If an audience can spot an actor as a villain in his first few scenes, his best work flops miserably. Not all villains look like villains and not all handsome men are romantic. I detect "obvious" actors any of the suffering, pained, grimacing, groaning and broken-hearted actor. I have found that most people don't collapse or get hysterical in times of shock or great pain. They usually grin, grit their teeth and say but little. Hence, in my pictures you will be disappointed if you expect to find actors swooning right and left.

One of the most thrilling scenes I ever hoped to make is in my latest film, "Foreign Correspondent." I have tried to make it a breath-taking, choking thing because in real life it would be. But because I believe that under such circumstances men and women facing seemingly certain death would fight to live the characters face their peril with strength and fight and resistance. I think they'll win your admiration by demonstrating calmness and courage, not through theatrical fireworks.

The scene could have been done in one-third the film footage for one-tenth the cost if it had been done for physical effect alone. To create an emotional affinity between audience and players, however, we made the scene as hard as I only hope the audience enjoys it as much as we did, trying to make the thrill seem actuality.

(Editor's Note: It was Mr. Hitchcock who directed "Rebecca.")

Strength For The Day By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SUSTAINED IN TROUBLE

A blitzkrieg is a terrible thing. We have had a few weeks of it in this present life and death struggle. What would you think of a blitzkrieg that went on for 250 years? That is what the early Christian Church experienced.

FOOD FOR CONQUERED NATIONS WOULD BREAK BRITISH BLOCKADE

The arrogant assertion of Walther Funk, German Minister of Economics, that the United States will eventually have to trade with Europe on German terms or not at all, did not disrupt the Havana Conference as intended.

Latest evidence was the statement of John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Belgium, one of the nations that fell before Hitler's war machine.

Mr. Cudahy received a sharp reprimand from the State Department, and was called home by the President for consultation.

Advertisement for United States Mercantile featuring a cartoon of a man with a swastika on his chest and a sign that says 'I'll deliver right to your door'. Text includes 'NAZI IMPORT CO. CUT RATES' and 'WHY GO ELSEWHERE TO BE CHEATED? COME HERE! EXTRA CHEAP! SWAPPING DONE!'.

also intimated that the United States should be ready to trade on good terms with Hitler, in his speech at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia.

England probably will settle the question before it gets past the discussion stage. It is reported in Washington that the United States Government has been unofficially notified that Great Britain will attempt to stop all food shipments to Europe, regardless of how badly they may be needed in the conquered countries.

Regardless of the pressure brought by sentimentalists and appeasers, it is apparent that the official attitude of the Federal Government is, and will continue to be, against sending food, Hitler's record of unbroken promises is known to everyone, and there is no reason to believe he would not appropriate all relief cargoes for his legions.

man who ever came out of the army college was more a professional soldier.

Graduate Of V. M. I. "Puck" Marshall was born in Uniontown, Pa., 60 years ago.

When the vast war games were held in the South last spring (the largest peacetime maneuver up to that time), General Marshall said: "It was a successful experiment. It showed us our shortcomings."

Marshall was graduated without a single demerit, senior captain of his class, fifth in scholastic standing and an all-southern football tackle.

Defense Plan Praised There is another story that while serving in the Philippines, when he was a second lieutenant, he drew up field orders that were later described by his general as the best plan for the defense of the islands that he had ever seen.

Seven years ago this month, General Marshall was only a colonel. It was during the World war that he first came to the attention of General Pershing, whose aide he later became.

When General Marshall took over the army a few months before the Nazis went rampaging in Europe, he immediately set about reorganizing. Some army men wise in the ways of politics told him he was inviting the axe.

Better a little hunger and a British victory than well-fed soldiers that can prolong, indefinitely, the war against England and liberty.

and the civilian corps working for national defense.

Makes Haste Slowly The lean, wiry general, with a bit of a squint in his left eye, has been an apostle of "make haste slowly" in the defense program, but he never has relaxed his insistence on its expansion.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—There are some indications that J. M. Broughton, who will be the next governor even if G.O.P. nominee McNeill were admitted, is being pulled several different ways by political supporters who want him to make a clean sweep in many of the state departments.

His Wake county lieutenants (of widely differing political stripe) John Hindsdale and Wilbur Bunn, and some of the state officials who backed him are said to be urging him to oust incumbent officials and employees right and left.

But they are unanimous only that far. Each lieutenant has a "friend" of his own for each job which would be made open, and thus there is no part of agreement on the vital matter of who shall replace whom.

So far Mr. Broughton has done one of the best jobs on record in the matter of keeping quiet in all known languages about his intentions toward those present officials and employees who did not support

MEMORY OF THE MOON by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: Constance is addressed by the treachery of her brother's telegram. She decides to stay several days, and goes to Beachport to telegraph the family lawyer, Judge Franck.

Chapter 10 Dairy Farm

THE old man leaned forward and stared ahead. "You are no Cabrillo," he said. "No, I've known three generations of them. Do you mean that a Cabrillo gave you? Well, world courtsey, all excepting Bridget, but then she wasn't born a Cabrillo."

"Ah, but she was a woman. His wife faded and slowed as he rose and came across to Constance. "That's it... that's what you are a woman. Put some meat on the bones of yours, what did you say your given name was?"

"All right," agreed Constance, smiling. "I'm no Cabrillo. I'm the old Mick done over in skirts. In other words, Judge, I'm a throw-back."

"Fine. Now, Michael, tell me all about yourself. I think I might give you the answers. By gad, and it's good to see you. I suppose you came out to see about selling the ranch. Well, sir, you couldn't do better than sell to the Taylors. Fine men, both of them, and they've named you a fair price."

"I have no intention of selling El Cabrillo ranch." "Until Constance heard her own name, she had not realized how firmly she had reached this decision."

"If the Taylors can find a way to make money out of somebody else's property, then a Cabrillo who turned out a mick, can do the same thing."

The afternoon waxed and the afternoon waned. Constance pounded one side of the desk and the judge pounded the other. And then, when they were both tired, the judge paced the room and had a lengthy verbal argument with himself.

"Michael," he came to a stop before her, "you could talk me into giving a kidnapor a suspended sentence."

"Meaning?" Constance kept the triumph out of her voice. Judge Franck sat down heavily. "There is no ethical reason I couldn't tell you what I know. There is a moral reason. The Taylors' plans are generally known; however, there isn't a man in this country who wouldn't keep them from an outsider."

that understanding killed her faith in the Taylors. They had wanted to rush the sale of the ranch and, probably, get half of the cost of the land back by selling a right of way.

Blue eyes focused on the gray corners of the court-house. Michael Mahoney had laid that. She was a throwback. The judge had been telling her about "the old patrie." Michael had played fair with his friends. He had outwitted his enemies before they were aware of it.

"Then why did she feel like this? As though half the joy in possessing El Cabrillo had gone?" "Sick, Michael?" asked the judge anxiously. "You look pale."

"Not exactly," she managed, with a thin smile. "It was just that I thought the Taylors were planning something constructive... not planning to double-cross us."

"But dear child they are planning something constructive. The judge smiled quickly. "The spur running through El Cabrillo makes it possible."

"Michael," he leaned across and took her young hand in his old one. "El Cabrillo, without the spur, isn't worth fifty thousand to anyone but a Cabrillo."

"I want you to hear me through, and maybe from your own family's history you can understand how we must adjust ourselves to change."

"Let's go back to the Don Cabrillo we know the most about. He came of the leather age. He raised cattle, like his father before him, and their hides, tough steers that grazed on thousands of acres and needed only his peons to herd them to market."

Michael's Vision "HE had top markets in Russia, the Orient and Europe. Then other countries began negotiating for that trade and prices dropped. He had saved no money, he had thought he had no need of it, and his children, despising ranch life, spent all of their time, and his money, in New York, Vienna, and Paris."

"About this time Michael Mahoney came over from Ireland, came straight across the plains looking for gold. He finally landed in San Francisco with the need of a beefsteak under his belt; but beefsteak was only for men who struck gold. There was no beef in this cattle country that a man could put his teeth into."

OPEN PROGRAM OF BOYS STATE American Legion Program Under Way At Chapel Hill

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AYERBA

Raleigh, August 26.—The American Legion's greatest experiment in teaching youth the mechanics and machinery of American Democracy got into full swing at Chapel Hill Monday, with approximately 150 of the state's outstanding high school leaders undergoing a thorough-going training in government.

It is the annual Boys State, a Legion activity in which the University of North Carolina cooperates to the fullest.

"Registration was completed Saturday afternoon or Sunday, and each boy was given a thorough physical examination. The youngsters will be organized on the pattern of North Carolina's General Assembly, and will receive intensive instruction in every line of governmental activity. They will even be divided into two parties for electioneering purposes and will themselves elect "mayors" for their dormitories, a governor and other state officials, as well as a house speaker and a senate president pro tem.

The Institute of Government will provide instruction in government and citizenship, with its head Albert Coates as director of the Boys' State. Roy L. McMillan, prominent Raleigh lawyer and a likely choice for Legion department commander for 1940-2, is assistant director.

Rooms, meals and medical attention are supplied the boys through cooperation of the University.

The schedule will be in each morning at 6:30, rising bell, followed by an exercise period at 7 o'clock.

Throughout the day the boys will go through a busy program including talks on government and other important topics, sports and entertainment.

PLANNED PROTECTION Is Not A Mysterious Something

Too often life insurance doesn't completely provide the kind of security the man who bought it had in mind. It's not always a question of the amount of insurance, either. Whatever the number of policies you own or the amount of them, I think I can show you how they can be coordinated to carry out the best suited to your family's needs. That's called "planned protection." I would like to explain this to you at your convenience just as I have to many citizens of this community.

DROPS LOCALS IN TWO GAMES

Two Teams To Meet In Double-Header Here Tonight

Tarboro and Greenville will meet in a double-header at Clay Smith park tonight and the locals will be out to seek revenge for a double defeat handed them at the hands of Tarboro's Akard in that city last night.

The Tarboro boys went on a hitting and scoring spree in fact two of them—to defeat the Greenies 11-5 in the first game and 16-4 in the second affair.

The Greenies didn't do so bad in the first game so far as hits were concerned. They garnered 15 hits only one less than Tarboro, but they were able to make them count for 5 runs.

The Greenies were able to get only four hits in the second game. The box scores:

Rip's Leading The League But He Can't Tell Why

RIP RADCLIFF: 'He Just Meets The Ball Squarely'

St. Louis.—Raymond (Rip) Radcliff, St. Louis Browns' outfielder who leads the American league in batting, says, "They're just falling for hits this year, I guess."

The 32-year-old player who came to St. Louis from the Chicago White Sox in a winter trade has no secret formula for his success. His mid-August average, .352, brought only this comment: "I'm not doing anything different than I ever did."

Radcliff weighs around 170 and is not as lugger. His specialty is line drives over the infield good for singles and doubles. He says he isn't aiming for the league batting crown especially.

"If He Wins It—Sweet!" "All I want to do is get as many hits as I can and get 'em when they do the most good. I'm out there to try to help win ball games and if I happen to win the batting championship that'll be swell right now, though, I'm not even thinking about that."

Manager Fred Haney says of Radcliff: "Watch him. Ever see him swing Black Jack boys will meet the Gardnerville team, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Black Jack diamond."

ONLY GREENIE NAMED ON LIST

Wilson Tobs Land 4 Men On Official League Team

The Wilson Tobs, leading the Coastal Plain race, are also the pacemakers on the 1940 all-star team selected by votes of the loop's writers. The Tobs landed four of the 12 all-star performers, while Tarboro, Snow Hill and Kinston placed two each, New Bern one and Greenville one. That left Williamston and Goldsboro without representation.

There were two unanimous choices and both of them were taken off the Wilson roster. Manager Frank Rodgers and Joe Talley, the south-paw hurler, won their jobs without a dissenting ballot.

First Baseman Phil Morris of Wilson missed just one first-choice vote, as did Second Baseman Schenz of Tarboro, righthanded pitcher Fred Caligiuri of Greenville and Sid Stringfellow of Kinston, the team utility man.

Incidentally, it was the third successive year Stringfellow has been picked to look after the utility assignment. He was the only holdover from the 1939 all-star nine.

The voters had more trouble naming a catcher than at any other position. Ray Murphy of Wilson, Jack Pinion of Tarboro, Norman McCaskill of Snow Hill and Sandy Peele of Goldsboro were the favorites and they were so closely bunched there was little margin for victory.

By a slim edge of one second-choice vote, McCaskill slipped in over Peele to get the call. Second-choice ballots were also necessary to install Red Harper of New Bern as the team third baseman. He nosed out Bill Justice of Tarboro.

Likewise, Walt Rabb of Snow Hill owes his place as all-star shortstop to a single second-choice vote, which gave him the close decision over Lou Russo of Kinston.

Benny Crowe of Greenville and Bob Cohen of Snow Hill made great fights for places in the outfield, but couldn't quite make the grade. Votes of the writers were collected and tabulated by the National Association press bureau. Players receiving votes without placing are accorded honorable mention. Below is the result of the Coastal Plain's "battle of ballots" for 1940:

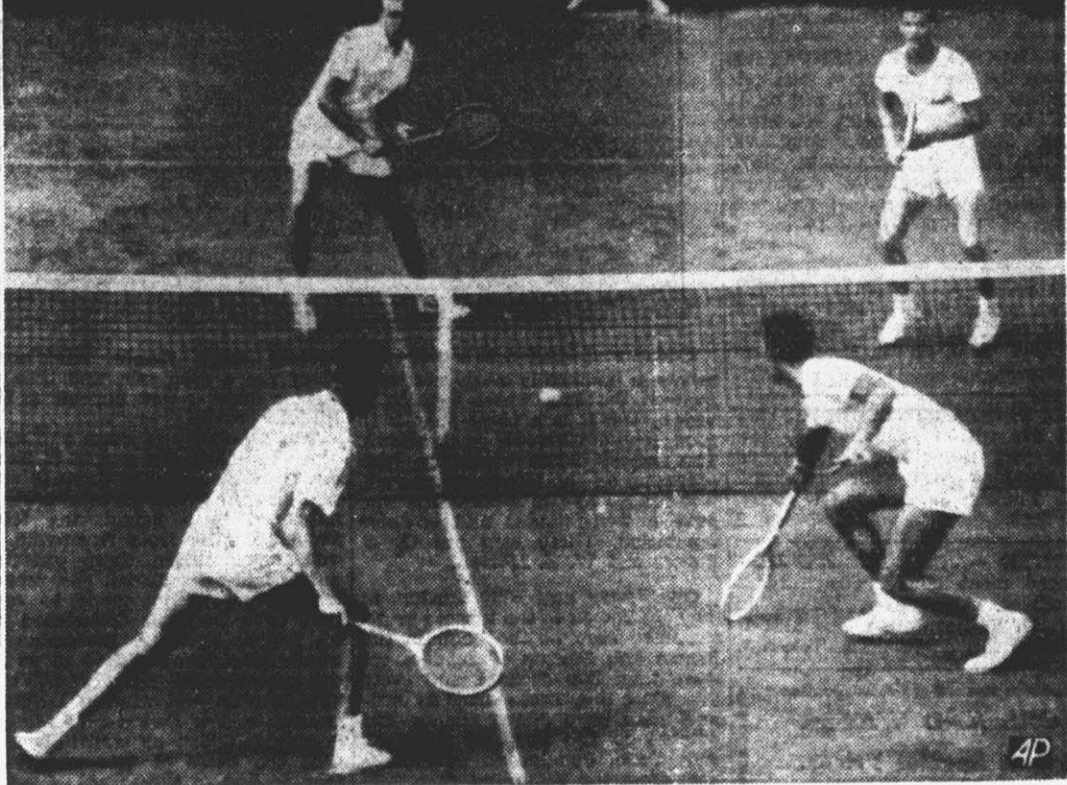

Morris, 1b, Wilson; Schenz, 2b, Tarboro; Harper, 3b, New Bern; Rabb, ss, Snow Hill; Carnahan, lf, Wilson; McHenry, cf, Tarboro; Kennedy, rf, Kinston; McCaskill, c, Snow Hill; Caligiuri, rhp, Greenville; Talley, lhp, Wilson; Stringfellow, Util., Kinston; Rodgers, Mer., Wilson.

Honorable mention—Jarosl, Pawlek, Arnette, Baker, DiGaetano, Peele, Wilson and Chapman of Goldsboro; Metelski, Justice, Muncy, Pinion and Donner of Tarboro; Dickens, Stuart, Olmo, Gardella and Murphy of Wilson; Stewart, Cohen, Moran, Kurst and Wall of Snow Hill; Jenkins, Scagg, Davis and Crowe of Greenville; Russo, Demasi and Overton of Kinston; Whitaker, Archer and McWilliams of New Bern; Swain, Stoller and Beard of Williamston.

High School Grid Team Starts Work Tomorrow

Several Hold-Overs Despite Graduation Losses

The Greenville high school grid team will start shaping up for the 1940 season tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when the first practice of the season will be held at the Third street park.

The Green Phantoms are scheduled to open the season with Tarboro on September 27, but efforts will be made to book a game for September 20.

Several stalwarts on last year's team were lost by graduation and it is not known whether John Spearman, who is in New York, will be back, but Coaches Bo Farley and Herman Fulkerson are looking forward to much from the reserves and several new boys coming up to high school.

Players lost by graduation last year include Tackles Rogerson and Kittrell, Guard Warren Parrish, Center Polly Williams and Sakas, Stacks, Tyndall, all backfield men. Among the outstanding holdovers are Collins and James, Spencer Carroll, tackle, Roscoe Cox, unless he goes to prep school, Guards Paul Scott and Lee Edwards, H. R. Goodall, center, and John Saeed, also a center hopeful, Snag Clark, Dewey Paige, Crawford, Christopher, Cahoon, Johnson and Hunter, many of whom are expected to see plenty of action this fall.

Forbes And Morton Ready For Another Season

Forbes and Morton is a name familiar in practically every section of Eastern Carolina where tobacco is grown, and it is a name that is in good repute wherever it is known. The second oldest warehouse firm operating on the Greenville market is headed by two tobaccoists who have a well-founded and enviable reputation. These men are G. E. Forbes and W. Z. Morton.

Gus Forbes and Billy Morton, as they are known to the tobacco growers, have been at the helm in the Forbes and Morton Warehouse for more than two decades, and every year since they first started in business they have added friends and patrons to the long list that sell with them. Popular as warehousemen from the beginning, each succeeding year has seen them grow in popularity, and their position as warehousemen of the first water has become more firmly established. They run a good sale, and they do it in a manner that appeals to the tobacco grower.

The popularity of these two men and the esteem the people of Eastern Carolina have for them is very well brought out by an incident that happened in a neighboring town about 25 miles from Greenville. A well-known citizen there unfortunately had an accident, and preparations were being made to rush him to a hospital. Questioned by his friends as to his preference of which hospital he wished to go to, the answer came, right off the bat "The Forbes and Morton hospital gentlemen." The Forbes and Morton hospital. It can be truthfully said that the name of this warehouse firm is first in the minds of many others when a place to sell tobacco is considered, just as it was with the gentleman who had the accident.

The methods they employ in operating their business has created that feeling.

The warehouse operated by Messrs. Forbes and Morton is on Jackson avenue, conveniently located, and like all others in Greenville, it is well lighted and has every facility for handling the sale of tobacco promptly and orderly. So there will be no hitch at this house to insure prompt and orderly service, a sales force measuring up to the high standard set by the owners themselves is maintained. When a tobacco grower markets in Greenville, and goes home with a warehouse bill that has the name of Forbes and Morton across the top, this name in itself is assurance to the grower that his tobacco has been sold high and that he has received every cent the market affords for it.

Willkie Not After Coughlin Support

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today he did not want the support of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin if he understood correctly that the radio priest is opposed to "certain people in this country because of their race or religion."

The Republican presidential nominee was asked at a press conference whether he had any comment on an editorial in the publication Social Justice, founded by Father Coughlin, calling his acceptance speech a "march needed call to American nationalism."

COMMITTEE ACTS ON BILLS DELAYING DEFENSE PLANS

(Continued from page one) committee reached agreement late yesterday and leaders were hopeful that the House would pass the bill before the end of the week.

The proposed bill contains these main provisions:

1. It would impose on corporations an excess profits tax of from 20 to 50 per cent with the objective of preventing "war millionaires."
 2. It would permit defense industries to deduct from taxable income and profits over a five-year period the full cost of expansion necessary to handle defense orders.
 3. It would suspend the present seven and eight per cent limitation imposed on the profits a manufacturer can make on government orders for aircraft and warships.
- Unofficial estimates placed the 1940 yield from the excess profits levy at about $300,000,000, as compared with the $190,000,000 that would have been realized under the original tax schedules proposed before the bill was revised.
