ITALY SUFFERS HEAVY LOSSES ON TWO SIDES

Britain Claims 25,000 Taken With Fall Of Tobruk

LOSE IN DRIVES AGAINST GREEKS

Italians Said to Have Failed In Counter Attacks In Albania With Wounded Left Behind

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 27.—(AP)—British headquarters announced today that 25,000 Italian prisoners were taken in last week's capture of the Libyan port base of Tobruk and that 1,100 prisoners had been taken thus far in the British invasion of Italian Eritrea in East Africa.

The British war bulletin also reported that the British forces were closing in on the important rail center of Agordat and on Barentu, both in Eritrea, and that operations in the Derna area of Libya were developing "satisfactorily."

In addition to the prisoners captured at Tobruk, the communiqué said 22 medium and 28 light tanks were seized. It added that the counting and sorting of guns captured there "is proceeding."

Audens, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Italians were reported by the Greeks today to have suffered "enormous losses" in a series of counter attacks attempted since Premier Mussolini placed General Ugo Cavallero in charge of his forces in Albania.

Greek dispatches from the battlefield said the Italians left large numbers of wounded behind after each attack. The number of Fascist prisoners taken was said to be mounting between 100 and 200 a day.

The Greek advance, these advices said, is continuing at the same pace it was going before the Fascists switched to offensive tactics.

Message To Churchill Delivered By Wilkie

URGE FARMERS PRODUCE FOOD

Eleven States Represented At Atlanta Conference

Atlanta, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The South must produce more milk, poultry and other food for home consumption, agricultural representatives of 11 southern states were told here today.

Gathered for a conference, which will inaugurate a program for the diversification of between two and three million acres into gardens, poultry, fruit and livestock production, they heard H. M. Wilson, director of the Department of Agricultural Extension Service, and others discuss the problem.

Wilson stressed the need of more home production for home consumption if the plan is to succeed.

The "live at home" plan is to be coordinated with distribution of $25,000,000 worth of stamps among farmers for purchases of cotton goods at regular stores.

Requests for a share in the stamps for the farmer would be reduced of 1941 cotton planting and Agricultural Adjustment Administration allotments.

Another inducement for the home-growing of food is a $3,000,000 benefit payment addition to the department plans to make available for purchases of garden seed. This would supplement the AAA offer of $1.50 for each farm garden.

A Two-Legged Bloodhound. Pueblo, Colo.—(AP)—Police Capt. R. E. Pratt was investigating the theft of a revolver from an automobile. In the car he found a paper napkin. It had the unmistakable odor of hamburger with onions on it.

The captain hurried to a nearby coffee shop. Sure, said the waitress, a couple of men had been in a few minutes before and had ordered hamburgers, which they took with them.

Just then one of the fellows returned and ordered another hamburger. Capt. Pratt frisked him and sure enough, there was the revolver.

Far From Convinced. Federalsburg, Md.—(AP)—Skaters enjoying the first freeze here weren't deterred when a person fell through thin ice. They kept on while two more fell through. Albert Ischer was victim No. 4, and a man coming to his aid fell in, too. Then most of the skaters left. Soon Ischer returned and started out again.

GOP Standard Bearer Also To Confer With de Valera

London, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Wendell L. Wilkie delivered President Roosevelt's message to Prime Minister Churchill at luncheon today and disclosed that he intended to talk with Prime Minister Eamon de Valera during a visit to neutral Eire.

Although he had planned to spend but an hour with Churchill, Wilkie and the prime minister became so engrossed in their conversation that the luncheon lasted two hours.

As Wilkie left, Churchill followed him to his automobile despite rain to say good-bye and the two posed on the sidewalks shaking hands.

"He was very gracious," Wilkie said. "I knew he was a great man. I know it now even more."

In Dublin it was announced that de Valera would "be very glad indeed" to see Wilkie.

New Government Is Formed With Generals Who Helped Quell Rebellion Holding Key Positions In Cabinet; Leader Of Revolution, Vice Premier, Officially Reported To Be Under Arrest

Bucharest, Jan. 27.—(AP) Premier General Ion Antonescu today eliminated all Iron Guardists from his cabinet and organized a strong new military government.

In forming the new government Antonescu surrounded himself with generals who helped quell the abortive Iron Guard revolution last week and who he knew would uphold him without question in his attempt to purge the country of rebellious elements.

Alleged Iron Guard terrorists sneaking through the streets of Bucharest in a blinding blizzard were picked up one by one by bayonet-armed soldiers.

After days of hiding, the fugitives were being forced into the open by hunger and cold.

Except for an occasional shot fired in the air to stop pedestrians who were out after the 10 p. m. curfew, the Rumanian capital was calm last night and this morning.

Vice Premier Horia Sima, leader of the Iron Guard and officially described as leader of last week's revolt is under arrest, official circles said.

SAYS U.S. AID MAJOR FACTOR

Hull Asserts Help Enabled Britain To Resist Nazis

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Secretary Hull told the Senate Foreign Relations committee today, an informed source said, that American aid had been "largely responsible for Great Britain's ability to resist a German invasion in the last seven months."

Testifying behind closed doors, the Secretary of State was reported to have declared emphatically his belief that the increased assistance envisioned under an administration's British aid bill would not involve the United States in war.

Committee members said the State Department apparently had had information that an invasion attempt was scheduled last September, but had no definite clue as to why it had not come off.

Hull was quoted also as saying at one point in a two and one-half hour closed session that he believed Turkey would stand fast in its opposition to threatened Axis aggression, but that Japan "undoubtedly" aimed to seize control of Indo-China.

He also said he had testified that long efforts to obtain mutual understanding and cooperation between the United States and Japan had been virtually fruitless.

Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack told reporters that the general sentiment in the House was "overwhelmingly" in favor of enactment of the bill.

McCormack said he would be "disappointed" if the measure is not taken up next Monday and action completed at the end of next week "after reasonable debate."

Hull was the first witness in the committee's study of the aid to Britain bill.

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations committee decided to hear Secretary Hull behind closed doors today after the State Department head had asked permission to present some information privately.

Hull, appearing as the first witness in the committee's study of the lease-lend bill, told the group that there was some information which might bear on the bill "but which should not be made known to every other nation."

He asked the committee's cooperation in preventing publication of such information, declaring that publicity would "not be compatible with the public interest and might be injurious to our own national security."

Less than 100 spectators were present as the Secretary of State took the stand. He recalled that he had testified on the same bill before the House Foreign Affairs committee.

APPROVE FUND TO MODERNIZE U. S. VESSELS

Aimed At Strengthening Fleet's Air Defenses

UNANIMOUS VOTE GIVEN MEASURE

Lesson Learned From European War Spurs Congress To Authorize Funds To Bolster Defenses

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Senate passed unanimously and sent to the White House today legislation authorizing a $300,000,000 expenditure for modernizing the fleet's air defense.

The chamber acted within an hour after the Senate Naval committee had approved the legislation. Witnesses at the hearing testified that increased protection against air attacks had been shown to be necessary because of lessons learned from the European war.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the Naval committee said he would call up later authorizations totalling $909,000,000 for expanding navy shipbuilding and ordnance works and building 400 small naval craft, which also had been approved by the committee earlier in the day.

The Senate Naval committee approved unanimously a $1,209,000,000 program for expanding naval shipbuilding and ordnance facilities, modernizing the fleet's anti-aircraft defense and constructing 400 small vessels.

BILL TO SEEK NEW DISTRICTS

Measure To Propose Changes In Judicial System

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Governor Broughton said today he expected a bill to adjust judicial districts in the state to be introduced shortly.

"I recognize from the work in the office here that there is need for some adjustment and some additions," Governor Broughton said.

State Democratic Chairman E. B. Denny has been working on the matter of judicial redistricting and is expected back this week to confer with legislators.

Studies made by Denny are understood to show that adjustments should be made in seven districts and that two new districts should be created which would make Guilford and Mecklenburg each a new district to itself.

Legislative leaders expressed the opinion a bill would be introduced this week providing for new senatorial districts to conform to the 1940 census.

There was an undercurrent of opinion that the liquor problem would come to the front with a bang this week.

It was indicated a measure calling for a state-wide referendum on prohibition would be introduced and that quickly on its heels would come a bill to limit the sale of fortified wines to ABC stores in the 26 wet counties.

Some legislators, however, favored a plan to let the state ABC board regulate fortified wine sales with power to permit sales in counties now legally dry.

Stolen Meat Back In Owner's Hands

Seventy-seven pounds of meat recently stolen from Mrs. A.M. Forbes of near Winterville has been returned, one of the two men convicted of the charge having told officers where they could find it.

The meat was found by officers at the store operated in the Bama section by Ed Fleming, colored. Officers said the Negro paid only $7.85 for the meat, all of which except one ham was recovered.

Elmer Williams was given a six months sentence and, in addition, a longer suspended term. Neal Williamson, the other man convicted, was placed on probation. The two men have been living at a camp back of Tucker's filling station on the New Bern highway. They were convicted at last week's criminal session of Pitt Superior court.

Williamson at first was given a road sentence, but this was suspended after he made a "clean breast" and told officers where they could find the meat.

At the college Prof. R. C. Deal is in charge of the ball, assisted by Mr. McHenry, James Whitfield, the presidents of both student government associations and the Varsity club. The Varsity club of the college is in charge of selling tickets on the campus.

Also this week there will be a radio talk each evening from 6:45 to 6:55 concerning the drive.

D. H. Conley reports that in the various sections of the county the drive is making progress both in the selling of tickets and the March of Dimes.

In the Negro schools Prof. C. M. Eppes is perhaps doing more work than any other person in heading the March of Dimes. Dr. J. A. Battle and his committee are working night and day in making plans for the big birthday ball to be held in the new Negro Gymnasium at the Fifth Street school. This will be an elaborate affair. This will also mark the formal opening of the new gymnasium. Prof. Eppes and Dr. Battle are planning ceremonies in connection with this formal opening.

AIM OF NAZIS NOT DISCLOSED

Report That German Troops Cheered By Italian Population While Passing Thru Milan First Official Admission By Either Member Of Axis That Hitler Has Sent Soldiers to Aid Italy

Berlin, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Rumors of an uprising in northern Italian cities of Turin and Milan were denied categorically today in the Wilhelmstrasse.

German troops were said to have been cheered by the Italian population while passing through Milan yesterday en route to southern Italy.

It was said that no German troops whatever are in Turin.

This reference to Nazi troops moving to southern Italy appeared to be the first specific statement from either the Axis capitals that German troops had been sent to Italy. . . . Their purpose there was not disclosed.

There have been reports previously from observers in Balkan capitals that German soldiers had been sent into Italy and that German officers had been given positions on Italian staffs, but none of these was confirmed.

Germany is operating units of her air force from Italian bases, taking part in recent weeks in the air war over the Mediterranean.

In Rome, authoritative Fascists also denied foreign reports that there was rioting in northern Italian cities and that German soldiers had been sent into Italy to police the country.

To Give Second Performance.
In response to many requests from adults in town and college students, the A. A. U. W. has wired to make arrangements for a second performance of "Alice in Wonderland" by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre, next Monday, February 3, according to Miss Louise Williams, A. A. U. W. president. It will be given Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The elementary school principals are asking for more tickets to allow all the children who want to see the play to go in the afternoon. If adults now holding tickets will exchange them for tickets for the evening performance, it will be possible to give to a few more children the entertainment that brings such joyous laughter to them.

The exchanges may be made at Warren's drug store on Tuesday between 3:30 and 4:30, or Wednesday between 11:15 and 12:30. The members of the A. A. U. W., the teachers of the elementary schools and the children themselves will appreciate every ticket which can be released in this way.

Mrs. Major says the laughter of children is the thing which repays her fully for all the hard work of training six companies to tour the whole country for seven months out of the year.

Every time the curtain goes up on a new play Mrs. Major says she trembles for fear it will not be a success. Then as she waits tensely, presently a little sound comes from somewhere in the house—a child's little giggle. My heart jumps. Another comes—and another, and then over the house flows that most blessed, that loveliest sound, the happy, carefree, unselfconscious laughter of children.

This production of Alice will be unique in that all of the scenery will be changed before the eyes of the audience. In a dream, says Mrs. Major, you suddenly find yourself somewhere else without knowing how you got there, or really bothering. That's what happens to Alice. She turns her back on the Duchess' cottage and his tea party, though they weren't there the last time she looked that way, and when she turns again the Duchess' house is entirely gone. In the play the scenery just seems to change itself as in a dream.

There is one brief intermission in the play, and the entire action of the play takes only an hour and half.

Dr. McGinnis Speaker.
Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, registrar of the college, will be the speaker at the regular vesper service Sunday evening, January 28.

Dr. McGinnis interpreted the 23rd Psalm. At the beginning, he read from Samuel concerning the life of David, the writer of the Psalm. Then he told of David's boyhood days as a shepherd, which provided a background for the psalm. In the quietness of the hills, while watching over the sheep, David acquired the habit of composing lines which were filled with a religious spirit.

In later years, when David became king of Israel, he realized that he needed a shepherd to watch over him in his duties as he had watched over his flock, and as he now watched over his people. Then the thought "God is my shepherd," which he expressed in the 23rd Psalm, came to him. Dr. McGinnis then repeated the psalm, interpreting each line and completed the meaning as David had when he said it over to himself.

To Speak Over WGTC.
Mrs. Travis Hooker will be guest speaker on the Garden School of the Air program over WGTC Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. This program is sponsored by the Greenville Garden Club.

Defense Is A Problem To Dry Goods Men, Too

By AMY PORTER
AP Fashion Editor

The customer must be pleased—even in a year when defense measures will disturb the normal operation of retail stores.

Ways to keep her pleased were discussed at the New York convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Prices are sure to rise somewhat during the year, speakers conceded, but they advised retailers to cut profits rather than alarm the customer. Above all, they urged elimination of all "scare" advertising, particularly that which says or implies "Buy now because prices are rising."

Sales forces will be cut in some stores because of rising costs, and though loss of young men to the army, but retailers will make a great effort to train remaining personnel to show even greater courtesy to the shopper, discussions indicated.

Some "luxury service" will have to be eliminated, but retailers said they hope customers can be educated to understand that this is necessary.

The possibility of several store in a city pooling resources on some services was discussed. Delivery and credit investigations could be handled cooperatively, it was pointed out.

Credit may have to be curtailed during the next year, but retailer hope that government action on this point will not be necessary. A gain and again, speakers urged retailers to reform installment selling where necessary, rather than wait for government regulation.

Informative labelling came up to a favorable attention.

A Better Business Bureau speaker complimented fabric manufacturers for their progress in labelling an used use of the informative label on other merchandise.

Library News

New Books of Fiction

Many new books of fiction are featured in the new additions to the Sheppard Memorial Library. Several are among the best-sellers. One is the Dodd, Mead Company's $10.00 prize "Hildreth" by Harlow Estes. It is a psychological study of an intelligent but lonely and unimaginative girl of 19, made with unusual understanding. Hildreth thinks she can arrange the lives of those around her—Geoffrey, the unemployed neighbor she has fallen in love with; Laura, her widowed aunt, and Mimi, her mother. She is disappointed, but finally she learns understanding and patience.

Other new novels are as follows: "Fieldings Folly," by Frances Parkinson Keys. When a puritanical Vermont heiress fell in love with a dashing but poor Virginian, her troubles began. His tendency to flirtations and adultery almost broke up their marriage. The old triangle, reworked into a tale which readers of light magazine stories will like. Recommended by the Catholic Book Club.

"Fame is the Spur," by Howard Spring. The story of one man's amazing career, and of the women who made it possible—a cavalcade of modern England.

"Today and Forever," by Pearl Buck. A collection of 13 short stories, written in direct sequence. Stories of China just flow from the pen of Pearl Buck, one or two each year, even while she is at work on a long novel in the American scene as she is now. This book contains a selection of the stories she has written since 1933, all about Chinese people.

"The Great Mistake," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. A thrilling mystery story.

"Sylvia Lyndon" by Maud Dever. The chief character in this novel lives in a London flat and has secret desire for the country and for an opportunity to bring up children.

"Preacher on Horseback," by Cecile Hulse Matschat. This is the story of a man with strong sympathies and divided purposes, a man whose convictions were forged in the fires of experience and who was reluctantly converted to the faith he professed.

"Forever in My Heart," by Vivian Gray. A charming love story that will appeal to lovers of light fiction.

"The Fire and the Wood," by R. C. Hutchinson. The story of a brilliant doctor and scientist, in the Germany of 1932, and the patient whom he was willing to sacrifice if necessary to scientific experimentation in tuberculosis.

MODES of the MOMENT

The turban takes to wings in this new spring hat, seen at a fashion show at New York's Ritz-Carlton. Of pale champagne tulle, trimmed with yellow and smoke gray chrysanthemums. Tulle appears in many new hat collections.

Georgia's first lady, wife of Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge, runs the family's 2,000-acre farm in Telfair county. Circumstances forced her into it about 15 years ago, when her husband went to Atlanta as Commissioner of Agriculture. Some one had to run the farm. She often is up at 5 o'clock and works until after sundown, supervising the care of cattle and hogs and the growing of watermelons, cantaloupes, cotton and corn. Soon, for the third time she will be running the Atlanta governor's mansion which she says is "no harder than running the farm."

A short time ago Barbara Thorndike, 13-year-old school girl of Norwalk, Conn., had a lot of fault to find with the clothes designed for "the awkward age." She found them either too childish or too grown-up. So she designed some to suit herself, took her sketches into a Fifth Avenue shop. The shop referred her to a manufacturer. Now between English and history study Barbara works out clothes designs for the manufacturer, who pays her a royalty. Her favorites this year were beige and green corduroy jumper frocks.

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's third presidential inaugural dress, unique in history, was a simple tailored model of sheer scarlet wool.

Marian Francis, who was recently crowned Queen of Winter 1941 at Lake Placid's annual carnival, wore something new in coronation clothes—white wool slacks and a red blouse—under her purple velvet robes. . . . Gloria Swanson has cut her locks in a baby haircut—top smooth as a cap, circled by a halo of curls. . . . Mrs. Byron Foy, listed among America's "famous fifteen" best dressed women, matches the color of her evening clothes to her jewels—turkish sapphires. . . . Selma Ekrem, Turkish author, and Eve Curie, French author and daughter of the discoverers of radium, are scheduled for lecture tours early this year. . . . The Girl Scouts have added cycling to their recreation program.

"Hudson's Bay" Screenplay by Lamar Trotti. Directed by Irving Pichel. Principals: Paul Muni, Gene Tierney, Laird Cregar, John Sutton.

My Fran, M'sieu Moo-Nee, he does-co-vaire the reech Hudson Bay and he bring back plenty fur, plenty goods, plenty scenery but not so much en-tair-tain-ment, non! My Fran, M'sieu Moo-Nee, he sing-song his Canadian talk tres jollee—but I'd have liked less sing-song and more Tierney.

"Keeping Company," Frank Morgan, Ann Rutherford, John Shelton Irene Rich, Gene Lockart, Virginia Weidler, Virginia Grey.

A new "family" series—the Thomases this time—starts promisingly with a bright yarn about the quarrels of the newly wed Shelton and Rutherford, the amusing meedlings of little sister Weidler, the humor and wisdom of parents Morgan and Rich.

Young Shelton, fairly new to the screen, is a likeable, not excessively handsome, forceful and talented addition.

Hollywood—It's an ill wind department: William Holden's salary squabble (he was still drawing $150 a week while co-starring in "Arizona") left a hole wide open in the cast of "Texas," and Glenn Ford overdue for a break, got the bid. See also: Rita Hayworth vice Ann Sheridan, etc.

Speaking of Rita, as most people do nowadays, her dad, Eduard Cansino, is teaching Spanish dance to some of the cast of the new Cléo Kidder, "Ride On, Vaguer!" Eduard, a slim, yungish-looking Spaniard, teaches all kinds of dancing in his own school, but the movies call him only for Spanish steps.

"How Green Was My Valley" is postponed again until June, when the hills around the local valleys will be brown under the hot sun.

"A Woman's Ace," title of an Ingrid Bergman picture made abroad will be Jean Crawford's over here.

Share Unemployment.
Copenhagen, Denmark—(AP)—Some 24,000 workers were enabled to hold jobs during the past half year simply because other workers, more fortunate than they, voluntarily renounced 25 per cent of their work to give unemployed a chance.

Wary Dairy.
Covington, Va.—(AP)—A big dairy here has announced it will make deliveries in the early afternoon instead of the customary pre-dawn hours. The change is intended to avoid losses from theft and freezing.

GREENVILLE HI NEWS

By SIDNEY JOHNSON

'Green Lights'
'Green Lights' school publication, will be issued Wednesday. The issue was due last Friday but because of the influenza epidemic the publication was postponed.

Work will be done by the staff at the print shop tonight.

Epidemic Over
As far as the high school is concerned, the current flu epidemic is over. Only a very few students were absent today.

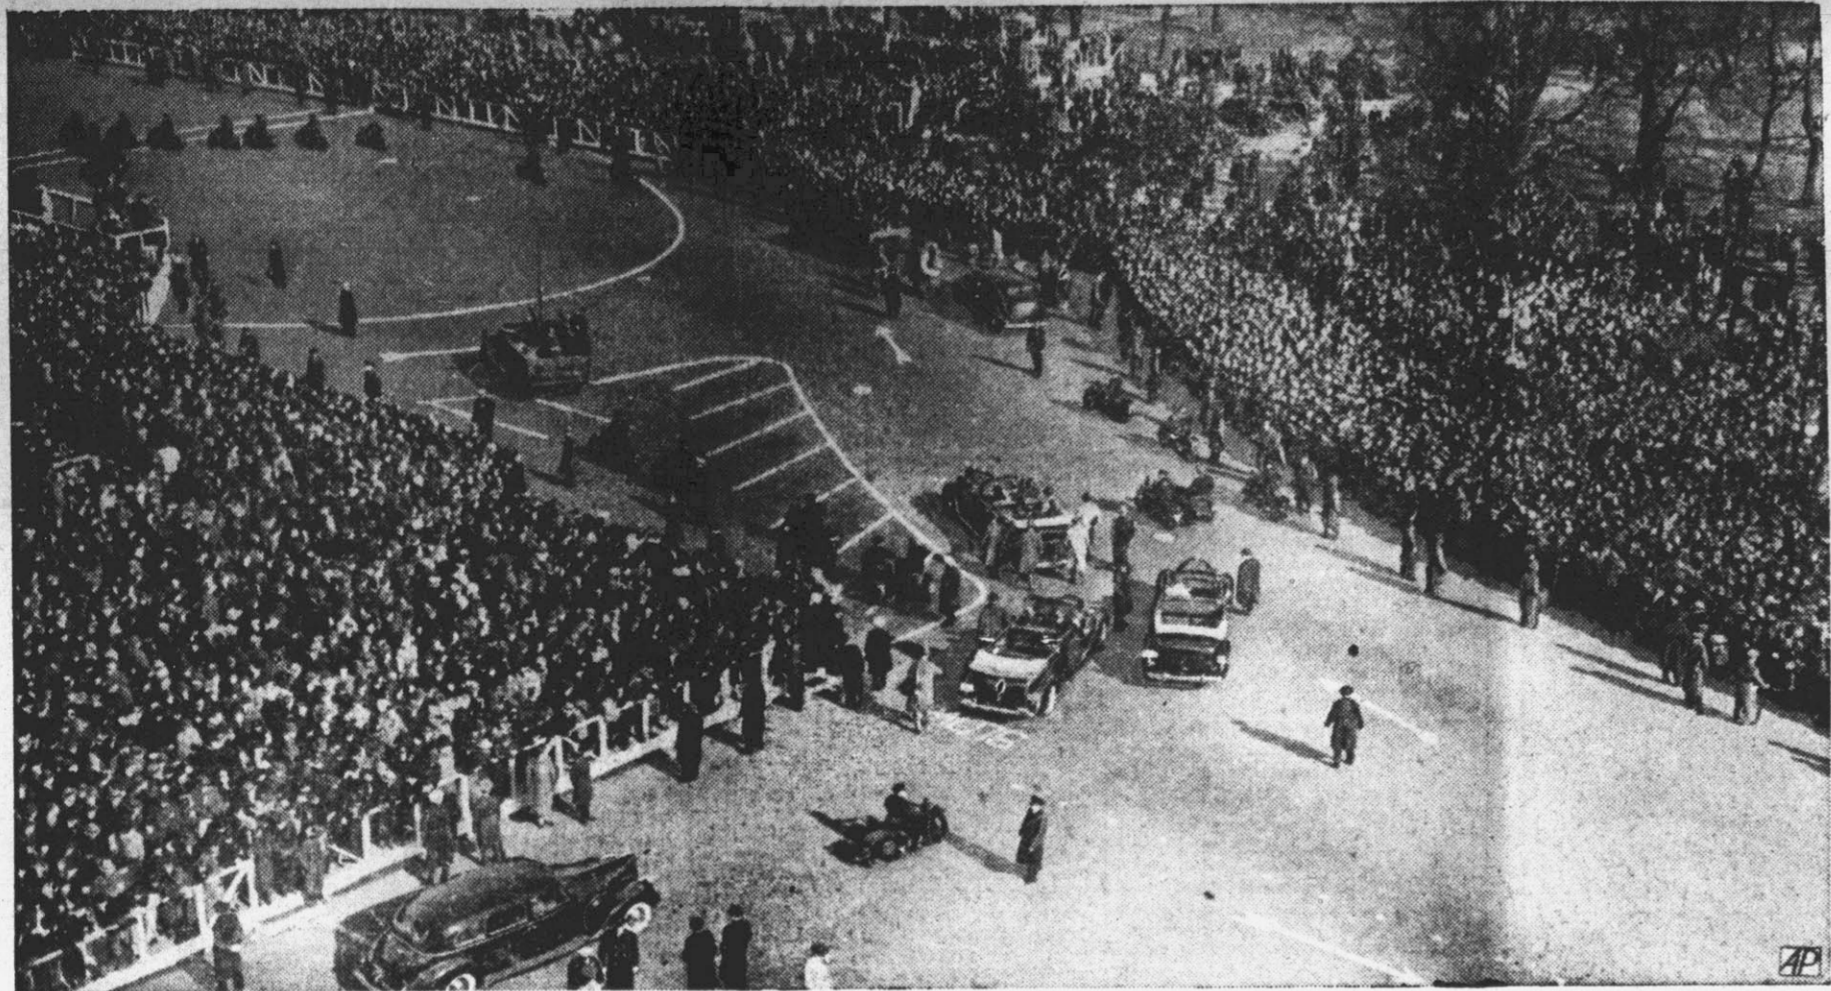

Thanks!
"On behalf of the high school band and myself," states Mr. H. A. McDougle, director of the high school band and president of the North Carolina Bandmasters' Association, "I sincerely appreciate the cooperation of the citizens of Greenville in housing the visiting All-State band members last Friday night."

Blood Tested
Although it happened last Friday night it still holds much of the interest in the school. Once more the Flying Phantoms tasted the blood of victory, when they defeated the Elizabeth City Ghosts by a score of 40-26. This is the second win out of six starts, but the road team is at last on the way to victory.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SPORTSMANSHIP SOMETIMES A FETTER

Great emphasis is laid today on good sportsmanship. But there is also a lot of nonsense which struts through the world on calls itself good sportsmanship.

In the battle of Fontenoy in 1745, Lord Charles Haw, an English commander who had brought his troops out to assault the French, rode into the open place between two lines and, waving his hat in a sweeping salute to the enemy, shouted: "Gentlemen of the French Guard, fire first!"

The French reply rang gaily across the carnage of that stricken field. "Sir, we never fire first. Please go fire yourselves!" The English fired first, and fifty French officers and 700 men of the French line were killed.

Good sportsmanship? Nothing of the sort—sheer nonsense, football-hiss, murder of one's own countrymen. A gallant wave of the hat, a gesture, and over 800 lives were snuffed out.

When confronted with a situation, the question we ought to ask ourselves is, "What is the wise and unselfish thing to do?" When we think of what constitutes good sportsmanship, we often think only of ourselves and what people will say about us.

SOUTH IS SUPPORTER OF ENGLAND

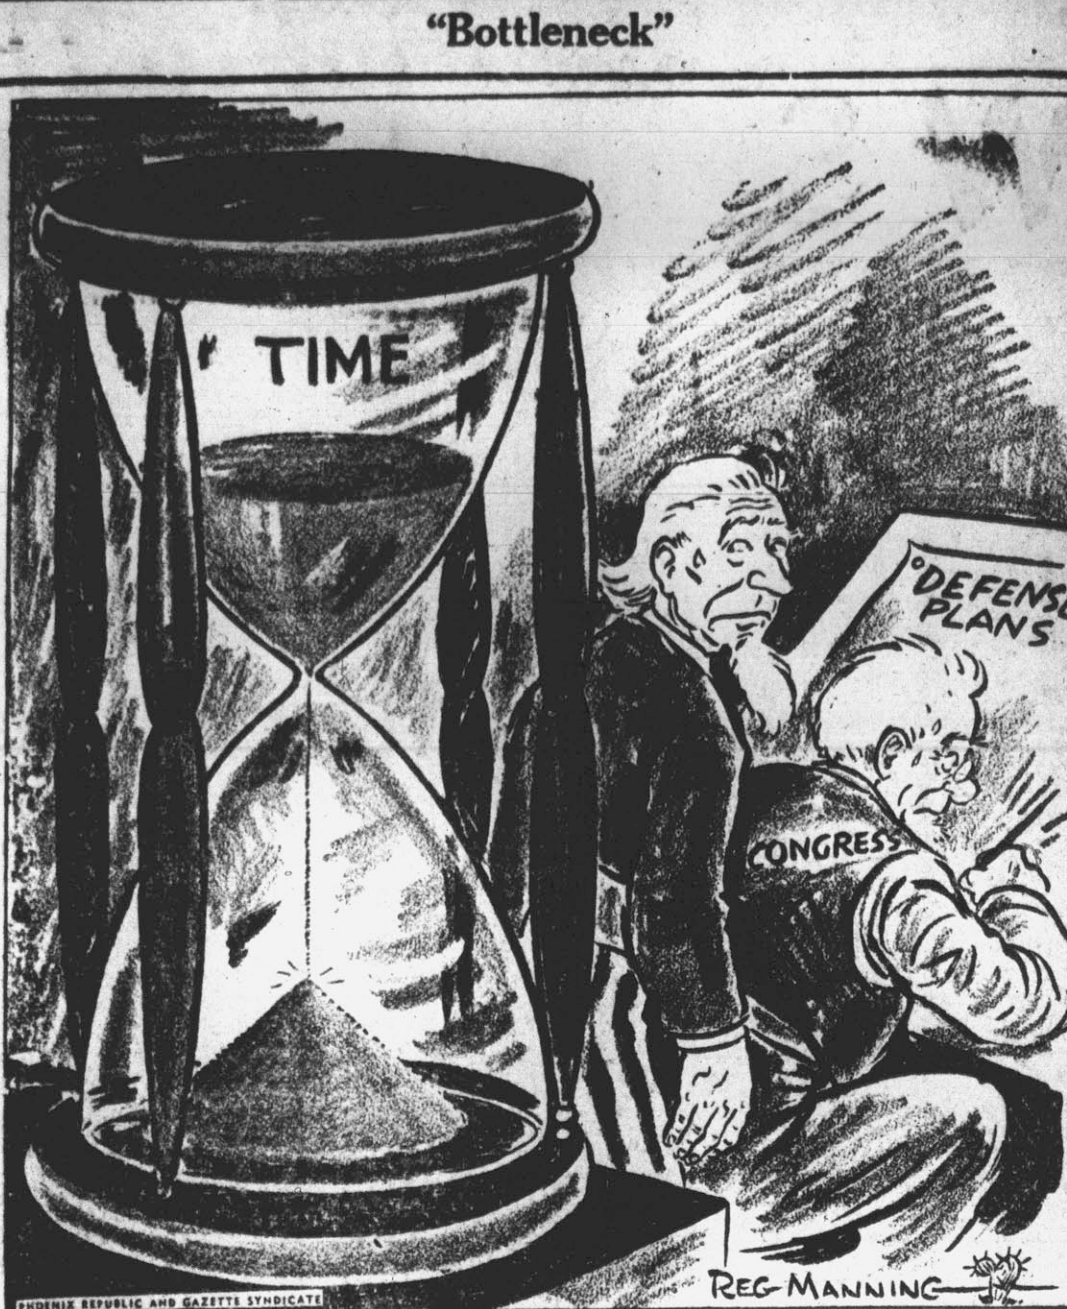

(Scottish Rite News)

The recent series of articles by the American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) dealing with several questions pertaining to national defense reveals marked and interesting sectional differences in the public mind.

Commenting on its surveys, the Institute said that, although it had consistently found a high degree of national unity on issues connected with the war, the sharpest differences between the five geographical sections of the country were between the South on the one extreme, and the Middle West on the other.

In the South, which includes Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and Oklahoma, 76 per cent of the voters favored aid to England, even at the risk of involving the United States in war against Germany and Italy.

These achievements, they point out, included the Magna Carta, parliamentary government, the Mayflower Compact, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, in which the Bill of Rights is emphasized. They point to the martial spirit of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia,

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—This unity business seems to be spreading. When "Big Bill" Knudsen is out on official business, he rides in a big, fine-looking black sedan, with one of those low-number tags that give visual evidence of a man's importance around here.

That sort of thing apparently is going on all over Washington. If you go into a store and they don't have what you want, they'll send you to their closest competitor.

The President dips into the Republican fold to get his Secretaries of War and Navy and a good many other officials in the defense set-up.

Even in Congress, where the battles rage fiercer and there's plenty of disunity, the situation is causing strange unities. In any anti-administration huddle on foreign policy, two of the principal huddlers are bound to be Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Senator Bennett Champ Clark, both Democrats.

Mr. Larkins, who is 31 years of age and the youngest member of the Senate—of which he is president pro tempore—is not exactly a neophyte. He has served in the legislature before, he is continually doing things which connect his name with the New Deal in its better-publicized relations and he makes no attempt to push off the reporter on his left hand while his right is being shaken by another newshawk.

"But being nominated by the capitol reporters for governor in 1948 rather exceeds the season for one his age. It takes a lot of hustling to keep in the public eye for seven years, more especially when there are more than baker's half-dozen other cynosures."

Try this one on your piano, or harpsichord or whatever musical instrument you prefer. It's the headline from an afternoon paper on an article dealing with a recent House measure:

"Be right with you," David replied. Then to Warren: "You can start peeling—while I get my suit out of the car."

"I've got mine with me," Warren said. He took a small parcel from his pocket. "Convenient—these abbreviated things."

"I'll say so!" said David. "He went out to the car for his own faded trunks. And in a little while he and Warren were joining Peter on the porch."

"Don't carry me, Cousin David," Peter said. "Let me walk between you and Doctor Warren. I'll make it."

And he did—and very well, too. On the way back to town, Warren said he had an idea.

"You two fellows come on down to the hotel," he said, "and have dinner with me."

"Why not stop by with us?" David said. "We'll give you potluck."

"Some other time, thank you," Warren said.

"I won't," said David. "We'll kill the fattest chick for you, since we haven't a calf."

"Do I look like a prodigal son?" Warren asked. "All right, the two of you dine with me. Step on it old man. That swim has given me quite an appetite."

Upon reaching the Ardendale hotel, and going up to Warren's room to tidy up a bit, David asked if he might use the telephone.

"By all means," said Warren. "I know Miss Angie keeps her ship open nights," David said. "Thought I might catch Polly, and tell her I'd pick her up and take her home."

"Go to it," said Warren. He handed Peter a comb. "Here youngster see what you can do to that cowlick of yours."

Short Shots

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—When his bill to limit petroleum carrying vehicles to 1,500 gallons comes up before the Roads Committee, Representative George Uzzell of Rowan expects to put on a dramatic show calculated to impress the committee members with the horrors of flaming death in highway accidents involving gasoline transport trucks.

"I'll have people there who have seen men pinned beneath blazing wreckage and pleading to be shot," he told a reporter. "And I'll have preachers, too."

The bill is certain to start a controversy almost as fiery as a burning gasoline carrier, as the oil interests swing into action in defense of the present capacity and load limits, which Mr. Uzzell proposer to lower.

Recently this bureau passed along a story, originating in a Johnston county paper, about State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., as a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1948.

A neat subject the Greensboro Daily News says editorially: "State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., of Jones county, who is not coming along politically like a house affire, should consider indicting Afternoon Newspaper Correspondent Averill of Raleigh, for attempted arson."

"Mr. Larkins, who is 31 years of age and the youngest member of the Senate—of which he is president pro tempore—is not exactly a neophyte. He has served in the legislature before, he is continually doing things which connect his name with the New Deal in its better-publicized relations and he makes no attempt to push off the reporter on his left hand while his right is being shaken by another newshawk."

Chapter 23 Great Plans

As they drove out of the yard, Warren said: "I'd like to have a good look at the inside of the Inn, David—just in case."

"That's all right with me," said David. "We'll be over there first, before it gets too late. No night out there, you know. We can swim afterwards."

He sped the rattling little car up to its limit, which wasn't anything very breathtaking, and not long afterwards the Inn came into view.

Parking close to the wide porch, David got out his keys. "All set for the tour, gentlemen?" he asked.

"All set," said Warren. David turned to Peter: "Suppose you go get into your swimming trunks," he said. "Warren and I will have a look at the upstairs. You've already seen it at least a dozen times."

"Okay, Cousin David," Peter said. He began to unbutton his shirt. "Don't you fellows stay too long."

"We won't," David assured him. "This way," he said to Warren. "Only one floor above this, so no elevator. You'll have to use the stairs."

The two men went up the broad flight that led up directly from the broad and roomy lobby. And soon they were moving along the upper hallway.

"There are thirty-six bedrooms in all," David explained. "Twelve on each side of the hall over the main part of the building, and six on each side of the hall that runs out over the dining room. But only a dozen have private baths."

"Oh, well, that doesn't matter," said Warren. "If we manage to make a sanatorium out of it, we won't need so many private baths."

He stood for a moment looking into one of the rooms, and then said: "What does matter, though, David, is the fact that every one of the rooms gets the sunshine at sometime during the day."

"Yes," said David. "Aunt Julia said Uncle Fred was a sun worshipper, and wanted his hotel to be built so that no room was without its share of old Sol's friendly light and warmth."

"All of which adds to the building's value as a sanatorium," said Warren.

On the way downstairs David said: "I believe you are interested in the old place."

"Of course I am!" Warren laughed. "Are you just realizing that?"

"Gosh," David said, "wouldn't it be fine if we could get hold of some money and start things going?"

"Fine is hardly the word for it. Anyway, all Doctor Ben wants for half-interest in his practice is a flat one thousand dollars. If I decide to buy, I'll still have a couple of thousand left. That wouldn't go very far but if you could match that amount we might start off on a small scale."

"Two thousand dollars," said David thoughtfully. "Is there really that much money in the world?"

"Sure there is," said Warren. He patted David on the back. "We'll manage somehow."

"I don't think I ever saw two thousand dollars in all my life," David said. "By the way, have you gotten any report on the sample of spring water you took into town?"

"No," said Warren. "I sent it over to Portsmouth to a hospital there. I should hear within a few days."

Magic Spring

YESTERDAY: It seems that although David loves Polly, and Dr. McNeill loves Margo, the agreed, Dr. David and the Doctor have decided it might be a good idea to trade girls, in appearance, for a while. Now Dr. McNeill and David are looking over David's old inn, wondering whether it could be turned into a sanatorium, and where the money would come from if it could.

As they drove out of the yard, Warren said: "I'd like to have a good look at the inside of the Inn, David—just in case."

"That's all right with me," said David. "We'll be over there first, before it gets too late. No night out there, you know. We can swim afterwards."

1941 Baseball Team Regarded as Essential to This City

MEET SET FOR TUESDAY NITE

Surrendering of Franchise Would Be Costly To City

If Greenville should fail to enter a team in the Coastal Plain league this year, baseball would be lost to the city for years to come, it was explained today by G. V. Smith, president of the local club, in discussing the stockholders meeting set for 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Board of Aldermen's room at the Municipal building.

Mr. Smith pointed out that two clubs not in the league at present were anxious to secure berths if any of the present members dropped out and added that if Greenville surrendered its franchise it probably would be years before it could regain a berth in the loop.

Although officials have attempted to maintain an air of optimism regarding the outlook for the 1941 season, there is no definite assurance that Greenville will provide a team this year.

Every present stockholder in the club, and others interested in baseball, are urged to be present at tomorrow night's meeting.

Those interested in continuing baseball in the city point out that Greenville has one of the finest parks in the league and feel it would be a "terrible black eye" to the city in general if it is not represented by a team this year.

While it is generally agreed that baseball for Greenville will more than likely cost a comparatively small amount, it is pointed out that if a large number of citizens would join in the movement the burden would be light on all involved.

Those familiar with the baseball situation in Greenville realize that only a small number of citizens have carried most of the burden in years past and agree that the situation should be changed, with more people directly interested in the sport.

At any rate, Greenville's plans for 1941 will be made at tomorrow night's meeting and, if the franchise should be surrendered, the city likely will be without organized baseball for years to come, while other cities in eastern Carolina many of them much smaller than Greenville, will be reaping the benefits provided by a team.

WAR DOESN'T END THE ETON BEATIN'

London — (AP) — Fragments of Eton's famous birching block, blown to bits when a bomb struck the Upper School, have been found in a crater. Since the unwilling backs of many famous men have bent over the blocks, the pieces will be placed in a museum.

The top-hatted Eton boys are not rejoicing over the bombing. A new block and birches have been ordered for the new term.

Birdie Says He Didn't Make A Hit

Birdie Tebbets, catcher for the Detroit Tigers, was freed of an assault and battery charge against him in Cleveland after he testified he "never hit" Carmen Guera, Cleveland ice man, in connection with a fruit throwing episode September 27. Tebbets tells his story from the stand here. That September 27th date marked the warm series between Cleveland and Detroit that helped decide the American League pennant.

Close Call. Columbia, S. C. — (AP) — Dr. S. M. Derrick of the University of South Carolina arrived at the point of satiety in his lecture.

Said he, explaining:

"If you need but two suits of clothes, then you have reached a point of satiety, and you won't have another suit unless it is for a special occasion. Now I don't need a suit of golf clothes because I don't play golf; a tennis suit because I don't play tennis; or a full dress suit because I'm fully dressed."

"How about a bathing suit?" inquired a student.

"I don't need a bathing suit," the doctor began.

Came a pause. Then—

"You've got me, boys."

NEW SPIRIT IN FARLEY BOYS

Locals To Meet Kinston And Washington This Week

C. B. ROWLETT

Greenville High School's basketball team may have dropped three games this season but they have not dropped their old fighting spirit, which was proven in the game with Elizabeth City last Friday night. Incidentally if you have forgotten the Phantoms were victorious 40-26.

Coach Farley for the first time during his start as coach at Greenville High school juggled his starting line-up completely and the result was three new starters. With almost three teams capable of scoring almost the same number of points and playing a roting game on defense (whenever they really try) the remaining games of the season look like victories for Farley's boys.

Outside the usual run of hard-luck off the courts, Coach Farley and his boys have had it on the hardwood. With two star sharpshooters out of the line-up fate should have been satisfied but it wasn't and it had to put three successive 2-point lickings on the Phantoms.

The local quintet are slated to meet the Kinston high school Red Devils and Washington Penn Pack during this week and the Reflector picks the GHS boys to come out on top. Kinston plays here and the boys journey to Washington. Kinston provided some trouble for the Phantoms during the '40' season but it actually seems ages since Washington high school emerged victorious over the G-Men on the hardwood.

Those of you fans who saw that contest Friday night can really tell what the Phantoms are up against and what they can do if they get the proper backing, so come on out and support the Farley-men and watch them bring home the bacon.

MISSING FARMHOUSE IS TRACKED DOWN

Cornish, Colo. — (AP) — This little farmhouse went for a trip. It was on a farm owned by the Federal Land Bond. "Borrowers" moved it miles away to near Goodrich, Colo.

Finally bank officials found it, and forced the tenants to bring it back.

'Not Even an Angel'

Testifying before the House Foreign Affairs committee in Washington, Norman Thomas, four times socialist candidate for the presidency, clenched his fist and assailed the powers that would be given the president under the administration's lend-lease bill to aid the British. Said he: "Not even an angel from Heaven, who asks such breath-taking powers of war or peace with such vague limitations, should be trusted with them."

UNC WARY OF WAKE CAGERS

Strong Teams Clash Again Tomorrow Night

Chapel Hill, N. C. Jan. 27 — With the situation exactly the same as it was when Wake Forest turned the tables on them last year, Carolina's White Phantoms will be most wary when they put their undefeated Big Five and Conference leadership on the line on the Deacon floor Tuesday night.

The main feature between the two ranking Conference outfits will get under way at 8:30 following another interesting return match between freshmen teams of the two institutions at 7 o'clock.

Carolina won the opening test on its own floor, 61-45, with George Glamack going on a 32-point scoring spree. But Tar Heel fans vividly remember last year, when Carolina won a 54-51 thriller at home, only to have the Deacons turn the tables 42-36 in the return match on the Baptist floor.

Since their meeting Carolina has beaten Maryland 55-36 and N. C. State 47-26 and lost to the great New York U. club 49-53, while Wake Forest defeated Clemson 42-35. Carolina also took on Navy and Wake Forest invaded State this week-end, but the results were not in at this writing.

The important Wake Forest contest will mark the opening of the second half of the regular schedule for Carolina's Southern champions. In their first 10 games the Tar Heels made a clean sweep of five Conference foes, Washington and Lee, V.M.I., Wake Forest, State, and Maryland. They also defeated Lehigh, but dropped close decisions to three leading eastern quintets, Fordham, St. Joseph and New York. Wake Forest has played only five out of 17 regular season contests. Up to the State game the Deacons had beaten Buffalo, Duke and Clemson, and lost only to Carolina.

Still No Lines Drawn In 1941 General Assembly

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 27.—More than a quarter of the 60 legislative days for which members can draw $10 a day have come and gone, but there still isn't even a remote indication of what, if any, lines are going to be drawn and what, if any, real controversies will develop in the current General Assembly session.
Observers who have seen legislative after legislature come and go, some of them after having made records for longevity, admit freely that the present group of law makers are the hardest to diagnose they have ever encountered. Previous sessions have invariably been marked by a great deal of "out of school" talking even if the members didn't grow very vocative on the floor or in committee; but the legislators here now come closer to keeping their mouths shut at all times than any like gathering within the memory of Raleigh's oldest inhabitants. Perhaps it all tends toward a brief, business-like session, with the boys enacting the necessary laws, shutting up shop and going back to farms, stores and offices. That might be for the general good, but it is making it more than ordinarily tough on those whose livelihood depends on grinding out something resembling news of the doings which do not actually take place on the legislative floor.
Despite the fog of apparent apathy, however, there are a few things which stand out with reasonable clarity.
For instance, it has become certain that the Revenue bill isn't going to be rushed through long legislation committee hearings. House Chairman Victor Bryant now says it will be several weeks, in all probability, before the money-raising bill is discussed in "committee of the whole."
For another thing it is evident that the legislature, the House in particular, is more "vocational education" minded than in many years. Perhaps not all of them are willing to go quite as far as John Umstead of Orange, who has put "at least a million for vocational education" at the very top of his voting list; but such influential leaders as John Kerr, Jr., appropriations chairman, Dr. W. Wooten, from Greenville, the home of a State Teachers College; and Senator J. Con Lanier of Pitt, have said quite flatly that they do not believe vocational education has been given the emphasis and consideration it deserves.
All of which indicates that there will be a very determined effort to like appropriations recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission, which itself favored substantially increased funds over the present allotments.
There hasn't been a hint of opposition to the retirement bill offered by Arsh T. Allen of Wake, chairman of the education committee, although there has been considerable criticism of the strategy of sending the bill to Allen's group. Many feel that the "school forces" would have shown much greater wisdom by divorcing themselves as far as possible from the bill. As things now go, the measure is looked upon as an additional expense for the education system of North Carolina, when as a matter of fact it is a general retirement bill applying to all State employees.
Many keen political leaders think the school people should have sent to "insurance" where they contend it more properly belongs.
Under any view of the situation the Appropriations committee will get the last whack at it, because under the rules and bills involving expenditures of state funds must be considered there.
Still lurking in the background, but sure to come out into the open before many more days stand Reapportionment and Referendum.

The speed with which the Congressional redistricting bill was enacted into law surprised almost everybody; but there is no idea that this can be taken as any sign that Senatorial or even Judicial redistricting can be accomplished with similar ease.
Easterners have worked up a very plausible, if not altogether logical, argument against assigning more than three seats in the House to any one county, and they are planning to submit — or perhaps they are just hiding in reserve as a threat — a Constitutional amendment prohibiting any county from getting more than three of Representatives.
Senator "Curly" Sanders who chairs the Senatorial District committee in the upper branch, and Representative Hubert Jarvis, who holds the like place in the House, are working on a shakeup of Senatorial districts which will result in there being proposed some 41 or 42 districts in place of the present 33; but neither has given any inkling of how he intends to draw lines on the map.
As a matter of fact, reapportionment and referendum on liquor are so closely tied together through political expediency, that nobody seems willing to make the first move. Easterners have they ABC stores and want to keep them. The Westerners (or rather a few western and Piedmont counties) haven't the number of House seats the Constitution says they ought to have; neither have they ABC stores, nor do they want them (speaking politically).
The making of a right good "deal" are too obvious to need comment upon; but so far the "deal" doesn't seem to have been worked out — but it probably will be.

"Dear Mr. Tucker:
I happened to run across a syndicated article of yours in the Times-Picayune of December 19 1940.
"I read with considerable interest and amusement your comments to J. D. V. of Kansas City who wrote you asking about me and Kenneth Roberts.
"While it doesn't matter one iota I think you might be interested to know what I really like. Whoever your informant was, he must have been kidding you, for he told you almost a hundred per cent wrong. First off, I don't live in Maine (I live in Maryland), although I know and like that state very much. I never have met Kenneth Roberts. Third, I do know his work and, with the exception of his most recent novel, think them thoroughly first class. Having soldered away these first points, suppose we go on to the rest.
"Personally, I'd rather be skinned alive than attend society and public functions." I've always fought clear of literary luncheons, conferences and author's clubs—book fairs, etc. as much as I possibly could. I think they're good fun for those who like them, but I greatly prefer to hunt or fish or to play polo. The one that really hands me a throaty

DEFENSE ROAD PLAN OFFERED

Raleigh Engineer Proposes Secondary System

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Jan. 27.—Despite the expenditure of multiplied millions of dollars on public highways designed for military use in time of war, the nation really has no adequate system of defense roads, is the startling conclusion of R. Getty Browning, location and claim engineer for the North Carolina Highway and Public Works Commission, and newly elected president of the North Carolina Society of Engineers.
Mr. Browning will propose, in a paper to be read before the convention of the American Road Builders Association at New York this week, a long time program of integrating secondary roads to take up the load of civilian and commercial traffic in the event the main highways are commandeered for army movements.
Reasoning back of Mr. Browning's proposal appears sound, and while he does not present it in any sense as having the formal or official endorsement of the Highway Commission, it has been highly commended by other engineers. Briefly, he summarizes the idea in this way:
"We have boasted of our fine system of defense roads, and the main chuckle is that crack about the "matty dresser." First off, I don't even own a pair of striped pants and haven't worn a white tie since two years ago—when I attended the governor's ball at Bermuda. I confess I do like to put on a dinner coat now and then, otherwise my preferences are all for the out-of-doors although I don't go in for the professional "he-man" stuff.

"If you should pass through Baltimore after the first of February I shall be delighted to take you out to my gun room in which I have collected over a hundred family pieces of firearms that go back of a period of two hundred years.
"Please don't think from the above that I am annoyed or peevish or anything else, but it is just as easy to give the correct information as the cool-eyed.
"Thanks for your nice comments about the books.
"With all best wishes for the coming year, Yours sincerely, F. van Wyck Mason."

This column bows to the world's best authority on F. van Wyck Mason. We are carrying a big stick concealed in our cloak, and should we come upon the person who gave us the erroneous information about him we will know what to do with it. GT.

You wouldn't think the prosaic matter of building a bank would scare anybody... but it's happening. The bank is right across the street from the Associated Press building, and the scares are three fold. The construction men are reported to be a lot of rock blocking the foundations, and have been blasting for three weeks. The reporters are just back from London. Every time a blast goes off, the three reach instinctively for their gas masks and look around for the cyclone cellar highways have been integrated for speedy movement of troops and supply trains. Millions of dollars are being spent now strengthening our bridges, widening shoulders, and otherwise making existing roads conform to War Department specifications. But all of these roads are already sustaining something near their maximum load of traffic.

Anyone observing the ordinary civilian traffic on US 1, for instance, can well imagine what congestion would ensue if that road should be needed immediately for army movement. Two things, both bad, would happen and the result would be analysis of movement for both army and commercial transportation. The army would be hampered by the presence of increased private use of the road, and would also be called upon to do a great deal of humanitarian work in caring for evacuees and hysterical people. The presence of the army would almost certainly increase hysteria and make for confusion worse confounded.
If, however, there were planned systems of secondary and auxiliary roads paralleling the main arteries, to which civilian traffic could be diverted, the movement of both classes would be carried on smoothly.
Aside from the actual military advantage of such auxiliary travel routes in leaving main roads free for troop movement, Mr. Browning's proposal would strengthen citizen morale by removing the fear of masses of population being caught in a battle area, should invasion actually happen.
Wily routes surveyed in advance and clearly marked, with certain designated leaders to direct population movement, it would be possible easily and quickly to evacuate whole areas on very short notice. The first impulse of a family caught in an attack area, says the engineer, is to seek the main road for getting away. But if that road is already filled with army trucks it is not available. At present there is no alternative.
While synchronized with the defense program and of vital importance to it, development of this auxiliary system of secondary roads will be a great asset to peace-time activities.
