GERMANY-RUSSIA AGREE ON SPHERE OF INTEREST

Berlin Is Bombed During Hitler-Molotoff Meeting

ITALIAN NAVY AGAIN RAIDED

Rome Denies Half Of Fascist Battleship Strength Crippled By British; French Government Protests Expulsion Of Subjects From Lorraine; Greeks Continue Successes

By The Associated Press
British warplanes heavily bombed the heart of Berlin, where Adolf Hitler was conducting mysterious secret negotiations with Russian Premier Molotoff, London reported today, and struck another "successful" blow at Italy's big naval base of Taranto.

The British Air Ministry said Royal Air Force bombers, raiding in the face of extremely adverse weather, showered explosives on a Berlin railroad station and freight yard.

Few details were available in the two attacks at Taranto, where earlier this week the British Royal Navy's air arm reportedly crippled half of the Italian navy's battleships.

Italy issued a denial of British claims that half the Fascist battleship strength was disabled, declaring the report was "fantastic."

Meanwhile an open flame of resentment against Germany's treatment as a conqueror was issued by the French government today in a formal protest against the expulsion of French-speaking subjects from the province of Lorraine.

The protest marked the first open discord between the fallen French republic and Nazi Germany.

The expelled residents were reported shunted from their homes into unoccupied France at a rate of seven train loads daily since Monday.

In the Balkan war the Greeks reported that Italy's invasion army was retreating from the Pindus mountain sector in the center of the 100-mile front to escape being cut into segments by advancing Greek infantry.

All dispatches said counter-attacking Greek troops were also moving rapidly forward in the Epirus sector in the northwest, where the Italians had driven some distance into Greek territory.

Italian warplanes were reported to have attacked the British naval base at Alexandria, bombing a cruiser.

Germany reported still further inroads on British shipping with the Nazi high command asserting that eight merchantmen totalling 28,848 tons were destroyed.

The British government reported that in the 12 months since the first bomb of the war fell on British soil November 13, 1939, a total of 2,875 raiding planes have been shot down with an approximate loss of 72.0 pilots and crew members. British bombing casualties were listed at 15,900 killed, 21,500 wounded—75 per cent in the London area.

Seeks Conference On Child Health

At the meeting at East Carolina Teachers College yesterday afternoon to discuss plans for a Child Health Conference to be held at the College during the summer of 1941, the resolution was passed to make application for such a conference.

Similar sessions have been held in other parts of the state in the past few years under the sponsorship of the State Department of Education and that of Public Health. The conference would bring together thirty scholar-ship students from over the state to take up problems of child health.

Present at the meeting Wednesday was Dr. Walter Wilkins, state coordinator of health activities. Representing Greenville and Pitt county were D. H. Conley, county superintendent of schools; K. T. Futrell, of the Welfare Department; Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, of the Woman's club; Dr. Thomas Eubank, of the Health Department of the county; Arch Flanagan and A. P. Hassell of the Farm Agent's office; and J. H. Rose, city superintendent of schools. President L. R. Meadows, C. L. Adams, R. J. Slav, O. A. Hankner, Miss Frances Wahl, and Miss Margaret Austin represented the College. Miss Austin was a scholarship student at last summer's conference at Chapel Hill.

Expect 2,000 Teachers Here For District Meet

Heads District

J. E. Miller, principal of John Small school of Washington, N. C., president of the Northeastern District Teachers Association, will preside over the general sessions of the eighteenth annual convention which will be held here tomorrow. The conference is expected to bring between 1,500 and 2,000 teachers from the 22 states in the district to Greenville.

SAYS SCHOOLS PAY DIVIDENDS

Dr. Dawson Is Education Week Speaker Here

No institution in the United States pays such rich dividends as does the public school system," declared Dr. Howard Dawson, director of the Division of Rural Education of the National Education Association.

Dr. Dawson spoke to a combined assembly of junior and senior high school students and a number of parents this morning at 11 o'clock. The program, the highlight of National Education Week in the local high school, was broadcast over WGTC. The Greenville High School band participated in the program. Guest soloist for the morning was Miss Bessie Brown, outstanding singer of Greenville.

In emphasizing the responsibility which is involved in a democracy Dr. Dawson reminded his audience forcibly that no people can be free and ignorant at the same time. "The citizens of the United States may not be able to increase their natural resources, but they do have the opportunity of increasing their knowledge and skills. If the public school serves the local community, the state, and the nation effectively, it will of necessity become our greatest institution of defense."

Dr. Dawson throughout his speech emphasized the point that the responsibility for educating American youth should be shared by the federal government as well as by state and local agencies. In turn it was stressed that it is the duty of the school to support the government, since through the government the public is provided with infinite privileges and safeguards which otherwise could not be secured through private enterprise.

"The public school system in America includes in some fashion one person out of every four. It is not an institution of charity, but one which, for the money spent, yields the most valuable dividends of any other organization in the world. It is the one institution which guarantees to the American people the perpetuation of the democratic ideal," declared Dr. Dawson.

"In a free country such as ours the privilege of supporting a public school and profiting from its benefits entails responsibilities, which every American citizen should be willing to face. Outstanding among these is the duty each individual has to make the most of his own personality and his innate abilities. To support the government in its efforts to protect the citizenry is another responsibility which the school should encourage in its young citizens. Of equal importance also, is the responsibility of sharing in forming the policies of the country by exercising the ballot."

In stressing the responsibilities which each citizen has to his community Dr. Dawson pointed out that

Expect 2,000 Teachers Here For District Meet

Twenty-Two North-eastern Counties To Be Represented

Approximately 2,000 school teachers, principals, and superintendents are expected to gather at East Carolina Teachers College tomorrow for the annual meeting of the Northeastern District Teachers Association.

The convention this year is unique in that it is the first time in many years that the association has planned a one-day meeting similar to those held in the other five districts of the North Carolina Education Association.

"The Modern School—A Workshop for Citizenship," an address by Dr. E. T. McSwain of Northwestern University, is scheduled for the first general session being held at 10 o'clock in the Austin auditorium. Other speakers appearing on the same program will be Dr. I. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College and S. G. Hawfield, president of the North Carolina Education Association.

Immediately following the first general session the 26 affiliated departments of the association will hold their departmental meetings and luncheons.

At the afternoon general session the East Carolina All-Star High School Band and the East Carolina Festival High School Chorus will be featured. Dr. John H. Cook, of the Woman's College, Greensboro, will appear on the same program and discuss retirement for teachers.

Dr. Carson Ryan, of the University of North Carolina, has been secured by the Classroom Teachers as a speaker at one of their meetings. Superintendent Claude Gaddy, of Raleigh, and T. A. Avery of Rocky Mount are appearing before the administrative group at a discussion and dinner meeting.

"A Great Social Experiment" is the topic chosen by Dr. Walter K. Greene of Duke University, for his address at the closing session of the convention. The Kennedy Home Chorus of Kinston is singing at this final session.

J. E. Miller, principal of the John Small school in Washington, N. C., president of the association, N. E. Gresham of Tarboro, its vice president, and Miss Annie Wilson, of Hertford, is secretary.

1940 Banner Year For The Red Cross

This year of 1940 is not just an ordinary one in Red Cross history. It now occupies a position of vital importance to all American citizens, for they have learned through the years to turn to the Red Cross for practical aid in any emergency, confident that their trust would be fulfilled in famine, flood, fire and epidemic, the American Red Cross has reached out a helping hand at home and abroad in time of peace. Now in time of war, the problem of national defense adds a heavy load to the normal civilian relief activities of this great organization.

Red Cross welfare work with the army and navy will mean much to men selected for a year's military training for it forms a friendly link between service men and their families and helps maintain their morale. Forty-three thousand Red Cross nurses stand ready to care for American soldiers and sailors. A million men and women know how to save human lives and they know because they were taught by Red Cross First Aid and Water Safety programs. Thousands know how to care for sick people at home through Red Cross instruction. All this makes for a healthier, safer and stronger nation.

Outstanding among Red Cross services is the Disaster Relief operation which helps many thousands of victims of fire and flood and epidemic return to normal and useful lives and occupations. In North Carolina alone, the recent floods wrought damage estimated at millions of dollars in lost homes, livestock, crops and household furnishings. The Red Cross expended a total of $90,136 in North Carolina in 1940 to rehabilitate 7,900 flood sufferers. For these people, new homes were built and furniture and clothing given, stores were rebuilt and stocked, and destitute farmers had their livestock and farm implements replaced so that they could begin a new life with a fair chance for success. Somewhere in this nation of ours, a disaster occurs on an average of twice a week which requires Red Cross assistance in the

MORE ITALIAN TROOPS MOVED

Being Transferred From Yugoslav Line to Albania

Athens, Nov. 14.—(AP) The Italians were reported today to be withdrawing large numbers of troops from the Yugoslav frontier and speeding them into Albania in an attempt to halt the Greek advance in that sector.

The shifts in the Italian troop movement were reported as an indication not only that the Italians are on the defensive, but that the British and Greek air attacks on the Italian naval base at Taranto and other Italian and Albanian bases had held up the transport of reinforcements from the Italian mainland.

Counter-attacking Greek forces were reported to have driven a new salient into the center of the sagging Italian battle lines along the Albanian frontier and mopping up operations were said to be proceeding rapidly further south in territory abandoned by the Italian right wing.

A brief announcement by the high command said that Greek troops had occupied new hill positions on Albanian soil in the Pindus mountain region, but did not indicate the depth of the penetration.

Refuses To Allow Bullitt To Resign

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt announced today that President Roosevelt had declined to accept his resignation as ambassador to France.

Bullitt issued a statement saying that he had expressed to the President a desire to resign last August and submitted their resignation in writing on November 7.

The ambassador said he had believed he could be of more service to the country if he were free to write and speak without restrictions of public office.

It was believed in well-informed quarters that Bullitt was not likely to be sent to Vichy, capital of unoccupied France.

No Date Set As Yet For Aldermanic Meet

No date has been set for a meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen to name a mayor to succeed Jack Spain, who has resigned and will take up his new duties as secretary to Rep. Bonner next week.

Mayor Spain resigned at the regular monthly meeting November 7 and the board failed to agree on a successor at that time and agreed to meet again Monday night. The meeting was postponed from that date following the death of Mrs. Sarah E. Sellers, mother of Alderman R. E. Sellers.

For the present Mr. Sellers, who is mayor pro tem is serving as mayor.

Although wreaths have their headquarters in tropical America, they are found as far north as Greenville.

School Places Emphasis On Physical Education

By JESSE MUNFORD
In Greenville High school there are 227 students out of 619 participating in physical education. Of these, 27 are in senior high and 200 in junior high. This year for the first time physical education is a requirement in junior high school.

Superintendent J. H. Rose stated yesterday, "Health and physical education are the most necessary items in any educational program. In North Carolina and in Greenville we have too long neglected the program of health and physical education. The public has not been willing to support this program because they thought that somehow the teaching of physical education and health came under the head of fad and frills, or non-essentials. However, the public is now being aroused and is worried about the fact that more than one-third of our draft-age young people will be physically unfit for military service. If they are unfit for military service, it is likely that they are also not strong enough to live healthy and happy lives."

MAJORITY FOR DEMO LEADERS STATE RECORD

Total Vote, However, Falls Short Of 1936 Figures

FDR MAJORITY 395,000 Votes

Tabulation Of Votes In All But Three Of State Precincts Give Broughton 608,604 Ballots

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP) Governor-elect J. M. Broughton rolled up a record-breaking Democratic majority of about 413,000 votes in the general election, and President Roosevelt carried the state by a record presidential majority of about 395,000.

The state's total vote of about 823,000 will fall some 16,000 below the record 839,424 of 1936, it seemed.

The Associated Press compiled unofficial returns today from 1,913 of the state's 1,916 precincts, getting official county returns for 99 counties for president and for 98 counties for governor. Unofficial figures were available for all except three precincts in the Republican county of Mitchell.

Broughton's 608,604 votes in 1913 precincts set a new record for total gubernatorial votes and his majority was 413,682 in them, as Robert H. McNeill, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, got 194,922. It seemed that about 1,000 votes remained to be reported from Mitchell county. Four years ago Governor Hoyt got 542,139 votes and Gilliam Grissom received 270,843, a Democratic majority of 271,296.

In the 1,913 precincts President Roosevelt led Broughton by 200 votes with a total of 608,824 and a majority of 395,684 over the 213,146 cast for Willie. Four years ago President Roosevelt got 616,141 in the state and Alf M. Landon received 223,283.

11,973 Bales Cotton Been Ginned In Pitt

A total of 11,973 bales of cotton had been ginned in Pitt county from the 1940 crop up to November 1, compared with only 1,368 ginned from the 1939 crop up to that date a year ago, it was reported today by M. V. Horton of Farmville, special agent of the Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce.

This year's cotton crop in Pitt county is substantially larger than it has been in any recent year, a fact which was reflected in the cotton ginnings report.

W. T. Kyzer To Attend Roanoke, Va. Meeting

Willard T. Kyzer, executive secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce left this morning for Roanoke, Va., where he will attend a one-day regional conference of business men and Chamber of Commerce executives on the subject of defense problems and policies.

Representatives from Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee will attend the conference, which is being sponsored by the Roanoke and United States Chambers of Commerce.

To Make Study Of Convicted Slayer

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Governor Hoyt said today he did not plan to intervene in behalf of Zedekiah Smith, 30-year-old Negro sentenced to be executed tomorrow, but that he granted Jeff D. Johnson, Jr., lawyer for the Negro, an opportunity to present additional matters which may affect the decision.

Smith was convicted in Sampson county of murder. "As it now stands, I do not plan to intervene," said Hoyt, "but if the new matter the lawyer presents seems worthy of an investigation a short reprieve will be granted."

Mrs. Staples' Mother Dies In Waco, Texas

Word was received here today of the death of Mrs. Ada Bradley of Waco, Texas, mother of Mrs. G. E. Staples and grandmother of Mrs. N. O. Van Norwick, Jr., both of this city.

Mrs. Bradley had been ill about a week. She died yesterday at the age of 79.

Rumanian Home Ravaged By Quake

The Rumanian earthquake which killed nearly 1,000 persons did this to a home in Bucharest. The city's death toll alone amounted to more than 300 in Sunday's quake. (This picture by radio from Berlin).

Students Sentenced For Declining To Register

Given Year And Day After Reiterating Refusal

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Eight theological students who refused to register for selective service were sentenced in federal court today to serve a year and a day in a federal prison to be designated by the attorney general.

The students were "conscientious objectors" from the Union Theological seminary. When they were indicted October 21 for refusing to register in compliance with the selective training and service act they pleaded guilty.

The court accepted U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill's recommendation for sentence, while noting that the maximum term possible was five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum said that if at any time within the period imposed the defendants decided to comply with the act the court would be "only too happy" to moderate the sentences.

He added that he did not believe the United States attorney general would object if he gave each of the men the opportunity to register "at this last minute" before sentences were imposed.

"I should be most happy," said Cahill.

The roll of students was then called. Each reiterated his refusal. The sentencing was in a court room crowded with quiet, grave-faced men and women. Court attaches said it was one of the most solemn scenes they had witnessed.

Kenneth Walker, counsel for the students said "their consciences hold them to the teaching of the Great Master."

"They believe those teachings to mean what they say," he went on, "and they find in their instructions to have nothing to do with that mass killing which is called war."

Seeks Increase In Fund For Highway

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The Highway and Public Works Commission asked the Advisory Budget Commission today to recommend appropriations of $9,938,123 from the highway funds for the 1941-42 biennium, compared with an estimated expenditure of $68,983,143 this biennium.

Including federal aid funds, the Highway Commission sought a budget of $78,224,747, an increase of $3,772,012 over this biennium.

A hint that a bond issue of perhaps $38,000,000 might be sought through legislative action to provide funds to standardize and modernize obsolete roads was given the Commission in a request for a flat appropriation of $2,000,000 yearly for the purpose.

A total of $37,800,000 was asked for the next biennium for maintenance and construction and betterments on state and county highway and $500,000 yearly was set up for maintenance of highways in cities.

This afternoon the University of North Carolina was expected to request $3,855,905 for the next biennium, compared with $2,644,640 this biennium.

Slow Down—Veterans
Napa, Calif. (AP)—Because one of the chief recreations of residents of the old soldiers' home at Yountville is walking, state officials have recommended a big sign warning motorists to slow down to 25 miles an hour.

Both Agree That Britain Is Defeated

Area Of Domination For Russia To Be Created From A "Bankruptcy Inventory" Of British Empire; Both Feel Certain Of Turkey, But Want Nation To Make Up Her Mind Definitely

Berlin, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler and Soviet Premier Molotoff have agreed upon a Russian sphere of interest lying generally between Japan's Far Eastern sphere and Europe and Africa, which Rome and Berlin have allotted to themselves, sources usually in the know divulged today after Molotoff had started for home.

With the exception of European Russia and Turkey, all of Europe and Africa will stand under the leadership of the Axis creators, Germany and Italy, these persons said.

Official confirmation of this was unobtainable since the foreign office has made it plain that nothing will be said beyond this noon's communique which stated that Germany and Russia have reached "a mutual accord on all important questions of interest" to both.

Inquiries in quarters which always prove reliable on matters of foreign policy developed this picture, however:

1. Russia will have her vast space of domination just as the Axis and Japan arranged to have theirs by the terms of the three-power pact they signed on September 27.

2. This space will not be created at the expense of parties not involved in the present European conflict. In other words, no further slice will be taken out of Finland nor will the Dardanelles be taken from Turkey, provided she behaves in a manner not inimical to the Axis and Russia.

3. Turkey must make up her mind definitely whether she will place in the future scheme of things, Germany, Italy and Russia all feel confident that Turkey will in due time, seek an Anschluss with the totalitarian powers.

4. Whatever compensation Russia may desire in the future for her support of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo arrangement for a "new world" must come from a "bankruptcy inventory" of the British empire. German sources seem certain that Molotoff, speaking for Stalin, considers Britain already defeated, as does the Axis.

5. If the Soviet Union should desire to realize her age-long dream of obtaining access to the world's oceans, say via Iran or Afghanistan, British India she will find the Axis "disinterested."

6. All parties concerned will join in effort to bring about a non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan as a result of which Japan, too, will show her "disinterest" in those regions which Russia regards as part of her domination space.

Kiwanians Will Hear Dr. Ralph McDonald

Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of the University of North Carolina Extension Service will address the Greenville Kiwanis club at its regular weekly meeting tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

The club's program will be in observance of American Educational Week and were able to secure the services of Dr. McDonald since he will be here attending the annual conference of the Northeastern District Teachers Association.

Beware of fakirs. Two weeks to Thanksgiving. Circus day and a big crowd in town.

If the sharpers fleeced you it is your fault. The hunters are getting some wild turkeys. Several have been brought in.

Folks were coming in town bright and early this morning so as to miss none of the circus.

During the month of October there were 2,202,983 pounds of tobacco sold on the Greenville market, the average price for the month being $7.30 per hundred.

Service League Entertains.

On Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, the Service League entertained at a most enjoyable bridge tournament at the Greenville Country Club.

Forty-three tables were arranged in a setting of exquisite chrysanthemums and graceful branches of long leaf pine. The pine branches were banked on the mantel shelves and over the doors and windows. Fires burned in the massive fireplaces at either end of the club room.

As the guests arrived they were invited into the bar, where from a beautifully appointed table Mrs. R. M. Garrett and Miss Hennie Long served delicious spiced tea and a variety of dainty cookies.

B. Pace, Mrs. Tom Smoot, Mrs. James Jenkins, Mrs. J. B. Cummings and Mrs. Wyatt Brown assisted in serving.

Mrs. R. M. Garrett expressed the appreciation of the Service League for the support of the community in making possible the maintenance of the Laughinghouse bed in Pitt General Hospital. She explained its services and benefits to the underprivileged of Pitt county.

At the close of the playing, Mrs. Sam Northrop was presented a pair of silk hose with the high score award. Mrs. R. D. Whichard received cut flowers for making second high, and Mrs. Leland Hardee, an orangeade pitcher and glasses for third.

The low score prize, a box of note paper, was won by Mrs. C. C. Hilt. Mrs. Earl Forbes was presented a cake as the prize for making the largest number of slams.

A set of beautiful crocheted mats, made by Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Sr., of Lynchburg, Va., was won by Mrs. Frank Park.

Mrs. Ty Wagner was general chairman for the tournament.

Inter Se Book Club.

The Inter Se Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Staunton Harvey on November 12. The program was given by Mrs. A. B. Stallworth. It was a most interesting and colorful description of the island of Cuba.

At the beginning, Mrs. Stallworth told of the discovery of Cuba by Columbus in 1492, when he established the first settlement at Santo Domingo. In 1512 Don Diego Velazquez was sent by the Spanish king to colonize the island. There were seven settlements formed in Cuba, of which Havana was the last. At first Cuba was only valuable as a stopping place for the Spanish ships en route to Mexico.

The Cubans traded their vegetables and cattle for the commodities from Spain. In 1762 England opened trade between Cuba and the States. The inhabitants were becoming more and more dissatisfied with the rule of Spain and in 1868 they revolted. The war with Spain lasted ten years and many men from the States joined with the Cubans to help them gain their independence. There is a beautiful monument in Havana built in honor of the men from the States who died at the time.

Mrs. Stallworth discussed Havana which is Cuba's largest city. One of the most beautiful buildings there is the Cathedral. There is also a fine park in its center which has been kept in its natural tropical beauty. Every kind of fruit can be found for sale. The streets are full of vendors who go from house to house selling their wares. There are many beautiful estates near the city belonging mostly to the owners of sugar plantations. However, the peasants of this lovely island are extremely poverty-stricken.

At the conclusion of the program a brief business session was held followed by a social time, when the hostess served delicious refreshments.

The Round Table

The Round Table enjoyed a unique and very delightful afternoon at the regular November meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Promptly at three o'clock the members assembled at the Austin building on the college campus. They were greeted by Mesdames ReBarker and Henderson and taken by elevator to the English laboratory. After a brief business session the program for the afternoon was presented by Mrs. E. L. Henderson, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Browne. The subject, "Picturesque Bermuda," was ably presented by Mrs. Henderson who gave a most entertaining travelogue, illustrated by scenes and photographs sent her direct from the island.

These pictures were projected on the screen, which greatly enhanced their beauty and effectiveness. Far out in the Atlantic ocean nearly 600 miles from the nearest point of land, lies Bermuda; a huge volcanic mountain, rising ten thousand feet above the ocean floor—only a tiny margin, however, reaches above the surface of the sea, so verily the island swims upon the sea. In area it is 20 miles long and two miles wide—the entire population, both white and colored, would not fill half of the seats in the Yale Bowl.

Thin as the place is, two good-sized ocean liner ply back and forth carrying tourists. For Bermuda is "different," the houses are built in a style native to the island. The sea is different, here, one views all the pastel colors, in an ever-moving shimmer of rainbow shades and lights. There isn't an automobile in Bermuda; visitors ride in carriages, on horseback, bicycles or walk. Here are no amusement parks, no gambling casinos, no night clubs. Americans are urged to enjoy Bermuda for Bermuda's sake.

This British colony is headed by a Governor appointed by the Colonial office in London, usually a general. An elected Parliament represents local opinion and has considerable power. Bermuda has been called "The Land of the Lily and the Rose." All flowers flourish here in luxurious profusion. The Passion flower, the violet, Narcissus, Wistaria, Geranium, Heliotrope and Nasturtiums re-seed themselves.

The most important flower is the Bermuda Easter Lily. Fields of these lilies appear like a field of snow and buds are cut by the carload.

Bermuda is a veritable paradise for garden lovers and a Bermuda garden is a source of endless surprises.

At the close of this beautifully rendered program, the Round Table went to the home of Mrs. Herbert ReBarker, where a delightful social hour was enjoyed. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J. S. Lewis, Mrs. O. A. Hankner and Mrs. Rowland Farley.

Mrs. ReBarker served a delectable salad course with hot coffee, followed by choice home-made candy.

SOME CURRENT NORTH CAROLINA WRITERS

Radio talk given by Mrs. Herbert Retarker over WGTC.

We North Carolinians take great pride in our native folk who do things that are of a creative nature, whether it be in the field of writing, photography or even politics. At the present time we have several Carolinians to be proud of. This flurry of success may be due to the fact that publishers are demanding and buying books about rural life, small-town life, anything but city life. Or it may be due to Southerners becoming more creative, which they surely are, if you will take time to notice. Or, as one critic says, Southern women are using their leisure in a creative way more than ever before.

Right now because she is so new on the literary horizon we are hearing much about Carson McCullers, a young woman who spent her girlhood in Fayetteville, but who was born in Georgia and is now living in New York City. She at 22 years of age is the author of a best-seller "The Heart is a Lonely Hunter." The amazing thing about her writing is how familiarly she deals with matters that no 22-year-old girl is supposed to be authority on. May be the fact that she has lived near an army post explains that. Then too, she has developed a style all her own so soon in her writing. And she has her own viewpoint. The book is queer, though, with an extraordinary obsessive quality. It is almost to show the great theme of the book, the one's troubles to someone else, even though that someone is a deaf-mute and cannot understand. Miss McCullers' main character in her book is John Singer, a deaf-mute, who lives in a small southern town.

Through his simple goodness and inarticulate pity the other characters get in touch with themselves, in other words, they are able to talk back to themselves. At least, they find comfort in the deaf-mute's presence. The reader's reaction to "The Heart is a Lonely Hunter" is either very favorable or very unfavorable, a quality that makes for much publicity.

The current writer whom we all talked about so much last spring was Bernice Kehn Harris of Seaboard. She it was who came to Greenville to talk to the American Association of University Women last May. She told this group of women that southerners fail to value as highly as they should the wealth of material that surrounds them, material that outsiders so often come in and make use of, for instance, Eina Ferber and the Show Boat at Bath, N. C. Mrs. Harris is the author of two books, "Folk Plays of North Carolina," and "Purslane." In these books she has contributed a real bit of literature. She has used a language that is real and salty to record the little events in the lives of simple country people. "Folk Plays of North Carolina" is made up of drama that took place in Mrs. Harris' home community. "Purslane" is the story of a family that lived in her county. And it proved its worth to such an extent that it was published in England this last summer. However, the title was changed to "Pete's Sliding" because the English people are not acquainted with purslane, or pursley, our native weed.

The North Carolina writer who receives praise yesterday, today and tomorrow is Paul Green of Chapel Hill. He so thoroughly loves, understands and appreciates the South that he cannot help but write about it. He believes that there is more humor, more drama, more romance beneath southern skies than can be found anywhere else. He has a genuine philosophy of life and is a great inspiration to those who are creative. Of all the talks made in the last ten years on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College Paul Green made the most inspiring one. And though his mode of expression is one of the most difficult, yet his plays show the highest of quality. His group of plays "Out of the South" is the life of a people told in dramatic form. His pageants, "The Lost Colony" and "The Highland Call" have been the most successful written in America. And it was in 1927 that he received the Pulitzer Prize for writing the most original American play. "In Abraham's Bosom." Paul Green is North Carolina's outstanding current writer.

Each spring for five consecutive years now Marian Sims of Charlotte, has written a book about her section of the state. She does not depict rural life, but small-town life, going to the resort towns for her characters and choosing the socially prominent, restless and emotional people. Her second novel was "The World with a Fence." "Call It Freedom" was her third book, a light novel but with a thread of thought that was well taken all the way through. With all the light, frivolous life that Marian Sims so charmingly describes, she puts underneath a seriousness that brings her characters back to the right way of living. "Memo to Timothy Sheldon" is even a lighter novel but in the end it returns to normalcy. Her newest book "The City on the Hill," has just been published. It is the best written of all her books—and deserves attention—because of the vast amount of knowledge it contains about what goes on around a county court house. Then too, she has a splendid portrayal of the moral conflict between two generations, father and son. All of Marian Sims' books are widely read by the younger book club members, because she understands their viewpoint, their philosophy of life.

Also from Charlotte comes Mary Bledsoe who writes splendidly of the mountain people, not the "Grapes of Wrath" kind, but the wholesome, genuine type that is the backbone of our country. She sees in these mountain folk a unique people, who though they live isolated lives, have a high sense of values, a genuine love of nature and a strength that "cometh from the hills." "Shadows Slant North," her best known book, is laid around Blowing Rock and is as true a picture of Western Carolina as "Purslane" is of the Eastern section. And we also have a poet who writes so kindly of these mountain people. She is Olive Tilford Dargatzis of Asheville, a woman who lives so close to nature that she really can describe the mountains. And she is just as folksy as the people whom she so cleverly writes about. Her poetry is of the earth earthy, and she appeals to all lovers of nature. Two other poets whose names must be mentioned are Edith Taylor Earnshaw of Wake Forest and Anne Blackwell Payne of Washington. Listen to these lines,

"The beauty of a candle touches me, It is so softly gay, So steady and so careless of itself, Burning its life away."

and realize how very much of a poet is Anne Blackwell Payne. The newest literary news in North Carolina is about our neighbor from Wilson, Daisy Hensley Gold, whose book "It Was Forever," is to come from the press of Doran and Company the first of December. The scene of her novel is laid on the coast near Beaufort. The book is really a study in emotions, having as its background a charming romance about a Morehead City girl and an Englishman from a freighter that makes that port. The author has made a close study of the people of that section, having spent many summers in their midst. She plans to come to Greenville in January to review her book before the Sans Souci Book Club.

The most unique current writer in our state is Robert Watson Winston of Chapel Hill. He is unique for more reasons than one. First, he is the last of the typical southern gentlemen wielding a pen in North Carolina. Second, after a notable career at the Bar, he retired to start to school again at his alma mater. This time he wanted to learn to write, and even though he was more than 60 years of age, the university turned him into quite the finished literary product. And as a result of this second schooling we read "A Freshman Again at Sixty." Judge Winston began his literary career by writing addresses, articles and essays. From these he moved to biographies of great southern leaders. His "Andrew Johnson: Plebian and Patriot," showed to the world the splendid figure that Carolina was, and how much he did for the south during his tenure of office. A distinct service was rendered to the South in Winston's biography of Jefferson Davis, clarifying the record of that little understood head of the Lost Cause. And in his biography of Robert E. Lee we have a most interesting book—though it may not be as exhaustive as other Lee biographies. Winston's last book "It's a Far Cry" is more or less his own biography. It is filled with a piquancy and zest for living that only such a man as he can put in an autobiography. Robert Lawrence says of him in his "Here in Carolina." "The works of Judge Winston attest some of his characteristics, but they cannot portray the exquisiteness of his courtesy, the charm of his manner, the depth of his tolerance, the breadth of his humanity, or the geniality of his presence. Nor in them can be seen fully the joy he has gotten out of life since he was 60, and out of his great accomplishment since he 'retired' in 1922. He has shed luster upon the name and fame of his native state."

Two other writers of much importance to our state are the Daniels, father and son. The elder, Josephus, is at present writing his memoirs in four volumes called "Tar-heel Editor." The first volume appeared more than a year ago and was particularly interesting to Eastern Carolinians because his early life was spent in that section. The younger Daniels, Jonathan, because of his liberal mindedness, expert in politics, and because he does not look at the South through colored glasses, (which may be due to the fact that he lived in New England for quite a while) gains much attention in the East with his writings. He has several books to his credit, the last three being of a rather spectacular type, written in a newspaper style, highly interesting and most timely. In his latest book "North Carolina," Daniels carries his readers on an enlightening and humorous journey over the state. Two of his books, "A Southerner Discovers the South" and "A Southerner Discovers New England" received more publicity than any other recent books written by a North Carolinian, with the exception of Thomas Wolfe.

And we cannot think of current writers of North Carolina without mentioning the name of Thomas Wolfe, since he has been dead such a short time. Then too, his last book "You Can't Go Home Again" has just been published. Critics place him higher and higher in the literary firmament. One critic says that when we bring to mind the contemporary literary scene, we instantly think of Hemingway, Faulkner, Lewis and Wolfe, for each represents a decisive moment in the growth of our literature. (Please note that two of the four writers mentioned were from the South.) Said this same critic of Wolfe, "He is the first great singer of a great nation. He was lyrical and autobiographical. In depicting himself he revealed the brooding energies latent in this land. In glorifying himself he glorified us, our normal great joys and tragedies."

Third Street School Library The Library at Third Street School is a center of activity. At first each grade had its own library. Encyclopedias and reference books were kept in the school of-the Library is gay with decorations and slogans. Each grade has contributed. There are also several programs about Book Week to be given in the auditorium. Thursday is visiting day for parents and friends of Third Street School. Be sure you come, and do not forget to visit the school Library.

Two years ago Mrs. Kasey took charge of the Library. Since then it has grown in every way. Attractive posters are always on display. Current events and holidays have a place on the bulletin boards.

Library hours are held for each grade from third through seventh. Mrs. Kasey is always ready to help with any problem. She is creating in the children a love of good books and of reading.

The circulation the first year was 3,660. Last year it was 8,579. This year it is showing that by the end of the year it will far surpass the last record.

Each year there is a gain of about 300 books. There are about 1,000 books in circulation at Third Street School. This includes the two branch libraries in the first and second grades. While it was thought best that the teachers should judge the reading for the beginners still they have a part in the Central Library. Mrs. Kasey has interesting story hours for them. ## Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SHE MARRIED AN IDEA
Thirty-five years ago in a little cabin in the southern mountains, a young woman named Martha Berry started a school which has grown now into a school of 1,200 students, 100 buildings, and a 30,000-acre campus.

As one of Martha's sisters went down the steps of Berry Hill to be a bride, the old negro mammy who had taken care of the girls said to Martha, "What 'ol you gwine to do now, honey? Yo' wastin' yo' life, she'n nuff on dem scollaw boys ovah dat school. Why ain't you buyin' yo' s'it gettin' a home?"

But Martha Berry answered, "No Aunt, I've said good-by forever to a home of my own. I've married an idea."

As a result of that idea, 12,000 students have gone through Martha's school. Any boy or girl in the southern states in need of education and too poor to pay for it can come to Martha Berry's school.

The wealthy have vied with each other in building up mansions. When this courageous woman who married an idea finds that the school simply has to have a new building, she has an architect draw up plans and she starts building with what money she has and the balance eventually comes in. She declares confidently that none of her dreams has ever failed yet and she believes they never will because the hearts of all normal people respond to a concrete appeal to give aspiring youth a chance.

Happy the person who marries an idea and pledges his troth to it till death do them part.

WELCOME AGAIN

Greenville again extends a cordial welcome to the Northeastern District Teachers' Association gathering here tonight and tomorrow. All this week we have been observing National Education Week and it is fitting that the week's activities should culminate with such a gathering of educators in our midst. The hearty and sincere welcome we have extended you on former occasions we repeat now, and again wish that your stay here will be a pleasant and happy one, and that you will return home looking forward to your next visit to Greenville.

FREEDOM WILL TRIUMPH

As news comes from Europe of further agreements between the Axis and Russia the lines are becoming more clearly drawn for the final contest that must come with the dictator nations on the one side and the democracies and the people who believe in freedom on the other, and the end will not be until one side or the other accomplishes complete victory. The march of events sets forth more clearly each day that the present day world is small after all and it cannot survive half slave and half free. So far as is generally believed, Russia will not enter actively into the contest but will, by agreement to a hands-off policy, sit on the sidelines as heretofore and pick up all she can without fighting for it. The one encouraging sign of the whole present situation, however, is that Hitler's plans have struck such a snag that he has found it necessary to again take his troubles to Stalin in the hope of gaining enough backing to give him hope for success in his destruction of freedom in the world.

History of centuries past reveals a continuous struggle for freedom and the present struggle will continue until the dictators take their place in history and likewise belong to the past.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington, Nov. 14—Answering the mail of G. I. Edgar, City Editor, the editor of the Daily Reflector, I believe that the best news about the number of new workers put on the job by the new government is that of William S. Knicker, who set the record at 10,000 a month. The new government has employed 1,000,000 men and women in the last six months. The new government has employed 1,000,000 men and women in the last six months. The new government has employed 1,000,000 men and women in the last six months.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Nov. 14—When Dick Reynolds got back to Raleigh from a visit to the Georgia island where he entertained a group of friends he was pennilessly surprised to find that he is being prominently discussed as the possible successor to Chip Roberts as secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

He wouldn't commit himself as to his attitude, pointing out that it would be quite premature to say he would or would not accept a job he hasn't been offered; but his general demeanor left no doubt in the mind of your reporter that he would be glad to take the post.

Nobody in Raleigh seemed to know just exactly where the report came from, but indirect word from Congressman Lon Folger of the Fifth was definitely to the effect that the job is Dick's if he wants it. As the Tar Heel member of the committee, Lon ought to know whereof he speaks.

As said, nobody hereabouts seemed to have any real information, but at the same time all with whom your reporter talked agreed that Dick would make a fine man for the post. Those expressing this view included Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

On a recent visit to Democratic national headquarters in New York Reynolds is said to have made an extremely fine impression on Chairman Ed Flynn.

The reports of Reynolds' chances to get into the national political swim corresponded closely with stories out of Washington that the entire Democratic party machinery is to be overhauled and streamlined. Everyone here thinks that Reynolds would be an ideal man to give a hand in the job of making the donkey a very lively beast.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY: Sally and her husband, Bill, are giving a week end party at their country house near Atlanta to celebrate the engagement of two friends, Bob and Claire. But Aunt Maggie crashed the party, and so did Eve, who had tried hard to win Bob from Claire. And now the house is a tangle of terror, because Sally just has found Aunt Maggie choked to death in the back hall.

Chapter Eight

The Grip Of Fear

I TRIED to tell myself that Eve was desperately unhappy and that this was what made her lash out at people. And that she was unhappy because she either didn't know what she wanted or, perhaps, didn't realize what she wanted until it belonged to someone else. But, anyway, it would not mend matters for me to lose my head. And there was no gain-saying the fact that she was right about the unhappy consequences which must follow in the wake of murder.

So I said, "Bob, don't you think it would be a good idea to get Alice a sip of brandy? Will anyone else have a drink?" Bob brought in a decanter and glasses from the dining room and both Alice and Eve took the small drinks offered, after which he downed two quite large ones himself. "And now if you girls will excuse me a moment," he said, "I'll go upstairs and get my pipe."

"Hurry back," Alice told him, obviously braced by the brandy. "That awful pipe," Eve chided. "Hasn't Claire made you throw it away yet?" Bob pretended not to hear as he passed through the doorway, and we all settled down in silent gloom before the fire. Claire lit a cigarette and it was then I noticed where Eve had tossed several half-smoked ones to the hearth, their tips smeared with lipstick. There were plenty of ash trays about, and, although I knew her carelessness was the natural nervousness under the circumstances, it did bring back Aunt Maggie's remark about the impossibility of being what she called "well born" at the age of thirty.

And that made me think of something else. Of Eve's threat when Aunt Maggie spoke of going to Eve's divorced husband. And of their later passage-at-arms in the library. Yet I believed at the time and I believed now that Eve had not meant her threat literally.

And so we sat and stared into the fire. "Golly," Eve ejaculated finally, "what a pleasant little party this turned out to be." It was on the tip of my tongue to remind her that she had invited herself, but I decided again that we had enough trouble on hand without letting Eve stir up more. From the way Alice looked at her, I knew she also would like to tell Eve that and plenty besides. But she restrained herself and, shivering slightly, inquired instead, "Why doesn't Bob come back?"

It did seem that Bob had been gone rather longer than his errand required, but just as I was about to say that he no doubt would be along in a moment, every light in the house went out, plunging the library into darkness, relieved only by the glow of the coals in the fireplace.

Alice screamed. Eve said "Damn," and Claire and I, both reaching out to class hands with Alice, found that our own hands had come together instead.

"There are matches on the table," I said, groping for them in the darkness. As I lighted the candles on the mantel and table and started to flickering flames, Eve stirred up the coals and put another log on the fire.

Light At Last

"WHAT the devil do you suppose has happened now?" she asked. "It's the murderer," Alice whimpered. "We'll all have our heads cut off."

Well, that's no reason why we should lose them beforehand," snapped Eve. "Anyway, it is probably only this damned storm."

RIGHT FROM THE COACH
Lincoln, Neb. (AP)—This is the best story of Floyd Bortoff, University of Nebraska equipment manager who has seen the Huskers play 99 consecutive football games. Some years ago Dr. Earl Deppen, team physician, made his first trip to Lincoln, Neb. Bortoff, who always longed to sit on the bench and listen in on what the coaches talk about when the going is tough. With a seat right behind Dana K. Bible, then Nebraska's coach, Dr. Deppen believed his day had arrived as Bible leaned toward Bunny Cakes, then line coach, Dr. Deppen, all ears, leaned forward. Then Bible spoke: "Bunny, we're sure getting the stuffin' beat out of us today!" (P.S.—The final score was 40 to 0, Pitt.)

James Fleming On Forum For Church
 At the forum held at the Christian church last Sunday night, Mr. James Fleming presented an able and practically the subject, "What Is the Proper Role For The United States in the European and Asiatic Wars?"

"It is imperative," said Mr. Fleming, "that the United States recognize its position of leadership in the world and accept responsibilities pertaining thereto. To arrive at this, the United States should discard the myth of isolation already done by our leaders but not by the people. Then we should fortify ourselves in character and education in order to make ourselves worthy and capable of the leadership expected of us.

Some very practical suggestions were (1) That we boycott all products sent into America by any aggressor nation or by any nation assisting an aggressor. (2) Do everything possible, short of war, to aid the Allies who are fighting for the principles on which our government is founded and in which we believe. (3) This is the proper time to start public discussions concerning the role the United States is to take after the war.

(4) Finally, Mr. Fleming advised that we of the United States should hold before the people of all nations the inspiring picture of freedom living in a democratic, post-war world where the individual personality will be respected regardless of race and creed and in which world America this time, will promise in advance to take her share of the responsibility.

Questions brought out in the discussion period dealt with the failure of the United States to join the League of Nations; the economic policy of the United States relating to free trade; the matter of boycott, the probability of our entrance into the war; and an honorable peace. Differences of opinion were evident.

The Christian church is happy to present these forum programs on matters of current interest to the citizens of the community.

It is a call to which I am sure the American people will proudly and cheerfully respond." During the week of November 18-25, the Pitt County chapter of the American National Red Cross will conduct its Roll Call and is endeavoring to attain a membership goal of 2,500. This objective can be reached only if each and every resident of Pitt county responds to the call by wearing a Red Cross button, signifying membership.

From 1932 to 1936 Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus made no bones about his differences of opinion with the New Deal of President Franklin D. Roosevelt; and there has been no change for the better under the direction of present Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

It is probable, with Joseph Melville Broughton in the gubernatorial mansion, that the State and National Thanksgiving days will be the same.

It probably doesn't make a penny's worth of difference to most Tar Heels whether November 21, November 28, or both or neither is Thanksgiving day, but the refusal of the governor to go along with the President in this respect is typical of their relations.

In short, the only cooperation the Federal government in Washington has had in North Carolina for the past eight years came either from some source or other than the powers-that-were or came rather reluctantly when the State Administration either had to cooperate or lose money.

Neither Ehringhaus nor Hoey was or is, enthusiastic about the President; and neither went even a little bit out of his way to get along with Washington.

Broughton, on the other hand seems to be sincerely sold on Roosevelt. His speeches throughout the recent campaign were more than perfunctory or desecrating endorsements of the New Deal.

There will be a lot of yelling in the General Assembly about "Federal interference" with State affairs; but the howlers are not going to be urged on or applauded by Governor Broughton.

These Women!

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

Alice Marble, America's tennis queen, lives several lives in one. The blonde Californian, who balances four national tennis championship crowns on her sun-tanned brow, expects to handle as many different jobs this winter.

Twice a week during the football season she broadcasts over a New York station (WNEW) a pertinent report of the nation's gridiron events. Friday evenings she forecasts scores of 45 big college games for the coming weekend. Saturdays she compares her predictions with the final scores and describes the games.

ALICE MARBLE

The studio says that so far, she has been right eighty per cent of the time. She is at ease in front of the microphone too—zips along in a breezy style.

Scoring football games comes natural to Alice. She played football with her brothers and learned its fine points from them before she ever touched a tennis racket. The young Marbles used to score football games together by the hour. Now Alice devotes part of her talk to explaining the game's intricacies so women can understand them.

Between broadcasts the girl who now holds more tennis honors than any other woman will lecture in towns in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and New England on "The Will to Win." The talk is aimed at American youth and is based on Alice Marble's creed: "You can do anything you want to, provided you have the will to win and will sacrifice for it."

Come Christmas, Miss Marble will begin a third job. She will appear as a singer for a week's engagement at Loew's State theater on Broadway. This will not be her singing debut—she has appeared previously in New York night clubs—but it's her first Broadway appearance and it gives her a thrill. She will do five shows a day, singing tennis-themed songs written especially for her.

Besides this, she designs tennis clothes for New York and Baltimore sports clothes manufacturers. She really designs too—takes one of the firm's designers with her to tennis games and works out intricate cuts.

Her latest trick is a long-sleeved tennis shirt inspired by a sunburn whose lobster effect embarrassed her last summer when she wanted to sing in evening clothes. She says the long sleeves don't restrict her famous smashing serve.

Between times the hard-hitting queen of the courts finds time for tennis practice. But she recently denied reports that she would add to her activities by turning professional.

There's a big difference between the lean, tomboy who used to play football and baseball and Alice Marble at 27. The champion loves pretty clothes of the semi-sports class, and wears them with dash.

Queen Elizabeth included a bomb splinter that struck Buckingham Palace with the gold cigarette case she sent Mrs. Wendell Wilkie still wears a jeweled elephant pinned on her dark frock over her heart.

Talking Turkey With Mrs. Brown

AP Feature Service
Mrs. C. E. Brown of Littleton, Colo., ought to know a good turkey when she sees it.

She and other members of her family raised 6,000 birds for the 1940 market. They talk turkey at the Brown farm from early spring until the Thanksgiving and Christmas marketing is out of the way.

In the accompanying picture Mrs. Brown points out what she looks for in choosing a turkey for her own table.

In case you have never heard of the "keel" referred to here, it is the long narrow bone on the turkey's under side.

Mrs. Brown prefers a tom (gobbler to you), weighing 20 pounds or more. About the heavier turkeys she says, "They have meat on their bones and fat to make them sweet."

Select Drapes To Set Off Blonds Hair

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Time was when all you considered probably was the color of your hair (and maybe your eyes) in buying the right color clothes. No red for redheads. No green for green eyes.

Today you probably choose a green dress that makes your eyes look greener. That used to be out of the question.

You've had specialists in department stores and beauty salons tell you that there is a shade of red a red-head can wear.

You've learned to avoid white powder and get a powder that blends better with your skin.

Your rouge is supposed to complement not only your skin but your hair and eyes.

Basically your lipstick is chosen according to your type as a red-head, towhead, mouse-colored hair black or brown. And because your skin likely corresponds in tone-color.

But you may be one of the lovely women whose black hair shines above a pale skin. Then you've got to think of that too.

Lately the word has gone around rapidly that your home is at its best if it also has interior decoration according to your color-personality. Your draperies and wall-curtains ought to be the colors that show up your blonde beauty, experts are saying.

For some time you've heard the advice to match your jewels, nail polish or lipstick. And costume jewelry is appearing in powder tints. If you are a blonde with Dresden skin and want to twine pearls in your pompadour, you can get pearls in a rose hue.

amous New York hostess and "best dressed woman" always serves tea with figs. Claire Booth, beautiful blonde playwright and author does all her work with pen and ink because her hard-to-read writing keeps her from wasting time by reading over what she has written.

Suzanne Silvershtys, Belgian sculptress, and Sierd Undset, Norwegian writer, both will lecture in New York this winter. . . . Sonja Henie wears a sparkling diamond cross on her sun-tanned throat.

New York clubs are taking time out from this season's rided parties to study nursing and first aid.

"Tough Fight, Ma! But I Won!" Lomont Colo (AP)—Big game butlers in Colorado are using carrier pigeons to carry home the news when they have made their kill.

"Five bucks, downed by noon," said a message attached to one bird found dead near a Longmont highway "Call Ray's folks." The message-carrying pigeon had struck an electric power line.

To identify children who need further medical attention so that they may see their family physician or dentist, as is needed.

Besides the definite emphasis being placed on health in the physical education classes, a number of social and competitive games are taught, such as, football, basketball, soccer, softball, track and tennis.

Mr. Farley meets with the grammar-grade students of the city on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The program with these young-people is proving extremely valuable as well as popular," declared Mr. Farley, who is likewise emphasizing health throughout the grammar-school program.

"Continued emphasis of health through the physical education department should result in healthier and happier students, who are more and more, capable of carrying on the duties of young citizens. An effective physical education program should develop better citizens for tomorrow," declared Principal V. M. Mulholland, who also stated that he was looking forward to the day when grammar-grade students will have two full-time instructors in health and physical education.

LABOR BUDGET IS PRESENTED

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 14.—The increased appropriations sought by the State Department of Labor are practically all for increased personnel "to do this (and other) job," according to the Department, according to Commissioner Forrest H. Shuford. The estimates submitted to the Advisory Budget Commission list total requirements of the Department for the next two years at $184,243 and $185,357 respectively; but since there will be estimated annual receipts of $70,492 and $70,680, the appropriations asked are $113,751 for the first year of the next biennium and $114,677 for the second.

This compares with an actual expenditure of $80,416 for 1939-40 and estimated expenditures of $130,017 for 1940-41.

In other words, the Department is seeking an increase in appropriations of slightly more than $50,000 a year over current expenses.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The stock market today put on a rally behind steels, coppers and assorted other issues, but encountered enough profit taking to halt the move. Activity was pronounced for a while at the start. Then there was a slowdown and near the fourth hour early gains running to a point or more were substantially reduced or cancelled in many cases.

Mrs. J. J. Ferebee Dies At Home in Shawboro

Word has been received here of the death at 8:15 o'clock last night of Mrs. J. J. Ferebee of Shawboro, mother of Mrs. E. Bruce Beasley of Fountain. Funeral services will be conducted from the home at 11 a. m. Saturday, with burial in the family plot in Elizabeth City cemetery.

Mrs. Ferebee, the widow of the late J. J. Ferebee, is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Beasley, Mrs. Wade Barber of Pittsboro, Mrs. Arthur Brinkley of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. George Howell of Detroit; two sons, Scottie Ferebee and J. J. Ferebee, Jr., of Shawboro.

Roll Out the Sparrow Anderson, S. C. (AP)—Police rushed to a residence here. Someone was breaking in, a frantic voice had said over the telephone. Policemen closed in—and located the intruder in an awning. It was a sparrow suffering from insomnia.

Railway Flare Factory Wrecked By Blast

A policeman surveys damage to a plant at Woodbridge, N. J., which manufactured railway signal and flare equipment and which was leveled by a terrific explosion. Estimates of the number killed in the blast varied but it was known that at least five perished and a score were injured.

Half Million Dollar Fire Sweeps Atlanta Armory

Damage estimated at $500,000 was done by fire which swept a portion of the million dollar armory-auditorium in Atlanta, Ga. Firemen battle the conflagration as flames and smoke leap from windows and roof. Col. T. L. Alexander, commander of the 179th Field Artillery, an aid army equipment valued at $150,000 to $200,000 was destroyed. Mayor W. B. Harrisfield estimated damage to the building at $350,000.

Man About Manhattan

New York—My secretary, Asia, difference between burlesque strip speaks: Dear GT: The Plaza publishing people called to say they were sending you a new crossword puzzle book. And Washington telephoned to say your Social Security Number was 057-10-2784. They didn't mention your draft number, and neither did I. Did I do right?

And, oh yes, Billy Rose dropped in to ask about you and to say he was sure burlesque was dead. He said he didn't have anything against the good, and I am quoting him, hard-working people employed in what's left of burlesque any more than the engineers had personal grudges against the drivers of horse cars. But he went on to say the American people had decided that pay dirt was to be found only in clean shows, with the result that smart and nudgy practitioners were bankrupt in this country.

Well, not after Billy left who do you think walked in? Yep, I. Herk. He said, "If that guy Rose has been in here running down burlesque, and I am quoting 'The Inquirer' he said all you have to do is look at the line of customers in front of the Gaiety." The Gaiety is a burlesque house that carries on all the time, and he wants me to ask you what is the
