Campaigns Regarded As Preliminary To Surprise Attempt To Invade Britain And End War This Year

Rome, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Italian circles indicated today that military, economic and diplomatic cooperation between Germany and Italy was reaching a more intense phase in preparation for a joint onslaught intended to drive the British from the Mediterranean and set them back in North Africa.

Two spring offensives are in prospect—against the British in Africa and the Greeks in Albania—as a preliminary to a sudden surprise attempt to invade the British Isles themselves and thereby end the war this year, as the Nazis are planning to do, these informants said.

A stiffening in Italian resistance on the African and Albanian fronts was indicated by today's high command communique which said the British had been driven back in fighting east of Derna, Lybian port and that Fascist warplanes had delivered "violent" attacks against the Greeks in Albania.

The high command acknowledged British air raids last night on Naples and Catania, Sicily, the latter the site of airbases used by German dive-bombers against the British Mediterranean fleet, and Malta but asserted there was no important damage.

In the Axis economic field it was disclosed that Dr. Karl Doehring, German expert, is negotiating with the Italians.

Observers here said he had agreed that Germany, instead of drawing on Italy as a base of supplies, is to send her increased food stuffs and raw materials.

County Officials Put To Bed By Flu

The heads of four county governmental units were out of their offices today with attacks of influenza as the epidemic continued here and apparently was affecting more grown people than school children at present.

Roy T. Cox, register of deeds, is confined to his home in Winterville, J. H. Coward is ill at his home in Ayden, K. T. Futrell, Pitt county welfare officer, and Charles O. H. Horne, chairman of the Pitt County ABC board, were confined to their homes in Greenville.

County Jailor W. G. Leggett has just returned to his duties after a few days' siege of illness and other county officials, including Clerk of Court J. Frank Harrington, were on the verge of leaving their posts and going to bed today.

Four More Sessions On Spring Term Here

Three more civil sessions and one criminal session are scheduled during the Spring term of Pitt Superior court.

The single criminal term, a two-weeks' session, is set for April, with the next civil session, to last one week, scheduled for February 17. A two-weeks' civil session is to be held in March, with three weeks of civil session set for May, the last court of the term.

It was pointed out by Clerk of Court J. Frank Harrington that some of the civil sessions might be changed to criminal terms if this is deemed necessary.

Young Negro Held On Two Larceny Counts

Jim Boyd, 14-year-old Negro of the Pacolus section, is being held in Pitt county jail on a charge of stealing a watch and a pistol, on different occasions, and selling them. His case is being referred to juvenile court officials.

Washington, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Creation of the office of Minister in the United States Embassy in London and appointment of S. Clay Williams of North Carolina to the post was reported today to be under consideration by President Roosevelt. Williams, a lawyer and business man, is chairman of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. His designation was believed likely to follow the nomination of John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire as ambassador to Great Britain. Winant's selection to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy has not been officially confirmed at the White House, but neither have reports that he would be appointed been denied.

NEW DISTRICT BILL ENACTED

Bills Affecting Greenville Officers Get Attention

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Legislature completed floor action today on a bill to create a new Twelfth congressional district by dividing the present Tenth and Eleventh districts. A measure was introduced in the House to limit the sale of fortified wines to the liquor stores in the 26 counties with ABC boards prohibiting the sale of such wine in the rest of the state. The House passed the Senate bill to restrict the state and ordered it ratified into law.

Senator Watson of Nash sent in a bill to require that jail sentences of from five days to two years be imposed on persons convicted of second offenses of drunken driving. Several representatives, including Taylor of Wayne, joined in introducing a bill to clothe the Supreme court with power to make rules for legal procedure in all lesser courts of the state. The bill has been endorsed by the various bar organizations of the state.

Another new House bill, by Taylor of Wayne and others, would give emergency Superior court judges the same powers held by regular judges.

Those introducing the bill to regulate the sale of fortified wine included Quinn of Duplin. It was referred to the House Committee on Propositions and Grievances, of which Quinn is chairman.

Senator Lanier of Pitt introduced a bill to repeal the law creating a civil service system for police and firemen in Greenville and provide for their employment by the city aldermen. It was passed and sent to the House.

The House passed and ordered ratified into law a Lanier bill to repeal a law creating a pension fund for Greenville policemen and firemen.

Pittman of Greene introduced a measure to provide for appointment of the judge and solicitor of Greene recorder's court by the county commissioners when a vacancy occurs and to provide for the removal of court officials under certain conditions.

N.C. Pension Law Widely Supported

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Ten representatives of teachers, educational organizations and state employees urged the joint legislative committee on Education today to approve a bill establishing a retirement system for state employees, including teachers.

Several minor changes were proposed for the bill, introduced last week. Urging a quick favorable report were State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson, Bank Commissioner Gurney Hood, Director of Public Assistance Nathan Yelton, Jule B. Warren, secretary of the North Carolina Education Association, and J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools.

A sub-committee was appointed to study the bill and propose amendments and report back to the full committee.

Roy Galloway of Charlotte sought extension of the terms of the bill to cover all municipal and county employees. Rose as legislative representative for the Congress of Parents and Teachers, said the bill was "first" on the committee's program.

There are at least 20 federal agencies concerned directly or indirectly with various phases of public health.

FDR RECEPTIVE TO AMENDMENTS

Legislative Leaders of Both Parties Hold White House Conference On Bill To Aid Great Britain

Washington, Jan. 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reportedly told a bi-partisan conference of legislative leaders at the White House last night that, while the present aid to Britain bill would authorize him to "do anything under the sun," he had no intention of utilizing the vast powers, except to the extent his military and naval advisors considered necessary to aid Britain.

During the two-hour discussion one conferee said Mr. Roosevelt manifested a "very receptive mood" toward three of the major amendments which have been urged on Capitol Hill to curtail somewhat the bill's broad grant of powers.

The chief executive was understood to have listened favorably to the suggestions that the bill impose a two-year limitation on his leasehold powers, that he make periodic reports to Congress on his administration of the program and that the conveying of supplies to England be specifically prohibited.

Mr. Roosevelt has been represented by administration leaders as very desirous of obtaining the bill's enactment by substantial majorities in both houses and with a minimum of bitterness. To secure this result, he was said to be ready to accept important modifications.

The White House conference last night was interpreted as evidence of the administration's desire to obtain the fullest possible measure of bi-partisan harmony. Some legislators also regarded it as a conciliatory bid to Republicans who complained that they were not consulted when the bill was drafted.

Try Ten Cases In Pitt County Court

Ten cases were disposed of in today's session of Pitt County court, which was completed during the morning, leaving only a few cases on the docket for disposal.

Three of the defendants, Harry L. Askew, Hubert Jackson and Charles D. Bowen, all white, were convicted of driving drunk and each was given a 90-day sentence, suspended upon payment of a $50 fine and court costs. Under law each had his license revoked for 12 months.

Clifton Butts, indicted along with Bowen on a charge of appearing on the highway drunk, was ordered to pay the costs in the case, which was consolidated with the charge against Bowen.

James Sharp, colored, was given a four-months sentence after tendering a plea of guilty to larceny of meat. Two other defendants, Will Staton and Dave Pitt, charged with aiding and abetting in concealing stolen meat, also were tried. Staton was given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs and on further condition he show good behavior for 12 months, and Pitt was acquitted.

Wilbur Dixon, colored, was convicted of abandonment and non-support of his child and was given a six-months sentence, suspended upon payment of $5 now and $2.50 weekly for the support of his child. Offie Gainer, colored, pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while his license was revoked and was given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon condition that he not ride in any motor vehicle for four months. The defendant also had his license revoked for an additional year, beginning May 28.

Ernest Cox, white, and Joe Carney, colored, pleaded guilty to charges of possession of liquor and being drunk on the highway, but judgment was suspended upon payment of costs.

US Army Steamer Reported Aground

Victoria, British Columbia, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Battered by high seas, the U. S. Army steamer Kivchak went aground on Sisters rocks near Prince Rupert late last night and shortly thereafter tersely messaged passengers and crew were abandoning her.

Then, however, followed a report that the ship was in no immediate danger of sinking unless heavier weather should break. The ship was being used to take supplies to defense projects in Alaska. She left Seattle Saturday night.

FAMOUS CHOIR TO COME HERE

Westminster Group To Be Here February 27th

The members of the famous Westminster Choir, appearing in concert here on February 27th at 8:00 p. m. at Wright Memorial Auditorium at E.C.T.C., represent a typical cross section of thoroughly American youth, coming from nearly every state in the union, and uniting in one professional body all the characteristics of the various sections of our country. Neither race nor creed has ever been a barrier to membership in the Westminster Choir College and Westminster Choir, and the requirements of voice, musicianship, and physical stamina.

Since it began touring in 1921, Westminster Choir has toured in the interests of bettering the choral standards of America. Since its inception, it has traveled not only from coast to coast in America but also in Canada and nearly all the countries of Europe. Wherever it has gone, it has never lost sight of its original purpose. It has continued to grow and develop under the guidance of its founder and present director until it has become an integral part of American culture and American life in general. Enthusiastic comments from leading American critics, symphony conductors, educators and Theologians testify amply to the important contributions to the contemporary scene made by Westminster Choir College and Westminster Choir, and it is to be hoped that this thoroughly American institution will continue to flourish for many years yet to come. According to all present indications, this will be the case.

Asks $273 As Result Of Traffic Accident

M. L. Stafford of this city has filed a civil suit in Pitt Superior court seeking to recover a total of $273.80 from Hobb Anderson of Wilson county and J. B. Lane as a result of a traffic collision on Colananche street here December 27.

The action asks $173.80 damage to the plaintiff's automobile and $100 compensation for being without the use of the vehicle while it was being repaired.

The complaint alleges that the Stafford car was struck by one owned by Lane and driven by Anderson as it was backing down a steep incline back of the Old Towne Inn. It also alleges the car was being operated in a careless and reckless manner and without due regard for the rights of others.

The plaintiff is represented by Dink James.

Sits In House During Debate On Labor Party Organ

London, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie visited the House of Commons today and sat in the distinguished visitors' gallery during an opposition attack on the government's suppression of the Daily Worker, Communist party organ.

Caught earlier in the first air raid of his London visit without the steel helmet he brought from the United States, Willkie also got into the house without a gas mask — ordinarily required for all entering there.

While Willkie sat in the gallery, a Laborite told the House that the suppression of the Daily Worker was driving the opposition to war underground and that soon Britain would need a "gestapo" to combat such opposition.

There was no recognition of Willkie's visit from the floor.

Before going to Commons, Willkie visited the Bank of England and met Montagu Norman, the bank's governor. A crowd gathered outside cheered when he left.

Anti-aircraft guns were blazing away during the half hour conference Willkie held with Archbishop Desmond Hinkley, Archbishop of Westminster and leader of Roman Catholics in England, on the attitude of Britain's Roman Catholic population toward the war.

One NCS Student Slain In Accident

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—(AP)—N. C. State college authorities said today that two students injured in an accident near Woodridge, Va., yesterday were still in the hospital, but that two others hurt had returned to the campus.

William N. May, 21, of Lenoir was killed in the accident. He was driving his own car on the trip made by 13 seniors in Aeronautical Engineering. Yesterday the party visited Langley Field, Va., and was en route to Washington when the accident occurred. The tour was planned to extend as far as New York, but was cancelled after May's death.

Still in an Alexandria hospital were F. W. Randall of Bristol Tenn., who suffered a bad cut on the head, and F. O. Smith of McLeansville. Back on the campus were Thomas E. Haynes of Burlington and E. R. Johnson of Paw Creek.

Others on the trip included J. S. Laws of Henderson and William D. Windley of Pantego.

Flu Epidemic Closes Edgecombe Schools

Four Edgecombe county schools have been closed on account of the influenza epidemic, according to reports reaching here today, but D. H. Conley, superintendent of the Pitt county schools, declared that "we hope to go on without interruption" despite the fact a number of students are being kept at home on account of illness.

N. E. Gresham, superintendent of the Edgecombe schools, today announced the closing of the Macesfield, Pinetops, South Edgecombe and Crisp schools. Conetoe school may also be closed and the city of Tarboro is reported hard hit by the epidemic, although classroom work has not been suspended.

Funeral services will be conducted in Farmville, but definite arrangements had not been completed this afternoon.

Mr. Turnage is survived by his wife, the former Miss Mabel Galloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Galloway of this city, and two children, Betty Lou and Harvey, Jr.

F.W.A. Mills Home Damaged By Blaze

Fire which apparently broke out in the closet of a bedroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. A. Mills at 1204 East Fourth street shortly before noon today caused damage estimated by firemen at "several hundred dollars."

Most of Mrs. Mills' clothes were destroyed by the fire. She had just returned from Kentucky, where she had been with her husband, who is a government tobacco grader. Unpacked suitcases and a small trunk were destroyed by the fire. The house and furniture were damaged by smoke and water.

No one was at home when the fire broke out, according to local firemen, and the origin of the fire was not determined.

Treasury Secretary Is Witness

U.S. Treasury Head Bluntly Asserts Britain, Greece And China Will Not Be Able To Continue Conflicts Unless British Aid Bill Passed; Declares Congress Must Decide Quickly

Washington, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau bluntly told the Senate Foreign Relations committee today that Great Britain, Greece and China, "can't continue to fight" unless Congress enacts the administration's British aid bill.

Testifying that the British had exhausted their dollar exchange for buying war supplies, the Treasury secretary said that British orders for 2,000 fighting planes now were being held up for lack of cash.

He asserted, too, during questioning that "mentally" he had charged off "some time ago" Britain's multi-billion dollar war debt to the United States.

Morgenthau said Britain had placed before the Treasury the "cold, hard fact" that they were running out of money to pay for additional orders. He said it was up to Congress to decide quickly what should be done.

"If this bill doesn't pass Congress" he added solemnly, "they can't continue to fight. The decision rests with Congress whether Great Britain, China and Greece are to continue to fight."

The House Foreign Affairs Committee tentatively closed its hearings on the bill with private testimony from General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and General George H. Brett, acting army air corps chief.

Members said that the Democratic and Republican members would meet separately this afternoon to perfect amendments and would reconvene tomorrow to start voting on the proposed changes.

Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) said that the two most important revisions should be prohibition against the United States conveying supplies to Britain and against the "President giving away any part of our navy."

Speaker Rayburn predicted that "with two or three little amendments" from 95 to 98 per cent of the Democrats would vote for the legislation when the final roll is called, probably on February 7. He also predicted that half of the Republicans would approve it.

Schools In County Joining Movement

D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county school system and co-chairman with J. H. Rose of the President's Birthday infantile paralysis drive, disclosed today that the various schools in the county—both white and colored—are taking a part in the movement.

Square dances will be held on Friday night at Grimesland, Grifton and Ayden, while Winterville and Arthur will play a basketball game, the proceeds of all to go to the fund.

The Negro schools in the county are planning to have parties to raise money and in addition the teachers in the various units are working for the central colored Birthday Ball to be held in Greenville Friday night.

Christian Science Service. "Truth" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, January 26.

Golden Text: Psalms 119:151, 152. "Thou art near, O Lord; and all thy commandments are truth. Concerning thy testimonies, I have known of old that thou hast founded them for ever."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "And he (David) said, The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; in my distress I called upon the Lord, and cried to my God; and he did hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry did enter into his ears. The Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me." (Psalms 22:3, 7, 21)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science reveals the glorious possibilities of immortal man, forever unimpaired by the mortal senses. The eternal Truth destroys what mortal seem to have learned from error, and man's real existence as a child of God comes to light. The statement that Truth is real necessarily includes the correlated statement, that error, Truth's unlikeness, is unreal."

Enjoy Reading of Play.

A most appreciative audience composed of the drama group members of the American Association of University Women and of about 20 other drama lovers in Greenville heard Mrs. Denver E. Baughan last night read her effective abridgement of Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night."

Very sympathetically, Mrs. Baughan interpreted this tragic story of Finland's brave struggle to save its national freedom, and left her hearers more deeply realizing the depth of sacrifice that devoted followers of democratic principles can and must make against ruthless powers of aggression. Though Mr. Sherwood's drama is tragic as Finland's defeat, it inspires by its faith that ultimately there will be no "black-out" of democracy, no loss of man's ability to rise to heights of noble action for a cause of right, and by its suggestion that America will remain a place of refuge for the oppressed to the principles on which the country was founded.

This was the first of the monthly drama readings arranged for this year by the A. A. U. W. The meeting was held in Ragsdale Hall, where Miss Lucile Charlton, of the drama committee, served as hostess. Mrs. J. H. Rose, who is chairman of the group, was absent because of illness.

Allan Jones To Appear Here.

Allan Jones, noted young American tenor and moving picture star, will appear in concert at East Carolina Teachers College on the night of February 14, at 8:30.

Jones, who has made a name for himself in opera, concert, and the movies, is under a contract with Paramount that allows him three months each year for the concert work he loves. Concert singing gives this singer more genuine satisfaction than any other type of singing, he says, because it puts him in personal contact with his audience and lets him know immediately whether he is singing his best or not.

However, says this artist, opera, concert, and the moving picture each has its place in a singer's career if he is to be well rounded. Jones sang in many light operas during a three-year contract with the Schuberts, and has appeared in grand opera in "Tosca," "La Boheme," "Faust," and "Romeo and Juliet."

He will be remembered also for his hits in "A Night at the Opera," "Rose Marie," "The Pirelys," "Show Boat," "The Great Victor Herbert" and a number of other movies.

Pitt county alumni of East Carolina Teachers College have plans all laid for an alumni banquet to be held in the college dining hall on February 6. The meal will be served promptly at 6:30. Faculty and staff members and their wives, as well as husbands and wives of graduates, are included in the group. Tickets for the banquet are being sold throughout the county by the various graduates of the college.

For the short, entertaining program, worked out on the pattern of a radio broadcast, Lindsay Whichard of Bethel, class of '40, will serve as toastmaster. President Meadows will say a few words of greeting, to which Mrs. Mae Johnson Pure Tyndall of Arden will respond.

Professor R. C. Deal will conduct a "Professor Quiz" program, and writer who has been able to bring

British Use Radio Beams In New Answer To Night Bombing

GUIDING BEAMS BETRAY BOMBERS

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington — An airplane motor that broadcasts radio signals and a new super-sensitive radio car capable of listening to plane motors many miles away are instruments the British army has worked out to swat Nazi bombers in the dark.

But so many thousands of the new gadgets are required and so many thousands of crews must be trained in mathematics, radio and complex teamwork, that it may be months before sure-fire results are obtained. Even so, two or three German bombers are often bagged by the new radio system on every big night raid.

That's the gist of confidential reports coming back to America from the scene of night air war over the British Isles. Oddly enough, the system is a modern counterpart of a crude method developed by British-Born American Ace Harold Hartney at the end of the World War. Hartney actually downed a German bomber with his system in 1918.

The modern idea, not to give away any secrets, works out, roughly, like this:

The whole countryside in England, especially along the Channel coast, is peppered with small portable radio stations equipped with gadgets capable of picking up the radio beams the German bomber crews ride to their targets over Britain.

The Germans broadcast two beams to the target. Say the target is Coventry. One beam is pointed at Coventry from, say Brest, France. Another is broadcast from Brest's The German bomber rides one or the other of these, then, when he picks up the other one at maximum intensity, he's obviously over Coventry. If there's more than one target in one night, then more than one set of beams are broadcast, each set a little different.

Sounds Are Plotted
The little portable stations are also equipped with the new super-sensitive radio car that can hear enemy motors 25 or more miles away.

As soon as the ground stations begin to pick up the German beams and the German motors, they report back to a central mapping and radio headquarters, where all these sounds and their intensities are plotted on a map of the British Isles. In a very few minutes, the German beams show up on the map, and so does the approximate spot where the enemy planes are going to reach England territory.

By the time both the target and the progress of the planes are plotable, the mapping and radio headquarters notifies radio observation squadrons near the target. The planes are equipped with the same listening devices as the ground stations and serve to check principally on the German plane motors, and speeds.

Once the headquarters people are satisfied they will be able to spot the approximate position of the German planes, say a half hour in advance, they notify fighter squadrons of a possible contact point and send out their own beam for that point to the fighter squadron to ride.

Some Close Misses.
Sometimes the fighters miss the enemy in the dark. Ground listeners often know the fighters miss only by a few feet. Sometimes it's a mile or more. It's still a problem, as one British flier put it the other day, of trying to swat a mosquito in the dark. Any miss is as good as a mile. In this work the radio broadcasting motor is extremely essential. All the night flying British squadrons are equipped with them. Without them, the various radio listening posts on the ground and in the air could not distinguish between their own friendly planes and the hostile motors of the enemy. The friendly motor broadcasts signals automatically at fixed intervals. The timing of these clicks tells the listener he's hearing friendly craft. Anti-aircraft guns stationed near the radio listening posts know, too, when to let go and when to hold their fire.

It may be coincidence, or it may not, but this is simply a radio version of the old Hartney system, described by the famous flier in his recent "Up and At 'Em!" Hartney, the World War commander of such aces as Eddie Rickenbacker and Frank Luke, developed the only night pursuit squadron in American aviation during the World War — one of the two then in existence. (The British had the other one.) So far as is known, Hartney is the only World War flier who claims to have bagged a German bomber at night.

Could Silence Motors.
Hartney explains his fliers discovered their Monosoupape. French motors would cut out dead when the switch was turned off, while others would continue to sputter. So they decided to make up in advance a cut-out interval signal, then go aloft to 15,000 feet or more and cut off their motors for a minute or two. During the intervals, the American fliers and the ground crews could listen for German night bomber motors, and the ground crews could point their searchlights in the direction of the sound of the German motors.

The new British system is based on the same idea, only today, radio signals have replaced the sound "ears" and radio has likewise rendered the searchlight finger unnecessary. The broadcasting motor makes it unnecessary for friendly aircraft to cut out their motors, and thus lose altitude. Searchlights are out of the picture, anyway. Their beams can't go high enough to catch the invading bomber.

University Ready For Assemblymen

Chapel Hill, Jan. 28 — Final plans and preparations were completed heret today for the meeting of the General Assembly in Chapel Hill Thursday in honor of the University's school for South Americans.

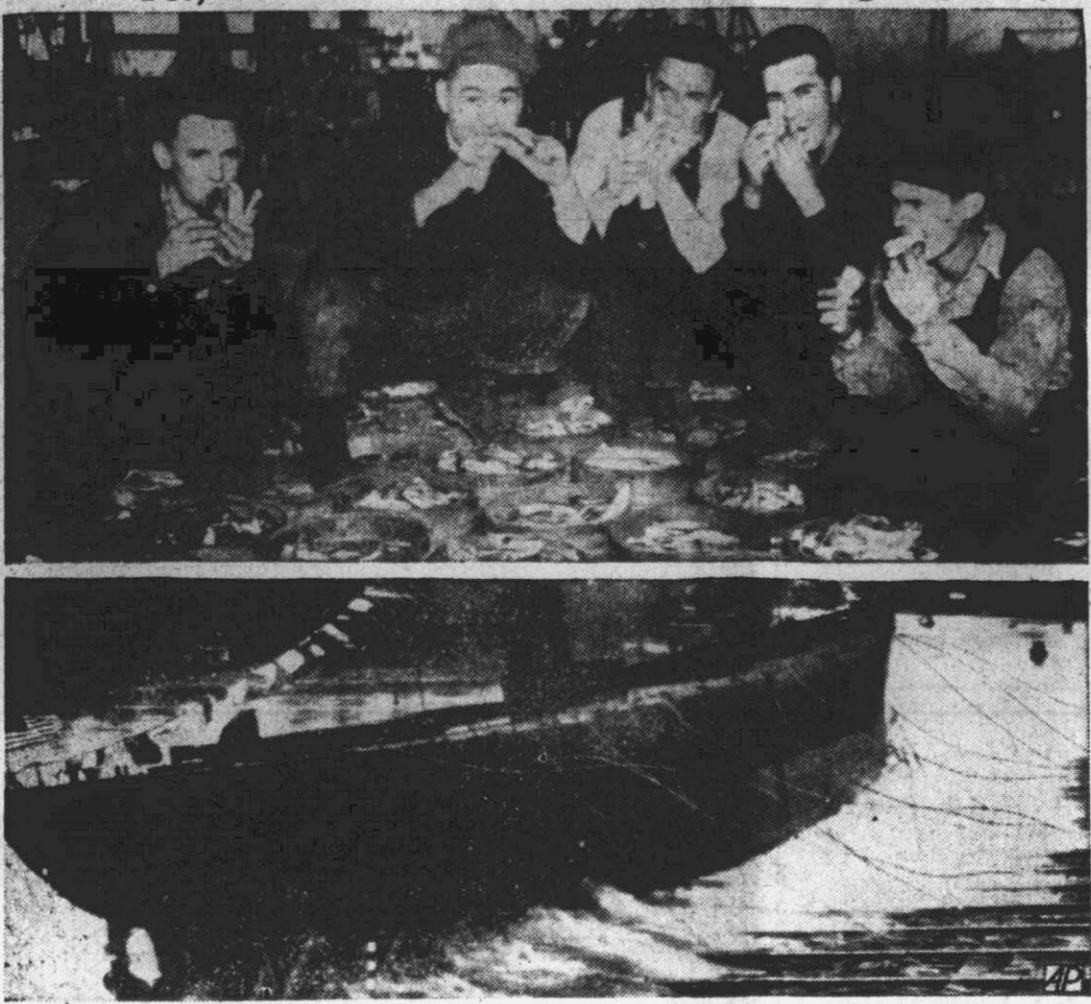

The sessions of the Senate and House have been set for 11:30 o'clock in Gerrard and Memorial hall respectively. It was announced, and the joint session will follow in the latter auditorium at 12:30 p. m.

This is the only session scheduled away from Raleigh, and the village honored at having the seat of the state government for the day, has made elaborate preparations to honor both the officials and the South American students.

The delegation will be met by a reception committee of faculty and South Americans at the Old Well and will be escorted to its meeting places by Carolina's new R. O. T. C. Naval unit as a guard of honor.

Yes, We Have Some Bananas For Launching Ship

The Cape Lookout, 413-foot cargo ship, slid over the world's largest banana split when it was launched (below) at Beaumont, Tex. Seven thousand pounds of bananas greased the ways. Above: workmen sampled a few of the slippery-skinned specimens. The Maritime commission says juicy bananas have been found an efficient substitute for launching grease.

Cavalry's 'Iron Sea Pony' Takes A Swim

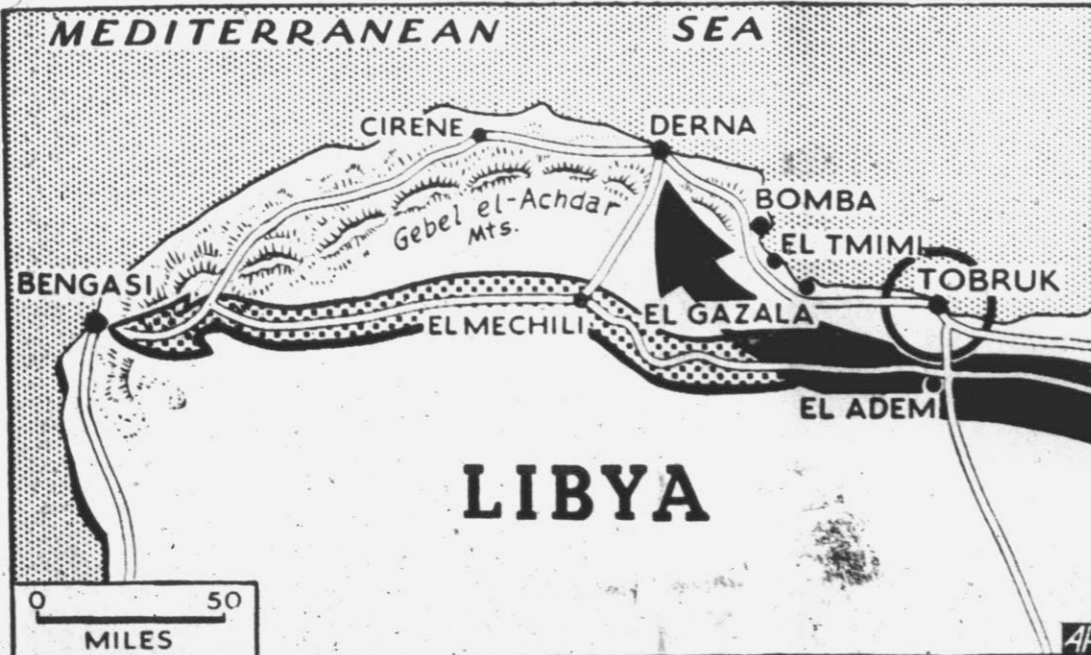

In another step designed to keep the auto abreast of the horse, the Sixth Cavalry took one of its mid-let cars to a river at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and made it swim; that is, with a little aid. Propelled under its own "steam," the car shoves off with Col. John Considine at the wheel and Capt. W. B. Hope manning the rudder. The 2,750-pound automobile is mounted on 28 1/2" olive drums and its driving power supplies by specially designed pad tires fitted onto the rear wheels, which are partly submerged.

Glamor And Gasoline For The Price Of One

Leroy C. Bishop, gasoline station proprietor in Los Angeles, got to worrying about the effect war time conditions might have in the supply of station attendants. So he advertised for girl attendants—and soon had a full-fledged beauty contest on his hands. The girls took to the job just like ducks take to water. E. Roedel (left), a bewildered but satisfied customer, watches them demonstrate their ability on his car.

Having captured Tobruk, Italian stronghold in Libya, after a 16-day siege, the British indicate the next drive will be aimed at Derna (black arrow) and Bengasi (shaded arrow) with success predicted by spring. The 3,000-foot Gebel Achdar mountains provide a natural line of defense for Italian forces trying to prevent the British from driving further westward.

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coom

Hollywood—It was raining inside and outside the sound stage, and Merle Oberon was bouncing herself on the floor for fun. Your fun not hers.

This was strange procedure for a lady who not long ago was dying very beautifully in a picture called "Wuthering Heights," and whose principal claim to movie fame heretofore had been in sirenish or dramatic roles. Her tumbling act which might be called a fall from higher drama except that it's also a rise to high comedy, was for Impish Ernst Lubitsch's movie, "That Uncertain Feeling."

In the story Merle had just discovered she had mistaken her movie husband, Melvyn Douglas, for his rival, Burgess Meredith. As a sensitive young woman, she fainted. And the sound stage floor was just as hard in rehearsal as it would be in a "take."

Ernst, given to acting out scenes for all the principals, was helpful. He demonstrated the look of horror she should assume when she realized how she should collapse. But he didn't do the fall himself. Messrs. Douglas and Meredith also were helpful, with hints on collapsing but no practical demonstrations. Miss Oberon, if she observed the absence of tactical instruction, war sweetly silent about it.

Miss Oberon then fainted for the camera—again and again. A large twenty man just outside the set was among those who found Merle's tumbling faint more than faintly amusing. He was Alexander Korda, the producer and Merle's husband, who was visiting from his own set.

When Lubitsch was satisfied Merle limped off the set.

"I'm fainting on my right side today," she explained. "Tomorrow I faint only on my left side to balance the bruises. If I wore a sarong in this picture, they'd have to give me 10 days to heal up."

And how did she feel about being a comedienne? She didn't answer in words. She crossed her fingers, knocked on wood.

Merle was bothered—not about comedy, but about Korda's plans to fly to England. It looked as if they had discussed the matter a bit before, maybe at breakfast. She didn't want him to go unless he could get a reservation to fly back. She got a sort of promise eventually, and Korda went back to his own picture. Somewhat warily she admitted that her role had good comedy possibilities. She referred to situations scenes, bits of dialogue, but she wouldn't commit herself on being a comedienne.

"Suppose I thought I was," she demurred. "and the public doesn't agree when it sees the picture?" So we'll have to leave it at that. I'll report, however, no matter what's in the rest of the picture. Miss Oberon faints funny.

Strength For The Day

By EARL J. DOUGLASS

MR. CHAIRMAN, I NOMINATE
Few people realize that the New Testament teaches, among other things, good manners. One day when Jesus was invited to a feast, He observed how the big-feeling guests pushed their way into the dining room and sought out the chief places of honor. In the conversation which ensued, Jesus did some plain speaking about the disposition of some people to push themselves forward at the expense of others. Take the lowest seat, He said, and perchance the host will ask you to go up higher. If you take the best seat, you may find yourself in considerable embarrassment later.

Oriental are very careful about where they sit at a feast. The seat nearest the door is the seat of least honor. The implication is that any time that guest wants to slip out, he will not be missed. I should like to make a few nominations for the seat nearest the door. First, I should like to nominate the chap who always points out evil and mistakes in others and sees very little about himself to criticize. On the same ticket I should like to nominate for the seat next to the snob. There is another figure in modern life who would not be missed, and that's the fellow who always is looking for easy money. We might add to this list the gossip, the bearer of malicious information, the man or woman who can take no joy in the success of another.

Give all such the seat nearest the door. Let them slip out any time. Their going will not be noticed, or if it is, everybody will be satisfied. (All Rights Reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

THREE PARTNERS

The defense program will furnish the acid test of our government, our industries and our workers. There can be no alibi for failure. There can be no excuse for waste of time and effort. This year, which is perhaps the most critical year in our history as a democracy, may tell whether free individual enterprise is to survive—or whether it is to be replaced by another system, in which government is the dominant factor in all our lives.

In the problem our nation faces, there are three partners. Each has vast responsibilities, for failure of either could destroy the others. One partner is industry, to which we turn for the means of defense and the implements of peace—the factories, farms and mines, the power plants which motivate the machines, the transportation systems which haul the raw materials and the finished goods—these are the backbone of America. Private industry must do a greater job than it ever did before to demonstrate its production and service superiority as its reason for existence.

The second partner is labor—the men who operate the machines and build the necessities and luxuries of peace. The responsibility of labor is crystal clear. It must work harder, and produce more. It must outlaw strikes and settle grievances between it and industry, over the arbitration table. It must put aside petty jealousies and internal differences for the duration of the emergency, if it wishes to hold public sympathy and good will.

The third partner is government. Its financial strength depends upon taxes taken from the earnings of private industry. The duty of government now is to adopt a policy of friendly cooperation with industry, and thus help it meet the extraordinarily difficult problems it faces in order to supply the emergency needs of government.

So it's up to the three partners now. Walter Lippman recently wrote, "American industry will not fail in the test. The world will see this year the proof that this young continent possesses the energy which, throttled down in these ten years of depression and confusion, will pour forth to astound the world."

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Now it can be told: With the possible exception of the visit of the King and Queen of England, there never have been such elaborate precautions here as were taken to guard President Roosevelt at his Inaugural.

Even with the experience of the visit of the King and Queen to draw on, Colonel Starling and his staff worked for more than a month on the minutely-detailed plan of operation. First the traffic lanes into the Capitol. White House and one-mile parade zones were taken care of. A parking blackout about four blocks wide and more than a mile-and-a-half long was ordered from midnight to midnight on Inaugural day. Lines of police, firemen and marines at hardly more than arms' length apart were formed from end to end of the parade route on both sides of the street.

decided back lot property will be added to the present "front" owners who will thereby find themselves as well fixed as they now are with reference to highway frontage. But all that is complicated out of the ordinary and will prove more expensive.

ROSS RECOUNTS
The Highway Commission counsel, incidentally, seems to have altered his views about "rush" and "mud" legislation very radically. He suggested to Speaker Oduis Mull and a reporter who was along, that there ought to be a law prohibiting the General Assembly from passing any bill within 30 days of its convening. Which is quite a change from his views on the contracting for national defense roads.

MULL CHECKS ON HIMSELF
"How are we doing—and what's going on?" asked Speaker Mull of a reporter he met at lunch Monday. "That's just what I was going to ask you," countered the news man. "Well, I just thought I'd beat you to the punch," came speaker, "and do a little bit of checking up on myself like the Negro delivery boy who went to the phone, changed his voice as much as he could and asked his employer for the job he already held."

WHO CAN KICK?
In all the talk about the salary grab bill which raised the pay of Thad Eure, Clyde Erwin, Charlie Johnson and George Ross Pou, nobody has yet decided who will be able to make any legal objection on the grounds that the whole thing is unconstitutional.

SICKENING HEADLINES
To those planning to oppose the Uzzell-Pool bill limiting to 1,500 gallons the cargo of any gasoline or other fuel carrying motor vehicle, the headlines of Monday morning, describing the death of three persons in a flaming gas truck-tractor crash were probably the most sickening on record.

MOST QUOTED
Probably the most-quoted remark made here recently is that of State College's Administration Dean J. W. Harrelson who pointed out to the Adult Education group at its recent banquet: "It's a sad state of affairs when you can easily hire in North Carolina 50,000 soda jerkers at $10 a week; but can't find 5,000 skilled craftsmen for jobs paying $50 a week minimum."

NO LUCK
"Listen, Margo," said Warren, a pleading tone slipping into his voice. "Can't you understand that life means something besides merely having fun? If you really loved me you'd be willing to take a chance with me."

Chapter 24
MARGO DECIDES
And a new man to meet, Margo thought. That was an inducement. A new man, and a lot of dancing and raving and riding. The sort of life she had become accustomed to. The sort of life she felt she wanted to go on living.

Short Shots
Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Charlie Ross, general counsel for the Highway Commission, sees the acquisition of a right of way for the road from Fort Bragg to Fayetteville as a more costly proposition than in the ordinary condemnation proceeding. He points out that the existing 60-foot right-of-way is built up almost like a city street all the way into the Cumberland capital, with the result that in order to get an additional 60 feet on the east side of the present roadway it is going to be necessary to move back scores—even hundreds—of now existing structures.

NICE CAMERA, MISTER
How the detectives worked may be demonstrated by repeating an incident that occurred to a friend of mine on the Capitol Plaza in front of the Inaugural stand. He's a camera fan and was in his seat before 11 o'clock to be sure that he had his candid camera sights set in plenty of time.

ELI'S REBATE
"Because I don't want to be associated with a large city hospital for one thing. For another, I'm going to accept a different sort of offer. I'm going to buy half interest in an elderly doctor's practice."

WASHING MACHINES
"Of course I have. I've thought about you all the time, thought about you and hoped you'd see things my way."

THE HUMAN RACE
"No, I can't believe that. Doctors can't pick up and leave just when they feel like it—any more than their wives can."

STATE CAPITOL 100 YEARS OLD

Extensive Anniversary Ceremonies to Be Arranged

Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—One of the pieces of "unfinished business" left on the executive desk by retiring Governor Hoey was appointment of a commission, on the part of the state, to cooperate with committees from Raleigh and Wake county in arrangements for observing next year the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of Raleigh as the state capital. Perhaps this job was left for Governor Broughton because he is a Raleigh citizen, the first native of the city or county to attain the governor's office.

The governing boards of Wake county and of the City of Raleigh have also delayed naming their representatives, and it is understood that the joint committee will be named in a conference to be held within the near future and all announced simultaneously.

Presumably, also, the current General Assembly will take some official recognition of the fact that this session marks the one hundredth anniversary of meetings in the new capitol building. The present structure was completed, after the first red brick "state house" had been destroyed by fire, just in time for the sessions of the assembly in 1841. Wake county legislators have in preparation a suitable resolution calling attention to that fact.

"There's no need my hanging around any longer," He held out his hand. "Goodbye, Margo. I hope you have a pleasant trip."

"Wait a minute, Warren," Margo said. "I'll make a sporting proposition. 'Go ahead, I'm listening.'"

"I'll go on up to Long Island," Margo said. "I'll stay for a few weeks, visiting several friends I feel near the city. I'll see how I feel about everything—about us. Maybe I won't be so crazy about my sort of life, after I've been here at home."

"Frankly, if you're the girl I'd like you to be," said Warren. "You won't be."

"That remains to be seen," said Margo. "Anyway, you can also be seeing how you feel about life here in Ardendale without me."

"Then—what?"

What Do You Know About BULGARIA?

- 1. It's a pretty safe bet that the man in the picture, King Boris of Bulgaria, isn't smiling much these days. There could be a lot of reasons, but one stands out far above the others. What is it?
2. Bulgaria is bounded by but four countries. One is under Axis domination, one is at war, and two are neutral. Name them and place each in its proper category.
3. King Boris has an unusual hobby—one which requires a lot of moving about. If you recall the man in Falls City, Neb., with whom he frequently corresponds, you'll remember the hobby.
4. About 40,000 square miles in area, Bulgaria is the same size as Kentucky? Montana? Connecticut?
5. True or false? Bulgaria fought with the Allies and was awarded new territory at the end of the first World War.

Each full question counts 20. A score of 80 is good.

may have a goodbye kiss? It is goodbye, isn't it?"

Warren drew her to him. He kissed her—held her close for several moments.

Then, without a word, he released her, and went down the steps.

AMERICANA GANDY DANCERS

By RAY PEACOCK
AP Feature Service Writer
A Gandy Dancer, according to "Dutch," is a guy who "dances" with one foot on a shovel, working gravel under a railroad tie so that the tie is snug and does its share of holding up the rail. Long ago, Dutch also related, they used to be called "gandy dancers." That was because they protected their shoes by fitting a tin can around the top of the shovel. Maybe "gandy" was too sugary a term for so salty a job. Or maybe it was mispronounced often enough to be changed to "gandy." Dutch wasn't too sure about that. After all, he had been gandy-dancing on

G-Men Meet Old Rivals In Tonight's Contest At GHS

FLU CRIPPLES LOCAL CAGERS

New Injuries Hurt Phantoms Chances with Kinston

By C. B. ROWLETT
Influenza and injuries are causing the GHS Phantom cagers more trouble than any amount of opponents, and tonight's battle with Kinston's Red Devils will be no exception for the Parleyemen. It seems almost inescapable for the local five Besides the absence of Larry James, regular six-foot center Coach Farley has a new list of the injured and sick to add to this crop of old ones. John Spearman, Gene Johnson, and a host of reserves will be on the sidelines for tonight's contest. Spearman, starting his first game last week, made a deep impression on the local fans and Johnson has done so the entire season. Snag Clark, top floorworker for Farley's Phantoms is having some trouble with a back ailment and although he is slated to start the contest, it will be doubtful whether he will play his full four quarters.

Farley's starting line-up has only one change to show from last week and from the looks of last week's victory over Elizabeth City, it must be a good idea to leave it like it was. Spearman's forward position has been filled by Burney Warren who was out up until the Elizabeth City contest. Warren went into the game in the second quarter and garnered eight points to tie for high scorer. Starting on the other forward will be "Dependable" Hicks. Corey GHS's other five foot six incher.

Henry Andrews, a stalwart blockade of defense, will get the call for the pivot slot. Andrews, another starter of last week did well for himself and earned himself the starting berth at center.

Going in at guards, the local fans will see Snag Clark and Hubert Musselwhite. While neither boy is a high scoring ace, they both usually get in a few baskets and are tops on the floor. Both boys have gained a reputation of taking the ball from the hands of opponents without the least trouble. The breaking up of passes has also seemed to be their meat.

With Troy Riddle, James and Leonard Briley, Charles Moyer, Bill Turner and a host of others on the sidelines eager for action the Parleyemen should come out on top.

Kinston has become one of Greenville's leading rivals during the past few seasons and will undoubtedly cause the Phantoms some trouble for tonight's contest. Last season's records show that the Red Devils of Kinston emerged victorious in both regular season games. The first tilt saw the locals edged out 20-23 and in a disputed contest in Kinston the Phantoms were downed 32-23, but the local boys gained decided revenge by taking the Devils 33-21 in the conference play-offs.

Roland Paylor and Mickey Wetherington, who caused so much grief for the Phantoms on the gridiron this season will be among Coach Mock's starters for tonight. Both boys made good showings against the Greens last season and will probably be among the leading trouble makers for tonight.

The Army May Get In his Hair

Ivan Barbella Heiderich, 33-year-old farmer from Marietta, Oklahoma, never had a haircut in all his life when he arrived at Oklahoma City with a group of draftees for induction into the army. Now he's worried for fear the army will clip off his long blond curls. But that anxiety has not seemed to affect his appetite.

JUNIORS MEET KINSTON TEAM

Baby Phantoms Handicapped With Injuries

The baby Phantoms of Greenville High school and the Devils' sons of Kinston High school will tangle tonight in a preliminary game. Although these boys have not met this season, Pulkerson's juniors are favored to top the visitors. Game time is set at 7:30.

For the first time in the history of GHS junior teams, the boys have made a fine showing. Although topped by the Wilson Junior Cyclones in the last game, the juniors were up against a Class A team and showed they would not be pushed around. It was all Wilson could do to edge the baby Phantoms out, 22-12. Goldsboro and Roanoke Rapids fell before the baby Phantoms earlier in the season.

Coach Pulkerson also has a list of injuries for his team to fight. "Billy Sugg and Conner Merritt" are definitely out, states the junior high mentor and Joe Register, Sidney Dunn and Ben Harrison are not in top condition.

Lindbergh Discredits Invasion Fear

Reading from a prepared statement, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told the House Foreign Affairs committee in Washington that a trans-oceanic air invasion of the United States to land troops is "absolutely impossible." But he did say that bombing raids from across the Atlantic could do "considerable damage." He is testifying before the committee hearing on the lend-lease bill to aid Great Britain.

Baron Franz von Werra, 26-year-old German pursuit pilot who escaped from a Canadian prison train, was arrested in Ogdensburg, N. Y. The baron said he was captured when forced down in England Sept. 7. He says these puffy ears got that way when they were frozen while he was crossing the St. Lawrence river in a boat.

Stockholders!

All stockholders and others interested in seeing organized baseball continued in Greenville are urged to attend a meeting to be held in the Board of Aldermen's room at the Municipal building tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

The Board of Directors will report on discussions and action taken at two meetings recently held and a definite decision probably will be reached as to whether Greenville will have an entry in the Coastal Plain league this year.

While it appeared that the city would be entered, there has been no definite decision reached and it is being pointed out that should Greenville surrender its franchise for the 1941 season it more than likely would be years before organized baseball would be revived here.

At least two cities not represented in the Coastal Plain loop at the present are anxious to secure a berth in the league and either would be quick to grab the locals' place in the loop.

G. V. Smith, president of the local club, declared yesterday it is not a question of Greenville dropping out of baseball for one year, emphasizing the fact that if the city surrenders its franchise it will have a hard time getting one in years to come as there would be no vacancies in the league.

This is why I have utilized an entire morning in filing away these people in a series of unattractive brown pasteboard casings that resemble oversized books and are identified by the label "Letters." They represent prize-fighters, doctors, comic strip artists, novelists, hula dancers, adventurers, war correspondents, actors, and convicts. Their signatures betray characteristics that hand-writing experts would call bold, irresponsible, adventurous, secretive, timid. Their styles range from terse little sprays of words to the easy openhandedness of gossip. One calls me a liar and accuses me of plagiarism. Another explains the origin of a lovely old south sea legend. Some tell of voyages, assignments, and duck hunts. Many discuss the campaigns of Morgan, Sheridan, Jackson, Stuart and Lee. All have a color that is attractive to me and that I wouldn't want to be without.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—I have spent an interesting morning sorting and classifying several hundred letters from people whose careers I have admired.

Some of these letters are six or seven years old, and a few bear a 1941 date, and all have been accumulated at the whim of the postman over a period of years and tossed into whatever box, drawer or coat pocket that seemed convenient.

Sorting them is a task I have needed to perform for a long while—for when I need to spell the name of Stephen Vincent Benet's youngest daughter, or refer to the description of a Connecticut farm house that Phil Stong has written me about, I have to ransack the house and tear bones apart and bring ruin to my quarters, and often without avail.

I was anxious to have these letters filed because I hope they will serve me as a sort of left handed diary. I have never kept a diary. I wish now that I had; for the nature of my work has led me inevitably into conversations and situations with many persons of consequence, and unless one keeps notes, which I do not—principally because I am seldom able to read my own notes once they become cold—or keep a diary, these situations and conversations in time fall out of mind and then are beyond recall.

And so I have attempted to guard against this with a little system of my own. Not all of these letters are from people who are well known; some even are from persons I have never seen, and I have kept them because of their lucidity, or because I have found in them certain qualities of euphony and liveliness and style that I wish were my own.

Most, however, are from people whose names have "reader appeal," and these are valuable to me—not because they are a collection of "Names," but because of the views and the information they contain and because of the light they throw on the background and the personality of the senders. And also, I suspect, because—when chronologically arranged—they suggest a sense of logic and sequence to my steps during the past few years that real-

The committee on arrangements for the President's Birthday Ball will meet tomorrow at 5 p. m., at I. M. Donnell's office.

The live at home program this year will play an important part in the defense program, raise all you eat, sell enough to buy the sugar and coffee, and flour. Raise plenty of poultry and hogs. Have a good garden, and a cow. There is no other plan safer for the farmer than growing his home supplies.

There are so many other things to make farm families happy now. Think of the electricity on the farm, electric irons, radios, washing machines, to say nothing of the bright lights that make day even after the sun has gone down.

One need not be reminded that the rural district is not a good place to cast his lot for the year. When the house wife thinks she only has to get the children ready for school bus to pick them up, and lunch being made ready for their coming at school, free books, and many other things too numerous to mention. After the day is over then comes a good rest on the mattress that is being given to the needy farm families.

Much blowing of the whistle is a loss of steam and power, and some people desire to be whistle, bell and head light in everything, but to help with his new farm program the farmer should be allowed to be whistle, head light and bell. A community day was well attended at Post Oak school. Supt. D. H. Conley was guest speaker and remarks were made by Oliver Carter, County agent of Martin county; Miss I. M. Donnell, supervisor of Pitt schools; Dennis Dupree, Negro county agent and Prof. W. C. Chance of Farmale Training school. The exhibits were good and the prize winners were as follows: Mrs. Annie Ward, first prize for chair bottom. Mrs. Minnie Whitfield, second prize for sweet pickle. Mrs. Mammie Anderson, third prize

Death Rides The Desert With British Tanks

Out of the maze of blowing sand, sudden death came with the British tanks in the background and struck down the Italian native soldier lying in the desert of northern Africa. Only $400,000 Allocated To Vocational Education

Reflecter Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Figures in the report of the Advisory Budget commission's report show a tremendous gap between the money the budgeters would have the state of North Carolina spend on "general" education and on "vocational" education.
For example, it is recommended that more than twenty million dollars be appropriated annually for instructional service in the eight-month public schools, while on the other hand the budgeters allotted only $400,000 for all forms of vocational education during the first year of the biennium and $450,000 for the second year.
Officials of the vocational divisions are not making any comparisons in their efforts to have the appropriations committee boost the budget estimates considerably; but many legislators have delved into the budget figures and are calling public attention to them.
There is no difficulty whatever in finding a constantly increasing sentiment among the law makers that more money should be appropriated for the vocational courses in proportion to the entire amount spent on education in North Carolina.
Chairman John Kerr, Jr., of the House appropriations group has already said flatly he thinks that undue emphasis is being put on "general" courses in high schools from which less than one-fourth the graduates will ever go to college. Others have announced similar views and it now seems practically assured that the vocational appropriations will be boosted substantially above budget figures.
T. E. Browne, director of the Vocational Education section of the Department of Public Instruction is marshaling facts to show that present and proposed appropriations are completely inadequate to meet even a moderate proportion of the requests for additional instructors in vocational education all over the state. He is getting ready to cite to the committee:
Agricultural Education.
There are today 423 schools in the State offering instruction in agriculture and shop work to approximately 30,000 boys and men in these classes; but there are 100 other high schools (and Mr. Browne has them all listed by name and place) which have applied for teachers of agriculture, but because of lack of funds their demands cannot be met.
This division provides courses for rural youths in high schools, out-of-school youngsters who are willing to go back to school for part time instruction and for adult farmers who wish to enroll for evening instruction.
Home Economics
There are 293 high schools with vocational home economics teachers giving instruction in home making to approximately 20,000 girls and women. There are 150 other high schools (135 white and 15 Negro) begging for this work but lack of funds prevents the Board of Vocational education from aiding them.
The work of this division is regarded as of tremendous importance in national defense as well as in the everyday life of the state. Medical statistics show a tremendous percentage of military enrollees are rejected on account of malnutrition caused by poorly balanced diet. The very heart of home economics teaching is to train young womanhood in the art of preparing a well-balanced, well-cooked diet for everyone. It is argued that more home economics training

CROP JUDGING CONTESTS SET

Nearly 500 Boys And Girls Of State To Participate

Raleigh, Jan. 28.—Teams comprising nearly 500 farm boys have entered the crop judging contests which will be a feature of the annual convention and seed show of the Crop Improvement Association to be held in Greensboro Friday and Saturday of this week. A. D. Stuart of State College announced today. Entries have been received from 105 vocational agricultural schools, and from 25 counties for 4-H club teams.

The student crops judging contests will be held Saturday morning and will be climaxed by a banquet at 1:30 p. m. Governor J. M. Broughton will speak to the young farmers, and to the adults attending the seed show, at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday. He will also attend the banquet, to be held in the Masonic Temple building.

All other sessions of the convention and the seed show will be held in the Greensboro armory. The first formal program is scheduled Friday morning, when a discussion of seed certification will take place. Participating will be Dr. G. K. Middleton, State College agronomist and general director of the Crop Improvement Association; J. W. Woodside, chief of the State Seed Testing Laboratory; O. S. Fisher, agronomist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, and W. A. Short, Guilford county farmer and president of the association.

R. M. Salter, director of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station and Dr. L. D. Bayer, head of the State College agronomy department will speak at Saturday sessions. F. H. Jeter, State College editor, will be toastmaster at the banquet.

would materially improve the general health of North Carolinians.

Industrial Rehabilitation.
There are ten thousand civilian cripples in North Carolina today and the number is increasing at a rate of twenty-five per cent per year, due to accidents and disease. Fifty per cent of these could be made self-supporting if sufficient funds were available, but they are not.

Distributive Education.
This division deals with the field of distribution of goods — a field in which one out of every seven gainfully employed people in North Carolina are to be found.
There is great demand among merchants and the public for the expansion of this service for which the State now appropriates a meager $6,000 annually.

With this tiny sum, plus some $29,000 of Federal money a good start has already been made in the state of North Carolina by organization of 183 classes in 33 communities in the field of groceries, restaurant service, home furnishings, dry goods and drugs.

What is Asked.
It is upon such facts as these that the vocational divisions seeking increased appropriations from state funds.

What is asked is that the State make available money enough to match the funds provided by the Federal government. It is pointed out that even among the Southern states, North Carolina is in the very low brackets with respect to paying its share of vocational education expenses. This state is surrounded by others which more than match the funds provided by the Federal government each year, while North Carolina puts up less than fifty cents for every dollar of Federal money.

For the first year of the coming biennium the Federal money available will be approximately $765,000, against the $400,000 recommended by the budget commission. It is now requested that the state's share be raised to $650,000. For the second year of the biennium the Federal funds will again be $765,000. The state is being asked to match that with $760,000.

Twenty-nine states elect all their judges. Five states appoint them and 14 both appoint and elect.
