Weather Aids Britain In Thwarting German Attacks

ITALY CLAIMS GREATER GAINS

British And Germans Exchange Air Raids Each Claiming Failure Of Opponents

(By The Associated Press)

Nazi air raiders, opening their third week of mass attacks on the British capital, swarmed across the English channel in mist and rain today, but reports from Britain indicate they met with little success.

London had one brief alarm as a formation of planes swept over the city. Anti-aircraft guns opened up and the planes retired. Along the Kentish coast reporters said British ground guns turned the raiders back.

Italy reported a destructive air raid on Matruh, Egypt, where the British were bringing up supplies for use against Italy's legions preparing at Sidi Barrani for a further eastward advance toward Alexandria.

Britons credited stormy weather and stout defense with taking the edge off the fourteenth successive dusk to dawn German attacks on London, but looked to a quick renewal of the fierce air war as day-break disclosed clearing skies.

But even the night of cloud and storm failed to halt the raiders on either side. Nazi bombs thundered down at intervals during the night on central and southern London. A tightening British censorship held up mention of the exact time or length of the attacks. The British said, however, the casualties were fewer than on previous nights and watchers along the southeast coast took grim satisfaction from the red glow of fire their own fliers had started in German-held ports on the French side of the channel.

The Germans termed their attacks on and near London "successful," despite the fact that the weather gave them more trouble than the British defense.

German DNB news agency said the British airmen tried strong attacks on Berlin but were turned back.

Bulgaria formally took over southern Dobruja, ceded by Rumania after 28 years of dispute. Bulgarian officials took over public buildings last night when Rumanian troops left and border towns decorated with flags welcomed the Bulgarian troops today.

Show AAA Cards To Sell Cotton

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 21.—Growers must show their AAA marketing cards as a means of identifying their cotton when selling to buyers, J. L. Kelton, State AAA supervising auditor, warned today.

Buyers have been instructed to require this identification when making purchases. Cotton auditors are visiting all buyers in the State to assist them in complying with the cotton marketing regulations of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938.

Kelton reported that in only a few cases have the auditors found that cotton was not being properly identified by producers through the use of marketing cards.

In all instances, the auditors have been advised to instruct buyers that cotton purchased without a marketing card is subject to penalty. The buyer in such cases is to deduct three cents a pound on such cotton whether the grower was entitled to a white marketing card or not. White cards indicate that the grower has not overplanted his acreage allotment.

Vichy, France, Sept. 21.—(AP) The colonial administration of the New Hebrides, French Island in the Pacific, has gone over to General Charles de Gaulle, and the Governor General has also taken control of New Caledonia, a French spokesman said today.

Up From A Grave—To Death

Harold Reeves, London garage operator, managed to smile grimly as rescue workers lifted him from the wreckage of his garage in which he was buried for seven hours after the explosion of a German bomb. But the rescue proved in vain. He died of his injuries shortly afterwards. Meanwhile the Nazis continued to bomb London. This is a cablephoto.

Aged Pitt County Negro Believes In Marriages

Not only does Alex Ogman, Pitt county Negro, who gives his age as in his 80th year, appear to be hale and hearty, but he also expresses the wisdom of marriage, saying he is now living with his nineteenth wife and that they have a child three years old.

Ogman, who lives on the George Lewis farm near Pactolus, was in Greenville this morning for the purpose of meeting three of his sons, whom he said were on furlough from the army. During the World War, he said, he had fourteen sons serving in the armed forces of the country.

Said to have been born on September 7, 1851, in Johnston county, Ogman was the slave of Calvin Ogman. He says that as a boy of 15 years, he well remembers the end of the Civil war when his master advised the slaves they were free and at liberty to go their way as they desired.

Ogman says he has spent most of his time during the past 60 years in Pitt county, and that as a farmer he can now do as good a day's work as anyone.

He says he now has 40 living children, the oldest 67 years, and the youngest three years, the daughter of his present 18-year-old wife.

Constable Gus Stokes, who accompanied Ogman to the newspaper office this morning, vouched for a part of Ogman's story, relating that nearly five years ago he was sent to arrest Ogman for failure to send his 13-year-old bride, his present wife, to school as required by the state school laws. He said that Ogman had been in the section of the county between Grimesland and Pactolus, for a great many years, and that the report of his age and his family was in keeping with general belief of those in the community who knew him.

BIG SALES ON McNARY FLAYS TOBACCO MART CROP PROGRAM

Close To 15 Million Pounds Sold Since Market Opened

The Greenville tobacco market closed its third week of operations of the 1940 season yesterday with total sales for the period of 14,650,000 pounds and a price average of $1.65 per hundred higher than for the corresponding period last season.

Total sales to date are 70 per cent of the total sales for the same period last season which is considered by warehousemen as a good record in view of this year's crop which is estimated at little more than 50 per cent of that of last year.

Sales for the week ending yesterday were 5,800,000 pounds with prices reported as stronger than the previous week.

The warehouse floors were practically cleared yesterday despite heavy offerings and the regularly scheduled first sales will get under way Monday morning.

To Improve Travel On Bethel Highway

Willard T. Kyzer, secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce has been advised by the State Highway Commission that immediate steps will be taken to improve travel on the by-passes along the Bethel highway while widening construction work is under way on the road. The advice said that the obstructions would be shifted to the opposite side of the road within the next few days and with a few exceptions would eliminate the necessity of driving off the pavement to pass the barricades.

This action on the part of the Highway Department will make travel over the road less dangerous and more convenient for the traveling public while the construction work is under way.

PARENTS WILL PAY $100,000 FOR THEIR SON

Three Year Old California Lad Kidnaped Yesterday

POLICE PERMIT CONTACT EFFORT

Nurse Roughly Handled In Attempt To Prevent Kidnapping

Hillsborough, Calif., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Safety of kidnaped Marc De Tristan, 3, was placed ahead of all other consideration today as the three-year-old boy's wealthy family uncompromisingly declared its readiness to meet the abductor's $100,000 ransom demands.

FBI agents and local police withdrew from the pretentious De Tristan home in this exclusive little community, 20 miles south of San Francisco, and gave the family a free hand in establishing contact with the dark complexioned kidnapper.

In a 600-word typewritten note dropped where the boy was seized just before noon yesterday, the De Tristans were directed to get in touch with the kidnapper through an advertisement inserted in a San Francisco newspaper. This was done, and the advertisement appeared in the paper's late morning edition.

Little Marc, son of Count and Countess Marie De Tristan and step-grandson of Louis Shattuck, president of the vast Phillips-Dodge Corporation, was out for an airing in his go-cart, accompanied by his nurse, when the kidnapper drove up in a car and roughly carried him away. The man threatened the nurse with a pistol.

The middle-aged nurse, Mary Foley, was knocked to the ground and painfully bruised when she tried to save the baby. In the futile struggle she knocked off the man's finger hat which is expected to be a valuable clue in trailing him later.

The chubby curly-haired lad was sped away in a dark sedan pursued ineffectively for some distance by Albert Williams, Negro chauffeur, who drove up just after the kidnapper fled.

Homing Instinct

Fulton, Mo.—(AP)—If it has happened to anyone but Grand Duncan it hardly would be worth mentioning. Duncan was motoring back from a picnic when his wife noticed their car was on fire. Duncan put on speed, drove right into the fire station of which he is chief.

Why Are We Arming?

Babson Appeals For A Spiritual Awakening

Columbus, Ohio, September 21.—Inventors and others should not be disturbed if more important events are in the making than even an attempted invasion of the British Isles. Great Britain's Empire is being menaced in the middle East, Africa, and the Far East. Count Von Der Schulenburg, working with Russia's Molotov, and Wilhelm Keppler's manipulations, through Tokyo's Naotaka Sato, may now be forming for a simultaneous blow against the British Empire.

Britain Will Not Fall

If Great Britain is attacked by the combined forces of Germany, Italy, and Japan, Franco's Spain and Stalin's Russia, may assist in striking her most vulnerable parts. This, however, need not cause worry. The spreading out of these enemy nations may relieve the pressure on England and he is misleading in disguise. Remember the story of the dog by a brook with a bone in his mouth. Seeing his reflection in the water, and thinking it another dog with another bone, he opened his mouth to grab it and lost all. Hitler may be such a dog.

Mussolini wants Egypt and his African Empire; Stalin wants Iran and other oil fields in the Near East; Japan wants China, French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, not forgetting India. Franco hopes to get Gibraltar, French Morocco, Portugal, and its Latin American possessions. Hitler has no immediate objections to these wants, provided he controls what they all get. Because men want things, however, no reason that they will get them.

Watch Russia

Actually, Stalin does not want the fall of the British Empire unless Germany and Italy fall with it. What he wants is a Europe so weakened that Russia can dominate it all without fighting. He fears Germany's rise to power and may take all of Finland as further

Three-Year-Old Scion Of Wealthy Family Kidnaped

Three-year-old Marc de Tristan (left), son of Count and Countess Marie de Tristan (right), was snatched from the hands of his nurse at Hillsborough, Calif., by kidnapers who demanded $100,000 for his return. Both the count and countess are members of prominent wealthy families.

WORK ON PORT PROGRESSING

Building of Docks and Warehouse Moving On Schedule

Construction work on Greenville's new port terminal at Hardee's creek a short distance east of the city is moving rapidly with indications that everything will be in readiness for the inauguration of water transportation for this community within the near future.

Pillings for the dock and loading ramp are already in place and creosoted flooring material was expected to be delivered at the site today or early next week for placing. The framework of the large warehouse is nearing completion and the work of closing it in will get under way next week unless the work should be delayed by bad weather. The floor of the warehouse will be four feet above the recent high water level and more than two and a half feet above the all time flood level established here in 1919.

The state highway department has already constructed a good road from the main highway to the port site and persons wishing to visit the port over the week end will have no difficulty in doing so. The road is constructed of soil and gravel and will not be hardsurfaced for some time due to the fact that the department wishes to give it plenty of time to settle before paving it.

Completion of the port project and the inauguration of water transportation to Greenville will mark the successful culmination of a movement that has been under way here for several years. Several times the project was turned down by the government engineers but a continued determined effort on the part of local citizens finally won favorable action by the government in having a channel 100 feet wide and 12 feet deep dredged from Washington to the Hardee Creek terminal. The erection of the dock and warehouse which is being financed by the county and city governments marks the last step necessary before the boats establish regular schedules to Greenville.

The Meekins orders restraint from use of oppressive child labor. Leslie Rivenbark and the firm of Dew and Cavanaugh (composed of L. M. Dew and R. O. Cavanaugh). Both are engaged in the manufacture of crates, cups and boxes.

The orders, secured complaint of Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, are the first legal actions in many months involving child labor. Major Fletcher said that North Carolina has long been in the forefront of states prohibiting exploitation of its youth, with the result that child labor cases have been few and far between.

"Thus far, I am happy to say, it has not been necessary for us to bring a single criminal prosecution against firms found by inspectors to be guilty of employment of oppressive child labor," he said.

In the complaint against Dew and Cavanaugh it was charged that the firm shipped rough and dressed lumber and corn crates on which minors under 16 years of age had been employed.

The complaint against Rivenbark alleged that he suffered or permitted home workers under 16 years of age to work in their homes in the production of crates, cups and boxes.

Neither defendant resisted the order.

Surveys indicate that nearly 25 per cent of North Carolina tenants and 35 per cent of sharecroppers move each year, says Julian Mann extension studies economist of State College.

Bragg Commander May Be Lost In Airplane

Plane Unreported Since It Passed Savannah Last Night

Fayetteville, Sept. 21.—(AP)—An airplane in which Brigadier-General Francis W. Honeycutt, commander of Fort Bragg, near here, was a passenger, has been missing since 7:34 p. m. last night, when it was reported over Savannah, Ga., en route to Jacksonville, Fla.

Lieutenant-Colonel Earl E. Ewart, public relations officer at Fort Bragg, said great concern was felt for General Honeycutt's safety. A squadron of five planes left here today at 6:15 a. m., to search the territory between Savannah and Jacksonville, but reported finding no trace of the missing observation plane in which, besides General Honeycutt, were Captain George F. Kehoe, the pilot, and Corporal Robert J. Schmitz.

Adverse weather prevented searching planes taking off earlier. They were joined by planes from Jacksonville and Savannah.

Colonel Ewart said General Honeycutt left Fort Bragg at 6:10 last night and was due in Jacksonville at 8:30.

General Honeycutt came to Fort Bragg from Washington last Friday.

Oppose Home Guards Plan

Says Proposed Units Could Become Political Footballs

Washington, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Senator Johnson (D-Col.) today asserted the plan approved by the War Department to set up state home guard units might permit governors to use such organizations as political footballs.

The proposed units would be organized in states from which the National Guard has been called to active federal duty.

Johnson voiced objections to reporters after he was said to have protested to the Senate military committee that the bill authorizing the home guard units gave almost unlimited authorities to establish armed groups which might be used for almost any purpose.

The military committee subsequently reconsidered its previous action approving the measure. Senator Sheppard (D-Texas) said John L. Lewis, C. I. O. leader, had protested to the committee against what Lewis called "independent state armies." Lewis, Sheppard said, urged that additional units be set up within the framework of the National Guard and that their use be subject to present National Guard regulations.

As approved by the War Department and House military committee the measure would permit the secretary of war to furnish arms and equipment for the home guard but control of the troops would rest solely within the states.

Sheppard said the War Department had been asked to draft an alternative plan.

John Daniel Langley, son of Mrs. David J. Wilson of Stokes; Samuel Elijah Alexander, son of Rev. Dennis W. Alexander of Bethel; and Elwood Fleming Pittman, son of Luther A. Pittman of RFD 2, Tarboro, were accepted for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps at the district headquarters, recruiting station located in the post office building at Raleigh. They were transferred to the Marine Barracks, Parris Island, S. C., for a brief period of training.

Upon completion of their training they will be assigned to some service school, ship, foreign station or marine barracks, for duty.

Entrance examinations for enlistment in the Marine Corps are now being held at the U. S. Marine Corps recruiting station, post office building, Raleigh. Full information and application blanks will be forwarded upon request.

Freak Pepper

A pepper within a pepper was the rarity found by Miss Eva Fleming, 1020 West Fourth street as she was cutting red bell peppers yesterday preparing to make pepper hash. From outward appearance there was nothing unusual about the bell but when it was cut into it was found that another perfectly formed bell was inside.

JAPAN MAKES MORE DEMAND ON THE FRENCH

"New Shift" Said To Have Complicated Negotiations

JAPAN READY SEIZE COLONY

Vichy Government Admits "Anything Can Happen" In Indo-China

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The French Indo-China government has reported a turn for the worse in negotiations with Japan after there had been indications the crisis had passed.

A government communique said "a new shift" has complicated the negotiations and that the situation was back where it was September 19 when Major General Issaku Nishihara packed up and prepared to walk out of the conference.

Negotiations were resumed yesterday, the announcement said, when the viewpoint of both parties appeared to be drawing close together. But Japan's new demands have put a monkey wrench in the procedure. The nature of Japan's demands was not disclosed.

Japanese and other reliable sources said negotiations were threatened Thursday when Nishihara demanded the occupation of Hanoi by 20,000 troops, the garrisoning of 5,000 in Haiphong and the unrestricted military use of that vital north Indo-China port, the establishment of air bases in five Indo-China centers including Hanoi and the right to establish Japanese guards at each base.

Highly connected Japanese quarters at Hongkong said Japan was ready for action aimed at seizure of the entire French colony should the request for passage of an unlimited number of Japanese troops be denied.

Vichy, France, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Negotiations at Hanoi on the Japanese demands for military rights in French Indo-China have entered a difficult period from which "anything can be expected," the French government announced today.

TO SHOW STOCK AT STATE FAIR

Urge More Livestock For Balanced Prosperity

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Sept. 21.—This year's livestock show at the State Fair will have as its primary purpose something better than the usual display of good looking animals entered for the perhaps laudable, but rather mercenary motive of winning prize money; Dr. J. S. Dorton, in charge of the event to be held here October 8-12 assures your Raleigh reporter.

In fact, he contends, the exposition's theme is going to be "Balanced Prosperity for the South" all the way through and as much so in its livestock exhibits as in any other line.

One of the main points in the "Balanced Prosperity" program is "to balance crops with livestock consistent with sound use."

McNARY PLAYS CROP PROGRAM

then it was on March 4, 1933. The New Deal has reached none of its fundamental objectives. Its farm program is a thing of shreds and patches, settling nothing, merely putting forth the day of reckoning.

McNary said the New Deal was satisfied with its farm program and saw in the aggregate improvement it had accomplished for the farmer a "maximum" gain. He said he saw it as a "minimum" and continued: "I accept that program only as a stop-gap substitute for something better until something better can be provided and I assert with full confidence that the next administration will be able to provide something better."

officers of the Student Cooperative Association, local high school student organization.

Fenner Corbett, who was serving as temporary president until the election, defeated Bruce Mayo to gain a permanent job as head of the student body. Fenner defeated Mayo by a slight edge of 14 votes. Both boys are seniors, as is required for the office of president.

In the fight for supremacy in the race for the vice-presidency, Betsy Hobbard came out on top to defeat Jack Edwards and Jane Scoville, who were also campaigning for the office. Betsy and Jane are seniors; Jack is a junior.

Rachael Fleming, junior, and "Brains" Worsley, campaigning for the office of secretary, fought nip and tuck through the election but with Fleming finally getting the nod.

The fight for the treasurer was probably the hottest during the primary, with J. Hicks Corey getting the winning votes over Bill Turner and Howard Williams. Officers for their respective offices will go to work immediately in their task to better Greenville high school.

U. S. May Hardly Feel The 'Streamlined' Draft

When Congress passed the Compulsory Military Training Law, it left most of the delicate decisions on the draft to regulations prescribed by the President. This is the first of two articles telling the how and why of the rules and regulations.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

AP Feature Service Writer
Washington.—The numbers of a legion of young American men will soon pop up out of the fish bowl—the fish bowl that's been in Independence Hall ever since the World war draft, or a bowl just like it. First, about 10,000 capsules will be poured within its wide brim. The capsules will be like the ones your druggist uses for powdered medicine, but deep blue so nobody may see the number on a slip of paper inside each. Here in Washington they'll mount the glass bowl on a table and stir the capsules with a wooden spoon. Lights will snap on, cameras will grind and notables will step forward to pick out the first capsules. Later the generals will finish the long job. Behind this business of pulling capsules out of a bowl is nearly a quarter of a century of experience and planning.

Planned For 20 Years

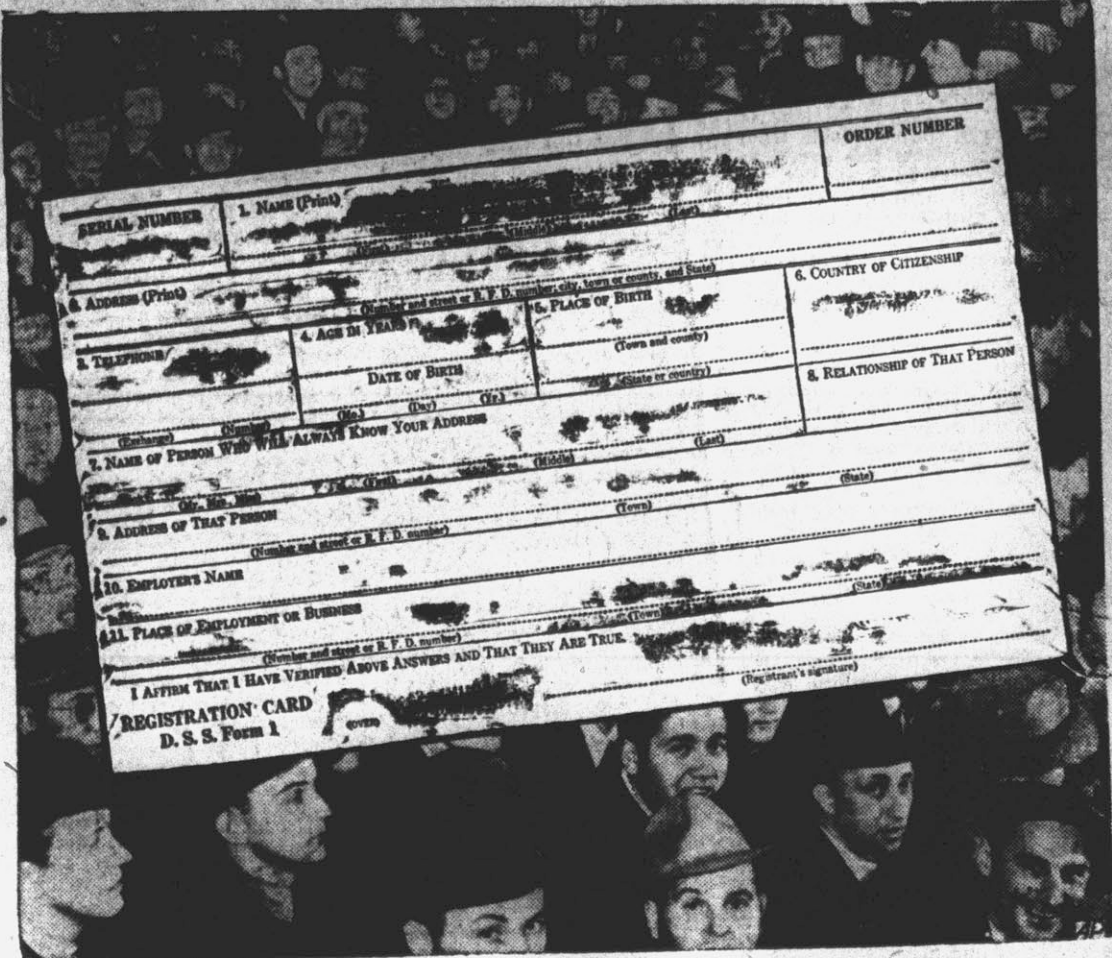

Back in 1920, Congress ordered the Army and Navy to plan for future military emergencies. Six years later the Joint Army and Navy selective service committee went to work. After 1936 the committee called in 30-odd civilian experts, most of them graduates of the World war draft system.

The result of the joint effort: The 1940 draft. The committee expects it to be simple, smooth working and, above all, fair and democratic. Basically, it is the World war draft system all over again, but streamlined.

The minute the conscription law passed, printing orders for 500,000, 000 forms—booklets, cards, blanks, questionnaires, in fact, all the paraphernalia of the draft—were ready to shoot out.

The signal for distribution was the President's proclamation for registration.

Six thousand, five hundred local draft boards of about three men each are the heart of the selective service system. The President appoints these men with the advice of Sixteen and a half million men, it is estimated, will write on the dotted lines of selective service registration cards. Before they write, they will have opportunity to familiarize themselves with the questions by study of enlarged samples.

Areas Of About 30,000

Each board presides over an area in which about 30,000 people live.

The experts already know about how many men will register. They use a system known as "weighted census statistics." Assuming a population base of 131,000,000 Americans, they know between 12 and 13 per cent of these, are between 21 and 36, or about 16,500,000.

In the light of World war experience, about one-third of the sixteen and a half millions will fall into to class one—subject to immediate military training.

The Army isn't ready for 5,500,000 men now. Between registration day and February 1 it can handle about 400,000. By the end of the fiscal year on July 1, it can absorb another 400,000.

First Call In November

On the first call, about mid-November, it expects to take in 75,000 of the first quota of 400,000. Another call for 75,000 is to go out a few weeks later, another for 125,000 soon after, and a final call for 125,000 will fill the first quota.

The next quota of 400,000 in the spring will make up a total well within the fixed limit of 900,000 in any one year. It's all planned so the draft will go first into low gear, then into second, and finally high.

And it's dollars to doughnuts most of us will hardly know a draft is going on. Under the plan now being set up, sparsely populated Nevada will be asked for scarcely 50 men on the first call in mid-November. Crowded New York will contribute only about 7,675.

Fur For That, Fur For That, And For Your Price

By AIZY PORTER

AP Fashion Writer

How will you have your fur this year? In big or little doses? At a price or a P-r-i-c-e?

Sleeve and back interest predominate in many of the new fur coats. Here's a three-quarter length gray Persian lamb, with draped sleeves and rippling swaggar back. Worn with brown accessories.

Would you care for an albino mink coat at $9,000 (very rare)? Or will you spend $195 for a hat-pin tipped with a great fur pom-pom?

In any case, the be-furred look is yours if you want it. And you will want it if you aren't deaf to style notes.

At the New York fashion openings, fur in its many new guises just about stole the show.

It isn't surprising to find that fur coats in all price ranges are both better looking and less expensive than ever before. The trend has been in that direction for some time what with improved breeding and manufacturing processes.

Wide Range Of Uses

What is surprising is the great originality displayed in the styling of furs.

Whoever heard of a sedate little cloth suit having cuffs of flamboyant red fox?

Whoever heard of big clumpy sports shoes in leopard skin?

And how would you like a silver fox head for a handbag?

Or a black Persian lamb coat with box pleats, of all things, in the skirt?

Or ermine tails for earrings?

Most all-fur coats have a little more collar and a little less shoulder than they had last year.

Most of them have interesting sleeves. One sleeve is made to be pushed up, just like a sweater sleeve.

Detached fur is the best new idea as trimming for cloth outfits?

Use It In Two Places

If your cot comes with a separate Spanish shawl or beaver, it's obvious the shawl will be endlessly useful on its own account.

For a quaint look, adopt one of those tiny little fur shoulder capes and repeat the fur in a muff or a bag.

The one rule for smartness is to use fur in at least two places on your costume?

Here's the be-furred look in a polo wolf jacket you could wear with pride over a tweed suit in the daytime or over a flame colored evening dress at night. It's one of the growing group of good fur styles offered at less than $100.

If you wear a pom-pom pin in your hat, stick another on your purse. Or match up a fur necklace with a fur belt, or fur earrings with fur bows on your shoes.

It's a great fur season, an invitation to experiment in new ways to gain the be-furred look.

Italians Drive Toward The Suez Canal

An impending major battle seemed to be shaping up on Egyptian soil as Italian invaders stormed along the Mediterranean coast line of Egypt's western desert in a drive toward the Suez canal, vital link in the British empire's life line. They advanced to positions beyond Sidi Barrani, 60 miles inside Egypt, and reached the beginning of an asphalt highway leading 350 miles to the canal. This map illustrates the warfare in that sector.

Dark Horse

Party leaders didn't even know Thomas J. Buckley (above), a dark horse candidate. But just the same, he defeated three better-known rivals and won the Democratic nomination for state auditor in the Massachusetts primary. He polled 155,216 votes, more than 10,000 better than his nearest rival.

BENEFIT—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., turned model briefly, wearing this Scotch worsted lounge suit in N. Y. at a wool fashion show of clothes from war-torn Britain for benefit of U. S. Committee for the Care of European Children.

CHOSEN—Beauty of Maxi Herber, ice skater, may have helped Nazis' official cameraman decide to choose her for pictures illustrating how girls of the Reich's labor service perform back of the battle lines. Maxi keeps the land at work while the men bear arms.

SHINER—Even so menial a task as shining shoes (her own) seems pleasant to Maxi Herber, who loafs as a worker in Germany's labor service. She's an ice skater, otherwise.

HOT SHOT—Nation's No. 1 shot with the service .30 caliber rifle is Sgt. Thaddeus A. Fenere, U. S. infantryman from Fort Jay, N. Y. He won the difficult President's match over 1,625 competitors at national rifle matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

YANKEES PIONEER IN PANAMA

OUT OF MUD AND SLIME—Building stronger defenses for Uncle Sam's vital Panama Canal is a dirty job, as Gen. Sanderford Jarman (on mule) and his men can testify. Jarman, commander of the Panama Separate Coast Artillery Brigade, has been in charge of expeditions pushing through swampy jungles into the Chagres river country to install anti-aircraft batteries.

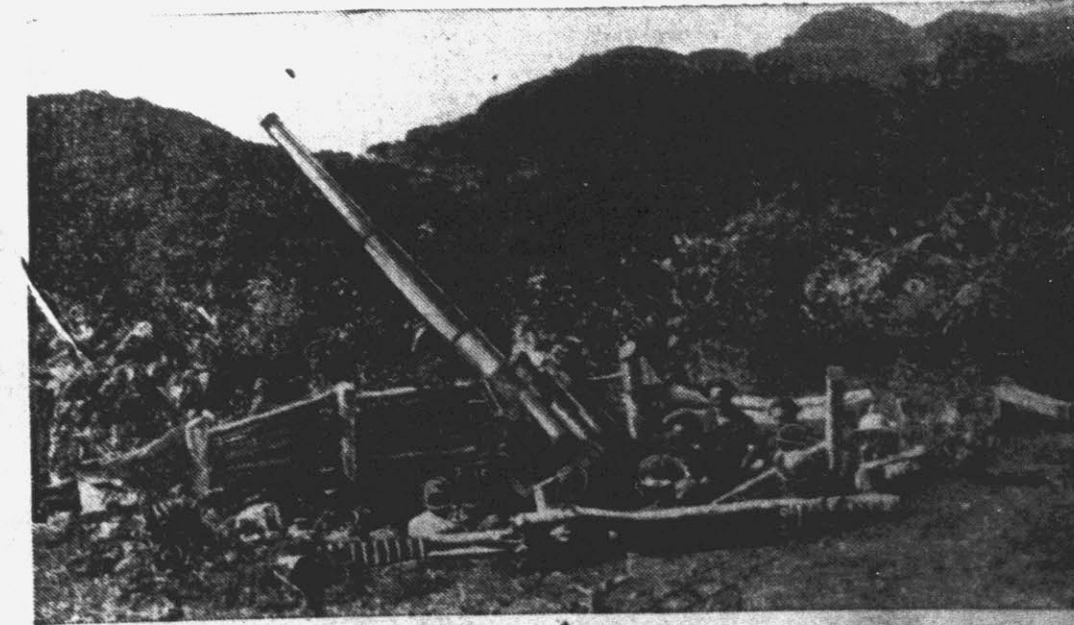

HOME'S WHERE THE TENTS ARE—Trees frown heavily down on tents used by U. S. army soldiers while they build anti-aircraft defenses in the Chagres river country, on Atlantic side of Panama Canal zone. Boats and mules furnish the transportation here.

LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS—Rocks dug from the earth to give it room are piled up near this anti-aircraft searchlight battery, one of those newly added to Panama Canal defenses.

ROUGH AND READY—Newly-cut tree trunks do their bit for Uncle Sam's Panama Canal defenses in this wilderness remote control station—part of a searchlight battery.

VOICE OF AUTHORITY—Sunk in ground is one of many guns guarding Panama Canal. So new is this defense position that railroad tie wall is not yet choked with protective fill.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HELP ALWAYS AT HAND

If our faith in God remains high, we need never be discouraged. Men and women confront sorrow, and it seems as if their lives must gradually disintegrate under the burden of some great trouble. But if we will only allow God to do so, His hand will rest lovingly upon that trouble and turn it into a miraculous source of peace and new power. We should always be very confident of the fact that the power of God is available to men where they live. It is not just a power which God manifested in the days when the Bible was being written. The prophet Isaiah prayed God to open the eyes of a young man who was greatly discouraged and terrified, and behold, the mountains were filled with horses and chariots round about the city of Dothan which was under siege.

If the mountains were filled with horses and chariots in that day, they are filled with them right now. The fleet of Heaven ever stood ready, marshalled for men's use, it so stands at this present moment, marshalled and waiting only the faith and expectancy of men to give the command, "Forward, march."

Let us know that if God was ever in the world, He is here now, and if He ever wanted to help man in all history, He wants to help in these dark and tragic hours.

YOUTH READY TO SERVE

For weeks small pressure groups, presumably speaking for young men of military age, have tried to sell America the idea that youth is overwhelmingly opposed to conscription. The fallacy of this was brought to light by a recent Gallup Poll when 68 per cent of the young men between 21 and 24 years of age said they personally had no objection to serving a year in the army. A poll of boys between 16 and 20 showed 81 per cent willing to give a year to the service of their country.

Bearing this result in mind, many believe the attitude of youth is better represented in a recent "letter-to-the-editor" of a metropolitan newspaper than by the vociferous pressure groups that have bombarded Congressmen with letters and telegrams against conscription. This youth, in his letter, stated in simple but eloquent language that he would be proud to defend his country—the only nation left where freedom and tolerance really exist.

Raleigh, Sept. 21.—There seems to be a dedicated misapprehension in many circles, including a number of usually well-informed newspaper editors, about the makeup of local draft boards.

There has been much comment on the mistaken assumption that on each three-member draft board there will be one doctor and one lawyer.

This simply isn't true. Governor Clyde R. Hoey made it very plain to news men, when he told of the method of appointing the local boards, that they will not necessarily have either doctor or lawyer in their membership.

He did say that each board would require the services of an examining physician and he expressed the belief that in some cases a board might need legal advice; but he said that the services of these professional men could be secured without the professional men being board members.

Of course every board will have to have an examining doctor. These doctors can be hired. The same applies to the services of any legal adviser needed.

But the three members of each board can be the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, if those three happened to be the choice of the appointing power—which for each county will be the clerk of superior court, the superintendent of education, and the chairman of the election board.

It now appears that appointment of the boards will be delayed at least beyond October 1. Governor Hoey had expected to get the federal regulations on the subject this week, or early next; but he says he has unofficial, but apparently authentic advice that the regulations will be promulgated about October 1.

All aliens between 21 and 36 will be required to register October 16 for the draft; but only aliens who have declared their intention to become citizens will be liable for service under the draft call.

For many Tar Heel aliens it will make the third registration in less than six months.

When the European crisis became acute, American Legion posts all over the state began to call attention to the state's Bolich law requiring alien registration with clerk of court. Enforcement of the over-looked 1927 statute was begun in many places.

Then the federal alien registration law was passed and all aliens began registering at postoffices. And now those in the 21-36 age group will have to report to their election registrars on October 16 to be listed again.

Governor Hoey is still marking time on all Home Guard projects. He feels that it would be useless to take any action beyond the most general outlines before a federal home guard law is passed. About all he has decided is that the American Legion will be used as the home guard back bone, if and when

Let's Be Frank
Of course, America is aiming for defense of her soil, her way of life, her island possessions, and for the employment of her people at home and abroad. In this connection, she must support England with all that she can spare from her own armament program. The theory of the United States Government that the maintenance of British fighting power is America's first line of defense is sound from viewpoint.

It must be known that America would not be arming if the threat from the "haves" nations against the "have-nots" are Britain and America, was not indeed extremely serious. Further than this, America is most desirous of maintaining British power in the world to the extent at least where a balance will be arrived at and maintained. Then, no single nation, or group of nations, can take advantage of their less-powerful brother states.

Importance Of The "Status Quo"
The upholding of the status quo is the only possible insurance against the attempt of any man to rule the entire world. This matter of the status quo is so vital to the right of people to live their lives in their own way that, in itself, it becomes sufficient as a reason for the arming of America—and if need be, die in its defense. But the question of time in which to arm weighs heavily upon us. That is why the President took power into his own hands and sent fifty destroyers to England. If England falls, America must stand alone against the world, which has no respect for our American right to live as we please.

But let us remember that the might of Hitler and his allies may not as yet have been set in motion. Thousands of German naval officers are being sent to Brest, Nantes and Toulon. In France to man all the available French fighting ships. Points along the Norwegian, Dutch, Belgian, and French coasts are occupied with German barges, motor boats, and all sorts of small craft intended to transport German troops to England. No Hitler has not abandoned his intentions of invading England, and when the blow falls, it may fall at the same People often ask me: "How can just God let this war continue with all the suffering and destruction which it is causing?" I answer that God may be showing us that the world cannot get on by ignoring Him. If we can have peace by continuing in our present selfish and pleasure-loving ways, why should we support churches and their good works? Hence, I repeat that our defense program must be backed up by a change of heart on the part of the American people in order to save our own skins, —not to mention democracy. In the end, "only righteousness will save a nation."

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

Chapter 22
Field Of Sorrow
"YET you're sorry, in a way, that Taylor didn't sell?" asked John.
"I'm sorry because, aside from me, no one wants this ranch as passionately as he does. Yet, I'd sooner lose it fighting than have someone else save it for me," Constance said.

Raskthorne shook his head. "There's only one like you, Conchita. All right, dear, I'll stand by you, Good luck."

Constance talked to Meg that afternoon because she had telephoned the commissary that she must have butter "immediately." No boy being present, Constance took it to the manager's house, carefully going to the kitchen door.

"Come in," ordered Meg fretfully.

She was making cinnamon rolls. She fastened the raised dough with a malicious motion of the pin, dusted it with sugar and cinnamon, then began dotting it with butter.

"I have to find something that fool boy will eat," she complained. "Off his feed he is, for the first time since his mother died."

Constance sat on a high stool as Meg rolled the dough. "Hope you'll look in on Peter while I'm away," she said.

"Where are you going?" "San Francisco," answered Meg. "Didn't you know? Pedro is drivin' your sister down. I go along as chaperon."

Constance clutched the stool. The kitchen was spinning around dizzily. The stove stood on its pipe; the ceiling was where the floor should be. Pedro had asked her to go to San Francisco once with Meg as a chaperon, for the three days which must elapse between filing of intention to wed and the wedding.

"Hi-how long," stammered Constance, "will you be away?"

Meg slapped the ribboned roll into a pan. "Three days," she said. "I'll be comin' home alone on the train. If you're to be in Beachport that day, I'm hopin' ye'll pick me up."

In the time it took Meg to put cinnamon rolls into a pan and slide them into the oven, Constance reviewed her future. One of two things: marriage to John, weighted down with his kindness, passively accepting his wealth until her spirit curled within her; or, an emaciated spinster, brightly eye, selling dove-cotes to prospective newly-weds.

"There, now," Meg straightened up from the oven, dusted her hands and smiled at Constance. "I'm going to wash my hands and put on a fresh apron. I'll put the coffee pot on, and we'll have a hot drink before you go."

Constance, because she thought her limbs wouldn't hold her upright, the tea kettle clucked. The kitchen clock ticked, and Constance lived a lifetime.

"Now then," Meg was back in fresh ginger. "Nice fresh coffee; nothin' like it, pet."

They sat at the end of the table with a tea towel spread for their cups. The rolls were hot, rich and spicy. They tasted like wood to Constance.

"Goin' to Confession when I'm down there," Meg confided. "Faith, and my soul's fair pitted with the sin of me thoughts, these days."

"Sins? You, Meg?"

"Quarrellin'." "Wantin' to take a hand where I shouldn't. Peter and Pedro quarrelin' like they never have in their life. Peter callin' Pedro a weak-kneed old blatherskite to lit wimen folk draw the wool over his eyes."

"What are... were they quarrelling about? Shouldn't I ask?" "Faith, and I don't know," sighed Meg. "Well, maybe this trip will cool Pedro off. He's goin' down for Pedersen; goin' to pick up a crowd of ranch workers and bring them back. That sister a yours heard him makin' arrangements and she got herself a ride down, though he said he wouldn't bring her back."

Constance's white teeth cut through the warm bun. "Meg, these are the most delicious rolls I ever tasted."

"Glad you like them, pet. Here I'll wrap up a few for you. Sakes alive, it's time for us at the day."

Constance arrived at the barn; slim, gay, face bright, and mouth liberally crusted with sugar and cinnamon. It was a glorious work.

Pedro, watching the patrol of cows ambling into the barns after being brushed; inspecting Manolo and Francisco, Bobo and Carlos; Pascal, Luis and Labarte; and finding them immaculate, though rebellious, he turned to Constance.

"Better wash your face," he advised. Constance was too happy to be ebullient. She felt she had received an eleventh hour's reprieve. She pushed a napkin-wrapped cinnamon roll at him.

Meg's," she said.

YOUR ARMY

A Series Describing the Arms and Services of the Regular Army

THE ARMORED FORCE

The striking power of mighty armored columns in modern warfare has resulted in the creation of an entirely new arm for the U. S. army. Tanks formerly were associated with the infantry and combat cars with the cavalry. But the new U. S. armored force now combines elements of both and takes its place along with the infantry, the cavalry, the air corps and the coast and field artillery corps as combat units of the regular army.

The armored corps will represent concentrated, mechanized attacking power, as well as defense against similar enemy columns. It will be able to strike at the terrific speed of fifty miles or more per hour with hundreds or thousands of tanks at one time.

While new as a separate arm of the service, few people realize that the U. S. army has been a pioneer in the development of armored vehicles of remarkable speed, power and efficiency. The natural American genius for mechanical creation places this country in a position to lead the entire world in this important phase of modern war.

Great industrial plants are now speeding production of the most modern types. Soldiers who love the thrill of pioneering a new arm—and who are interested in mechanical training—are needed to man them. The opportunity is open to thousands of qualified young Americans—students to study a part in the development of a great new army tradition.

These "hell fighters," popular name for modern tanks, are equipped with radio; with machine guns and rapid firing cannon up to 77 mm. size. They are miniature power plants in operation—swift, steady—and the nearest approach to the famed "irresistible force" yet developed in warfare.

With the broad expanses of the United States to protect in contrast with the more concentrated regions of Europe—our armored force must plan for swift transportation—roads and bridges that are strong enough to withstand the terrific weight of 30-ton tanks—maneuvering in all kinds of climates and over all types of ground.

There is a thrilling, inspiring task ahead for the men who will mould this new arm into the same efficiency that characterizes the other and longer established branches of the service. And the opportunity for advancement and promotion for enlisted personnel is unusually bright and promising.

North Carolina continues far in the lead as the state using the greatest volume of fertilizer. Tar Heel farmers purchasing 1,367,347 tons in 1939.

Farley's Boys Triumph 12-0 In Season Curtain Raiser

GHS GRIDDERS TAKE TO AIR

Coaches Farley And Fulkerson Use Two Team In Win

By C. B. BOWLETT
Backed by an impenetrable line the Greenville High Phantom back field made successful thrusts through the Windsor team to chalk up a 12-0 triumph for the opening victory of the season. The game was played at the Guy Smith Stadium last night before a large crowd.

Windsor was on defense almost the entire game having to punt out of danger nine times with Larry James out-punting them and driving them back on their heels again. The Farleymen were forced to punt only three times and they being long enough to keep the Phantom eleven entirely out of danger.

Bill Britt, little but hard tailback playing his first game for the G-Men since coming from Warsaw at the beginning of the school year, was a threat throughout the entire game. His steady gains and passing ability with such able receivers as endmen John Collins and Larry James kept the Windsor Rebels with their backs to the wall.

John Spearman, wingback and our hope to fill Sakas' shoes of last year, was a big factor in the Greenville win. His consistent gains set up both touchdowns for which he went over from the 20 yard line for the first score. The conversion for the point was not successful but the G-Men led 6-0. This score came in the second quarter, the last marker was pushed over in the third.

In the second half of the contest

The First Year's The Big One

AP Feature Service

When a baseball rookie moves up to the big time he's out to make a name for himself and work up to a big salary. When a college football star becomes a professional football rookie he must live up to a name already made—and justify a salary that's probably as great as he'll ever make at the game. The college fame of the six rookies here makes them box-office material in their first year. They'll have to be professionals to draw as well in 1941. Joe Boyd and Harry Smith were two of the nation's outstanding college linemen last fall and McAfee, Van Every, Eakin and McFadden made the headlines every weekend for their backfield exploits. Their worth as pro footballers is still to be completely proved—but their bosses think they'll do.

GEORGE McAFEE, BACK (Duke) Chicago Bears

JOE BOYD, TACKLE (Texas Aggies) Washington

HAL VAN EVERY, BACK (Minnesota) Green Bay

KAY EAKIN, BACK (Arkansas) New York Giants

HARRY SMITH, GUARD (Southern California) Detroit

BANKS McFADDEN, BACK (Clemson) Brooklyn Dodgers

The Windsor eleven took almost entirely the air where they completed three passes for a combined distance of thirty-five yards, but were not able to complete a single pass that put the Farleymen in danger. The Greenies who heretofore have not resorted to passes completed four throws for 45 yards and a 500 average, with eight attempts.

The second half began with Greenville again kicking off to the visitors and on the return the Windsor eleven tried a tricky lateral that almost proved fatal to the locals, but the ball carrier was stopped before he was quite in the open.

The second score of the game came when Dewey Page, hard-driving full back, charged through the center of the line from the 10 for six more points. Dewey, a former end of last season was shifted to the backfield at the first of the pre-season practice where on showing his ability as a back gained a regular berth on the starting eleven.

Although Coach Farley allowed his boys to use only a small number of plays they showed their superiority on the ground and in the air throughout the entire game. Reserves who saw action last night were Gene Johnson, Morris Abeyounis, Ralph Hunter, Paul Britt, Alton Stoneham, Sidney Johnson, Claude Christopher, John Saied, and Bill Lee.

Davidson-State To Clash Tonight

The old story about a big, overweight North Carolina State football team meeting a greatly out-weighted Davidson College team won't go this year, for when the two Big Five and Southern Conference rivals clash here tonight at 8 o'clock they will be evenly matched in weight.

By actual pounds, the State linemen will average 194 pounds and the backs only 176 pounds. And according to records, this is the lightest State team in many moons. Weights released by Davidson give the Wildcat players like poundage, which is considerably heavier than the usual Davidson team.

In the past, it is recalled, it has been the State team that has had the stars in its lineup. But that situation is reversed this year, with no so-called stars in the State lineup and Davidson's lineup backed with a formidable array of

ALL STARS TO PLAY SUNDAY

Will Meet White Post Team Here At 3:30

The Greenville All Stars will play their last game of the season tomorrow afternoon when they meet the White Post team, Beaufort County League champions. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and the Guy Smith Stadium will be the scene of battle.

The locals have made an enviable record this season, having played 31 games, losing only two. One of these losses was at the hands of White Post in an early season battle.

Last Sunday found the locals, headed by Wayland Sermons, too strong for White Post and as a consequence the locals were victorious by the score of 4 to 2. The hundreds in attendance acclaimed it one of the best games witnessed this season.

Soft Ball Board Met Last Night

Directors of the Greenville soft-ball league enjoyed a supper at Old Towne Inn last night, wound up the year's business and discussed plans for continuing the league for next season. The business meeting was presided over by J. D. Simpson, league president, and the financial report for the season was made by M. P. Fox, secretary.

During the season just ended there were eight teams in the league and approximately 125 local young men took part in the games. The directors were well pleased with the interest in the sport and the support it had received this season and began to make plans for another and even bigger season.

Besides directors at the meeting guests included M. Swartz, Reynolds May and J. C. Waldrop.

Border strips planted around woodlands help wildlife by providing cover near food, says W. D. Lee, extension soil conservationist of State College.

such stars, as Johnny Fredericks, Packanack Lake, N. J. youth who conforms to Davidson's seat back style plus plenty of power afforded by his 190 pounds of brawn, and Granny Sharpe, Burlington, had threw those telling passes against State last year, makes the story read different.

Coach Gene McEver has always been known to put out one of the fastest, most elusive backfields in the Big Five and with the comparatively heavier set of speedsters in his backfield this year the odds stack up greatly in favor of the Wildcats.

Clowns Always Boys' Favorite

To talk with a real live clown! What boy is there who wouldn't thrill at the prospect? Well, it happens every day with Wallace Brothers Circus, as is pictured of Ed Raymond and one of his pets.

Clowns and more clowns! In fact, clowns of every size and description will be presented circus day when the new and larger Wallace Brothers Trained Animal Circus unloads in Greenville for afternoon and evening performances on Monday, September 30. The show ground situated at the Old Fair Grounds will be the meeting place for youngsters big and small who delight in the jovial antics of their favorites of the big top.

It is a mutual feeling between the kiddies and the gay buffoons who delight in driving dull cares away. Clowns like little boys and girls, for it is the youngsters who loudly express their eager appreciation of the ancient art of clowning. And that's why you will see the clowns and little folks chatting merrily between their scenes beneath the big top on circus day.

Internationally famous funny fellows have been gathered from all parts of the world and the circus realizes that its success depends upon a well balanced program of these lovable characters. Also, other important ingredients necessary to maintain a financial success is to please the circus loving public is plenty of elephants, aerial stars, riding acts of which the Wallace Brothers have spared no expense in securing for this season's all new 'big show.'

As an exclusive feature in the main performance will be the idol of millions of boys and girls, Lee Powell, the original talking picture 'Lone Ranger' who will appear in person with his thrilling contingent of rough riders.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
By Robb Coon

Hollywood—If you haven't met Singapore Joe, it's time. Singapore Joe Fisher is a showman extraordinary, a world traveler, a cultured and genial raconteur, an ex-officio salesman of the charms of Singapore and all Malaya. He popped into town the other day, on one of his periodic visits, looking natty and neat in one of those white tropical suits which somehow (unlike most in these parts) kept its neatness and its whiteness. It was the fabulous Sultan of Johore, Malayan ruler, who dubbed him "Singapore Joe." His Highness, once a visitor in Hollywood, did the dubbing characteristically. To a friend who for years had been known simply as Mr. Joe Fisher, His Highness presented (wrapped in old newspapers) a package which he said contained a supply of biscuits. Mr. Joe Fisher suspected a gag, tossed the package into his car, opened it somewhat later as an afterthought, and found a heavy gold cigarette case, mounted with platinum and precious stones, and inscribed to "Singapore Joe." Everyone in Hollywood knows Singapore Joe.

Singapore Joe runs the showplace of the Straits Settlements—the Capitol Theater. It's a magnificent building, with shops and bars, besides movie facilities, and to hear Joe tell about it is to resolve to see a movie there some day. It has 1,600 seats, with two arm rests for each seat, and plenty of leg room. It has a movable ceiling (for warm nights), besides air conditioning; it has attendants who serve drinks, and convenient bars for the intermissions. Attendants take your car to the parking lot (free) and clean it for you (free, too). From any seat you get a clear, unobstructed, undistorted view of the screen. Principal effect of the war, to date, has been to increase the European population, usually about 12,000 but now, thanks to soldiery, much greater. In this cosmopolitan center, the paying customers (excluding the Germans now in internment camps) present a cross-section of world taste in films—and Tarzan (John Weissmuller), no substitutes
