NO INCREASES TO BE LEVIED IN 1940 TAXES

Individuals And Corporations Given Assurance

BOOST SEEN FOR 1940, HOWEVER

Both President And Congressional Leaders Promise No Further Retroactive Levies On Incomes

Washington, Nov. 30. (AP)—The nation's millions of income taxpayers, both big corporations and plain citizens, were assured by President Roosevelt and congressional finance experts today that they need expect no further increase in their tax bills in 1940.

While sharp increases designed to help meet defense-swelled expenditures appeared to be almost certain for the taxes on 1941 incomes, Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Senate Finance committee announced that further retroactive taxes on this year's income were out of the picture.

This was decided, Harrison said at a conference which the President held last night with Treasury officials and leaders of interested congressional committees.

It means that the basic 24 per cent corporation income tax rate and the graduated levy on individual incomes starting at 4 1/2 per cent will stand.

Harrison said that early in January congressional committees will begin work on legislation affecting 1941 incomes. It is generally believed that many tax rates will go up when that measure is enacted.

The size of the increases probably will not be determined finally until after the March 15 income tax returns are in. Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee and another of the presidential conferees, said present estimates of the revenue to be produced then are "encouraging."

Club Is Addressed By Local Pastors

Two local ministers addressed the Greenville Kiwanis club last night, both talks being Thanksgiving messages. The two pastors, Rev. Clarence Patrick of Immanuel Baptist church and Dr. R. S. Boyd of the Presbyterian church, are members of the club.

Rev. Mr. Patrick called attention to some of the things for which he has to be thankful, while Dr. Boyd warned that we were tending to commercialize not only Thanksgiving Day, but other holidays.

The program was presented by the Committee on Support of Churches, of which Berry Bostic is chairman and J. Nat Harrison and B. W. Moseley are members.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors, program committee and special committee in charge of Teachers Night it was decided to postpone the annual event from next Friday night as originally scheduled until the second meeting in January, which will be January 10.

The postponement was decided on because of the fact that the Garden club will be holding its annual Christmas show at the Woman's club building. The regular Kiwanis meeting will hold next Friday.

Deputy Sheriff R. W. King was a guest at last night's meeting.

U. S. Will Grant China $100,000,000 In Credits

TO ASK MEANS TO AID CHINA

Treasury Would Use Part Of Stabilization Fund

Washington, Nov. 30.—(AP) The Treasury is expected to ask the Senate Banking committee Monday for informal approval of a plan to use a portion of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to bolster the sagging currency of China's Chungking government.

A committee "OK" also may be sought, informed legislators said, for operation of the fund to support the currency of certain Latin-American countries if that move becomes necessary to insure the success of hemisphere defense plans.

Secretary Morgenthau made arrangements to appear before the committee at a closed session on what was described guardedly by some members as "important business." One senator said that there was little doubt that the Chinese and Latin-American proposals would be submitted at that time.

Neither need congressional approval for confirmation, but senators recalled that more than a year ago Morgenthau said he would not extend the field then covered by operations of the stabilization fund without first revealing his plans to the committee.

ABANDON HOPE FOR ENTOMBED MEN AT MINE

Twenty-Eight And Possibly 32 Dead In Ohio Pits

UNION LEADER BRINGS CHARGE

Declares Catastrophe Would Not Have Occurred If Proper Inspection And Regulations Afforded

Cadiz, Ohio, Nov. 30.—(AP)—At least 28—perhaps 32—miners entombed by a devastating explosion in one of Ohio's largest coal pits, were given up for dead today.

"There is no question but that all are dead," said John Owens, Ohio district United Mine Workers president, who charged "this catastrophe could have been prevented if we had adequate inspection and regulation of mines."

Workers in section "12 North" of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company's huge mine northeast of here were entombed yesterday afternoon by the blast. About 100 other men fled safely.

While Owens and the miners attributed the explosion to gas, company officials said they could not comment on the cause, pending a more thorough investigation. Company spokesmen pointed out, however, that the region is dotted with abandoned oil deposits.

Ohio Industrial Commission officials on the scene said the mine used approved equipment.

After one body was found—that of a man who had the best chance to escape—wary rescue crews abandoned frantic emergency efforts to reach the blasted chamber. Aided by mechanical hoists, they began a methodical "cleaning up" of all debris in their path.

M. Spiecher, mine personnel director, listed 28 missing, including his brother, Pete, and said "four more names may be added" to the total. Pete's broken body was the first to be brought to the surface.

To Accept Few On One-Year Service

Atlanta, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Fourth Corps Area officials announced today that 482 men in the eight states of the area would be permitted to enlist in the army for one year instead of three, to help bring the 30th division, now in training at Fort Jackson, S. C., to full strength.

So far as they knew, army officials said, this is the only relaxation the army has permitted of its rule that the regular recruits must enlist for three years.

The 30th division, composed of National Guard units from Georgia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, has a present strength of about 13,000 men and needs roughly 4,000 more to attain full strength.

Coast Guardsmen from the Elizabeth City and Fort Macon stations joined the searchers today.

PARADE IS SET MONDAY NIGHT

What has every indication of being one of the biggest parades staged in Greenville in years will officially usher in the Christmas season here Monday night.

Led by the High School band and with Old Santa himself occupying a conspicuous space and with candy for the kiddies, the parade will get started from the Atlantic Coast Dickinson avenue to Evans and thence to the Armory where it will disband.

Mrs. Cora S. Powell, executive secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association, which organization is sponsoring the pre-Christmas program, declared today that at least 20 or 25 firms had agreed to enter floats in the parade, thereby insuring one of the best staged here in some time.

FEAR SPREADS OVER RUMANIA

Civil War Threatened As Iron Guardist Continue Reign Of Terror; Disinterred Bones Of Founder Carried Through Streets; Japan And Nanking Government Sign Peace Treaty

The disinterred bones of Corneliu Codreanu, founder of the Rumanian Iron Guard who was slain two years ago, were carried in a gold coffin through the streets of Bucharest today in a funeral procession ominous in its solemnity in the absence of King Mihai.

For the young king was reported to have fled from the city as reports spread that the Iron Guardists would use this day for further bloody revenge against the men who killed Codreanu in the regime of the king's father, the abdicated Carol II.

Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini were importantly represented in the funeral procession, which was led by Premier General Ion Antonescu.

On the other side of the world, in Nanking, Japan and the Nanking government, which it endorsed signed a peace treaty with the 40-months war in China.

Japanese machineguns and warplanes guarded the ceremony, but peace was still remote since the pact recognizing President Wang Ching-wei's regime as the national government of China did not affect the activities of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who was still carrying on against the invaders.

Strict censorship veiled the reported disorders in Rumania, where heavy casualties were said to have taken place. Rumanian and German troops were reported massing in Bucharest.

Carried through the streets with Codreanu's bones were those of 12 of his comrades killed two years ago today when, guards charged, they tried to escape.

Their bodies were exhumed Wednesday when the Iron Guards killed 64 members of the old regime and started the reign of terror which frontier dispatches hinted had brought Rumania to the verge of civil war.

In the battle of Britain, German fighter bombers roared toward London today, but visibility was poor and only a few raiders broke through the British defenses.

The formal recognition of the Wang regime by the Japanese was believed by some observers to be a move designed to give the appearance that the "China incident" was closed and prepare the public at home for a possible drive southward toward the rich East Indies.

German bombers roared over one district of London last night at the rate of one every 30 seconds and Nazis said 400 tons of explosives and 36 tons of incendiaries were dropped. A wide area of the city was reported to have suffered demolished homes and buildings as rescue workers dug today for victims in the wreckage.

Movies Bolster Britain's Morale. The American movies are doing their part to help the British win the war, according to Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States. Even Hollywood's second-class productions afford the besieged British islanders relief from war experiences which do not become less a terrific strain because they come "easy and night."

These days the British broadcasting station must devote most of its resources to war news, government warnings and instructions on many subjects. Entertainment by radio is rare. The people must rely on their own efforts, as they constantly do in the long night vigils in the air-raid shelters, and on the films which the government finds it wise to transport through the blockade with no delay. Entertainment now means a fostering of morale.

On the continent, the American correspondents report that the people sorely miss the American films. They are barred from import in Germany and Italy, and anyway, the British would not permit that sort of valuable commerce for the enemy countries.

If tonight you enjoy two hours at the motion picture house, you can count it another blessing of living in the Land of the Free, a blessing denied to most of the Old World and restricted everywhere that war wages—(Asheville Citizen-Times).

PACTOLUS NEWS

Superintendent Conley Speaks. On Wednesday morning, during chapel period an interesting Thanksgiving program was given with Mr. D. H. Conley as principal speaker.

At the beginning of the program the songs "There's a Great Big Fat Turkey on Grandfather's Farm" and "A Thanksgiving Song" were sung by the school. Then Miss Windley's first grade gave a very entertaining little play concerning Thanksgiving, using Mother Goose characters. Following the play, Mr. Hart, the principal, introduced the speaker, Mr. Conley.

Mr. Conley's subject "How To Spend Thanksgiving" was based on two instances in history of Thanksgiving feasts. One instance from the book of Daniel, chapter 5, when Belshazzar disregarded the customs of his father, Nebuchadnezzar, and riotously and impiously feasted, and was punished. At this point, the speaker admonished the children to be careful before they disregarded the teachings of their fathers. The second instance, taken from American history, concerned the origin of our Thanksgiving at which time the people were truly grateful. He brought out the fact that some of the greatest contributions of life had come from rural districts.

The program closed with the song, "God Bless America," sung by all.

Home Demonstration Club Meets. Monday afternoon, November 25, the Pactolus Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. J. R. Overton. The new president, Miss Nell Overton, being absent, the former president, Mrs. C. J. Satterthwaite, presided. The program was opened with the song "America," led by Mrs. Paul Davenport. Following collect, minutes, roll call and treasurer's report, Mrs. Davenport gave a report on Achievement Day for the benefit of those who were unable to attend that event. Miss Nice, the Home Demonstration agent, could not be present, so the main subject "The Care and Repair of Electrical Equipment," was studied and discussed among the group, using the leaflets sent the club by Miss Nice.

Under "Old Business," Mrs. C. R. Fleming reminded the members that there was still some favoring to be sold, plans for hastening work on the community house were formulated, and a report given by the Christmas Card committee.

Under "New Business," Mrs. Geo. Cherry suggested a scrapbook be made and kept for the club, which suggestion was made a motion and carried. The club voted to be in favor of the weekly radio program put on each Saturday by the Home Demonstration agent and would do its part. The club also voted to have a New Year's party in place of the December meeting.

December Ladies' Home Journal.

BABSON

(Continued from page one) World War I to the beginning of World War II, but since the current war has broken out...

Wing-tips and fuselage machine gun installations are only one improvement out of many. Read the newspapers and technical journals to visualize the improvements that are taking place in mechanical, electrical, and chemical devices which are fast rendering obsolete existing implements of war whether these be planes, guns, tanks, rifles or munitions. This does not take into account new inventions which for the most part remain secret.

New Forms of Activity. Unless one is close to manufacturing and its relationship to the defense program, it is difficult to appreciate the importance of constant improvements and replacements. The production of defense products automatically sets up an entirely new group of repeat businesses and the growth of the defense industry is bound to continue after World War II is over. Entirely new products will arise in its technological processes develop.

Let me recall the first test of what ultimately brought about our modern battleship. After the Monitor sank the Merrimack on March 9, 1862, did the building of iron ships stop with the ending of the Civil War? No—the little Monitor started a great new industry, the building of iron and later of steel ships for use in both war and peace. The construction of ships is still going on. Out of this industrial pregnancy of Hitler's new and more far-reaching industry, new forms of ships construction, city planning and buildings of all kinds will develop.

Remaking Factories, Homes, Schools and Cities. Yes, as the bombing plane has changed warfare it is drastically changing the layout of cities and the architecture of factories, shops and homes. New manufacturing plants are already being built without windows to avoid being located at night. They are also being divided into separate buildings so if one building is destroyed the other units can continue work. As cities have gradually been rebuilt to be more fireproof, so they now will be rebuilt to be bombproof. This will take many years. The defense industry does not mean solely the manufacturing of implements of war, but should ultimately result in changes in roads, water pipes, gas mains, and power stations.

The construction of homes must radically be changed to provide the greatest protection. Civilian population, which in today's warfare suffers so much, must be cared for through individual and mass shelters. School houses must be redesigned as well as theatres and other buildings. Additional subways must be built to take not only street cars, busses, and railroads underground, but to provide shelters for the public. There is so much to be done that Hitler has forced us into it.

So many manufacturers were left with unusable material and idle plants that they now are shy of war orders. Let me tell you, however, they are making a big mistake. This new business is of an entirely different nature. Manufacturers missed the boat once by going in too deep. If they are not careful they will miss it this time by going in too late!

Strength For The Day By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BRIGHT PROSPECTS Someone wrote the great missionary, Adoniram Judson, after he had been in Burma for a number of years and asked this question: "What are the prospects here in Burma?" And Judson's reply was: "The prospects here in Burma are just as bright as the promises of God."

It is an answer that might always be made when anyone questions the leading of providence. How bright are the prospects that God will deal with us in a kindly and tender fashion? They are just as bright as the promises of God. "His loving kindness endureth forever." How bright are the prospects that our prayers will be answered? They are just as bright as the promises of God.

The Bible is a book of promises. We have full assurance on the authority of God Himself that all our souls need will be given us at the right time and in the way He knows to be best.

As we look apprehensively into the future, these words should bring us good cheer. "The prospects are just as bright as the promises of God."

A GOOD MOVE On Tuesday night the Chamber of Commerce will hold an open forum in the city hall, at which time citizens will be given the opportunity to discuss projects that they believe could be undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce in the interest of Greenville.

This is not a meeting for the solicitation of memberships to the organization or the solicitation of anything else except information as to how Greenville can best forge ahead to a bigger and better Greenville. There are no set speeches for the occasion and everyone present will be given an opportunity to join in the discussions. Such a meeting to discuss conditions, and steps that should be taken to overcome them and make Greenville a more prosperous community, we believe, is a good thing, but the meeting can accomplish nothing unless our business men attend it and give the organization the benefit of their suggestions.

We urge all local business men and other interested citizens to attend the meeting on Tuesday night.

The parade will get under way at seven o'clock, and following the parade all local stores will remain open until nine o'clock to give the public an opportunity to inspect the large stocks of Christmas merchandise.

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Nov. 30—What is the Attorney General saying about these matters now? Justice Heriot Clarkon of the Supreme court asked Judge Roy L. Deal while the attorney was arguing the noted High Point power case for the city Friday.

On the other hand, now that the City of High Point, the representative of public operation of power plants, is contended exactly the same thing, the Attorney General was no where to be seen or heard.

In this power case the principals have more than once reversed their positions on various points of law and fact; but the only attorney who has swapped sides is Yaddin lawyer Womble, who fought High Point's acquisition of Yaddin county property when the county was also opposing it; but who is now

Who Killed Aunt Maggie? By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY: Aunt Maggie has been murdered in the midst of the houseparty Sally and Bill were giving to celebrate the engagement of Claire and Bob, two friends. After a night in which the lonely house was cut off from the world, the guests are looking for clues to a secret room they believe may be connected with the killing. But Sally just has had another warning, from the murderer, she fears. This note says to beware of the secret room. Sally just has told Bill about it.

Chapter 21 Tangled Evidence "YES, and something else that I may not be important, but which certainly seems strange. The elderdown puff for Aunt Maggie's bed is missing. I found a torn scrap of it on the stairs, but we can't find the elderdown itself, anywhere."

"Humph," said Bill, and paused for a moment with knit brows. "You know," he said, "I shouldn't be surprised if this is one of those cases where you add two and two and get three. There is a secret room, wouldn't that be the logical place for things to disappear to?"

"The difference, my sweet," Bill explained, "is that the wrecker and the electrician came from Roswell. But Wisteria Hall is not a part of the city of Roswell. It is in Fulton County. The police have to come from Atlanta. While we are at this telephone business, I believe I'll call Mr. Marshall. He only handles civil cases, but his advice might be worth having and I don't know anybody else I'd want to return to the study. I found Alice and Kirk just finishing up with the last of the papers. "Nothing that seems at all promising," said Kirk, in answer to the question in my eyes. "I'm ready to start looking for the room. Alice, you run on downstairs with Sally. I know you must be tired."

"Oh, no," she remonstrated. "I'm not at all tired. Really this has been fun." Then, "Oh, Sally, I didn't mean it the way it sounded. I only meant—" "Didn't Mrs. Ambler say something about the books in the library?" Kirk interrupted testfully.

"Alice and I both remembered that she had, but not one of the three of us could remember exactly what it was. "I'll help you look down there," Alice offered. "Heavens," I groaned, "it would take weeks to go through all those books. There are thousands of them and all printed before the Civil War."

"Wonderful," said Kirk. "It's true," I said. "All the newer books are in the office or in the upstairs sitting room. My great-great-grandfather collected those in the library—" "That's it," said Alice. "That's what Aunt Maggie said. Almost it was in one of them that she said Alice stopped and we all looked at each other remembering. For Aunt Maggie had left that sentence unfinished, just as she had left her life's work unfinished a short while afterward."

"But even so," Kirk pointed out, "that doesn't mean that the clue is still there. It's probably been ably removed." "I don't think so," said Alice. "Downstairs again," I bumped into Claire and Bob just emerging from the basement. I WAS touched with all this conscientious industry. "You are both sweet," I said. "I'm sorry you have to be starting your engagement like this."

"You are the one who should be considered, Sally. All this can't be put on you. Have the—er—police put in an appearance yet?" "No, but the telephone is in working order, in case either of you should wish to talk to anyone in town."

"Good," said Bob. "I would like to make a call." "And I like to shed a little of the coal dust," smiled Claire. Obviously, she had made no issue of Bob's visit to Eve. In the library Alice was standing before the bookshelves with an open volume in her hand. At my approach she flushed and replaced it quickly. I noticed that a marker protruded above the pages and resolved to examine the book later. Someone on the place did not want the secret room to be discovered. Could that person be Alice? Could she now be suppressing evidence?

VOTE BEFORE NEXT FRIDAY

M. P. Fox to Present Trophy to Most Outstanding Blocker

By C. B. ROWLETT

M. P. Fox, head of the Fox Mutual Insurance Agency, will for the third year present a trophy to the most outstanding blocker in Greenville High School and E. C. T. C. Mr. Fox is a rabid sports fan and likes to see winning football with the real spirit behind it.

The two cups previously given were placed for the most outstanding player in the two schools but this year things are changed so that the boys that soak up the punishment can make a try at the trophy.

The two previous winners of this award at the High School are Ford McGowan and George Sakas. McGowan was awarded the trophy in 1933 and Sakas won over him in 1939. Both boys were seniors when they were awarded the honor.

Bill Shelton and Mervin Frazelle constitute the winners of the Fox Trophy at the college for the past two seasons. Shelton won the award the first year it was offered while he was a junior. Frazelle won the following year in 1939 while a senior.

Plans are well under way to add a permanent plaque at the two institutions with a scroll to record the winners from year to year. This will supplement the individual cups that go to the winner and now that the award is to be permanent, something of the kind is needed.

The Daily Reflector has been running a ballot since last Wednesday and will continue to run the ballots through next Wednesday but you can deliver in person or mail the votes to this office or to Mr. Fox's office in the Blount Building. Votes will be received up until 12 o'clock Friday.

New York, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Rallying difficulties continued in today's stock market, although selected issues managed to climb back on the rising tide.

Stocks led an early forward swing when plus marks of fractions to a point or so were fairly well distributed. Buying then tapered off, but at the close prices for favorites were at or near the best.

Volume was relatively small throughout, approximately 350,000 shares.

Using Home Produced Feed: If you want to produce part of the mash feed at home as well as the scratch grain, we suggest that you see your county agent or home agent for a copy of Farmers' bulletin No. 1841, entitled "The Feeding of Chickens." This bulletin gives the formulas for a number of home-mixed mashes that have proven satisfactory as well as the formula for a mixed Protein-Vitamin Concentrate which you can have your mill prepare for you and then add home-produced ingredients to it as directed, to make a balanced feed that has also proven very satisfactory.

POULTRY AIDS FOR DECEMBER

Some Timely Suggestions Issued By The County Agent

The following poultry suggestions for December were issued today by County Agent R. R. Bennett, who urged farmers to pay more attention to their flocks during the winter months:

Be Santa Claus to Your Flock: This is the month of Old Santa's visit, so why not be Santa Claus to your flock and provide it with a warm, comfortable house by closing the ventilators and cracks on the ends and north side. The flock will also appreciate having the chill knocked off the drinking water with an electric or oil heated fountain. A heated fountain is another good Christmas present for the flock. If it is not within Santa's means to provide such fountains, a pail of slightly warm drinking water early each morning during cold weather will be greatly appreciated. The egg is 66 per cent water and without normal water consumption the egg production cannot be up to normal. Try providing these presents for your flock and see how many more presents it will make possible for the family.

Dresses or Live Chickens and Turkeys for Market: The local packing houses and dealers will continue to sell dressed poultry. If our home producers do not furnish the supply, it can be had from other parts of the country and that is what is happening. It is not such a pleasant job to dress chickens and turkeys but it must be done if some of the best local trade is to be taken care of with local products. Often a good price for the labor can be secured by dressing poultry and turkeys and outlets for the product can be available. The packing houses and distributors do not like to deal with so many individuals. So why not sell in groups and let one of the group make the contacts for the sale?

When selling dressed turkeys, be sure the birds are well finished and are not stuffed with fed for several hours before killing. Fry pick the turkeys and semi-scale the chickens in 128 to 139 degrees F. water temperature. If that is what your market desires.

See your county agent or home agent for a bulletin describing the proper methods of dry picking turkeys and semi-scaling chickens. This information can be had in Farmers' bulletin No. 1694 entitled "Dressing and Packing Turkeys for Market" and Farmers' bulletin No. 1377 entitled "Marketing Poultry."

Cannibalism: In case you are troubled with cannibalism or pecking in your flock, try to spot the ring leaders and remove them from the flock or cut off the tip of the beaks with a sharp knife. Treat injured birds with pine tar or some other recognized salve repellent. Feed a higher protein mash (20 per cent) for a few weeks. Reduce the amount or proportion of corn and feed more barley, wheat or oats. Provide at least three 6-foot or two 8-foot mash hoppers, accessible from both sides, per 100 birds. In a few very difficult cases of cannibalism excellent results have been obtained by adding an additional two per cent of salt to the mash for one to two weeks.

attitude a mixture principally of milk proteins for the glycerine used previously in efforts to freeze a low-sugar ice cream. These proteins, reported Professors W. J. Corbett and P. H. One out of each 260 persons in the United States is diabetic. The scientists estimated, and hence might receive benefit from such a product.

Tar Heel Probationers Prove To Be Real Asset

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 30.—To support the contention that the system is of tremendous economic, as well as humanitarian, value to North Carolina officials of the Probation Commission are pointing to the fact that the slightly more than 3,000 persons under their supervision have earned more than a million and a half dollars in the three years the system has been in operation.

Thus, they declare, the probationers have been real assets to the state in dollars and cents, instead of liabilities because it would cost money to keep them in prison had they been given time to serve instead of being freed under probationary supervision.

Not only that, but families of the probationers would likewise have been completely dependent upon the state or upon charity for support while their bread winners were behind prison bars.

In short, the probation officials figure that the system is now worth in cold hard cash figures, not less than a million and a half a year. They figure that the $781,830.31 earned by probationers between June 30, 1939 and July 1, 1940, is just about the same amount the state and its subdivisions were saved in cost of taking care of prisoners.

During the first eight months of the probation commission's life (November 1, 1937, to June 30, 1938) earnings of 824 probationers amounted to $62,889.66. For the year June 30, 1938, to June 30, 1939, 2,273 earned $390,780.38 and for June 30, 1939, to June 30, 1940, 3,573 earned $781,830.31.

Harry Sample, probation commissioner, figures that of the money earned, no less than $1,032,592.92 was spent in actual living expenses of the probationers and their families. Fines costs and restitution paid in the three years amounted to $174,910.45.

Enforcement of State Laws Said to Be Responsible

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 30.—Progressive improvement is being shown in "feed" in North Carolina, it is revealed by State Department of Agriculture analyses, D. S. Coltrane, assistant to Commissioner W. Kerr Scott, declares.

In 1939 the department analyzed 1,328 official samples of which 435 or 32.5 per cent were reported out of line in one form or another, compared with 39 per cent for approximately the same number of samples in 1938, Coltrane said.

In addition, he pointed out, the discrepancies noticed in 1939 were minor ones in comparison with those in 1938. Thirty per cent of the discrepancies detected in 1939 were attributed to failure to register, to observe standards, or to improperly named ingredients.

Coltrane cited as factors of very definite value in securing a strict adherence to the feed law in North Carolina:

1. Cooperation of farmers, manufacturers and dealers in formulating regulations covering the manufacture and sale of feeds.
2. Employment of a microscopist and adulterated feeds.
3. Publication of low analysis and adulterated feeds.

As for the type of violations which are discovered in the state, he mentioned a dilution of inferior, worthless products; leaving out of essential high-priced ingredients; and improperly designating feed ingredients.

He predicted that honest competition and unfavorable competition will eventually drive the dishonest manufacturer out of business.

"It is our observation that the feed manufacturer who fails is, in practically all cases, the manufacturer who tries to 'gyp' the farmer by selling feeds that are not as represented," he said.

Mrs. Crumpler will join her husband here in the near future.

Mayor B. B. Sugg Sees 2nd Game in 40 Years

Mayor B. B. Sugg is really getting into the swing of public life and today attended the second major football game he has witnessed in 40 years, according to his own statement.

The recently appointed Greenville mayor hurried out of his office about mid-morning, saying he was heading for Durham to witness the Duke-Pitt game.
