SAYS BRITAIN TO FIGHT UNTIL FREEDOM SECURE

Greeks At Outskirts Of Strategic Albanian Post

ARE EXPECTED TAKE KORITZA

Greek Forces Also Declared to Be Making Advances On Retreating Italians In Coastal Sector With Defense Of Another Strategic Base Having Almost Completely Collapsed

Athens, Nov. 21.—(AP) Greek forces were reported to have reached the outskirts of the besieged Italian base city of Koritza in Albania this morning.

At the same time in the coastal sector of the fighting zone, Greek columns were said to be marching rapidly on another Italian base Argirocastro, also in Albania.

Italian resistance in that zone was reported to have collapsed almost totally.

Latest information from the front said the Greeks were within six miles of Argirocastro, which is said to rank equally with Koritza in strategic value.

It was on these two cities that the Italians had based their drive into Greece. Huge stores of war materials had been assembled in both cities.

A thrust through the center of the Italian line, pitting the Fascist forces to hasty flight at a point six miles within Albania, was the previous high spot of Greek success reported today all along the 100-mile battle front from the Ionian sea to Koritza.

Observers in the Koritza sector reported that the Italians were abandoning the city and all outgoing roads were under fire from Greek artillery.

Fights flung over the coastal sector reported that the Italians were retreating in such haste that none were sighted immediately in the path of the advancing Greeks.

Mrs. John L. Heiss of Gulfport, Miss., was chosen to succeed Mrs. Flournoy.

Los Angeles was making the strongest bid for the 1941 convention, which will be the UDC's 48th.

Besides Mrs. Bolling, other general officers re-elected included Mrs. James E. Woodard of Wilson, N. C., second vice president.

Andrews, N. C., Nov. 21.—(AP) Warrants have been issued charging several persons with creating trouble on the Nantahala dam project but no report has been received on the number served. Sheriff A. B. Slagle of Macon county said today.

Several difficulties have been encountered in making the arrests, the sheriff said, adding that several of the accused live in counties other than Macon and several of the men bringing the charges have gone back north.

Meanwhile, the sheriff said, the scene is quiet, although no announcement has been made as to when operations would be resumed.

Labor leaders have said that the trouble started Monday in an effort to oust northerners and thus provide more jobs for natives.

The convention voted to limit the term of president to one year and provide that no officer could succeed himself.

Asheville was selected for the 1941 meeting, to be held in November.

In a report on hospitals, the convention was told by Dr. C. C. Carpenter, dean of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest college, that completion of a $1,000,000 addition to the church hospital at Winston-Salem would put the college's medical school on a par with the best equipped schools in the nation.

Seriously Burned In Starting Fire

Mrs. Mary Manning, formerly of the Red Oak community, but now of the Elm Grove farm near Rocky Mount, was severely burned about the arms and also received a cut on the arm yesterday morning when a five-gallon kerosene can exploded in her hands as she was making a fire preparatory to cooking breakfast.

Her son, Burney Warren Manning, was also burned about the hand, while trying to extinguish the fire from his mother's clothing.

The house and its entire contents, with the exception of some living room furniture, were destroyed by the fire. Forty dollars in currency held in the house also was lost.

TAX REVISION TO BE TALKED

Series of Conferences Arranged by Chief Executive

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Four top congressional tax leaders, it was learned today, have been invited to an informal White House supper with President Roosevelt for the first of a series of conferences expected to result in a general revision of the nation's tax laws to meet national defense expenditures.

The invitations—for the evening of November 25—went to Chairman Harrison (D-Mass.) and Sen. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Finance committee, and Chairman Doughton (D-NC) and Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.) of the House Ways and Means committee.

In addition to taxes, the discussions are expected to include the question of increasing the present $49,000,000 federal debt limit.

Monaghan already has suggested it should be raised to about $65,000,000,000.

GREAT BRITAIN GETS BOMBERS

Bomb Sites Also Go With Shipment Of Long-Range Planes

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Huge long-range bombers and bomb sites to go with them made up to almost any existing target area in Europe. From bases in the British Isles they could strike at any objective within 1,500 miles and then return.

The release of these bombers was made known by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, at a press conference yesterday. He announced that the 26 bombers, originally ordered by the army from the Consolidated Aircraft Company at San Diego, Calif., were being made available for purchase by the British as fast as they came off the production line.

It was his understanding he said that the first of these ships was delivered last Saturday and that the others would be turned over at a steadily increasing rate between now and March 1.

Market Here Closing With Friday's Sales

The Greenville tobacco market today prepared to ring down the curtain on sales for the 1940 season with the end of tomorrow's action after having completed what is regarded as a successful and satisfactory season.

Although this year's crop was shorter than the bumper crop of last year, farmers received higher averages than they did last year.

Many local tobacconists are making plans to leave for Kentucky and Tennessee markets about the first of December.

NAZI ACTIVITY IN US SAID BE FAR-REACHING

Committee Reports Economic Structure Involved

INQUIRY MADE BY DIES GROUP

Activities Attributed To Various German Organizations In U. S. Described In Detail

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Dies committee declared today in a special report on Nazi activities in the United States that the German government has been engaged in a "far-sighted" policy of penetrating the economic structures of the United States and Central and South America.

Making public a 500-page review of the several months of inquiry mostly in New York, the committee said:

"As a result of these investigations it became apparent that the activities of the German government in this country were not devoted solely toward propaganda and so-called military espionage, but also reflect the fact that the German government over a period of years has been engaged in the far-sighted policy of penetrating into the economic structure of this country and those of Central and South America."

"It is true that the evidence before this committee up until the present time is not all conclusive."

Quoting from many documents which it had seized the committee described in detail activities which it attributed to the Trans-Ocean News Service, a German organization, the German Library of Information of New York, the German Railroad Information office of New York and the American Fellowship Forum.

The report also said that the committee had seized in files of the Chemical Marketing Company in New York a plan entitled "The Organization of German Industry in America After the War."

This organization, the committee said, was "typically characteristic of the thoroughness of the German mind and its ability to foresee in great detail future developments."

"The plan lacks nothing in its effectiveness or in detail for the contemplated organization, not merely of industry and trade, but also proposals to combine these spheres of activity with a strong banking institution to underwrite and support the financing of German industry and trade activities."

"The report goes still further, in fact it also contemplates through cultural academic association and circles the cooperation of the professional and academic world banded together in typical front organizations."

The report asserted that the plan showed a "very definite link" with German industrial life by providing that activities in this country should be directed from a bureau to be established in the German ministry in Berlin.

Ten Stills Nabbed In Martin County

Pitt, Martin and Beaufort counties, working in cooperation in an effort to destroy the illicit liquor traffic at its source, yesterday located and destroyed seven stills in Martin county, bringing to 10 the number found in that county this week.

Three stills were found Tuesday by officers of the three counties. These three were near the Pitt-Martin line and officers expressed the belief that most of the liquor made at them was brought into Pitt county.

None of the seven stills found yesterday was in operation, but the operators of each had moved the worms and kettles in an effort to thwart officers in attempts to break up the illicit manufacture of contraband. The 2,400 gallons of beer, several 10-gallon doublers and also several 50-gallon condensing barrels found at the stills were destroyed.

One of the three stills located Tuesday was in operation, but the operators evidently heard the officers coming and tried to flee the scene, leaving a 32 Spru-ell red penetrating rifle. Two of the three stills were of the 50-gallon capacity copper outfits and one was a 55-gallon steam plant.

Birmingham Hard Hit By Nazi Raiders

Heavy shading indicates the area over which German air raiders apparently flew in an assault of English industrial midlands, raining bombs on 14 towns. It was reported a Coventry-like raid was inflicted on Birmingham, munitions-motor car center.

CIO Adopts Resolution Aimed At Dictatorships

CHILD IN PITT WILL GET PONY

To Be Given Away by Merchants Of Greenville

Some Pitt county child will have a pony for Christmas—a gift from the merchants of Greenville.

There are no strings attached to the gift, no requirement to purchase anything. Tickets will be given free by the various members of the Greenville Merchants Association.

The child holding the lucky ticket will be awarded the pony, the drawing to be held at Five Points on the night of December 18.

These tickets may be obtained from the evening of December 2 when stores will be open for patrons to inspect the many Christmas gifts offered this season. Merchants also will give away the tickets during the days of December 6th and 13th—the two Fridays preceding the drawing.

This is only one phase of elaborate plans outlined for the Christmas season by the Merchants Association committee on arranging for the event at a meeting last night.

The Association this year is sponsoring another parade, the evening last year having proved to be a big success. All merchants and other business houses are urged to plan to enter a float in the parade, which will be held on the night of December 2nd, when Greenville merchants will formally open the Christmas shopping season. The parade will start at the Atlantic Coast Line and proceed down Dickinson Avenue to Evans street and then to the Armory, where it will disband. Santa Claus will arrive on his pre-Christmas visit that night and will head the parade and will distribute candy to the children.

Local stores will re-open on the night of December 2 at 7 p. m., and remain open until 9 p. m. The stores, however, will not be opened each evening, but will stay open nights through Christmas eve. Santa Claus will be on the streets each week-day.

In an effort to get local citizens to decorate their business houses and homes, the Merchants Association is offering cash prizes for the best decorated store and home fronts. The prizes will total $150 divided as follows: White homes, first prize $35, second $25, third $15, fourth $10, fifth $5; Colored homes, first prize $15, second $10, third $7.50, fourth $2.50; Store windows and fronts, first prize $10, second $7.50, third $5, fourth $2.50.

Stores and homes will be judged by impartial and competent judges during the week of December 16-21.

Unionists Condemn Communism, Nazism and Fascism

Atlantic City, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Congress of Industrial Organizations adopted today a resolution condemning "the dictatorships and totalitarianism of Nazism, Communism and Fascism as inimical to the welfare of labor and destructive of our form of government."

The resolution, however, did not contain any reference to the proposal of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to bar Communists, Nazis and Fascists from CIO offices.

Thomas Kennedy, as chairman of the Resolutions committee, moved for its adoption as "a plain, simple reaffirmation of the policies of the CIO and John L. Lewis."

"It is not convinced in red-baiting hysteria or witch-hunting," he said.

An overwhelming majority stood up for passage of the resolution after the convention first had voted against throwing the controversial issue open to debate.

Led by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and its president, Sidney Hillman, national defense commissioner since the convention opened Monday for a showdown on the issue of foreign isms. This group, however, also sought to put it into the CIO constitution an amendment barring subscribers to the repudiated doctrines from holding paid CIO offices.

Since the CIO was established here five years ago there have been charges that Communist supporters were active in organizing work.

Meeting Set For Tobacco Farmers

Tomorrow night, at 7 o'clock Pitt county tobacco farmers will attend a mass meeting in the auditorium of the Winterville school to hear a demonstrated lecture on tobacco disease and their control.

Dr. Luther Shaw, plant disease specialist; Dr. Bayer, recently appointed head of the Agronomy department; L. T. Weeks, tobacco extension specialist; and H. B. James of the Farm Management Department at State College, will show pictures and discuss the control of Granville wilt and black shank, both serious tobacco diseases, at the Winterville meeting.

Every tobacco farmer will be interested in this discussion because he is interested in controlling the disease or keeping the disease from gaining a foothold on his farm.

The Pitt county commissioners, the extension service, and tobacco farmers recognize this tobacco disease to be a serious threat and are anxious to initiate a program directed at the control of Granville wilt, Black Shank and other diseases.

Farmers are urged to attend this meeting Friday night at Winterville and take part in the discussion.

Address By King Opens Parliament

Monarch Also Expresses Satisfaction At Increasing Volume Of Munitions Arriving From U. S.; Rumania Expected To Join Axis As Premier Antonescu Arrives In Germany

By The Associated Press
King George opened a new session of Parliament today with solemn assurances the empire would fight "until freedom is made secure," and an expression of satisfaction that "an ever-increasing volume" of munitions is arriving from the United States.

His optimism was echoed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who told the House of Commons Britain hoped to give "a helpful measure of assistance to the Greeks."

In the House of Lords, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax declared Britain had made proposals for a trade agreement with Russia and had "some reason" to believe the proposals would be acceptable.

Parliament opened as Rumania's Premier, General Ion Antonescu and the Rumanian Foreign Minister arrived in Germany, strengthening the belief that Rumania, already dominated by the Nazis, is about to join the Axis alliance.

In Berlin the German high command asserted that German speedboats since the start of the war have sunk six British destroyers and two submarines and other war vessels and also 212,000 tons of merchant shipping.

The Italian high command announced the capture of Britain's new vice commander of the air forces in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, and six other men, four of them officers, who made a forced landing in Sicily, en route to the Near East.

Antonescu has just had conversations with Premier Mussolini, at which observers presumed the ground work was laid for Rumania to follow Hungary into a 10-year military, political and economic pact with Germany, Italy and Japan.

This diplomatic activity on the part of the Axis was seen as aimed at Britain—by forming an Axis highway to the borders of Greece and Turkey, possibly for a thrust at the Near Eastern oil fields and the Suez Canal.

The Germans continued their unrelenting air war on Britain, concentrating for the second straight night on the industrial midlands but fierce anti-aircraft fire was reported to have taken the edge off the assault and the British described the night's attack as "intermittent and on a minor scale."

London had an all-night air raid alarm, but there were long periods without Nazi air activity.

Renew Attempts Revise Labor Act

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Advocates of changes in the Wagner Labor Relations act gained ground today with an announcement by Chairman Thomas (E-Utah) that the Senate Labor committee would consider a group of house-approved amendments next week.

The House voted early last June in favor of making 15 changes in the disputed law, but the amendments since have been gathering dust in the Senate committee.

Thomas disclosed that Senator Taft (R-Ohio) had renewed a demand first made in September that the committee take up the suggested changes in the law.

The cast has been carefully trained by Clifton Britton, the director, to sustain the suspense as necessary to this play, and the audience is kept guessing as to the identity of the master criminal, "The Skull," who gets himself involved in the study of psychic phenomena being carried on in a deserted church in a lonely countryside.

The sets, designed by William Harris of Greenville, and the unusual lighting, worked out by Fenly Egan, contribute greatly to the mood of the play.

Mrs. Rawl Hostess. Mrs. E. E. Rawl was hostess to the Ladies of the Round Table at a delightful meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Beautiful chrysanthemums in attractive arrangement decorated the home on Pitt street. After a brief business session, Mrs. Herbert Re Barker, chairman of the program committee, presented Mrs. Howard McChinnis, who gave a most interesting and enlightening paper on "Australia," covering the climatic conditions and the industrial and social life of the people who live there. Her paper was well prepared and was greatly enjoyed.

The wedding will be solemnized on Saturday, December 28.

The autumn motif was artistically observed in the decorations of the home. Vases holding beautiful chrysanthemums in beautiful fall hues, were used on the occasional tables and mantels in the spacious living room and library, where bridge tables were set for play.

At the close of the games, Mrs. Onwell Brown was presented the high score award, and Miss Virginia Clark the low.

During the refreshment hour the tables were centered with miniature wedding cakes, each bearing the betrothal announcement in the decorative icing.

The cake on the table of the honoree was topped with a bride and groom.

A delicious ice course in a green and white color note was served.

The hostesses remembered the bride-elect with ice tea glasses in her selected pattern of crystal.

land is the play which will be given. Mrs. Toll then explained about the Art classes which Miss Ogburn is teaching at the Community Art Center. All were urged to attend.

Mrs. Moore then made several announcements of interest to members. One was that Dr. Blanche Wilde, an outstanding child psychologist, is to be in North Carolina. A committee composed of Mrs. Gullede, Miss Tunstall and Miss Hyman was appointed to see about getting her to come to Greenville.

Mrs. Dink James, representing the Music committee of the Woman's Club, then announced that beginning next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, the club would sponsor a community sing at the Woman's Clubhouse. Mr. Louis Bullock will direct the singing. All members were urged to attend and try in all ways to make a success.

Mrs. L. A. Stroud gave a most interesting review of Edna Ferber's book, "A Peculiar Treasure."

This book though called Miss Ferber's autobiography, is more a treatment of the Jewish race by the nations of the world. The problem of the Jewish persecution from the earliest days make up the story. Edna Ferber is a Jewess and is very much interested in the answer to the question of why Jews are so persecuted.

The four points that Mrs. Stroud brought out especially were: (1) Miss Ferber's version of her religion—"God is Good. The Good is God;" (2) her interpretation of life in the last 25 or 40 years. She has enjoyed the three-ring circus of our times. She gave a rather good history of the growth of modern discoveries; (3) the persecution of the Jewish race. The world knows so little about the religion of the Jews and of course think of them as heathen. She asks these questions to make us think: Where are the German Jews? Where is Albert Einstein? She puts in a plea that the continent of North America not go as the dictator nations have gone. North America is a new land where the Jews may come and not be persecuted. She pays high tribute to President Roosevelt. Miss Ferber asks us to think how we would feel if we were as Baptists, Methodists or Presbyterians should be driven out of our homeland without one penny. We would then begin to know how the Jews feel under persecution, especially in the dictator nations.

Mrs. Stroud then gave a very splendid history of the Jewish race from Abraham on down to now and how Abraham and his people were given the promised land, how they were persecuted by the Pharaohs in Egypt and how Moses led them back to the promised land. Even after three thousand years the Jews have never lost their identity, they have withstood persecutions of all kinds but have prospered in numbers and in other ways. We think of the Jews as pictured by Shakespeare's Shylock and other writers rather than as people who have made such marvelous contributions to our civilization. There are four and a half million Jews in the United States. They have made good citizens, have served in high places of the country and have given their children a good education because they know that it cannot be taken away from them. They have never had a nation of their own.

We owe our law, order, and even our homes today to the Jews. They have given to the world the greatest book, the Bible, the greatest man, Christ, and the greatest religion, Christianity.

Miss Elizabeth England gave a short review of the news of the day. She especially brought out that the German civilian morale seemed to be shaken. The questions left to think about were: can civilian morale be kept up without all victory? can defeat keep up their courage?

At the close of the program delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mother-Daughter Banquet

On November 19, the third year home economics class celebrated their regular mother-daughter banquet for the third time since it was organized in 1937. This occasion gave the mothers an opportunity to get acquainted with the teachers and students, and see what the girls have done in home economics. The home economics department is under the management of Miss Mildred Beeton of Kingston. The program and menu for the occasion were as follows: Welcome—Novella Mills. Poem—Betty Frances Riggs. Thanksgiving—Ella Mae Mills. Marriage as a career—Mrs. N. Lewis. Song—by the group. Speech—Miss Mable Lacy of E. C. T. C. Two musical selections were rendered by the "Swing Canary" of Chicod. They were "The Three Little Fishes" and "Oh, Johnny, Oh." The menu consisted of grape cocktail, baked turkey, cranberry sauce, dressing, green peas, mashed potatoes, hot rolls, butter, ice cream, cake, coffee, salted pecans. This was a merry occasion for both young and old.

Negro Admits Theft From Filling Station

Andrus Manning, Negro of the Winterville section, is being held on charges of robbing the R. L. Abbott filling station in the Rinston section and members of the sheriff's department declared today that he had confessed the charge. The robbery occurred on the night of November 13. Officers declared they were conducting an investigation on the probability that he is connected with other recent robberies.

WILSON'S Thanksgiving HELPS BY George Rector Food Consultant Wilson & Co.

Because Thanksgiving has a bad habit of swooping down on homemakers before they're quite ready, I suggest that it isn't a bit too soon to start planning your turkey dinner. You might, in fact, thumb-tack this column up in your kitchen and then watch for the Wilson Column early next week in which your correspondent gives you further hints on how to turn out a brilliantly successful feast for your family and guests.

Thanksgiving Hints to Remember A new note for your turkey is to serve it on slices of Wilson's Tender Made Ham. Delectious! Stuffing the turkey at least a day ahead makes for better flavor and leaves you with a fuss-free holiday. ONLY WILSON & CO. MAKES TENDER MADE HAM

CUT-DON'T MELT-BUTTER For lighter, fluffier dressing, cut the butter into marble-sized pieces and toss it through the bread crumbs with two forks. The flavor of the butter is important. Use a delicately flavored butter like Clear Brook.

GOOD-BYE, MR. COVER I have always found that it is better to roast a turkey in an open roaster. Use a moderate (350° F.) oven and bake slowly. And to protect your reputation as a fine cook, order Wilson's Certified Turkeys. It is not too early to order one now from your dealer. You'll find these plump meaty turkeys roast to mouth-watering tenderness.

OLD-FASHIONED PUMPKIN PIE We found at Rector's, that when it came to Thanksgiving desserts, the sophisticates forsook all others for Pumpkin Pie a La Rector. Cut 3/4 cup Wilson's Certified All-Purpose Shortening into 2 1/2 cups of sifted cake flour. Dissolve 1 teaspoon salt in about 3/4 cup cold water and add to flour mixture, stirring with a fork until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Roll out half of this recipe and line a pie dish. Bake partially about 8 minutes. Fill with your favorite pumpkin pie filling and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for one hour. N. B. Better make two pies while you are at it. And may friends and family make it a happy day!

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE CAN LOSE ITS LUSTER

It is possible to buy material with which to clean wall paper. But have you ever noticed that after wall paper is cleaned, it never looks just as it did at first? The cleaning process takes off the luster. Whereas when it was fresh the colors and figures in the paper stood out in unmistakable fashion, now that the wall paper has been cleaned, they seem in some way to have become dull. The luster has departed.

There are people who insist that young folks should sow their wild oats. The experience is supposed to make them better able to handle temptation in later years. What the proponents of such a policy fail to realize, however, is that giving in to an evil passion does not rid us of the desire to indulge it, but deepens our pre-disposition to do so. Furthermore, they fail to realize that a life once beset with lust has lost something of its luster, no matter how thoroughly it may be cleansed in later years. Even those redeemed by the grace of Christ look back with sadness upon those experiences which corrupted their lives in former days. Paul the aged saint declared that he was not worthy to be called an apostle because he had persecuted the Church of God.

The best policy is to keep the life clean. Some of the original luster is sure to be lost in the cleansing process. Self-restraint today pays satisfying dividends on many tomorrows.

IRELAND STILL REFUSES BASES FOR ENGLAND

Despite the fact that England is forced to patrol Irish waters at great cost and difficulty, Premier De Valera of the Irish Free State reaffirmed his nation's neutrality recently and stated that there can be no question of handing over or leasing Irish ports to Britain as long as Eire remains neutral. The old traditional hatred of everything British apparently still haunts Eire and prevents it from cooperating with England in a fight as important for the preservation of Irish liberty as for the survival of Britain.

This refusal places England in an almost intolerable position. The Royal Navy must patrol the sea around Ireland for its own protection. Yet the Irish cling to an agreement, made during the late Neville Chamberlain's days as Prime Minister, in which the British gave up all lights to naval bases in Irish harbors. For this reason, English warships must conduct their patrol and convoy operations off the coast of Ireland without harbor facilities close by, and must take long, expensive trips to home bases for refueling and to get ammunition, food stores, and other supplies. When Eire first gained its freedom, England retained the right to use certain Irish harbors for naval purposes. Later, when Mr. Chamberlain magnanimously gave up this right, present Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned that the action could easily prove disastrous to the Empire. He pointed out that England would probably have lost the first World War if it had not used Irish ports for bases in operations to the west of the British Islands.

Adolf! What Do I Do Now?

PHOENIX REPUBLIC AND GAZETTE SYNDICATE REG-MANNING

De Valera's attitude likewise reflects the will of a majority of the Irish people. Probably it will not change as long as Hitler's agents are allowed to swarm over Dublin and other important Irish cities. There is little doubt but what the agents, working openly, have contributed much toward keeping alive the traditional Irish hatred of all things British.

There is a realistic group in Eire that sees the folly of this attitude and favors cooperation with the British while still retaining at least the outward semblance of neutrality. They point out that while Britain fights their battles, the least they can do is to offer harbor facilities for ships being used to protect them.

But Premier De Valera muffed an opportunity to join the forces of freedom when he reaffirmed the Irish policy of not allowing the British Navy entrance into Irish ports. If Hitler ever does succeed in his threatened invasion of England, Ireland may fall first. The Irish Free State would offer an excellent base for the big putsch against England, and the Irish may yet fall under the iron rule of Nazi Germany through failure to grant a small favor to its protector. — (Scottish Rite News).

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson

Washington.—The most embarrassing thing that has happened to a No. 158 that I know of happened right here in Washington—or at least just across the District line in one of the suburbs. He is 23 years old. His family is prominent in the community and comparatively well off. He was something of a football hero and just about a perfect physical specimen. He always has been quite a favorite in the neighborhood. When Secretary of War Stimson plucked 158 out of the selective service fish bowl and made him No. 1 selective in his district and the lad announced that he was proud and ready to go immediately, the neighborhood went into an orgy of patriotism. The young man was wined and dined. The American Legion post gave a banquet in his honor. So did the D. A. R. He made speeches at the high school and the nearby college he had attended. He spoke solemnly from the pulpit of his church. His girl gave a romantic touch to the hysteria by announcing they were engaged to be married. Immediately after Johnny comes back from training. It went on for weeks.

Lost His Turn
Finally the lad made a visit to his local board to find out just how soon he would be called—and discovered that 52 selectees in his district had volunteered, had been classified and under the rules of selective service, had been given induction numbers ahead of his. The chances are Johnny won't be called before next summer, if then—and no amount of pleading or pull can get him ahead of the boys over whom no fuss was made—the suits who enlisted and were found suitable for Class 1-A and immediate call. Johnny's only chance of escaping the fates of his pals while he waits around to be called is to enlist and get accepted—for three years' service—in the regular army. At least that's what the selective service officials tell me.

This enlistment of selectees by the hundreds of thousands has, by the way, borne out a prediction passed along in these columns many weeks ago, namely, that first year "calls" from the army will get very few, if any, selectees who haven't enlisted, no matter what their order numbers are. One draft official told me recently that he estimates more than 400,000 selectees or men desiring to get into the regular armed forces had enlisted or applied to their local boards for immediate induction since selective service became a certainty. And that he believes present trends indicate this many more will be on the rolls by the time the army is ready for them. One of the principal reasons for enlistments by selectees, draft officials find, is that young men just out of college and not yet started on their professional careers are eager to get it over with before they take a turn at making their marks in the world. Although no check has been made, it is thought that by far the greater number of selectees applying for immediate induction are young doctors, dentists, lawyers, engineers and tyros in other professions.

Another Rush Seen
Another rush of these young graduates to the colors is expected as soon as the colleges close their first term sessions in January. Practically an avalanche of enlistments is anticipated when the school year ends in June. An interesting paradox which has put puzzled furrows in the heads of army and draft officials is that although they have sought, by all means of publicity, to make army life as attractive as possible, they have had to do everything in their power to prevent until the army can handle them that rush to the colors that invariably comes with patriotic hysteria.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY: Somebody has killed Aunt Maggie, and ruined the house. The Bill is going to celebrate Bob and Claire's engagement—not to mention the damage to Aunt Maggie. Now Sally has come downstairs to investigate on her own, and with Kirk, another woman who had been left on guard, to explore the downstairs. But finding no clues.

Chapter 14 Crash in The Dark

Kirk strode forward, at the same time telling me to go back to the library. "Who's there?" he called. I did go back to the library, but only to arm myself with the brass poker from the fireside. Then I rushed after Kirk, who was exploring the breakfast room.

As we opened the door into the passageway, we caught a fleeting glimpse of white, and it was all that I could do to suppress a scream. But it was only Plutarch. How had he got out of that room again? Yes, the door was open. But we found no one inside. Of course, someone could have entered the office by the passageway door and have made his exit through the door opening directly from the office into the breakfast room and thence into the front hall or out the back door.

Or, entering from the breakfast room into the office, he could have come out into the passageway and have gone upstairs, downstairs, out the back door or back into the breakfast room from the passage. Heavens, what a place that passageway became, when you considered all its possibilities.

Kirk and I opened doors and listened, but heard not a sound. Once again Plutarch was firmly put back into his lair. We returned to the library by way of the kitchen and dining room but still saw no evidence to indicate that anyone had been about recently. "Thank heaven, we both saw it," I said, as I replaced the poker. Kirk joked about my weapon and at the same time reproved me from running into unknown dangers. "Or perhaps," he said, "it was who changed his mind or he who changed his mind."

But discussion of this possibility got us nowhere, for why should anybody—a member of the house party, that is—mind running into any other member of the house party? "I must go," I said, inspired with new urgency at the thought of some strange person wandering around opening doors, for Bill's door was unlocked.

"Wait a minute," Kirk cautioned, his voice dropping almost to a whisper. "Did you hear anything?" We strained our ears against the beat of the rain, the lash of the wind. "I'll be back in a moment," said Kirk. "I'll take the flashlight instead of the lamp, so my approach won't be so obvious. Don't go moving around now and get me mixed up. Stay right here."

He went out through the dining room doorway and, scarcely breathing a word waiting for his return, I didn't like being there alone. Suppose the murderer came? Suppose Kirk was really the murderer, after all?

How long I entertained myself with such gruesome imaginings I do not know, but suddenly reality became rampant with the most horrible rattle I have ever heard. It came from the hall, just outside the library door; and if all the demons of the netherworld had been unleashed there and begun playing football with the furniture, the noise—to my excited ears—could not have been greater, or the effect more demoralizing.

Bill Again
As I stood, literally frozen in my tracks, I was certain all that horrible commotion in the hall could mean only one thing: The forces of good and evil had come together in mortal combat.

There, just outside the door, was the answer to all the incredible things I had heard. I saw a man in the middle of what I perceived to be a struggle. I was ever so going on, and trying to look, I practically fainted when he came charging in from the dining room.

"What the hell?" he spluttered, when he saw me standing there like Lot's wife turned to salt. "Are you all right, Sally?" There was a final crash in the hall, followed by what sounded like a great splintering of glass. Then, as the reverberation died down, there was a moment of dreadful silence when the whole house seemed as quiet as the grave, waiting to give up its dead.

Before I could open my mouth to answer Kirk's question, this silence was broken by sound of a human groan, and I grabbed onto Kirk's arm as he strode toward the door. Then the air got thick with profanity, which I recognized with horror as coming from Bill, who was demanding to know who in the blankety-blank-blank had moved the hall lamp.

Kirk and I, already nearly to the door, exchanged guilty glances. For when he had taken the hall lamp to the drawing room Kirk had failed to replace it and had carried it on to the library, where the other lamp already stood on the mantel.

job is now in the bag for the Cleveland and at least one well-informed state official says in private and "off the record" conversation that there will be "only one candidate" before the caucus. While he doesn't say so, there's no mistaking that he means Mull will be the man.

From time to time there have been upsets in the political field almost as startling as Carolina's was over Duke last Saturday, but they have been few and far between; and it now appears that if Mull is beaten it will be just such an upset. Those who make them will not permit their names to be used for quotation, and your reporter would legislator, but this time they all went Democrats. Every time anti-diversionists read election returns they yearn for some way to submit the question to North Carolina's voters, as it seems that the automobile owners, who now comprise or influence a vast majority of the electorate, almost invariably pile up the ballots against use of highway revenues for any purpose other than highway construction or maintenance. Three states voted in November. All adopted anti-diversion amendments. In Idaho their margin was three to one, in Nevada it was nearly five to one, and in South Dakota it was "substantial," with the anti-diversion amendment the only one to win, though several were voted upon. In all eleven states now have adopted anti-diversion amendments. Despite this, it seems highly improbable that there will be any major effort in the 1941 General Assembly to adopt an act submitting the matter to the people.

Duke And State To Mix At Durham In Week's Feature

UNC WILL MIX WITH VIRGINIA

State Hopes to Establish All-Time Scoring Record

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 21.—Although outscored by five points per game by the Duke Blue Devils, whom they meet Saturday at 2 p. m. in Duke Stadium in Durham, N. C., the North Carolina State College Boys have high hopes of establishing an all-time scoring record for North Carolina State College.

The Country Boy Wolfpack has managed to score at least a touchdown in every game played this year. This feat equals the eight-game scoring streak of the eight-game State team, which, until the current outfit crossed pay dirt in last week's game with The Citadel has stood as a 42-year-old record.

Saturday the lads of Coach Williams (Doc) Newton will be up against one of the finest defensive teams in the nation—a team that has allowed only five and four-fifths points per game and a team that is known for developing airtight defense situations.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 21.—North Carolina, which was good enough to beat Duke 6-3 but was upset by Richmond's aerial circus 14-13, is due for another dose of Virginia's famed aerial warfare at Charlottesville Saturday, and is accordingly priming its anti-aircraft for a regular blitzkrieg.

The Tar Heels' Lalanne, Severin, Austin, et al, who mixed lightning ground and air sorties brilliantly in their 75-yard victory march through Duke, are supposed to be something of a passing team themselves, but if you ask Scouts Langre, Jamerson, and Radman the Carolina folks haven't seen anything yet!

Where Lalanne has scored six touchdowns and pitched two, Virginia's great Bill Dudley has run for five and tossed eight. And where the All-American Severin tops Carolina's receivers with 12 catches for 139 yards, Virginia's Gianakos has 18 for 269, Bryant 17 for 187, and White 15 for 216.

As a result, all the signs today pointed to a brilliant contest between Carolina ground and Virginia air power. However, the Cavaliers also have a very speedy and tricky running attack led around Dudley, Bryant, and Neustetter, which doubles and complicates the Tar Heel task.

Wake Forest, N. C., Nov. 21.—North Carolina's Thanksgiving gridiron menu will list only two Big Five teams in action, and these against Southern Conference foes. The Deacons of Wake Forest will entertain South Carolina's Gamecocks in Charlotte and Davidson's Wildcats will be at Wilmington meeting the Citadel's Cadets.

November 23 will be a big day in Southern Conference football with three big games on the card. Virginia, a non-conference club, meets North Carolina at Charlottesville; Duke and N. C. State tackle in Durham, with Furman and Clemson locking horns at Clemson.

In view of this schedule arrangements for the season's final games, it appears that the gridiron fans will have ample opportunity to see their favorites in action without a major conflicting game.

The Deacons and South Carolina, tough rivals the past two campaigns are expected to put on a trip shorter at Charlotte, even though Wake Forest will be favored to win.

What great reward these teachers need for contributing to the development and happiness for the community and to these boys and girls with whom they work.

It must be remembered that in small communities and from quiet nooks of the world come the purest and strongest. And as someone has said, the nation marches forward on the feet of little children, seemingly these teachers think it a most happy privilege to direct their lives into useful pathways.

New York—Rags Ragland, Pat Harrington and Frank Hyers have been around a long time, and they know all about Broadway, but it wasn't until "Panama Hattie" came along that the big stem set up and began to take notice of them.

Being comedians, this is easily explained. Broadway under any circumstances is a tough nut to crack but comedians have a more difficult time than others. Fewer comedians get the chance to test their comic powers than actors of any other classification. Just why, I am unable to explain. But it is true. If you glance back through the records of the last ten years you will find no more than three new arrivals whose antics have pleased the public to any considerable extent. They were Danny Kaye, Abbott and Costello, and Phil Silvers. Now Rags and his cronies edge into the picture.

In "Panama Hattie" they are three dumb but energetic gobs thinking only in terms of "dames." They fear only the penalties that await misbehaving sailors. They are in the light of their new success, the happiest triumvirate of zanies in New York.

Rags himself is a graduate of the old burlesque seminaries, where he has clocked through 11 years. Once before, in an inferior production known as "Who's Who," he appeared briefly. Buddy DeSylva remembered this bit, and summoned him by telegram from Chicago for the new role. It was a happy hunch. Pat and Frank move into the legitimate big time from the small crowded floors of the Manhattan night clubs. Their work has something of the recklessness of "The Front Page." Pat did have one other brief appearance on Broadway—he was with Helen Hayes in "Ladies and Gentlemen" last winter. But it was only a bit, and the play was not a dramatic success.

These three move through "Panama Hattie" with the unpredictable impulse of a fever chart. Their comedy is sometimes low but it is always hilarious. It makes people laugh long and loud, in sudden and frequent bursts. All that, I think is all the justification they need.

In a recent screen we described Gladys Simmons as wearing a "candy-stick" dress. That's how it seemed to us. Now comes this correction: "She wore a new model electric blue gown with velvet top, fitted with short puff sleeves, the skirt divided at the waist, revealing a bare midriff. The skirt is very full and she wore a layer of petticoats, one ruffled rose taffeta and the other ruffled organza."

In any case, she sure looked pretty.

NO SENIORS IN FRIDAY'S TILT

Pirates To Present Preview Of Future Grid Teams

By BURTON DANIELS
The East Carolina Pirates will give a preview of years to come out on College field tomorrow afternoon, as there is not a single senior slated to see action with the starting eleven against the Apprentice school eleven from Norfolk.

Captain Walter Rogers, who ran up the impressive total of twenty seven consecutive quarters before having to leave the High Point game with a back injury will not be able to go against the Apprentice outfit. He will leave a gap in the forewall that will be sorely missed by the Christenburmen, but Stuart Tripp has been coming along fast during the season and is ready to step in and play a bang up game.

Rogers, prior to this game had and that for about 2 minutes at the half of the Western Carolina game. Transferred to center at the beginning of the season he took to the position like a duck to water and played the post in bang up fashion. The big senior will be sorely missed in there, and it is deplorable that he can not be in there Saturday leading his boys for their final game.

With the exception of Rogers, the squad is at the highest peak of the season for tomorrow's tilt, and they have cause to feel that they have a tough one coming up for they will be outwheeled by several pounds per man both in the line and in the backfield, with experience on the side of the visitors. All injuries on the squad have responded to treatment, and Murray, Schuerholz, McFee, and other injured members of the squad are in top fettle. The man to watch in tomorrow's tilt is Evans, it could be that he is ready to break away with the running that he is capable of. The practice sessions this week have indicated that this might be the case.

BAD APPLES

You'll probably find a few bad apples in every bushel.
That's the way it is with beer retailing.

There are several thousand wholesome, law-abiding retail beer establishments in North Carolina. But there is a handful of undesirable, anti-social outlets that reflect discredit upon the entire beer industry.

The Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee aims to eliminate every anti-social retailer. During the past 18 months its "clean up or close up" program, in cooperation with law-enforcement authorities, has forced out of business 133 dealers who refused to operate according to the high standards demanded by public sentiment and by the legalized brewing industry.

You can help in this important work by restricting your patronage to reputable beer dealers.

Farmers Urged To Plan War On Blue Mold Now

Raleigh, Nov. 21.—It may seem to be the wrong time of the year to start talking about blue mold, the scourge of tobacco plant beds. But Howard R. Garriss and Don Ellis, Extension plant pathologists, want tobacco growers to begin now to consider control methods for this dreaded disease.

The State College specialists announced today the summary of results of blue mold control demonstrations conducted last spring by tobacco growers in 13 counties. The most effective control method, the report shows, was fumigation of the plant beds with paradichlorobenzene crystals. The red copper oxide spray, used by numerous farmers, also gave reasonably good results.

The average of 28 demonstrations conducted with the P. D. B. fumigation method showed that plants were pulled from the treated beds about 5 1/2 days earlier than untreated beds. At the time of the first pulling, an average of 3,474 more plants were pulled per 100 square yards from the treated than from the untreated (check) beds. An average of 12,929 more plants were pulled per square yard of plant bed space from the fumigated areas than from the untreated beds. The red copper oxide spray treatments in six demonstration plant beds resulted in an increase of 2,045 plants pulled per 100 square yards of treated bed space at the first pulling, and 4,827 for the season.

The P. D. B. treatment is effective after blue mold has appeared in the plant bed, while the spray is chiefly a preventive and must be applied when the disease first appears in the community, but before it reaches the plant bed to be treated.

Fine Cattle Placed With Farmers In Pitt

A truck load of grade Hereford and Shorthorn beef heifers were selected in Buncombe and Yancey counties for five producers in Pitt county. C. D. Griggs, assistant farm agent, assisted with the placement of six heifers with J. R. Carroll of Winterville, seven heifers with F. C. Martin of Bethel, five heifers with F. M. Kilpatrick of Ayden, two heifers with Alvin McArthur, and two with W. O. Moore of Greenville.

Most of all of these 22 heifers will be bred to purebred Hereford bulls. Farmers are interested in beef cattle as a supplement to cotton and tobacco.

There is an abundance of roughage, grain (corn and cottonseed meal) and fine sorgho to produce great crops for cattle in Pitt county. Producers find it very practical to keep enough cattle to consume surplus feed and those who make the mistake of carrying more cattle than they have feed for certainly pay for their experience.

More farmers will come to recognize the value of livestock (cattle, hogs, poultry, sheep, and workstock) as a means of marketing feed. It is important for farmers to get a fair price for so many pounds of pork, beef, poultry, etc., but it is more important for that price to represent a good return for the feed that was consumed in producing a pound of meat. For after all livestock is a machine for converting feed into a product which can be marketed to the best advantage.

Dies Says Report Will Have Effect

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rep. Martin Dies (D-Tex) chairman of the committee investigating un-American activities, said today he believed the "effectiveness of Nazi activity in the United States would be destroyed" as the result of the committee's special report just released in Washington.

Describing the report as "unique in American history," Dies said it would focus the spotlight of publicity on various organizations and leaders engaged in un-American activities, thereby rendering useless their existence in this country.
