The charges included receiving contributions and making expenditures in excess of the limits provided in the Hatch act, padded registration lists, destruction of records Hatch act violations of a criminal nature - striking off of registration lists and various alleged conspiracies to violate federal statutes.

"The character of these complaints makes it imperative that we have a thorough investigation wherever such complaints appear well founded and by a coordinated unit qualified to carry through prosecutions where warranted."

Everything Ready For Registration Tomorrow

Men Between The Ages of 21 and 36, To Register

An estimated 9,200 Pitt county men between the ages of 21 and 36, inclusive, will register for prospective military training tomorrow with heavy penalties provided for those who fail to register.

It is also obligatory on all employers to grant their employees sufficient time from duty to register.

While it is preferable for persons to register in the places designated - usually their regular polling places - one may register anywhere. Persons in Pitt from another county or state may register wherever he may be tomorrow and his card will be sent to the proper place.

J. H. Harrell, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections, which instrumentally is charged with the task of registering the men, declared today that the registration machinery was all set, with adequate help having been provided through the cooperation of the general public.

In addition to the registers, persons familiar with the law will be present at the various polling places to answer questions and otherwise help persons needing information.

Registers will be on duty from 7 a. m. until 9 p. m., and Chairman Harrell said he expected sufficient help to be available to handle the registrants as fast as they come in.

FAIR ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS

Children's Day Tomorrow Expected Fill Grounds

Tomorrow is expected to be one of the biggest days of the Pitt county fair and children and grown-ups, too, are expected to flock to the grounds on the Falkland highway.

Children's day will be observed and all school boys and girls will be admitted to the grounds free throughout the day. The city school will close at 12:30 and several units in the county system are expected to close early to permit the students to attend.

With registration day under the Selective Service program also coming tomorrow, many of those taking time off from their work to register also are planning to "take in" the fair.

The gates of the exposition were thrown open last night and a good crowd was in attendance last night. The first night's performance of "The Great Wilno," the human cannon ball attracted most of those at the grounds. Wilno is shot from a cannon over two ferris wheels landing in a net on the opposite side.

While some of the shows were not in operation last night, all were ready today and some new ones arrived on the grounds this morning. Final arrangements also were made on community booths and individual exhibits today in preparation for the judging set tomorrow morning.

The exhibit hall is filled with farm and home and educational exhibits. Competition is unusually keen in the various departments this year as more exhibits have been entered.

The midway presented by Endy Brothers Shows, Inc., is the largest to appear at a Pitt county fair since it was organized five years ago by the two American Legion posts.

In addition to the free attraction presenting "The Great Wilno," fireworks are presented each night.

The midway also contains several new shows and rides.

LOCAL WOMEN OBSERVE FETE

Women's Club Celebrates Golden Anniversary

The Woman's Club of Greenville helped to celebrate the Golden Jubilee anniversary of the General Federation of Women's Club by having a birthday party in honor of the occasion and of local pioneer clubwomen last night at the Woman's Club building. The event was an outstanding one and was marked by a colorful and a distinguished assemblage. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of the Greenville's Woman's Club, presided. Group singing of patriotic songs was accompanied by Mrs. Harvey Ward at the piano.

Dr. Robert Humber of Greenville and Paris, delivered an eloquent and a brilliant address on the subject, "Great Women of History and Their Challenge to Women of Today." Dr. Humber, who was presented by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, was heard with rapt attention. English, beautiful beyond description, sparkled and flowed from his tongue like water from a spring.

From the resources of an unexcelled memory, a trained mind, and a rich vocabulary, Dr. Humber enumerated one by one, eminent women who have contributed to the evolution of the world and, as he did so, he paid a glowing tribute to woman in general. "Woman," he said, "is the bridge that unites the ages." Speaking of what these splendid women of the past have bequeathed to us, he shimmered his thought down to this pertinent question: "What are we going to do with this heritage?" Then Dr. Humber tied up his line of thought beautifully with world conditions of the present time and commended the principle of federation. What we need, and will have ultimately, is a world federation, a world community with but one form of government. Whether this government will be based upon our own principles of democracy, as it is hoped, remains to be seen.

Following Dr. Humber's address, Mrs. John Dwight Holmes of Farmville, who has a charming personality and a beautiful voice, sang two very pleasing numbers, "Sunset," by Buck, and "The Haunt of the Witch," by Cora Toogood. The lilting quality of the last number was particularly delightful.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore presented the honor guests of the occasion and new members of the Woman's Club. Then going into the jubilee part of the program, she introduced Mrs. W. C. Harris who read her poem, "The Golden Jubilee," which was written especially for this occasion.

Mrs. J. M. Hobgood of Farmville, chairman of the pioneer clubwomen committee of the 15th District, explained the whole idea of honoring pioneer clubwomen and presented

London Press Admits Night Raids Fiercest Of Conflict; Giant U. S. Bomber Counted On To Carry Out Reprisals On Berlin

London, Oct. 14. (AP) - German raiders reached the London area six times up to early afternoon today, but each time were reported driven off, leaving rescue squads free to dig out the living and dead from the wreckage of the capital's fiercest night attack so far.

The raiders came in successive waves and were met over the southeast coast by squadron after squadron of British fighters.

In the early morning British long-range guns on the channel coast fired several salvos across the Dover strait. The shells burst in the sea, but mist prevented watchers on the English coast from seeing the targets.

By noon the British were reported to have shot down eight German planes.

Some bombs fell in the London area during the first two daylight attacks, but each time the alarm lasted only a few minutes.

Other daylight raiders were reported in the vicinity of Liverpool.

Firemen barely had brought under control fires which at one time ringed one area of London before the Nazis renewed their operations.

It was estimated 56 districts in and around the capital were bombed during the night.

London newspaper trucks, twisting through debris-clogged streets at dawn carried papers whose headlines said: "London Bombing Is Fiercest Yet." "London's worst Terror Raid" and "Fiercest Night Raid of the War."

The Daily Express printed a picture of a large United States bomber under the heading "Soon We May Bomb Berlin by Day, Too." It added: "This is the big plane for the job—a bomber that fighters cannot reach."

The Ministry of Information reported next overnight attacks by the Royal Air Force on "oil plants and other targets in Germany and on an enemy-occupied channel port." (Berlin had two alarms).

Red Troops Are Massed On Frontier Of Rumania

Unconfirmed Report By The British News Agency From Bucharest Indicates Russia Appears To Be Challenging Nazi Guardianship of Rumania

By The Associated Press

A sharp split in Berlin-Moscow "mutual information" contact was indicated today as Russia spied the massing of Red army troops on the frontier of Rumania, now overrun with German soldiers.

Without confirmation elsewhere, Reuters (British news agency) said in a dispatch from Bucharest that Soviet troops have already advanced into the rich Balkan oil kingdom of the Danube delta of Rumania.

If true, Russia would appear to be challenging Germany's self-elected guardianship of Rumania.

The Soviet government through its official news agency, disclosed that it had not received what it regarded as satisfactory advance notice of Germany's plan to send troops into the rich Balkan oil kingdom in southeast Europe.

The news agency Tass officially denied a report published in a newspaper in German-controlled Denmark that "the Soviet government was timely informed that German troops would be sent into Rumania and that the Kremlin was informed of the aims and numbers of troops sent to Rumania."

This was the first open intimation of a possible schism between Germany and Russia, although foreign observers long have said that ultimately their professed friendship would dissolve and they would fight the "real battle of Europe."

Soviet Russia was estimated today to have mobilized between 10 and 12 divisions—from 150,000 to 190,000 men—on her frontier with Rumania.

The Soviet government's statement was indirect contrast to an assertion by informed Berlin spokesman who declared on October 10 that powers friendly to the Rome-Berlin axis had been notified German troops had arrived in Rumania (Continued on page six)

Russian-Japanese Pact On Far East Predicted

Non-Aggression Treaty Seen In Diplomatic Circles

London, Oct. 14. (AP) - A Far Eastern non-aggression pact between Japan and Soviet Russia may be signed within the next few days, diplomatic sources here reported today.

Japan, they said, would be given a relatively free hand in China and Russia would receive a special sphere of influence along the North China border.

Rumors also are current among diplomats that Germany is offering Russia a special sphere of influence around the Dardanelles—a free zone, according to these accounts, against Turkey, now the guardian of those Eastern Mediterranean straits.

These rumors say Germany is planning a major move against Egypt and the oil fields of the Near East, possibly even against India, and wants to immobilize the Soviet war machine first.

275 Register For Federation Meet

At least 275 women registered for the Fifteenth District convention of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, in session here today.

Two hundred registered at the senior women's luncheon held at the Woman's club building and 75 were in attendance at the junior women's group meeting held in the Educational building of Memorial Baptist church.

Mrs. John D. Robinson of Wallace the state president, made one of the principal addresses of the morning session, speaking on the topic "Enriching Our Democracy." The meeting was presided over by Mrs. John B. Joyner of Farmville, district president. The visitors were officially welcomed by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore president of the Greenville club.

Among those participating on the program were W. W. Sheffield of the Safety division of the State Highway Patrol; Mrs. R. C. Boyce of Greensboro, president of the Junior Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. C. K. Proctor of Oxford; Mrs. A. T. Roebuck of Farmville.

Sheffield Heard At Club Meeting

W. W. Sheffield of the N. C. State Highway patrol division was the principal speaker at the regular Greenville Rotary club meeting last night, presided over by the president, Jonathan Overton.

The speaker pointed to the distressing mortality rate because of highway accidents and explained that it was necessary that safety programs be instituted. As an example of what can be done, he is being done, the speaker cited statistics showing a sharp decrease in fatalities among school children since the School Boy Safety Patrol was organized.

Mr. Sheffield pointed out some of the most important safety rules and said that if these were followed the mortality rate would be further decreased.

Dr. R. S. Boyd and James Keel were guests of the club. Jack Edwards of the local high school, is student Rotarian for the month.

R. R. Bennett extended an invitation from the women of the Bell Arthur community for the club to hold a meeting in the near future in the church building there.

BAGLEY GIVEN FEDERAL POST

To Be Second Assistant To Comptroller Warren

Raleigh, Oct. 15. (AP) - Director Dudley W. Bagley of the State Rural Electrification Authority has resigned to become second assistant to Rep. Lindsay Warren as Comptroller General of the United States, Governor Hoey announced today.

Professor David S. Weaver of N. C. State college, the governor said, has agreed to serve as acting director on a part-time basis until Bagley's term expires on June 5, 1941 "or until other arrangements are made."

"Present policies" of the REA will be continued, Hoey said, as he lavished praise on Bagley's conduct of his office.

"The achievements in this state read like a romance," Hoey said. "The census of 1935 shows that we had only 10,000 farm homes electrified in North Carolina, whereas on July 1, 1940, we had nearly 90,000. This is an unparalleled record."

Bagley's resignation will be effective November 1, when Congressman Warren is to assume the duties of Comptroller General. It was understood here the federal post would pay Bagley considerably more than he has been receiving from the state. The appointment also is understood to be for a 15-year term the same length as Warren's.

Rumors that have been widespread here since the primary that the Rural Electrification Authority might be merged with the Utilities Commission received a boost in Hoey's statement whether he intended it that way or not.

Opera At College.
For the first time in many years, the opera will have a place in the East-Carolina Teachers College entertainment series. The gay and lively "Barber of Seville," presented by a company of singers drawn from the Metropolitan Opera Association, will be given at the college on the night of November 8. This has been called "the most popular opera of all time" because it is liked by the man in the street, as well as by those musically inclined.

Miss Beggani, Metropolitan's Young coloratura soprano, will take the role of Rosina. She has had experience also with the Chicago Opera Company and on radio broadcasts. Practically all the members of the company have been heard in the Saturday afternoon broadcasts of the past year. Armand Tokatyan, tenor, last year sang in more performances than any other tenor in the Metropolitan Association. Pompilio Malatesta, bass-baritone, has sung his role of Dr. Bartolo all over the world. Carlos Ramirez, South American baritone; John Gurney, distinguished young American bass; Georgia Graves, contralto; and protégée of Schumann-Heink, add distinction to the cast. As the operatic score of "The Barber of Seville" can be successfully presented without an orchestra, a two-piano accompaniment will be furnished by the conductor, Giuseppe Bamboschek, and another accompanist. Mr. Bamboschek has conducted this opera over fifty times.

The company will bring its own attractive stage settings that can be adapted to any stage and will bring also, the colorful costumes for the various roles.

The program will be given in the Wright building of East Carolina Teachers College at 8:30, Friday night, November 8.

D. A. R. Meets In Farmville.

On Saturday, October 12, Mrs. T. C. Turnage, chapter regent, and her daughter, Mrs. A. W. McLean, delightfully entertained the members of the Major Benjamin May chapter of the D. A. R., in the chapter house in Farmville. The guests were received in the chapter room by the hostesses, where punch was served by Mrs. Paul Jones, then invited into the banquet room where a delicious barbecue luncheon was served by Mrs. Henrietta Williamson and Mrs. W. H. Whitmore. The lovely old table, which was once owned by Col. Cameron of Raleigh, was most beautifully and unusually decorated for the occasion. A life-size rug made of fall flowers was placed in the center, and fall leaves, fruits and flowers graced the full length of the table. Coffee was served from a beautifully laid table by Mrs. E. B. Beasley. This lovely luncheon was most delightful and was enjoyed by a great number of the chapter members, their daughters, and guests.

Following luncheon, members and guests returned to the chapter room where the meeting was opened by the regent, Mrs. T. C. Turnage, who presented Mrs. John Dwight Holmes who, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Henrietta Williamson, sang two of the most loved patriotic numbers, "The Flag Goes By," and "God Bless America." After a brief business session the speaker, Dr. R. L. Hilldrup of East Carolina Teachers College, was presented by Mrs. Frank W. Brown. Dr. Hilldrup gave a splendid lecture on causes and effects leading to the present economic, political and military situations in the European countries today and in our own country. This was a most informative program and was enjoyed by every member of the chapter. The meeting was then closed by the regent. The November meeting will be held in the chapter house the afternoon of the second Saturday at 2:30, November 9th.

Fifty-fifteen thousand clubs,

As well as in the hubs,
Of sections of all states that fly
The red—and white—and blue,
The Federation of today
From small beginnings grew.

The total membership of clubs is two million, and more—
Two million women who stand for "True service at the core."
Come! let us honor pioneers whose hearts were all aflame,
Whose heritage from them we claim
As purpose high, and aim:

To work toward bringing peace on earth,
Good will to every man,

To strive as best we can,
To strengthen all the principles of our democracy
And to preserve American Ideals and liberty.

Senior Party
On Friday night, October 11 Miss Novella Mills was hostess at the senior party. The party began by playing many games, after which the senior were given a surprise. Miss Mildred Becton, home economics teacher, presented the seniors with their high school rings, causing a thrill among the students.

Next on the program was vocal solos by Marion Page, "Sierra Sue," and "To You Sweetheart, Aloha," accompanied by Miss Novella Mills at the piano.

The hostess then served the group with drinks, peanuts, grapes, cake and gum. Afterwards Mrs. Kenneth sang and played many school songs for the group.

Student Council

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock the Student Council will hold its regular weekly meeting in the high school library.

Probably the most important business of the meeting will be preparing for the coming State Student Council convention which will be held here November 1 and 2.

Yesterday the junior international correspondence, a club open to junior high students interested in studying other people and lands and in corresponding with those of other countries, made plans for a dance for all Greenville high students, the date, however, is not yet set.

Radio Program
Tonight at 8 o'clock, another round-up of G. H. S. news will be presented over WGTC by Herbert Lee. Herbert's program includes a little of everything that goes on in the high school—even to a little gossip.

Hats Off To The Merchants
Advertising in Green Lights, high school publication, reached a new peak in the coming issue. Approximately 200 inches of advertising will be in the next issue. Credit for this fine work not only goes to the fine advertising staff of the paper, but also to the splendid cooperation of the merchants of the city.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming and Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, both of Greenville, who were selected with the late Mrs. R. R. Cotten of Pitt county, for this particular honor, from the 15th District. Mrs. Cotten, who passed on in 1929, was selected also as one of the three outstanding clubwomen from the state of North Carolina. A painting of Mrs. Cotten hung above the mantel in the assembly room of the Woman's club building last night and Mrs. Hobgood glanced at it from time to time as she paid tribute to the memory of our own beloved Sallie Southall (Sims) Cotten. "To live in the hearts of those we leave behind, is not to die," said Mrs. Hobgood.

A three-tiered birthday cake, iced in gold and surrounded by burning gold tapers, centered the lace-covered table from which hostesses for the evening served cake and golden punch, salted nuts and mints. The birthday cake, which was given by Mrs. J. O. Morton, a club member, was cut by Mrs. Robinson, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, as all drank a toast to our pioneer clubwomen as cleverly proposed thus by Mrs. Hobgood:

"Now I propose a toast to those who pioneered in clubland,
Who braved the critics of the day
And even the wrath of husband.

So drink to Fleming, Ficklen, too,
And precious Sallie Cotten—
We'll tell the world that these three girls
Will never be forgotten."

I'm working for Mark Sandrich now, over at Paramount. He's producing and directing "Love Thy Neighbor," the Fred Allen-Jack Benny-Jack Benny-Fred Allen production (or however they're going to bill it).

You ought to meet Allen, if you haven't already. He's one of the great wits of history, and the fastest man on his feet I've ever heard of. He drips gags all day long, and most of them are funny.

The other day Allen got on the set early, and Mark asked him if he had seen Jack.

"He's borrowing sweat from somebody to prove his glands are functioning and will be running over here in a minute," Fred quipped.

I think Benny probably has the best sense of timing since the days of Buster Keaton and "Fatty" Arbuckle. They were really tops. But timing today, I'm talking pictures, is even more difficult than it was in the silent days. And I've often wondered how some of Benny's laugh lines get over when they're translated into a foreign language.

Of course, the studios don't have to worry much about that any more. Another thing the war has done is to eliminate sweepstakes tickets, which is a break for me.

About five years ago I wrote script on a picture called "The Winning Ticket." My wife took it as a lunge and bought one of the things. I yelled my head off—and she won ten thousand bucks. I haven't heard the end of it yet. I hope I never write anything called "The Million Dollar Bank Robbery." It might give her more ideas.

Another thing I've cut out is acting in pictures. I used to like to do a scene—just an extra or a bit—in anything I had a hand in writing. But not since "Vivacious Lady."

You'll remember that this picture had Ginger Rogers and Jimmy Stewart in it. And maybe you'll remember the conductor on the train? I played the conductor. I played it 17 times. Seventeen straight takes—sweating and straining—until the boys and girls couldn't hold back any longer, and burst out into roars of laughter. The first take had been good!

And You Think You Pay Taxes!
London.—(AP)—History's most costly war has boosted Britain's income tax rate to an all-time high. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have also raised their rates.

Britain's basic rate is now $1.80 on the pound ($4.45). Taxation is slightly less on lower income brackets. In Canada the income tax together with the new national defense tax amounts to $30 on an income of $1,500 a year and $55 on $5,000 a year for married persons with no dependents. Provincial income taxes also are levied except in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Australia has increased income taxes by roughly 50 per cent. An Australian with a wife and two children, with earned income of $3,500 pays $152.15. Under the old system he would have paid $102.63. Australians pay state income taxes as well.

New Zealand has a graduated tax scale. In its first war budget the rates were increased in all categories by 15 per cent.

South Africa's rate varies. Super-tax goes to a maximum of $1.12 on the pound ($4.47). Normal income

To Address League

Daniel W. Hoan, for 23 years mayor of Milwaukee, will address city officials at Charlotte next week at the Thirty-second Annual convention of the North Carolina League of Municipalities in the National Defense program. Hoan was recently appointed by President Roosevelt as Associate Director of the Council of National Defense's Division of State and Local Cooperation.

A silver offering was taken to help complete funds of $1,000,000 being raised by 2,000,000 clubwomen in 15,000 clubs to underwrite today the Federation of tomorrow so that all general federation club activities can be taken care of in the future with no more raising of funds.

Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Proctor, speakers on the program for today at the meeting of the 15th District, were overnight guests of Mrs. R. M. Garrett, while Miss Harriet Lloyd entertained the Junior club officers, Mrs. Boyce and Mrs. Adams, of Greensboro.

Hollywood—I see by the papers that my old friend P. G. Wodehouse still is a prisoner of war, in Germany. If "Plummy" is performing with his customary eclat, you'll probably find him immersed in some swimming pool, despite the obvious difficulties and horror of his position. "Plummy" is like that.

First time I met him was when I was writing "Damsel in Distress" for Fred Astaire. We were handed the job in collaboration.

We had separate offices and the only time we saw each other was in a swimming pool. "Plummy" had a passion for dunking the body into a pool. We'd splash around, talk character and story for a while, and then adjourn to our private cubby holes.

Eventually we'd emerge, each having written the same sequence. Then we'd put them together, and somehow the story came out. I guess George Stevens made it a good picture despite our work.

URGES PROPER AMERICAN DIET

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—A plea to homemakers to "make America strong" by preparing and serving the best of nutritious foods was made today by Miss Mary E. Thomas, extension nutritionist of N. C. State College. "Good nutrition is a real defense measure that can make America ready for whatever lies ahead," she declared.

Miss Thomas said that one of the chief faults of American diets is that they do not include enough fresh fruits and vegetables. This contention is borne out by recent studies made by the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"More eggs and milk will improve the American diet," she advised, "and citrus fruits, tomatoes, yellow vegetables, and green leafy vegetables are especially important. A knowledge of nutrition helps you to get your money's worth when you buy food," Miss Thomas continued. "To make wise choices, take a knowledge of food values with you when you go to market. If your food money is limited, there's all the more reason to spend it for foods that will give you a well-balanced diet."

"But shopping for food values is not enough. After the foods reach your kitchen, you must handle them carefully to save all the vitamins and minerals. Remember that good cooking has become a real science—the science of serving nutritious foods that have eye and taste appeal."

In conclusion, the specialist said: "Every one of us, in choosing our daily food, and every homemaker planning meals for her family, can help make America strong."

Gov. Hoey To Retire With Confidence Of Populace

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Oct. 14.—When Governor Clyde R. Hoey goes out of office early next January he will retire with increased confidence in the people of North Carolina.

The converse is equally true—the people of North Carolina will have increased confidence in Governor Clyde R. Hoey when he goes out of office early next January.

Not that either governor or people viewed the other with serious mistrust in January, 1937, when the son of Shelby took over the task of guiding the state's destinies; but simply that the Hoey conduct of this task has made him the most popular state figure of modern times. It is doubtful that any other Tar Heel has caught the popular fancy to such an extent since Zeb Vance.

Governor Hoey himself is authorized for his increased feeling of confidence and respect for the people.

"Throughout my administration I have had the finest sort of cooperation from state and local officials, from the press and the radio; but, above all, the people of the state have been great. All my life I have felt that the people judge aright when they have all the facts before them. My term as governor has only heightened this feeling," he said in substance in a frank summation.

Illustrating the complete harmony within the state administration he cited the astonishing fact that not a single negative vote has been cast by any member of the Council of State in considering any proposal during the Hoey term. The Council, incidentally, is not composed of gubernatorial appointees, but principally of officials elected by and responsible only to the people.

The Hoey plans for the future are clear and concise, but involve no long-range political program. He told your reporter he will go back to Shelby and resume his practice of law just as soon as he quits the Governor's Mansion.

Queried as to the possibility he will toss a hat into the senatorial ring against Bob Reynolds in 1944, he exhibited no false modesty, but gave absolutely no indication that he now intends to make that race.

He pointed out that the three offices he has held—member of the state legislature way back when, congressman just after the World War, and Governor—were attended without any long pre-campaign planning. He more or less intends to let things rock along and be guided by circumstances as they turn up.

He indicated that if there were a present vacancy in the Senate, or any campaign in immediate prospect, he would be a very likely entrant; but that was the limit of his admissions of political ambition.

The next Senatorial campaign will be 1942 when Senator Josiah W. Bailey comes up again, but that will be the East's time under the rotation system and Governor Hoey, as a result, cannot in the normal course of events make a try before 1944.

That's a long time off and there is no way to tell how things will then be shaping up; but there's little doubt that as of today the Governor could rout even the redoubtable vote-getting Reynolds.

Governor Hoey went into office after one of the bitterest primary campaigns of this century in North Carolina. There were literally scores of thousands who looked on him

CAVE-IN TRAPS DOGS IN FOX DEN 53 HOURS

Abbeville, S. C.—(AP)—Capt J. L. Perrin and John Boyd called off their dogs when the fox sought refuge in a den. Later they discovered the two most valuable hounds were missing.

They located the dogs by barks and howls that answered a hunting horn placed near the mouth of a caved-in fox den.

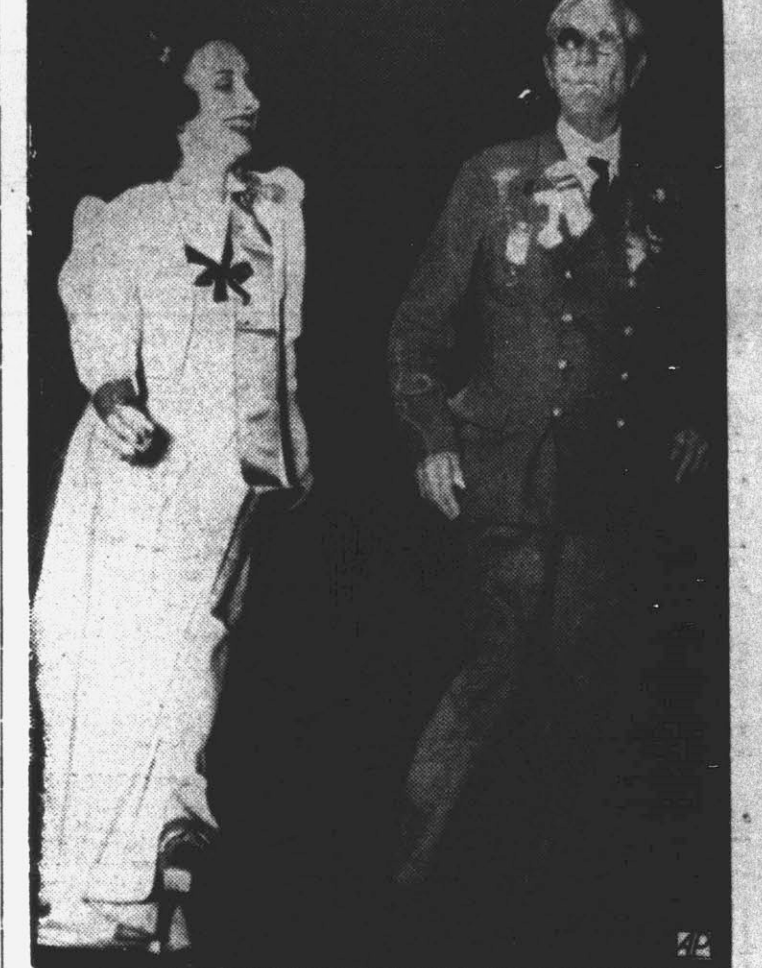

The hounds had been in the den 53 hours before they could be extricated.

BERLIN BOYS SCRAMBLE FOR BOMB SPLINTERS

Berlin — (AP) — War-torn hunting is a new hobby of Berlin lads. Splinters from anti-aircraft shells were much in demand after the first British raids, when no bombs fell, but after bombs wrecked a number of houses fragments of English origin were particularly sought.

It remains the boys' secret how they manage to slip through tight police rings around bombed buildings, most of which are near collapse.

Neglect of Accident Hazards Claims 32,000 Lives Annually in U. S. Homes

Falls and Burns Leading Causes, Red Cross Warns in Safety Appeal

Washington, D. C.—The American Home—traditionally the symbol of security and safety—rivals the highway as the scene of the nation's greatest number of accident fatalities.

In a statement issued here by the Home and Farm Accident Prevention Service of the American Red Cross, it was pointed out that accidents in the home, including falls, burns and other common mishaps, claimed 32,000 lives last year—only 600 less than the number of motor vehicle deaths. Farm accidents accounted for an additional 4,200 deaths.

Statistics showed that home deaths last year increased 500 over the preceding year and farm accidents increased 300.

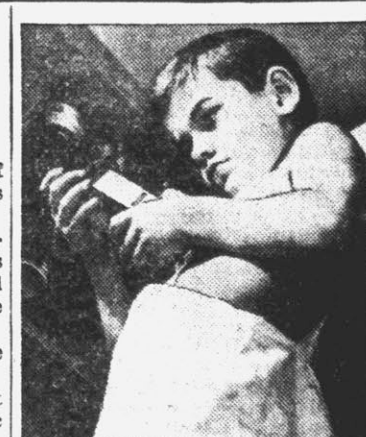

In addition to a mounting death toll, home and farm accidents last year caused upwards of 4,700,000 injuries which resulted in economic losses running into millions of dollars.

To reduce the number of rural and urban accidents in and about the home, the American Red Cross in 1935 inaugurated its accident prevention program as a parallel project with the First Aid and Life Saving Services. This year, 9,000,000 "check lists" describing accident hazards and urging their removal will be distributed throughout the country.

Approximately 2,000 Red Cross chapters have undertaken a program to acquaint householders in their vicinities with accident hazards in the home and on the farm. Chapters will be aided by the Junior Red Cross and the schools in distributing the "check lists."

The program will stress the vital need for removing accident hazards causing falls, as this type of accident resulted in more than half of last year's home accident fatalities. Burns and explosions caused the next heaviest loss of life.

Accident prevention is one of seven services conducted day-to-day by the American Red Cross in its tireless campaign against accidental death and suffering arising from disaster and other causes of emergency nature. These services are supported solely by members who join each year during Roll Call, November 11-30.

Each year 1,400 adults and children die from accidental poisoning. Label bottles clearly and keep them out of reach of children.

Accidents on the farm yearly injure 200,000 persons and machinery is the leading cause. Most deaths and injuries are due to carelessness.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SCIENTISTS POINT THE NEW DAY

It is quite a significant thing that right at the time when military forces were promising a new world, several scientists—one of them a German—should have happened upon a gateway which will certainly lead us eventually to a new world indeed.

Einstein, a hated Jew from Germany, advanced the theory a few years ago that energy is not something that works upon matter, but that matter and energy are one, and he said that if we could release the atomic energy which matter contains, it would generate a stupendous amount of power. Quite by accident a scientist did demolish an atom, and, to his own and everybody's amazement, developed 200,000,000 volts of electricity by so doing. It has been confidently asserted that if we could find some way whereby we could completely destroy and thereby release the atomic energy of twelve pounds of matter, the energy produced would equal all the power that electric generators in this country produce in one year.

If such a power release does occur and it falls into the hands of men such as are at present world rulers, the human race may indeed be utterly destroyed. Nature is revealing to us the secrets of many hidden pages and pleading with us that we use this stupendous release of power for the upbuilding of human life, instead of for its destruction.

YOU MUST REGISTER

If you are a male person between the ages of 21 and 36 years it is compulsory that you register tomorrow under the compulsory military training law. If you reach your 21st birthday on tomorrow or if you have not reached your 36th birthday by tomorrow you come under this law and there is no provision whereby you are exempt from registration. Even though you are aware that you will come under one of the classes that will not be called for actual military service that fact does not exempt you from the registration.

Tomorrow has been set aside for registration throughout the country and in this county registration booths will be open in each of the regular voting precincts. The law compels you to go to one of these places and register or be subject to severe penalties for evading the law. If it so happens that you are away from home you will make inquiry as to where registrations are being held and go to the nearest booth and register.

If you are an employer and have men in your employ who are within the age

This is a most important matter and it will be much easier to comply with the law now than to attempt to explain the reasons for your failure later on.

BACKFIRE

In instigating the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact Germany and Italy primarily were interested in using Japan as a decoy to cover their activities in Europe but it now appears that Hitler and Mussolini missed their mark if they thought the United States would become so busy in the Pacific that it could not help Great Britain in the Atlantic. Our show of strength in the Pacific since the signing of the pact must convince Japan that apparently she mistook our desire for peace as an indication of cowardice. President Roosevelt's speech to the world on Saturday must likewise have convinced Hitler and Mussolini, as well as the rest of the world that our policy is one of more and speedier help for Britain and a determination to defend ourselves and our rights throughout the world regardless of the cost.

Washington—I'm just a stranger in these parts, but Steve has been around here a long time. As a matter of fact, Steve, his last name is Vasilakos, has been peddling peanuts on the corner at the White House while that much-lived-in residence has had four tenants.

The other day, ambling away from one of the President's press conferences, I noticed a sign on Steve's stand. It was to the effect that he was donating the proceeds of two days' sales to the American Red Cross. It isn't the first time that Steve has donated to the Red Cross, but it was one more day's sales than usual and I stopped for a chat.

"All us Americans got to do our part," said Steve, who only last week got his final papers and became an American.

any of them how to run the country. I think the story of Steve Vasilakos should be written in forty-seven languages and given to every alien who comes to these shores, under the title: "How to become a fine American citizen."

Of all the suggestions that have been made recently, give a hand to that of Senator Wiley of Chippewa Falls, Wis., who startled the Senate the other day with the suggestion that "It might be well to have a rule that for three months previous to election there should be no discussion relating to the nominees of the political parties."

The Senator prefaced his hint with the remark that "I feel like apologizing to the country for the time the Senate has taken in recent months in considering irrelevant matters, personal matters—attacks on and defense of presidential nominees."

A fair-sized Congressional Record, daily doings of the senate and house, published in an eight-by-ten-inch pamphlet, two columns to the page, has about a hundred pages of closely packed type a day. How much of it has been devoted to pure politics of late, I wouldn't venture a guess, but I would venture a four-bit piece that half of it in recent months has been more political than anything else and this at a time when the country is rolling over a rocky road, and far the greater per cent of Congress is trying its level best to clear the road ahead.

Wanted—By the National Defense Commission—A stenographic transcript of Secretary of the Navy Knox's recent speech before graduates of the National Police Academy in which he warned aggressor nations that the United States is ready to meet any challenge.

The story behind the story is this: Secretary Knox prepared his speech and, as is customary, allowed the Navy press information department to release "the official text" in advance. The rub came when the Secretary, speaking without notes made his speech a good deal more forceful than the "official text." The defense commission, which must base much of its program on departmental policies, has been calling all over Washington to try to find some one who made a stenographic transcript of the secretary's address.

If the defense commission wants a tip, there just wasn't any made and they will have to take the reportorial word of the boys who covered it that that's exactly what Mr. Knox said.

Raleigh, Oct. 15.—When draft boards for the 99 other counties of North Carolina had been definitely designated by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, there was still contention over makeup of the board for Madison county. At this distance there isn't any real proof of the theory, but you can bet odds that the trouble is due to the bitterest political feuding in North Carolina. Up in that mountain county the Republicans and the Democrats come close to be the same kind of enemies as the Hatfields and the McCoys.

Selection of text books for the state's public school can't be accomplished without having pressure brought from all sides.

Witness a telegram, signed by several prominent citizens, to state officials urging them to put Ashe's History of North Carolina on the approved list.

Opinion of Adjutant General Melts a personal opinion, he made it clear that indictment of three Raleigh registrars disqualified them for registering draft eligibles tomorrow didn't stand up any longer than it took legal minds to get at it. It was pointed out by the Attor-

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

By Pitt Medlar Hanson

YESTERDAY: Lovely Lynn Britton has been, to all reasonable purposes, sold in marriage to a Mongol prince she never has seen. Now that Temu and Sherdock, who are taking her to her distasteful meeting with the Prince, have explained his romantic origin as the orphaned son of white missionaries, she cannot down her curiosity, though she is still determined to escape.

Chapter 17

Dream Travel
THE next day the trek across the stony desert of bitter water began, to continue day after day in forced marches ever bearing west by south. The caravan started at dawn, plodded steadily through icy mists or rains or biting winds, with occasional days of spring mildness. Sometimes the camels grazed the sparse desert growth; at other times not a seed nor a thorn could be found, and the animals ate a double ration of dried peas and barley, while the horses drank limited amounts of water carried in goat skins.

Nothing of moment happened. There was no brush with brigands or unusual struggle against the elements. Lynn lived like a person in a dream, finding an odd, passive pleasure in following the ever-receding horizon and in talking to Temu and Sherdock and Gersing during the morning and evening meals. She knew they would eventually pass into the mountain country where the Hoang-ho steamboats owned by white men piled the waters.

Leaving the bleakest part of the desert, they entered a rolling country of better grass where sheep and goats in the nomad herds grazed one night at a pleasant spot called Watch Tower Wells, at the edge of a wide plain where spring had touched the sod, bringing out the grass and flowers.

The next morning after breakfast the four travelers sat a while in the dining tent. Temu had interviewed a local nomad chieftain, as well as Chin Pak and Little Bamboo, brought in a kitten which jumped from its basket and came forward mewing for attention like a child that has been left alone for a while. It arched its neck, half rising to meet Lynn's caressing hand.

"How it has grown," she remarked, lifting it to her lap as Temu watched her.

"That we see beings such as that kitten with our limited vision, is always evidence to me that there are other beings we do not see," he said.

Sherdock put away his long-stemmed pipe. "Some people," he declared, "do not even see the spirits of the earth."

"I don't," said Lynn. "I'm not even convinced there are such things."

"They will be some day. Let Temu take you into the mountains back of Delun."

Her eyes twinkling, she turned to the younger man. "Will you take me if I should happen to go to Delun some day of my own free will?"

"What's this," he bantered. "Are you still believing that you can escape?"

"Luck won't be with you always."

"Oh, I don't know. You will love the mountains back of Delun. I am told there are gnomes and pixies in every glen."

"You are told? Haven't you seen them?"

"I lack the magic that opens a man's eyes," he answered gravely. "They tell me that if I would see the fairies, I must walk hand in hand with an incarnate goddess."

He might be mocking her, but the words and timbre of his voice stirred her pulses. He reached over and gave the kitten a stroke or two and then desisted.

"Its bones are too frail for me. I prefer a husky pet, something my hands won't crush." He picked up one of Lynn's firm, white hands. "Something like this—strong and splendid." He tipped her chin with a gentle, nudging fist and spoke to the Duchess.

"Gersing, see this Tara chin with a that of a diamond in it."

Lynn thought it was an odd mood for him, for ordinarily, he was rather careful not to touch her. He jumped to his feet impatiently.

"Will we ever reach the end of this journey?" He strode out of the tent, the three of them following him with their eyes.

Lynn turned in time to see Sherdock smiling to himself. "We have done well," he said. "Never before has a caravan of this size crossed the desert with such speed."

"I've got to get away from them!" Lynn thought, in a sudden state of panic. "They're weaving a net around me."

Traveling Gridders Prove There's Fun In The Game

By ED CAMPBELL
AP Feature Service

Monticello, Ark.—Those coast-to-coast touchdown travelers, the "we-don't-care" boys from Monticello A. and M. College, are giving high pressure football another kick in the pants this fall.

Coch Stewart A. Ferguson, who annually proves that football is fun if you don't have to win, posted his usual September notice on the campus bulletin board. It simply stated that any boy who wants to travel from New York to California should join the grid squad.

Posting that notice just about completed Ferguson's coaching duties. With four regular college jobs and a heavy teaching schedule, this quiet little upsetter of pigskin tradition just can't be bothered with instructing the would-be athletes too.

"Don't Have To Win"

"The boys who want to play figure out their own system," Ferguson explains in a quiet voice that frequently fades away to a whisper. "The two co-captains take charge and the squad fixes its own training rules, works out plays and executes them. I just explain the rules. They are about the only fundamentals we follow."

COACH FERGUSON
"The Boys Don't Have To Win"

"The boys don't have to win. They don't have to tackle. They don't have to block. They can—and do—use any formation that strikes them as suitable to meet a given situation either on offense or defense."

It reads like an autumnal nightmare, but the Ferguson plan works. The Bollweevils put on shows in seven states last year and gathered reams of publicity. Incidentally they won one game—breaking Ferguson's no-victory record.

This fall the team plays in ten states. Ferguson said he had to refuse offers for 20 additional games. Two home games will remind the student body that football is on the sports curriculum.

Ferguson turned down the coaching job four times. He finally took over in 1938 with these provisions:

1. He was to accept no pay for coaching.
2. He was not to be required to win a single game.
3. He was to be permitted to coach any way he wished.

With a student body counted by tens and no alumni money for football subsidies, Ferguson couldn't think of play pressure football. His squad of 30 is composed of lads from the surrounding towns and countryside—teen-age kids, husky farmers, bespectacled scholars and even a minister. All must pass their own tuition and must pass their subjects. (The squad in 1939 was above the student body average—with no failures.)

No Victories, But Nice Trips

The coach decided that if his team couldn't win victories it could have nice road trips because schools seeking victories are glad to pay the freight for their Saturday afternoon victims. Monticello is a willing sacrifice to the "do-or-die" tribes.

The Bollweevils don't lay down before opponents. On the contrary they put on an amazing fight with an offense that's 80 per cent passes. But—

"We play for keeps," explains Captain Coy Brown, "only the other fellow's been doing the keeping."

Ferguson said his no-tackling, no-blocking system last year virtually eliminated injuries.

"A boy doesn't need to be taught to tackle, that comes natural," Ferguson says. "As for blocking—the best way in the world to block is to step on the other guy's toes."

"On offense, the interference follows the ball carrier. When our ball carrier sees he can't go forward, he takes the ball to the next man. You haven't any blockers that way but you have more ball carriers."

The 1940 teams plays Louisiana College, Kentucky Teachers, Lebanon Valley (Pa.), Texas Teachers, University of Nevada, California State, South Dakota Mines, Hofstra College (New York City), Missouri Teachers and a Philadelphia opponent those road games. Northwest Mississippi College and Hendrix will be met at home.

They See Signs

Ferguson books only games on which he can work in side trips to all places of historical, geographical and social interest en route. This year Monticello is visiting Hollywood, Old Mexico, Yellowstone Park, Pike's Peak, the Grand Canyon, Alcatraz Prison, Royal Gorge Mount, Vernon, Washington, D. C., the San Francisco and New York World's Fairs, and numerous other famous points.

"We work it out so the players do not lose out in their school work," Ferguson explained. "Most of the boys are majoring in physical education, carrying nine hours under all trips. Other professors assign regular work to be done away from home and I supervise study periods on the road. The boys learn a lot from traveling and miss nothing from their books."

New York—Already they are speaking of the "old" International Casino, when actually it isn't old at all. It is only a couple of years old, maybe three at the most. But it is old in the Broadway sense, which has nothing to do with time, because it has outlived its usefulness and will now be converted into what is said will be the largest store in the world. Bonds is taking over the "old" show house and will transform it into a department store this fall.

The International Casino, a gaudy white elephant of the Hollywood type, was the last great gesture in the direction of the idea that you had to have a tobacco warehouse for a night club. It was a dismal flop. Most of the time it has been idle. Clifford C. Fischer, with his Jewish Parsian rears, was unable to give it the warmth and intimacy which are essential to success on Broadway. It was vast in the sense that all outdoors is vast. It had a winding staircase and a bar that wound all the way downstairs with it, so that you could stop and refresh yourself if you got tired on the way down. It was operated on the cabaret-restaurant idea—that is, dine and have a chorus girl show of a hundred femmes while you ate. It had glittering escalators to carry you upstairs. It had three orchestras and a uniformed staff of scores to wait upon you. But that wasn't enough. The International Casino, as everyone knows now, is truly dead. It was dead the night it opened. The trouble is that sometimes it takes Broadway a long time to find things out.

But what I really wanted to say about the old International Casino in dropping a pony on its bier, is that its site is truly one of the most famous in all New York. This is on Broadway between 44th and 45th, and it has been a celebrated Bear Wolf's Tar Heels in this Saturday's bout at Riddick Stadium here.

It's easy to see why the Clemson-Wake result is enlarging State craniums (or are they cranial?). The South Carolina Tigers didn't beat State by any such margin, wherefore, it is contended, the Pack is better than the Deas who, in turn, were better than the Tar Heels.

But the TCU affray is a different story. It would be natural to find fear of the University's delegation increased by their win; but many of those who saw the game at Chapel Hill feel quite differently.

TCU, these chaps point out, wasn't even a good team, much less a great one. The Frogs fumbled with or without excuse; were slower than cold molasses and generally displayed nothing but one passer (who didn't get in until the last three minutes) and a feeble prayer.

This class of observers saw Carolina's repeated offside as evidence that the team is very poorly drilled. Most of the infractions came with the Heels in possession of the ball, which means that they either did not know their own starting signals or that their center didn't snap the ball when he was supposed to. There were also numerous Carolina fumbles—though these slips were not nearly so numerous as TCU's and other glaring faults.

In rebuttal, it is urged that there's no laughing off the two "perfect" plays which shook Lanne and Baker loose for long scoring runs; nor the spirited Carolina defense which kept the visitors bottled up for most of the game.

Just the same there are those who now think State has a good chance to take Carolina.

Speakership Chances Of Mull Appear Brightened

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Oct. 10—Oduis M. Mull, of Cleveland, has supplanted George Uzzell, of Rowan, as favorite among those who like to do a bit of mental betting on the outcome of the 1941 Speakership race.

This does not mean that the Shelby man is conceded to be "in," or anything like it; but it does mean that his chances have brightened very materially in the recent past.

According to those who claim to know (and those to whom your Reporter refers are people who ought to know) four factors are contributing to the gains being made by Mr. Mull.

(1) Quiet, but none the less powerful, support from Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

(2) Almost as quiet, but perhaps more powerful backing by a number of politicians who will be key men in the Administration of J. M. Broughton.

(3) A tentative "appeasement" of the legislators from the 26 ABC counties who have been the most likely to oppose to the end the Mull candidacy.

(4) Emphasis on the alleged "pro-labor" views said to be held by Uzzell.

There is no absolute confirmation of the reports which have it that Governor Hoey is putting in a number of undercover licks for his fellow-townsmen but there is enough logic in the suggestion to give at least prima facie basis of credibility. These informants who insist the report is completely veracious declare that the governor owes a few political debts to Mr. Mull and is paying them off by boosting the Mull cause.

On the second count, your reporter will not describe as "unimpeachable" those sources reporting activities in Mull's behalf by such figures as Prison Superintendent Oscar Pitts, Governor's Secretary Hathaway Cross, and Parole Commissioner Gill; but these reports do come from ordinarily trustworthy operatives.

There is no hint, even, that Next-Governor Broughton is other than completely and sincerely neutral; but it is obvious that if many of his most trusted lieutenants are found working for Mull there will be a general inclination to mount the Mull machine as the "bandwagon."

Stories of the appeasement of ABC folks are quite intriguing. "I said that Mr. Mull has let it be known that in the event he gets support from the "wet" county House members he will make no move to bring about a statewide referendum on the liquor problem; and has let out an implied threat to this general tenor and effect: "Which would you (the ABC's) prefer—to have me in the Speaker's chair as completely neutral and disinterested presiding officer; or to have me on the floor, actively and aggressively leading the referendum forces?"

To that interrogatory the answer is so obvious as to need no diagramming.

Again your reporter cautions that this isn't altogether established as a fact. It is reported as information of the reports and stories being circulated with reference to the Speaker's race. It is being said by responsible persons who should know.

The Uzzell partially alleged, for Labor with a capital "L" has been a factor all the time; but it is now being stressed with more than usual emphasis.

Ulster, or northern Ireland, is composed of six counties.

Nothing but a demonstration of urgent reasons, officials said, hereafter will permit the issuance of a passport to the Far East or any place outside the Western hemisphere.

The new restrictions were announced as the midnight deadline approached for the embargo which will cut off American iron and steel scrap from Japan.

With some United States citizens already quitting Far Eastern ports on regular trans-Pacific liners, the State department announced last night that three American vessels would be sent to China and Japan to help repatriate about 3,000 Americans who want to return home immediately.

The announcement of the special transportation plans came less than a week after the department's disclosure that it had advised Americans in the Far East to wind up their affairs and return to the United States because of uncertain conditions.

U. S. Citizens Told Keep Out Far East

Washington, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The State Department, already busy with arrangements for removing thousands of American nationals from the Orient, clamped down restrictions today to prevent others from going there.

Dykstra Approved As Head Of Draft

Washington, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Senate today confirmed unanimously the appointment to Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra as director of Selective Service.

The chamber immediately notified President Roosevelt of its action in order to hasten the time when the president of the University of Wisconsin may become active head of the draft organization.

Unanimous approval was required because less than a quorum of the Senate was present at a session called only for the purpose of acting on the appointment.

Under the conscription act, Dr. Dykstra will receive $10,000 a year and may appoint a staff of assistants needed to carry on the big preparatory job.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) recalling that Dr. Dykstra left a $25,000 a year job as a city manager to become a university president at a lower salary, told the Senate that the educator made a similar personal financial sacrifice to take the key conscription post.

He will take over duties that have been exercised by Lieut. Colonel Lewis B. Hershey, officer in charge of the army's work of planning for conscription, which will begin tomorrow with registration of all men 21 through 35 years of age.

District Masonic Meet To Be Held

There will also be presented moving pictures of life and activity at the Masonic Orphanage at Oxford, and the Masonic and Eastern Star Home at Greensboro. All Masons, members of the Eastern Star and their families are invited and urged to attend.

Plan Blood Tests For Registrants

The Pitt county Health Department will take blood tests of all the registrants on registration day. It is cooperating fully with the State Board of Health in this important matter.

The registrar will hand a card calling for a blood test to each registrant. The registrant will take this card to one of the following centers: Ayden, High School; Bethel, Clinic office over Whitehurst's Store; Lenoirville, High School; or Health Department offices, Greenville.

Dr. Ennett, the Health Officer, states if the cards should give out, the registrant may apply at the blood taking center, getting a card and having a blood specimen taken.

If the crowd is so great all blood tests cannot be made on the day of registration, they will be made at the Ayden Clinic any Monday afternoon, Bethel, Clinic any Tuesday afternoon; Farmville, Clinic any Wednesday afternoon, and at Greenville, Health Department any Wednesday afternoon or Saturday morning.
