U. S. - MEXICAN PACT APPEARS AS CERTAINTY

A Good Neighbor Agreement To Be Signed Very Soon

EVERY PROBLEM TO BE SETTLED

All-Inclusive Pact to Settle Economic and Financial Questions Outstanding at Present Time

Washington, Feb. 6. (AP)—The United States and Mexico, it was learned authoritatively today, expect to sign a comprehensive "good neighbor" agreement in the very near future, settling all major economic and financial questions now outstanding.

The pact, it was understood, will provide for a general all-inclusive disposition of "every problem between the two nations." A number of the points involved have been pending for several years and involve millions of dollars.

The formulae for the agreement were worked out by Undersecretary of State Welles and Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican ambassador. They were said to have concentrated on a lump settlement rather than a piece-meal disposition of numerous claims and counter claims arising from the oil expropriation, agrarian expropriation and other controversial questions.

Final arrangements for the pact probably will follow the return of the Mexican ambassador here Friday after conference with his foreign office in Mexico City.

One of the major questions scheduled to be settled arose in 1938 from the Mexican government's expropriation of American, British and Dutch owned properties valued by the oil companies at from $400,000,000 to $440,000,000.

Assembly Honors Dr. T. W. M. Long

By Staff Correspondent GARYSBURG, Feb. 5.—The little village was host today to what is perhaps the biggest number of people ever to assemble in its boundaries, including most members of the General Assembly and many state officials led by the governor all come to join with old neighbors and boyhood friends in doing honor to the memory of "Dr. Tom" Occasion. What Dr. Long was known as, was the funeral of State Senator T. W. M. Long, who more than 30 years ago began the practice of medicine here.

Among the high ranking and great there mingled a number of Negroes, who equaled more opulent friends in sincere tribute to the man who was, unsought and against his will, the star of the day. What Dr. Long was worth in money none seemed to know or care. Perhaps the most frequent expression heard was that he didn't care about money. At the risk of sounding a discordant note, it may be stated that many of those coming to Garysburg today enjoyed the trip. The occasion which brought them was deplored, but members of the assembly from far distant counties had never before seen that part of the state traversed on the trip and to and from Raleigh, and a number of cars planned different routing back so that the westerners might see more of the middle-eastern section of North Carolina.

Company Holding Millions of Dollars in National Defense Orders May Be Tied Up By Labor Dispute; No Progress Reported in Other Plants Engaged in U. S. Defense Program

(By The Associated Press) The huge Ford Motor Company, which holds millions of dollars in national defense orders, faced an implied strike threat today from the CIO United Automobile Workers.

"Any necessity of a strike," at the Ford plants, can be avoided by "sincere negotiations" on five union demands made yesterday, declared a statement by R. J. Thomas, United Automobile Workers president, and Michael F. Widman, Jr., director of the company at Highland Park and River Rouge, Mich.

Ford spokesmen said they would not take the trouble to reply to the union, which asked wage increases, acceptance of the principle of seniority and an immediate bargaining conference for employees of the company at Highland Park and River Rouge, Mich.

There are 85,000 Ford production workers in the Detroit area.

On other labor fronts affecting the defense program this was the situation:

Seven thousand employees of the Allis-Chalmers Company in Milwaukee, Wis., and 6,500 at the International Harvester Co. tractor plant at Chicago remained out on strike with no apparent progress made toward settlement of the dispute. Allis-Chalmers has some $40,000,000 in defense contracts.

At a LaCrosse, Wis., rubber plant, 800 CIO unionists walked out yesterday, contending the company had violated seniority rules.

A second strike in two weeks stopped production of freight cars by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company at Michigan City, Ind. An American Federation of Labor union spokesman said the company refused to consider a grievance committee's demands.

Settlement Hurls Many Out Of Bed

West Pittston, Pa., Feb. 6.—(AP) At least 20 families were thrown from their beds and half a dozen streets were damaged early today by a surface settlement affecting a three-block area in this eastern Pennsylvania community.

The settlement was preceded by a loud rumbling noise. Cracks as deep as 20 inches appeared in some streets. Gas and water mains were broken and some residents were ordered from their homes until the gas could be turned off.

The community, with a population of about 8,000, is in the heart of Pennsylvania's coal fields and the affected area is underlined with mines.

FARM MARKET BILL APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Would Establish Centers Throughout North Carolina

WINE MEASURES ARE CONSIDERED

Group Votes Support For Tobacco Provision in Lend-Lease Bill Upon Request of B. B. Sugg

Raleigh, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The joint legislative committee on Agriculture favorably reported today on the Broughton-backed bill to provide a state-wide system of public marketing centers.

The committee also adopted a resolution directing that the congressional delegation be telegraphed a request to have tobacco included in the provisions of the lend-lease bill now under debate in Congress.

Evidence of the opposition by many House members to granting the right of eminent domain to agencies not having it was shown when an amendment to the marketing bill eliminating a provision granting the right to condemn sites for markets was carried.

George Ross, marketing expert of the Agriculture department, explained the marketing bill briefly and said it would permit farmers to lump their produce at marketing centers so it could be sold to the army or other big buyers who make purchases on a bid basis.

B. B. Sugg of Greenville, representing the Farm Bureau and Eastern Carolina Tobacco Warehousemen's Association appeared before the committee and requested the action on tobacco, which was approved. He pointed out that British firms in peace-time bought much North Carolina tobacco.

The joint sub-Finance committee considering wine regulatory measures got a substitute proposal from Senator Brooks of Durham to give county commissioners the power to ban sales of fortified wines in their counties and to limit the sale of liquor to "A" grade retail places in incorporated municipalities.

The committee discussed the proposal along with the Reynolds-Quinn bill to limit the sale of liquor to the 26 counties with liquor stores.

The substitute would prohibit any "needed" wines, but would permit fortification of natural wines with brandy of the same type that is grape brandy to strengthen grape wine, up to a strength of 20 per cent.

No action was taken, though members said they thought a compromise could be worked out.

Lindbergh Declares U.S. Encouraging, Prolonging War By Aiding Britain

Asserts Before Committee Considering Lend-Lease Bill That This Nation Is Increasing Bloodshed Without Materially Affecting Course; Says British Victory Or Defeat Not In U. S. Control

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said today that by aiding Great Britain and other countries, the United States is "encouraging war, prolonging it and increasing bloodshed in Europe without materially affecting the course of the war."

Testifying in opposition to the administration's British aid bill before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Lindbergh said that if this country is ever invaded "the responsibility will lie with those who sent our arms abroad."

Under questioning by Senator Connally (D-Tex.) Lindbergh declared that the nation already was committed to giving Britain some aid. "We should keep our promises," he declared, then added: "I think it is very important that England not be beaten in war, but I don't think that is in American control."

Meanwhile, House supporters of the British aid bill smacked down the first amendment formally offered, a proposal to supplant the measure with one which would supply the aid from a $2,000,000,000 credit fund.

The proposal, by Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.), was beaten by a 206 to 145 vote. It was the first floor attempt to change the original bill.

Democratic members of the House Foreign Affairs committee agreed on an amendment to the bill to put a five-year limit on the President's power to make contracts under the legislation.

This extension of the contractual power three years beyond the proposed expiration date of the law, it was said, would permit the completion of large projects, warships for example.

The group also decided to sponsor another amendment reading "nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize or permit authorization of the entry of any American vessel into a combat area in violation of the neutrality act of 1939."

Preceding Lindbergh before the Senate group was Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. McCormick did not express an opinion on the legislation, but testified that he favored occupying British and French island possessions "by force" if that were necessary to prevent Germany from using them as bases for an attack on the United States.

N.C. Retirement System Debated On House Floor

Other Bills Get Attention In Busy Session

Raleigh, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The House debated the bill to provide a retirement system for all state employees, including school teachers, today as the legislature had perhaps its busiest day of the year.

Rep. Allen of Wake county, chairman of the House Education Committee, explained the retirement bill, which provides for joint contributions by employees and the state to provide pensions to persons 60 years of age or older.

School matters, including the retirement program, got much attention and a committee rejected a bill to provide a ninth month for schools.

The House adopted a joint resolution offered by Rep. Williams of Pasquotank calling for a special legislative session in Pasquotank county, probably about February 20.

The Moore bill to provide for the revocation of beer licenses of dealers who sell to intoxicated persons "by force" if that were necessary to prevent Germany from using them as bases for an attack on the United States.

PLANS STATED BY GUS FORBES

To Operate Gorman's Warehouse During 1941 Season

Gus Forbes, widely known and prominent tobacco warehouseman for many years, today announced that he had rented Gorman's warehouse and would operate it this fall with Yock Joyner and Harold Forbes as partners.

Mr. Forbes recently sold his interest in the Forbes and Morton warehouse to his partner, W. Z. Morton.

Mr. Forbes has been connected with the tobacco auction business for the past 22 years. He stated he had "given his best to the business during these years" and added "I will continue to give all I have." The veteran warehouseman declared that so far as he knew he was the only warehouseman in North Carolina who lives on a farm and said he really understood the problems of the farmer.

Gorman's warehouse is one of the best built to be found on the market. It is well lighted and is located conveniently for the farmer, being out of heavy traffic and the congested area.

In making his announcement, Mr. Forbes said he did not wish to reflect on any of his competitors. "My only desire is to sell tobacco at its highest price and give fair and just treatment to all."

Greeks Also Press Drive On Fascists

Italian Motorized Columns Retreating From Libyan Stronghold Where Marshal Graziani Had Been Expected to Offer Major Defense; Present Rate of Advance Would Put British at Gates in 48 Hours

By The Associated Press Panic-stricken Italian colonists were reported fleeing before the British in Premier Mussolini's dwindling North African empire today as aerial scouts told of seeing Fascist motorized columns withdrawing from Bengasi and Black-Shirt troops falling back post-haste on the East Libyan stronghold.

Fresh Greek successes in Albania announced in Athens plunged Italy's war effort into further gloom.

Dispatches from the Libyan desert battlefield said that General Sir Archibald P. Wavell's troops were pressing westward along the Mediterranean coast at a pace which would bring them to the gates of Bengasi within 48 hours.

Bengasi, 325 miles from the Egyptian border, had been heralded as the site for a probable major defense by Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's retreating armies. It was not immediately clear whether the withdrawal of motorized columns signaled abandonment of the town.

Latest reports put the British within 60 miles of Bengasi, sweeping forward at a 30-mile-a-day clip. In the Greek-Italian war, an Athens spokesman declared that the Greeks had smashed two Fascist counter attacks in the Adriatic coastal sector and that the Italians were falling back "in confusion, abandoning dead and wounded on the field of battle."

The Greeks said that Italian tank attacks had been frustrated and the Fascists had been driven from "positions of great strategic importance."

The British reported steady advances by their other armies, Africa's far-flung fronts—in Eritrea, in Ethiopia and in Italian Somaliland. South African troops were said to have driven 60 miles inside Somaliland.

In Eritrea, British forces are closing in on Cheren, important railroad town, British headquarters announced.

German bombers struck at London and southern England last night in a short, but intensive, raid. The British officially classed the attacks as light.

Bad weather cut short the German attacks and prevented the Royal Air Force from making any major raids over Germany, the British reported.

Dispatches to neutral Sweden from German-held Oslo asserted that all Norwegians more than 15 years old had been ordered to register in an effort to strengthen its control.

Street fighting and numerous arrests in western Norway had been reported in earlier dispatches and the new advisers said the German military had thrown a cordon around the district and was searching and questioning all who sought to enter.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Will Whedbee entertained the Clio Club at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson. Special guests for the afternoon were Mesdames Charles Whedbee, John Adams and Charles Woodward.

Mrs. Tom Rivers gave a paper on "The Progress of Civilization Through Scientific Invention," treating her subject in a very intelligent and interesting manner. In summary she said:

"Over smooth, hard roads, with speed far greater than that of horses, we move from place to place within our own land; in boats larger and more comfortable than the palaces of long ago, we cross oceans and circle the globe, and in airplanes we fly from country to country. With engines we work with more than the strength of giants; and with complicated machines we make brute matter act as though it were intelligent, doing surpassingly well the work of human hands. We have captured the spirit of lightning, making electricity illuminate homes, provide heat and power, bring to our ears the sounds of distant speech and laughter, and in the twinkling of an eye, carry messages around the world. With the magic of photography we keep alive faces and scenes of years ago, enshrine the loveliness of distant places, and make pictures move and talk for our instruction and entertainment. Our chemists, with more than the power of ancient alchemists, create substances which nature unaided does not provide. Our physicians successfully fight hidden sources of disease, and, without pain to their patients, cut deep into the body to relieve misfortune and put away danger. All this is a remarkable accomplishment of which we are justly proud. We have opened new worlds to conquer, and we know that still greater advances will come in the future."

A delightful sweet course, followed by delectable tasses, nuts and candies, was enjoyed by those present.

Sans Souci Club.
Mrs. J. H. Waldrop was a charming hostess to the Sans Souci Club Tuesday afternoon. The members were invited to come at three o'clock and upon arrival were served a most delightful dessert course with coffee.

Talent That Played Roxy New York Coming To The Pitt Theatre Stage

Miss Rene Boret, one of the famous Lucky Girls, renowned beauties appearing in Studio Scandals, large thirty-five people road show, featuring world famed talent just returned from a triumphant twenty thousand mile tour of Europe. This show features the same performers who appeared at the Roxy in New York City, and it will be presented here exactly as it was in New York. This great show, the first road show to play Greenville in years, plays the Pitt Theatre one day only Friday, February 7.

Some two years ago, the famous group of dancers known as the Lucky Girls, and other members of the cast, left for Europe. Critics in Europe's leading cities showered them with praise. But then came the war. They returned to the good old U. S. A., and upon arriving in New York, appeared at the famous Roxy Theatre. Their success in this country has been even more amazing than abroad. This is little wonder, when you consider the cast. Even the famous Billy Rose is said to have praised the girls in this show as being the most beautiful and talented he had ever seen. One of the famous beauties, Miss Evelyn Willard, created such a sensation in Birmingham, where the show played recently, that the Birmingham Post gave her column after column of publicity, and said "Miss Evelyn Willard is one of the most beautiful showgirls of the nation and the most beautifully photogenic figure ever seen." Every act in this unusual production has received such merited praise. The London Times, writing about Edison and Louise, the show's starring comedy team, said "Edison and Louise are the funniest act ever seen here."

The famous Rudy Vallee and Fred Allen both were so impressed by the talent of the three Youman Brothers, ace act in the show, that they presented these boys over their radio programs. These three boys, by using various musical instruments, amazingly reproduce the music of all of America's leading name bands. When you listen to them, you actually feel you are listening to Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, Kay Kyser and all the others. They do such an unusual act, that they were requested to play privately for President Roosevelt. This act alone is worth the price of admission.

The entire show is made up of such outstanding acts.

This is an unusual show, worth seeing. Remember that Studio Scandals plays the Pitt Theatre one day only, Friday, February 7th and all the others. They do such an

Home Economics Club Meets.
Mr. F. G. Walser, English instructor at Greenville high school, and Mr. A. L. Dittmer, head of the music department at E. C. T. C., were guest speakers at the Home Economics Club meeting Tuesday evening at 6:30 in the classroom building of the college.

Mr. Walser, whose subject was "Literature in the Home," stressed North Carolina literature and stated that every home library in our state should obtain such books as "Look Homeward Angel" and "I Can't Go Home," by Thomas Wolfe and "Raleigh's Eden," by Inglis Fletcher.

The speaker brought out the fact that North Carolina is slow to recognize its writer, that, as a rule, the state will give a writer no recognition until he is claimed by New York.

"North Carolina is just beginning to realize its importance," said Mr. Walser. "We should read books by North Carolinians to inflate our 'Tarheel' ego." And furthermore, North Carolina books are best sellers, which proves that some people

If not North Carolinians, are reading these books."

"Music in the Home" was the subject of the next speaker, Mr. A. L. Dittmer. Early in his talk, Mr. Dittmer stated that he had referred to some Home Economics books in the library in order to find some material on his subject that he could present to the club members. However, he became so interested in the aspects of Home Economics as presented by the texts in the form of house plans, gardening and dress-making that he found his time was up before he had found any material on his subject.

Mr. Dittmer founded his talk on his own personal experiences. He impressed the club members of the value of music in the home by explaining and playing selections which members of a family, especially children, would love and profit by.

The speaker recalled his own childhood by singing a number of children's songs, and he related stories of his experience with children in connection with these same songs.

As a climax to the evening, Mr. Dittmer played a few selections on the phonograph, including "It Was a Lover and His Lass," "Chinese Dance" and "Asa's Death," explaining each before playing.

Edna Turnage, president of the club, presided over the meeting.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIAN GREY

YESTERDAY: Lovely Daye, with three of her cronies, stopped by chance to picnic on the property of the Cosgraves, on the Hudson above New York. And while their steak was broiling Roger Cosgrave came down from the big house to ask them to move on — and changed his mind when he saw Lovely. Back at the house, Roger is having some trouble explaining why he changed his mind to his mother, and to Emily Perry.

Chapter Two
First Gift
That was what Roger said. But he was thinking of Lovely Daye with her brilliant smile and striking blondness. The gleam of the large diamond he had given Emily caught his eye. His pulse started queerly. In exactly one month he would slip another ring into place beside the diamond. The second ring was already in his possession—a circlet of diamonds. He thought he remembered a ring on the same finger of Lovely's hand, the faint gleam of a chip diamond in an ornate setting.

"I hope we won't live to regret this generosity of yours Roger," his mother said easily. "It's so dry if a fire started—"
"But dinner was announced so whatever Mrs. Cosgrave would have said about fire died aborning. After dinner Roger found reason to make an excursion to the kitchen. "Was there much ice cream left?" he asked.

"Quite a lot sir," from the butler. "Enough for four?" And as the man nodded: "Please pack it in ice and send it to the wood lot near the dam. There are some picnickers there I'd like to have it."
Roger again
"Gee! That was swell ice cream!" Lovely was lying on her back on the hemlock needles, her hands clasped behind her head.

Roger had come so quietly along the path that he had been in their midst before the picnickers had known it. Lovely was the first to speak, her brilliant smile pointing up the beauty of her face as she looked up at him. She didn't move. Her thin, snug silk blouse lay smooth over her curves. Little of her sultry young loveliness was left to the imagination. Roger Cosgrave was acutely aware of her. Her beauty reached out to him like hands and gripped his heart. It was such a real thing. Almost as if you could take it in your hands, cradle it there and say: "Here for the first time I look upon love."

He smiled at Lovely.
"Did you like it? I'm so glad!" He had tried to include all of them but his words made their way to Lovely alone.
"Like it?" from Katie. "Say does a blonde like a sugar daddy? Does a steno like her boss?"
Roger laughed and Bill said: "All I can say is she'd better."
They all laughed then and Roger made note of the fact that he must have been wrong before. There was no ring on the third finger of Lovely's hand. He was aware of a sudden lift. No engagement ring!

"Cigarette?" Lovely's hand moved straight up into the air. Cosgrave was standing almost directly above her. He looked down smiling. The rest of the party seemed shut out. Just the two of them there together.
"Thanks, he said, his tone a little different as his hand touched hers. It was just a fleeting shadow of something sweet and tender that to a dream that was too lovely to spoil.

"Not if it's what you want, kid. The thing your little heart desires is the law of my life, Lovely." His voice was very earnest on the last. And he was to remember having said that. And live up to it in future years.
"That's sweet of you, Joe." Her hand fluttered against his face caressingly for a moment. She turned quickly toward the shadowy stairs. There were four flights of them. "Good night," she swung around on the first step to say.
"Good night, Lovely. See you tomorrow night." He said it with easy assurance.
When Lovely reached the top of the fourth flight the dreams were suddenly wiped from her face.

Voices came from beyond the door of her sister's flat. Voices raised to a quarreling, snarling noise. "Jeepers creepers! Do you have to rave just because I bought a hat?" Her sister's voice was shrill.
"Hat! Hat!" Ring Mulcahy's voice was viciously derisive. "She calls that Happy Hooligan thing a hat! Spending the money I sweat for on jokes like that! Why didn't you wait till February fourteenth and wrap yourself up and send yourself to me? Spending my hard earned dough on funny Valentines! Looks like something you'd run into that had stuck to you."

"All right, go on knocking yourself out if you think it's getting you anywhere! The minute Sunny is big enough I'm getting me a job and earning my own coin."
"Yeah, try and do it!"
"I'll do it all right! You and your money! Money Money!"
Lovely could hear her sister's voice gathering fury. She knew the scene by heart. She could see them in their quarrelling, little Sunny, who should be in bed, staring wide eyed and solemn. Not really alarmed because this was just life to her. Poor little Sunny. Lovely felt she almost knew the exact words they would use next. And she did.

Money. Gert was going on "that's all I ever hear from you You'd think I was pouring it into the gutter, when I never spend a cent I don't have to. What if I did it's just too lovely to talk—the stars and sky and the sweet smells and all." Her voice was dream swept along the parkway and weighting the night air with its fragrance. There was a sweetness of drying grass. Joe thought: she's swell in that mood. Wait till we get home. He was content to give all his attention to the wheel from then on. Anticipation was a marvelous thing.

Quarrel
by walk-up where she lived with her married sister. Lovely was in no mood for lingering farewells.
"Not tonight, Joe," she said as he would have kissed her. Something about her mood, the star strewn night, the sweet freshness of cut grass, the pleasant cultivation of Roger Cosgrave's voice still echoing somewhere within her made her shrink from the enthusiasm of Joe's caresses. Even the tawdriness of far West Twenty-sixth Street had not destroyed a certain glamor that held her.

Joe stood back and looked at her. "What's up?" he asked, a queer note in his voice.
"Nothing Joe. Don't mind me tonight. It's just that everything in my brain is so beautiful and so dreamlike that I don't want anything real to touch it. It's been such a swell day."
She laughed softly. There was a tender note in the sound. She didn't want to hurt Joe. He was her kind, all too familiar with the kicks and cuffs—the seamy side—of life. No use adding anything to that experience if she didn't have to. But there was something just then she couldn't have Joe coming into.

"You see," still with that little laugh that was meant to placate and satisfy him, "I know nothing real could be as lovely as the stars and sky and summer smells and soft wind against my face. It's been so grand today, Joe!"
"Sure has, honey." A low urgent note in his voice as if strong emotions were surging against a barrier of will.
"You don't mind just tonight, do you?" softly.
Joe had kissed her countless times when she'd rather liked it but tonight it would have done something.

Carver Library News

The reserve shelf of books on Negro Life has been replenished with many new books and pamphlets. We invite those teachers, clubs, churches and Sunday schools who are planning programs for Negro history week to make special use of this shelf.
There are many stories in the children's reading room concerning Negro life and by Negro authors.

We were very pleased to have Miss Etta Mae Gaylord as a visitor to the library on Friday.
We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the following: Miss Flora Phillips, for lovely steel tie-backs for the curtains at our windows; to Mrs. Bowling and daughter and to Mrs. Hugh McGowan for magazines; to Miss Herring and Mrs. W. C. Vincent for books; to Prof. C. M. Epps and the members of his faculty for asking for book reports. This is helping our circulation to grow; to Miss Gaylord and the WPA for 74 new books to be placed on the WPA reserve shelf.

The circulation of both children's and adults' books for January was 1963. Help your mind as well as your library grow by reading good literature. Visit your Carver Library, often!

Hints For Housewives

A salad: Select a firm head of lettuce, remove the core, and wash the lettuce but do not unhead it. Stuff the center with cream cheese mixed into a thick hard-cooked egg salad. Wrap in waxed paper and chill. Using a sharp knife, cut the lettuce into crossway slices. Arrange on salad plates. Top with sliced dressing or mayonnaise.
Hominy and browned link sausage make a fine winter pair. Mix them with half as much savory white sauce, pour into a buttered, shallow baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Accompany with buttered cabbage, fruit salad and gingerbread dessert.

An herb tip: Mix 1/4 teaspoon sweet basil into 1/2 cup canned tomato paste, spread over cheese sliced or spread on buttered toast. Heat until well browned and serve at once with a hot beverage. Basil also dresses up stewed or escalloped tomatoes.
Lemon Juice Recipe Checks Rheumatic Pain Quickly
If you suffer from rheumatic arthritis or neuritis pain, try this simple inexpensive home recipe that thousands are using. Get a package of Ru-Ex Compound today. Mix it with a quart of water, add the juice of 4 lemons. It's easy, pleasant and no trouble at all. You need only 2 table-spoonsfuls two times a day. Often with 48 hours — sometimes overnight — splendid results are obtained. If the pains do not quickly leave and if you do not feel better, Ru-Ex will cost you nothing to try as it is sold by your druggist under an absolute money-back guarantee. Ru-Ex Compound is for sale and recommended by Bissette's Drug Store and drug stores everywhere.

Save the spiced vinegar from bottled sweet pickles and use it in salad dressings. Or pour it over sliced beets. After several hours you will have delicious pickled beets.
When making custards, cream, and pumpkin pie fillings you can use two egg yolks for each whole egg called for. Remember this when you are over supplied with egg yolks.

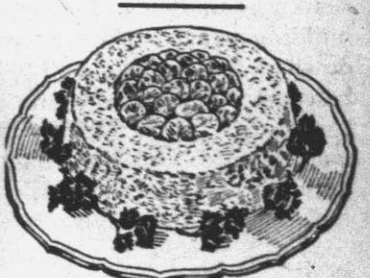

Dear Mr. Rector (writes Mrs. E. E.): "Recently New York hostesses have taken up in a big way the plan of letting guests make their own appetizers. At such a party last week, the electric grill was kept jumping, turning out bacon with the best flavor! Our hostess said it was Wilson's new bacon. Please tell me more about this."
To Mrs. E. E. and the other bacon-flavor experts: The full name of this new bacon is "Wilson's CERTIFIED Family Style Sliced Bacon." It is sliced thicker than usual, then packed back tightly, bolt upright, on the rind. This keeps in its goodness and flavor. Your dealer has this better bacon, or will get it for you.

BACON IS THE MAKIN' OF BETTER BUDGET DINNERS
Bacon Dinner Grill. Arrange on a "sizzle platter" the following: slices of Wilson's Certified Family Style Sliced Bacon, thick slices of unpeeled tomatoes, mounds of hominy (both dotted with Clear Brook Butter) and triangles of toast, sprinkled with grated Wilson's Certified Cheese. Place 3 1/2 inches below broiler (temperature about 350° F.). Broil and serve on the sizzle platter.

Noodle-Bacon Casserole
Cook 1/2 pound of noodles. Drain and keep hot in a covered casserole. Dice and fry twelve slices of Wilson's Certified Bacon. (I suggest the Family Style in the economy two-pound package.) Sauté gently in the bacon fat 1/4 pound peeled mushrooms. Add mushrooms, bacon, 2 tablespoons of the bacon fat and 1/4 teaspoon paprika to the noodles. Toss lightly till thoroughly mixed. Serves 6.

"CORNEED BEEF AND . . ."
Goes Ultra
The soul of Jiggs, with all his yearning for good old corned beef and cabbage, lurks in every man. So try serving him this combination made with Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash, which is a hash after my own heart because it is both richly meated and deftly seasoned.

Press one can of hash into a buttered ring mold. Unmold. Brush the hash ring with melted Clear Brook Butter and brown in the oven. Fill the center of the hash ring with buttered cooked Brussels Sprouts, and serve.
CHANGE YOUR SALADS!
Not hard to do! Simply change your mayonnaise. Start with Wilson's Savory Mayonnaise, then add:
For green salads—minced parsley or water-cress.
For fruit salads—fruit juices (orange, pineapple, or grapefruit), or chopped nuts.
For vegetable salads—minced Wilson's Certified Cocktail Frankfurters, or a few drops of Worcestershire.

See you next week with a Valentine idea.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE ARE NEVER SELF-SUFFICIENT

We are often bewildered as we look at our own natures and see the queer and perverse quirks we have, the disposition so readily to do evil and to turn away from doing good. The Bible speaks of the mystery of sin, and we have often pondered that mystery in our own lives and in the life of the world. If a man could save himself from sin by his own efforts God would certainly let him do so, because it would utilize his very power and develop him to the limit. But we cannot deal with sin in our own lives beyond repenting for it and turning to God. The straightening out of these quirks in our natures, the changing of a love of evil to a love of good, the control of our worst impulses, the changing of hate into love—these things are never accomplished until with faith we take our hearts to Jesus Christ and let Him do these things for us. It takes a thorough trust in the efficiency of God to get us through any of the overpowering situations of life. A life that begins and ends in our own efforts is destined to moral defeat. More and more are people realizing this in these days when the world is shaking about us. We are never self-sufficient, and especially not in a war-torn world. LABOR AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

Questionable labor practices in defense projects were condemned on the floor of the House of Representatives late in January, but an amendment designed to end the so-called "labor racketeering" by outlawing closed shop agreements in the shipbuilding program was voted down. A majority of the Representatives took the stand that such a revolutionary step should not be taken without full investigation and debate.

Most observers agreed that the House took the proper stand, but it did not affect the fact that labor unions are turning jobless men away from certain defense projects, particularly in the construction of camps, even though the need for men to speed the work is vital to the defense program. Labor union chiefs refuse to allow any workmen to work on certain projects unless they first join the union.

It is reported that certain unions levy fees of from $50 to $150 on non-union men seeking work, and that dues are collected each month thereafter. It is alleged that the wishes of the individual are not considered in the matter. Further, it is said that, in some cases, workmen have been discharged as soon as they have earned enough to pay their union fees.

Many believe this discrimination against non-union workers on temporary government jobs is unfair. This would seem particularly so when it is admitted that there is a shortage of skilled workmen. This has put certain defense jobs behind schedule at a time when speed is of the utmost importance. It is hard for the average citizen to understand why labor unions should be allowed to advance their interests at the expense of national defense.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Answering the mail orders (matters mostly military):
L. D. Columbus, Ohio—Army officials here tell me that the first major league baseball player to come in under selective service is Gene Stack, Chicago White Sox rookie pitcher. He is now at Fort Custer, Mich. There are other baseball players, football men from college and pro teams, and athletes in a dozen other fields on the draft lists. It is merely the law of averages that has resulted in no more of these being called to date. Selective service officials say that there is no exception made merely because a man is a professional athlete or a college star. Every camp is going to have its athletic teams to match against other camps. This is an important phase of the entertainment and morale program by which army officials hope to make that year's training something that all the young men will be eager to dive into. Consequently, I think if selective service were playing any favorites at all, it would not favor the athletes. A baseball player or football star who draws around $20,000 a year in the professional field will be worth a lot to the army, too. Think how many youngsters would be happy to enlist if they could be in the same company with Joe DiMaggio, Whizzer White, Tommy Harmon, Bob Feller or "Big John" Kambrough.

F. T. M., Fort Worth, Texas—I'm afraid I can't give you very much information about home guard uniforms. The only specific ruling that the War Department has made on them so far is that they must be entirely different from army, navy or marine corps uniforms. Before any units order uniforms they should take the matter up with the War Department through the nearest quartermaster corps. The reason is that the War Department doesn't want home guard units taking on uniforms made from materials which might be nearing a shortage because of the demands of the military program.

T. W., Key West, Fla.—Practically all of the new army camps are named for generals of one rank or another and, on rare occasions, for officers of lesser rank who have written their names in the American history books. There are two camps, however, which have been named for privates. One is Camp Barkeley at Abilene, Texas, and the other, Camp Roberts, near Nacimiento, Calif. Private David B. Barkeley was a young Texan. In the World War he volunteered to swim the Meuse river under enemy fire in an effort to get important military information. On his return trip he was shot, but until he was close enough to shore for comrades to find his body and discover that he had brought back the vital information desired. Corp. Harold Roberts also was killed in action in France under conditions which merited capital letters in the army's books, but the army officials I talked with couldn't put their fingers quickly on the record.

K. R. N., Brookline, Mass.—The controversy over the Garand rifle seems to have died down here. Checking with army officials, I couldn't unearth even an argument. As a matter of fact, they were fairly popping with the latest accomplishments of their official semi-automatic rifle. It seems that they just had had official reports on the gun from Alaska, where the Garand has been given severe tests under 20-degree-below-zero temperature. Results were said to be as good as if the boys were firing off Miami and Santa Monica beaches in chambers of commerce weather. From an unofficial but generally reliable source, I have it that the army now has about 100,000 Garands and plans more than to triple the number within the next year. It never was the army's plan to equip every infantryman with one of these guns.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Feb.—A group of senators discussing the pending teacher and state employee retirement plan were interrupted by a freshman house member who stepped up and asked for an explanation of the matter in just a few words. Silence. He was a little insistent, however, and said that he didn't want to vote for a bill he didn't understand. Whereupon these two wise comments were made:
Senator 1: Well, brother, you are going to have to vote no a lot of times, or else not vote at all.
Senator 2: If you want to vote intelligently on this bill don't read it, 'cause the more you study the more confused you get.
Sadder, if not wiser, the house member moved on seeking light.

ital, senators, senate clerks and pages were present. All were given a chance to say something. After the elders were through talking, young Fred Adams, senate page, was called upon. He responded thusly:
"I just want to thank Mr. Reg Harris for giving me the job and I want to thank Mr. Herbert Gulley for getting it for me." Then his father suggested, "Well, son, don't you think you ought to thank Senator Bullentine from right here at your own home, who helped you, too."
"That being taken care of and everybody happy, the barbecue was over."

Getta Wait For The Lawyer.
Senator Coble Funderburk of Union knows as well as the average layman that there is a lot of criticism of delay in court action. He thinks that sometimes delay is not only justified, but should be required by statute, so he is having a law passed requiring superior courts and all courts inferior thereto to continue cases until after adjournment of the General Assembly when the attorney of record appearing on either side of the case is a member of the legislature.

"Sing A Song Of Sixpence"
It was a lot more than sixpence they were singing about and there were more than four and twenty blackbirds. But it was interesting and an entertaining stunt which Dr. L. L. Boyd, superintendent of Morrison Training School, pulled at the appropriation committee hearing. He wanted more money for his school for delinquent Negro boys down in Richmond county. He said he had tried speech-making and it didn't do much good. So he brought along 32 of his boys and let them sing for the committee members.

The budget commission recommends $106,000 for the school. Boyd and his board of trustees want that just about doubled. There isn't even a remote possibility that he'll get all he wants; but if sentiment around the committee room just after he singing is sustained, he'll get $12 out of a hat collection. The two bucks was personal contributions, not state appropriations.

THE FIFTH NATIONAL SOCIAL HYGIENE DAY

As the United States arms for defense, two major tasks confront the people. One is making the nation so strong that no aggressor country will dare attack. The other is to expose and drive out the antagonistic influences seeking to destroy national defenses and efficiency. For what cause is this nation arming if not on behalf of the men women and children who compose it? Their fitness physically, their freedom from preventable diseases, and their morale will determine almost entirely the effectiveness of all other defense efforts. It is urgent then that we do away with so much false modesty and join hands with those who know what to do to make our people physically tough and morally sound, but these valuable human assets can never reach their peak as long as venereal diseases rank among the most serious health enemies of our people.

The challenge then is to "Teach More About Sex and Family Life" and to teach it in a matter-of-fact way without fear, just as you would information about other serious diseases. The task is not great.

The Federal Government has recognized the need for nation-wide cooperation in these national defense tasks. Paul V. Mantel, Federal Security Administrator, and newly appointed coordinator of all health, medical, nutrition, social service, recreation and welfare aspects of national defense is expected to weave together efforts to keep the national health at par, but the community must do their part.

If we check on some of the things already accomplished in our community, we find already steps in advance have been made through pioneers and a community center has been built where the youths can resort for healthy recreation and relaxation through the coming efforts of the city fathers and the federal government. A library is esablished where the studious seek refuge for educational expansion. If we cooperate wholeheartedly with our medical advisers in combating these diseases, our legal officers in efforts to repress crime prostitution and juvenile delinquency, we will be pioneers in social hygiene, pushing back the hostile forces allied in promoting the spread of venereal diseases and make the day come when syphilis and its leagued partners and all the physical, moral and mental wreckage they create be all but forgotten rarities.

IN MEMORIAM

Just one year ago, on February 6, 1940, the death angel came and took away my dear, devoted mother, Queenie Galloway.

Mother, just one year ago today you left me. Never more will you return. But I hope some day to meet you in your bright and heavenly home.

Oh, how I miss you, dear mother. Even more than tongue can tell. But Jesus loved you best. That's why He called you home to rest.

A loved one from me is gone. The voice I loved is still. The place is vacant in my home. That no other one can ever fill.

Not now, but in the coming days, it may be in a better land. I will know the meaning of my tears. Some day I will understand. (Devoted Daughter, Hannah Dixon)

The Pitt County Teachers Association met in their regular monthly meeting last night as guest of the Ayden high school. The members gathered in the auditorium at seven o'clock for a short business session and repaired to different rooms for the group meetings. At 8:30 they again met in the auditorium for the evening program.

The program opened with the singing of two selections by the Ayden school choral club under the direction of R. A. Ricks and Miss A. B. Williams. A reading by Miss Reaves of the Ayden high school was followed by other selections by the choral club.

The program committee chairman, Mrs. E. D. Daniels then presented Mrs. J. H. Rose, the guest speaker for the evening. Mrs. Rose gave a very timely and informational talk on "Voice Personality." She very vividly outlined the fundamentals of good speech and ways to improve one's speech and the importance of a good voice especially in teachers whose daily contact with students. In open forum-atter Mrs. Rose spoke many found things useful in their work with students.

The meeting closed with several selections from the choral club. The next meeting will be held with the Pitt county training school next month.

The Adult Education teachers and students of this city observed National Social Hygiene day with an appropriate program at the Adult Education Center, 618 Clark street. The address for the occasion was delivered by Dr. W. M. Capehart, M. D. For about 25 minutes Dr. Capehart spoke to the group on the evils, prevention, and cure of social diseases. He emphasized the fact that the doctor's verdict, "bad blood," is a danger signal to any patient, and should never be taken lightly. Interesting illustrations were given of how these social diseases attack the whole system of the individual bringing about such results as rheumatism, apoplexy, insanity, etc. Dr. Capehart reminded the group that the conquering of these diseases has become a national issue, and all needing it should take advantage of the free treatments offered in the clinics. As a safeguard, he suggested that an individual should submit to a Wassermann test at least once a year.

YOU MAY TREASURE THAT BATTERED STRAW

St. Louis—(AP)—The smart man will not throw his raw hat on the baseball diamond next summer or pitch the old bonnet in the trash can. He may have to wear it another season—and like it. The reason is that the straw hat industry—another war victim—faces difficulty in getting materials for the 1942 crop.

Manufacturers here say the shortage may even be noticed at the retail counter this summer, although most manufacturers had placed orders from 18 months to two years ahead.

Materials for most straw hats, even the very cheapest, are imported. The bulk comes from the Orient or other areas involved in the war.

Although it was third among the states in percentage of population increase in the 1940 Census, California recorded the greatest absolute increase. Its increase was nearly 1,200,000 as compared with nearly 800,000 in New York State.

TO MY FARMER FRIENDS

Having made a change in tobacco business in Greenville, I am now using this method of telling my friends that I am no longer connected with the firm of Forbes & Morton.

I have sold to Mr. Morton my entire holdings in the Forbes & Morton Warehouse. I am not going out of business, however. I have rented the Gorman's Warehouse and will run this house for the sale of tobacco the year 1941. I will have as partners in my business Yock Joyner and my son, Harold Forbes.

I wish to say for the past 22 years I have been connected with the sale of tobacco. I have given my friends, and especially those who sold tobacco with me, my best, and as long as I follow the sale I expect to continue to give them all I have.

As far as I know, I am the only warehouseman in North Carolina who lives on the farm, and if there is a man who really knows what a farmer needs, it is I.

The Gorman's Warehouse is one of the best built and best lighted houses in Greenville. Besides, it is easy to get to, out of traffic and congestion.

Now I have no intention of doing or saying anything that might reflect on any one of my competitors. My only desire is to sell tobacco at its highest price and give just aid fair treatment to all.

Thanking my friends for past favors, I am, yours to serve at Gorman's.

Phantoms Defeated Again; Snow Hill Triumphs 29-25

SIXTH DEFEAT FOR GHS BOYS

Donald Henson Leads Both Teams On Attack With 17 Points

Greenville High's highly touted Green Phantoms took their sixth loss of the 1941 campaign last night by bowing to Snow Hill high school's Billies 29-25 in that city before a small crowd of enthused rooters. This is the second time this season the Billies have pinned a defeat upon the Phantoms.

At the beginning of the contest it looked like a Phantom win but as time went on it became more and more evident that the G-Men were in for another loss. The old fighting spirit which prevailed in seasons before seemed to be lacking in last night's tilt. Snow Hill simply out-fought and outplayed the local boys in every respect.

Donald Henson, rangy Snow Hill center was the big gun for Snow Hill and the high stepper for both teams. Besides a brilliant defensive game, Henson racked up a total of 17 points to lead both teams on attack. It just seemed to be Henson's night and he was credited with goals from every angle of the court.

Farley's Phantoms are credited with drawing first blood on a free throw by James in the early moments of the first period, but Snow Hill's Merritt turned the tide with an action shot. Corey came back and put the Phantoms in front with a field goal from the corner and the Farley men held a 3-2 advantage.

FOUNTAIN WINS OVER GRIFFON

Both Home Teams Victorious In Cage Double-Header

Fountain girls edged out a 25-21 victory over the Griffon sextet. The home team girls had a good margin all through the first half but the Griffon girls spurred on by the fine shooting of Phillips were able to get within four points of the Fountain score at the final whistle. Jefferson was high scorer for Fountain with eight points.

The boys of Fountain had little trouble in defeating the Griffon five by a score of 33 to 14. Bailey the Fountain center, showed his great speed and ability of handling the ball by several times obtaining the ball from his opponents in mid-court and going down for easy lay up shots. Lewis was high scorer for Fountain with seven points. Gardner and Jefferson were next with six points apiece. John Joyner was outstanding in getting the ball off the backboard and on floor work. McLawhorn was the leading scorer for Griffon with eight points.

Greenville Phantoms made a gallant try to top the Billies, by battling every inch down the home stretch but although the Phantoms pulled within a four-point disadvantage, the stuff just wasn't there and it was all over for Greenville High school. Warren and James with three points apiece put in the Phantoms last period spurt.

Larry James, Phantom center, led the Greens on attack with ten points although he was off with his shots. James credits the majority of the misses to the fact that one of the opposing players pulled the hair out of his legs while he was shooting.

No Such Luck!

Chicod School Teams Take Double-Header

A large crowd of enthusiastic spectators attended the doubleheader played here Tuesday night in Chicod's gymnasium. With Ayden as the visiting team, everybody enjoyed the games.

At the end of the first half Chicod's boys were tied 6-6 and the girls were 27-19 in favor of Chicod. At the end of the game Chicod won both games with the boys' team score 16-12 and the girls' 38-27. Chicod boys have won two games this season and the girls have won all except one.

There will be another doubleheader here Tuesday night at 7:30 with Belvoir.

General Jacob L. Devers, commanding officer at Fort Bragg, will come over with his army four and will co-referee the game with Colonel George P. Hawes Jr.

Occidental Shows Insurance Trends

Claude D. Tunstall, general agent for the Occidental Life Insurance Company, said today that living policy-holders have received $6,000,000 of the total of $10,000,000 paid in benefits by the company since its organization.

The local agent quoted the company's president, Laurence P. Lee as declaring in his report to the Board of Directors in a meeting in the home office in Raleigh last week that the fact that much of the benefits paid go to living persons indicates the modern trend by which the policy-holder can participate in his own life insurance program.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

A little bidding at the start lifted steels, rails, motors, aircrafts, utilities and specialties. Dealings slowed to negligible proportions and, near the fourth hour, initial advances were trimmed or eliminated in many cases.

Would Make A Patrolman Of Governor's Chauffeur

By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Feb. 6.—A bill offered by Senator Bellentine of Wake providing for assignment of a member of the highway patrol to the governor's office, has nothing whatever to do with the suggestion (which may reach bill status later in the session) that the entire patrol be made a state police under direction of the executive office. Nor is it motivated by the idea that the governor of North Carolina needs an armed bodyguard.

Back of the proposal are these facts: Victor Aldridge, now driving the governor's car and who drove the past two years for Governor Hoey, has all the qualifications for a highway patrolman and has been for some weeks waiting for a call to duty. So there will be no raising or lowering of the standard existing in the driver of the executive limousine.

More important, however, is the fact that a sworn officer of the state, in uniform rather than livery can be of much greater help to the governor on trips. As a patrolman he can be sent on confidential missions, taken into hotels, etc., with less violence to what officialdom loves to regard as "protocol."

Besides, there will always be available a substitute of equal efficiency and skill with a similar uniform that will fit, thus eliminating some confusion and breach of dignity. And if occasion should arise he will have authority to make arrests and to command proper respect for the official car of the chief executive of the state.

TOO MANY PEOPLE PASS UP A PASS

Trinidad, Colo.—(AP)—Bill Samuel, Trinidad hotel owner, thinks there is a mental hazard for tourists in the designation of "mountain passes." The word "pass" terrifies a lot of people because in their minds it means a high altitude road that involves dangers and hardships, he thinks. He suggests that Raton pass, between Trinidad and the New Mexico state boundary be renamed "Clouland Boulevard" or something similar that suggests a safe drive.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filtes which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Give Your Rugs This 5-Point Test..

- 1. For SIZE
Do they really FIT, make your rooms seem larger, better balanced? Decorators advise a size that leaves from 6 to 12 inches of floor space all around the room.
- 2. For COLOR
Do your rugs set the color "cue" for your rooms, with live, vibrant tones, giving zest to other furnishings? Or are they dull, lifeless, contributing little to room beauty?
- 3. For STYLE
Are your rugs in harmony with your other furnishings? Today's correct rugs accent room style, whether it be re-strained 18th Century, simple Early American or sophisticated Modern.
- 4. For USE
For economy, less expensive weaves should be in little seen and used rooms, finer qualities where they will be frequently seen and walked on, such as in the living room.
- 5. For PRICE
For full rug value, you must have not only good wearing qualities, but correct SIZE, COLOR, STYLE and USE to point up all the beauty of your other furnishings.
