Explosions Are Being Investigated

MORE BLASTS ARE REPORTED

Possibility Of Sabotage In Explosives Plant Being Probed In Three-Way Inquiry As Reports Made Of Further Blasts And Incidents Under Mysterious Circumstances

By The Associated Press A series of blasts in explosives plants—one of which was engaged in defense manufacture—drew the attention of investigators today in an attempt to determine whether they were connected with possible sabotage efforts.

A three-way inquiry was begun into the explosion in which eight were killed and 26 injured at the plant of the United Railway Signal Corporation at Woodbridge, N. J., yesterday. Although there apparently were no indications of sabotage, authorities had not altogether ruled out this possibility.

Three were killed in the plant of the Trojan Powder Company, Allentown, Penn., which had army and navy contracts for explosives.

Another three died in the Burton Powder Works of the American Cyanamid Corporation at Edinburg, Penn., in an explosion of 1,000 pounds of dynamite.

FBI men were conducting investigations at each plant.

On the heels of the powder plants explosions came reports of other blasts and violent incidents, at least one occurring under mysterious circumstances.

A 10,000-gallon storage plant exploded at the Canton Refining Company, Canton, Ohio in Oklahoma an explosion damaged an oil well under circumstances which the plant foreman said were mysterious.

Two men were killed and two others injured when a shipbuilding crane at San Francisco's Western Pipe and Steel Company capsized. The incident was reported to the FBI.

Fire believed of incendiary origin broke out in a locker room of the Todd drydocks in Seattle shortly after plant officials had begun an investigation of a series of incidents in which machinery had been damaged at the dockyard.

Commenting on the chain of explosives plant blasts, Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex.) chairman of the House committee investigating un-American activities, declared he was dispatching investigators to "every scene of trouble." He said "the acts of sabotage in the past 24 hours are only a beginning," and added that he would ask a congressional appropriation to conduct a nationwide "close-in" on all subversive elements.

Annual Red Cross Roll Call Date Set

Urging all Americans to become members in order to help it in its tremendous duties connected with the National Defense Program, the Red Cross opens its annual membership Roll Call which will be conducted by a majority of the 10,000 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation from November 11th to 30th. In addition to the heavy load imposed on it by the increased personnel of our armed forces, widespread disaster relief operations and intensified training programs in first aid, nursing and home service make it urgent that the Red Cross strengthen its organization all along the line through the medium of country-wide cooperation in the form of memberships. In Pitt county, Roll Call will be held during the week of November 18th with Roll Call day being designated as Tuesday, November 19th, according to Nat Harrison, chairman of the Pitt county chapter.

Having completed the organizations of the various districts for Roll Call solicitation, Mr. Harrison announced that the membership quota for Pitt county had been set at 2,500 by the executive committee which is composed of the following: A. B. Ellington, K. T. Putrel, Dr. N. Thomas Elnett, Mrs. Selma Carson Moore, H. A. McDougle, C. W. Willard, and Mrs. C. C. Hillon all of Greenville; W. M. Jenkins Ayden, H. H. Five Die In Factory Wrecked By Explosion

At least five persons were killed and the factory of the United Railway Signal Corporation at Woodbridge, N. J., was wrecked by a terrific explosion that jarred the countryside for miles around. Only a portion of one of the 15 buildings in the plant remained standing. Firemen, rescue workers and spectators are viewing the wreckage.

PTA MEETING HELD IN CITY

One Of Principal Addresses Made By J. H. Rose

"Realizing Parent-Teacher Objectives Through the Legislature" an address by June H. Rose, chairman of the legislative committees of the State PTA, highlighted the annual conference of District 10 of the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers held at Third Street school today.

As state chairman of the legislative program of the Parent-Teacher Association, Mr. Rose talked about the program agreed on by the State Congress to be presented to the Legislature at its coming session.

1. Retirement for teachers—Retirement is now an acknowledged principle in the economic life of America. It is a consideration due the teachers themselves but more important is retirement to the parents and children in our schools. Because there are at least one thousand teachers actively at work in the schools of North Carolina today who are entirely too old to teach. The children are suffering because of the presence of these over-age teachers.

2. Restoration of salaries of teachers to the pre-1929 level. All other governmental employees of the state have had their salaries restored to the pre-1929 level. Why not the teacher. The maximum state salary in North Carolina today for a school year of eight months is $1,024, and this can only be had after four years of college training and eight years of successful teaching experience.

3. A compulsory attendance law that works and has some teeth in it. 4. Some method of allowing teachers other than that of using the average daily attendance of the previous year. 5. Reorganization of the school program of the state in order to provide more Parent-Teacher Associations in Parent-Teacher and Health (a) Music and Art. To the end that the schools may better prepare for life and life's problems that great group, 80 per cent of all children, who never go to college.

Britain To Get Forty United States Bombers

LOCAL MARKET CLOSES NOV. 22

The Greenville tobacco market will close the 1940 sales season on Friday, November 22, leaving only seven more sales days after today. The closing date was set yesterday afternoon by the Sales Committee of the Tobacco Board of Trade.

The date was decided upon after various members of the committee expressed the opinion that by this time all growers in the market territory would have had ample opportunity to dispose of their unsold tobacco.

Five sales will be operated this week and the market will open again on Monday with five sets of buyers.

The season to date is declared to have been satisfactory both from a poundage and price standpoint. Through yesterday the market had sold 48,312,080 pounds for $8,502,095.85, or an official average of $17.60 per hundredweight. Prior to the opening of the season many observers set 45,000,000 as the estimate poundage for this season, with the 48,000,000 already having been attained. It was regarded as probable that the market would reach the 50,000,000 figure.

Prices continue satisfactory, with a strong demand still in evidence for smoking leaf. With the closing of the market rooming next week, many local tobacconists are planning to leave about December 1st for the Tennessee and Kentucky markets.

Liquor Is Nabbed By New Patrolmen

Two patrolmen who have completed their field training here and left today for their respective stations made their first arrest last night while returning here from Goldsboro, where they had come to visit relatives on the way here from Raleigh where they were assigned new automobiles.

The two patrolmen, Charles Lee Guss and L. B. Lane, stopped a car to inform the driver he had no rear light. They looked in the car and found 21 one-half gallon jars of bootleg liquor. Also found in the automobile was a sample bag in which three jars of liquor fitted perfectly and the belief was expressed that the accused bootlegger had this to "peddle" their contraband.

Two brothers, Thomas Wrice and Lester Wrice, both of Fort Barnwell, in Craven county, were the men in the car. They were brought to county jail here to await trial in County court.

FRIGID WEATHER IN MOST OF U. S.

Twenty-Six Duck Hunters Were Either Drowned Or Died In Marshlands Of Mid-Western States

By The Associated Press Searching parties scanned the cold waters of Lake Michigan and frozen marshlands in the Great Lakes regions today for additional victims of the violent storm that brought death and destruction to the middle west and frigid weather to the nation.

Ninety-two persons, including two score sailors and duck hunters were known to have perished. Many others were missing and scant hope remained that they would be found alive.

Two freighters were believed to have foundered in Lake Michigan with all hands aboard during the gale that struck on Armistice day and continued into Tuesday. Five vessels were reported aground.

The bodies of sixteen sailors were washed ashore near Lexington, Mich. They were identified as crew members of two freighters and it was feared that the death toll from shipwrecks would exceed 65. In addition to the bodies recovered, 41 (Continued on Page Seven)

PRESIDENT AND GREEN CONFER

AFL Head Sees Prospect Of Peace In Labor Ranks

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—William Green, discussed prospects of "labor peace" with President Roosevelt today and said afterwards he had assured the chief executive that a committee for the American Federation of Labor would be "glad" to meet with one from the CIO to resume peace negotiations.

Green, American Federation of Labor president, said he thought there had been "some improvement" in prospects that organized labor would close ranks since negotiating committees broke off discussions months ago.

He attributed this improvement to a stronger sentiment among the rank and file of union members and to what he said was a belief that John L. Lewis, the CIO chairman, does not exercise "quite the same influence among the rank and file that he did when negotiations were carried on before."

Green was asked whether he thought removal of Lewis as CIO head would facilitate efforts to bring the labor organizations together. He replied that those efforts would be "greatly facilitated" if Lewis would also "get out of a commanding position" in the CIO, which Green said is dominated by the United Mine Workers union.

While Green said he knew of no suggestions or overtures for reconciliation from the CIO, he expressed belief that since an agreement was reached once, one could be attained again.

"We believe the whole matter should be taken up where we left off," he explained. "You see we arrived at an agreement once. The late Charles Howard, secretary treasurer of the CIO, and all the members of the negotiating committee agreed and Mr. Lewis vetoed it."

For The Defense: Spartanburg, S. C. (AP)—A defense attorney advised circuit court that his client had made the 30 gallons of home brew she was charged with possessing "for a birthday party because she didn't have money to buy beer."

British Navy Now Able To Seek Phantom Raider

Found Boy's Body

Joel Parker (above), a youth of the community, found the body of two-year-old Murray Uphaw, Jr., on a hillside three miles from the farm home near Cartersville, Ga., from which the child disappeared November 8. Parker was a member of searching parties which had been combing the hills since the boy and his dog vanished.

Crippling Blow Struck At Fascist Navy Enables Britain To Release Powerful Units of Mediterranean Fleet; Britain Scores Victory In Egypt; Greeks Forcing Italians Back

By The Associated Press Britain's Royal Navy "has struck a crippling blow at the Italian fleet," the London Admiralty reported today, seriously damaging two Fascist battleships and probably a third, as well as two cruisers "snuggling behind their shore defenses" at the Taranto naval base.

In addition, two auxiliary warships there were reported "lying with their sterns under water."

Prime Minister Winston Churchill told a cheering House of Commons that "the result of the action decisively affects the balance of power in the Mediterranean."

London naval experts said the victory would release powerful units of the British Mediterranean fleet to join in a world-wide hunt for a "phantom" German surface raider—possibly the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer or the Luetzow—which attacked a convoy in mid-Atlantic November 11.

Nine ships from the convoy are reported missing.

The Admiralty said the attack probably "left only half of the Fascist navy's six battleships still effective."

Royal naval planes flying from undisclosed bases carried out the assault on the night of November 11-12, the Admiralty said.

A British Admiralty communique gave this picture: "One of these was under water 'from her stern up.'"

Another battleship was "badly down by the bows" with "her forecastle under water and a heavy list to starboard."

London military quarters announced another triumph on land in the fierce struggle in Egypt. These sources said British, Indian and white troops had captured, lost and then re-captured the strategic fort town of Gallabat on the Anglo-Egyptian-Sudan frontier in a four-day clash in which the Italians "suffered heavily."

Reports reaching London from the Greek-Italian war front said the Italians were still retreating from Koriza, 10 miles inside Albania, abandoning equipment as they fled.

London twice underwent air raid alarms from Axis warplanes which roared across the channel in great waves and spread out over the English midlands and Wales.

"There must have been hundreds of them," observers said.

The daylight raiders followed up a night-long series of attacks, in which a heavy German bomb wrecked a crowded London movie theater, killing many and burying others under the debris.

A subway station, an air raid shelter and two other movie theaters were also hit.

Italian Convoy Attacked: London, Nov. 13 (AP)—British warships sank one Italian supply ship, set two others on fire and damaged a fourth supply ship and an Italian destroyer in an attack on a convoy off the port of Valona in Albania Monday night, the Admiralty announced today.

A communique said that the attack occurred on the night of November 11-12 when a squadron patrolling the main line of Italian (Continued on Page Seven)

Miss Artelissa White was called to Sumter, S. C., today, following the death of her uncle, C. W. Coffield. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Club Club.
The Club Club enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. J. E. Hawes on Tuesday afternoon.

After the meeting was called to order, Mrs. James Johnston welcomed two new members, Mrs. Ed Wilkerson and Mrs. Lee Folger, to the club.

The program for the afternoon was given by Miss Agnes Fullilove. Her subject was "Writers of Songs" and in this most interesting paper she sketched the lives and works of Franz Schubert and Mendelssohn.

Schubert wrote with lightning rapidity. No one ever wrote so many songs as did Schubert in his short life. He wrote wherever he was, covering his cuffs as well as the menus and programs in the taverns with the endless flow of themes which eventually became world famous songs.

He wrote songs to the noble poems of Shakespeare and Goethe and songs to the poor poems of his friends who would never be remembered if it were not for Schubert's lovely music.

It was this friendly spirit of appreciation of another's work which contributed to the creation of songs which will long be remembered for their beauty. Although poets and musicians had a strong feeling of nationalism, they had a fine feeling of friendship toward one another.

The artistic genius of the English showed itself in the creation of poetry, while the artistic genius of the Germans showed itself in the creation of melody. The union of English verse and German melody gave us songs still unrivalled for imagination, feeling and beauty.

Mendelssohn's songs do not touch the lower depths of the heart as much as the deeper strains of Schumann, Schubert and Brahms, but the clearness and directness of his music, the spontaneity of his melody, and a certain pure charm pervading the whole have given a place with the great public to some of his compositions, such as "On Wings of Song," which they will probably retain for a long time to come.

He shows in this that he was very fastidious in his choice of words and often marked his sense of the climax by varying the last stanza in accompaniment or otherwise—a practice which he was perhaps first to adopt.

Folk songs and dances have given inspiration to the poets and when combined with their lyrical verses have come down to us through the ages as unforgettable songs.

Stephen Foster and James Blaine have given us our well-known songs about the American Negro, which the United States claims as her folk music.

Miss Fullilove, Mrs. Lewis Bullock and Mrs. Dink James, accompanied by Miss Mae Joyner, concluded the program by singing "On Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn and "Bring To Me Only With Thine Eyes," an old English folk song, the words of which were written by Ben Johnson.

Mrs. Hawes served a delicious salad course with coffee.

After this enjoyable social hour, the meeting adjourned.

MODES of the MOMENT

By Amy Porter

If you could have only two new winter costumes, this would be a good choice for one of them. A city-country suit of brown and beige herringbone tweed, designed by B. H. Wragge. Shown here with a matching topcoat, and brown accessories—beaver toque, calfskin gloves, alligator bag and shoes. It would look fine with a citified fur topper, too.

Raleigh, Nov. 13.—Now the party "reorganizers" are coming to the front, each a modern Solomon, charged to the muzzle of his lingual gun with advice ament what we must do if we hope to have the Democratic party figure in national political contests hereafter. Simply as a matter of furnishing "food for reflection" along this line, let me say: I have been surprised at the number of well known Democrats in this city who have openly expressed themselves as being not at all sorry that Mr. Bryan was defeated and nine-tenths of them voted for him, too. Now, I submit that when such conditions as these obtain there is unquestionably something radically wrong in our party household. Let the uninformed probe the mystery. But mind you this: The old maie of Democracy is a tough number when it comes to surviving blows designed to serve as "knock-outs."

HARVEST HERE FOR MORNING SHOW AT PITT

The French picture "Harvest" based on Jean Giono's sensitive and realistic novel will be shown at the Pitt Theatre Friday morning for one performance only, starting at 10:30.

"Harvest" was unanimously voted an exceptional photoplay by the National Board of Review. The cast is entirely French, as is the dialogue, but with the English titles a person easily follows the inspiring story. The film has only recently completed an extended run in New York and many of the larger cities.

Steam heat was introduced in railway passenger trains in 1881.

Student Council
The Student Council meeting will be held tonight instead of last night. The meeting was postponed because Miss Evelyn Buchanan, faculty adviser of the council, was out of town.

Attend Rubenstein's Concert
Several members of the faculty travelled to Raleigh yesterday to attend Mr. Arter Rubenstein's concert.

Those attending the concert were: Miss Evelyn Buchanan, Miss Margaret Zinn, Mrs. R. C. Walser, and Mr. V. M. Mulholland.

Visit The School
This week is American Education week and is a good time for parents and citizens of Greenville to visit the schools. Throughout the week everyone is invited to come down and look around the school, but on Thursday, "open house" will be observed so that all parents can visit the high school.

Last Game
The game with Edenton Friday night will be the last local game of this season for the Flying Phantoms. A big crowd is expected to attend the game and support the team.

Notice To Towne Club Members.
The Towne Club will give its annual Thanksgiving dance on Friday night, November 29, in the high school gym. All plans including decorations have been made to make this one of our best dances. All members who are behind in their dues are urged to pay them to Jake Hadley or Travis Flanagan at once. Any member who has the name of a prospect whom he would like to submit to the membership committee, should give this name to Jake Hadley, president of the Old Towne club.

Activities of West Greenville Library
The West Greenville school library is an interesting project—for the children of the school. It was begun a short time ago and since its beginning has grown and been enjoyed by each and every child and teacher.

Each child is permitted to visit the library and to use reference books whenever he feels the need and necessity of getting help and information to carry on his many and varied classroom activities.

Each class also has a library period once or twice during the week. At this time each child has the privilege of selecting, with the help of the teacher and librarian, a book suited to his reading age and ability. He is also permitted to take his book home for further reading.

The library began with a total of 500 books. Since the beginning books have been added to this collection until we now have seven hundred and eighty volumes. There are also four sets of good reference books and twelve current magazines. All of these books and magazines have been selected to help meet the needs of a primary or grammar grade child.

Each week there is a large circulation of books and reading material. Most of the books are taken home to read. All magazines and papers are used in the library.

On the bulletin boards in the library one can find interesting and helpful suggestions concerning books. These suggestions are selected and placed there by the librarian who is so ready and willing to make our library an interesting and worthwhile part of our school.

SEEK INCREASE COMBAT FIRES

Additional Funds Requested For Next Biennium

Additional funds for fighting fires account for the greater part of a hundred thousand dollar annual increase asked by the Department of Conservation and Development, in its estimates submitted last week to the Advisory Budget Commission.

On the face of the bare figures it would appear that the Department is seeking an increase of almost fifty per cent in total requirements, but a talk with Director R. Bruce Phifer reveals a different complexion on the numbers.

These figures indicate that the Department wants to have available from all sources, for each year of the new biennium $433,891 as compared with an estimated $301,041 to be spent during the current 1940-41 fiscal year.

Mr. Phifer points out, however, that two factors combine to make for the apparently tremendous per cent increase: (1) The Department has in fact been carrying on some activities for which funds have been found from sources not listed in the 1940-41 estimates, as for example $12,750 diverted from forest fire prevention work from hunting and fishing license receipts; and (2) the fact that the requests for State appropriations for this year's work would be automatically included in total increases because these funds would be matched by Federal and county money.

Health Movement Talked At College

A meeting of representative people of Greenville and Pitt county who are interested in the state health movement was held in the office of President L. R. Moore of East Carolina Teachers College this afternoon to lay plans for a possible health school at the College next summer as a part of the regular summer session.

Dr. Walter Wilkins, coordinator of health activities in the state was present to explain the project.

The school would have as its purpose the training of teachers of health, and would be run in cooperation with the work of the North Carolina School Health Service, an agency set up to coordinate the work of health units, and that of the schools in various counties.

It would be under the sponsorship of the State Department of Education and the State Board of Health, and be financed by the State Health Foundation. It is hoped that the Foundation will give scholarships to the Health School to be situated at Eastern Carolina Teachers College.

The school's establishment would be the first of its kind in the State.

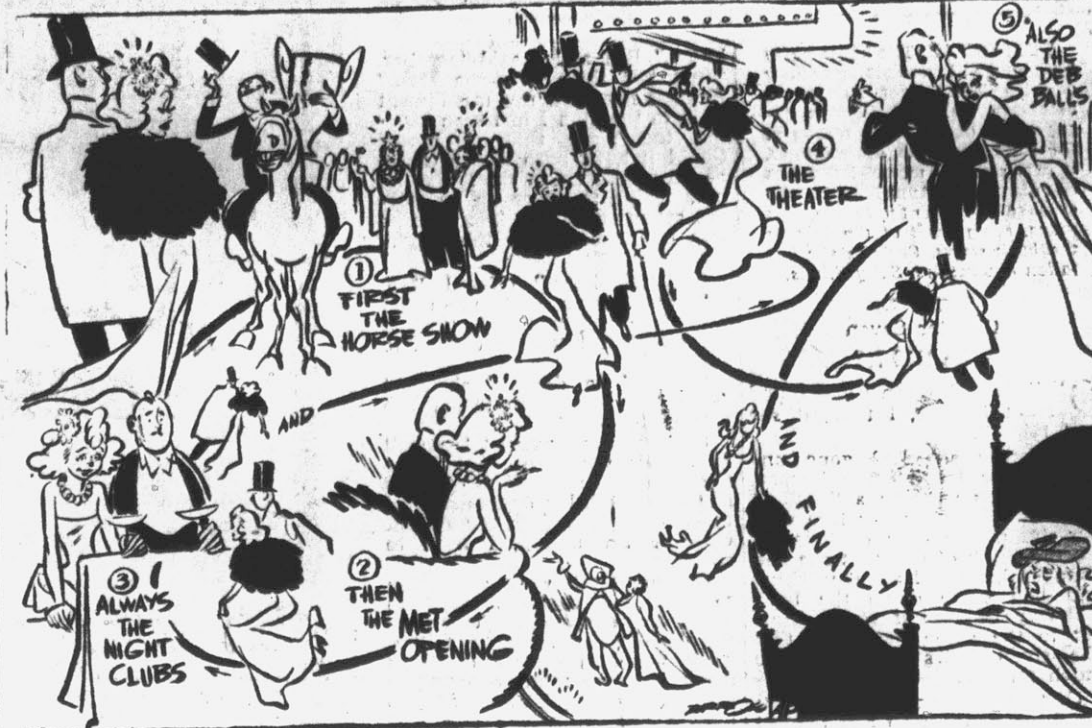

The State Health Service, a committee of which Dr. R. J. Starnes is head, the State Department of Education, and the State Board of Health are interested in the project.

If the school is set up at the College, the students enrolled will take health courses and clinical work which are required to receive a degree.

Society Marches On — Horseback

By AMY PORTER
AP Feature Service Writer
New York — If there were no more horses in the world, goodness knows what would become of New York society.

Each fall the solemn ritual of the Horse Show signals the opening of the winter social season. For this event, ladies put on great clanking jewels, men grow half a foot taller by means of stovepipe hats, and anybody can see who in the audience are merely people and who are Society.

This year, as always, the most notable notables in the city gathered in circus-smelling Madison Square Garden to witness high jumps, low jumps, fore-guns in uniform, and each other.

Metropolitan Next
Soon the Metropolitan Opera will open, with the carriage trade again in bejeweled attendance. These two duties, disposed of, society can relax and scatter to enjoy itself in night clubs, theaters, resorts.

To a non-horsey person, this year's Horse Show moved creakily and looked to be in need of some snappy Billy Rose direction. But it was dressy enough, with furs by the hundreds, with gold lame, with feathers.

There was the woman with the star sapphire necklace, so starchy you could see the five-point pattern across the arena. There was the grande dame in an afternoon suit of black silk who drove a four-wheeled chariot around the ring. There was the one who murmured a swear word when she stuck a high heel through the neck of her trailing skirt.

Training For Debuts
There were sub-debutantes, training for next month's debuts, girlishly dressed, with bright colored bows in their hair. There was a woman who wore chartreuse stockings and color-colored slippers, a girl with a red apple nestling in her coiffure. And there was Joan Crawford, bearing trophies.

Mrs. James Farley, resident in every standpoint.

Negro Is Held In Grimesland Theft

The Negro is alleged to have broken into a back window of the filling station and to have taken the goods, dropping it and running when a car drove up.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE CAN USE TROUBLE

The children of Israel entered the promised land through a valley called Achor and Achor in Hebrew means trouble. The entrance to the promised land is often through a valley called Trouble. Why it should be thus, we are at a loss to know, but certainly the world is put together such way that often the things we desire most, lie at the end of a road which we would not traverse if we could avoid it. Nobody wants to travel through the valley of Trouble. We look upon trouble of any kind as punishment, a misfortune, a bad break, a bad circumstance. But the truth is, we would play the game of life well, if we regarded how trouble comes into our lives, we can be sure that it can always be made a valley through which we go on to something better. Trouble comes to all good and bad alike. Many people when they are in trouble beat their breasts and despair and think only of trying to get out of their trouble at any cost. They think only of turning back. But the voice of God says, "and out what it is in your life which has brought you into this valley called Trouble. God intends that the circumstance shall teach you a helpful lesson. The other end of the valley of Trouble leads into the promised land, which you have always wanted to enter. ### PARTISAN ELECTION FAILS TO SPLIT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

A foreign observer, watching the American political scene during the past few months, would have probably come to the conclusion that the people of the United States were so hopelessly split over the election that, regardless of who won, the nation would be disunited. But the election has come and gone, and the United States is still here, still ready to defend its form of government, still prepared to present a united front against the forces of totalitarianism. The ability of the minority to accept the decision of the majority, without bitterness or rancor, is an American characteristic. Without it, the United States would have fallen apart from internal strife years ago.

This phenomenon has long been a source of mystery to nations of other lands, particularly those ruled by a dictator or his equivalent. They see, on one hand, an electorate so bitterly partisan that the voters and politicians are almost at each others' throats. But the morning after the election they awake to find the losers congratulating the victors,

Willkie's Contribution To Democracy

and the United States once more a strong united nation. This year, with a presidential campaign as bitter as any in history, with partisan feeling running even higher than usual, the dictators of the world again had their hopes raised that this time the United States had gone too far, and the fight had weakened the country at a time when it most needed to be strong. The final pleas of the two major candidates, however, was in the true American tradition, as they asked that the United States remain solidly united during the present crisis.

The election is over, and the United States remains strong and free. (Scottish Lite News).

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stimmatt

Washington—Add to the new-it-can-be-told stories. Friends of President Roosevelt are saying that the President felt certain all along that the American electorate had no appreciable feeling for the so-called third-term tradition. While no man actually had ever tested it either by seeking nomination or election for a third consecutive full term, they say, the President, an astute student of political forces, had twice in his own lifetime seen what politicians and the voters felt about more than two terms in office. In 1928 Coolidge had been President for five and a half years, and there was no doubt in the mind of the political observers of either party that he could have been nominated and elected if he had not come forth with his memorable "I do not choose to run" statement. Only 16 years earlier F. D. R. had seen his own cousin Teddy bustle into a campaign that had been won, would have given him 11 years in the White House. And Theodore Roosevelt, in spite of the fact that he split his own party and got re-elected, had seen a man who had been President for five and a half years, and there was no doubt in the mind of the political observers of either party that he could have been nominated and elected if he had not come forth with his memorable "I do not choose to run" statement.

Could Go Back Further. It is a well-worn story that the Republican F. D. R. tried, at the suggestion of his own party, to make a political assessment in both parties. "But a ballot factor in the Presidential election to do with it, to dip into political history. It was well known that he has done more summing up than any man in the White House. President Coolidge, for example, although he was elected only twice, ran three times and once time received a smaller vote of from five to five-and-a-half million. When Roosevelt Conkling in his weakened form with James G. Blaine looked about for a suitable candidate to run against Blaine, he picked Grant although only four years before Grant had just finished his second term. Conkling considered one of the great politicians of his day, didn't hesitate a minute over the third term issue and although Grant couldn't get a majority in the convention, the third term had nothing to do with it and Grant held his block of votes for more convention ballots than any one had done before him. It was compromise on Garfield by warring factions in the convention that finally broke the deadlock, not fear that the electorate would turn down former President Grant. President Jefferson, generally cited as chief opponent of the third term, served only two terms himself, but without protest from the electorate, he "ran the government" for 24 years, even deciding the order in which Madison and Monroe would succeed him.

Fast 10 Possibilities
Political historians usually list 10 men who either could or might have been elected for more than two terms. They are Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Grant, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge. The fact that they didn't was not important so far as the "third term tradition" is concerned. What is important is that in not one single instance is there a record that fear the voters would desert them because they wanted to stay in the White House was the deterrent. In other words, friends of the President say he had weighed all these things long ago and decided that if there were any votes against him because he was running for a third term, the chances are 100-to-1 those votes would have been against him if he were only running for his second.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Nov. 13.—Details of warehouse sales of tobacco, given out recently by the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service, lend little reason for loud cheerings by the growers or those who are more or less dependent on the growers' prosperity in order to be themselves prosperous.

While the Service led off with the statement that prices have averaged better this year than last to the same date, the cold figures reveal that this year's crop will bring Tar Heel producers not much more than half what they got for the 1939 yield. According to the report, 84 percent of the current crop has been sold for $69,927,966, which would give the complete crop a cash value of $80,866,626; as compared with the total income to farmers last year of close to $140,000,000.

Reason for the much quicker sale this year lies in the fact that there has been no such delay as there was last when the British buyers for Imperial withdrew and the markets were shut down until a control vote was held and the Federal government stepped into the picture with measures which held up the price.

Assistant State Forester F. H. Claridge, in charge of the forest management and planting division, has been called to active military service.

A lieutenant in the field artillery reserve, he has reported to Fort Bragg. Director R. Bruce Etheridge of the Department of Conservation and Development, says that Claridge's place will not be filled immediately. Nothing will be done, in all probability, before the legislature meets in January and the new situation as to forestry appropriations is said.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY, the three boys, Sally and Bill were giving at the country house near Atlanta to celebrate Bob and Claire's engagement. Bob and Claire's engagement began to go wrong at the start, and now, after dinner, it gets steadily worse. Sally just has discovered Aunt Maggie, who crashed the party in the first place, lying in the foot of the back stairs. Perhaps she had fallen down stairs, Sally thinks, a

Chapter Seven
Who Did It?
OF COURSE, when I first found Aunt Maggie, I thought she had fainted.

Evidently she had gone upstairs after leaving the library for she was wearing a Sheelard wool sweater over her lace dinner dress. The only explanation I could think of was that she had changed her mind about working and had come down the back stairs because it was a short cut to the game room and that the steep stairs had been too much for her.

Or that perhaps she had caught her heel on the step and tripped herself. Like many rather stout women, Aunt Maggie had always been a little vain about her feet and would never give up high heels. Even in that moment of shock the thought of the high heels led me to wonder about the sweater.

Aunt Maggie, a stickler in matters of dress as in manners, would never have worn a sweater over a dinner dress except perhaps in the privacy of the third-floor study for a session with family papers. I was sure she had come downstairs on an errand and not to rejoin the guests.

All these thoughts flashed through my mind as I hurried back through the breakfast room, calling to Bessie, "Bring some water, quick. Aunt Maggie has fainted."

Back again in the passage and endeavoring to find a pulse in Aunt Maggie's wrist, I was startled by the white cat appearing suddenly out of nowhere and fawning against me with a rather disgruntled meow.

"Scat," I told him sharply, expecting Aunt Maggie to revive at any moment and faint again at the unwelcome sight. How had Plutarch got out of the office anyway? Automatically I glanced toward the door. Yes, it was closed, but, of course, there was another door opening into the breakfast room from the office.

Andrew, who loves to dramatize a crisis, was right on the heels of Bessie's stockinged feet as she padded out with a pitcher of water. While Bessie sprinkled Aunt Maggie's face, I felt for her heartbeat, and Andrew fidgeted, full of suggestions. "If we could just get her on a sofa, Miss Sally, we could get her feet higher than her head. It's the blood. We want to get her feet higher than her head."

When I could find no heart-beat, I began to feel my first forebodings that perhaps Aunt Maggie had not merely fainted as a result of falling. Even then I thought it was only Andrew's easy excitability when he gasped out, "Law, Miss Sally, she been strangled."

But there were the black marks on her throat.

Sitting back limply on my heels and suddenly feeling very sick, I managed to say, "Get Mr. Bill."

Furore

"N WHAT" seemed no more than a minute the entire house party was reached there in the little back passageway. Some of them came up the steps from the basement game room. Some came down from the upstairs bedrooms and some from the drawing room. At least they seemed to come from all directions. Feeling "aint as I did, it also seemed to me as though some had come in from the rain outside. I thought nothing of it at the time. We had not then begun to hunt for a murderer, and I was too flustered to do more than take in the incredible fact that Aunt Maggie was dead.

I said, as the men went through the same motions I had already cried, "It's no use. We must get her on one of the sofas in the drawing room." There is a sofa in the office and it would have been simpler to take her in there, but I was still thinking of that as Plutarch's hideaway, not realizing that there was now no necessity for his impromptu "Better phone for a doctor," said Bill, still on his knees, doggedly trying to find some pulse in Aunt Maggie's limp wrist.

"Kirk, ask the operator at Roswell to get one for us, will you? That will be nearer than Atlanta." "Dr. Grace was Grandmother's doctor," said Bill.

"But Miss Maggie done dead Mr. Bill," Andrew remonstrated. "Ain't nothing no doctor can do. Oh, poor Miss Maggie. Poor Miss Maggie. She was always so proud."

A lump rose in my throat and I turned my eyes away. Andrew had painted an all-too-lifelike portrait of Aunt Maggie. I could not bear to look at her there on the floor.

"Well, we'll need a doctor, anyway," said Kirk. "I'll go and call Dr. Bob, maybe you had better go. I came out here with you. I'm not certain I could tell anybody how to reach the place."

ITALIANS PLAN NEW CAMPAIGN

Lull In War As Italian Prisoners Move To Camps

Athens, Nov. 13. — (AP) — The Greek high command reported today a stream of Italian wounded and prisoners was pouring back to concentration camps behind Greek forces advancing through "pillaged" villages abandoned by retreating Fascist troops.

Generally, though, there was quiet along the front from a lull described by neutral military observers as the end of the first phase of the war.

It was believed here that General Soddini, Undersecretary of War and newly appointed commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Albania, was reorganizing his troops and devising a new plan of campaign.

Supporting this view was the fact that there has been no Italian attack of any consequence in the past few days.

The Greeks took advantage of the lull to strengthen their lines. Last night five hundred Italian prisoners arrived in Athens.

A high command communique said "the number of Italians taken prisoners in Epirus is increasing" and includes "wounded abandoned by the enemy."

One company of Albanian troops, officers and all, were said to have surrendered as Greek forces pressed forward in most places to their own frontier which Italians crossed from Albania 17 days ago.

The Greek advance was reported to have thrust the Fascist invasion divisions back in Albania, except for a shallow salient near the coast. Greeks said their own counter-advance in Albania in the northern end of the front was defended successfully despite Italian raids.

BLOCKADE ON ITALY
BOON TO U. S. RATS
Columbus, Ohio.—(AP)—Britain's blockade of Italy may effect America's rat population, the state department of agriculture believes, by preventing export of red squill.

Several Ohio counties have reduced rat population by wholesale use of red squill. Officials said they prefer red squill because it kills rats but not other animals.

Copperhead snakes sometimes respond to gentle treatment in captivity and become tame and good-natured. Their venom is fatal.

doesn't do any better are often very unreliable, but every once in a while they reveal truths hidden under the mass of active propaganda put out by athletic press agents.

With this introduction, and without the slightest warranty of veracity, your reporter relays the tale of a State College football player that John Polanski and Tony Galovich of Wake Forest would be much better players if they would block for each other.

This "Country Boy" who shall be nameless, avers that John and Tony are very, very jealous of each other and not a bit enthusiastic about clearing the way for his supposed rival for newspaper headlines.

SAYS HEARING IS UP TO DIES

State Dept. Not To Interfere In Probe Of Germans

Washington, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The State Department has advised the Dies committee to use its own judgment on whether to start public hearings on the activities of German consuls and other agents in the United States.

The department made public today an exchange of telegrams between Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) of the House committee investigating activities, and Secretary of State Hull on the advisability of hearings, which Dies said were planned to start November 22.

Dies asked Hull whether this "might embarrass you in the conduct of our international relations or in any serious way complicate the situation."

Hull replied "the matter of public hearings before your committee is one which concerns the policy of an agency of the legislative branch of the government" and that Dies "as the responsible head of that agency must decide in the exercise of your own discretion, and judgment" whether to conduct the hearing.

Hull also expressed appreciation to Dies for having made available to the State Department information which the committee had gathered on the activities of German consuls and agents.

This information, Hull said, had been referred to the attorney general for a decision as to what action, if any, should be taken.
