COASTAL TOWN AGAIN RAIDED BY NAZI CRAFT

Vital Port Of Southampton Singled Out For Raids

SEVERAL FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Assault On City Not As Severe As One Night Before; London Has Only Two Alarms During Night

London, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Southampton, Britain's vital south coast port, again was singled out by German air raiders last night as the "main objective" of their aerial onslaughts on England.

A government communique affirming a German report that Southampton, once the main port of call for trans-Atlantic liners was the principal target of raiders for the second successive night, said "a number of fires were caused but they were all under control by daybreak."

Earlier raiders had refused to permit identification of the town and dispatches called it a "south coast town." The British said then, however, that casualties were expected to be lighter than in the violent onslaught on Southampton Saturday night, when the port, 80 miles southwest of London, got its worst attack of the war.

British bombers, meanwhile attacked objectives at Lorient and Brest in France and also in Norway and Denmark, the Air Ministry said.

London had a "two alert" night the first all-clear coming fairly early and the second soon after midnight. The alert periods were marked by heavy anti-aircraft barrages.

Tar Heel Slain In Tennessee Wreck

Newport Tenn., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Maurice Friedman, 51, of Greensboro, N. C., president of a laundry machine company there, was killed and a companion, W. P. Sineath, Goldsboro, N. C., laundry operator, was seriously injured in an automobile accident yesterday four miles west of here on the Knoxville road.

Chief Deputy Dallas Schults said the men had employed an automobile driver to take them to Asheville and that en route the car apparently got off the pavement and overturned in passing another vehicle.

The men were on their way by plane from Hot Springs, Ark., where they had spent several days, but weather conditions grounded the plane in Knoxville.

Schults said it was raining at the time of the accident and the road was slippery. He said the driver, whose name he did not disclose, was held on a technical charge of manslaughter, although "it seems to have been entirely accidental."

Sineath's condition was described at a hospital here today as critical. Friedman's body was taken to Greensboro.

Much Interest In Open Forum Meet

Willard T. Kyzer, executive secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, declared today much interest was being shown in the open forum meeting scheduled to be held in the Municipal court room tomorrow night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The purpose of the meeting will be to develop a general discussion of what can and needs to be done to help Greenville adjust itself to the economic situation brought on by the war.

The meeting will be open to the general public and anyone having anything to say will be given an opportunity. No fixed program will be arranged and the meeting will be just what its name implies, an open forum.

Mr. Kyzer declared today that the business and professional men are showing much interest in the meeting and added that indications pointed to a large crowd and an interesting and enthusiastic meeting.

Series of Auto Wrecks In Greenville Section

Several persons were critically one white woman of Goldsboro critically injured in a series of highway collisions in the Greenville section over the week-end, following a Thanksgiving Day in which no wrecks were reported in this immediate area.

The collisions resulted in several charges being preferred by investigating State Highway Patrolmen. At least two persons were charged with hit-and-run driving and two with driving while drunk.

Miss Elizabeth Howell of Goldsboro, a teacher in the Avon school near Manteo, is in the local hospital in a critical condition with both legs broken, lacerations of the face, minus several teeth and possibly internal injuries, as a result of a wreck yesterday morning about 11 miles from Greenville on the Falkland highway.

Miss Howell was returning to her school following the Thanksgiving holidays. She was riding a cycle with her husband when the collision occurred. Mr. Sloumb suffered a broken arm and Mrs. Sloumb was bruised, shocked and suffered lacerations. Mr. Norton sustained cuts about the face.

Several trucks and cars were involved in a collision on the fill just north of the Tar river bridge about 12:30 o'clock Saturday night. A New Bern fish truck, which had broken down, was parked on the fill, but when it started moving it was struck by a car.

The Sloumb car was going west when the Norton automobile was heading toward Greenville.

Estimated 60,000 Men On Way to Join 500,000 Already In Rumania As Reports Of Increasing Anarchy Continue To Trickle Across Hungarian-Rumanian Border From Bucharest

On The Hugarian-Rumanian Frontier, Dec. 2.—(AP) Four fresh German divisions were moving through Hungary en route to Rumania today as reports trickling across the border told of increasing anarchy throughout that country.

Unconfirmed reports from Bucharest said these additional German troops would attempt to restore order there and in other large Rumanian cities where Iron Guard extremists have taken bloody revenge on officials of the ousted regime of former King Carol II.

Four divisions mean approximately 60,000 men. German strength in Rumania had previously been estimated as high as 500,000.

A parade in Bucharest of a German motorized division was interpreted in Hungary as a warning that German legions are prepared to restore order in strife-ridden Rumania unless the Rumanians do it themselves.

King Mihai brought up the rear in the parade. He had been reported on border reports last week to have fled Bucharest as a result of Iron Guard disorders in the Rumanian capital.

FIRING RANGE TO BE SET UP IN THIS STATE

Nine Million Dollar Project Is Authorized

Sufficient Land In Wilmington Area For Contonment Proper To Be Leased By War Department

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The War Department announced today that it had authorized construction of a $9,000,000 anti-aircraft firing center in the vicinity of Wilmington, N. C.

Officials said that the construction to be erected on leased land would provide housing and facilities for six white and two Negro regiments of the Coast Artillery. These units will be semi-mobile anti-aircraft regiments.

An announcement said that only land sufficient in area for the construction proper would be leased. Firing will be over water on the adjacent coastline, it was explained, and the procurement of land for a firing range was not therefore necessary.

The department said the approximate construction cost would be $9,000,000, but that contracts had not yet been awarded for this work. The announcement said it was contemplated that the firing center would be ready for occupancy about March 15, 1941.

Power Plant Wrecked By Dynamite Explosion

Company Had Just Completed Order For Government

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The mysterious explosion of a ton of dynamite killed four men today in the mixing plant of the Columbia Powder Company, 15 miles south of here.

J. A. Denny, plant manager, said the blast blew the two-story mixing mill to bits. It occurred at 7:11 a. m., less than an hour before 65 men would have gone to work in the mill.

The men who were killed comprised the early shift that went on at 6 a. m. to get the plant in order for the day's work.

Denny and Fred Henrickson, company attorneys, said the company was not working on government orders at present, but it had just finished a contract for national defense.

They indicated that the Federal government would be asked to investigate the explosion.

Residents near the mill reported that the company recently increased the number of watchmen guarding the plant gates, and that dogs were being trained to keep strangers away from the powder mill.

Logan-Walter Act Goes To President

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The House finally completed work on the Logan-Walter bill today, sending it to the White House, where some congressional leaders said it might be vetoed by President Roosevelt.

The House accepted Senate amendments to the measure by a roll call vote of 176 to 51.

The legislation would provide uniform standards of procedure for many quasi-judicial federal agencies, such as the Labor Board, and would expedite court appeals of decisions, orders and regulations of those agencies.

Democratic Leader Barley of the Senate said he would urge a presidential veto for the measure when the Senate passed it by a 27-25 vote last week.

The principal question was whether the veto message would be returned to Congress in time for vote on overriding it before this session ends, probably a few days before Christmas.

LARGEST BODY CAPTURED YET

Fresh Troops Sent To Bolster Sagging Italian Lines Reported Smashed Along With Regiments They Had Gone To Aid; Victory Regarded As Exceptionally Important

Athens, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Capture of 5,000 Italians, the largest mass of prisoners yet taken by the Greek army, was announced today from the northern front.

Their surrender, dispatches said, was the signal for a general retreat of other Italian forces in the area, leaving a huge gap in the Italian center.

Fresh Italian troops, rushed to bolster sagging defense lines, earlier had been reported being smashed back with the regiments they came to reinforce and the Greeks claimed "important" new advances all along the Albanian battlefield.

Mention of the exact place where the front was reported smashed was forbidden by military authorities. They permitted mention merely that it was in the north.

The front line report said "the victory, without exaggeration, is of exceptional importance for the enemy line in this sector has been destroyed and all danger eliminated for us."

Dispatches from the front and statements by a Greek spokesman pictured the fighting line as the start of the sixth week of war as swinging like a door toward the Adriatic from a hinge on the Albanian coast just north of the Greek frontier to Lake Ochrida on the Yugoslav frontier.

Stiff Italian resistance was reported near that hinge around Argirocastro.

In the central sector the Greek high command announced the capture of "points of special importance for the development of operations" around Premit, 18 miles north of the Greek frontier.

December 2, 1900

Farewell Sermon.
Rev. N. M. Watson has finished his four years pastorate of the Methodist Church here. After the conclusion of the sermon Mr. Watson gave some statistics of his work here. The total number of members received into the church during the four years was 66. The collections from all sources in the four years was as follows: 1897, $1,850.30; 1898, $1,821.00; 1899, $1,800.00; 1900, $2,517.60.

Mr. Watson referred with pleasure to the cordiality with which he had been greeted by all people in Greenville, and said that nowhere had he spent four more delightful years than here. He asked the church to treat his successor as kindly as it had him.

Towne Club Dance.
On Friday night the Towne Club gave a most enjoyable dance in the gymnasium of the high school. The music for the evening was furnished by the Deans of Music. A large number of out-of-town guests attended this delightful affair.

Charles Clark, John Clark, Tom Wilson and Billy Morton were elected members of the board of directors. Plans are underway for the annual Christmas dance which the club hopes to make one of the most elaborate ever given in Greenville.

Christian Science Church.
"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alms Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced," was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, December 1.

The golden text was from Isaiah 45:22, "Look unto me, and be saved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Hast thou marked the old way which wicked men have trodden? Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee. Receive, I pray thee, the law from his mouth, and lay up his words in thine heart." (Job, 22:15, 21, 22)

The lesson-lesson also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Animal magnetism has no scientific foundation, for God governs all that is real, harmonious and eternal, and His power is neither animal nor human. Its basis being a belief and this belief animal, in Science animal magnetism, mesmerism, or hypnotism is a mere negation, possessing neither intelligence, power, nor reality, and in sense it is an unreal concept of the so-called mortal mind."

WHO TELLS ME TRUE. By Michael Strange. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, $3.00.

The irregularity of the lives of those who create has amazed the public from time immemorial. And the explanation of why their lives are that way is rarely found in print.

But in "Who Tells Me True," the autobiography of Michael Strange, poet, playwright and writer, the reader is aware of the constant effort the author puts forth to make his friends and the public understand the temperament of creative artists. She attempts to show how their restlessness and their constant search for inspiration fate seemingly so controls them that they are powerless to offer any resistance. Therefore they are driven before the wind as chaff.

But the most fascinating interest of this book lies in the author's explanation of her urge to write, of what inspires her to create. When she says: "Nor could I ever express to you how beautiful faces affected me, enslaved me almost, because they were the means of making me become alive emotionally, intellectually," one can understand the urge to put into expression her feeling toward a personality. Again it is made understandable when she writes: "He came into my native hunger like the bodily presence of my fancy. He could do for me what I had been doing for everyone else — dramatize me to myself, look down the vista of my possibilities for a change." When she writes about looking for the face that would be marked with the solution of her happiness or her grief, there is sympathy for the artist who knows no solace of the emotions. There were faces that attracted her so that she was absolutely bemused before them. She registered on her attentive yearning every mental and emotional implication of a face, indeed she was able or liable to be so charmed that in a way the present was blotted out while it was marking her indelibly. At such times poems would come out of her at such a rate that she dared not be without pad and pencil.

In "Who Tells Me True," Michael Strange has done about as excellent a revealing of her inner self as it is possible for one to do. And the success of her being able to express herself so adequately is probably due to the fact that she is a poet first, a writer second.

The author has tried three marriages. Each husband was a distinctly different type, and each brought to her emotional development certain qualities that have in the end become the fully mature Michael Strange. From her first husband, Leonard Thomas, she learned how to love beauty, saying that his great love for beauty was transferred from him to her. John Berrymore, the great actor, brought her infatuation, the ecstasy of romance, and alas, the realization of the futility of physical attraction lasting forever. Her present husband, Harrison Tweed, has given to her congeniality, companionship and

GREENVILLE CITY OF SUNSHINE
Christmas comes again with its age-old story of shepherds watching their flocks by night, of herald angels singing and of Wise Men following a Star. As I write this, there seems little hope of peace on earth for many months to come, yet I devote the rumble of guns abroad, we have a Christmas message to offer our own neighbors and friends.

The Garden Club will try to do this by presenting their annual Christmas Show, hoping it will be a stimulus for making homes more beautiful and boosting spirits higher during the holiday season. The spirit of Christmas will sparkle from every nook and corner of the Woman's Club building on Thursday and Friday, December 6 and 7, when sophisticated grown-ups as well as children are invited to come, see and enjoy our Garden Club Christmas Show.

A large number of classifications will be offered to give each club member greater scope for showing their undoubted gifts along many lines. Rivaling each other in beauty and interest will be lovely table appointments for breakfast, formal and informal luncheons and dinners, also tables for children as well as grown-ups, decorated mantels, swags, wreaths, gift-tying suggestions, cakes and candies, arrangements of which will require skill and originality.

The Garden Club wants to carry its season's greetings outside its own doors and since planning for Christmas is a joyous investment of time — and the dividends are sure, come to our Christmas Show and maybe you will get some new inspiration to help you make your home bright with traditions of Christmas, your packages gay, your holiday table a merry one and your whole community a cheerful center of Christmas good will.

WHO TELLS ME TRUE. By Michael Strange. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, $3.00.

The irregularity of the lives of those who create has amazed the public from time immemorial. And the explanation of why their lives are that way is rarely found in print.

But in "Who Tells Me True," the autobiography of Michael Strange, poet, playwright and writer, the reader is aware of the constant effort the author puts forth to make his friends and the public understand the temperament of creative artists. She attempts to show how their restlessness and their constant search for inspiration fate seemingly so controls them that they are powerless to offer any resistance. Therefore they are driven before the wind as chaff.

But the most fascinating interest of this book lies in the author's explanation of her urge to write, of what inspires her to create. When she says: "Nor could I ever express to you how beautiful faces affected me, enslaved me almost, because they were the means of making me become alive emotionally, intellectually," one can understand the urge to put into expression her feeling toward a personality. Again it is made understandable when she writes: "He came into my native hunger like the bodily presence of my fancy. He could do for me what I had been doing for everyone else — dramatize me to myself, look down the vista of my possibilities for a change." When she writes about looking for the face that would be marked with the solution of her happiness or her grief, there is sympathy for the artist who knows no solace of the emotions. There were faces that attracted her so that she was absolutely bemused before them. She registered on her attentive yearning every mental and emotional implication of a face, indeed she was able or liable to be so charmed that in a way the present was blotted out while it was marking her indelibly. At such times poems would come out of her at such a rate that she dared not be without pad and pencil.

In "Who Tells Me True," Michael Strange has done about as excellent a revealing of her inner self as it is possible for one to do. And the success of her being able to express herself so adequately is probably due to the fact that she is a poet first, a writer second.

The author has tried three marriages. Each husband was a distinctly different type, and each brought to her emotional development certain qualities that have in the end become the fully mature Michael Strange. From her first husband, Leonard Thomas, she learned how to love beauty, saying that his great love for beauty was transferred from him to her. John Berrymore, the great actor, brought her infatuation, the ecstasy of romance, and alas, the realization of the futility of physical attraction lasting forever. Her present husband, Harrison Tweed, has given to her congeniality, companionship and

LESSONS IN NORTH AMERICAN WAY

AP Feature Service
 Asuncion, Paraguay.—Five thousand miles from home as the crow flies and twice as far by normal routes a handful of North Americans are pushing a "good neighbor" program conceived a generation before President Roosevelt made the phrase popular.

They are representatives of the United Christian Missionary Society who came here from Indianapolis Ind., 20 years ago to found a small school. Today their International college is teaching the American way of life to 350 boys and girls of many nationalities.

Something New
 Its pupils, boys and girls from kindergarten to college age, follow training courses prescribed by Paraguayan law but in addition are taught English and many facts about their "big sister" republic to the north.

The missionaries and teachers also brought Paraguay another innovation—the nation's first and only modern scholastic sports field. American baseball flourishes under the hot Paraguayan sun.

23 Nationalities
 Within the American type classrooms, now models for Paraguay, tiny Indian children only a few months removed from the Chaco are pupils, alongside the sons and daughters of cabinet ministers and foreign diplomats. The latter have contributed heavily to the 23 nationalities making up International College's present enrollment.

A staff of eight teachers, from such typical cities as Des Moines, Ind., Okla., St. Louis, and Minneapolis have charge of the "good neighbor" program.

Fred Hughes, former Des Moines resident who directs the college evaluates its program as an attempt to bring to Paraguay a section of the American modern education.

Patronage of the school—tuition pays only for a portion of the operating costs—attests to the success of this program. Most of Paraguay's recent presidents have sent their children to it.

AGENCY OPENS HERE TUESDAY

Brown-Wood Named Dodge And Plymouth Dealers

The Brown-Wood company, second oldest automobile dealer in Greenville, has been appointed Dodge and Plymouth and Dodge job rated trucks for Pitt county.

The firm is opening this agency at 810 Clark street, in front of the Norfolk Southern station and plans to carry a complete stock of Dodge and Plymouth passenger cars, trucks and pick-ups at all times. It also is proposing by the firm to carry a large stock of parts to assure the people of the community a good and quick service job at all times.

Efficient mechanics will be available at all times also.

W. S. Brown, general manager declared that the agency's location was the most convenient and easiest to get in and out of for service jobs, whether the vehicle be a passenger car or the biggest truck.

"We tried to get away from the congested traffic and feel that we have done the motorist public a favor," declared Mr. Brown.

With Mr. Brown as general manager, will be Reid Gaskins, assistant manager, Lindsay Savage, service manager and Tab Skinner as assistant service manager.

The place of business will be open to the public tomorrow and their friends and customers are invited to call, even if for only a visit of inspection.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—This is a great town for going out with your business clients and kicking the gong around. Give the boys a good time, and you'll get dividends on your investment.

Perhaps this is true. It must be or else a lot of people I know would n't keep on doing it.

For example:
 One of my friends is a real estate agent, a pretty big one. Three or four times a year he gathers in a dozen or twenty of his clients and brings them to New York. He takes them to football games at box seat prices, $6.00 each. Before the game of course, there are lunch and drinks, plus cab fares all over Manhattan.

After the game the party retires to a hotel where a large suite has been reserved for freshening up and drinks. After about two hours they pile into cabs and go to a night club. They arrive at 7:30 and remain until 2 a. m., during which time a dozen or so uninvited guests join the party for a few drinks or so.

The day, altogether, costs about $600.

The man who throws these parties is a successful business man. . . . He makes money. . . . Spending it this way must pay dividends but I wonder whether he wouldn't make money in any case. . . .

Favorite periods for such wooing of clients are during the big shows—the automobile show, the flower show, the power show, etc. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent on entertainment and the bill levied against "promotion and advertising."

I know a man who works for a ball bearing company. . . . Airplanes, automobiles, printing presses can't get along without ball bearings. . . . This man has an unlimited expense account. He is supposed to invite a lot of people into the city. This means hotel reservations, plus theaters, plus everything in the form of entertainment that New York has to offer. . . . The bill is staggering. . . . To me, I mean, it is staggering. . . . But this fellow does it three or four times a year and his company is in the money. They say it is sound business. . . .

in several night clubs had been made. You cannot begin to entertain a man in a night club for less than $10. . . . There were reservations at hotels. It cost a small fortune to finance this party but after it was over my friend expressed himself as well pleased with the way things had worked out. These men represented business connections. He was insulating them from his competitors and reported that the four or five days of painting the town red would leave him sitting pretty for months to come.

I believe him. . . . But I still do not understand why.

At the last power show there was one party of 12 men. Some of them arrived by train. . . . Two flew from the middle west. In advance, 12 sets of tickets were reserved for three of the leading musical shows on Broadway. . . . Tickets to a musical show cost $4.40 each. . . . Reservations

Two University of Cincinnati scientists announce that experiments show the depressing effects of tropical heat can be overcome by doubling the daily intake of thiamin (vitamin B).

If The Eyes Have It, So Do You

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer
 Your eyes can keep other eyes on you if you know the art of makeup. Less makeup rather than more is likely to do the trick.

And it's not easy even to apply light makeup properly and make it emphasize your best features. You should put it on subtly enough to prevent that harsh, heavily made-up look.

Even celebrities have to work to master the art of eye makeup. This is what the singer, Hildegard, told me about how she solved the problem:

"During the course of an evening it is usually necessary for me to go from bright spotlights to the dimmer lights of a night club or to the theater.

Looked Like Surrealist
 "Heavily made-up eyes, coated with mascara, were fine for the bright lights. But I looked like a surrealist when they were turned off.

"I had to have something simple and effective. Petroleum jelly was the answer. It seemed to make the eyes look larger and brighter yet soft and appealing.

"This is the way I apply it: First a light film of eye shadow to the edge of the lid, shading it toward the edge.

"Then over the shadow, with the tip of your finger, put a film of the jelly, heavier at the edge and gradually lighter up to the brow.

Apply Lightly
 "Brush the mascara on the lashes very lightly, never sticking the lashes together.

"If mascara hurts your eyes, the jelly can be brushed on the tips of the lashes for almost the same effect."

And for evening when she's singing for society, Hildegard has another makeup trick.

It's putting a wee touch of the jelly on the lips. That gives them a soft but not quite moist look and keeps their outline and brightness showing even in dim light.

David Harum's On The Spot
 Saigneleger, Switzerland.—(AP)—Swapping horses, once a favorite sport of Swiss peasants, is virtually a thing of the past in Switzerland because of new army regulation forbidding such transfers without special permission.

The army considers every Swiss horse subject to call for service at any moment. Authorities want to know where the horses are and to make sure the number in each district remains constant.

Spain And Britain Agree on Finances

Madrid, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Britain and Spain signed a financial agreement today designed to free Spanish funds locked in London and give Spain funds to increase purchases from the British.

The pact was signed in a noon ceremony by Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suñer and Sir Samuel Hoare, the British ambassador.

Rocky Mount Man Claimed By Death

Rocky Mount, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Kenneth C. Denny, 52, well known manufacturer, died at his home late Sunday night, following a long illness. Funeral services will be conducted at the home at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon, with burial following here.

Denny came here in 1934 from High Point and founded the Denny Veneer Company in Rocky Mount.

Wed Licenses Issued To Thirteen Couples

Thirteen couples received licenses to be married during the past week at the Pitt County Register of Deeds office.

Those getting licenses were: Alfred German and Essie Daniels of Ayden, colored; H. P. Costello of Detroit, Mich., and Catherine Marshall of Greenville, white; James H. Mayby and Mary Smith of Winterville, colored; Jack Whitley and Maude West of Greenville, white; Harvey Smith and Mollie Smith of Ayden, colored; William Nobles and Edith Brock of Winterville, white; Willie Hopkins and Rosa Belle Anderson of Greenville, colored; John Whichard of Pactolus and Christine Averett of Winterville, white; Thomas Simmons and Lorena Phillips of Greenville, colored; Norman Savage of Chapel Hill and Mildred Edwards of Winterville, white; Julius Padden of Greenville, Route 1 and Bela Morris of Farmville, Route 2, white; Premier Johnson and Millie Taft of Greenville, colored; Ernest Eaton and Dotsie Diggins of Greenville, colored.

Slept Tight

Spartanburg, S. C.—(AP)—Attaches in the county clerk's office vouch for this one.

Three unsteady fellows were proceeding across the courthouse lawn when one folded up like an accordion. Since the courthouse is fairly packed with police, fast thinking was in order. The drunk's companions came through in fine style and rolled their companion into a huge pile of leaves.

Two hours later—after a heavy rain—the pair returned, roused the slumbering man, raked the leaves from his face and clothing, and made a quick exit.

Soybeans now are used in the manufacture of candy, cosmetic creams, hair tonic and leather dressing.

2. What famous character will be missing from the new musical, "The Ziegfeld Girl?" And who played the missing role in "The Great Ziegfeld?"
3. The sequel to a famous picture, starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, is being made, again without women playing important roles in the cast. Can you name it... and two other films which succeeded with all-male casts?
4. "Behind the News" is another movie with a reporter hero. Lloyd Nolan can you name two history-making movies with the same type of hero—and two this year with girl reporters as heroines?
5. How have these personalities figured in the news recently: (a) Robert Preston, (b) Helen Vinson, (c) Dolly Haas, (d) Toby Wing?

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent and 90 or above is colossal.

Screen Test Answers

1. Claire Trevor was dubbed "Queen of the Bs" because she starred in so many low-budget films. When she played the bad girl in "Dead End," she started toward stardom in the A's.

2. Ziegfeld himself, William Powell, who was "The Great Ziegfeld," will lend his voice to a telephone conversation in the new film.

3. "Men of Boys Town" will have women only as incidental characters. Except briefly for Beryl Mercer

Struggle For Oil

NEAR EAST OIL TEMPTS AXIS

Russia owns the best oil fields within striking distance of the Axis powers. A German thrust at British-owned fields in Iran and Iraq observers say, would be objected to by Russia because of fear the Nazis wouldn't stop there.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—The major key to the next phase of the European war may be a three-letter word. It's "O-I-L!"

Whether the Axis powers concentrate on the British Isles, or Gibraltar or Suez, or all three, the long range planning behind their military and diplomatic maneuvers may be forced upon them by the coming thirst of their industrial and war machines for the stuff that turns the wheels of modern nations—petroleum.

That's the view of some Washington economists, who suspect that the Axis' problem at this time is not rather than food. Not that it's giving out any time soon. But it must look ahead, now that it's failed to make quick work of Britain.

For instance, the economists suspect recent German-Russian negotiations were concerned not with a new or intensified partnership, but with a German scheme to siphon oil from the Near East, or even Russia herself.

Similarly, the statisticians also in the military meeting of the Italian and German high command at Innsbruck, Austria, a revival of the often discussed threat against Gibraltar. For that way also leads to precious oil—the oil of the Western Hemisphere.

omists agree that it takes about 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 barrels of oil a year to run the Axis war against the British. But assuming both Italy and Germany have built up reasonable reserves, they cannot hope to replenish their supplies from the lone big oil field in their possession—the Rumanian. At best this area could give them only 60,000,000 barrels a year.

Maybe they can squeeze out another 15 million barrels from shale and coal. But that's much less than half enough oil for a year of Axis warfare.

The nearest additional oil for the Axis is in the Near East. The British fields in Iraq and Iran produce close to 100,000,000 barrels a year under forced draft. And that's just about what Germany and Italy need in addition to what they have. Hence the attempted drive through Greece. That could open up the eastern end of the Mediterranean.

Next best would be to persuade Turkey to join the Axis, and get permission to go through that country, and thus reach precious oil.

In the view of a well informed expert on Russian affairs in this country, Russia would object to the presence in Iran or Iraq of sizeable German forces.

It is an open secret that the Russians have been extremely jealous of their great-oil resources.

They attempt after the World war to move into Baku, the heart of the Russian oil fields. A gesture from the Russian army put a stop to that.

If they should let the Germans through, could they expect Hitler to be as easy to oust in case of victory against the British, as were the British themselves after the World war? Hardly possible. Opinion here is that the Russians would not allow any power any closer to their oil than the British are in Persia now.

The next best bet for the Axis would be oil from the Western Hemisphere, if not from the United States, from the Latin American producers, such as Mexico and Venezuela. That entails an attack on Gibraltar to open the way for Axis ships, or a route through North Africa.

Standing in the way, in either event, is the United States, and the 21 American republics, sympathetic to the British, and capable of intensifying their aid to the British Empire.

All of this adds up to the fact that mighty Russia and the mighty United States, both now at least non-belligerent, stand in the way of lubrication and power for the Axis war machine.

But the Axis must sooner or later seek oil in one direction, or the other. Which way will it turn?

MARKET TIME FOR SOYBEANS

Farmers Cautioned Not To Hold Product Too Long

Raleigh, Dec. 2.—Tar Heel farmers who are withholding soybeans on market while waiting for better prices were today cautioned by Austin White, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture, that there are slim prospects of any increase in prices.

North Carolina's farmers will likely sell approximately 2,200,000 bushels this season. Prices are now about 20 cents higher than those prevailing five or six weeks ago at the opening of the market.

Any further advance, however, is likely to be checked by strong competition from peanuts and cotton seed as sources of oil and meal. White said. Besides that, the loss of European markets is a handicap which cannot be overlooked.

Then, too, any reduction in soybean production will be more than offset by increased yields of peanuts and cotton seed.

"Despite the decrease in soybean production in the country, which has been reported at more than 10 per cent," said White, "farmers are expecting 33 per cent boost in peanut production and 10 per cent increase in cotton seed, all of which more than offset the soybean reduction."

Commenting on the tendency to withhold the beans while waiting for better prices White declared:

Although the Pacific ocean is by far the largest of the five great oceans the portion of land drained into it is comparatively insignificant.

New RAF Chief

Air Vice Marshal W. S. Douglas (above) became commander-in-chief of the British Royal Air Force fighters in a shake-up that some regarded as pre-empting a new English air offensive. He succeeds Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding who will be sent to the United States on a mission not yet explained.

★ AMERICANA ★ 10 O'CLOCK COFFEE

By RAY PEACOCK
AP Feature Service Writer

Because history has an inconsiderate way of overlooking the important little things, we are without the name of the first man who left his work at 10 o'clock and skipped out for a cup of coffee.

We are left to grope also for his motive, assuming that he had any. He may have been (a) just mackerel hungry, (b) dodging a tombstone salesman, (c) trying to show the boss who was who, (d) hoping he'd meet somebody, preferably a pretty girl, that he could tell his troubles to, or (e) trying to do something about the rough crossing of the night before.

But whoever and whatever, our man has a lot of company these days, if he's still around. Good company, too, whether it's being served coffee at all for two bits at the Grand Hotel, coffee without the usual wait for a dime at the corner drug store, or a dipper of ink for a nickel at Joe's diner.

"Coffee," wrote Alexander Pope somewhere around the turn of the 18th century, "makes the politicians wise." Pope had the right angle. The 10 o'clock coffee drinkers find no problem in economics or political science too ponderous for settlement before the second cup is empty.

Some day maybe our man's name may come to light. If it does, he deserves a monument, for he started something which is as much a part of American life as 4 o'clock tea in England and the noon siesta in Spain.

Festive costumes for important little evenings. The gleaming lame dress at left is worn with a big muff of pedigreed silver fox and a black felt hat topped with a fox hatushka. The softly styled crepe frock at right is glamorized with a jewel-frame bag.

A 'Little' Dress Dressed Up Makes A 'Little' Evening Big

By AMY PORTER
AP Feature Service Writer
"Big" evenings are something to look forward to. It's fun to make yourself as glamorous as possible in a formal gown cut to here, fun to go out with an escort who looks his handsomest in white tie and tails. But when it comes to remembering, don't you find that certain "little" evenings rank right up with the best of them? The evening you met a man you really liked, or that time some people dropped in and you had an impromptu party that was more fun than if you'd tried to plan it that way?

For these not-so-formal times it's extremely important to look your best—and somewhat different from your daytime self. When you are planning your holiday wardrobe, you'll want to think a lot about "little" dresses, for even through the holidays there are more little than big occasions.

More festive, but still not overdressed, are the metal thread cocktail dresses in daytime lengths. You'll find lame made into severely styled little shirtwaist frocks.

Help For Plain Crepe
A plain crepe frock can be made glamorous with one of the new sets of jewelry—matching earrings, bracelet, clip. Put one of the clip on your turban for good measure.

Color is another route to little evening glamour. Choose a day-length dress in a color you'd never wear in the daytime—a piercing fuchsia, a sharp red.

Whatever you wear, see to it that you don't look as if you'd just come from the office—even if that's the case. A little evening deserves a chance to turn into a big one.

More Ballots Arriving Daily In Best Blocker Voting

CLOSE VOTING IS INDICATED

Fans Have Until Noon Friday To Cast Their Ballots

Each mail continues to bring in additional votes in the best blocker contest being conducted through The Reflector by the Fox Mutual Insurance Agency, of which M. P. Fox is manager.

The contest is being conducted both for the college and high school teams.

While the votes have not been tabulated, indications are that the voting thus far is close, with many fans supporting their favorites.

It takes but little effort and time to vote, so supporters of individual players are urged to take this opportunity to register a ballot for their favorite blocker.

It was decided to give this year's trophies to the best blockers, since they are usually the unsung heroes of grid games. The player who scores the ball to touchdown usually gets in the headlines, and while it is not desired to take any credit from the ball-carriers, in many instances the blockers are more responsible for the score than the man carrying the pigskin.

The ballot appears elsewhere on this page of The Reflector and will be printed Tuesday and Wednesday also. After that fans may send in their ballots until noon Friday, after which the votes will be tabulated and the winners declared.

The trophies will be presented at appropriate ceremonies. Fans may register their vote by delivering in person or mailing ballots either to The Reflector or the Fox Mutual Insurance Agency, Blount building, West Third street.

SPECULATION ON '41 HOUSE

Who'll Be Big Shots In The House Of Representatives

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 2.—Now that opening of the General Assembly is only a month away, there is considerable speculation over identity of the legislators who are really going to make North Carolina's laws and plan its financial program for the next two years.

In theory, of course, each one of the 170 members has just one vote and is therefore, on a plane of complete equality with every other; but it is a matter of common knowledge that, in practice, less than a score actually run the show and control actions of the Assembly.

Most potent of all the General Assembly are the Speaker of the House and the Lieutenant Governor, presiding officer in the Senate. They appoint the committees which do at least ninety per cent of the legislating. It needs no argument or diagram, therefore, to demonstrate the power of these two functionaries.

In the Senate, the presiding officer has already been chosen. He will be Lieutenant Governor Reg Harris, and it is he who will name all Senate committees. He's probably working on his slate pretty steadily right now, and should be able to name his committees very shortly after the Assembly convenes.

On the other hand nobody knows to a certainty who is going to be Speaker of the House, and even the active candidates realize they may have to make important "deals" at the last minute in order to get elected by the Democratic caucus which convenes on the eve of the legislature's formal opening.

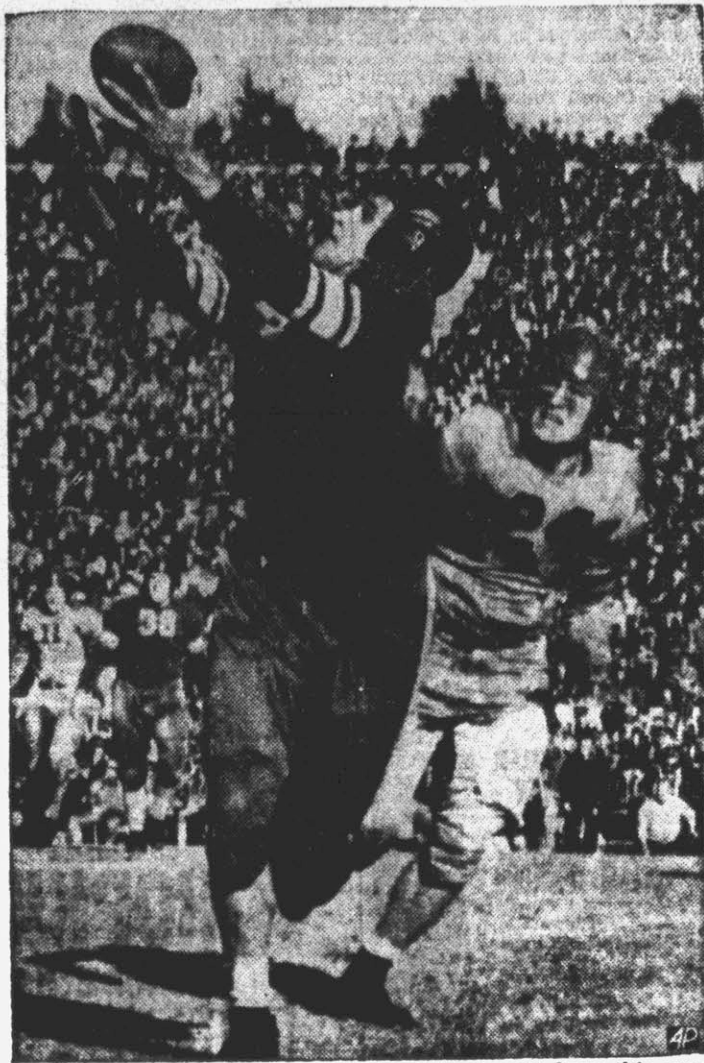

And so not only the Speaker, but the committee chairman and members must, of necessity, be now quite anonymous.

The avowed candidates for gavel wielding are Odus Mull of Cleveland, George Uzzell of Rowan, Jim Vozler of Mecklenburg and Clarence Stone of Rockingham; and so one of this quartet will be the most powerful figure in the 1941 House, unless a dark horse should slip in at the last minute, so to speak.

Paradoxically enough, while one of these chaps now in the limelight will be the House "ace" the other three will go practically to the foot of the class after the caucus, unless the race is so close that one or more of them has to be "dealt with" by the eventually victorious candidate.

A defeated candidate for Speaker usually gets little or no consideration from his successful rival and his stature in the House shrinks accordingly. Two years ago, as an example, Victor Bryant of Durham got no real recognition

Duke Downs Pittsburgh 12-7

Steve Lach, Duke halfback, reaches high to pull down this pass from Wes McAfee, Duke's star pass chucker, in the Duke-Pittsburgh game at Durham. It was this pass, connection that Lach carried right on over for the first touch-down. Coming up behind is Mike Sekela (24), Pitt quarterback who failed to stop Lach and end Duke's 53-yard march down the field after the opening kickoff.

wrong on his Speakership candidate. J. Hawley Poole from West End Moore county, is perhaps the biggest peach grower in the state. He is also a member of the Board of Agriculture. He will start with the benefit of cordial House appreciation because he defeated W. L. Clegg who talked so much in the 1939 session. Kerr Craige Ramsay of Rowan ought to be quite a whiz if he lives up to any one of those three names, all of which really mean something in North Carolina. John Kerr, Jr. of Warren, will undoubtedly be one of the top flight if Mull wins the Speakership and just as undoubtedly be a "nobody" if Uzzell is victorious.

Laurie McEachern of Hoke is now

from Libby Ward. He was saved from complete House oblivion only by the fact, which couldn't be escaped even by his worst enemies, that he knew more about the Revenue bill and the State's financial program than any other member of the Finance committee, including the chairman. Bryant, incidentally, will be back next month and is sure to be one of the real House leaders. He will not be handicapped by an unsuccessful race for anything. No spectacular orator the veteran Bull City representative has a way of explaining legislation which anyone can understand. Also, he always knows what he's talking about, something which cannot always be said of legislative orators.

The House will miss two outstanding figures of the past two sessions—Gregg Cherry, the Iron Major who spoke for the 1937 House as efficiently as it has ever been done, while at the same time frequently turning sessions into comedy more side-splitting than the Marx Brothers; or Charlie Chaplin can produce; and Bill Fenner, big in physique and mentality, though handicapped often by lack of any pretense of forensic facility.

Gregg will be in the Senate, Bill is dead. There will be approximately 50 members of the 1939 House back for more this time. From among this half hundred will naturally come most of the 1941 leadership, though there will of course be whom to steal part of the applause at least.

Making no attempt whatever to rate them relatively and quite likely overlooking some who will outshine those listed, here briefly are a few facts about some of the House members likely to play leading roles from January until such time as the General Assembly quits sine die.

Libby Ward of Craven, Speaker last time. He probably has as large a personal following as any House member. Almost always an Administration stalwart, he can go it alone when he thinks he's right, as witness his almost one-handed and sensational though ultimately unsuccessful battle against the Hoey forces in the 1937 House, on the matter of Social Security fund sources. Libby wanted no part of the burden put on the counties. He lost, but only after one of the session's priciest battles.

C. F. Quinn of Duplin will be heard from and of only if there should develop a real prohibition fight. Drury of the Drus, he'd get into that sort of scum with all the fanaticism such brews develop.

Rupert T. Piekens of Guilford will probably make reapportionment his principal theme this time. In 1939 he appointed himself "watchdog of the Treasury," lectured and voted against every proposed increase in appropriations.

One of the really brilliant minds his chief failing seems to be an inability to recognize that some of the other members aren't quite as bright. His speeches sound too much like pedagogue instructing pupils.

L. L. Bursin of Henderson, wanted chairmanship of Agriculture last time and didn't get it. He is very influential in a quiet way and is likely to be something of a power this time—if he doesn't guess busily supporting Mull for Speaker in 1941 and himself for the same office in 1943. He is coming back after skipping a pair of sessions. W. Frank Taylor of Wayne made quite an impression as a freshman in 1939. No brilliant speaker, he still had a way about him that got his points over with emphasis.

Julian R. Allsbrook will come from Halifax as the result of a truce with Dr. T. W. M. Long in Halifax county. If the armistice is kept in effect, he and the doctor can do things for their county. Mr. Allsbrook rates Grade A in every "ability" book. R. H. Underwood of Hertford will probably move to table more legislation than any other member—and 92 per cent of the time it ought to be tabled. John R. McLaughlin beat Zeb Turlington in Iredell—that alone proves he has something on the ball. His work on the Board of Conservation and Development indicate he can carry the ball in the House if he wants to. And as a "dark horse" for the outstanding House member—Arch Allen of Wake, secretary of the Democratic State committee. A third term this time, he ought to come into his own as a leader. In 1939 he lost his chance by backing

Bryant, instead of Ward, for Speaker. A service station on wheels, complete to free air and water, is used on a 40,000 acre California farm. The first all-steel railway baggage car was introduced in 1904.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Leading stocks edged forward in today's market without attracting a great deal of buying power. Scattered favorites, including steel and other industrials got up around a point at the start. Quotations then slipped and dealings slowed near the fourth hour.

Telegraph Stamps Taken as Payment
Inauguration of the issuance of telegraph stamps, which will be accepted in payment for any of the numerous telegraph services, took place at the local office of Western Union this morning.
Miss Eleanor James, daughter of E. and Mrs. J. B. James, purchased the first book for her interesting stamp collection from Mr. Nobles of Western Union.
It is the first time in Western Union's 89 years of business that anything of the kind has been provided for public use. The stamps all bearing the likeness of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, are in five denominations and colors. The numbers and descriptions of the new stamps as they will be chronicled for inclusion in Scott's U. S. Stamp catalogue are as follows: 16T99 T29 1 cent yellow green; 16T100 T29 2 cent chestnut; 16T101 T29 5 cent deep blue; 16T102 T29 10 cent orange; 16T103 T29 25 cent bright carmine. They are provided in books having a value of $2.50 and $5.00, designed to fit the pocketbooks of travelers, students, soldiers and others.
Issuance of the stamps now, according to Mr. Nobles, was arranged so as to be available for gifts at Christmas time but they will be useful when traveling, and as a convenience in meeting daily business and social correspondence as needs may arise.

Well, We're Back!
That's right! We're back at dear old G. H. S. to resume our normal operations. I mean "book worms" are back working—sports are back sporting—and Lab is still flirting. Oh!

But wait! What happened last Wednesday night in Washington—remember? The score was 13-12 in Washington's favor, and besides that, all the girls went on a rampage and brought the hearts of all Washington boys back to Greenville—more worry boys!

Limelighter Chosen
Betsy Hobgood, versatile senior, was chosen by the staff of "Green Lights" school paper, this morning to be the next "Limelighter" of the paper.
"Limelighter" is a column in which some student of high school, usually a senior, is featured. It is considered an honor to be chosen "Limelighter."

"Snag" Clark and Ralph Hunter will be co-featured on the sports page. Both boys play football and basketball.

Interviewed

Mrs. Jack Edwards, recently appointed publicity chairman for the Christmas Seal Sale, today interviewed J. H. Waldrop, above, president of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.
Mrs. Edwards asked Mr. Waldrop as president of the Tuberculosis Association, to express his opinion as to the importance of the Seal Sale campaign in the matter of tuberculosis control. Mr. Waldrop replied "For years I have been much interested in the control of tuberculosis, in fact, some three or four years ago, I interested a group of citizens in the matter of securing a sanatorium for Pitt county. A Pitt County Tuberculosis Sanatorium is still a dream which must come true. As to the importance of the Seal Sale campaign, it is the community's only means of raising funds for tuberculosis control in Pitt county. The sale is carried on under the sponsorship of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association and the money is spent through the Pitt County Health Department and the Pitt County Welfare Department.
"As I understand it, early diagnosis is the key to all tuberculosis control work. And since early diagnosis is dependent upon x-ray, the chief way in which the funds are raised in Pitt county is to offer free x-ray to all indigent or near indigent persons; in other words, persons who could not afford to have an x-ray made privately. My own feeling is that buying Christmas Seals or Christmas Bonds at this season is the ideal way for making a Christmas gift to some poor deserving patient. Aside from the humanitarian aspect of the matter as a business man, I know that money spent in the control of tuberculosis is, from the economic standpoint, money wisely spent."

struck a pedestrian, Henry W. Brown of Greenville, route four, and failed to stop. Patrolman Teague said the man would be charged with hit and run driving. Harrington was arrested about two hours after the collision. Brown was not badly injured.
State patrolmen were called to investigate another wreck about three miles west of Bethel on U. S. highway 64 yesterday morning about 11:30 o'clock. Patrolman Teague reported that one car driven by Percy Stalls of route four, Greenville, was headed in the direction of Bethel and another operated by Miss Ophelia Dove of Raleigh were involved in the accident. The officer reported that Mrs. Dove started to pass by Stalls car, but attempted to pull back when she saw she was meeting another car. In pulling back she struck the rear of the Stalls automobile. No one was injured and no arrest was made.
Paul Smith, Greenville Negro, is facing charges of hit and run, driving drunk and driving carelessly and recklessly. Officers reported that the Negro struck a parked car in Greenville last night and failed to stop. The collision was broadcast on the patrol radio and within a short while Smith was located and according to patrolmen, found to be under the influence of liquor.
