TOBRUK DEFENDERS YIELD TO BRITISH ASSAULTS

MUCH DEBATED WILLKIE TRIP GETS STARTED

GOP Standard Bearer Leaves Aboard Yankee Clipper

MAKING TOUR AS PRIVATE CITIZEN

Had Held Conferences with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, However, Before Leaving

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie started for England aboard a clipper plane today as, in his own words, "a private citizen—an individual determined to find out what is going on."

The big flying boat pulled away from Laguardia field at 8:30 a. m. EST, bound for Bermuda and Lisbon. From Lisbon Willkie is to fly to London on a British Overseas Airways plane.

Although he carried a personal letter from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the defeated Republican presidential candidate emphasized at the airport what he has said previously—that he was going to England "on his own" and not as an envoy of any kind.

Accompanying Willkie overseas on the Yankee Clipper were John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and London Throne, retired New York investment banker, both also going "as private citizens," said Willkie.

Willkie, who has approved, with qualifications, the British aid bill pending in Congress, said he would communicate with Churchill as soon as he reached English soil.

He carried with him up-to-date knowledge of conditions abroad as reported to the United States State Department. He conferred at length with Secretary of State Hull in Washington Sunday and also spoke briefly with the President.

Cooperative Meet Held In Snow Hill

Reports submitted by officers of the Greenville Production Credit Association at the annual meeting of the stockholders revealed that this farmer's cooperative organization which supplies its members with short-term credit for agricultural purposes is operating most successfully.

The meeting was well attended and complete and detail reports illustrated by charts were given to the stockholders showing the volume of business done, cost of operations, distribution of expenses net profit and other data of vital interest to the members. Reports were made to the meeting by Mack G. Smith, director, and Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer. The reports showed that the association made loans totaling $348,000 during the last fiscal year.

The association serves Greene and Pitt counties. G. R. Miller, secretary of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, addressed the meeting and gave information about the operations of this credit system for the United States as a whole and particularly in the third farm credit district, which is comprised of North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida.

D. F. Hardison of Snow Hill, a director, gave a short talk on "Sound Credit." R. B. Tyler, a member, made a talk on the subject of what he thought of the Production Credit Association. Jno. R. Carroll was re-elected to serve on the board of directors. Other members of the board whose terms did not expire this year are G. L. Mewborn, J. P. Davenport, Mack G. Smith and D. F. Hardison.

Supreme Court Justice McReynolds To Retire From Office On Feb. 1

Justice JAMES C. McREYNOLDS

PITT PROJECT IS CONSIDERED

Possibility of Establishing Sanatorium Talked Here

The Pitt County Board of Health held a called meeting at the City of Greenville Municipal building last night to discuss with the Board of County Commissioners and other interested citizens the matter of a tuberculosis sanatorium for Pitt county. Members of the Pitt County Board of Health present were: Supt. D. H. Conley, D. T. House, Jr., Dr. M. T. Frizzelle, and Mayor B. B. Sugg.

At this meeting were the following members of the Board of County Commissioners: P. T. House, Jr., chairman; B. N. Hodges, G. S. Porter, G. S. Pittman, and Dr. P. P. McCain, superintendent State Sanatorium, as a specially invited guest. Other organizations represented were: The Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, J. H. Waldrop, president; Greenville Tuberculosis Seal Sale, Mrs. James S. Ficklen, chairman; The Pitt County Medical Society, represented by Dr. E. P. Brooks; Pitt County Welfare Department, J. T. Futrell, superintendent.

Dr. J. W. Williams, Martin county health officer, and Dr. N. Thomas Ebnett, Pitt county health officer, were also present.

In speaking of the necessity of a Pitt county having a tuberculosis sanatorium, Dr. McCain explained that the State Sanatorium could only take care of the early cases of tuberculosis; that the advanced case, that is, the case spreading to other members of the family, would have to continue to stay in the home unless the county built its own sanatorium.

He stated that on account of the large negro population in Pitt county that Pitt county should have a sanatorium of at least 40 beds and suggested that the division of beds for the races be 16 for the whites and 24 for the negroes.

It is understood that the meeting was harmonious from beginning to end and that everyone present felt that a local sanatorium for the advanced case of tuberculosis was the only solution to the tuberculosis problem in Pitt county.

Bus, Auto Collide Near Winterville

A Carolina Trailways passenger bus and an automobile being driven by Miss Mary Alice Averett of Winterville, Route One, were involved in a highway collision shortly after 7 o'clock last night at a point two-tenths of a mile north of Winterville on Highway No. 11.

According to Patrolman C. L. Teague, the bus, being driven by Earl Forrest of this city, crashed into the automobile as it slowed down to make a left-hand turn at a crossing. No arrests have been made pending a further investigation by the officer.

Miss Averett and a younger brother escaped injury, but the girl's mother, Mrs. A. R. Averett, was taken to the hospital, where she was still confined today although her condition was not considered serious. X-ray pictures have been taken to determine if she suffered a fractured rib.

All museums in Rome, except that at the Vatican, have been closed indefinitely because of the war.

To Step Down From Bench At Age Of 79 Years After Having Served for 26 Years; Attorney General Jackson Mentioned As Successor; Six of Nine Justices To Be Roosevelt Appointees

Washington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Justice James Clark McReynolds, outspoken opponent of much New Deal legislation, notified President Roosevelt today that he would retire from the Supreme Court February 1, after 26 years of service.

The veteran jurist, who will be 79 years old February 3, was the only member of the tribunal described by administration officials as "conservative."

His retirement opens the way for Mr. Roosevelt to make his sixth appointment to the nine-man court. There have been reports that Chief Justice Hughes, 78, might retire soon, but they have been unconfirmed. Friends expressed the belief that Hughes would remain on the court as long as his health permitted him to do the work.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson has been mentioned frequently as a possible appointee to the first vacancy on the court.

McReynolds' notification to the President was a formal two-sentence letter. It stated his intention of withdrawing from the court under the law permitting the retirement at full pay of $20,000 annually of justices over 70 who have served 10 consecutive years on the Supreme bench.

McReynolds, the senior member of the court, disclosed to friends that nine years ago upon reaching 70 he had first contemplated upon resigning and has at times yielded rather reluctantly to the urging of friends that he continue to serve.

Some associates said that he had remained on the court in order to cast his vote against New Deal legislation and in the hope that another President than Mr. Roosevelt would appoint his successor.

SENATE FIGHT OVER MEASURE TAKING SHAPE

Lines Drawn Over Legislation to Aid Great Britain

McNARY OPPOSES POWERS OF BILL

Sen. Norris, Who Voted Against Entry In World War, Favors Bill With Time Limit On Authority

Washington, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The impending Senate controversy over British aid legislation began to take shape today with these developments:

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader and running mate of Wendell Willkie in the 1940 presidential campaign, announced: "I am opposed to the lend-lease bill in its present form because it grants too much power to one person."

Senator Norris, (Ind.-Neb.), only present member of the Senate who voted against United States participation in the World War, declared he was for the bill, providing some "time limit" was placed upon the authority which would be given the President.

"I don't think we are going to get into this war," he said. "I think we can go a long way toward helping Britain without getting in."

The Senate Foreign Relations committee decided to begin public hearings on the measure Monday with Secretary Hull as the probable first witness.

The House committee today received opposition testimony from Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, who called the bill "contrary to 'Democratic control by the people over their own destiny.'"

At the White House, meanwhile, Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, Republican, called on President Roosevelt and reported afterward that he had "assured him of support and unity on matters affecting national defense and foreign policy."

To his opposition to the bill "in its present form," McNary added the declaration that he was thoroughly in accord with the principle of extending all aid short of war to Great Britain.

The administration bill was described by Thomas as a measure "to authorize undeclared war in the name of peace and dictatorship in the name of defending democracy."

Lanier Is Host To Local Legion Post

Members of the Pitt County Post No. 39 and several visiting legionnaires were guests of State Senator J. C. Lanier at an oyster roast held last night at the Street Department garage on West Third Street.

Although Sen. Lanier was unable to be present because of duties in the General Assembly, he was well represented by his son, Jimmy, high school youth, who was presented by Adjutant W. T. Kyzer who called the meeting to order.

Young Mr. Lanier expressed his father's regrets at being unable to be present in person and welcomed the legionnaires, telling them he hoped they enjoyed the affair.

The post commander, A. F. Rowe of Ayden, was absent on account of illness. Although it was a regular monthly meeting, no business was attended to other than the adoption of a resolution authorizing the adjutant to write a letter to Mr. Lanier expressing the post's appreciation for the oyster roast.

Wage-Hour Commission Report Is Nearly Ready

Reflector Bureau — By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 22.—Report of the commission studying the desirability of a state wage and hour law will be ready soon — probably by the end of this week; and not long thereafter a bill will be introduced into the General Assembly calling for enactment of whatever law the Commission recommends.

What that recommendation will be is still a matter of much speculation and considerable doubt, nor is there any agreement among forecasters as to whether the five-man Commission can get close enough together to sign any unanimous report and recommendation. All that remains to be seen.

Where 18 Fishermen Died Almost In Sight Of Home

Eighteen men were drowned, almost within sight of their homes, as the fishing schooner 'Mary E. O'Hara' was split open in a collision near Boston, Mass., harbor. This airview picture shows a coast guard boat searching around the topmasts of the ill-fated craft. Five of the crew were saved. Those who died, slipped from the rigging, one by one into the freezing water.

FARM LEADERS URGE PROGRAM

Appeal For Adequate Provisions For Agriculture

Raleigh, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Four leaders, Dean I. O. Schaub, Col. J. W. Harrelson and Dr. R. M. Salter of North Carolina State College, and Agriculture Commissioner W. Harry Scott, urged the joint legislative Agriculture committee today to make adequate provision for state progress in agriculture.

Fifty-four legislators heard Dean Schaub, director of Extension, describe the state as "in the midst of a major agricultural adjustment. We are looking for a new use for 1,000,000 acres of land, 400,000 formerly used for tobacco and 600,000 for cotton."

Col. Harrelson, dean of administration at State, pointed out that the college was "charged with doing research and teaching. You can't do effective teaching without research. Our aim is for the state to be more efficient on the agricultural side. The per capita income in North Carolina from agriculture is $103 less than the national average. We don't believe we've scratched the surface yet as to what can be done on a North Carolina farm."

Scott contended that agriculture had not been treated by recent legislators as it should have been as he argued that it did not get a fair proportion of state funds. He said that the voting strength of the state depends on farms for its subsistence. He insisted there was no duplication of duties between the Agriculture department and Extension service.

DUKE GETS QUOTA OF 40 FOR AIR TRAINING COURSE

Durham, Jan. 22.—Duke University, in cooperation with the U. S. Civil Aeronautics Administration, will train a new group of 40 students as pilots.

Both ground school and flight training will be included in the course, and upon its successful completion students will receive private flying licenses.

School Forum

Wallace Bourne, chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the Eastern Carolina Seaboard and preliminary tests will be held in February, to be followed by extensive maneuvers in June, it was disclosed today by J. H. Rose, who has just returned from a post officers' conference of the North Carolina Department, American Legion.

A similar program was carried out in Beaufort, Long Island, yesterday and met with complete success.

Mr. Rose has been chosen chairman of the program, which will include the area from South Boston, Va., to a point just north of Wilmington. Central office for the Eastern Seaboard movement will be in Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Rose will be charged with the duty of securing voluntary spotters throughout the area and emergency telephone service will play a major part in the program, whereby central headquarters will be advised of the approach of any "enemy" craft.

It was explained that the program will be permanent. Such a movement was carried out between Langley Field, Va., and Fort Bragg about two years ago, but the new program is expected to be much more extensive both in area and in preparations.

Regarding the post officers' conference, Mr. Rose said that although attendance was cut down by the influenza epidemic in the state, it was one of the best such meetings he ever had attended. On his way home the former department commander and head of the local school system stopped in Raleigh for conferences on the retirement bill for all state employees, including teachers.

Note Improvement In Influenza Situation

Supt. J. H. Rose of the Greenville city schools disclosed today that a marked improvement is being noted in the influenza situation here and that the number of absences today was much smaller than since the outbreak.

Only one teacher was absent in the high school today and only two or three were out in the elementary schools, he revealed, adding that absences among the students were about half what they were at the peak.

The condition also was reported improved in the county schools.

No Change In Date Of Birthday Ball

Although several towns and cities in North Carolina are postponing the President's Birthday Ball from January 30 to February 10 on account of the prevalence of influenza throughout the state, J. H. Rose and D. H. Conley, co-chairmen of the local affair, declared today that the Pitt county event would be held one week from tomorrow night, January 30, as scheduled.

The chairman said a sharp decrease had been noted in the influenza incident throughout this section and there was no reason to postpone the dance.

A ticket campaign will get under way in full blast within a day or two under the direction of Jonathan Overton, in charge of finances and the sale of tickets.

ROSE TO HEAD DEFENSE PLAN

Tests To Be Held In February, Maneuvers In June

An air defense program with voluntary civilian spotters of "enemy" craft is being organized for the Eastern Carolina Seaboard and preliminary tests will be held in February, to be followed by extensive maneuvers in June, it was disclosed today by J. H. Rose, who has just returned from a post officers' conference of the North Carolina Department, American Legion.

A similar program was carried out in Beaufort, Long Island, yesterday and met with complete success.

White Men On Trial In Car Burning Case

The current criminal session of Pitt Superior court today continued its hearing of a case charging Fred Roach with burning, or having burned, his automobile and against Gray Dudley with being an accessory.

It was not likely the case would go to the jury before late afternoon or early in the morning.

Both men are residents of the Clayroot section of Swift Creek township. The case was tried in April last year, but a mistrial was ordered when the jury failed to reach an agreement.

Roach is charged with burning his automobile in November, 1939.

Australian Unit Leads Final Drive

Famous British Regiment And Free French Forces Aid In Smashing Inner Defenses of Italians; Desert City, 80 Miles Inside Lybia, Smashed To Rubbles By Guns of British Fleet

(By The Associated Press)
Whooping Australian shock troops, a famous British regiment and "Free French" forces led Britain's Army of the Nile as it smashed into the inner defenses of Tobruk today to mop up survivors of the 30,000 Italians under siege there for 18 days.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch from Sydney said Australian army headquarters had been advised that the Libyan desert stronghold had been captured, but in mid-afternoon London military quarters still lacked confirmation.

Dispatches from the battlefield said the British had driven to within three miles of the town at sunset last night and "today operations are again developing satisfactorily."

In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons:

"It may be well that while I am speaking, Tobruk and its garrison are in our hands."

The British high command announced last night that Australian troops and a picked British regiment, supported by tanks, had broken through the outer and inner ring of forts about 25 miles in circumference.

Part of the Fascist garrison surrendered within the first 12 hours of the attack, which started at dawn yesterday, and the British view was that the rest were "bottled up" without hope of escape.

The desert city, 80 miles inside Lybia, was reported smashed to rubble by big guns of the British fleet and by bombs of the Royal Air Force.

The Italian high command's daily war bulletin acknowledged that at the end of yesterday's assault "after hard fighting the enemy succeeded in penetrating the line of strongholds in the eastern sector of the fortified city."

Observers described the naval bombardment as "ground-shaking," declaring that "shell rained on the town at a seemingly incredible rate."

The 9,233-ton Italian cruiser San Giorgio, beached in Tobruk harbor, was reported "a mass of flames."

"Many prisoners," including an Italian general, were reported captured.

Rumania, torn by internal disorders and widespread street rioting, was under army control today.

Chief of State Ion Antonescu appealed to Iron Guard factions to forget "their hatreds" and help him and the army restore order within 24 hours.

German troops in Rumania were said to have been sent to Bucharest and other cities to help halt the fighting between the Rumanian military and extremist groups of the Iron Guard.

In Turkey the official radio declared last night "those who attack our steel fortress are doomed to fall in the attempt" and announced a great part of the Turkish army was massed in Thrace near the Bulgarian border.

At least one air transport firm now teaches its pilots celestial navigation.

Speaks To College Assembly.

Dr. James Watson, director of the Division of Mental Hygiene of the State Department of Charities and Public Welfare, spoke to the students at the college assembly yesterday on "Coming to Terms with Reality."

After commenting on the difficulty of throwing any light on his field in a short talk, Dr. Watson said that he did want, however, to suggest one important step in proper mental hygiene that would be of value to both the prospective teachers before him and the children they will teach. This step he said was described in words of one authority, who said that to live successfully it is necessary for people to "come to terms with their own realities."

The speaker then told the story of Sir Percival in Tennyson's "Idylls of the King" who sought the Holy Grail but found himself unable to follow the quest to the end because the remembrance of all the evil he had thought and said and done made life turn to ashes in his grasp. Just so, said the speaker, do regrets for that which is gone, remorse for the deeds of the past, and the feeling of guilt for something which never really happened under which many people labor, paralyze life. One must accept the past as over and done with it—as irrevocable—make terms with the realities of the past because it affects the present.

Then one must make terms with the realities of the present, he said, naming a number of things that people are affected by and still refuse to face and accept. Until one accepts his limitations, until he faces what must be done and takes it in his stride, he is not able really to live a successful life.

In the third place, he said, one must make terms with the realities of life itself—must answer in some way or other the question of whether life has any meaning and what the relationship of God is to human life.

If we question sometimes, said Dr. Watson, why God lets certain things happen to us, we might well ask if He has not perhaps organized human life on a partnership basis with Him, and so that both God and man contribute to the shaping of a wisdom and perfect love is doing the best he can for one—that is the basis for an enduring philosophy of life, he concluded.

The houses are unusually clean and the marble hearths are kept spotless. There are always flowers to be seen in every home. Sweden can thank her military strength for still being at peace.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. A. Bowen, served a delicious salad plate with coffee and her famous orange cake.

Chicod High School News

Student Council Meets
President Macon Page called an important meeting to order yesterday at home room period. The meeting was opened by Page and the secretary, Elly Mae Mills, called the roll, after which old and new business was discussed. We finally decided to try to help keep all library books and papers in order.

Basketball
Another double-header was played here Tuesday night in the high school gym between Fountain and Chicod. All fathers were admitted free. Such proud parents, fathers! You should have seen them "strut" their stuff.

Projects
All classes throughout the high school are working on projects for Educational Day which will be held here within the next few weeks.

'Flu' Epidemic
Chicod is fortunate to have escaped that thing we call the "flu" epidemic. So far everything is o.k.

It is doubtful that he can conscientiously join in any recommendation for less than those objectives. The Commission is understood to meet Thursday in an effort to prepare its final report. Vice Chairman Capus Wayne of High Point, and former State Senator H. P. Taylor of Anson are expected to come to Raleigh for the meeting, while State Senator Hugh Horton and Representative Henry Dobson are here as members of the legislature.

There is a conviction in a great many legislative quarters that the utmost in the way of a wage and hour bill that can be successfully steered through the present General Assembly would leave the present maximum week (55 hours) unchanged, while establishing a 25 cent an hour minimum wage scale. It is believed that most, if not all the present exemptions from the 55 hour week can be eliminated; thus making the measure apply to practically all North Carolina employees not now under protection of the Federal wage and hour law. The makeup of House and Senate labor committees has done nothing whatever toward increasing optimism among wage and hour law supporters. On the contrary there is strong evidence that Union labor is not at all pleased with the appointments of either Speaker Oduis M. Mull in the House or Lieutenant Governor Reg Harris in the Senate.

Senator J. H. Clark, of Bladen, chairman of the Senate group, is particularly recalled as the drafter of an amendment to the 1937 bill establishing the 55 hour week which exempted from that measure all male clerks in retail establishments. This amendment was introduced, rushed through under suspension of rules and enrolled in the very last hours of the very last day; and it has always left a very bad taste in the mouth of those favoring labor legislation.

The wage-hour advocates are no more enthusiastic about Laurie McCachern of Hoke, chairman of the House labor committee.

Jesus made two statements on two different occasions which may seem at first glance to be contradictory. He said on one occasion, "I am the light of the world," and on another occasion, speaking to His disciples, He said, "Ye are the light of the world."

These statements are not contradictory but correlative. They fit perfectly into each other. Jesus Christ is the great, divine candle, the light of the world; and He touches the little candles—the souls of believing men and women everywhere—until not only by the light of one candle but by the light of all these lesser candles is the world lighted.

What He is to men and women everywhere and in all ages, we become, when His spirit touches our hearts, within that restricted circle of circumstances which we call our world. He lights our hearts until those within our household feel the glow. He enables us to carry something of brightness into our friendships and something of light into the councils of men. We may be a very small candle with a practically flickering flame, but if it is lighted from the great candle of the Lord Himself, we know that it will shine steadily and give light to all within the radius of our influence.

"I am the light of the world." "Ye are the light of the world." The first declaration makes the second declaration true. (All Rights Reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

LET'S GET TOGETHER

One suggestion we would like to make in connection with the making of plans for baseball in this city this year is that some method be worked out between the local league club and the softball league whereby the schedules will not conflict as they did last year. Last year we would have a baseball game going on at the stadium and a softball series going on at the school park at the same time, with the result that the divided attendance was causing a loss to both. There are a large number of our local fans interested in softball who are likewise interested in our regular baseball, and vice versa, but it is impossible to be on hand at two places at the same time and hence there must be a loss of attendance for one or the other. If such a plan is feasible, it would likewise be well to work out a means for both the softball and baseball teams to use the same grounds in order that our people might visit the same park to witness all their ball games. If these suggestions could be included in this year's plans we believe it would prove beneficial to baseball in this city.

Washington—Footnotes for future historians: Opening wedge of what might be the political death of the "tax and black tie"—at least at presidential electors' banquets—was hammered home by James H. Hammond, Columbia, S. C. lawyer and one of that state's electors. Unhappy at the thought of going so formally informal, Mr. Hammond informed the committee that he would not attend in any such garb. In part, Mr. Hammond protested thus: "As Prometheus from his rock, with the motus plucking out its vitals, hangs my tax and tie. To the ambitious waiter, who never hopes to be the head, I relegate my tax and tie. "Where has democracy gone in such stringent regulations as tax and tie? All of us have howled Democracy! Liberty! Freedom! and during the campaign there was no mention of tax and black tie. "The very echo of our opponents still rings back: 'Regimentation'—as though they were forewarned of taxes and ties. Was there a fifth or fifteenth columnist in our ranks who betrayed to our enemy the advance plans of this banquet, where, all dressed up as 'chorus Johnnies' we should be lined up in our taxes and ties?" is limited by machines, it must ever be remembered that these machines are operated by the skill and stamina of the workers. As the government is determined to protect the rights of workers, so the nation has a right to expect that the men who man the machines will discharge their full responsibilities to the urgent needs of defense. . . . "The nation expects our defense industries to continue operation without interruption by strikes or lock-outs. It expects and insists that management and workers will reconcile their differences by voluntary or legal means, to continue to produce the supplies that are so sorely needed."

The American people are patient. But patience has worn thin when it comes to the labor racketeer or the profiteering industrialist. There is no just difference of opinion between management and labor which cannot be settled by arbitration. There is absolutely no excuse for a strike in a defense industry today—and no excuse for that insidious form of sabotage which is called the "slow-down."

scribed by Emily Post as "shocking." Two For One A lot less frivolous in the matter of smashing precedents is what Sen. Tom Connally smilingly described as West Virginia's apparent effort "to make two senators grow where only one grew before." West Virginia is almost notorious in the matter of providing contests for Senate seats, but the boys thought up a brand new one this time. Here's how it happened: Senator Matthew M. Neely was elected Governor of West Virginia. He was to take office at noon, January 13. Outgoing Governor Homer Holt was to relinquish office when Governor Neely took over. Governor Neely pulled a political fast one. He took the oath of office at midnight January 12 and a second later appointed Dr. Joseph Rosier, former president of the National Education Association, to succeed him as senator. Not to be outdone, Governor Holt, who already had appointed Clarence E. Martin, former president of the American Bar Association, to succeed Neely—not once, but in two proclamations—issued a third dated "a moment after 12, midnight, January 13th."

the contest, are affectionate cronies and to all outward appearances are having the time of their lives. They sit together on one of the divans at the back of the Senate chamber. They swap jokes and laugh over each new quip their situation gives rise to. No friend approaches one, but that he is introduced to the other. You would think they were that old team of Damon and Pythias. Whoever heard of such a screw contest!

Chairman Jim Vogler of Mecklenburg pointed this out, not in the way of complaining, but as something which very likely is a record in legislative affairs. The Charlotte lawmaker believes the bills will be flowing in fast soon, however—"They always do get introduced," he said—and attributes the slow start to "two inaugurations and the flu."

He later explained that he wasn't mad, but that he just didn't know his own strength. "Pruner Pickens," representative from Guilford county who lives at High Point, ever alert for ways of cutting down state appropriations, made a suggestion the other day in committee meeting which would have placed a larger burden of the welfare program on the counties, and thus relieve the state of a part of its expense. Immediately members from the small rural counties started a barrage of questions showing that their counties just couldn't stand any more. One of them remarked, sotto voce: "Rupert don't care. He don't represent any county, he just represents High Point." The same member, however, admitted that Mr. Pickens is rendering the state a distinct service in requiring that he be shown the need for every dollar asked before he will vote for its inclusion in the appropriation. And that recalls the slip of the tongue which another member made and then after thinking it over decided to let it stand. He referred to it as the "approbations" committee. Called down for his slip, he started to correct it and then said: "No, I'll just let it ride. The committee has approved everything suggested so far. It is really an approbation committee."

The Highway Safety Division has thanked this bureau for repeatedly calling attention to failure of North Carolina law enforcement officers to make the required reports of all highway accidents involving more than $10 property damage. Carl Barefoot, statistical chief, says that since November the division has been receiving more and better reports than ever before. He attributed much of the improvement to the articles from this bureau.

The legislative committee, composed of five senators and five representatives, designated to attend the interstate cooperation congress at Washington were arranging transportation yesterday. The state is going to pay travel and reasonable hotel expenses for the delegation. Led by Senator Rowe of Pender, an ardent aviation enthusiast, with full support of Senator Hill of Catawba who also likes to get up in the air frequently, the group was planning to fly to Washington. "I want you newspaper boys to make it clear that the members are going to pay out of their own pockets," said Senator Rowe. "OK," replied one of the pressmen. "We'll also make it clear that you hope to get back from this jaunt Friday in time to start home for the week-end."

About that time up stepped Senator Ballentine of Wake, named as chairman of the Senate delegation to Washington. "And tell 'em I'm not going," he requested, "but am going to stay here and look after some of these bills." Ballentine is chairman of the committee on agriculture with an important meeting scheduled for today. The keynote of this joint meeting will be harmony and progress, he said. Many things have been and will be done in the name of defense, even

YEsterDAY: Freddy's Polly, which is the bankrupt inn David Wiley inherited from his Aunt Julia, seems to be keyed into a number of lives—David's; his culture, Polly's; young Peter Wiley's; Margo's; Powers' and now young Dr. Warren McNeill is getting interested. Next to the inn, the fact that Margo has decided to take David away from Polly is the most disturbing factor. Dr. McNeill thinks he might like to practice in Ardendale. Picnic Plans "Are you going to practice in your home town?" Polly asked Doctor McNeill. "I haven't quite decided yet," Warren replied. "I've a few offers. I'm looking into—over with his plans. That's how I happen to be traveling in this part of the country." He offered Polly and David cigarettes, and lit one for himself and David and Polly declined. "Do you know, I'm taking quite a fancy to Ardendale."

"That's good," said David. "We're in that a fancy to it ourselves. She's been a pretty lazy sort of town for a number of years, but she's beginning to stir. The Powers Lumber Company has picked up business pretty rapidly here of late." "And there ought to be room for another doctor," said Polly. "Our Doctor Ben is getting pretty old—and the others aren't especially lively."

"I'd like practicing in a town like this," Warren said. "I told Margo once that I thought it was time for the old fashioned general practitioner to take a hand—too much specializing, you know." "We know," David laughed. "Like old Miss Lucy Dinwitty," he said. "She had a lot of money, and the M. D.'s here and in other places seemed determined to get it all, with all due respect to your profession, Doctor McNeill." "Yes, I understand," Warren smiled. "Go on. What happened to Miss Lucy?" "Well she had one doctor living off her nose," David went on, "another off her feet, one off her rheumatism, and another one off her heart. Four doctors supporting themselves off one frail little person like Miss Lucy!" "And," said Dr. McNeill, "no doubt one doctor alone could have taken perfect care of her." "And four killed her," said David. "Like the goose that laid the golden egg."

Margo joined the trio. "How do you see like my nice doctor?" she asked. "I think he's just what a doctor ought to be," said Polly. "Long on the looks and not too short on knowledge." David said, "We're trying to persuade him to settle down and look after ailing Ardendale folks." "Not really?" said Margo. She gave Warren a quick look. "Still convinced that you want to do something like that, Warren? I mean ditch all the hospital offers, and become just another small-town doctor?" "No, Margo, not just another smalltown doctor," Warren replied. "One that stays out a little from the herd, I hope."

Margo shrugged. She turned to Polly and said: "Don't you bet his bedside manners are simply perfect, Polly?" "Yes," said Polly. She didn't like the flippancy in Margo's voice. "I also bet Doctor McNeill makes his patients feel that they can put a world of trust in him." "Thank you, Miss Jenkins!" said Warren. "That's one of the nicest things I've heard yet." "Before I forget it," said David, "we're having a picnic out at the Inn next—He glanced at Polly. "What day is it you're free, Polly?" You said the day after you were through with your work, but you didn't say what day that was."

"Let's have the picnic Wednesday evening," Polly said. "My two weeks at the theatre are up Tuesday at eleven P. M." It's A Date "Then Wednesday it shall be," said David. "That is, if it's all right with you and Doctor McNeill, Margo." "I think Wednesday will be quite all right," said Margo. "If you plan to stay that long, Warren." "I'd stay even longer," said Warren, "in order to go to a picnic and swim in this mineral water pool I've been hearing about." He then addressed Polly. "Are you an actress?" "Me?" Polly said, surprised. "Heavens, no! Where did you get that idea?" "I heard you say something about your two weeks at the theatre, and I thought—" "I'm only a cashier in a movie theatre," said Polly. "Nothing so glamorous as acting, Warren." "I've a girl cousin back home who is a cashier," said Warren, "but nothing so glamorous as cashier in a movie theatre—She does her money-changing in a luncheonroom." Margo frowned. Then she spoke to David: "Come on over where Dad is," she said. "There's a lumber man from Virginia he thinks you might like to talk to."

state of mind can do wonders." "It's probably unfair to expect you to look at Peter while you're on your vacation," Polly said, "but I do think it would be awfully kind of you to do so. The local doctors just look at him, and shake their heads. Our own doctor, old Doctor Ben Shields, tried his best, and he's the kindest, most sympathetic man, but he didn't do any good." Warren smiled. "Perhaps his very kindness and his sympathy worked against a cure," he said. "What do you mean?" "I mean that often it isn't so good for a doctor to display too much sympathy, and an overdose of kindness can do a lot of harm. It's apt to arouse self-pity in the patient and make him feel that his ailment whatever it is, is something very special."

"Why, I never thought of that before!" said Polly. "Believe it or not, Miss Jenkins, Warren went on, "some of the finest physicians in this country and Europe are beginning to realize that the patient's mental state has a lot to do with his physical condition. It used to be the other way around you know." "Yes, I know," said Polly. "But I can recall many instances when being terribly worried brought on a headache, and eating when I was tired upset my digestion." "Right!" said Warren. "It's been proven that anger can bring on a bilious attack. That hatred can fill the body full of poison." He made an expressive gesture. "So it goes—And I think that many an old-fashioned doctor has done his patients more good by giving them a strong talking to than by giving them a dose of strong medicine." Polly laughed.

"I think," she said, "that you should settle right down here in Ardendale. My Aunt Susan would probably be one of your first patients. She's always having something wrong with her tummy, and I honestly think more than half of it is just plain imagination." "There are plenty of people like her in every town in the United States," said Warren. "But I am going to consider settling here in Ardendale. And I also want to have a look at this young Peter Wiley you mention."

"He's crazy about swimming," said Polly. "And he's improved a lot although his poor little right leg isn't much good to him." David rejoined them. "I've got to go now Polly," he said. "I promised Peter I'd drive him out to the Inn for a swim before the sun disappeared entirely. Can I take you home?" "Yes, you can," Polly said. "I promised Aunt Susan I'd fix her some iced tea for supper." Doctor Warren McNeill looked at them and smiled. "What a pair!" he said goodnatureedly. To Be Continued

Richmond Paper Says Colts To Come Here For Training

ONLY DEFINITE WORD TO DATE

Local Officials Have Not Been Advised Of Action

Although no definite word has been received here by hotel or baseball club officials, the Richmond Times Dispatch today carried a story saying that the Richmond Colts had definitely decided upon Greenville as a spring training center this year.

Eddie Phillips, playing manager and Secretary Banes of the club were in the city about two weeks ago and said they felt "fairly certain" that Greenville would be selected, but that the final word would be left with Eddie Mooers the owner. They said that a definite statement would be sent here within a week.

While it was felt following the visit of the two club officials here that the team would come here this spring, many here were beginning to feel that the club had decided to go elsewhere and had delayed advising supporters here. The Richmond paper's new story, however, was welcomed by fans here who were anxious to see the Colts in action during their training period.

The new article further stated that the club was not returning to Wilson this year because of the fact that Frank Rodgers, property of the Richmond team, had been let out as manager without a satisfactory explanation and after he had won the pennant for the club.

The Richmond team is expected to arrive about April 1 and remain here for three weeks before returning for their opening game.

BABY PHANTOMS LOSE; G-MEN MEET ELIZABETH CITY

Patroit's Ordeal

National Guardsman John Shea, 23, of New York was rejected by the army because of defective teeth. So Shea sits 10 1/2 hours in a dentist's chair to get straightened out. He had three teeth pulled four filled, five crowns repaired and two removal bridges inserted. He's holding the bridges. The result of it all: he got the army doctor's okay.

WILSON STOPS JR. PHANTOMS

Merritt Leads Local Basketeers With Six Points

By C. B. ROWLETT

Suffering its first defeat of the 1940 campaign, the local junior high school fell before a superior Wilson junior team last night 22-18 in the local gym before a mass of thrills-crazed fans.

Besides the absence of Sidney Dunn, star center and high scorer the baby Phantoms played under a disadvantage the entire game. The Wilsonians had an advantage of almost eight inches to the man.

The local juniors continued the pace set in previous games during the first quarter and had a lead of 6-4 at the end of the period, but the junior Cyclones proved their superiority during the second period by coming back and scoring nine points to gain a 13-6 lead over the locals at the half time whistle.

The Cyclones continued to edge up during the third period and held an 18-8 advantage at the beginning of the final quarter.

Showing their scrappy spirit, the Phantoms put on a last quarter spurt that netted them ten points and pulled up to a basket within five of the highly-touted Cyclones. Connor Merritt, flashy forward sparked the last quarter drive.

"Bones" Morton, six-foot center led both teams on the offense with ten points to his credit. Morton, a left-hander, had a shot almost as distinctive as George Giamack's Carolina ace.

Connor Merritt, with six points led the Phantoms and took runner-up honors for the game.

Private Citizen Garner Departs

It's just plain Mr. John Nance Garner now after the Texan wound up a 32-year political career in Washington with his part in the inauguration of President Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace. He packs up his faithful suitcase here preparatory to departing for Uvalde, Tex.

Mr. Grimes, after reading a laudatory editorial about Senator Rodman, took pen in hand and indited a letter to the Daily News editor which said, in part:

"Mr. Rodman has all the qualifications to make us an excellent Governor in 1948. He has the ability, courage and background. His forebears were natives of this county for many generations. While he is a lawyer by profession, he is sympathetic to the needs of manufacturing, industry, commerce and above all else, the agricultural needs of this state. His practice is broad in scope and character. He represents with equal fidelity the interests of ignorant negroes and corporate clients. His term as our state senator brought him statewide recognition.

"His service on the Budget Commission has given him an intimate knowledge of all our state institutions.

"When we have a man of that type in our midst, why sit idle and see the political honors go to others who are no better qualified?"

"I ask you to make known through your paper his qualifications for the high office of Governor and I now nominate him for Governor of North Carolina in 1948."

More than 7 per cent of automobiles stolen in the first nine months of 1940 were recovered. Of all sections of the country, New England has the lowest rate of robberies.

VARSITY SEEK ANOTHER WIN

Local Cagers Favor-ed To Top Yellow Jackets

By C. B. ROWLETT

With three defeats against one victory marked up against them Coach Boley Farley's scrapping Greenville High school varsity will journey to Elizabeth City tonight to invade Coach George Hunsucker's domain and bring back a victory to offset a defeat. This is a conference tilt and the Reflector picks the locals to come out victorious.

While these two teams have not met on the courts during past seasons, the Elizabeth City Jackets were downed and eliminated in the Conference play-offs, in this city last season by Goldsboro who fell before the Phantoms.

Farley's Phantoms are still without the services of Larry James and Burney Warren, forward and center in the Phantom chain. Both boys have been on the sick list for the last two games.

Hicks Corey and Troy Riddle scrappy Phantom forwards, will probably get the call at the forward starting posts tonight. While Corey has been on the starting line-up the entire season, Riddle began as a starter last week against Goldsboro. Riddle proved his worth by tying Corey for high score and playing a brilliant floor game.

In at center will probably go John Collins, who will replace James. Although not a high-scoring ace, Collins is an ace on defense.

Starting at guard, will be Snag Clark and Gene Johnson. Clark a reserve for two seasons, broke into the starting line-up this year and has made a brilliant showing for himself. Johnson who is playing his first year on the varsity, has gained much prestige for himself as a player.

Likely to see action tonight as reserves are, Hubert Musselwhite, John Swannan, James and Leonard Briley and a host of others.

Dose Of Own Medicine

Dunn, N. C.—(AP)—A man in the Harnett county recorder's court charged with drunkenness asked that he be allowed to sentence himself.

His suggestion: 90 days on the roads, suspended upon payment of the costs and with the stipulation that the defendant remain sober and law-abiding for two years.

"I reckon that ought to stop me," the man told the jurist, who agreed and approved the sentence.

Rodman Is Proposed For Gubernatorial Candidate

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 22 — It has long been a custom in North Carolina to begin talking about candidates long in advance of any given election, or even primary; but there are now being put forward many long range nominations for Governor in 1948, which seems to be a mighty long ways off to be talking about at this stage.

Not so long ago a Johnston county weekly placed in nomination State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr. of Jones county. Now comes the Washington Daily News, which on motion of Junius D. Grimes goes to bat for former State Senator W. B. Rodman.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Lay awake half the night reading the Civil War memoirs of Henry Kyd Douglas—"I Rode With Sherman" which were only recently published after reposing for 40 years in a trunk in West Virginia.

Douglas was the youngest officer on Jackson's staff and rode with him through the famous Valley campaign, at Chancellorsville, where Jackson was killed, and later with Ewell, Stuart and Early. He was himself shot and captured at Gettysburg, but was later exchanged and finished out the war at Appomattox, his command being the last to fire a shot and the last to stack arms.

His account of lonely cavalry duels by moonlight, eggnog parties in bivouac and gay weddings between battles are an interesting affirmation of the legends of drum and roses that have come down through the leapfrog years.

This morning after rashly tasting a little crabapple jelly, whose tartness speedily reminded me that mums and acidus fruits do not go together, I got off notes to Ferde Grofe, composer of the "Grand Canyon Suite," who is leaving almost immediately for the coast film studios; to George Sutton, co-author of the book "Up and At 'Em," who writes that he has 14 prize ducks entered in the New York poultry show and hopes for a blue ribbon; to Frederick Machetanz, who came back from the Arctic to write and illustrate books about it and who sent me a copy of his newest book "On Arctic Ice"; to Tom Waller of Paramount and to Mel Graff of Nyack, N. Y., an old fishing companion and colleague of mine who has invited me to a party over the week-end—and wouldn't he be horrified now if I accepted!

When I was in the West Indies last summer I sent a card from Puerto Rico to some friends in Carthage, Mo., and in the early mail this morning came a belated acknowledgment, thanking me for my note from "Guam." Look up Puerto Rico on the map and then look up Guam. . . They aren't even in the same ocean. But then who cares, and what is a little geography between friends anyway.

The opening last night of Guthrie McClintic's new play on Broadway—I read about it in the papers—reminds me that this producer and Katharine Cornell have been married 19 years. . . Although she sometimes directs plays for others she will permit no one to direct her save her husband. . . Miss Cornell thinks her husband is the finest director in the world, and judging by the long line of successes she has had, she may have something there. I was amazed to learn that the New York public library has more than 350 copies of "Uncle Tom's

C. D. Griggs, who has been assistant farm agent in Pitt county since 1935 will assist the county agent in livestock work conducted by the Extension Service.

Mr. Griggs has had valuable experience in working with farmers regarding their livestock problems in the last few years.

Pitt county farmers have expressed a special desire to have Mr. Griggs devote his time to aiding and promoting progressive and sound livestock development in the county. He is considered to be particularly equipped for this phase of the extension program.

Mr. Griggs has been instrumental in helping to select and place breeding cattle of the beef and dairy type and purebred hogs. He has helped establish a supply of well bred poultry flocks and turkeys. He has assisted in working out grazing programs and livestock marketing programs and sanitation systems which are essential to the successful production of livestock.

James F. Webb, Jr., of Edgecombe county, comes with the highest commendation of the officials of the Farm Security Administration and B. Troy Ferguson, district agent with the State College Extension Service.

His duties in Pitt county will be to assist the county agent in all field crops or agronomy work conducted by the Extension Service with first emphasis on tobacco Black Shank and Granville will control. At first Mr. Webb will devote his efforts toward working out rotations for farms affected by wilt or Black Shank and for farms that do not have affected farms are anxious to keep them from becoming contaminated.

He will make a special study of these tobacco diseases and investigate other principals of control in addition to rotation. Some work is being done at present on resistant varieties in the state.

Mr. Webb graduated from N. C. State College in 1938 with a B. S. degree in Field Crops and Plant Breeding.

He went to Nashville in August, 1939 as assistant county supervisor with the Farm Security Administration and was promoted to county superintendent in October, 1940.

He was selected as a member of Alpha Zeta Agricultural Honorary Fraternity at State, and was elected to Lambda Gamma Delta Honorary Judging fraternity and held a part time teaching fellowship during his senior year.

He was chairman of the "burn warming" which is one of the outstanding social functions at the college annually.

GAY PROPOSAL ANTIDOTE BILL

May Have Been Offset Week's Measure

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 22—State Senator Archie C. Gay of Northampton may not have had the recent Weeks' bill in mind when he introduced a measure making mandatory a ninety day sentence for persons convicted of a second offense of drunken driving.

Just the same it looks like a right strong antidote for the bill offered by the Blind Edgecombe Representative, which has drawn fire from the State Highway Safety Division and from the editorial columns of many North Carolina papers.

The Safety Division will be just as strong for the Gay measure as it is hot against the Weeks' bill.

Another bill of which the Division approves is that offered Tuesday by Senator J. C. Pittman of Lee county, amendment of the law regarding examination of school bus drivers.

Senator Pittman, who authored the 1937 act requiring examinations, would make it mandatory that these tests be given not only by a State Highway Patrolman, but by the chief mechanic in charge of school buses in the county in which the driver is to be chosen.

He explains that he is not moved by lack of confidence in the officer's incompetency to determine whether or not the applicant is qualified as a driver; but he does feel that the county's chief mechanic will always know more about the applicant's character than the patrol member.

Thus he hopes to prevent school bus driving permits from being issued to youngsters who may be excellent mechanical operators, but who are by nature wild and reckless.

MAKING PLANS STUDY SAFETY

Civil Engineers' Conference At N.C.S. Saturday

Reflector Bureau. By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 22.—One of the main topics for discussion at the meeting of the North Carolina section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, to be held at State College Saturday in connection with the Engineering Institute, will be traffic safety.

J. S. Burch, engineer of statistics and planning in the State Highway Commission, will read a paper on Traffic Safety Engineering, which will be the basis for the institute study. Some months ago Mr. Burch began preparation of this paper by sending out a questionnaire on traffic history in the sixteen largest North Carolina towns. He received 100 per cent response, and it is the factual material offered by this survey that will be used as basis for the study. From the engineers' standpoint the purpose is to determine to what extent safety engineering is practiced by the cities and to stimulate its practice.

"The three cardinal elements of safety have long been recognized as Engineering, Enforcement and Education," said Mr. Burch today. "Even as engineers we do not attempt to evaluate these three in any particular order. All three are essential. Engineering without education and enforcement is of little value, and unplanned enforcement cannot be effective. Without the knowledge based on engineering and the determination to put this knowledge into practice, there is nothing to educate about. Benefits of the engineering studies will be made available to all towns and cities and we have reason to hope the traffic situation will improve."

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Remove spots promptly from zinc table tops. Wipe off the spots with vinegar applied on a soft cloth wash in hot soapy water and wipe dry with another soft cloth.

Parboil means to partly cook food in liquid. Vegetables, meat and fish are often parboiled for the minutes or so to reduce the time for baking, braising or broiling.

Place red cinnamon candies (two per portion) in halves of canned apples, then brush with melted butter and broil until brown.

Always use a dry cloth to remove hot glass dishes from the oven. A damp cloth may cause the utensil to crack. And always soak hot glass dishes in warm water.

Use a stiff brush dipped in scouring powder for removing stains and burns from kitchen utensils. Never scrape with a knife or other hard instrument.

Mix ground Brazil nuts with buttered crumbs to cover crab au gratin, escalloped chicken or cheese fondue. Use twice as many crumbs as nuts.
