GREEKS CLOSING IN ON ITALIAN BASE AT VALONA

TOBRUK DEFENSE IS AUGMENTED BY FIELD GUNS

Ring Of Cannon Is Pounding Defense Of Libyan Port

ITALIANS FEEL LACK OF WATER

Members Of Garrison Brave Artillery Fire To Walk 3 Miles For Water Supplies

Cairo, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Big British field guns which helped crack Italian resistance at Bardia joined the ring of cannon pounding the defenses of the beleaguered Libyan port of Tobruk today.

Other British forces reported cutting off the important Fascist outpost at Giarrabub today.

The guns were pulled 70 miles across the sand from captured Bardia to increase the fire power being brought to bear on Tobruk's outer fortifications, including the garrison's vital wells.

Thousands of Italians cut off from reinforcements by the British band of steel around the city were believed to be in need of water, British reports said.

Some members of the garrison were reported to be walking as far as three miles through the heavy British artillery fire to get water.

At Giarrabub, on the other hand, water is plentiful, but the problem of supply is difficult even in peacetime and military forces said it is only a question of time before the outpost 150 miles due south of Bardia near the Egyptian border would fall.

The British said that thus far they had refrained from bombing the oasis since it contains buildings and relics sacred to the Senussi sect of fanatics. The Italian garrison there was believed to be less than a brigade.

Speaker's Assignment Of Measure To Foreign Relations Committee Upheld On Voice Vote After Military Committee Had Sought To Have Proposal Placed Under Its Control

Washington, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The administration won today the first congressional skirmish over its lease-lend bill for aiding Britain when the House upheld the procedure charted by the leadership for rushing consideration of the measure.

By a voice vote, Speaker Rayburn's assignment of the bill to the Foreign Relations committee was approved and an effort by the Military committee to bring the measure under its control was defeated. The vote was taken without debate. House rules permitting no argument on such an issue. The bill was the first involving the British aid bill introduced in the new Congress Friday. The outcome cleared the way for Chairman Bloom (D.N.Y.) of the Foreign Affairs committee to commence hearings tomorrow with Secretary Hull as the first witness.

Chairman May D.-Ky., had acted on instructions from his Military committee in moving that the speaker be overruled. He had contended that since the measure was concerned with national defense it should be referred to his committee. A short time before the House session started, Rayburn said that he "certainly would not oppose" a time limitation on powers granted in the bill "if the limit ran concurrently with the emergency."

Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee, and others have suggested that the extraordinary powers which would be assigned to the chief executive should be given only for a specific period. Some Republican leaders in the Senate have discussed proposing a two-year limit.

Willkie said last night he was for the administration's lend-lease proposal "with modifications." He also announced that he would go to England soon to make a personal study of needs and conditions there.

At the State Department today, Secretary Hull said he saw no objection to Willkie's proposed visit to England.

The secretary described the 1940 presidential candidate as an "outstanding figure and leader of public thought and as such entitled to visit the British Isles as a private citizen."

She is survived by two daughters, Miss Alya Ray Taylor of the home, and Mrs. Pauline Taylor Davis of Greenville, RFD; four sons, Frank, Jerry B., and Andrew, who reside near the old home place, and W. Clarence Taylor of Greenville; 13 grandchildren and a large number of nieces and nephews.

GERMAN PLANES ATTACK LONDON

Civilians, However, Join Firemen In Extinguishing Incendiary Bombs Dropped By Germans

London, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Day and night air attacks on both Axis allies from swooping assaults on troops in trenches near the German-held French coast to diving-bomb raids on oil refineries near Venice were reported by the Air Ministry today.

Night fliers, it said, hit at the harbors of Brest, Le Havre and Lorient, much-raided Nazi submarine bases, and at oil targets at Porto Marghera, in northeastern Italy the German city of Regensburg and the Belgian port of Ostend.

The daylight attacks on the German-held channel coast yesterday the fourth in four days, was pictured not only as an attempt to break up any Nazi invasion plans, but also as preparation for the time when Britain might feel strong enough to carry the fight to the continent.

Meanwhile German warplanes struck at London with another smashing "fire raid" last night, but hundreds of civilians pitched in to help firemen smother incendiary bombs and put down flames and the attack ended before midnight after three and one-half hours.

Other raiders mauled a town in southwest England for several hours and a government communique said "a small number of persons" was killed. Several places near the Thames estuary also were attacked.

Mass Meet Called On Pactolus Road

A mass meeting has been called for Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Pactolus school auditorium for a general discussion of plans for securing a hard-surface road between Greenville and Pactolus.

The call for the meeting was issued following the disclosure that the Greenville-Pactolus link had been removed from the new proposed primary road.

All Pactolus citizens, as well as interested Greenville citizens are urged to attend the meeting.

Mayor B. B. Sugg said that there was a good probability that the Greenville-Pactolus link would be put back on the primary route, which will extend to Farmville.

Flu Causes Many Schools To Close

Raleigh, Jan. 13 (AP)—Several schools in North Carolina were closed today because of influenza.

In Graham all city schools were closed until next Monday in an effort to prevent further spread of an influenza siege. The schools were closed last Thursday until this morning and then were closed again when it was learned that 372 pupils were out because of illness.

In Mecklenburg county, Ours high school with 200 absences and Hickory Grove high school, with more than 100 absences, closed indefinitely.

The public schools of Fayetteville and Cumberland county were ordered closed because of the prevalence of influenza. The schools will close at the end of today's classes and will reopen January 20. Around 800 children were absent from the city's white schools today and county absences have run as high as 61 per cent.

It is proposed to develop the airport with federal funds granted on the basis the project would be essential to national defense. Greenville is on a direct route from Langley Field, Va., to Fort Bragg.

Tear Gas Is Employed To Quell Strike Riots

Pickets And Officers Clash At Michigan Plant

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Police used tear gas to quell disorders at the gates of the Wilcox-Rich division plant of the Eaton Manufacturing Company this morning as CIO United Automobile Workers pickets and officers clashed.

At least seven persons, including two picketers and five policemen, were injured.

At East Lansing, Capt. Laurence Lyon of the State Police said he was holding a force of uniformed troopers in readiness to proceed to Saginaw in the event of a further outbreak.

Approximately 100 police and sheriff's deputies were on duty this morning as some plant employees attempted to make their way through the picket lines. Witnesses said the line suddenly began to mill with the police and deputies and police began firing tear gas shells from a nearby parking lot. Some of the shells were hurled back at the patrolmen.

CIO officials said a strike by UAW members in the plant had been called because the company had not rehired all of 300 men involved in a walkout several months ago. Herbert Russell, plant manager, said the company had taken back 60 of the men within the last 30 days.

The Eaton company manufactures automobile and airplane parts some of the latter on sub-contracts for national defense projects.

Files $10,000 Suit In Auto Collision

A $10,000 civil suit has been filed in Pitt Superior court in behalf of Miss Dorothy Mae Galloway, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leary Galloway of near Grimesland against Elwood R. Edwards and Carlos W. Murray trading as the Greenville wholesale Candy Company.

The case, filed by J. W. H. Roberts, attorney for the plaintiff, grew out of an automobile wreck on December 7, last year, at the intersection of Thirteenth street and the Vanceboro highway. The complaint alleges that Edwards was operating his car as the agent of the candy company and was driving in a careless and reckless manner when the car left the road and crashed into an electric pole.

It contends that Miss Galloway suffered serious and painful injuries and sustained permanent scars in the wreck. The plaintiff seeks $175 hospital and medical bills in addition to the $10,000.

Advance On Italians' Last Remaining Port Of Entry Into Southern Albania Declared To Be Greatest Offensive Of Conflict; Drive Declared To Be Divided In Three Spearheads

Athens, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Greek warriors, closing in on Valona, the Italians' only remaining port of entry into southern Albania, were reported sweeping forward without serious check today in what Greeks called the greatest offensive of the war.

The spearhead of the Greek drive was declared to have reached the vicinity of Tepeleni, ancient fortress town 10 miles southwest of captured Kilsura, and its fall was expected momentarily by authorities here.

There even were reports from the Yugoslav frontier that Tepeleni, the guardian sentinel of an Italian-built road leading a Valona, had already been captured, but this lacked official confirmation in Athens.

Further Greek advances were reported on the northern sector of the Albania battlefield in the Pogragetz sector with fierce hand-to-hand engagements in progress. A large number of Fascist pack mules were captured on this front, Greek services said, adding that the Italians' supply situation had become precarious there because it would be impossible to bring up additional animals through snow-clogged passes.

A Greek spokesman declared last night that the Greek drive had shaped into three spearheads; one toward Valona along the Tepeleni road, the second toward Valona along the coast where large new gains were reported and the third toward Berat and the central Albanian fields north of Kilsura, whose capture the Greeks announced last Friday.

It was a wonderful hour, and as we laughed over Al Johnson and his wisecracks, and sighed and sighed again over the magnificence of Ethel Barrymore, and then felt the wonder and beauty of something that lifts you right out of your seat when hearing Kirsten Flagstad in a Wagnerian opera, we realized that we had a gifted speaker with us, and one who had a keen appreciation and a real knowledge of the drama, as well as musical comedy and the opera. Speaks To College Assembly. President L. R. Meadows of the college spoke to the students at assembly Friday on what he called a Preview of 1941.

He sketched in the latest aspects of the situation in other parts of the world and commented on the various possibilities and the effect they would have on the United States. What ever the turn of events is to be, he said, 1941 will probably clarify the situation.

He spoke of the widespread interest felt in having some definite plan ready for the peace that must finally come, and referred to the one being proposed by "one of our own townsmen" for a World Federation.

Then turning to the nation, President Meadows said there would probably be two million men under arms in the United States in 1941, "for defense, we trust, and not war," and spoke of the probable "mount" of the national debt by the end of the year and the possibility of inflation in spite of government efforts to keep it down. His glance at possible events in the state included chiefly those in the education field, the governor's recommendations concerning tenure, a retirement system for state employees, an increase in salaries for teachers, and other matters in the field of education.

To Appear In Play. In try-outs at the college Friday night for the senior play, "Ramona," in which thirteen of the fourteen members of the cast were selected, three local seniors won places in the cast. The leading role, Ramona, will be played by Elizabeth Coppege, until recently of Greenville. William Ward James of Winterville will take the role of Felipe, an Italian Abeyonist that of Margarita. Others selected for the various parts were David Breese of Raleigh as Alessandro; Irene Mitcham of Goldsboro, for the mother of Felipe; Martha Wheelless of Lenoir, Bill Davidson of Plymouth, Lera Smith of Vanceboro, Virginia; Vernon Keutenmeyer of Chicago Heights, Ill., a Franciscan monk; Mervin Frazele of Richlands, cousin to Alessandro; Lydia Piner of New Bern and George Heafner of Lincolnton as settlers in the community.

Judges for the try-outs were the class advisers, Miss Velma Lowe and E. R. Browning, and a dramatics club adviser, Miss Lena Ellis. The play will be directed by Clifton Britton. It will be given on Friday and Saturday night, February 21 and 22.

Since that time they have played together regularly, and for three years they have been playing in joint recitals.

According to Miss Ola Ross, chairman of the E. C. T. C. entertainment committee, a section of seats will be reserved for season ticket holders so that individual seats will not need to be reserved. Christian Science Church. "Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, January 12.

Golden text: II Cor. 13:14. "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore; but the disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Then Jesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They answered him, No. Jesus saith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord." (John 21:4, 5, 12).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "What a contrast between our Lord's last supper and his last spiritual breakfast with his disciples in the bright morning hours at the joyful meeting on the shore of the Galilean Sea! This spiritual meeting with our Lord in the dawn of a new light is the morning meal which Christian Scientists commemorate. They bow before Christ, Truth, to receive more of his reappearing and silently to commune with the divine Principle, Love. They celebrate their Lord's victory over death, his probation in the flesh after death, his exemplification of human probation, and his spiritual and final ascension above matter, or the flesh, when he rose out of material sight."

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
January 13, 1901

This is the last day of Russellism. The increase in the congressional representation is only additional expense to the government for little purpose. Of course, as it is going we want our share, and would kick if we didn't get it, but a general reduction would have been just as acceptable.

Plans for the new library building at Trinity College, presented by Mr. J. B. Duke of New York, have been accepted and work will begin as soon as the weather will permit. The building will probably be situated inside the circular enclosure, facing the driveway on the west. Judging from the plans, the building will be a handsome one, and will add very materially to the appearance of the campus.

new year at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery, at Sheppard Memorial Library.

For the first time since the opening of the gallery instruction is offered to adults in drawing and painting. This plan comes as a result of requests for such a class. Anyone interested may attend. The class will meet each Tuesday at 10 a. m., beginning January 14.

This class will be taught by Miss Hilda L. Ogburn, director of the gallery. Miss Ogburn has had extensive training and experience in art. From early days of instruction secured in private studio classes, completion of the courses in the art department of Converse College, three years' study at the Art Students' League of New York City, her instructors and critics include Guy Pene DuBois, George Luks, George Bridgman, Haley Lever, Allen Lewis, Robert Henri, Boardman Robinson, Maurice Sterne, Francis Speight and Elliot O'Hara. She had several years' experience in free lance art work and in teaching private classes in her own studio and in the Greensboro Federal Art Project prior to becoming director of the Greenville Gallery.

In line with the policies of the WPA state art project all instruction offered at the gallery is free of charge. Students are, however, required to furnish the supplies with which they work.

To Present Play At College. A large number of tickets to the performance of "Alice in Wonderland" sponsored by the local chapter of the American Association of University Women for the afternoon of February 3 were delivered last week to patrons in several literary and civic clubs of Greenville, and this week tickets will be delivered to other patrons who have pledged their support to the performance.

The A. A. U. W. and other patrons believe that the dramatization of one of the favorites among children's books offers a rare opportunity for Greenville children, and they are arranging for Austen Hall to be crowded to its capacity by children eagerly watching Alice and her friends transformed into living characters by actors from the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre of New York.

Mrs. Clare Tree Major is recognized as the world's foremost authority on theatres for children, and enjoy the privilege of seeing a theatrical production marked by beauty of color, action and speech. The performance was presented to a packed house and delighted audience.

Parents who wish to secure tickets for their own children or for underprivileged children should get in touch with Mrs. R. J. Slay, A. A. U. W. chairman for sale of tickets.

To Visit College. Two leaders of Baptist young people of the state will be on the campus of East Carolina Teachers College tomorrow when W. Perry Crouch of Raleigh, secretary of the department of Christian Education of the Baptist State Convention, and the newly appointed state student secretary, John Lawrence, visit the college.

The two visitors will be guests at an open house at the Baptist Student Center in the afternoon, and at 6:30 will join the Baptist students on the campus in an evening program.

The new state secretary, a graduate of Wake Forest law school, has been a member of a law firm in Raleigh for the past year. Mr. Crouch is already known on the campus, as he was the quarterly speaker for the Y. W. C. A. at the college last year.

Library News

Books You Talk About

Many of the new books you talk about and are eager to read are to be found on the shelves of the Sheppard Memorial Library. The staff is ever alert to give to the patrons the newest and best in fiction and non-fiction. A most timely book and one that is receiving much favorable comment, "Where Do We Go From Here?" by Harold Laski, has been ordered and is expected to be put on the shelf this week. The author is a distinguished Englishman, a social philosopher and Labor party leader. He begs England to give her people a democracy with a new and deeper content, saying that "the road to a victory for democracy lies not merely in the affirmation of its historic procedures, but in the effective enlargement of the ends for which these are used. It is in its power to organize the enlargement of those that the British government will provide the true measure of its determination to overthrow the tyranny of Fascism."

Other books being talked about now are: Kenneth Roberts "Oliver Wiswell." A book that Clifton Fadiman says is the "Gone With the Wind" of the American Revolution. It is a novel of action and character, whose hero, a Loyalist, is a man of steadfastness and idealism.

Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls," a story whose scene is laid in the horror that was the war with Spain. Robert Jordan, a young American, carries out his commander's orders, but is wounded doing so. His companions leave him, but in the four days that follow he finds romance, and all is well. The author can see and describe with a precision and a vividness unmatched among today's writers.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "The Wave of the Future." A confession of faith. A positive faith for the future, for those bewildered by the bitter world events of our time, can be supplied only by one who knows that courage is vital in our daily lives, who believes in the poise of faith against fear. This is a sincere and heartfelt confession.

Inglis Fletcher's "Raleigh's Eden." A book about the golden era before the Revolution, the scene of which is laid along the coast of North Carolina. A romantic existence in a strangely glamorous land, where pirates roved the neighboring seas.

Thomas Wolfe's "You Can't Go Home Again." A novel about a modern who found himself. An intensely autobiographical book. The author expresses in superb language the idea that one must go forward in life, that there is no return to the things that were, however dear to us they may have been.

M. Lincoln Schuster's "A Treasury of the World's Great Letters." An anthology of all the great letters of the past and present, that have made history and literature.

Carson McCullers' "The Heart is a Lonely Hunter." The story of a deaf-mute who lived in a small southern town. Through his simple goodness and inarticulate pity people are comforted by confiding in him their troubles.

SAYS HIS BILL HAS NO CHANCE

Legrand Thinks Bill Is Good, But Feels It Is Lost

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 11.—Jack LeGrand, New Hanover representative, entertains no illusions whatever about the workings of the legislative mill and collective mind.

"That's a good bill which ought to pass, but it won't and that's the last I'll probably hear about it," he remarked to a reporter as he sent up a bill to shorten the legislative session by prohibiting introduction of any bill after the fortieth legislative day without consent of four-fifths of the House members. Speaker Odus Knull sent it to Judiciary I, and there Mr. LeGrand expects it to die.

A moment later, Mr. LeGrand sent forward a bill, very drastic in its provisions, to "curtail and punish subversive activities."

When the Speaker referred it to the committee on penal institutions, it looked bad for this bill too.

The measure is sweeping in its provisions: "It shall be unlawful for any person by word of mouth or writing, willfully and deliberately to advocate, advise or teach a doctrine that the government of the United States, the State of North Carolina or any political subdivision thereof shall be overthrown or overturned by force or violence or by any unlawful means."

It also prohibits use of any public buildings for any such purpose. First violation would be a misdemeanor, second a felony.

Strength For The Day
By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HE ADMIRER BUT ABSTAINED
'Do not send me away; I do so love beauty,' said the scheming beggar to Girard in 'The Cloister and the Hearth.' 'Thou lovest honesty!' said Girard in astonishment. 'Aye,' said the villain. 'Not to exact it—the saints forbid! But to look on it.' 'Tis so fair a thing to look on!'

Here was a man who admired one thing and practiced another. His whole life was a lie, but he regarded honesty as a beautiful thing and loved to see it in the lives of others. His modern counterpart is the man who tells you what a charitable person his mother was, yet does nothing to relieve the world of need round about him. Or he boasts the fact that his grandfather was a preacher, yet himself never enters the doorway of a church. It can truthfully be said that no group of people admire virtue more than the people who never practice it. They seem to get a vicarious satisfaction out of observing in others the qualities of character which they lack. It need hardly be said that this is spiritually debilitating. To know what is right and not to act upon it, damages will power and renders one incapable of following his best impulses. The man who says of any virtue, 'It is so fair a thing to look on,' and then does nothing to build that virtue into his life, has substituted fantasy for reality, day-dreaming for practical living. MEANINGLESS WORDS
Japan's Foreign Minister, Yosuke Matsuoka, asserted that if Japan and the United States mind their own business, there will be no serious clashes between them.

What a vague, meaningless assertion where great international issues are at stake!

Just what is the "business" of these two countries in the Orient? Up to date the "minding of its own business" by Japan has been the violation of the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922 to which the United States is a signatory. It has done this by having already seized the "Empire of Manchukuo;" by occupying China, thus destroying the Open-Door Policy enunciated by Secretary Hay in 1900, and is now extending its dominance, by force of arms, over Eastern Asia and the Southwestern Pacific to include French Indo-China, Burma and Thailand. For some time the young Japanese, encouraged by the military clique, have spoken grandiloquently of adding India, the Philippines, the East Indies and Australia.

During this period of "minding its own business" by breaking treaties, looting, and laying groundwork for extending its imperialistic policy throughout Asia, Japan is said to have violated the American rights and interests more than 700 times. Some of these violations were trivial, such as the closing of an office of the United States and the seizure of

One Corner That Needs Cutting

United States cargo in a warehouse.

Other violations of a more serious character included the sinking of the Panay, a U. S. gunboat; the exclusion of American nationals from Inner Mongolia; the destruction of American business in North China; the closing of the Yangtze river to all but Japanese vessels, and slapping a woman who was a United States citizen by a Japanese sentry. All these, and more, were violations of basic rights of Americans to reside, travel, trade, and work in China without interference on the part of the Japanese.

Until within the past nine months, the United States has been somewhat lax in "minding its own business." Despite the violation of the Nine-Power Treaty, the Briand-Kellogg Pact, the ignoring of the Open-Door Policy, the violation of fundamental rights of the United States in China, and our extensive interests in Eastern Asia and our commerce in the Pacific waters, which in 1937 was valued at $1,700,000, the United States has done little else than enter protests.

Not until Tokyo became a part of the Berlin-Rome Axis did the United States take any step to "mind its own business" in the Orient. These steps included the tightening of the embargo on the shipment of a few war materials to Japan, such as aviation gasoline and scrap iron; a loan of $100,000,000 to China; the ordering of citizens of the United States in the Far East to return home, and the sending of a part of our navy to the Philippines and the waters near Singapore.

In the opinion of many American publicists, the United States must continue to "mind its own business" in the Orient by seeing to it that Japan obeys treaties, respects the status quo, and the Open-Door Policy. (Scottish Rite News).

Firm Needs New Capital. Oklahoma City, Okla.—(AP)—Civic-minded Oklahoma Cityans hope that a toy manufacturer catches up soon with time in its flight. For at least two years he has been selling a jigsaw puzzle map that shows Guthrie as the capital of Oklahoma. The matter was called to attention by the maps continue to appear on the toy markets. Washington Daybook
By Preston Grover

Washington—Art came from the people and in the United States at least, it seems to be going back to the people. When the great doors swing open here on the late Andrew W. Mellon's $15,000,000 National Gallery of Art, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public will walk between the towering columns, stand in a rotunda that stretches 100 feet to the vaulted dome, and take over one of the world's greatest collections of paintings and sculpture.

The National Gallery is a staggering windowless expanse of pinkish-white Tennessee marble that runs along between Constitution and Pennsylvania avenues within half-Pennsylvania distance of the Capitol. Even in a city that contains buildings whose floor-space can be measured only in acres, the National Gallery is an eye-stopper.

But what is in it is far more arresting and many times more valuable than the building itself. For Mr. Mellon not only gave the building to the nation but threw in, to boot, 122 great paintings and numerous pieces of fine sculpture, valued in the neighborhood of $55,000,000.

More Gifts Followed. Augmenting this within a few months, Samuel H. Kress, the New York five-and-dime tycoon, announced his gift to the Gallery of 375 paintings by the old Italian masters and more sculpture. And more recently still, Joseph E. Widener, heir of traction magnate Peter A. B. Widener in Philadelphia, announced that he would strip the walls and pedestals of Lynnewood, his ancestral home at Elkins Park, Pa., further to enrich the museum. It is next to impossible to place any dollar-and-cents value on art, but guesses are that when the National Gallery opens, the buildings and its contents will represent an outlay of between one hundred and two hundred million dollars.

Here will be Rembrandt's "The Mill," for which it is reported the elder Widener paid England's Lord Lansdowne a tidy half million, and which has been called one of the world's greatest pictures. There will be 22 other Rembrandts including his "Descent from the Cross," "The Man with a Tall Hat" and "Lady with Ostrich Feather Fan." There will be Vermeers, El Grecos, and Titians; Manet's great painting "The Dead Toreador," and works of Renoir and Degas.

From the Widener collection will come one of the world's finest groups of canvases by Van Dyck, the Flemish portrait painter of the 17th century.

Reunion of Raphaels. By a happy circumstance, the Gallery will bring together again two famous Raphaels which often are mentioned in the same breath but long have been separated. The Mellon collection contains the famous "Cowper Madonna," and from the Widener collection, the Gallery also gets the "Little Cowper Madonna." The list is almost endless and I have only begun to mention paintings—and no sculpture at all—which for centuries have set itching the fingers of private collectors and museum directors.

With Mellon's marble temple of art buttressed by the Phillips Memorial Gallery (modern art), the Free Gallery (Whistler and Japanese art) the Library of Congress (Pennell), the Corcoran Gallery and the hundreds of murals in the gov-

Short Shots

By HENRY AVERILL and LYNN HESBET
Raleigh, Jan. 13.—The legislature will almost certainly enact most, if not all, the liberalizing amendments to the Unemployment Compensation act suggested recently by the U.C.C. council; but there's one thing it cannot do—although there has been editorial suggestion that it ought to—and that is to advance the date upon which employers can benefit through the "merit rating" system of taxes.

The fact that certain other states now that such merit ratings in effect has brought about a misapprehension of the situation in some quarters. It is obvious that some states where the benefits are actually accruing to the employers acted much earlier than did North Carolina, where the "merit system" was provided for by the 1939 General Assembly; because under Federal law it is impossible to make the system operative until sufficient funds have been paid in after the law's passage to reach 7.5 per cent of the employer's payroll.

That can't happen here until January 1, 1942—and so there's nothing the present General Assembly can do about it.

The opinions of the Attorney General just released, are likely to lead to legislation designed to change the existing law. They are: (1) School buses cannot legally be used to transport athletic teams to or from contests. With athletics so much a part of the school curriculum—or generally regarded as a statutory permission of this use of buses seems in order. (2) Soldiers living off a Federal reservation in a county should be required to list their property to taxation and to list their poll taxes.

Meeting Saturday only because the constitution requires daily meetings, the senate and house vied with each other for short sessions. For the first time the house won the honor, adjourning in about two minutes, while the senate was in session nearly four. One was remarked that the only difference was that Parson Jerome prayed a little longer than Parson Jordan. By motion adopted Friday legislation was limited to local matters, and none was introduced or considered in either house. The score was: No hits, no runs, no errors.

Although under the law legislators may draw their pay at the rate of ten dollars a day every day, beginning with the opening date, until they have drawn the limit of $600.00, when the clerk's offices closed for the week early Saturday afternoon none had been paid off. Most of the members usually keep pretty well up to date in the pay account, but there have been instances when it was allowed to accumulate and the whole $600.00 drawn at one clip. Rich members have been known to forget to draw their money and it had to be sent to them by mail.

Magic Spring

Yesterday: A good many things have complicated what seems to David Wiley a pretty simple proposition — he loves Polly, and Polly loves him, and they should marry. But Polly just has lost her job, and David has his young cousin, Peter, on his hands, and Margo Powers, daughter of David's boss, back in town showing a favor over all the place. So Polly says the wedding must be postponed indefinitely.

CHAPTER 11 Peter Falls

Polly watched him disappear into the shadows of the tree-tunneled street. A film of tears came to her eyes. She told herself that she had done the right thing. David ought to be free to marry someone who could be a great help to him; someone like Margo Powers, for instance. It wasn't right for a girl who was as poor as a church mouse to hold on to a man like a leech.

She got up and went into the house. "That you, Polly?" Aunt Susan called from her bedroom. "Yes, Aunt Susan— Anything wrong?" "My stomach's hurting me again," said Aunt Susan. "Would you fill the hot water bottle and bring it to me?"

"Yes, Aunt Susan," said Polly. She went out to the kitchen. And as she put the kettle on, she found a note pinned to the hot water bottle she had filled. It was horrible — horrible — horrible. Hot water bottles for this aunt and that aunt, for this uncle and that uncle. She had probably put enough water in hot water bottles to fill that swimming pool out at Freddy's Polly.

For her was just one hot water bottle after another — On and on — Endlessly — surprise Cousin David by walking without the brace.

He unfastened the last buckle, the last strap. He leaped against an old hair-cloth cover which he had slipped out of the contraction of iron and leather. Then, when he was free of it, he straightened up, drew himself to his full height. He slowly let his weight down upon the shrunken limb—carefully, cautiously—glancing now and then at the man on the horse.

One step forward—and such a feeble little step; two steps, three And then it happened. He toppled over into a heap upon the rough surface of the faded carpet. And there he lay, a crumpled small form sobbing—sobbing—

It was thus that David found him when he came in a few minutes later. "Peter!" he called. He ran forward, sank to the floor and gathered the small boy in his arms. "Peter—don't cry like that! You mustn't!"

Peter looked up, his eyes swimming in tears, with difficulty he got hold of himself. "I—I wanted to practice walking—without—that—thing," he said brokenly, glancing toward the iron brace. "I—I wanted to get so I could ride like my great-great-great-something-or-other. I wanted to—s-s-surprise you, Cousin David, and—and have you come home one day and find me—walking—like other boys."

David couldn't think of anything to say for a moment. "All he could do was to hold the boy close to him. "Listen, Peter," he said finally. "It takes time to learn to do without the brace. Don't try to rush it. I'm just as certain as I can be that you'll be—well like other boys one of these days. Don't let it worry you. You're David's boy, just as you are."

"Ge, Cousin David," Peter said, brushing the back of his hand across his eyes. "I sure don't know what I'd do without you."

"Forget it!" David said brusquely. He got up and opened the boy over to a chair. "Now," he said, "I've got some good news for you. Mr. Seawell's given us a lot of pipe to fix up the swimming pool." "You—you mean we can fix it so's we can take swims?" he asked.

"Yes," said David. "The lawyer tore down an old house, he owned and he told me I could have the plumbing fixtures. There's a lot of pipe we can use to replace the rusty ones out at the Inn. Before you can say Jack Robinson, we'll be diving into that pool and having us a world of fun."

"Ge!" It was all Peter could say. He began putting the brace back on. David held the pipe over to him. "Now," said David, "I've got fix ourselves some supper. Let's go to put on my white pants and dark coat—and keep a date."

"Oh, boy," said Peter. "I bet you look swell all dressed up. Just like a picture in a magazine." He followed David out to the kitchen. "I'll be right back," he said. "I wonder if I'll ever be able to ride a horse."

He was wondering that now, as he stood in the parlor gazing up at the painting. He studied the crimson-clad right leg of his ancestor, that leg that looked so strong and well-shaped, and then glanced down at his own right leg. He touched the iron brace that reached from ankle to thigh, and shook his head slowly.

"No," he told himself. "I guess a fellow with this on couldn't even get onto a horse, much less ride him. Then he suddenly made a decision. He reached down and began to unfasten the straps and buckles of the brace. We was there in the house all by himself, and it was a good time to try walking unaided. He had been told not to walk without the brace, but if he was ever to learn to do without it, he had to start practicing. Cousin David was at home from the lumber plant for a little while yet, and there was no one to stop him from doing what he felt he should do. Just think how swell it would be, if he could start practicing in secret, and

Hopson Sentenced

Howard C. Hopson (above), once head of the billion dollar Associated Gas and Electric system, arrives at Federal court in New York to be sentenced on conviction of mail fraud. He was sentenced to five years imprisonment on each of the 17 mail fraud counts of which he was convicted December 31, the sentences running concurrently.

three go out there Saturday afternoon. I'll have a look at what you and Polly have done, and start fixing the pipes for the pool."

Peter looked up from setting the table. "Even if I can't ever learn to ride a horse," he said. "I guess I can learn to swim. Cant I, Cousin David?"

"Of course you can!" David said. "As of folks like me," Peter went on, "can swim well with their arms—even if they don't have good legs."

"Your legs are going to be all right," David said, placing several slices of bacon in an iron frying pan. "But swimming mostly with your arms will develop them—and your shoulders, too. You'll grow up to be one of these athletic-looking men, with narrow hips, and great wide shoulders. A football player; that's what you'll be, Peter!"

"Ge!" said Peter. "Then maybe I can have a horse, and—and—ride in parades?"

"Parades?" said David. "Why parades?"

"Cause I can wear a sword like my great-great-great-something-or-other," said Peter. "Ge. I'd like to see myself sitting on a horse with a sword strapped to my side!"

"You will," said David. Then he gave all his attention to preparing the evening meal.

Going dancing with Margo Powers—Ardendale's glamour girl and Ardendale's stay-at-home—going places together—Margo had driven out to the plant that afternoon—She had looked him up.

"Since you've never telephoned to ask me to go dancing," she had said, "here I am. I'm asking you. After all, we modern girls have to take the bull by the horns when a young man is so reluctant."

What could a man do after that but give in? Nothing, David decided. So he had said, "Okay, I'll be ready." He now put the food on the table, and he and Peter sat down to eat.

Greenville Baseball Directors Meet Tomorrow Night

PLANS FOR '41 TO BE MAPPED

Unfinished Business For Past Year To Be Considered

A meeting of the board of directors and other officers of the Greenville Baseball Club, Inc., has been called for the Proctor Hotel tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock, at which time plans for the coming year will be discussed.

No definite decisions have been reached regarding the operation of the club this year, although there is no doubt that Greenville again will answer the call when the season opens.

In addition to discussion of plans for the 1941 season, a number of business matters held over from the past season are to come before the board and each member is urged to be present for the discussions.

D. C. Moore, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the club, has written each member of the board and officer urging him to make plans to be at the meeting.

Fountain Wins From Walstonburg Teams

Fountain High School won a doubleheader basketball game with Walstonburg.

Gardner and Owens were high scorers for the boys' game, which was 25-23 in favor of Fountain. Dildy and Barfield were high scorers for Walstonburg. Galloway and Bell led the Fountain girls, with the score 18-15, in favor of Fountain. J. Dildy and Walston were high scorers for the Walstonburg girls.

Grifton Girls Team Gets Win Over Pros

Grifton high lassies captured the long end of the score 17-7 Friday night to defeat the strong professional Women's team recently organized here.

Agnes Gardner with nine points was tops for the winners. Sugg was outstanding on defense.

Cole, with four, and Blue with two, were tops for the Pros.

Coach Hodges used 20 players against the pros.

Tonight Grifton will engage Ayden High for a double-header. This is slated to be a good game because the schools are great rivals and the Grifton boys will be seeking their sixth consecutive win of the season.

Rio Grande Carries Salt Into Gulf

El Paso—(AP)—The Rio Grande through its several tributaries deposits five tons of salt into the Gulf of Mexico every minute, according to a survey by engineers of the International boundary commission.

In a single day the river deposits the equivalent of 1,420 five-ton truck loads of salt into the gulf, the survey found.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—Sometimes on my wanderings at night I encounter my friend the police doctor. Such encounters are fortunate, for then I go with him on strange calls that lead into little known byways and alleyways of New York, where life is not always the same as that known to the dwellers of the main thoroughfares.

Sometimes it may be an automobile accident, again it may be a shooting. Once it was a gangster who turned out to be a bookworm. He had been shot. As the police doctor bent over him to ascertain his wounds, he murmured, "They're all wrong about life just beginning at 40, Doc, it's over by 25. After you reach 25, nothing really matters at all."

Last night we hurried to the vicinity of the second arch of the great Brooklyn bridge. On Rose street, it was. We found an old woman who had fainted—or at least she had collapsed on the torn sidewalk. At the hospital they said she had...

It was one of those long Latin names and I can't remember it, but from what the doctor said she was a victim of hallucinations and fainting spells. It had something to do with thinning blood.

In one of the wards we saw a pretty girl, about 22. She seemed perfectly normal, except that she craved paper bracelets. She had scores of hand-made bracelets on her arm, and her room was filled with them. When the doctors found her in her apartment, she had thousands of paper bracelets lining the walls and stacked on her dresser.

The neighbors said she sat all day, murmuring funny words and cutting out paper bracelets. She will be held at the hospital for a long period of observation. The doctors are puzzled.

A week or so ago this column lamented the fact that not a single serious drama was to be observed on Broadway today—a phenomenal state of affairs for so late in the season. Fortunately, Miss Ethel Barrymore and a worthy supporting cast of players have made a liar of us with "The Corn Is Green," an exhilarating event and one that does much to lessen the sting of disappointment over the season's many failures.

One had hoped that with Miss Barrymore showing the way, others would take the cue, but unfortunately Broadway has not seen fit to mend its ways further. Subsequent openings have been dreary affairs with the less said about them the better. With two notable exceptions, 1940 has been a lean one for the drama. Maybe now that it's after New Year's the old street will take a new lease on life.

"Some of you guys ought to tip the SPCA off about the facts of life as regards our fiddle players," suggests Vladimir Selinsky, the violinist and concert master. "Take this fiddle here. Every time I draw my bow across the strings three dead sheep and one equally dead horse turn over in their graves."

Selinsky explained that fiddle strings were made from the intestines of sheep, not cats; that 150 hairs from a horse's tail were required for one fiddle bow; that the stringed instruments of most symphonic orchestras necessitated the mass demise of more than a hundred sheep; that for every tom-tom pig had to die, and for every drum an innocent little baby calf had to be snuffed out. It's enough to make one lose faith in the fundamental goodness of human nature.

With the coming of the new year we should resolve to read more. New books are arriving periodically at the library. If there is a book which you would like to read and it is not in your Carver Library, tell the librarian about it and she will make an attempt to get it for you.

Tiny Newcomer Bowls 'Em Over

Eddie Alton, tiny netter from Rollins College at Winter Park, Fla., pulled upsets galore in the Dixie tennis tournament at Tampa, Fla., and this is a sample of the vigorous swing he puts into play. Here he is knocking off Bob by Rigos in a semi-final match. He beat the one-time national champion Riggs in five sets.

relative to raising funds for meeting incidental expenses of the library. Those present were Chairman I. M. Donnell, Mrs. E. B. Graves, Mrs. Belle Atkinson, librarian, W. P. Norcott, Dr. J. A. Battle and Rev. J. L. King.

A number of persons have expressed a desire to make a donation to the library and have asked some of our immediate needs. For the benefit of these and other persons we are citing the following needs: A bulletin board, furniture oil, floor mop, picture frame and flashlight.

GRIFTON BOYS TAKE 5TH WIN

Defeat Duplin County Team By Score Of 22-19

On Friday night the hard-fighting fast-breaking, undefeated captives of Coach F. H. Hodges took their fifth straight win of the season by defeating a strong Duplin county team 22-19 for the second loss of the season for the Kenansville quint coached by Woodrow Taylor, a former Grifton High player.

Sam McLawhorn and S. McLawhorn were high scorers for the winners with seven points each. Smith with five, Price two, and Wade one, were outstanding on defense for the locals.

FEW FARMERS ON N.C. BOARDS

Commission Composed Mainly Professional Men

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 11.—Although North Carolina is approximately fifty per cent rural, even when towns of 2,500 are counted as urban, analysis of the public boards and commissions appointed to handle the people's business shows that farmers are almost ignored, and that business men run a very poor second to the professions.

Sometime ago questionnaires were sent out to eighty four such boards and commissions asking for report of the occupations and residence of board members. Fifty nine responses were received, while 25 failed to respond either because of inability to supply the information or lack of inclination to do so.

These 59 boards have a total membership of 471, of which 296 are listed as professional men or women, 147 as business and 28 as farmers. Residential classification is slightly more favorable to the country, as 31 listed rural residence against 440 in towns and cities. The conclusion is that business and farming interests are either intentionally overlooked or they are insufficiently organized for adequate

WORK STARTED BY LOBBYISTS

Legislators To Get Many 'Feeds' During Session

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 13.—This bureau recently mentioned Harry Buchanan's biennial distribution of theater passes to legislators as the first overt act of lobbying at this session.

Next was the barbecue and steak supper for the Senate, given Friday.

The situation is the more striking when it is remembered that any farming and business enterprise produce anything. Essential as professions may be, no lawyer or preacher or doctor actually produces or creates any wealth. Obviously interests should take notice that they must be actively organized to insure pro rata treatment in such appointments.

day night by Alexander Webb, who is deeply interested in insurance and industrial banking—and legislation affecting them.

These are only the beginning however, and will be followed all through the session by numerous other forms of "eating" entertainment.

No full and thorough investigation has been made by this corner, and so there probably are numerous scheduled feeds omitted; but among those to come are: (1) An oyster roast for all General Assembly members by the Wake County Food Dealers Association (who are vitally interested in the proposal to exempt food for home consumption from the sales tax).

This will be Tuesday night at the Pine State Creamery.

(2) The big dinner and speechifying of the North Carolina League of Municipalities which will be held some time later in the session, the exact date escaping this reporter's memory. The League maintains one of the most vigorous lobbying units of them all and has a many-point program which it is pushing this time.

(3) Banquet of the advocates of a bigger adult education program—exact title of this organization isn't recalled—which will sometime this month dine 'em and din 'em with the many benefits of the program for teaching the 'old folks' their three "R's".

(4) The January 30 session of the legislature in Chapel Hill, maneuvered through the House by a member, John Umstead who in his time was one of the "Big Four" or North Carolina's pressure boys. There is more than a suggestion that the interests of the University are behind this junket.

The Indian population of Arizona is 51,800, the 1940 census showed.

Americans spend around $80,000,000 a year on doughnuts.

CHESTERFIELD'S FREE OFFER HAS NATIONAL APPEAL

"TobaccoLand, U. S. A."—probably the most complete picture-story of tobacco farming and cigarette manufacture ever published—is offered free to the public by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company in its new Chesterfield cigarette campaign.

The new 42-page, 14-inch book illustrates the growing, curing and processing of tobacco, as well as scenes from the typical life of the southern tobacco country, with over 100 large photographs and drawings and interesting story captions. It is already in use by colleges and libraries in many parts of the country, and the public offer has been made as a result of this great demand.

Copies of the book will be sent to individuals or groups on request to Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The new Chesterfield campaign, to appear in newspapers from coast to coast, features such celebrities as Ann Sheridan and Ellen Drew of motion picture fame, Carol Bruce of the New York musical hit "Louisiana Purchase" and Mary Jane Yeo and Jo Ann Dean, star skaters from "It Happens On Ice."

Brilliant new point-of-scale dealer displays will follow the colorful Chesterfield Christmas displays now in dealers' windows, and the new schedule will also be supported by national billboard showings.

The popular Chesterfield radio shows, Fred Waring's "Pleasure Time" and Glenn Miller's "Moonlight Serenade" will continue to entertain millions of listeners on coast to coast networks.

Liner Is Aground Off Florida Coast

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Coast Guard cutter Mojave tried unsuccessfully today to refloat the United States liner Manhattan, which went aground some 250 yards off the beach last night.

It appeared that the assistance of the tug Warbler, coming here from Key West, might be needed to free the ship.

The sea had calmed early today after a night of eight-foot rollers. Coast Guardsmen said there was no imminent peril threatening the 200 passengers and 556 crew members aboard when the 24,285-ton ship went aground last night.

District Poultry Meet On Tuesday

A large crowd is expected to attend the annual district poultry short course to be held at the Woman's club building here tomorrow from 10 a. m. until 3 p. m.

Thirteen Eastern Carolina counties are represented in the district and a large delegation from each is expected.

The conference will get under way at 10 a. m., with an address of welcome by Mayor B. B. Sugg. Discussions will be led by prominent extension experts as follows: C. F. Parrish, Dr. Roy S. Dearstyne, Dr. C. H. Bostain and T. T. Brown. The morning meeting will be followed by a luncheon recess at 12 o'clock with the afternoon conferences to begin at 1:15 o'clock.

Immediately following the conferences, an egg show will be held with valuable prizes to be offered for the best dozen of white and brown shell eggs. Five prizes will be awarded in each division.

County Agent R. E. Bennett today issued the following suggestions in selecting eggs for the show:

"In selecting eggs for the egg show, choose the ones that are uniform in shape, size, color and weight.

"Each egg should weigh at the rate of 24 to 26 ounces per dozen (Don't choose extremely large eggs.)

"Eggs should be free from dirt or stains and have firm, smooth and fine texture shells free from chips or cracks.

"It is advisable to candle the eggs so as to select ones with clear, firm whites, small air cells, and mobile but dimly visible yolks. All eggs selected should be free of blood spots or meat spots.

"An entry consists of one dozen eggs.

"They will be displayed in paper plates.

"There will be a class for white eggs and one for brown eggs."

Contributions Asked By Tar Heel College

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jones, presidents and founders of Pineland College and Edwards Military Institute, Salem, N. C., are making an appeal to their friends and friends of the institution, for funds.

The recently built, beautiful, up-to-date auditorium has just burned to the ground. With the going of this building went the library of over fifteen thousand volumes, and other valuable. The fire destroyed a baby grand piano, the musical instruments of the military band, and all the fixtures of the auditorium and library. It is impossible to erect another building without aid.

The loss sustained was $75,000 with only $12,500 insurance. It is imperative that the auditorium be rebuilt at once, and the library be restored. Donations from any individual for any amount will be gratefully received. If ever there was a need for help from the Christians and good citizens of North Carolina it seems that this is one for these people have worked without salary and given their all to the institution. The school is non-sectarian.

Contributions should be sent to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jones, Salem, N. C.

AFL Will Defend Rights To Strike

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor gave Congress to understand today that it would fight any attempts to legislate away labor's right to strike in defense production.

Although saying that its members were ready to "make sacrifices" for preparedness, the Federation asserted that it would be "suicidal" to "abandon democracy" while building an invulnerable military defense for the United States.

The statements were made in connection with the AFL's annual legislative recommendations.

Mull Stays Neutral On Reapportionment

Raleigh, Jan. 13 (AP)—Speaker Mull of the House of Representatives said today he planned to take no sides in any differences in the legislation over reapportionment of membership.

"I'm a Democrat," said Mull. "Thus far I have stuck close to the party and plan to adhere strictly to what the party leaders decide in reapportionment."

State Democratic Chairman E. B. Denny continued conferences with legislators on the matter as the opinion grew that the new twelfth district would be carved out present tenth and eleventh districts.

Today's Close Call

Butte, Mont.—(AP)—Theodore Cerise was driving toward Butte when alone came a car traveling in the opposite direction.

The other car hooked Cerise's back bumper and whirled the machine over an embankment that dropped, straight down, 250 feet.

End over and plunged the car, to the timing of a broken glass and crumpling fenders.

At last it came to rest at the bottom of the precipice.

Then out stepped Cerise, carrying in one hand an unbroken bottle of milk and with only a small scratch on his finger as evidence of his narrow brush with death.

Carson City, Nev., is the smallest capital city in the United States.

The world's tallest tree is reputed to be one near Dyerville, Calif.
