CONSCRIPTION BILL IS READY FOR PRESIDENT

Final Action Completed By House And Senate

ADDITIONAL SUM ASKED BY FDR

Chief Executive Requests Additional $1,733,886,976 For Defense Purposes

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Peace-time legislation requiring registration of approximately 16,500,000 men, 21 through 35, for military training, was finally approved by Congress today and dispatched to the White House.

The President's signature enacting it into law is expected to be affixed early next week, setting in motion machinery which will send the first 75,000 draftees to camps in November.

The house took the final legislative step this afternoon when it approved 232 to 124 a compromise between senate and house versions of the conscription measure a short time after the senate gave its assent by a 47 to 25 vote.

The final version included provision for the President to take over industrial plants on a rental basis when necessary to get defense orders filled expeditiously.

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Shortly after congress gave final approval to peace-time conscription today it received from President Roosevelt a request for an additional $1,733,886,976 defense appropriation, including $24,825,108 to start the draft.

In a letter to the Speaker of the House the President asked: $1,602,881,976 cash and $150,000,000 contract authorizations for the war department.

$57,334,000 cash and $7,000,000 contract authorizations for the navy.

$40,000,000 cash for the Federal Security Agency and $50,000,000 contract authorization for the commerce department.

Freight Waterway Service To Be Re-Established Here Within Next Thirty Days

Administration Defense Plans Hailed By Bailey

Cites Dangers Of 75 Billion Dollar Debt, However

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—(AP) Senator Josiah W. Bailey told North Carolina's Young Democrats today that the President had acted wisely in building up the nation's defenses, but that the threat of a federal debt of $75,000,000,000 "is second only in gravity to the possibility of an invasion from abroad."

Bailey, often a critic of the Roosevelt administration, defended the President's action for defense and praised his leadership. The prepared text did not mention Mr. Roosevelt by name, however.

"It is our purpose," Bailey said "to be strong in arms, in men and in attachment to our republic as a republic that no nation or combination of nations will challenge us and thereby to win security and preserve our peace by preparation for war."

"It is not our purpose to dictate to any other nation nor shall any nation dictate to us."

"The Senator pointed out that in each war 'we have gone in first and prepared after' as he warned 'we can never again afford to take similar risks. The first duty of any government is to provide the common defense—that is the security of its people from invaders from without and conspirators and decay within. We have that duty now in double measure. We must prepare at once, fully and wholly.'"

World revolution has forced the condition on the United States Bailey said, and noted there was "a universal economic dislocation that continues to produce universal unrest and the confusion of new ideologies—concepts of the means of general welfare and the ambitions of power groups and politicians at home as well as abroad."

NAZIS REPORT DOCKS BOMBED

Claim Other Hits On London And Southeast England

Berlin, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The German high command, reporting continuing night and day attacks on England despite unfavorable weather, said today numerous factories and docks were hit in the London area and airports, war industries and railroads were "bombed effectively" in southeastern England.

The daily communique acknowledged British night attacks on The Netherlands, Belgium and northern France last night, but said they failed to cause noteworthy damage.

Germany herself spent a "bombless" night, it was reported. A few casualties were reported near Rotterdam. (Continued on page six)

To Start Construction Of Warehouse Depot Monday Morning Work Already Under Way On Docks And Road Leading To Port Site; Old Members Of Commission To Be Retained

Regular freight waterway service will be re-established for Greenville within 30 days unless bad weather interferes with the construction of a depot and docks, it was predicted today by J. Nat Harrison, chairman of the Tar River Port Commission.

The port commission received bids for the construction of the depot several days ago, but each of the proposals calls for an expenditure in excess of the available funds and the commission revised the plans and decided to erect the building itself.

Materials already are here to start work and the actual construction is scheduled to get under way at 7 o'clock Monday morning. Unemployed carpenters and laborers desiring work are asked to report at the site on Hardee's creek as several will be required.

Work on the docks already has been started and the two projects are expected to be completed simultaneously.

The Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina steamship line has advised officials that it will establish regular service immediately upon completion of the docks and warehouse depot.

Freight boat is scheduled to arrive at the local port alternate mornings, coming here from Norfolk, providing every other day service to and from the Virginia coast.

It has been more than 20 years since Greenville had regular waterway freight service, although fertilizer and other materials have been brought here by water since that time, but not on scheduled boats.

The Norfolk and Southern purchased the old boat line in 1908 and shortly thereafter discontinued regular service and routed all freight by rail.

Re-establishment of the service will complete a project which has been worked on for years. With the reorganization of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce efforts were (Continued on page six)

Refuse To Change Profits Tax Bill

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The Senate turned down today a proposal by Sen. LaFollette (Prog-Wis) to tax as excess profits all earnings over an eight per cent return on a corporation's invested capital, plus an additional exemption of $5,000.

The Wisconsin senator offered his formula as a substitute for the Finance committee's recommendation that excess profits be determined on the basis of average earnings for the base period 1936-1939 except that a tax-payer would be allowed an eight per cent return on invested capital, plus a $10,000 exemption.

Both LaFollette and the committee proposed that the excess profits tax rate should range from 25 to 50 per cent. LaFollette, however, proposed to assess the amount in proportion to the percentage of return on capital above the exemption, while the committee bracketed would be based on dollar amounts in excess of the exemption.

Nazi Bomb Buckingham Palace, Downing Street

This map locates the German air attack on Buckingham Palace and Downing Street in London. Prime Minister Churchill's official residence is at No. 10 Downing Street. Five bombs were showered on the palace, doing some damage. King George and Queen Elizabeth were at home at the time but they took refuge in the palace's air raid shelters and escaped injury. Three members of the palace staff and three plumbers working there were injured slightly. Incendiary bombs fell on Downing Street but officials said no damage was done there. This was the second attack on the palace. On September 10 a third bomb exploded at the northwest corner of the building (beneath the letter "M"), destroying the swimming pool.

MILITARY AIR WILL BE NOTED

National Guard Unit To Mobilize Monday Morning

Greenville will take on a military atmosphere Monday morning, when Battery A, 113th Field Artillery, local unit of the National Guard, will mobilize for a year of active service.

The guard will mobilize at the local Army at 8 o'clock and will be under military regulations until the year's training is completed.

Orders were issued today for all members to report at the Army Monday morning not later than 8 o'clock. The order applies to new Guardsmen as well as old members.

New members at first were instructed to report on Tuesday morning, but this order has been revoked and recruits are to be at the Army Monday morning.

The unit will be stationed at the Army until September 28, on which date, under present orders, it will start for Camp Jackson, near Columbia, S. C., for the period of actual service.

Captain Worth Wicker, commanding officer of the unit, said that members would be subject to military regulations while encamped here just as much as they will when they reach camp. It will be necessary to secure permission to leave the post, but the commanding officer added that this may be granted under a blanket order. Men and officers will be permitted to eat and sleep at home while stationed here and will enjoy comparative freedom except during actual drills and other military duties.

The local unit which has had an enlistment of only about 80 men now has been increased to 115 men and Captain Wicker said he expected and hoped to increase the personnel to the full strength of 122 by the time it leaves for camp.

Young men desiring to enlist for the year's training, for which they will receive regular pay of $30 monthly, should see Captain Wicker. The call for applications resulted in greatly increasing the personnel since some of the 81 regulars were unable to attend camp because of dependents or business reasons and were permitted to resign.

All officers of the unit, however will undergo the training period, none of them having at any time considered taking advantage of the provision permitting them to resign according to Captain Wicker.

Officers in the unit, in addition to Captain Wicker, are First Lieut. J. H. Moye and Second Lieutenants Dan Wright and Ed Waldrop.

Spokesman Says Vast War Materials Stored In City

Berlin, Sept. 14.—(AP)—London will be bombed relentlessly unless it surrenders, a well-informed source told foreign newspapermen today.

This spokesman declared that one-third of England's war potentials are stored within the British capital, as well as 40 per cent of the nation's imports and that the city therefore is a military objective of the first magnitude.

"No city of the future will be built along London's lines," he said.

"The attack on London was undertaken as a measure of retaliation for months of planeless bombings of German civilians and non-militant objects by the British," this source insisted.

"The British apparently now think because they haven't bombed Germany in the past two nights, we are therefore quits. They apparently look at it like a football match where an error on one side is evened up by an error on the other."

"You can't figure human values that way. One German life may be worth 10 British lives and more. The fact is the German people were challenged by continuing British attacks and now the German people's air force is giving its reply. If the British haven't been over here in the past two nights it is not because they didn't try, but because they couldn't."

Truth About South America Babson Says Mexico, Not South America, Our Greatest Worry

New York City, Sept. 14.—When I first began to travel to South America, I would refer to the people there as South Americans. Thereupon, the leading newspaper men—of whom were friends of mine—would say, "We are not South Americans;—we are Latin Americans."

Continuing to think I knew more about the situation than they did I then began to refer to them as Spanish Americans. But again they explained that the largest country in South America—namely, Brazil is Portuguese both by blood and language. I mention this because so many readers forget that Spanish is spoken in only about one-half of South America. The great central portion uses only Portuguese.

Tremendous difference between U. S. and S. A. During later trips to South America, I have become convinced that "Latin Americans" is the honest term to use in connection with our "brothers to the south," as the President refers to them. The simple truth is that these people are no more like us than are the inhabitants of Italy, Portugal, or

SOLON BLAMES ALIEN AGENTS

Sen. Barbour Places Responsibility For Explosion

Kenvil, N. J., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Activities of "foreign agents" were blamed today by Senator Barbour (R-NJ) for the explosions at the Hercules Powder company that killed at least 48 and within five frightful minutes blasted more than a score of buildings of the 2,000-acre plant.

While state police checked membership rolls of the German-American Bund against the roster of plant employees, Senator Barbour in a statement in Washington said he believed "when the facts are known it will be discovered that it (Thursday's explosion) was due, as in the case of the Black Tom (Jersey City, N. J.) disaster of the pre-World War period, to the activities of foreign agents."

In addition to the New Jersey state police and State Bureau of Explosives, other agencies probing the mysterious explosion were the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Hercules experts, army and navy intelligence officers and United States navy explosive specialists.

None of the many investigators would say whether they had unearthed any evidence of sabotage.

Three names increased the death toll to 48 as steam shovels and cranes this morning began clearing away the twisted steel, powder-smudged brick and other debris that piled up in the terrific blast of Thursday afternoon.

The morning newspapers declared essential services still were carrying on—"limping a little in some places," the News Chronicle said—and asserted that seven consecutive nights in the raid shelters had failed to shake Londoners' morale.

Wednesday night's raids killed 116 persons and injured 260, it was announced, bringing the total from last Saturday through Wednesday to 1,245 dead and 4,816 injured.

London, Sept. 14.—(AP)—German raiders twice dropped bombs on the London area today, carrying on their long campaign of attrition.

Four times up to late afternoon the city's air raid sirens sounded. There was no specific indication as to damage, but it appeared to be light.

Much of the Nazi's aerial activity seemed intended to test Britain's coastal defenses.

The Royal Air Force meanwhile went on with its urgent assignment to smash the bases from which the (Continued on page six)

Danger Seen By Neutrals In War Area

Statement That Britain Facing Intense Danger Of Invasion Made After German Raiders Test England's Southeast Coast; Weather, However, Not So Favorable For Attack

London, Sept. 14.—(AP) The next 48 hours "is a period of intense danger of invasion to Britain," neutral military sources said today.

This statement came as German raiders tested the defenses of England's southeast coast following the eight consecutive nights of destructive raids on London.

Weather conditions off Dover nearest point to German-held France across the channel, were described however, as slightly less favorable for invasion than for some time.

Although air raid warnings sounded twice for brief intervals in England and there were sporadic forays by German planes on the southeast coast towns, only one bombing was reported in daylight today after a week of history's greatest aerial siege.

One German bomber appeared over a southeast coast town, dropped two bombs and vanished into a cloud. Other German planes were sighted in the same area.

While the army, navy and Royal Air Force stand guard at "bomb borders" on Britain's coast and airfields, the post master general announced that due to heavy pressure on telegraph and telephone services the public had been asked to use them for urgent messages only.

This announcement made no mention of any damage done to these facilities by the German bombings.

Armed patrols of police and the home guard turned out at one southeast coast town last night and searched riverside wharves and railroad sidings following reports that six parachutes were seen descending in that direction. They failed to find any evidence to support the reports.

High flying bombers rained high explosives and incendiary bombs on the southeast and western areas of the capital last night despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

A government communique acknowledged that fires were started at various points in the city during the night raid, but said that all of them either had been extinguished or brought under control.

One German plane was reported shot down after being caught in a web of searchlights over east London.

The morning newspapers declared essential services still were carrying on—"limping a little in some places," the News Chronicle said—and asserted that seven consecutive nights in the raid shelters had failed to shake Londoners' morale.

Wednesday night's raids killed 116 persons and injured 260, it was announced, bringing the total from last Saturday through Wednesday to 1,245 dead and 4,816 injured.

HISTORIC MEETING IN METHODIST CHURCH

On Monday afternoon in Jarvis Memorial Church the Methodist women of Greenville met to hold their last business meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary and to organize the New Woman's Society of Christian Service, the name given to the women's organization under the plan for United Methodism.

The opening hymn "The Church Is One Foundation," was sung, after which Mrs. W. H. Taft, the president, welcomed the large group of women present and with speed and precision dispersed the business of the old organization.

At this point, Mrs. W. P. Moore, Central Zone leader, read a brief history of the Auxiliary, which was organized in 1896, paying glowing tribute to the mothers and grandmothers, who through their prayers, heroism and self-sacrifice have passed on to their daughters a rich

Forty Years Ago Today

September 14, 1900

His Home Paper
"It's strange," said a celebrated author recently, "and yet not strange how these old associations cling to us. I was born in a rural district and forty years ago the little country weekly was the only newspaper literature we had. It was published every Saturday, and when it didn't come 'on time' everybody was in a hurry. Well, I have not visited my birthplace in twenty years, but during all that time I have been a subscriber to that little country weekly. I've crossed the seas and it has followed me faithfully to foreign capitals. I've taken it from my pocket in the clubs in London and Paris, and have read with all the interest of old, how Colonel So and So is in our midst, how John Jones Sundayed with us, how our esteemed cotyner sat on three dead men yesterday, and how 'the editor is thankful for a mess of cabbage, but needs some bacon to boll it with,' etc. Yes, that little country weekly is a positive joy to me yet."—Atlanta Constitution.

heritage of missionary accomplishments.

The pastor, Rev. T. M. Grant, arose and called the group to order. He opened the meeting with prayer and the hymn "Faith Of Our Fathers" was sung.

Mrs. J. H. Rose was presented, and told in a few choice words about the new plans for organization, concluding with a most soul-searching and appropriate poem "Life's Heritage."

Mrs. Gus Forbes read the purpose of the organization, after which Mr. Grant issued an invitation to all women to join. The entire membership of the old Auxiliary asked to be recorded as charter members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, together with the following new members, Mesdames Marvin Sugg, J. E. Miller, Mamie Haskett Rumley and Stannie H. Brown.

The state of officers was presented, elected and installed in an impressive ceremony conducted by the pastor.

Mr. Grant next introduced the two distinguished guests, Mrs. T. M. Smoot, the wife of Dr. Smoot, a Methodist minister, who during his lifetime was prominent throughout Virginia and North Carolina, and Miss Elizabeth Titsworth, the new Deaconess in charge of work at the Student Center, who left us this thought from her brief message, "If we do great things for God, we can expect great things from Him."

Mrs. W. H. Taft, the first president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, took the chair and charged each member to build on the past and to look toward the future with great anticipation.

While all heads were bowed, Mrs. Helene Kirkpatrick sang in her usual impressive and sweet voice the dismissal prayer, "A Charge To Keep I Have."—Reported.

Eleven mattresses have been made. Next week the Farm Security group will use the mattress center for their families. There is still a little confusion about who is to help with these mattresses. In every case the family to receive the mattress must assist with it. It takes both men and women or older boys and girls. As many as six can work on one mattress. When one comes along, the progress is greatly hampered. Will landlords help the applicants to come in sufficient number? Several persons have not come the day they were asked to come. This means they will have to wait several months for another notice.

BABSON

plan of Secretary Hull for holding as trustee, any Western Hemisphere countries which the Nazis may threaten to take over is sound. I especially have in mind the French and Dutch possessions. This however, is about as far as we can go. To attempt to buy or underwrite the products of South America, of which we already have a surplus, is pure bunk and war propaganda of the worst kind. The only redeeming feature is that Washington says, "The country won't hear anything more of it after November 5th." Let me also add that I am assured if Great Britain holds out until November 5th she will come through O. K. Whichever party is then elected, she will get more developments and anything else she needs.

The chief products of South America are wheat, corn, cattle, wool, and coffee. Of all of these, except the last, we now have a surplus. Grains are being stored on almost every United States farm; cattle are a drug on our market, while United States wool is selling for only half the price that it did 26 years ago. It is true that we do not raise coffee; but we purchased from Latin America last year more than we could consume and still they had coffee left over to burn. Yes, they actually burned it. Yet, Europe lacks all of these South American products. Europe is a natural customer of South America. To attempt to dam up this natural flow of trade is absolutely foolhardy.

What About Mexico?
But why worry so much about South America and say nothing about Mexico? Mexico is at our doorstep. Its politics are rotten and criminal. It is confiscating honest investments by United States citizens in farms, mining properties, and oil lands. Its people are illegally stealing across our borders and planting seeds of Communism among our own citizens. Mexico is becoming a cancer that is liable to eat the heart out of Latin America. Why does our government worry so much about what is taking place in little Uruguay, several thousand miles away, and give almost no attention to Mexico which directly adjoins us?

My training has been in business and, not in international relations. If, however, I had charge of our foreign relations, I should immediately march into Mexico and serve as "Trustee" of that country until the present European conflict is over. Thereby, I would make sure that neither Germany nor Japan could seize Mexico. Then, I should "buy" the Central American countries between Mexico and the Panama Canal. My next move would be to negotiate with Columbia and Venezuela so as to protect the Caribbean Sea. In these deals, the United States would probably get the short end of the stick. The cost would be great, but worth the price. As to the rest of South America south of Brazil, let nature take its course commercially. But we should insist more equal opportunities for air bases which will make impossible invasion of South America by any hostile nation.

What Is Right And Wrong?
During this hysteria over defense—and I believe in the defense program—we must not forget a fundamental fact, namely, that the United States and the British Empire are rich while the nations of Central Europe are poor. I am willing to give my life to save Great Britain; but in order to have a durable peace both the British Empire and the United States must think more of the other fellow and less of themselves. The world has reached a stage where there must be a revision of assets and opportunities. This especially applies to the South American situation.

We will never make permanent friends with Latin Americans by putting iron and rings about them or by keeping them from trading with Europe and Japan. The great mass of Latin Americans are very poor. They can be bribed and bullied for a time; but, if so, they will ultimately revolt against us. It is too bad that anyone who today speaks in favor of giving other nations more equal opportunities is branded as pro-Nazi or as a Communist. There! I have had my say. In coming articles I shall return to business conditions and statistics.

This Regency Rage — Its Varieties Endless

By MARGARET KERNOLE

AP Feature Service Writer

The fall furniture news is Regency. Sometimes it's a copy or adaptation of English Regency. Again it's a classic reflection, as is this mahogany sofa, which includes traditional carving in cornucopia as well as in massed oak and acorn designs.

Small stripes in the upholstery further emphasize this style in wheat design, which was popular in American Regency (or post-colonial) pieces.

Has Antique Counterparts This sofa, shown at the Southern Furniture Exposition building in High Point, N. C., is reminiscent of styles in Charleston and Savannah homes. Other interior decorating ideas borrowed this season from 18th century Regency originals are black and gold lacquered furniture; brass galleries around mahogany or rose-wood table tops; scroll designs, ev-erything in wall paper; reed-like radiat-ing lines and curved-in table, chair or sofa legs; lion motif for metal drawer pulls; striking color con-trasts, like deep-red and yellow; or fat vase-like lamp bases with white shades.

Tennessee Has Good Framework — And If Sophomores Click - Look Out

By DON WHITEHEAD

AP Feature Service

Knoxville, Tenn.—Tennessee has the framework of another great football machine this fall, but it will take at least a trio of sensation-al sophomores to get it rolling along the Southeastern Conference championship track.

Major Bob Neyland, never averse to taking a chance, is ready to gam-ble with sophomores in plugging the gaps in the Volunteers' graduation riddled ranks.

Six first-line men—three backs and two linemen—and several valu-able reserves will be missing from the 1939 conference championship team which was undefeated, un-tied, and unscored on until South-ern California turned them back 14-0 in the Rose Bowl.

Neyland must rebuild a backfield hard hit by the loss of Quarterback George Cafego, the West Virginian who sparked the Volunteers through-out undefeated seasons; Sam Ba-tholomew, one of the South's best blocking backs, and Fullbacks Len Coffman and Joe Wallen.

The line will return intact ex-cept for Center Jimm Rike and Tackle Boyd Clay.

Foxx For Cafego

Neyland's hardest job will be re-placing Cafego. He expects to ac-complish this by shifting his ace wingback, blond Bob Foxx of Knoxville, into the tailback slot at least for part-time duty.

Other tailbacks will be Johnny (Rhett) Butler of Knoxville, last year's sophomore sensation who is a bit too light for regular duty; Bust Warren of Miami, Fla., and Van Thompson of Knoxville.

Two husky sophomores, Bill Meek of Birmingham, Ala., and Chester Robertson of Oklahoma City, Okla., are being groomed as blocking backs, but veteran Ike Peel of Dy-ersburg, Tenn., a reserve last year, probably will get the call.

Jim Swartzinger, Garfield, N. J., sophomore, is expected to do heavy duty at the wingback post along with Bob Andridge of Knoxville and Foxx, when Foxx is not in the tail-back slot.

Neyland has four fullbacks includ-ing a promising sophomore, Bill Nowling of St. Petersburg, Fla. If Nowling continues the smashing play he showed as a freshman, Fred Newman of Knoxville probably will be shifted from the regular full-back post to do wingback duty.

All-America Ed Molinski of Mas-sillon, O., and Bob Suffridge of Knoxville will be back to patrol the guard position, and Ed Cifers of Kingsport, Tenn., and Jimmy Cole-man of St. Albans, W. Va., will re-turn at ends, eliminating worry at those spots.

Need A Tackle Abe Shires of Alderson, W. Va., a wheel-horse at left tackle for two years, will be in his old position, but a wide-open fight is in prospect for the other tackle job. Soph-omore Leonard Simonetti of New Philadelphia, O., has come along fast and may oust his more experi-enced mates from the starting line.

The center duties will fall to Cap-tain Norbert Akerman of Louisville Ky., a fine defensive player, and his understudy, Ray Graves of Knoxville.

The Vols will meet their first mafor-league test October 5 when they clash with the Duke Blue Devils, a game that will reveal whether they are still champs or just another country ball club.

Alabama's Crimson Tide and Tu-lane's Green Wave rank with the Vols in most pre-season predic-tions as the heavy-weights of the Southeastern loop, with Kentucky's Wildcats placed as an up-and-com-ing dark horse.

Cleveland—When Mildred McKay started teaching women to drive she soon learned there were a lot of problems besides making them shift gears accurately.

She had to induce fat women to twist around while backing. She had to make them stretch enough to use rear-vision mirrors properly and to sit at the steering wheel easily.

The solution: First reduce 'em, then teach 'em. Calisthenics are part of her cur-riculum.

Miss McKay directs the Cleveland Automobile Club's driving school, one of the country's largest.

Three years ago, at 30, she had a second-hand car and an idea. Now she teaches men as well as women and bosses a dozen fellow instruc-tors, all men.

Not A Serious Accident

She has supervised instruction of 2,000 persons, 14 to 73 years old, and has yet to hear that one has been involved in a serious accident.

Wives go to driving school be-cause "he (endeared mate) just won't teach me," or because "I wouldn't think of asking him." Exception was a pupil who wanted to drive "so I can get my hus-band home on Saturday night."

Forty per cent of the pupils are men, however. Their main difficulties are (1) heavy feet—inclination to race the motor; (2) a tendency to "crucify" the brakes. Young persons are the most adept pupils.

car on the school's training field, a 10,000-square-foot area with gravelled streets, traffic guide lines, stoplights, curbs and portable safety zones, a steep hill and a meas-ured parking meter zone. Lessons in genuine traffic follow. Star graduate is the manager of a parking lot who hadn't found time to take up driving while check-ing in a thousand cars a day.

Addressing a convention of the International Teamsters' Union in Constitution Hall at Washington, President Roosevelt grimly declared "I hate war now more than ever." He advocated conscription of non-cooperative industries for national defense purposes and pledged that his labor and social programs would expand rather than retreat in building national defense. The speech inaugurated the President's third term campaign.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

NEVER LOSE HOPE

God's in His heaven:

All's right with the world.
What wonderful faith is shown in these two lines by Browning. The little child, observing the beautiful, may the paradise of another morn, knew that such things could not exist except God was watching over all. And so she felt safe and secure, with the hand of God resting on her own small world.

Our own environment today is not so limited as that seven-year-old child's. Every day the headlines of newspapers, the news-panels in theaters, and the driving voices innumerable radio commentators impress us with the fact that this is the blackest moment of history. But from the beginning of the world every age has felt that it alone has had the darkest moment of the world. But as the world and its troubles have come to us, so has the light of the world come, even through the most terrible moments.

We who are living in another dark period of history must rest in this light, and, as the little child, grasp the sword of faith lead us through these days. "Earth changes," Browning said, "but thy soul and God stand sure." And we who will give our hands and hearts to God in perfect trust, will come through this experience unbound.

This may be the darkest season in world history, but the Light of the World still shines.

MEXICO OPENS COUNTRY TO SPANISH REFUGEES

The greatest migration of liberals from Europe, since the great exodus to the United States after the 1848 revolutions, may be the outcome of an agreement signed between Spain and Mexico at Vichy, France, on August 29. Mexico agreed to accept an undetermined number of Loyalist refugees for colonization.

More than a year ago President Cardenas granted haven to thousands of these Spanish political refugees who fought for liberty in their homeland. Under the new agreement, it is possible that 250,000 Spaniards now in France may find homes in the New World.

The defeat of France, in June, caused consternation among the refugees, who were faced with the possibility of being driven back into Spain, where they would have been at the mercy of Franco—or of falling into the hands of Hitler or Mussolini. It was feared this trio would make short work of the liberty-loving Loyalists.

With funds and ships uncertain and the war making the world situation precarious, Mexico made no promise

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: The Cabrillos invite the Taylors to dinner. Pedro observes John's calm possession and Constance now has no opportunity to explain.

Chapter 28

'Only One Explanation'
THE dance had ended and John had taken her to a remote corner of the room. She couldn't leave him without seeming rude. She had no excuse. No one in the room was interested in her. John had the attitude of a man who had staked a claim and defied anyone to trespass.

Later, tomorrow, after she had talked to Pedro, she would tell John he must not consider her won. She would never marry him. She couldn't tell him here.

Dance after dance in John's arms, or pleading weariness seated beside John. Don and Pedro exchanged Nadine and Donna.

And then John must ask for his duty dance with his hostess.

Pedro was beside her the moment John left. The strangled "cheera" started the melody Josefa had sung and Constance wondered if they could have been prompted by Pedro. His first remark discouraged the thought.

"You might tell Mr. Raskthorne that he doesn't need to act as a bodyguard. No one is going to kidnap you."

"Damn civilization," whispered Constance.

"For a moment Pedro's arms tightened about her, then relaxed. "Right," he agreed. "Civilized women love with their heads. It looks as though you'd already won your battle."

"Pedro, you don't understand . . . please, dance back in the shadows . . . you must give me a chance to explain, I can't here."

There is only one explanation you can give; only one that I'll accept. I won't ask you to do it the difficult way, by making an announcement before these people, but after the others are asleep, drive me outside. We'll take Meg, and to San Francisco, file our intention to wed, then three days later we'll settle our problem for a time. Will you do this, Michael?

Settle their question for a time! Constance dared to think of what his plan would mean; the drive south with Pedro, with the right to sit in the curve of his arm. Days in San Francisco, the hilarity of the three of them as Meg took them sightseeing in her beloved home city.

And then, at the end of the three days, their marriage.

But what would it mean? John's pride would be hurt beyond redemption. She didn't know, wouldn't blame him if, having violated her agreement, he called in his loan. Too much of it was already spent. He'd have to take over the ranch . . . and under such circumstances he would never sell to the Taylors.

And Pedersen, the earnest, kindly man, what of him and his wife and their children?

And what of the ranch, incomplete, neither a cattle nor a dairy ranch.

"Adolf!" For a moment Constance rested her head against his shoulder, then lifted it. "I can't!" Her voice was hoarse in its renunciation. "I can't, Pedro; that's what I have to explain. I can't tell you here, Pedro—"

"I understand already," he answered through stiff lips. "You bargained in love all right. John Raskthorne is backing you because you taught him to love you. And I have been working my fool head off to make your ranch a success because you taught me to love you . . . or perhaps I didn't need teaching."

"You've gone right down the line, from Judge Franck to Fisher. You turn on your charm until we're out-circled, you sacrifice ourselves to help you . . . and for what?"

"A Wonderful Lesson"
CONSTANCE wondered if he had signaled the musicians. Only one who knew the melody would have realized they had stopped before it was complete.

Pedro took her back to the isolated corner, bowed slightly. "The shrewd little Michael Mahoney," he said.

Constance lifted her face, eyes dark with pain, chin pointed proudly. "Thank you, Pedro," she said. "You've taught me a wonderful lesson. I've learned just how much the love of a man can amount to."

John was with her almost before Pedro, startled, hesitating, had left.

"Chita, you're working too hard," John observed tenderly. "I'm going to pack you off to your room, and from now on you're going to mix a little play with your labor."

Constance looked at him in wonder. This, then, was John. Would John have given her up so lightly? John, who had never said, "Michael Mahoney wouldn't count a battle lost until he had been slammed into the bastille and the key was turned on him, and even then his luck might turn at the zero hour."

At Constance awoke at dawn; or rather she arose at dawn after scarcely closing her eyes. She slipped quietly from the house, saddled Pancho and started out. Just ahead of her was a queer

"Lammy!"
"Miss Constance, and on a 'orse, now if h't 'ad a 'orse—"

"Come on, Lammy, I'll ride one for you and we'll ride away and have a grand pow-wow; only quiet, we don't want anyone else, do we?"

Watching Lamson's long leg swing over the mare she'd helped him to saddle, she realized that if worst came to worst, Lamson would only have to lock his feet around the saddle girth and remain on top for eternity.

They went on a quick trot away from the stables toward the hills. Ahead of them the redwoods stood out against the rose-flushed sky, choruses of birds sang hopefully for the coming of the sun, already shining on the ocean behind them.

"Now," prompted Constance, "tell me all about it; how the family decided to come out, why, and what they left behind them. And Lammy, be honest with me. I'm carrying a large load, and knowing what I have to face means so much."

"Miss Constance, h'l—"
"Lammy, I have to know for their sake."

Lamson sighed. "Hit was a matter of credit, Miss Constance. There wasn't any. You see, they'd gotten in the way of letting you pay the rent and groceries and they 'adn't figured the cost, and after the rent was three months due the owner suggested they move. There wasn't any place they could move save a 'otel, and the 'otels asked for an 'advance."

Cold Water
CONSTANCE nodded. "And where did they find the money to make the cross country trip?"

"Well . . . well . . . to be frank, Miss Constance, Mister John said as 'ow 'e'd pay the way, h'if they'd bring 'im."

Constance nodded. "So you stayed at the best hotels and had a grand time crossing? How did you keep up with them in my car, Lammy?"

"They stayed over 'ere and there to let me catch 'up."
"How long is Mister John intending to remain, did he say?"

"E didn't say, Miss Constance, but h'l 'oover'ed 'e'd put a manager in his office and would stay 'ere, h' indefinitely. Mrs. Cabrillo said we'd 'ave no cause to worry 'bout expenses as long as Mister John remained."

Constance gave a short, bitter laugh. So they'd made a deal, those two, her mother and John. John would assume their expenses as long as he was at El Cabrillo.

She should be relieved. She had been worrying about fifteen house guests over the week end, and plans for other parties the whole summer long.

Oh, what was the matter with her? Didn't she realize John was doing this to help her win? Couldn't she appreciate it?

She pulled upon a low summit and looked down over the ranch. Long fingers of sunlight were now touching the different centers, the low white barns, the manager's house . . . she looked away from that quickly . . . and back to the barns.

And then she looked again. The cows should be in pasture at this hour, but they weren't.

"There's a man who sits 'is saddle," prated Lamson proudly. "H'l say, look what 'e's doing?"

Constance was looking. Eyes wide and mouth open she was watching Pedro jump from his saddle, pull another horseman from his; take him by the back of the collar to the trough, and hold his head under it while he pumped water.

Now he was applying the toe of his boot to the drenched rider's trousers.

A second horse ambled up, the rider lolling over the saddle horn. Pedro made a lunge for him, yanked him off and dragged him to the trough.

"Come on, Lammy," she touched Pancho with her heels and Pancho sprang ahead.

She drew up at the fence, tossed Pancho's reins over his head, vaulted the fence and came up just in time to hear the last of Pedro's curses.

"What's wrong?" she asked. "Pedro wheeled. 'Plenty! We skip now, milking today because these hembres were drunk last night. They were celebrating the arrival of the Cabrillos. I might suggest, if this ranch means anything to you, that you do not give the keys to the wine cellar to the first man that asks for them."

"Keys . . . they're in my desk h'l—"
Constance stopped and bit her lip.

"You might keep an eye on Francisco. I'll watch Manuelo. They're not fit to touch a cow, and you know what happens if an udder is injured. Who is that man?"

"Lamson, our . . ." she lifted her chin. "The only man on God's green earth whom I trust," she stated.

"Then see if he can be trusted with cows. Does he know anything about milk; anything about anything? Every damned man on the place is sleeping it off. A fine start!"

Constance turned to Lamson. "Come, show Mr. Taylor a man who can hold his temper."

Nazis' Secret Weapon
and mysterious presence attributed to war gases in popular fiction, and not because it is widely destructive of human life. It disappears too quickly to be of maximum value as a weapon against trained troops.

But as a panic producer among civilians it is highly effective. Some experts figure one bomb of phosgene would produce more panic and fear among civilians than 100 actual explosive bombs.

The chief is a simple combination of chlorine—the purifier you get in drinking water in minute quantities—and carbon monoxide. It is easy to compress into a liquid, and upon release becomes a gas.

Slight concentrations smell like fresh-cut corn in a field. Heavy concentrations smell like a silo full of fermenting ensilage. When a man makes a dash for it in the presence of phosgene, he experiences a sharp metallic taste in his mouth.

In an area as big as a room 100 feet square, a lethal dose of phosgene is one-third of an ounce, if the victim is exposed thirty minutes. In higher concentrations, of course, it is quickly fatal. Drops of watery material form in the lungs, stop oxygen and bring about suffocation.

It is well suited to use against civilian populations also because victims would be likely to run or exert themselves. The slightest exertion produces death almost immediately.

Phosgene is known to all military forces. The common gas mask is one hundred per cent effective against it.

Military experts point to recent statements of the German high command accusing the British of dropping poisonous material in grain fields. They suggest the Germans are preparing to use gas and are "justifying" its use in advance—just as Hitler "justified" wholesale raids on London in advance by accusing the British of barbarous bombing of civilian populations.

Portland, Me. (AP)—Slipping Ocean Point. Captain Charles Wade's excursion boat "Ball Days" looks like a Flying Dutchman.

The control board is deserted and there's no one at the wheel. But on top of the cabin sits Captain Wade with a metal cylinder in his hand. A cord runs from the cylinder to the controls. Once in a while the captain pushes a key. The boat swerves to port or starboard.

The cylinder, which embodies the same principles as electric steering devices on huge ocean-going vessels, was invented by Captain Wade and his brother, Elmer J. Wade, an electrical research engineer.

as to the exact number of refugees it would accept. The arrangement, however, is far from one-sided. While Mexico is making a great humanitarian gesture, it will also gain thousands of militant supporters of democracy, whose belief in liberty has met the test of fire and sword. They will form a strong bulwark against the spread of totalitarianism south of the Rio Grande.

This may be extremely important in the days to come, for the dictators of Europe are busy selling Franco's particular brand of Fascism to Mexicans. Spanish leaders talk much of a revival of the old empire of Spanish Catholic kings—or a modern equivalent, which probably means Franco. Latin-American Fascism is definitely religious in character, and one of the big objectives is to enlarge the power of the Roman Catholic Church. This appeals to many conservatives throughout South and Central America.

Another important argument raised in favor of Fascism in these countries is the common Spanish cultural background they share. It has been pointed out that the democratic political philosophy is borrowed from the Anglo-Saxons and not suited for the Latin peoples. Advocates of Fascism urge a return to a political setup modeled after modern Spain as being more in keeping with the Latin nature.

Observers on the scene reason that this gives the Franco brand of Fascism the greatest chance of success in Latin America. If it should succeed in gaining a foothold the United States would have difficulty in dodging some of the responsibility. It will be remembered that this country indirectly aided Franco win the Civil War when Congress passed the Embargo Act making it impossible to ship arms and munitions to the Loyalists. At the same time, Franco was well supplied with war materials from Hitler and Mussolini. (Scottish Rite News).

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—Young Democrats, with red, white and blue "Roosevelt" galluses and belts, or without any such colorful equipment for holding up their breeches have been sown a crop of corns and bunions in the Sir Walter lobby by ever since early Friday morning in fact there were some early comers on Thursday bent on capturing the "Standing" marathon.

In age these so-called Young partisans range from callow youths to patriarchs who have long since passed their allotted three score years and ten; but to a man they seem able to take it indefinitely as far as standing around and talking are concerned.

On the whole, the convention has been well behaved, with no outward and visible sounds of extraordinary thirst; though one hotel attache remarked that when the bottles were collected from the many rooms and started down the chute to which they are consigned it sounded like the hail of anti-aircraft shrapnel over London so vividly described by newspaper writers.

Logically enough, politics is the sole topic of the many conversations, but unless things are going on under cover which have not been caught by your reporter's eager ears nothing remotely resembling a spectacular coup of scoop has occurred or is in the offing.

Without the slightest disrespect to a departed Tar Heel of rather heroic proportions, one was remarked that the Young Democrats were mourning the loss of "one of their members, Captain Ashe, who died at the ripe age of 97, and to whom a monument was dedicated Friday.

Among the "youngsters" much in evidence has been Walter "Petey" Murphy, well past 70, who declared loudly that he is still as "young in spirit and thought, if not in action," as anyone.

The Rowan veteran has just returned from a trip to New York. He is fully convinced that Wendell Wilkie hasn't even a remote chance to beat President Roosevelt.

"Why some of my good friends up there who are staunch and regular Republicans say they simply will not vote for Wilkie," he said emphatically. "Roosevelt will sweep New York by a very heavy majority; will win in New Jersey and has a better than even chance to get Pennsylvania."

As for the North Carolina situation, a YD convention would not be the logical place to look for Wilkie sentiment; but the consensus—even the unanimous opinion—seemed to be that the G. O. P. standard bearer is due to be swamped almost as badly as was Alf Landon in 1936 despite reports of some Democratic defection.

Parker Hurls Shut-Out Victory Over Zinser And Eagles

TARBORO GETS ONE GAME EDGE

Strikeout King Fans Six In 2-0 Win Over Eagles

Behind the superb pitching of Don Parker, Tarboro ace, the Tarboro Serpents defeated Kinston 2-0 and gained a game over the losers in the Coastal Plain Play-Off series. Games now stand 3-2 with Tarboro on the long end. The game was a pitchers' duel throughout with both hurlers allowing four hits, but Zinser was not quite as effective as the Tarboro chunker in keeping the blows scattered.

Parker, who gained the title of the Coastal strike-out king, whiffed six batters; Zinser put one down via the strike out route. Both hurlers handed out two walks.

Tarboro's runs came in the sixth on a walk to Justice, a sacrifice by Mincy, a double by McHenry and an error on Bator's roller. Kinston was not able to bunch its hits for a score.

Bill Justice, Tarboro short stop, led the Snakes at the plate with two for three trips, no other player for either team managed to hit safely more than once.

This is the third time Tarboro has managed to pull into the lead but each time the Eagles have evened the score. Neither team has won a home game. The clubs will play tonight at eight o'clock in Tarboro.

ROSIE'S SOURED ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

Washington (AP)—National defense has made Rosie a discontented cow.

Mrs. Philander Johnson, who lives across from Congressional airport, complained to police that zooming students in the Civil aeronautics Authority flight-training program scare poor Rosie out of her wits.

Rosie will be chewing peacefully when students trying landings practically taxi down her spine. Mrs. Johnson said it takes two hours to get Rosie into the barn after a bad flight. It's affected her milk, too.

Rosie's precursor was a defense casualty. She tried to climb a barbed wire fence when a plane scared her, and Mrs. Johnson had to dispose of her.

It'll Take Real Champ To Win 3-Way American Loop Dogfight

AP Feature Service

In recent years the National League has provided all the last-month fun in baseball—the Yanks were always too far ahead in the American loop. Not so this year. While Cincinnati coasts along in the National, the junior league is offering one of the most interesting pennant fights in history. Here's how the contenders stack up:

Yankee pitching mainstay is veteran Red Ruffing. When other old-timers faded, only the sensational work of young Marius Russo, Rookie Ernest Bonham and Relief Hurler Johnny Murphy lifted the champs.

Yankee hitters (team average about 260) are paced by Joe DiMaggio (340). Loss of Tom Henrich left Joe as the only man above 300—but Rolfe, Gordon, Rosar, Dickey, and others give Yankee attack timely power.

Yankee manager is Joe McCarthy whose smooth-working machines have won four World Series in a row. New Yorkers, in their big rally showed the poise, power and spirit of his former champions.

Indian pitching ace (and class of the league) is Bob Feiler, expected to win 27 games for Cleveland. Al Smith and Al Milnar, also regular starters, faded in a September slump. Other hurlers aren't too dependable.

Indian hitting star, with Trotsky hurt, is Roy Weatherly. Cleveland has been hitting about .275, lacks power of other clubs. Rookies Boudreau and Mack, both at 300, have been the team's hitting surprises as well as fielding sensations.

Indian manager, Oscar Vitt, has been able to do little managing since mid-season players' uprising. Team's prettiness for his ouster brought down wrath of fans around the circuit and their razzing hasn't helped the Indians.

Tiger pitching key is burly Buck Newsom, aiming for 20 games. Schoolboy Rowe and Rookie Gorsica, along with Tommy Bridges, have helped keep Detroit near the top. Newhouse could help with his early form.

Tiger hitting ranks show five men above 300, led by Hank Greenberg. His 329 odd average and some 115 runs batted in head a parade of power-hitting companions: McCosky, Gehring, Sullivan, and York.

Tiger manager, Del Baker, has moved Detroit along at smooth pace. His shift of Greenberg to the outfield to permit York's power to be added at the plate has worked out as the year's strategical masterpiece.

GAME SET FOR 3 P. M. SUNDAY

Greenville Team To Seek Revenge From Beaufort Nine

Tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock the Greenville All Stars will meet the White Post team of the Beaufort county league. The game is to be played in the Guy Smith stadium.

The Greenville All Stars made up of such players as Harold Forbes, who played for the local entry in the Coastal Plain, Carl Pierre, who for the past two years has been a member of the Duke nine, Dubose Simpson, George Lautares, who two years ago played for a semi-pro club in the state, Wayland Sermons, Jim Respass, Red Corey, a member of the ECTC ball club, Ford McGowan, Dick Paul, Marvin Sticks, all former Greenville High athletes, and Charles Jackson, have compiled a long record of wins.

Thus far this season the All Stars have played 30 games, losing only two of this number. One of these losses was handed to the All Stars by White Post. Dominic Andriola, White Post ace, layed the defeat on the local aggregation. Andriola, a former Greenville hurler and at one time with one of the teams in the Piedmont league, has been a large factor in the White Post winnings. White Post has won the pennant of the Beaufort county league for the past several years.

The local team is out for revenge and it will probably turn out to be a very exciting game for White Post and Wayland Sermons' All Stars.

SECRET WEAPON? THE GREEKS HAD A WORD FOR IT

Greatest secret weapon of all time was Greek fire.

By means of it the Byzantine or Eastern Roman empire ruled the Mediterranean and kept alive classical civilization for 1,000 years after Rome had fallen to barbarians. The secret was guarded so well that chemists and military experts can only guess its composition today.

Used chiefly as a naval weapon, "Greek fire" was shot from siphons heralding the flame throwers of the first World War.

Water could not quench it. Projected from the tubes of the Byzantine biremes, it set on fire the ships of the Saracens at Cydus and assured their defeat. No fleet could stand against the "sea fire" of Byzantium.

Greek fire is supposed to have been invented by an architect named Callinicus (648-35), who had gone to Constantinople from Syria.

Modern military men believe it was composed of such materials as sulphur and naphtha with quicklime, and took fire spontaneously when wetted. It was projected and ignited by applying the hose of a water engine to the "breach" of the siphon, a wooden tube cased with bronze.

It was the mainstay of an empire thought corrupt and decadent, which by means of this "secret weapon" endured for centuries.

Who Watches The Watchman? Goldsboro, N. C. (AP)—Goldsboro police, asked to investigate a nudist colony, found that the complaint was occasioned by the night-baths in a creek of a tired and hot night watchman.

Tides occur twice in every 24 hours and 52 minutes.

N. F. A. Organized

New Farmers of America Club, composed of boys taking vocational agriculture, was organized yesterday at the Pitt County Training School at Grimesland. The officers elected were: President, Carlos Dudley, vice-president, George Laughinghouse; second vice-president, John H. Johnson; secretary, Moses Kennedy; assistant secretary, Clifton Stevenson; treasurer, Odell Chapman; reporter, Wilbert Chapman; parliamentarian, Nathaniel Chapman; chaplain, Charlie Highsmith; historian, James Fleming; song and cheer leaders, Oscar Marable and James Laughinghouse; watchman, George Whitehurst.

The purpose of this club is to acquaint boys with the vocational program as set up by the state and national government, and to interest and encourage them in their work throughout the year.

This year there are more boys taking vocational agricultural than in the history of the school. Prof. K. M. Keys, who is the instructor and advisor of this group, is doing a splendid piece of work. He and the boys have planned a campus survey and beautification program for the first few weeks of school. Prof. Keys comes to us highly recommended by the officials of A. and T. College. At Elerby, N. C., where he taught vocational agriculture, he carried out a successful program of rural electrification, community canning project, boys' thrift project and with the progress already made. This committee also expressed appreciation to the superintendent of Pitt county schools, Mr. D. H. Conley, and the County Board of Education and Board of Commissioners for the improvements now going on at the school. Charlie Jones of Grimesland is president and E. A. Chapman is secretary. THE SAVANNAH WAS THE FIRST STEAMER TO CARRY MAIL ACROSS THE ATLANTIC!

James W. Garnett, assistant chief clerk, Railway Mail Service at Kansas City, Mo., is president of the Business Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist Church. This class, which was founded 26 years ago, has a membership of 1,400. When stamps were first introduced in this country some people glued the stamps on envelopes with chewing gum, some used pins, while others placed the stamps inside the envelopes. Odd isn't it?

CANADA'S LEAF CROP IS SHORT

Winterville Man Returns After Only Four Weeks

George Kittrell of Winterville has just returned from St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, where he goes each year to help prepare Canadian tobacco for the market.

Mr. Kittrell returned after only four weeks, while he usually stays six weeks and has been employed as many as eight weeks. He reported that Canada lost approximately half of its crop when it was killed by frost.

The Pitt county man declared that 50 per cent of the 1940 crop was standing in the fields, frost-bitten and of no value and added that unless the farmers receive some aid from the government many would not have funds to harvest a crop next year and they would suffer even more than this season.

Thirty million pounds of last year's bumper crop was processed, farmers being paid nine cents per pound by the government at the time and this proved to be a salvation for many as the surplus was sold this year and farmers paid an additional nine cents per pound. Tobacco sold on the market last year averaged 18 cents per pound and the processed tobacco brought the same amount—nine cents at the time it was stored and nine cents when it was sold.

In regard to the war situation Mr. Kittrell said there was very little talk of the question in Canada adding that you heard war talk much more here than in that British dominion.

The country is busy preparing for war, however, he said, declaring that "airplanes are in the air like blackbirds." He related that one hospital in the city where he was staying had been converted into an aviation training school.

air fighting. Two German craft were missing.

German raiders returning from night raids on the British capital said they encountered "extraordinary weak defense."

Incessant Nazi air bombardments of London, German military circles asserted today, have forced the British to concentrate their anti-aircraft defenses in the metropolitan region, thereby depriving other parts of the island of protection.

The industrial Midlands and other sections rapidly are becoming easy targets for German raiders, these sources said, and added that aerial preparations for the long-threatened invasion of England were well in hand.

Gives Results Of Ratings Of Cafes

The regular monthly cafe and restaurant ratings were released today by J. H. Moore, county sanitary inspector, and J. T. Welch, city sanitary inspector, through the Pitt county health department.

The inspectors called attention to the fact that they had noticed that the cleaner and more sanitary the eating place, the more popular it is. In other words, that aside from the question of health, it is good business for the owners or managers to see that their establishment is sanitary, they agree.

The ratings follow:

Probe Delayed On Expenses Of FDR
Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Members of the Senate Campaign Investigating committee decided today to study President Roosevelt's Labor Day speeches before passing on a Republican contention that the speeches were "political" and involved expenses subject to the Hatch Act.

A complaint was filed with the committee by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee.

After a closed session, Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) said that the committee was unanimously of the opinion that they could not with proper judgment determine action at this time until the individuals of the committee had opportunity to review the President's speeches on this trip and make study of the facts and circumstances in connection with the provisions of the federal statutes.

Martin asked the committee to find out who paid the expenses for the presidential train and to determine whether these costs should come within the $3,000 limit on presidential campaign expenditures imposed by the Hatch act.

Awards Contracts For War Supplies

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The war department announced today the awarding of contracts totalling more than $230,000,000, including one for the manufacture of Rolls-Royce airplane engines by the Packard Motor Car company of Detroit at an estimated cost of $62,448,000.

The number of engines covered by the contract was not disclosed immediately. A tentative agreement with Packard to go ahead with arrangements for production of the Rolls-Royce engines under a license from the British, holder of the patents, had been reached previously.

Shortly before announcing completion of the contract with Packard, the war department made known it had awarded a contract to the General Motors Corporation of Detroit for the mass production of machine guns at an estimated cost of $81,000,000.

It also had announced contracts for the purchase of $76,393,592 worth of fighter airplanes, from the Bell Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., and the Republic Aviation Corporation at Farmingdale, Long Island, N. Y. Approximately $20,000,000 worth of other miscellaneous contracts were announced.

British Soldiers Harrass Italians

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 14.—(AP)—British general headquarters announced tonight that Italian forces had pushed into the Egyptian-Libyan no man's land near Sollum, harassed by British mechanized forces.

Sollum lies on the Mediterranean at the northern extreme of the common frontier between Egypt and Italian Libya.

"Following his plan of pushing forward into no man's land, the enemy yesterday advanced into the area which includes the ruined and empty village itself and the ruins of Muisaid," said a general headquarters communique.

"His movements are being watched and harassed by our armored fighting vehicles, which have the situation well in hand."

Posts $5,000 Bond With Single Bill

Raleigh, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Joseph A. Calcutt of Fayetteville and an associate, R. W. Bolling, surrendered to the Wake county sheriff following a grand jury indictment charging them with owning illegal slot machines and with conspiracy to distribute them in this county.

Calcutt posted $5,000 bond in a single bill and Bolling posted $2,500. Sheriff Numa P. Turner said he understood Calcutt, indicted under the trade name of the Vending Machine Company, maintained offices in Chicago and Los Angeles, as well as in Fayetteville.
