HITLER SAYS NAZIS READY FOR U.S. AID TO BRITAIN

Italian Citadel Of Derna Captured By British Forces

BENGASI SEEN AS NEXT AIM

Third Fascist stronghold captured by Army of Nile in apparent campaign intended to drive Premier Mussolini's forces out of North Africa; Greeks regain offensive

(By The Associated Press)
Britain's triumphant desert armies captured the Italian stronghold of Derna, 175 miles inside Libya this morning in a headlong sweep, apparently intended to drive Premier Mussolini's forces out of North Africa, British general headquarters announced.

It was the third big Italian citadel captured by the British since General Sir Archibald P. Wavell's Army of the Nile launched a counter-offensive into Libya last December 15, following in the wake of Bardia and Tobruk.

Bengasi, base of Fascist Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's forces, apparently is the next objective of the British onslaught. It lies 150 miles west of Derna.

The British announcement of this new blow at the southern end of the Rome-Berlin Axis came as the Greeks told of wresting the offensive from the Italians in Albania and driving Fascist legions back from positions in the bitterly contested sector north of Klisura.

British and German warplanes violently shattered a 10-day lull in aerial warfare overnight, with Royal Air Force bombers smashing at the big German naval base of Wilhelmshaven, while Nazi raiders again showered death and destruction on London. The empire capital had three daylight alarms by mid-afternoon with "some" fatalities.

Hitler's high command acknowledged numerous civilians were killed and wounded by British raiders attacking two localities on the north-west coast of Germany, but asserted the damage was limited "exclusively" to residential sections and a work camp.

As an aftermath of the bloody revolt in Rumania last week it was officially announced that more than 2,000 rebels, including 52 "gun women," have been arrested in Bucharest alone, along with the seizure of 32,635 machineguns, rifles, revolvers and hand grenades and almost 400,000 rounds of ammunition.

Pitt Court House Bonds Are Retired

Thirty years ago Pitt county issued $75,000 worth of bonds to erect the present court house and jail. Today County Treasurer J. Vance Perkins mailed checks for that amount to the holders of the bonds. But, in the meantime the county has paid $112,500 in interest.

Other bond principal and interest payments due on February 1, mailed today, brought the total to $90,303.75. Interest payments made today on the court house and jail issue totaled $1,875.

Other payments today were made as follows: Fountain special school district, dated February 1, 1927, five per cent, interest, $400; Farmville special school district No. three, six per cent bonds dated August 1, 1920, interest $1,020; Farmville special school district school building, four per cent and three and three-fourths per cent bonds dated August 1, 1938, principal $2,000, interest, $631.25; Farmville special school district No. three, six per cent bonds dated August 1, 1920, interest, $180; Farmville special school district, school building, four per cent and three and three-fourths per cent bonds dated August 1, 1938, interest, $197.50.

NATION HAILS ITS PRESIDENT

Roosevelt, However, Too Busy To Observe Birthday

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The nation said "Happy Birthday" today to the man in the White House.

President Roosevelt was 59—a bit grayer for the passing of another 12 months and with deeper creases around his eyes. But the broad shoulders showed little sag despite the strenuous burdens of two terms and the war-beset responsibilities of a third.

Anniversary or not, the day brought Mr. Roosevelt scant respite from the cares of office. Apart from the flood of greetings and congratulations, it meant the usual house at his desk, the usual work, the usual run of appointments.

For tonight, however, a dinner and party will be given at the White House for intimate friends who have gathered around the President every January 30 since 1921.

Throughout the land other Americans by the thousands will dine, dance and dig into their pockets at birthday balls and other celebrations to help finance a campaign against infantile paralysis, a movement to which Mr. Roosevelt has dedicated each birthday since he became President.

In Washington there will be receptions, parties, balls, special programs at theatres and more than a dozen movie, radio and sports stars making the rounds of all of them with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Club To Honor President, Celebrate Debt Clearance

Preparations are in progress for a dinner meeting of unusual interest to be held at the Woman's Club Building Friday, January 31 at 6:30 p. m. The club will have as its guests several business men of the town and the Kiwanis club of Greenville. At this meeting the club will celebrate the payment of its indebtedness by burning the last of the notes and mortgages and will express its appreciation to all who helped make it possible.

On January 31, 1934, just seven years ago, the Woman's club was in rather straitened circumstances. Unwilling to lose the club building until they had exhausted every resource the building committee composed of Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale and Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, and the other officers of the club planned a dinner to which a number of business men of the town were invited. To this group the women explained the financial circumstances. The men assured the club women that the Woman's club building was a community asset and deserved the financial support of the people of the community. The guests pledged a thousand dollars and assisted the club women in getting other contributions from the business interests of the town. This assistance made it possible for the club women to carry on.

The Kiwanis club moved into the club house soon after its purchase and has held its meetings there all these years. Because it has made such a vital contribution to the club building any meeting to express appreciation of help would be futile without the presence of the entire Kiwanis club.

One of the most interesting events of the evening will be the unveiling of the portrait of the club president, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore. At this time Mrs. J. L. Fleming will express (Continued on page six)

When the committee session broke up, Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) announced the bill was reported out for House action with four major amendments adopted yesterday.

Bloom disclosed that in the last few minutes of the meeting the committee had rejected six amendments ranging from an entirely new bill based on loans of money to Great Britain to a proposal to strike out a section authorizing the Secretaries of War and Navy to acquire arms and ammunition in a foreign country.

The four amendments which were approved by the committee would limit the operation of the bill to the period ending June 30, 1943. Require the President to consult with army and navy chiefs before disposing of any war material produced specifically for the defense of the United States.

Require the President to report to Congress at least every 90 days on transactions under the bill, except that he would not have to disclose information he considered incompatible with the public interest. Provide specifically that nothing in the bill grants any power to the President to order naval vessels into service to escort cargo convoys.

Local Men To Go To Safety Council

A group of Greenville citizens are planning to attend a meeting of the Eastern Carolina Safety Council to be held in the old recorder's court room at Rocky Mount tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

Larry E. Brown of the local Water and Light Commission is chairman of the council and is urging a good attendance from this city. Among those planning to attend are Mayor B. B. Sugg and Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Water and Light Commission.

The principal address will be made by L. L. Gravelly, who will discuss Safety From the Viewpoint of the Owner.

Another feature of the meeting will be the election of officers.

NAZI INVASION IS ENVISIONED

Former Ambassador To Berlin, Appearing Before Senate Committee In Support Of British Aid Bill, Predicts Germany Would Seize Mexico If Great Britain Defeated In War

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Berlin, announcing that he favored declaration of war against Germany, predicted that the Nazis would "seize" Mexico if Great Britain was defeated.

Supporting the administration's British aid bill, Gerard, who served as ambassador to Germany from 1913 to 1917, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that if Germany is victorious "we will meet the first shock of her attack in the countries south of us."

"Germany and Italy now are sending 'vast sums' to Mexico and other Latin-American countries," he said, adding that if Germany wins the war in Europe "Mexico will be seized by the Nazis."

Gerard said he could see no hope for a negotiated peace in the war and urged that Congress furnish this country with a "lightning defense" against lightning war by passing the British aid bill.

"I think the American people, like the British, would rather die standing and free, than kneeling in appeasement before the Nazis," Gerard declared.

"We are faced by what they call a blitz war—a lightning war—and this bill provides a lightning defense. We can trust our President with these powers—powers which he may have to exercise at a moment's notice if the world in our civilization is to be saved."

A proposal for a $2,000,000,000 "ceiling" in the lease-lend program furnished the last big test of strength as the House Foreign Relations Committee met to finish work on the aid to Britain bill and report it out for action.

Already successful in carrying four major amendments believed acceptable to the administration, the bill's supporters were expected to defeat the "ceiling" proposal, just as they voted down a "no convoy" ban yesterday.

N.C. Vocal Clinic To Be Held Here

Several high schools of Eastern North Carolina are sending chorals groups to Greenville Friday to participate in the first statewide vocal clinic to be conducted here.

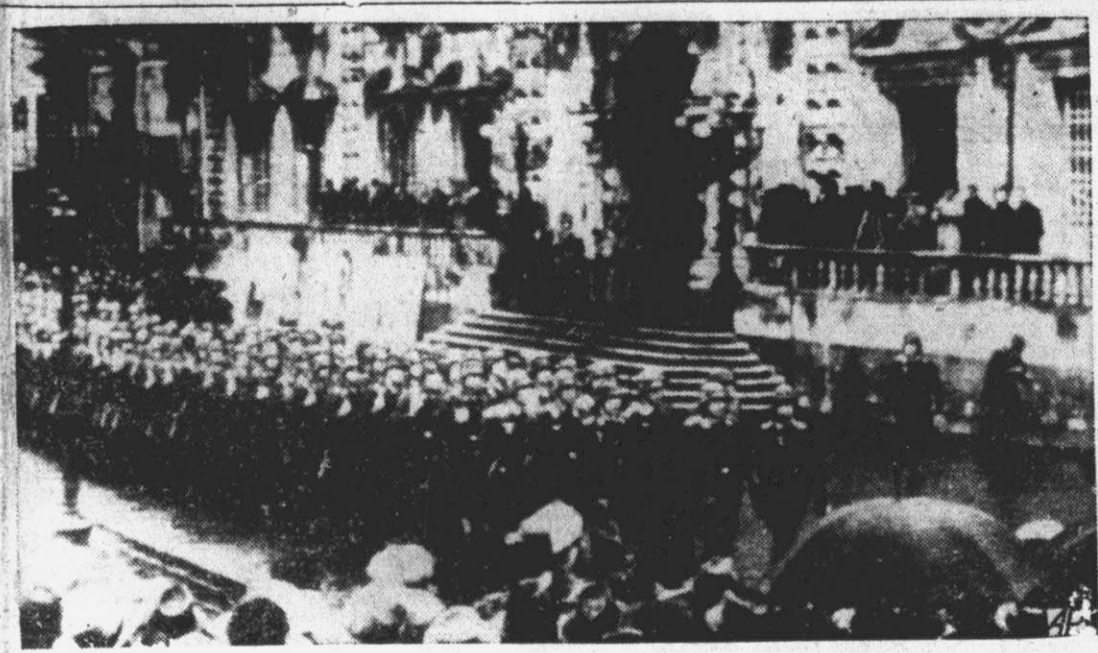

Incoming students and teachers will register in the Wright Memorial building Friday at 10 a. m. and the clinic work will begin immediately thereafter.

A. L. Dittmer, chairman of the district announces that W. P. Twardell, well-known director of vocal music in the Durham city schools and Miss Grace Van Dyke Moore of the Woman's College, U. N. C. faculty—both outstanding in their field—will direct this work consisting of the diagnosing of student and teacher difficulties, and demonstrating solutions. While this is being done, music to be used in the State Contest-Festival will be studied, special problems worked out, and various interpretations evaluated.

To demonstrate the results of the day's activities, these same students will present a program of choral music to the public Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to which all are cordially invited. Those unable to attend may hear the same program over WGTC as it will be broadcast from the Wright Memorial building via remote control. Chairman Dittmer is hopeful that a great deal of interest will be shown in this movement as it is the first clinic organized to improve choral singing, conducting and interpretation.

SOLONS HONOR S. A. STUDENTS

Gov. Broughton Re-veals Scholarships Be Set Up

Chapel Hill, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Governor Broughton announced to the legislature today as it met in special session here to honor 110 South American students that the trustees of the University of North Carolina this morning set up six scholarships for South Americans.

Greetings to the South Americans from President Roosevelt and Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico and a university trustee, were read.

The President said he was "gratified" that the university was welcoming the Spanish Americans so cordially. Daniels expressed the belief the interchange of students between the Americans would "forge another link to the chain of democracy."

President Frank P. Graham of the University, explained that the students had been welcomed "not with Yankee dollar diplomacy, but as brothers."

Speaker Mull urged the need of a feeling of confidence and mutual interests between the people of the United States and "our neighbors to the South."

By a shouted vote of all the legislators and the entire audience in Memorial Hall a joint resolution introduced by Rep. Bryant of Durham was unanimously adopted which extended welcome and expressed good will to the visitors.

Governor Broughton welcomed the representatives of the South American republics as good-will neighbors. He said the nation "expresses not the mailed fist, but the open hand of fellowship and brotherhood."

Dr. Victor Andres Belaunda of Peru, acting as spokesman for the South Americans, responded that his people "hoped because we are one of culture and really of one soul, that there can be a spiritual union of the Americas."

Naval Protection Fund Authorized

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Legislation authorizing a $300,000,000 expenditure to increase the navy's protection against air attacks was signed today by President Roosevelt.

It was the first bill passed at this session of Congress.

Under its terms the navy is authorized to install anti-aircraft guns and armor on 58 combat ships and 153 auxiliary craft already in service.

Still Located In Belvoir Township

Pitt county ABC officers and Deputy Sheriff R. W. Tyson last night braved the cold to watch a liquor still in Belvoir township in the hope that the operators would appear, but no one came and the officers returned this morning and destroyed the plant with dynamite.

FEE PROPOSED PAY HOSPITAL

Chapel Hill, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A bill to levy a fee of 50 cents on each automobile license tag issued to provide for hospital treatment for persons injured in automobile accidents was introduced in the legislature today as it met here at the University of North Carolina.

Bill Provides Fund Be Set Up For Wreck Victims

The Senate met in Gerrard Hall to handle its routine business, while the House sat in Memorial Hall. Most of the 110 South American students here at a special summer school attended the separate sessions and then were honor guests at a joint Assembly session.

Senator Leary of Chowan introduced a bill to provide a 10 per cent salary increase for all teachers and principals in the public schools and the gallery applauded as the title of the bill was read.

Both divisions adopted a resolution congratulating President Roosevelt on his birthday, but the measure had to be amended to make it his 59th instead of 58th birthday which the legislature was taking note of.

The automobile hospitalization bill was sent in by Senator Long of Halifax. It provides that 50 cents be added to the regular license fee and that it be collected with license plates issued. When $100,000 has accumulated (Continued on page six)

FETE TONIGHT TO HONOR FDR

Tickets To Annual Ball To Be Available At Door

A committee composed of Chairman Phil Goodson, W. T. Kyzer and R. C. Rankin was busy today selling tickets to tonight's President's Birthday Ball to be held at Wright Memorial building at the college.

The sale of tickets was progressing satisfactorily, but it was emphasized that they will be on sale at the door tonight at the regular price of $1.50 per couple, 50 cents for college and high school couples and 25 cents for spectators.

The dance is scheduled to get under way at 9 o'clock and music will be furnished by Bill Kanoye and his orchestra. A special added attraction will be a floor show by Miss Marie Smith, dance instructor, and her students.

Everything was in readiness at the college for tonight's affair and R. C. Deal, in charge of arrangements, has seen to every detail to insure a success in so far as his duties are concerned.

J. H. Rose and D. H. Conley are co-chairmen of the general drive to raise funds to aid infantile paralysis victims.

While some cities have postponed the ball on account of the prevalence of influenza, the local co-chairmen announced following a conference with Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, that the situation here was not serious enough to cause such action and a large crowd was expected to attend tonight's affair.

The Birthday Ball for colored citizens will be held in the new gymnasium on West Fifth street tomorrow night. The affair is being sponsored by the county Negro teachers and much interest is being shown among the colored residents of the county.

The March of Dimes, another phase of the campaign, also was declared to be meeting with success.

Various schools in the county have planned square dances or basketball games for tonight or tomorrow night.

Says Action Anticipated From Start

Fuehrer Asserts Plans For "This Emergency" Made Even Before Germany Was "Forced Into War" And Adds Anyone Helping England Will Have Ships Torpedoed If They Confront Nazi Craft

Berlin, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler told the German nation today that "whoever wants to help England will have to realize that whatever ship is going to come in front of our torpedoes will be torpedoed."

He declared that although the British were now hoping for aid from the United States, that "when we were forced into this war we had plans even then for this emergency."

The Fuehrer, speaking on the eighth anniversary of his assumption of power, insisted that Britain's cause "is lost."

"We are now fully prepared for whatever may happen in relation with America's help," he said.

He boasted of the armed power of the Reich and said that Germany had many things making it "a thousand times as strong as the strength we have already displayed."

Hitler devoted 25 minutes of his address to a bitter attack on the British empire, which he described as the product of 300 years of robbery. He called Britain the most "anti-social" state in the world, "a paradise for a few, continuous misery for the masses."

"The lie is constantly spread around the world that the authoritarian states want to conquer the world. In reality our enemies are the ones who have the lust of conquest," Hitler said.

Britain, he went on, not only desired to keep Germany down, but also Italy and Japan.

"Her balance of power theory was really the disorganization of Europe in the interest of the British empire," he declared.

"To speak of Britain as the lord of the world is vain imagining. She is the most anti-social state in the world, run by a small upper crust, plus Jews."

"To keep up the pretext of being a world power, Britain must now incite nations against nations outside Europe, for within Europe she no longer has anything to say."

Mrs. Ida Wethington 72, of Grifton died at 11 o'clock Wednesday night at her home after an illness of several days.

Mrs. Wethington was a member of the Christian church and was held in high esteem among a large circle of friends and relatives.

The funeral services will be held from the home on Friday at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Perry Case of Wilson conducting the services. Burial will follow in the Grifton cemetery.

Mrs. Wethington's husband, C. A. Wethington, died several years ago. She is survived by the following children, Jesse B. of Kingston, H. R. M. A. J. M. H. L. and Miss Anna Wethington all of Grifton, a niece, Mrs. Ida Belle Smith, and fourteen grand children.

The woebegon-White Queen (Dorothy Martin) explains to Alice that she has lost her comb, and that the brush is so entangled in her hair that she can't get it loose. A scene from the Clare Tree Major Production of "Alice in Wonderland."

The White Queen (Dorothy Martin) of "Alice in Wonderland" to be presented in Austin Auditorium at the college Monday afternoon from 3 to 4:30, and evening from 8 to 9:30, February 3, under the auspices of the American Association of University Women.

When Lewis Carroll pictured the woebegon-White Queen as having lost her comb and having her brush hopelessly entangled in her hair, he was writing nonsense which, like all good nonsense, contains much sense; and the demand by adults for tickets to the evening performance of "Alice in Wonderland" is proof that though children laugh at the nonsense for its own sake, their elders read in it subtle pictures of themselves. Isn't all their adult world entangled in a mesh of accidents and troubles; and haven't their very tools become useless in confusion? Thus it is with most of the nonsense in this classic of absurdities. Growups appropriate its funny situations as fantastic pictures of themselves in a world, gone half-mad, and read meaning in Carroll's humor, just as yesterday's cartoonist borrowed his comments on our rearmament program direct from the Walrus.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things: Of ships and shoes, and sealing wax—of Chibbys and Kings."

So the Children's Theatre production of the impossible story of Alice always attracts almost as many adults as children. They come not only to re-experience their childhood delight in the book but also to laugh at man's folly and predicaments; they go away cleansed, as it were, by wholesome laughter at themselves, and refreshed by the beauty of speech and color and scene that give dramatic charm to the Clare Tree Major plays.

The evening performance is providing opportunity to high school and college students and a large number of adults to see the dramatic version of this children's classic; and the A. A. U. W. is grateful to the many patrons for their fine cooperation in exchanging their afternoon tickets for evening tickets. Because there are still many children desiring admission to the af-

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eye, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Miss Brock Addresses Alumnae.
On Monday afternoon, January 27, at 3:30 o'clock at the regular meeting of the Greensboro College Alumnae held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Galloway on East Fourth street, Miss Mary Brock of Greensboro, alumnae secretary, talked informally to the chapter about the college and the local chapter's opportunities.

Miss Brock has a most pleasing and animated personality and her interesting talk was very much appreciated. The tour of the college on which she took the members, was most enjoyable. In addition to this and the pointing out of local chapters' opportunities, she gave a most graphic report of the Alumnae Forum which was held at the college on Homecoming Day in December, at which time Miss Louise Kilgo of Greenville acted as student representative of this chapter. Miss Brock brought with her also, greetings to the local group from Dr. Luther L. Gobel, president of Greensboro College, and from Mrs. Karl Bishop of Spray, president of the Alumnae Association, whose special message to us was in the form of the slogan: "G. C. Better Still. By Your Wills."

Mrs. J. R. Gullede, who presided at the brief business session, which preceded the address, presented Miss Brock.

During the social hour which followed this delightfully informal program, the hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. W. J. Williams of Greensboro, served delicious homemade cookies and salted nuts with tea.

The chapter felt happy and honored to have Mrs. Williams and Miss Brock as special guests at this time. —Reported.

Senator Long also sent in a bill to prevent property owners from impounding waters and thereby creating malarial hazards and a measure to provide that a marriage license may be issued to a person passing a medical examination within 30 days after the examination was made. # HOSPITAL BILL IS NOW READY

Would Provide Crash Tax To Pay Hospitalization

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Dr. T. W. M. Long, senator from Halifax, last night was putting the finishing touches on a revised version of the "ash tax" hospitalization bill which last session occasioned one of the hardest fights in the senate, and expected to introduce it today or tomorrow.

The current version differs from the session only in minor details. The essential requirement of a fifty cents additional charge on every automobile license tag to provide a fund for paying hospital bills of victims of automobile accidents is the same.

The measure last year ran head-on into a powerful insurance company lobby, and the fate of the bill may be very similar. Insurance men, even those who do not believe it is a step toward full insurance. It is for the same reason that insurance interests have insisted that the proposed state employee's retirement be changed to limit investments of retirement funds to the same items available for the state sinking fund, rather than to open up the same investments available for insurance companies.

One major point of difference in the 1941 Long bill and that introduced two years ago, is that hospital payments from the fund in the current bill are limited to a maximum of $3 per day for 21 days. The former bill limited the amount to $250. This concession makes the somewhat more palatable, but the opinion of insurance men is to make it a good bill.

In brief the Long bill provides a charge of 50 cents to be added to every license tag for passenger vehicles, this amount to accumulate into the North Carolina Highway Accident Hospitalization fund. As soon as this fund reaches $10,000 the governor of the state is to proclaim that fact and benefits may be collected under it. At the time the state treasurer deems the surplus in the fund to be in excess of need, the balance may be turned into the general fund account of the state. The treasurer is to be sole judge of when that point is reached.

After the plan is put into full operation, any victim of an automobile accident, if a resident of North Carolina, may call upon it to help pay hospital bills incident to the wreck. All beneficiaries under the fund must be certified by the welfare departments of their home counties, and if the patients are indigent, the fund may be drawn upon for the full cost of hospital treatment. In the case of others than paupers or indigents, the fund will pay a maximum of $63, leaving the patient to pay (or owe) the balance.

Sponsors of the bill contend that hospitals are grossly imposed upon by the necessity of caring for accident victims brought to them under emergency conditions, and that fund will only partially right long time wrong.

Attention to it comes mostly private casualty insurance interests and from the conservative which resists all steps toward hospitalization. Some doctors, not finally interested in hospitals, because they see in this step toward socialization of medicine as well as of insurance, is some opposition also on ground that the act imposes a heavy load of work on county welfare departments in a field not directly associated with public welfare. A hard fight is ahead for the measure.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
New York.—If P. G. Wodehouse is ever up against it for a title for one of his books I will recommend one to him. It is a line that appeared on page six of the Sunday book section of the New York Times, and it said, simply, "Wodehouse As Usual."

This was the heading the editor had placed over the Times' own review of Mr. Wodehouse's newest novel, "Quick Service," written while under the "protective custody" of Nazi concentration camp officials and just published. The line suggested that here was the same Wodehouse everyone has always known and if this be so, then there is fine precedent for appropriating the line for some future book.

I have in mind a similar experience by a colleague of his—Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, whose most recent volume of short stories was brought out some months ago by Doubleday, Doran and Company. "When my last volume of short stories was published," Mr. Maugham recalled in a foreword to the book "The Times (London) headed their review with the title 'The Mixture As Before.' This of course was meant in a depreciatory sense but I did not take it as such and so I have made so bold as to use it for the collection which I am now inviting the public to read. After perusing the art of fiction for over forty years I have a notion that I know a good deal more about it than most people. In that long period I have seen a number of bright stars creep shyly over the horizon, travel across the sky to burn for a while in midheaven with dazzling effulgence, and then dwindle into an obscurity from which there is little likelihood that they will ever emerge again. The writer has his special communication to make which when you come to analyze it is the personality with which he is endowed by nature, and during the early years of his activity he is groping in the dark to express it, then, if he is fortunate, he succeeds in doing this, and if there is in his personality a certain abundance he may continue for a long time to produce work which is varied and characteristic. . . . He is wise to watch warily for the signs which will indicate to him that, having had his say, it behooves him to resign himself to silence. . . . He must be content, he must rejoice even, if a new work which he tenders to the public shows no falling off; if in fact, it can truthfully be called "The Mixture As Before."

FLYING FOR ENGLAND

Men of the R. A. F.: What their jobs are like is told by a British pilot's diary.

AP Feature Service
This begins a four-part series of excerpts from the diary of a Royal Air Force fighter pilot. The diary ends abruptly after fifteen entries—for the pilot was shot down and killed in combat. Before he met his death, this anonymous youth had destroyed six German aircraft, damaged a number of others, and had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry. The diary was made public by the British air ministry.

First Day—(Sept. 2, 1940). First day at our new station. Leapt from our virgin couches at 0650. This shook me a bit. Was still slightly dozy when at 15,000 feet we sighted a large lump of blitz. Solid block of 20 Dornier 215s with a large fighter escort. Attacked en masse then dived away as fighters came down. Joined Butch again after a frantic tail-watching break-away, and started after the bombers again.

Suddenly we see a Dornier coming towards us—running for home. We jump on it—Butch sits on its tail, pumping lead at it. I do quarter attacks. He doesn't like this. Lumps fall off and smoke pours out. I am awake now and feeling hungry.

"Butch" says "Don't waste any more ammunition on him; this guy's finished." I say "Okay Bud" and formate on the Dornier as he heads for Rochford (small town in Essex). He is a wreck—rudders in ribbons and pieces falling off all the time. One guy comes out at 100 feet. Parachute streams as he hits the ground—bounces. Butch and I are very cocky, go home and shoot a horrid line.
("Shooting a line" is R. A. F. slang for boasting of one's exploits).
Two more quick sorties, seeing nothing, and then more blitzing on the fourth day. We run into a whole pile of Messerschmitt 110s and Dorniers. Too far to attack the bombers, so we start mixing it with the 110s. They circle and a lot come down vertically behind us.
I lose Butch and everyone else as I turn round and round, watching my tail. Then a 110 rears up in front of me, plain view, and does a steep turn.
Range is almost pointblank as I turn inside and plug him. He disappears under my nose and, when I see him again, he is diving vertically, starboard engine and wing blazing.

I feel very cocky again, look for the light and find it is out of sight. I go home and find that I've fired 300 rounds.
Next: "I leave him to burn."

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES
Two decades ago, Rector's was the cross roads where glittering names from the Great White Way and Park Avenue dowagers outstared each other as they consumed a special ham for which Rector's were famous. Today, believe it or not, a child of ten can prepare a ham more tender and of far better flavor. All said child has to do is to heat a WILSON'S TENDER MADE HAM, in a moderate oven (350° F.) five minutes per pound. The succulent, melt-in-your-mouth result is all due to the Wilson's secret process.

George Rector Food Consultant, Wilson & Co.
NEW "HAM AND SWEETS" RECIPE
Boil and mash 5 medium sized sweet potatoes. Add salt, butter, milk, and 2 tablespoons of orange juice. Cover a slice of Wilson's Tender Made Ham with this sweet potato mixture, and top with another slice of ham. Dot with Clear Brook Butter. Heat in 325° F. oven until the ham is a delicate brown.

MOR NOT TOO SPICY... NOT TOO MILD That's why folks like MOR.
MOR, of course, is that delicious, new, spiced, cured, pork shoulder meat made by the makers of Tender Made Ham. It's perfect for sandwiches, cold cuts, quick bakes, or to fry with eggs.

Try these with Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage-Links
Prepare potatoes for scalloping. Prick sausages and lay on top. Cover and bake till potatoes are tender. Remove cover to brown sausages.

HUNCH FOR LUNCH
When you've been up to your ears all morning with housework and suddenly you hear the children clattering up the steps, remember the can of Wilson's Certified Chili Con Carne on the pantry shelf. It takes just a minute to heat, and if you get the kind with beans, you have a complete meal for them and for you.

For smiles at breakfast, try serving him the new Wilson's Certified Family Style Sliced Bacon, in the handy 2-pound package. It's cut from lean young porkers, given that rich smoke cure, then sliced to be-man thickness and packed, upright, back on the rind. The result is a "stay-fresh," sliced bacon.
Good to keep on hand for breakfast, lunch or dinner.

I will be with you again (as they say on the radio) at the same time, same place, next week. G. R.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Crucifixions Rightly Taken
A man who felt he was not receiving proper recognition and not being promoted as fast as he should be, cried out in desperation to a friend, "These fellows are crucifying me. They have put me on a cross." "Yes," replied his friend, "You are on a cross all right, but you are not dead yet. You're still wriggling."

The friend who made this observation was one who had thought deeply about spiritual matters, and he knew that crosses lead to salvation when people take them in the right spirit. There were three men put on crosses in one day on a hill called Golgotha. One cried out against his cross and railed on Jesus saying, "If thou be the Son of God, save thyself and us." But the other malefactor and the Lord Jesus both took their crosses without protest. We are told that the thief went that day to Paradise, and we know through 2000 years of Christian experience that in the cross of Christ abides all human salvation.

Crucifixion is a terrible and hopeless thing if we cry out and protest against it. Crucifixion if rightly taken is the beginning of all things good and substantial for the soul.

BE THERE

Your attendance at the President's Birthday Ball tonight will add some crippled child to be able to walk and dance in the future. The proceeds of the dance will be devoted to aiding infantile paralysis sufferers. It is a most worthy cause and deserves the support of all our people.

A WISE PLAN

According to recently published reports, Dennis Dupree, Pitt County Negro farm agent, is doing a good job with his live-at-home program among the farmers of his race. Such a plan is vital to both races in this community and every encouragement should be given both white and Negro farmers to carry out such a program.

DEFENSE SHOULD COME FIRST

Congressman Carl Vinson of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, is sponsoring a bill in Congress that would make strikes and lockout illegal in industries working on national defense orders. Under the terms of the bill all grievances between employees and employers would be submitted to special government committees and no strike or lockout could become effective under 50 to 80 days, during which time the industry must continue at full speed without slowdowns. Violations of the law would carry heavy fines and jail sentences.

In view of the number of labor disputes springing up from day to day that are hindering our defense program and our plans for aiding Britain, we believe that the measure is all important at this time and should be given speedy approval by Congress. The future safety of our way of life depends upon everyone being willing at this time to make his or her sacrifice for our defense and no individual or group should be permitted to delay or stall our program. Complete unity is vital if freedom and democracy are to survive.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — I don't know much about Albania — few people around here do — but I do know that it has at least one white elephant. Because it is owned by the U.S.A. This particular white elephant is the $112,000 American legation. At the time of its opening 10 years ago it was the finest building not only in Tirana, the capital, but the finest in all Albania, not excepting King Zog's palace. By the time Italy took over, however, King Zog had started a summer palace at Durazzo. This was to cost about $300,000. After the king's hasty departure, the Fascists completed the palace. It was to be King Victor Emmanuel's Albanian residence and it is to be expected that in splendor it outdoes the legation building. When the Durazzo palace was completed, however, the legation was out of competition, closed, boarded up maybe with a sign on its brass knocker, reading "The American minister to Albania is out. Don't know when he will be back."

The 12-room brick-and-stucco legation was built during the regime of Minister Charles C. Hart.

Roomy Rooms. "Going out to select the site. It is not right in town. After I had completed the transfer, the water problem arose. We had to sink a well. We went down 86 feet at which point, the drill, instead of bringing up water, brought up chunks of 'Nebuchadnezzar brick' — a type of building stone used by the Persians more than 2,000 years ago. We finally got water but it was a hard job."

The fact that the building has only 12 rooms is a little misleading, because the rooms are large. There is one combination sunroom and dining salon which is 52 feet long and about 20 wide. It was the room used when the house-warming banquet, one of Tirana's historic social events, attended even by King Zog, was held in 1930.

Construction of the building was no slight task. It took more than two years. Hardwood oak floors, cut to dimensions, were shipped from the United States. So was all the plumbing, with pipes cut to blueprint lengths. So were the legation's six bath tubs, which, with the two in the legation secretary's house were almost the only bath tubs in all Albania.

There's a marble stairway that sweeps up from the entrance hall. At one time, the legation was beautifully furnished.

Plumbing Lessons. Hart's reports on progress of the building, now in the state department files, are classics of humor, detailing as they do, in a style learned from years of newspaper work in Washington, every difficulty that had to be circumvented. The legation was Hart's pride and joy. He nursed it through the short, fierce winters that blast their way down from the mountains. He worked and conferred with native labor, trying to convey all of the refinements of modern American architecture and particularly plumbing to the Albanians.

"Don't get the idea that the Albanians never take baths. They just don't take them in a bath tub," Hart explains. "They use public baths, like many other peoples in that section of the world."

However, the American legation pointed a way to a fuller life and until it was closed in 1939 was an inspiration to many of the wealthier Albanians to do their bathing in the privacy of their own homes.

The state department is not worrying about the legation. Time and the tides of war probably will crystallize the matter into a problem some day. But until then, the United States' white elephant with its six fine bath tubs, will continue to be just an Albino pachyderm.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Jan. 30 — So many Representatives expressed an abiding abhorrence of the right of eminent domain when the bus station site bill was before the House that it's going to be rather interesting to see how many of them remain consistent in this attitude when a Conservation and Development backed bill comes up for action.

This measure, put into the hopper by Carroll P. Rogers of Polk, the conservation and development committee chairman, gives the right of eminent domain to the department — to acquire by condemnation — such areas of land in different sections of the state as may in the opinion of the department

Not So Good. Despite the fact that he called upon most of them in their home counties while he was running, Speaker Oduh Mull isn't nearly so good at recognizing House members as was either Gregg Cherry or Libby Ward.

Almost always one of the House clerks prompts the Shelby legislator when some one bobs up to address the chair; and even then there are numerous mistakes.

Wednesday, for instance, Beverly C. Moore of Guilford, was dubbed "The Gentleman from Forsyth." The Greensborougher didn't seem to like it much, but he said nothing — just sent up his bill.

Where Will Highways Get Money? Chairman Frank Dunlap suggested to the joint roads committee that something ought to be done to allow the highway commission or somebody to borrow money for state road work. He called attention to existing statutes limiting now bonds to two-thirds of debt payments. He asked what will happen when the state has paid all its debts — consumption more rapidly approaching than many folks realize. Unquestionably if no debts are paid, no bonds can be issued. It was just something he thought the law makers ought to know about.

Honest Man? or Lonesome? The exuberant and irrepressible Bob Little, clerk of court of Anson county, was making the rounds of the highway building. Someone asked him how he felt. "Fine as ever in my life," he said. "I am an honest man in Raleigh. Why shouldn't I feel good?"

They would be permitted with some restrictions up to nine o'clock, but thereafter all would be quiet.

Governor Doughton Honored The Senate yesterday accorded every possible courtesy to former Lieutenant Governor Rufus A. Doughton, except to have a chair placed on the floor for him. Speaker Mull went that far, and the distinguished and beloved "old man of the mountains" was given a round of applause.

Chapter 26 Warren's Report "And let's talk about something else," said Polly.

"No, I've made up my mind you ought to marry David Wiley, and get it over with. If you keep on fooling around like this, you'll lose him. Mark my words!"

"Listen, Aunt Susan," said Polly "if David's that easily lost, I don't want him. If he can't wait until he's in a better position to have a wife, why, he—he—can go sit on a tack!"

"Piffle and nonsense!" said Aunt Susan. "I mind a couple I knew way back when I was a girl, who got married on twenty dollars a month and were perfectly happy. And they didn't starve, either."

"Twenty dollars then was practically the equivalent of one hundred dollars today," said Polly. "So, there!"

"So there yourself," said Aunt Susan. "You're a stubborn, willful girl!"

"If you're so strong for marrying on empty pocketbooks," said Polly, "why didn't you ever marry Aunt Susan?"

"The only man who ever asked me," said Aunt Susan, "got thrown from his horse. I've told you that before. John Mason was his name. He was a mighty nice man, too—but I—I lost him."

"Weren't there others?" "Yes, but none of them cared about me except as a sister or a cousin or something. And none of them came up to what John was. Polly hung up the dish towel.

"Well, living in the past doesn't do any good, Aunt Susan," she said. "Let's go out and work on those rose bushes while it's still light. Those dratted little insects we're trying to eliminate certainly do multiply. Sometimes I'm convinced the spray works on them like a tonic."

Aunt Susan put away her favorite coffee cup.

"Mebbe living in the past don't do any good," she said, "but if folks showed more sense in planning their futures, they'd have a lot nicer past to talk about."

"That," laughed Polly, "sounds exactly like an epigram!"

"She picked up a small tin sprayer and went out through the hall. Presently Aunt Susan followed her."

The Spring It was only a three-hour train ride over to Portsmouth, so Warren McNeill was able to make it there and back in a day. He got back to Ardendale late that evening. And as soon as he had finished his dinner at the hotel, he walked out to the Wiley cottage.

David and Peter had just gotten back from the Inn.

"Hello, there!" David said. "Let me get my pipe. Sit down and light up."

"Peter gone to bed?" Warren asked.

"He's going there," David said. "He was all in. We got the fountain to working, and his enthusiasm for the gushing water wore him down."

Warren sat down in a low rocker and stretched out his legs. When David re-joined him, he had his pipe going. David lit his.

"Now," he said, "let's have it. What's the verdict? What did the laboratory test show?"

"Nothing especially exciting," said Warren. "I'm afraid the water's not of any special service so far as infantile paralysis victims are concerned. But it does have some rather good curative qualities."

"Good for the liver?" Warren nodded. "Yes, and for a general toning up." He grinned. "No need my using all the medical terms the laboratory man put into the report. They'd sound like a lot of Chinese. However, he thinks we have a valuable property in the spring."

"Does he think it's worth advertising, investing money in it?" "Yes."

"But that doesn't lessen your interest in making the old Inn into a sanatorium, does it?" "Certainly not," said Warren. "I'm as enthusiastic as ever. After all, if swimming and sunshine and drinking the water from your spring have helped make Peter well, they can do the same thing for others."

"And you still want to go on with our planning?" "You bet I do!"

"Now," said David a bit sadly, "all we need is for me to dig up two thousand."

"Yes," said Warren. "But don't be discouraged. We'll go ahead working out at the Inn just as you've been doing. I'll pitch in and help you and Peter all I can. At least we can get the place to looking spry."

"Goah," Warren," David said. "You're one swell fellow."

"So are you, David," Warren held out his hand. "Let's shake for luck."

They fell silent for a time after that.

It was Warren who finally broke the silence between them.

"I'll want to keep busy," he said. "Every minute of the day, and far into the night, I'll help me keep from thinking too much about the night-have-beens with Margo."

"I'm sorry about her," David said. "But maybe she'll change her mind again. Women do that, you know."

"Yes, I know," said Warren. "Anyway, all I can do is hope, while I dig in and work like the devil."

"Well, I reckon we've got something else in common, all right," said David. "Polly's also keeping me waiting. She's still determined not to marry until I'm on my feet. Heck! I used to thank girls married men's for they could encourage and help them."

"I guess a lot of men have thought that, David."

"I thought they married the men they loved, and helped them make their fortunes," David continued. "Not sat around waiting for the fortunes to be made first."

"That," said Warren, "was back in the horse and buggy days we talked about the other night."

"Then I'm like you," said David. "I wish I had lived then—instead of now."

Presently Warren got up.

"I think I'll go back to the hotel and turn in," he said. "I feel a little weary—sort of low in my mind."

"Don't forget all you told me about one's state of mind affecting one physically!" said David. "You can't afford to get down, now that we're going to push our plans to the limit."

"I'll buck up," said Warren. "If it's a case of 'physician, heal thyself,' I'll do my best."

"If you want to use my little rattletrap tomorrow, David offered, "you're welcome to it. Maybe you and Peter could do some digging out at the Inn while I'm working at the lumber plant."

"Good!" said Warren. "I'll use it, by all means."

"And when you get back," said David, "you're to come straight here for supper. We'll have something like scrambled eggs and ham. Did you ever eat any genuine North Carolina sugar cured ham. Warren?"

"No," said Warren. "But I've heard about it."

"Well, you'll find out that it's all it's cracked up to be. Come here for supper—and ham you shall have."

"Okay, on one condition." "What's that?" "That you let me help."

"To many cooks might spoil the ham," laughed David. "No, you can be company. I'm counting on you."

"I'll be here," Warren promised. "And I'll bring an appetite with me." He went down the steps attended to out at the Inn?

"No, unless you want to finish pulling those honeysuckle vines out of the upstairs blinds," said David. "Right," said Warren.

"Then with a cheery, "Good night," he went down the walk, and out into the street."

In Walks Margo David was busy assisting the bookkeeper on Friday when Margo Powers came in.

"Hello, David!" she said. "Will you be leaving soon?"

"I'm afraid not," David told her. "I may even have to come back tonight and work. We're pretty well overwhelmed." He smiled at her. "That dad of yours has a fast-growing business on his hands, in case you didn't know it."

"Oh, I know it, all right," said Margo. "He told me at great length how he was giving employment to many men who need it, and all that sort of thing. But since I'm leaving Ardendale tomorrow, I thought you might get into my car and let me drive you out to the Inn for a farewell visit."

"Going away?" said David. "Where?"

Margo told him. "After all, a girl has to get some fun out of life," she added. She watched David closely, remembering how she had hoped that Warren McNeill's arrival in town would make him show more interest in her, and admitting to herself that it hadn't worked out that way at all. "I don't know when I'll be coming back—that is to stay. Can't you break a rule or something, and come with me?" "Sorry," said David. "I can't." He walked to the office door with the girl. "It's too bad you don't feel you can stay in Ardendale. I thought you and Warren would come to an understanding, and—"

Highway Needs Outlined By Commission Chairman

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Appearing before the first joint meeting of senate and house road committees yesterday, Chairman Frank Dunlap of the Highway and Public Works Commission, emphasized the need for a minimum of fifty million dollars to bring the state's system of primary roads up to standard, and declared that any further digging into highway revenue would be at the expense of secondary roads. He pointed out that certain fixed charges are levied by statute against highway revenue, such as bond and interest payments, maintenance of primary roads, parole and probation systems and the highway patrol. What money is left after these things are paid for is allocated by the governor to secondary roads.

made reports complete, whereas they are not complete in any other state. "Unless some one is killed," he said, "many states do not even record the accident. And in some states if it is a Negro who gets killed they just forget about it."

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

HOLLYWOOD... MM
Hollywood.—The theme of this story is growing old. It can be and is told over and over—the same plot with different heroes or heroines. Last week the hero was Tony Martin. This week it's Phil Regan. Next week, or the week after that it'll be somebody else.

It's a formula plot, to be sure. Hero leaves Hollywood; no hero. Hero goes on the road, sings—or dances, or stands on his head, whatever his specialty is—and wows 'em. He wows 'em so thoroughly that somebody from Hollywood hears about it, rushes up with a contract and sends the conquering hero back to the movies.

Tony found his dotted line bouquet in Miami; Phil found his in Chicago. Tony is doing his stuff in "iegfeld Girl"; Phil his in "Las Vegas Nights." Both are booked ahead for other pictures; for both the future is rosy.

Phil, who used to work at Warner's and then at Republic, has a whole year's work cut out for him this time at Paramount. With the new contract, he's moved his wife and four youngsters from Pasadena to Beverly Hills—the old Ruth Etting house.

Phil is something of a movieland wonder. At 34, he's the papa of a thriving family. The fact was concealed when he was at Warner's. They didn't want their "singing cop" to be labelled a family man especially the papa of a quartet. This led to so many complications that all the Regans, including Phil,

Developments On Two African War Fronts

British and Italian forces are fighting on two African fronts more than 1,500 miles apart. These maps illustrate developments. Top, while part of the British force in Libya thrusts at Derna (A), other British troops were reported spearheading the direction of Bengasi in a westward movement (B). Bottom, British claimed their drive toward the Agordat-Massaua railroad has now advanced 80 miles since the recapture of Kassala and is now approaching Agordat (1). Other British forces were described as having penetrated (2) to a point 38 miles southwest of Agordat. Cairo reports said Italians were retreating from Umm Hagar and their lines of withdrawal appear to be leading them (3) into Ethiopia. The British also claimed to be pressing (4) Italians in the Metemma area of Ethiopia.

were downright happy when the truth came out. There was a time when such a revelation would have knocked a romantic singer's career haywire, but Phil says that it helped. Fans tell him they like the idea. So does Phil. He also likes the idea of early marriage—he was 17, his bride 16, when they were knotted. He's twice as old now, and the present Mrs. Regan is the original Mrs. Regan.

Phil, now that he's back, has a notion that the studios ought to do something to encourage vaudeville if they want to eliminate the "double feature" from theaters. "It used to be," he recalls, "that vaudeville players had to take a cut when they played small towns—

BIG COMPANIES STILL IN LEAD

Hold Advantage In Rural Electrification Field

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERELL
Raleigh, Jan. 29.—Despite energetic efforts of the Federal Rural Electrification Administration in North Carolina within recent years the state's two big privately-owned utility companies are still far in the lead in the matter of both rural electric mileage and customers in North Carolina.

The Duke Power Company and the Carolina Power and Light Company had, between them, 55 per cent of the rural power lines built in North Carolina up to January 1, 1941, and 65 per cent of the rural customers served by rural lines, according to the annual report of the state Rural Electrification Authority.

The figures show that of 22,136.48 miles of rural lines built, 12,294.81 miles were by the two power companies (Duke 8,162.76, Carolina 4,132.05), while of 123,541 customers, 80,982 were served by the two concerns (Duke 58,404, Carolina 22,578).

In all there were operating in the rural electrification field 14 utility companies, 30 municipalities, 31 units backed by the Federal REA and the Tennessee Valley Authority, which has a negligible 25 miles of line in North Carolina.

Intensification of the Federal REA drive is very clearly indicated by the statistics on lines building or authorized. Here the utilities lag far behind, with only 90.27 miles under construction and 184.50 authorized, against 2,420.10 building and 2,179.09 authorized by the Federal REA through cooperatives.

been closed to the point where the utilities will have only about half the total mileage.

CLUB TO HONOR PRESIDENT CELEBRATE DEBT CLEARANCE

The club's appreciation of Mrs. Moore for her years of continuous and unselfish work in making the Woman's club of Greenville what it is today. The portrait was recently painted for the club by Mrs. C. W. Hearne of this city and will be given a permanent place over the large mantle in the assembly room of the city building. The members are particularly proud of the fact that every club member had a share in making the painting of the portrait possible.

The sliding glass doors looking out on a terrace are not the only features making for freedom of perspective and movement in this dining-living room, the design for which won a first prize for Margaret Timmel of New York in the 1941 contest sponsored by the American Institute of Decorators. Dining space is adjacent to kitchen and sliding serving door opens on a convenient shelf near the table. Fireplace serves the entire room. Radiator (flush with wall) and book shelves are convenient to built-in couch. Note desk (work area) at extreme right and modern conservatory behind glass panels giving mural effect at extreme left. Except for desk lamp, all lights are set in the ceiling.

New Hanover Folks Versed In Tele-graphic Pressure

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Folks in New Hanover county are obviously versed in the application of telegraphic pressure to their Representatives. For two days the desk of John R. Morris, one of the two New Hanover House members has been covered with telegrams from constituents—all of them practically identical in form. Not less than a score a day have been received.

BACON-TAMALES MAKE JIFFY APPETIZERS

EVERY YEAR we become more and more snack-conscious until now it is almost possible to feed a guest from soup to nuts in bite-size portions! In preparing these diminutive viands, the prospective hostess need not spend hours and hours in fusing and fixing. Her guests will be just as satisfied with tasty tidbits that take no longer to make than they do to eat. To make the attractive array shown here, one needs only family style bacon, a can of certified hot tamales, and a sugar-loaf cabbage. Family style is certified quality bacon that comes sliced slightly thicker, the way men like it, and comes in convenient, economical two-pound packages. Packed on the rind to protect the flavor and freshness you find only when you buy bacon by the whole piece.

Unwrap the hot tamales and cut each in four or five pieces. Wrap each piece in half a strip of this popular bacon, and fasten with a toothpick. Just before serving, place under the grill and broil until bacon is brown and crisp, turning once or twice. Impale the appetizers at once on the cabbage (which may appear the next day as cole slaw) and garnish the platter with stuffed olives and rinsed roses. This dish fits in with luncheon, dinner or late evening hospitality.

STATE FAILING TO GET SHARE AT DUMP HEAP

Not Matching Federal Funds For Vocational Training
Reflector Bureau, By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 30.—While North Carolina's Congressional delegation grows hot under the collar because "North Carolina isn't getting its share of defense spending," more than a half million dollars of federal money is going begging in the state because North Carolina has not provided funds enough to set up even the simplest sort of vocational trade training shops in its public schools.

Here are the facts. Months ago the Congress appropriated $15,000,000 to be used in training skilled craftsmen in industries essential to the national defense. North Carolina's proportionate share of the sum was $300,000.

The state was not required to match any of these funds, but it was provided that no new shops could be set up with Uncle Sam's money. Where there were shops, even of the simplest, worst-equipped sort, funds could be used not only for instructional service, but to "supplement" existing equipment.

When this money became available, the vocational division immediately set out to take advantage of it. A field representative was sent all over the state to pick sites for the schools. T. E. Browne, the vocational division head, thought that there would be at the very least a dozen or more schools in which the new classes could be established.

But when the situation had been fully and completely canvassed, it was found that only five cities in the state had even the minimum shop setup required to meet the very liberal requirements of the federal act. They were Canton, Greensboro, Durham, Wilmington and Charlotte.

And so it turned out that North Carolina was able to use only about ten per cent of the $300,000 the federal government was not only willing, but anxious that it should spend on these defense industry classes.

For the next fiscal year the federal appropriation for these same classes all over the country will amount to $26,000,000, of which North Carolina could get, for the simple asking, $500,000. By virtue of exercising all manner of diligence, it is now possible that this state will be able to find use for about $100,000 of this sum.

Of the "tragic effect" of North Carolina's failure to provide sufficient funds for vocational education, the brief submitted to the appropriation committee by Mr. Browne for the vocational educational division said:

"Approximately a million and a

Would Remove Un-sightly Yards By Boost In Taxes

Reflector Bureau, By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Jan. 30.—Senator A. B. Palmer of Cabarrus introduced an amendment to the Revenue act calling for the imposition of thumping big taxes, but he frankly says he hopes it produces no revenue at all.

He took aim at unsightly automobile graveyards which now clutter up the roadsides from one end of North Carolina to the other. His bill is a double-barreled barrage at them by the medium of taxes which are frankly hoped to be prohibitive.

At present there is no classification of junk yards, all going together for the purpose of taxation. The highest levy on any junk yard or dealer is now $125 annually—that in cities of more than 30,000.

Senator Palmer's bill would pay half dollars of this fund (provided by the federal government) could be spent on training North Carolina citizens for skilled and semi-skilled jobs if we only had the shops and equipment in our schools.... In this national emergency we have been caught unprepared. Should we not act at once to try to prevent the continuation of this injustice to North Carolina youth by making more liberal provision for vocational education; at least to the extent of paying one-third the cost of the program of vocational education in our schools?"

The Advisory Budget Commission has recommended a state appropriation of $400,000 for the first year of the coming biennium and $450,000 for the second. The vocational education division is asking $650,000 for the first year and $760,000 for the second.

As yet there has been no definite indication of what the appropriations committee will recommend, but it does appear that a substantial increase over the budget figures is highly probable.

no attention to the size of the locality in which the junk yard is located.

Distance from the highway is his sole condition for graduation of taxation.

Under the bill any operator of "what is commonly known as an automobile junk yard where wrecked, burned or worn out automobiles and trucks and/or parts are stored collected and kept for the purpose of sale, barter or exchange, would pay:
