Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The army and navy are expected to award contracts within the next few days for construction of a chain of eight naval, military and air bases—involving 20 different establishments—on British islands and territories in the Western Hemisphere.

Contracts for construction to start immediately at nearly all the bases are under negotiation, it was learned today, and dirt will fly as soon as the contracts are signed and equipment can be shipped to the sites.

Kiwanis Observe 26th Anniversary

The Greenville Kiwanis club last night joined in the observance of the 26th anniversary of the founding of the international organization with several members taking part on the program.

A message from the international president, Mark H. Smith, was read by Eli Bloom, Dink James, acting chairman of the Education committee which had charge of the program, made the principal talk of the evening. He discussed some of the things civic clubs can do in the present crisis. He declared that the government officials in Washington would take care of the defense situation, but added that every person should do his part. He urged the members to redouble their citizenship and patriotic activities. He also suggested that the individual Kiwanians should learn more about the club.

T. E. Wilson read objectives as outlined for Kiwanians. A new member, Noah G. Raynor, was inducted into the club by J. Frank Harrington, past president of the club. All members who have joined during the past year stood during this phase of the program and Mr. Harrington directed his remarks to them as well as to Mr. Raynor.

The meeting was climaxed with three charter members, Ed Esteban, G. V. Smith and Mr. Harrington recalling experiences in the early days of the club.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore invited the members to be guests of the Woman's club at the regular Kiwanis meeting next week. The Woman's club is celebrating the payment of the building debt.

Both Germany And Italy Report Successes Over Britain In Sea Warfare

Cold Wave

By The Associated Press Most of the nation east of the Rockies dug itself out from an icy mantle of snow and sleet today, and girded for a predicted repetition of Friday's widespread storm that took at least five lives.

A Canadian-born cold wave, moving south and east and a storm area travelling northeast from Texas, were expected to lash the Atlantic seaboard and north and south-central states again.

The weather bureau said either snow, sleet or hard rains would pelt these regions with sub-freezing temperatures.

Blinding snow and sleet whipped the New York-New England area for several hours yesterday, halting army air defense exercises and causing cancellation of all commercial flights to and from New York City.

In southeast Pennsylvania two persons were killed in traffic accidents on sleet-covered roads. Boston reported two deaths from heart attacks induced by walking in snow.

NEED IS CITED FOR REVISIONS

Rep. Kerr Addresses Educational Meet In This City

Emphasizing the need for a revision of the school curriculum of the state, Hon. John H. Kerr, Jr. of Warrenton, chairman of the House Appropriations committee of the North Carolina General Assembly, urged four hundred friends of education last night to demand of the state that type of educational program which will prepare boys and girls to meet the problems which they are going to face.

Representative Kerr addressed a combined meeting of the city and county teachers, representatives of school boards, parent teacher associations, and school committees at an educational rally held in the dining room of East Carolina Teachers college last night.

The speaker made no effort to present the educational situation in a popular, complimentary manner. His plea threw out a strong challenge to the educational force of the state to improve the curricula of the schools to meet the demands of a society in which ninety per cent of high school graduates do not go to college. "The wrong kind of education is today responsible for seventy per cent of our unemployment," asserted Representative Kerr. "Since education is the biggest business of the state, costing approximately thirty million dollars per year, it behooves every individual in the field of education to do his utmost to provide for a universal intelligent citizenship."

Representative Kerr echoed the sentiment that a retirement bill for teachers would be passed, and that normal salary increments might be expected. His plea of the evening was for a virile vocational program for the state. "When youth is taught the dignity of labor, a generation of happier, more serviceable workers will intelligently make the state a greater state."

"Aycock's program of education as widespread and efficient as have been the results, must be supplemented. The state needs mechanics, farmers, carpenters and mill workers just as it needs teachers, lawyers, and doctors. Without an adequate revision of the curricula in the state no such program of intelligent training can result," declared the speaker.

"The challenge is to you who know the situation. Yours should be the task of demanding the type of educational program which will result in well-trained, intelligent youth."

Pitt county ABC officers yesterday afternoon located and destroyed a 50-gallon capacity steam liquor still near Hudson's crossroads in Chicod township. REBEL LEADER AT BUCHAREST UNDER ARREST

Vice Premier Facing Charge Of Leading Rebellion

IRON GUARDISTS ARE ROUNDED UP

Rumanian Army With Tanks Making A Section By Section Search Of Bucharest For Leaders

Bucharest, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Vice-Premier Horia Sima, officially described as leader of the Rumanian rebellion, was reported under arrest today as Premier General Ion Antonescu called grimly on Iron Guardists to purge themselves or have him do it for them.

In the past many Iron Guardists have committed suicide at such suggestions from their leaders.

General Antonescu, who claims mastery of the nation after a week of blood and terror, announced he was forming a new political organization to promulgate "common spirit with Germany and Italy" and voiced gratitude for German backing.

"I make it a duty and an honor to declare to the nation in these days of great sadness that I have behind me the loyal shadow of the great Fuehrer and the honor of German might which guaranteed our borders," he wrote at the end of a dramatic account of the rebellion.

"You rebels, if you are true Iron Guardists, punish yourselves with true legionary punishment or otherwise you may be sure I shall apply mass punishment myself," Antonescu proclaimed.

Dispatch to Budapest, Hungary, from Bucharest said he reported that Rumanian soldiers had stormed the Iron Guard's quarters in the hunt for Sima, who had barricaded himself there.

"Charges of looting, as well as rebellion, were reported lodged against Guardist leaders. They were accused of sacking synagogues and wrecking newspaper plants."

Premier General Ion Antonescu declared in a signed statement in the newspapers today that a midnight attempt to assassinate him had touched off the bloody rebellion.

An important nest of 250 rebels was smoked out at noon today. "In the pages of history there does not exist a page of greater ingratitude," Antonescu said of the Iron Guardists.

The Council of Ministers declared in an official resume of the week's bloody events in Rumania that a Rumanian soldier and set him afire quoting this as one example of barbarism against which the army had to fight.

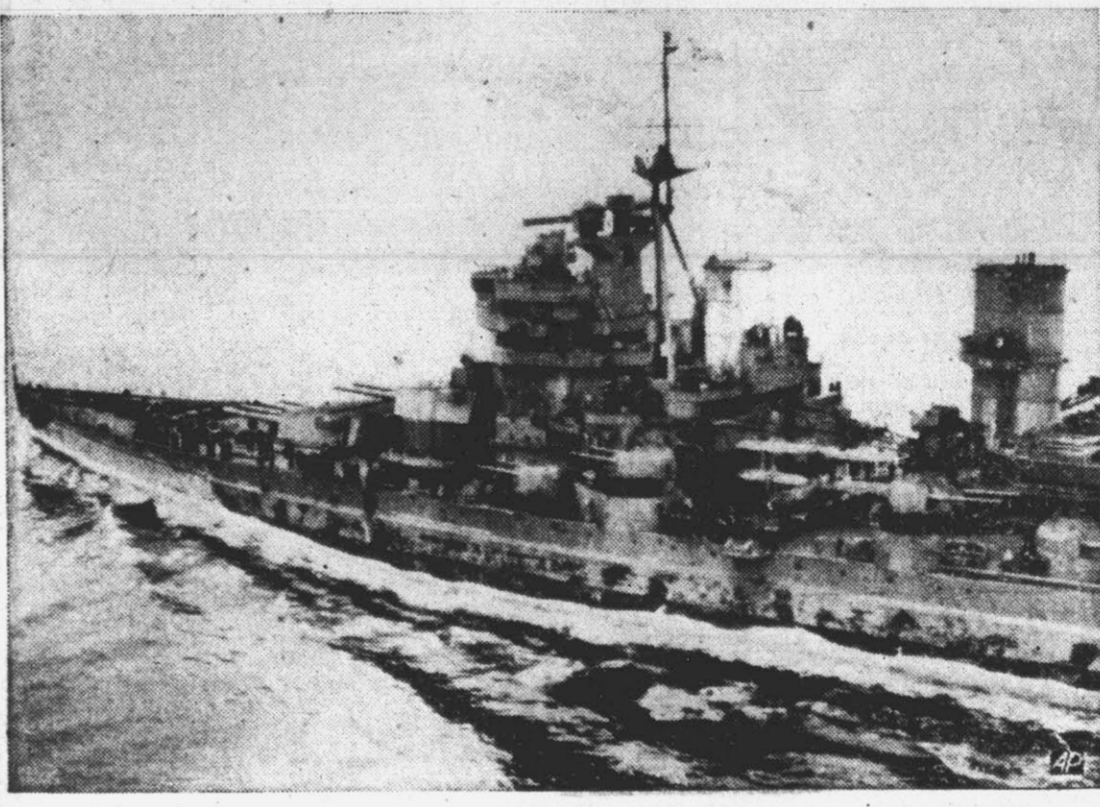

The announcement said it was impossible to estimate the number of casualties. The army, with tanks, is scouring the Bucharest section by section in its search for rebel leaders.

anyway is to further devalue the dollar. But will Congress now take back what was once taken from them? Perhaps Congress, too, will want to play a little politics.

Congress should repeal unneeded legislation and regulations. Any act of Congress which will delay the inflation hazard is justified, Mr. Eccles' proposal is basically sound. Originating from the source it did, however, it is bound to be viewed with suspicion. This is particularly true in view of the terrific battle the President put up two years ago to retain his personal power to further devalue the dollar. Regardless of the ultimate fearsome results that the President's existing powers might bring about, Congress may feel it would lose face to now reverse itself.

The President through Mr. Eccles, has passed the inflation ball to Congress. Our lawmakers have got to carry it for a while. My guess is right now they are praying for a fumble. Certainly, there should be removed from our statute books many of the crazy ideas that original New Dealers had for the regimentation of our monetary system. The fact is that the schemes were never needed anyway. Someone in the administration has waked up to the fact that the country is getting in "the world he wants to do

British Battleship Brings Halifax To U.S.

Here's an aerial close-up of the gigantic British battleship King George V steaming up Chesapeake bay toward Annapolis, Md., with Lord Halifax, the new British ambassador to the United States, and Lady Halifax aboard. President Roosevelt motored to Annapolis to greet the ambassador. The 35,000-ton ship, listed as one of the five largest battleships afloat, is among the newest of the British fleet. Between the funnels can be seen a plane on deck and lining the rails are members of the crew.

LORD HALIFAX TALKS TO HULL

Says Afterwards "We See Things Very Much Alike"

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, reported after talking for more than an hour with Secretary Hull today that "we see things very much alike."

The new ambassador, who was paying his first formal call at the State Department after his precedent-breaking reception yesterday on the battleship King George V, Halifax said, "will be deeply appreciated in England and throughout the empire where its significance will be understood."

"President Roosevelt's action in coming to meet me upon my arrival on the battleship King George V," Halifax said, "will be deeply appreciated in England and throughout the empire where its significance will be understood."

Discussing the war, the new ambassador declared that in his opinion "when history comes to be written Hitler will have been found to have lost the war in June, 1940 when he failed to take advantage of the situation existing after the collapse of France."

The Viscount said England was then at its weakest and Germany "might have been able to cash in if it had acted quickly."

Asked what he considered Britain's most immediate needs, Halifax said: "Mobilization of your great industrial strength and translating that into action in supplying us with the ships and supplies we need."

Roosevelt Testing His Power Babson Says Eccles Plan A Setup

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—The request of Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, that the President's power to further devalue the dollar be scrapped was an administration trial balloon. Causing considerable comment when first proposed, the real facts behind the controversy have not yet come out.

Congress vs. Roosevelt To anticipate that the President would voluntarily give up any of his personal powers must have made many die-hard Republicans believe once more in the "dawn of a new day." To think that Chairman Eccles, a noted "leftist," would of his own initiative bite the hand that gave him his job is likewise too much to believe. Not for nothing is this sudden about face and passive acquiescence on the part of the President to a plan which would shear him of immense and hard-won powers.

The boys in the back room who said, "It's just a game of politics"—were absolutely right. The proposal is too practically obvious; it shows the hand of the master politician too clearly to warrant any other interpretation. It is essential that the President demonstrate as early as possible to the people of this country that he still has the upper hand with Congress. The last thing in the world he wants to do

REPORT ISSUED BY GRAND JURY

Initial Findings Submitted At Final Session

The Pitt county grand jury submitted its initial report to Judge Leo Carr, presiding, at the closing session of Pitt Superior court yesterday afternoon, but it was explained that the body had not had time to carry out a program outlined by the jurist in his charge on Monday morning.

The judge had charged the body to investigate to determine if any illegal slot machines or road houses were being operated in the county and also instructed them to determine if citizens were listing their taxes as required by law. The report submitted yesterday did not mention any of these and findings are expected to be presented in subsequent reports.

The report expressed the opinion the county's affairs are well looked after and commended various officials and the manner in which the several county offices and institutions are operated, but added that there is insufficient space in some of the offices in the court house and recommended that when and if the Board of County Commissioners can see its way clear to enter into any extension program that larger space be provided such offices.

The report set forth that the body had gone into the condition of the county's financial condition with Auditor J. H. Coward and found it to be good, with ample funds on hand to meet budgeted expenditures and bond and interest maturities.

It stated that the clerk's office register of deeds' office, sheriff's department, treasurer's office, tax collector's division, county health office and welfare department had been visited and found to be operating efficiently and the member of each carrying on the work of the county in an able manner.

The jury declared that the prison camp was found in excellent condition, as was the county home. The report said the jury was impressed with the enforcement work being carried on by the county ABC board.

For lack of time, it was explained magistrates' records were not examined and the body asked to be permitted to report on this phase of work at the next term of court.

The body's investigation of school operations for the term was confined to school buses and sanitary conditions. It reported committees from the full jury found the condition of the various schools to be good and the bus situation "as good as could be expected under present economic conditions."

The first criminal session of the spring term of court was concluded yesterday afternoon after a large number of cases had been removed from the docket, although one trial—that of Fred Roach who was convicted of burning his automobile—consumed nearly two full days.

Cases disposed of not previously reported follow: five defendants on charges of larceny and false pretense; Moses Joyner, eight months; Frank Wooten, eight months; Carl Matthews, eight months; Willie (Continued on page four)

Invasion Of U.S. Seen If British Lose

Forecasting Drastic Consequences If Britain Is Defeated, Former Ambassador To France Declares Most Certain Way To Insure Against Such Defeat Would Be For U. S. To Declare War

Washington, Jan. 25.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France, told Congress today that invasion of the Western Hemisphere would be "almost certain" if the British navy were destroyed and a "totalitarian" power gained control of either the Atlantic or Pacific before the United States' two-ocean fleet is ready.

Declaring flatly that the United States is not prepared today to meet an attack, Bullitt said "we must buy time in which to prepare."

"We can buy that time only by making certain," he added, "that the British fleet will continue to hold the totalitarian forces in Europe while our fleet watches in the Pacific."

In a 28-point statement to the committee the former ambassador asserted that our country is in such danger today that decisions on the effective use of our instruments of defense are as vital as if we had already been attacked.

At the start of his statement, Bullitt declared this country was determined to maintain the independence of the United States. "We hate war," he continued. "Therefore we desire to protect our country and our liberties without going to war."

The administration, bidding for congressional unity on its aid to Britain program, was reported to have asked some influential Republicans in Congress to define the compromise terms under which they would be willing to go along on the lease-lend bill.

The invitations are being issued by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Aubrey Thompson of Graham.

Miss Thompson will be attended by her only sister, Mrs. Samuel Alexander Vest, and her nieces, Sarah Agnes and Catherine Vest, of Charlottesville, Va. Mr. Slay will have his only brother, Ronald Joseph Slay, of Tazewell, Va., as best man.

The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of the late Dr. John Berry Thompson and Sallie McCauley, and the late Wiley Anderson Wood, members of prominent pioneer central North Carolina families. She attended Greensboro College, and graduated from Duke University where she was a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. After graduating from Duke, Miss Thompson did further work in her study of speech and dramatic art at Greensboro College. She was presented to North Carolina society in 1937 at the annual debutante ball in Raleigh.

Mr. Slay is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald James Slay of Greenville, both members of leading families of the state of Mississippi. He received both his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees at Duke University where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. The past three years he has been a member of the faculty at Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, Va.

The speaker described the origin of the birthday dance, telling of the attack of poliomyelitis suffered by Mr. Roosevelt and the valiant effort which, under almost hopeless circumstances, changed him from a helpless cripple to a man of fine physique except for some lameness. He told of the use of exercise under water at Warm Springs, Ga., which was so great a factor in his recovery; and of the idea someone had of raising money to make the same treatment possible for sufferers of little means.

Now, he said, each county keeps half of the money it raises, and uses it in needed local health work. Pitt county has spent its portion in the treatment of such diseases as tuberculosis of the bone and rickets. Student tickets will be put on sale at a special rate, said the speaker, and will be sold on the campus by the Varsity Club.

As a foundation for her remarks she used the 23rd Psalm and other scripture references, reminding her hearers that amid the strife and turmoil in the world today that God still lives and is the same all-powerful, all-sufficient, and loving Father, and though the wrong seems off so strong, God is the ruler yet.

Encouraging reports were submitted by the officers and various committees. After attending to several matters of business the meeting was adjourned for a social hour.

The past three years he has been a member of the faculty at Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, Va.

Mrs. Boyd served a delicious sweet course. Due to illness, only eight members and three visitors were present. The visitors were: Misses Louise Carter and Mary Lee Ernest and Mrs. Taylor, mother of Mrs. Boyd.

A hurry up frosting: Melt chocolate cream candies or chocolate-covered mints in the double boiler. Stir until soft and creamy and then quickly spread over plain cakes or cookies.

Thursday night, January 30, beginning at 9 o'clock. The Deans of Rhythm will furnish the music. The speaker described the origin of the birthday dance, telling of the attack of poliomyelitis suffered by Mr. Roosevelt and the valiant effort which, under almost hopeless circumstances, changed him from a helpless cripple to a man of fine physique except for some lameness. He told of the use of exercise under water at Warm Springs, Ga., which was so great a factor in his recovery; and of the idea someone had of raising money to make the same treatment possible for sufferers of little means.

Now, he said, each county keeps half of the money it raises, and uses it in needed local health work. Pitt county has spent its portion in the treatment of such diseases as tuberculosis of the bone and rickets. Student tickets will be put on sale at a special rate, said the speaker, and will be sold on the campus by the Varsity Club.

T. E. L. Class Meeting. On Thursday evening, January 23, Mrs. J. H. Boyd was hostess to the T. E. L. Class of Memorial Baptist Church.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming, the president, called the meeting to order. After which Miss Mary Lee Ernest brought a very fitting and beautiful devotional message. As a foundation for her remarks she used the 23rd Psalm and other scripture references, reminding her hearers that amid the strife and turmoil in the world today that God still lives and is the same all-powerful, all-sufficient, and loving Father, and though the wrong seems off so strong, God is the ruler yet.

Encouraging reports were submitted by the officers and various committees. After attending to several matters of business the meeting was adjourned for a social hour.

agement and house furnishings, met the home demonstration club women in the Agricultural building. The subject was "The Bedroom." She brought slides and gave demonstrations giving a bird's eye view of the major project for the year. We are beginning the second year of house furnishings and the bedroom will be the central theme. The leaders were given some special help in the afternoon.

Until We Meet Again. After twelve enjoyable years in Pitt county, I am returning to my native state to take up home demonstration work in Madison county, Indiana, February 1st. My "latch string" will be out in Anderson and all Pitt county friends and when the opportunity comes I shall be visiting here.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

For something new in pumpkin pie add a little chopped candied ginger and 1/2 cup toasted pecans to your regular filling for a one-crust pie. Bake as usual and lightly cover, when time to serve, with whipped cream containing a dash of grated orange rind.

Save all dabs of frosting, cover with waxed paper and tuck away in the refrigerator. They come in handy to do up crackers—plain or graham—for school lunches.

Because of the great amount of fat, a goose or duck should be turned every 30 minutes in the roasting pan while cooking. The fowls do not need to be basted.

BEST OF THE LOT—Long-legged Harold Davis, who's as much at home in a biology "lab" as on the cinder paths, won top honors among 700 athletes from junior colleges in 33 states. He's from Salinas, Cal., junior college, excels in the hundred-yard dash and the furlong.

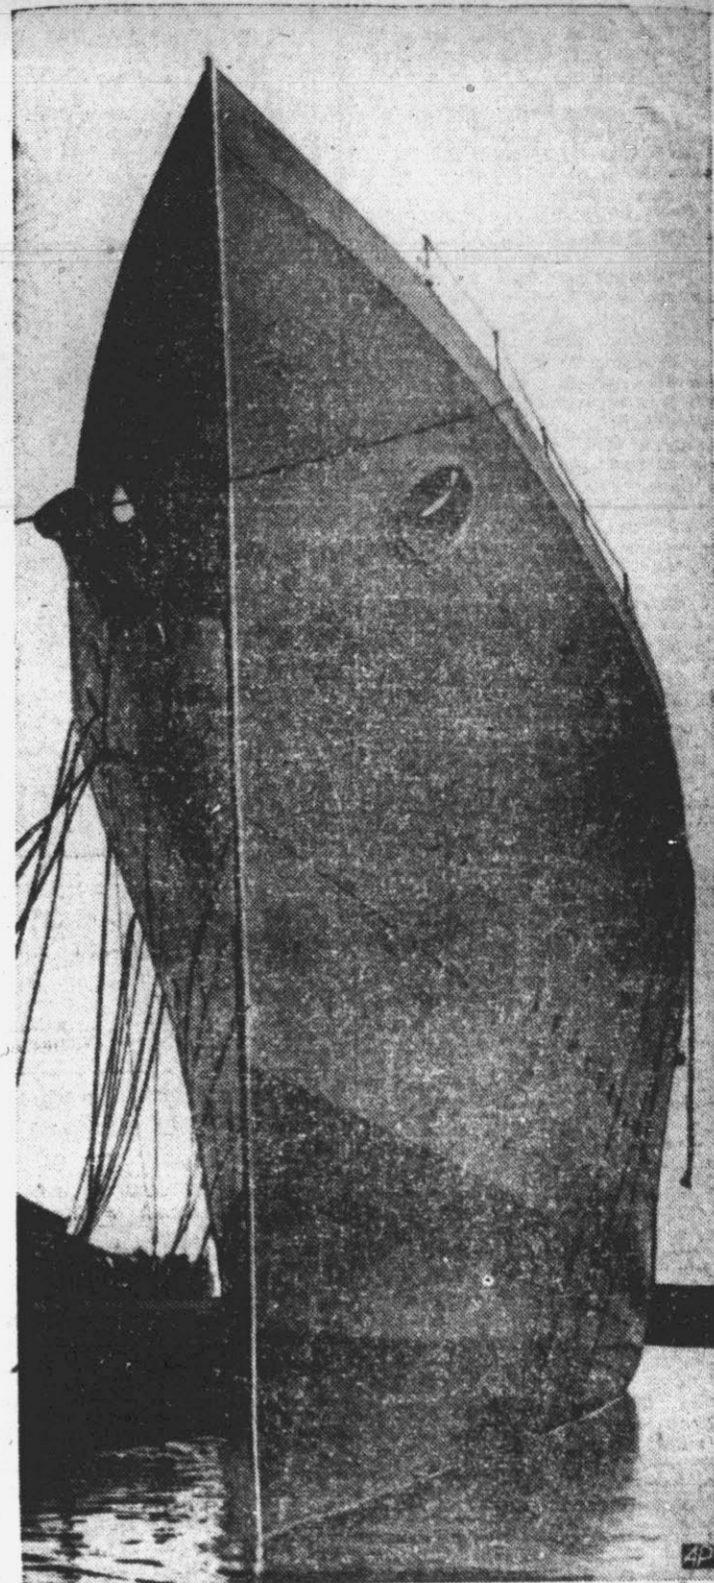

'BUG' GIVES FOR UNCLE SAM—Up a hill chugs the army's new 45-horsepower, one-quarter ton "bug," which was given a workout at Camp Holabird near Baltimore. The squat, armored bug may replace the motorcycle for courier work, can do reconnaissance and some 60-miles-per-hour machine gunning. Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY IS RELIGION A PROP?

Too many people use religion as a support and not as an inspiration. They turn to it only when they are in trouble. They think about God only when they have done everything for themselves they can think of and are at their wits' end.

There are times when religion is intended indeed to be God's stout staff upon which we lean, but we should not accept it as a staff until we have to. No man uses crutches so long as he has two good legs to walk on. Those who regard religion simply as something to turn to when everything else in life has failed, have missed the most glorious rewards that religion has to offer. For the time that religion works most pleasantly in our lives and gives us its greatest rewards is when we carry its spirit into our everyday living. The Lord is indeed a great help in time of trouble but He is intended to be a great companion also amid the routine of daily life and while we are walking in paths of pleasantness.

Prop. fire-escape, emergency call—these are poor symbols of the Christian experience. If we learn how to turn to God every day, we will know better how to find Him in the dark hour when we are threatened with destruction.

Plans are going forward for the President's Birthday Ball to be held at the college next Thursday night, and it is to be hoped that the attendance will be large. Half the net proceeds of the affair will be used for aid to and rehabilitation of infantile paralysis sufferers in this county and the work along this line that has already been accomplished with funds received in the past, justifies the continuation of this annual project. Tickets for the ball will go on sale throughout the county the first of the week, and even if you cannot attend the ball you can help the cause greatly by purchasing a ticket. It is to be hoped that everyone in the county will aid the cause either through the purchase of tickets or by contributing to the "March of Dimes." Your contribution will aid some crippled child to walk.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Tourists' guide. I once knew a lad who always described as "golly-whopping" anything of such magnitude that it made the eyes bulge. I'm sure if he could come to Washington today and see the Smithsonian Institution's new exhibit, he would suck in a quick breath and say it was "the golly-whoppingest thing I ever saw."

For three months, behind locked doors, the men and women of the Smithsonian labored in the great exhibition hall. When the "closed" sign was changed for one reading "Open to the Public" the other day, they had completed a task which probably will put the Smithsonian on more visitors' "must" lists than it has ever been.

Briefly, the exhibit is the story of the life for the last half-billion years and, just as a flick, a glance into the future. This peek, at things to come is proof positive that the men of the Smithsonian are far from unimaginative gray-beards. They may do a lot of poring over crusted skulls and fossils, but they also have a Wellesian flair that would put both H. G. and Orson to shame.

Realistic Space Ship. They have cooked up a realistic space ship which appears to be zooming along some inter-planetary highway. As the pilot looks back he can see the changing scene of the earth as the continents and oceans revolve into the sunlight. Before him, brightly lighted, is a part of his course. It is accurate to an inch. Smithsonian mathematicians spent days in the realm of higher mathematics to produce it. The pilot is receiving television reports. He carries in his holster a deadly gas gun "to repel attacks by space cruising bandits." (Won't we ever get rid of those fellows?) The Smithsonian experts went the rocket ship boys one better, for this one, I'm told, is powered by oxygen "bombs."

By a series of scale-model diagrams, the Institution has traced the "Ascent of man" from his beginnings. These show early man in his natural habitat, with the trees, grasses and animals of pre-historic times. All has been reconstructed on the latest scientific conclusions, with everything as accurate as it possibly could be made. To give all possible credence, there are exhibits of pre-historic skulls. The one of old Joe Cro-Magnon, who seems to have died with a toothy grin, thus the centuries haven't erased, should be labeled: "To be dreamed about after Welsh rabbit and hot mince pie."

more attention in the schools of this city and county in recent years and one of the great reasons that even more emphasis has not been placed on the plan is the lack of necessary provision of facilities to carry out the program. We agree with Mr. Kerr that vocational education is one of the great needs in our state at this time and it is to be hoped that he will be able to sell his own Appropriations Committee in the General Assembly on the idea to the extent that necessary funds for such a program will be provided.

Says Schools Are For Pupils

From all the talk about teacher salaries, teacher retirement, etc., one might think that the public schools are operated just for the benefit of teachers, commented an eastern legislator. "Last summer," he continued, "when the schools first opened and we had to operate on a short day so the farm boys could get home to do some work, small children were gotten out of bed by daylight to make the school bus on time. But when Christmas holidays came along the school suspended for 17 days, right at the time when the children ought to have been in the school all the time. Later when I found out about some special tours that the teacher association were sponsoring I wondered if this long vacation wasn't arranged so the teachers could take jaunts to the West Indies and other places on Christmas."

Too Many Figures

One trouble Senator "Curly" Sanders, chairman of the committee on senatorial districts, has had is the presence of too many sets of figures claimed to be authentic, but in one or two instances would have changed standing of county and switched representation. Finally, Senator Sanders got State Chairman Denny to certify a set of figures and these have been used in the House. There's a lot to be done yet before senatorial districts are satisfactorily arranged, many trouble now coming from very small counties adjoining big ones and which have heretofore profited by the overage in population.

Meteorite In Color

In the geological section, the exhibit has what it refers to as its great collection of meteorites. Not being geological, I couldn't get stirred up about these hunks of iron and such that burned themselves out bombarding their way through the earth's atmosphere. But even this section is enlivened by a "color transparency" of a fiery meteorite plunging along where only space ship pilots ought to be. And here also are the world's largest topaz and some new minerals discovered in the gold and silver mines of Mexico.

In its century of progress, the Smithsonian has unearthed something like a 100,000 new plants and animals and the gentlemen there know what they are drawing when they sketch a tree of life like the one which is the center of the biological exhibit. Here also are some of the Institution's rare specimens, like the fish that carries its eggs in its mouth and another that disproves that old ope about "the fish out of water" by packing up frequently and taking long junkets across dry land.

Old And New

The exhibit has plenty of "first editions" in the machine age, too. These range from a working model of the Newcomen atmospheric steam engine, the first steam engine which at two piston strokes a minute, was pumping water out of a flooded coal mine in England, 200 years ago, to the "solar cooker" in which the inventor can cook on a clear day—fry an egg in a fifty or bake a cake in half an hour.

All in all, it's a pretty fascinating exhibit and the one place in Washington where you can get away from war and politics.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Jan. 25 — Not even Thad Eure's school of parliamentary law could have given a better course of instruction in the technique of legislative procedure than did the House's action of Friday aimed at preventing the statute books from being cluttered with two identical laws.

On Thursday the House and Senate both passed bills making January 23 to 31 "Peanut Week." When the point was made in the House that they were duplicates, Speaker Mull cracked, "Well, we'll just have two peanuts instead of one."

Friday, gravely up rose Representative Julian Allsbrook of Halifax to move that Senate Bill No. 39 (the Peanut measure) be "recalled from the enrolling office." Gravelly Mr. Mull put the "aves and noes," there being no "noes," of course, and so the bill was again before the House.

Next Mr. Allsbrook moved "that the vote by which the House passed Senate Bill No. 39 be reconsidered." With the same gravity the Speaker went through the voting procedure again.

Next the Halifax representative moved "that Senate Bill No. 39 do now lie upon the table." Once more the "aves and noes," and the desired result had been attained.

"Now we only have one peanut instead of two," said Mr. Mull.

Redistricting More Rapid. It didn't take half as long for the House to pass the bill providing for division of the State into Twelve Congressional districts as did to get rid of one peanut bill. The whole thing consumed less than one and a half minutes including a brief explanation by Representative Jarvis of Buncombe.

loose money. "I don't blame them for asking for it, but it would be very unwise for us to give it to them. It's easy to spend money; I can spend more than fifteen men can make. But it isn't always easy to spend it wisely."

Pix Of Stenogs. News photographers had all the clerical force of the senate clustered in a corner for purpose of a group picture. Said one of the most ornery looking of the senators: "That's a feeble attempt to get the effect of the group picture of the senate supposed to be made a little later." Said another: "Well, it's a little thing to have a group like that to maintain the pulchritudinous reputation of this august deliberative body."

Bad On Rabbits And Possoms. Senator Punderbuck doesn't see why rabbits and possums in Union county should be accorded legal protection. He attempted yesterday to have open season declared upon them at all times. But he didn't quite get away with it. Not that anybody has special love for rabbits and possums, but the senators just didn't want to let in an opening wedge to bust up the statewide game laws. On motion of Chairman Watson of the senate committee on conservation and development the bill was refused passage under suspension of the rules and was referred to his committee. It probably will pass all right, because so far there is no registered lobbyist to look after interests of possums — one of the few omissions.

Mammoth, Stupendous and Colossal. The lobby of the Sir Walter Hotel last night presented an interesting study in superlatives. The association of Fair Secretaries was in session, and that naturally brought the show and carnival. Every available foot of balcony space in the hotel lobby was used for the display of posters, proclaiming at least half a dozen "greatest shows on earth" and other superlatives.

Can't Need What They Ask For. The state wouldn't be a bit better off if the legislature would give these officers every cent they ask for, said Representative Senter of Harnett, who has sort of a local reputation for not wanting to turn ing a brief explanation by Representative Jarvis of Buncombe.

Says Schools Are For Pupils. From all the talk about teacher salaries, teacher retirement, etc., one might think that the public schools are operated just for the benefit of teachers, commented an eastern legislator. "Last summer," he continued, "when the schools first opened and we had to operate on a short day so the farm boys could get home to do some work, small children were gotten out of bed by daylight to make the school bus on time. But when Christmas holidays came along the school suspended for 17 days, right at the time when the children ought to have been in the school all the time. Later when I found out about some special tours that the teacher association were sponsoring I wondered if this long vacation wasn't arranged so the teachers could take jaunts to the West Indies and other places on Christmas."

Too Many Figures. One trouble Senator "Curly" Sanders, chairman of the committee on senatorial districts, has had is the presence of too many sets of figures claimed to be authentic, but in one or two instances would have changed standing of county and switched representation. Finally, Senator Sanders got State Chairman Denny to certify a set of figures and these have been used in the House. There's a lot to be done yet before senatorial districts are satisfactorily arranged, many trouble now coming from very small counties adjoining big ones and which have heretofore profited by the overage in population.

Meteorite In Color. In the geological section, the exhibit has what it refers to as its great collection of meteorites. Not being geological, I couldn't get stirred up about these hunks of iron and such that burned themselves out bombarding their way through the earth's atmosphere. But even this section is enlivened by a "color transparency" of a fiery meteorite plunging along where only space ship pilots ought to be. And here also are the world's largest topaz and some new minerals discovered in the gold and silver mines of Mexico.

Old And New. The exhibit has plenty of "first editions" in the machine age, too. These range from a working model of the Newcomen atmospheric steam engine, the first steam engine which at two piston strokes a minute, was pumping water out of a flooded coal mine in England, 200 years ago, to the "solar cooker" in which the inventor can cook on a clear day—fry an egg in a fifty or bake a cake in half an hour.

Short Shots. Raleigh, Jan. 25 — Not even Thad Eure's school of parliamentary law could have given a better course of instruction in the technique of legislative procedure than did the House's action of Friday aimed at preventing the statute books from being cluttered with two identical laws.

Chapter 22 Peter Walks. Peter was sitting up in bed, his eyes wide and shining. "I walked," Peter said. "I—I took six steps without the bra!" That swimming pool's curing me, Cousin David!

"Gosh!" David said. He sat down upon the side of the bed. He pulled the boy over against him. "Gosh, that's swell!"

"Shall I show you?" Peter asked, eagerly, kicking back the covers. "No, Peter, not tonight," David said. "It's after midnight. Go to sleep like a good kid. You can show me in the morning."

"Okay," the boy said. "But I—I thought you'd want to see me do it." David grinned. "All right, Peter," he consented. "Let me see you do your stuff."

Peter got out of bed. He held to David's hand until he got his balance. Then he started off. One step—two—three—four—five—six—seven. Then once more the small boy toppled over. David ran to him. "Oh, it's not that bad," Warren said. "You did do it! You did! Seven steps, instead of six."

Peter looked up at him. This time he wasn't sobbing. He was smiling—happy, his face was flushed. "I fell," he said, "but not like the—other time."

"No," said David, "not a bit like the other time." "Shall I walk back to the bed for you, Cousin David?"

"No, Peter, you mustn't overdo it. You must take it easy," David lifted the boy in his arms and crossed the room with him. "A little each day," he said. "Eight steps the next time, then nine, and so on, until you can walk down beneath the sheet. Then he reached up and hugged David tightly to him.

"I'll be riding that horse yet, won't I?" he said. "Just like my great-great-great—something—or-other."

"You bet!" said David. "Go to sleep now, Peter."

And as he went out of the room walking very softly, he once more thought of the "magic" which Polly had mentioned. Or maybe Peter was improving because he had made up his mind he wouldn't so on being a crippled little boy. Plucky little kid, that small Peter Wiley.

David went on into his own room. "I reckon Polly would make a darned good doctor's wife," he told the four walls there about him. "She'd be able to help in a lot of ways—after all her experience caring for ailing relatives."

her Aunt Susan is still something of a responsibility. She feels it might hold me down—sort of keep my nose to the proverbial grindstone, so to speak.

"I see. But how do you feel about it?" "Just as I've always felt," said David. "I've been planning to marry Polly ever since we were school kids."

Warren nodded slowly. "We seem to be on the spot, David—you and I," he said. "Something like that, yes." "Maybe we ought to try what I saw them do in a movie."

"Exchange girls," Warren smiled. "Maybe if Polly thought you were switching over to Margo, she'd perk up. And maybe it would work the same way with Margo." He shrugged. "Women are built with strange minds," he went on. "The doctor who gets so he can analyze and diagnose and dissect a woman's mind has made his fortune."

"I reckon you're right," said David. "Darned if I can understand 'em."

"You've got plenty of company along that line," said Warren. "They took a short cut to the Wiley cottage. David got the car from the barn."

Peter came running out of the house. "Where you going, Cousin David?" he wanted to know. "Out for a swim, Doctor Warren and I."

"Gee, can I go?" "Of course, I was going to invite you, but you didn't give me a chance."

Peter climbed into the car, and took his place between the two men. "Gee, us three fellows swimming together!" he said. "And no girls around."

"That reminds me," said David. "Maybe we ought to stop and get Polly."

"She's not at home," Peter said. "She went to work."

"Work?" said David. "What doing?" "She's helping out down at the millinery store. Miss Aggie sent for her. I went over to see if Polly wanted to go out to the Inn and do some work and her Aunt Susan told me about it."

Then that means we do go ourselves, said David. He glanced at Warren. "Unless you'd like to ask Margo."

"Not this time, no," Warren said. "Like Peter, I think it would be fun to make it a stage party."

"What's that?" Peter asked. "A party for men only," Warren replied.

"Gee, that's the kind of party I'd like all the time," said Peter. Then after a moment's thought he added: "Cept when Polly and I have parties together."

"I think you rather like Polly," said Warren teasingly.

SOLONS PLAN GO TO CHURCH

To Meet Early In Order To Hear Dies Group Member

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Raleigh, Jan. 25—The senate will meet at 7:30 Monday night instead of at 8 so it can get through with the business of state in time to go to church. Senator Lumpkin changed his motion for 8 o'clock meeting after he had checked read an invitation for the senators to attend the opening session of the Institute of Raleigh" at the United Church in Raleigh.

The speaker for Monday night's institute will be Congressman Jerry Voorhees of California, a member of the Dies investigating committee who will speak on the "Danger From Within". Rev. Allyn Robinson, pastor of the church, intimated in his letter of invitation to the senate that it might be a good idea for the senators to hear this address.

The current Institute of Raleigh is the third sponsored by the United Church of Raleigh, each of which has attracted national figures to discuss timely topics dealing with the application of religion to practical economic, social and political problems. Meetings are held on Monday nights for six weeks.

There is almost a story in the United Church. Originally organized as the First Christian Church, the congregation some ten years ago voted to accept Congregationalists and Friends (Quakers) and the name was changed to conform with the wider scope of congregational service. Sponsorship of the annual Institute of Raleigh is one of the community services rendered by this congregation, which by its very nature is independent of all denominational conferences, synods, conventions, etc.

Congressman Voorhees is the second member of the Dies committee to speak in Raleigh this month, with legislators as invited guests on both occasions. Hon. Joe Starnes of Alabama addressed the banquet meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce here Thursday night.

liked it. It finally opened on Broadway to high praise from the critics and today it is the outstanding drama on Broadway.

Almost every year a drama shows up that scores heavily to the bewilderment of the producers. "The Rain" which made the late Jeanne Eagels immortal was kicked around for two years before it found a producer who believed in it. "The Bat," which earned millions and ran seven years on the road, languished similarly.

Then there was a play called "Within the Law" which Broadway's managers played basketball with for two years before the Selwyn brothers decided to take a chance. Horace Liveright, thinking he had a failure on his hands with "Dracula," didn't want to open it but did so because the cast begged him to as a favor. It ran a year on Broadway and five years on the road and netted close to a million dollars. "The Green Pastures" was another that was ignored by producers, and five different managers refused "Dodsworth" before it became one of the most profitable of all Broadway dramas.

This year it is "The Corn Is Green," which already has enjoyed great success in London. It may have been this fact that discouraged the Manhattan producers. Hits in London are notoriously poor risks in New York, and vice versa. "Porgy," which made Broadway history, was a dud in London. "The Desert Side," which made Broadway history, was a dud in New York. The reason for this may be the difference in contemporary speech. Midwest colloquialisms can't be very funny to the representatives of Soho. Strand slang wouldn't make much sense in Brooklyn.

However, Herman Shulmin, if he record means anything, is a man with a good eye for manuscripts. There haven't been many seasons that he hasn't come up with a money-making production. He had "Grand Hotel" and "The Children's Hour." He had "The Little Foxes" and "The Male Animal." Now he has Mrs. Ethel Barrymore in this Ethel Williams hit, "The Corn Is Green."

The play tells the quiet story of a London social service worker and her struggle to educate the miners from the impoverished coal regions of Wales.

Farley's Gain Decisive Revenge; Take Ghosts 40-26

SECOND WIN IN FIVE CONTESTS

Phantoms Hit Stride For Second Time During Season

With a win becoming almost a necessity, the Flying Green Phantoms of Greenville high school came back from three successive two-point defeats and handed the Elizabeth City Grey Ghosts a 40-26 licking last night in the local high school gym. Earlier in the week the Ghosts topped Farley's Phantoms 17-15 in that city.

With the starting whistle the Phantoms seemed headed for another close licking at the hands of Coach George Hunsucker's proteges. At the end of the first period the Phantoms trailed 4-3, with Spearman and J. Briley scoring the points. McMullan and Jennings, with a field goal each, tallied Elizabeth City's points.

GHS's superiority came to the surface during the second period of the contest, with the Phantoms dropping in 12 points while holding the Ghosts to a mere point. Burney Warren, returning from a week's illness, jumped into the game and dropped in two field goals to lead the Phantoms' attack. Spearman, Andrews, Riddle and Clark accounted for the other eight points with a field goal apiece. Half-time whistle showed the Phantoms with a 15-5 lead.

Going into the second half of the ball game, Farley's boys continued to roll up points. Spearman with two field goals, led the 12-point attack on the Grey Ghosts. Corey, Riddle and Clark, with a field goal each, and Warren and Wells, with a free throw, constituted the points. Elizabeth City's ace, James Brinson, after going scoreless for the first half, began to find the basket and ran up a total of 10 points to produce all of Elizabeth City's scoring for that period. Farley's boys hold a 27-15 advantage at the end of the period.

The Phantoms went into the last quarter with a 12-point lead and victory in sight. The Farley-men gave the Ghosts no chance to catch up by continuing to rack up points. Elizabeth City made a gallant attempt to catch up by scoring 11 points, but the Phantoms did one better and garnered 13. Warren and Corey, with a field goal and a free throw apiece led the Elizabeth City attack. Riddle, Clark and J. Briley with a field goal, and Musselwhite with a free throw made up the points.

James Brinson, star of both games against Elizabeth City, took top honors on the floor and at the basket by scoring 16 points. John Spearman, gaining his first role as a starter and Burney Warren took runner-up honors with eight points each. Riddle and Clark with six apiece took third honors.

The line-up:
Greenville—Forwards, Spearman 8, Warren 8, Corey 5, Horne, Maye, Hunter, Crawford; Centers, Clark 6, Wells 1, Musselwhite 1, J. Briley 3, L. Briley, Turner.
Elizabeth City—Forwards, Brinson 16, McMullan 2, Askew, Cente, Jennings 4; Guards, Gard, Long 3, Seymour 1.

Meet Deferred

The meeting called for stockholders in the Greenville Baseball Club, Inc., last night failed to materialize, with sickness or other engagements kept all but a small number from attending. No official business was transacted and another meeting was called for 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday night in the Board of Aldermen's room in the Municipal building.

Those present, however, engaged in baseball talk for quite a while.

Plans also are being made for a league meeting to be held here on the night of February 4 with representatives of all teams in the loop to be present.

Lindbergh Urges "Negotiated Peace" To End War

This was the scene in Washington as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh (seated at extreme left) told the House Foreign Affairs committee that even a combination of the United States and Great Britain could not win the European war "on the present basis" and he urged a "negotiated peace." Spectators crowded every inch of the large hearing room and even stood behind members of the committee as the fiercer read a prepared statement and then answered questions. Seated at elevated desk in background, right to left: Rep. Sol Bloom (D-NY), chairman of the committee; Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex.), Rep. John Kee (D-W. Va.), Rep. James P. The teachers of the Negro race with good-will are asking that every Negro citizen living in the corporate limits of Greenville send, or give a dime to our girls and teachers in the city system.

This places Negroes among those who are determined to wipe out infantile paralysis. Every dime collected will go into the infantile paralysis treasury and thus make Professor J. H. Therefore, it is our duty to rally around the broad-minded, courteous, sympathetic members of the dominant race.

DISTRICT P. T. A. ORGANIZED

Parents and teachers met at the Simpson school and organized the Chicod District Parent-Teacher Association. The meeting was held on Thursday night, January 23. The meeting was opened with Mrs. Rowy Moore last year's president, presiding. O. A. Dupree of Grimesland was appointed to take charge of the election of officers for this year. The following officers were elected: C. C. Chapman, president; Mrs. M. Q. Wyche, vice-president; Miss Sylvia Galin, secretary; Willie Taft, treasurer; O. A. Dupree, business manager.

The bus project took up most of the discussion during the meeting. All present pledged their wholehearted support to this cause. The next meeting will be held at the Sweet Hope school. The association will rotate to all of the schools in the Chicod district, hoping that it will give some material and moral aid to each school and community.

Speaks Out In Behalf Of Negro Law School

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Appearing before the joint appropriations committee in support of a plea for more liberal allotment to the North Carolina College for Negroes, particularly in the graduate school, Dean VanHeck of the University law school said that he did not believe the legislature of the state intended that school to be just a gesture and a buffer to keep Negroes out of Chapel Hill, but that it would be a fraud on the Negro race to provide for them a school which was not recognized by the bar examining board.

Dean Van Heck and other speakers called attention to the Supreme court decisions requiring comparable facilities for the colored students, or else admission into the regular university.

MAY ATTEMPT TO REVIVE ACT

Bus Terminal Measure May Be Debated Again

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Efforts to revive the Volker-McDougle-Tonissen bill designed to give franchise bus carriers the right of eminent domain to acquire bus station sites are likely to be made Monday night when the legislature convenes again after the week end rest and home-going period.

Its authors disclaimed any great personal regret at the action of the House, taken Friday, in tabling it "and all its subsidiaries" as Grady Withrow put it, but they said they will confer with Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne whose efforts resulted in a favorable report from the committee on roads with regard to possible future action.

Withrow's tabling motion succeeded, 48 to 45, on a standing vote and without a roll call, but the parliamentary "climber" (a motion to reconsider and lay that motion on the table) was not made, and so it is still possible to take the bill out of its temporary legislative grave and pump it up for further consideration. This can be done Monday night only, as thereafter the time for a reconsideration motion will have expired.

The debate which followed bringing up of the bill on Friday's calendar was the very first of the session on the House floor and, while it was not extended, was spirited and pointed.

Ordinarily the defeat of any bill favored by the bus companies is laid to the "railroad interests," and while it is possible that this perpetual issue may have had some effect on Friday's vote, the greatest single factor was an obviously sincere disinclination on the part of House members to extend the extraordinary power of eminent domain into any new sphere.

That the rail-bus issue had little or nothing to do with the outcome is further indicated by the fact that at least one of the leading bus companies, as its attitude is gained from its general conduct, has doubted of its desirability from the point of view of the franchise carriers.

Principle support for the measure came from those localities where there has been great delay and trouble in getting new bus stations to replace grossly inadequate accommodations; although it was noticeable that Victor Bryant, of Durham, was among those voting to table, despite the fact that his city has probably the most terrible bus station facilities of any sizeable city

House Is Being Regarded As Conservative Branch

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 24.—Whether justifiably or not, the House is getting itself on the back for being the "conservative" branch of the General Assembly this time, just as it claimed to be two years ago.

"It seems that the Senate will pass almost anything, just to keep from being bothered with it," said one high-ranking House committee chairman who for quite obvious reasons preferred that his name be not used in connection with quotes in the public prints.

He referred specifically to two instances already this session—the salary raise for Thad Eure, Charlie Johnson, George Ross Pou and Clyde Erwin, and the still unpassed bill giving the Highway and Public Works Commission authority to award without advertisement or competitive bidding contracts for construction of roads within thirty miles of national defense projects.

In both these cases, he pointed out, there are grave questions to be considered, but in neither did the Senate give even casual consideration to the points involved. He admitted that the salary grab measure couldn't be stopped even in the House, but mentioned the fact that it was at least objected to and some scanty debate was permitted upon it.

As for the road measure, there still isn't any certainty that it will gain House approval. A hasty session of the roads committee was called for the Hall of the House Wednesday afternoon; Charlie Ross, general counsel for the Highway commission, attended, gave a sketchy outline of the bill and urged immediate action. The group gave it without in North Carolina. The influence of such leaders of long standing as Mr. Bryant and Libby Ward of Craven was also apparent in the result; though to pile up more evidence that the issue wasn't one in which there was a definite crystallization of usual "groups," such Representatives as Frank Taylor of Wayne and others usually voting as "regulars" were aligned with those favoring passage of the bill.

But whatever else the debate may have shown or failed to show it did at least confirm belief that there is some fight in the Representatives something that had not been apparent since the opening skirmish over the salary grab bill hiking the pay of Thad Eure, George Ross Pou, Charlie Johnson and Clyde Erwin.

audible dissent after rejecting an amendment by Eost of Cabarrus which would have put a time limit on it.

Instead of being killed off as the result of this action, opposition to the bill (particularly to its being ram-rodged through without more than casual consideration) is quite definitely growing.

There is a certainty that it will get further consideration by the road committee before it actually is reported to the House, and no matter what the committee decides on its second bite at the cherry, there is almost equally sure to be opposition to it on the floor.

Chairman Clarence E. Stone of the Road committee was out of action with the flu during the initial committee hearing and it is thought that further consideration will be postponed until he is able to preside at a fully advertised session at which all members have an opportunity to be present.

Chances favor ultimate adoption of the measure, but there are those in the House who are going to insist that it be done in a regular orderly manner and not by the high pressure methods tried by the Highway commission people.

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The stock market had rallying ideas today, but these were mostly of a feeble character. Steels and specialties edged upward at the start. Dealings were among the slowest since October. A few inactives jumped several points on small turners. Fractional gains were fairly well distributed at the close. Transfers were around 250,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures sold off to final net losses of three to six points today after a period of irregularity. Middling spot closed 10.89, off five.

Aged Atlas Is In Use In Education Office

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Some days ago Baxter Durham, secretary to the committee studying a retirement plan for teachers and other state employees, needed a map or an atlas. He sent a messenger over to the Department of Public Instruction to borrow one. Dr. Clyde Erwin's department gladly acted the part of a good neighbor and courteously rounded up and sent to Mr. Durham the latest copy of an atlas to be found. It was published in 1927. "About the only country that has not changed in that time," said Mr. Durham, "is the United States—and everything about that has changed except the physical geography." Asked about why there was not a later and more accurate atlas available in the heart of the state's educational system an attaché there said it was because they didn't have money to buy one.

Mrs. Howard Mims Reports On Meet

Plans were made in Chapel Hill last week by a group of interested North Carolinians for a conference in Durham, March 1, designed to promote tolerance in the United States. Mrs. Howard Mims of the Greenville High School faculty represented the Greenville teachers and community on this planning committee, composed of 29 members. The conference in Durham will be the third of its kind to be held in the nation; a fourth has been arranged for California some time in April. Conferences have already been held in New York and Chicago.

Plans for the Durham meeting were formulated in the planning conference in Chapel Hill last week. At this time Dr. Alonzo Myers of New York University addressed the group on the importance of stressing tolerance in our democracy. Dr. Carson Ryan, head of the education department at Chapel Hill, presided over the planning group which is arranging details for the Durham meeting March 1.

The Council Against Intolerance in America is sponsored by outstanding educators, scientists, newspaper men and politicians. Dr. Frank P. Graham of the University of North Carolina is among the advisors for the council. People prominent in national life are likewise associated with the group in its efforts to maintain and enhance the American trends of mutual tolerance and human equality.

According to Mrs. Mims, the University of North Carolina, Duke University, the parent-teacher organization of the state and the classroom teachers organization of the state are especially interested in promoting the regional meeting in Durham early in March.

Through the Council Against Intolerance in America a number of school aids have been sent to the Greenville High school for use in classrooms and assemblies. The call sent out to the various educators of the country on the subject by the organization is as follows: "The American people are menaced today by forces which seek to destroy liberty through bigotry. Those forces are attempting to foment racial and religious intolerance through the school, the home and among teachers themselves. Their challenge to democracy must be answered. "In view of this grave problem, the Council against Intolerance has called a Regional Conference on Tolerance Through Education to be held in Durham, North Carolina, March 1. This conference will consist of educators, parent organizations, and outstanding civic leaders, who will consider what specific steps can be taken to safeguard our schools and the children they serve from the propagandas of prejudice and what efforts should be made to towards better understanding among teachers, parents, and students. "Both the historic role of education in our democracy and the seriousness of the present challenge to the principles of equality, fundamental to American education are such that the Council Against Intolerance in America is confident that teachers, parents, and civic leaders will join at this conference in working out the practical means of maintaining and enhancing the American tradition of mutual tolerance and human equality."

SURPRISED AT TWO NO VOTES

Only Two Senators Vote Against Hospital Bonds

Reflector Bureau
By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Some surprise was voiced by supporting senators particularly by the introducer, Dr. Tom Long of Halifax, when two senators voted no yesterday on the second roll call reading of the bill authorizing $600,000 bonds for an eastern tubercular sanatorium to be located at or near Wilson.

The two opposition votes were cast by Senators Clark of Bladen and Price of Rockingham, and it was later ascertained by your correspondent that their votes were based on general opposition to any sort of bond issue or tax increase, and not directed specifically against the hospital project.

In a brief explanation of the bill immediately preceding the roll call, Dr. Long pointed out that this was the only bond issue recommended by the budget commission and that it was actually just furthering a project started by the last legislature which authorized $250,000 for the same purpose. It was found that the original amount was not adequate, so the new bill was proposed. The people of Wilson have donated the site to the state, and the federal government will assist in construction and equipment of the hospital. Need for the institution was emphasized by Dr. Long, who said that there are now on file applications for admission to tubercular hospitals more patients than can be admitted within the next three months.

Senator Clark, a member of the budget commission, stated to news men that there were requests for more than ten million dollars for new buildings at various institutions presented to the commission, and that he could not consistently open the door to other demands by supporting this proposition. He admitted, however, a definite prospect that he might change his vote on third reading because of the urgency of need in this particular case.

Folger Announces Four New Buicks

Returning today from a business session of the Buick zone in Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Lee A. Folger, Jr., of the Folger Buick Co. Inc., announced today that this division of General Motors Corporation will shortly introduce four new automobiles in a lower price bracket as an addition to the present Series 40 Special Buick line.

Mr. Folger said he inspected the new cars at the zone meeting and heard factory and zone officials outline aggressive sales plans for the next 60 days covering the announcement of these new models and the early spring campaign on these and Buick's six other lines.

"While details of the new cars will not be available until next week, I can say that they are the answer to the demand of a mighty, big cross section of the country for a Buick built in a more compact size with all the big car engineering and design qualities that characterize the largest Buick cars," he said.

"They have a shorter wheelbase and shorter over all length and new bodies, but are otherwise identical with the Series 40 Buicks. That's why they are being introduced as an addition to the Series 40 line rather than as a new model."

Mr. Folger said that the new cars will be lower in price and will have performance and economy even bettering the present Series 40 cars and pointed out that they leave more room in the average garage "without disturbing the garden tools" and can be "parked on a dime."

The new cars will be formally announced February 1st and will be on display at that time, he said.

Want Working Barber On N.C. Barber Board

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—President C. A. Fink of the North Carolina Federation of Labor is preparing to have introduced a bill requiring that one member of the state barbers' board be a journeyman barber.

At present all board members are master barbers, and the working branch of the craft think they ought to be represented. Mr. Fink conferred with Governor Braggton about this bill, and while declining directly to quote his excellency, unhesitatingly said that the governor would not oppose it.

Subversive Activities Ban Held To Be Valid

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—One of the first dozen bills introduced in this session of the legislature was that by LeGrand of New Hanover outlawing subversive activities and fifth columnist tactics. Some members doubted the constitutionality of the measure, though approbation of its motive was generally expressed.

Now comes authoritative information that the bill has been submitted to Attorney General McMullan and that he has given an opinion declaring it constitutional. Every indication is that the measure will come back to the House early next week with a favorable committee report and that it will become law.
