HITLER WARNS GREECE TO ASK FOR PEACE

JAPS EXPRESS MUCH CONCERN OVER PACIFIC

Anxious Over War-Like Preparations Of This Nation

FEARS EFFECT OF AID FOR BRITAIN

Declares Situation Would Be Eased If U.S. Would Confine Moves To Western Hemisphere

Tokyo, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A Japanese spokesman declared today "war-like preparations of the British and American governments" in the Pacific had caused "anxiety if not misgivings" in Japan and said the situation would be "greatly mitigated" if the United States confined such alleged preparations to the Western Hemisphere.

The spokesman, director of the cabinet information bureau, declared in a prepared statement to the press that "we are utterly unable to see any good purpose served by prolonging war, whatever the motive may be." "Japan is fully prepared," he said, "to act as mediator or take whatever action is calculated to recover normal conditions not only in greater East Asia, but anywhere in the world."

Declares British Aid Bill Would Result In Sending Troops Abroad

DEFEATS MOVE TO ALTER BILL

Senate Refuses To Narrow Sales Tax Exemptions

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—(AP) The Senate rejected an amendment proposing to narrow exemptions in the general sales tax today, then passed the biennial revenue bill on second reading, 40 to 0.

It took the Senators just 22 minutes to dispose of the amendment, offered by Senator Brooks of Durham, which would have granted sales tax exemptions only to items exempted in the 1939 revenue law.

The bill as passed, extends the exemptions to cover all foods sold for home consumption. It has been approved in the House and is up for final reading in the Senate tomorrow.

TOBACCO BODY SELECTS HEAD

C.W. Howard to Head Tobacco Board Of Trade

C. W. Howard, president of the Greenville Tobacco Company, was elected president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade at the annual meeting of that organization this morning.

Mr. Howard succeeds R. M. Garrett, whose name was proposed for a third term, but who declared it was impossible for him to serve another term.

Sen. Clark Of Missouri, First To Take The Floor In Opposition To Measure, Asserts Proposal Is Not A Defense Act, But Is One Equivalent To A Declaration Of A State Of War By The U. S.

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Senator Clark (D-Mo.) expressed belief in the Senate today that enactment of the pending British aid bill would be "equivalent to a declaration of a state of war" which ultimately would have to be followed up by sending troops abroad.

"This is not a defense bill at all," Clark said, holding the floor as the first opposition speaker in the Senate debate over the measure. "This is a war bill. This is a bill to implement and put into motion processes almost certain to result in war."

He contended that the measure amounted to "guaranteeing a military victory by one belligerent over another."

Clark declared that the measure would "strip" American defense grants "autocratic powers" to the President and reverse traditional American foreign policy.

Important Steps Taken By Board Of Aldermen

SAYS US ARMY BEHIND TIMES

Officer Declares Armed Forces Not Modernized

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A field artillery staff officer declared today that the United States might have to pay in "needless dead and wounded" and "even lost wars" for failing to modernize its equipment and tactics in the post World war years.

The artillery man, Lieut. Colonel Thomas R. Phillips, urged in an article in "The Infantry Journal" that "conservatives" in the War Department be replaced by men who could comprehend the changes brought about by new weapons and altered social conditions.

To illustrate his contention, he declared that possibilities of the tank went generally unrecognized in the United States army until the outbreak of the present European struggle.

"Here," said Col. Phillips, "is a weapon ideally suited to the greatest industrial nation on earth and to a soldier personnel every one of whom is able to drive a car and has some elementary mechanical education."

"At the outbreak of the European war we had some 300 light tanks. We had no homogeneous armored divisions capable of independent action. The reasons for the shortage of tanks are exclusively our own fault."

He contended that the U. S. army also had lagged in modernizing its supply trains and in reorganizing its divisions to conform to the demands of modern war.

PLANT CLOSED AT MILWAUKEE DESPITE TRUCE

Allis-Chalmers Workers Refuse To Ratify Pact

DEFENSE ORDER BEING HELD UP

Ratification of Agreement Reached At Washington Conference Yesterday Delayed Indefinitely

By The Associated Press Officials of the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company plant at Milwaukee declared the factory would not reopen today, despite a truce agreement reached at Washington with representatives of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Nine thousand employees remained idle and work was at a standstill for the fourth week on $45,000,000 worth of national defense equipment orders.

Members of the union, holding varying interpretations of terms of the truce reached at Washington, withheld ratification indefinitely.

Union demands for a closed shop in construction of an $18,000,000 powder bag loading plant raised the threat of a strike at the national defense project at Charlestown, Ind.

The Vanadium Corporation of America, which produces an important ingredient of many defense articles, was kept out of production at two plants by strikes. Four hundred employees at the Niagara Falls, N. Y., factory withdrew their demands for a closed shop, but still sought wage increases.

The CIO, which already has strikes in progress at two plants at the International Harvester Company, ordered a strike today at a third, the company's McCormick works in Chicago.

TO ERECT NEW THEATRE HERE

To Be Constructed on Old Horne Drug Store Site

T. Y. Walker, local theater manager, announced today that the North Carolina Theaters, with headquarters in Raleigh, had secured a long-time lease on the site formerly occupied by Hill Horne drug store and work on a new theater for Greenville would get under way in the near future and be completed before the fall.

The property is owned by Mrs. Bluma Schultz and construction work is expected to be started within a short time.

While a name has not definitely been decided upon, Mr. Walker said it probably would be the Varsity, in recognition of the fact that Greenville is the home of East Carolina Teachers College.

Mr. Walker also announced that the new theater would not affect the two present North Carolina Theater houses now being operated here, the Pitt and the State. He said the cinema house would be modern throughout, but said the policy, such as prices, etc., had not been determined.

The additional theater is to be erected on a site formerly occupied by the New Theater, which later was known as the Capitol.

Mr. Walker declared that decision of North Carolina Theaters to operate a third theater here indicated their belief that Greenville was one of the most progressive cities in eastern Carolina and also said that the new movie house would make Greenville one of the outstanding entertainment centers of this section.

Athens Told To Accept Peace On Italian Terms

Questioned

Smiling and smoking a big cigar, Al Capone, former Chicago gang chief, leaves the federal building at Miami after being questioned by federal authorities about his assets on which the government hopes to levy a $201,347 judgment representing his civil liability for income tax evasion. He hurried back to his Miami Beach home after the hearing.

FLYING SCHOOL OUTLOOK GOOD

Local Project Endorsed By Atlanta CAA Offices

Mayor B. B. Sugg was advised by telegram late yesterday afternoon by Rep. Bonner that the local airport had been approved for a Civil Pilots Training program by the Atlanta office of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, bringing the project one step nearer realization.

Meanwhile, actual construction of a hangar on the City-County airport was ready to get under way. Lumber and galvanized iron were on the site and the concrete foundation already has been poured.

Rep. Bonner's telegram stated that the Washington CAA office "was approving" the project if Greenville meets certain CAA requirements. Local sponsors are working at top speed to comply with the requirements, such as erection of a hangar, contracting with an operator of the flying field and making necessary arrangements for classroom instruction at East Carolina Teachers College.

The Board of Aldermen last Thursday night contracted with Horace M. Barnes of Lumberton to operate the flying school if the program is approved for the City-County airfield and Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of the college, has given assurances that the college will be ready to provide classroom work and otherwise aid in the program if the program goes through, ten students will be enrolled at once, with the probability that the enrollment will be increased to 40 or 50 in the near future. A limit of 50 is set on students at any one field.

Although progress to date has been encouraging, the project is not definitely assured. Although the telegram said the Washington CAA office "was approving" the local field if certain requirements were met and the sponsors are lending every effort to meet these requirements, the director of the Washington office, Forrest Webster, has not definitely given his approval.

Highway Wreck Case Being Aired In Court

A civil action involving counter claims by the Vance Trucking Company of Henderson and J. A. Marshall of Washington, which grew out of a highway collision in July 1939, consumed today's session of Superior court.

The case was started yesterday and it will probably be tomorrow afternoon before it reaches the jury.

The Vance company brought suit to recover $575 property damage and Marshall set up a counter claim for approximately $10,000.

The truck was en route to Bluefield, West Va., with a truck load of potatoes when it stopped on the highway near Farmville to fix a flat tire. Marshall purportedly drove his car into the rear of the truck about midnight, damaging the truck and nearly demolishing his automobile.

Fuehrer Declared In Balkan Diplomatic Quarters To Sue For Peace - On Mussolini's Terms - Or Face Possible Nazi Invasion; London Meanwhile Minimizes Significance of Turkish Pact

By The Associated Press Balkan diplomatic quarters reported today that Adolf Hitler has brought pressure on Greece to make a quick peace with Italy—on Premier Mussolini's terms—under threat of having Nazi troops invade the Aegean kingdom.

Dispatches from Sofia, Bulgaria, said the German minister to Athens informed Greek leaders that, with the signing of the new Turkish-Bulgarian non-aggression pact, Greece is now open to attack through Bulgaria.

If Greece refused, it was said, Hitler's Balkan army, estimated at upwards of 600,000 men, would start rolling from bases in Rumania across Bulgaria into Eastern Greece.

An authoritative Sofia newspaper said Soviet Russia had agreed with Germany on the Bulgarian-Turkish pact as a means of preventing the spread of war in Southeast Europe.

Nazi bombers inflicted an apparently heavy toll of casualties in overnight raids on the British Isles, subjecting London's millions to a three and one-half hour alarm and pounding the East Anglia region in widespread attacks lasting until dawn.

Rescue parties worked for six hours bringing out the dead and survivors trapped when a heavy bomb smashed through the roof of a London air raid shelter. Hospitals in the vicinity were crowded with injured and many were feared killed.

As the rescue work went on it was officially announced that 1,502 civilians were killed and 2,012 wounded by air raids over Britain in January—compared with 3,793 killed and 5,044 injured in December.

British officials minimized the significance of yesterday's Bulgarian-Turkish non-aggression pact.

The agreement "can have little practical meaning for Turkey," authoritative British sources said, because "There are grave doubts" of Bulgaria's ability to pursue an independent course.

Doubts were expressed over the ability of Bulgaria to preserve her neutrality under an influx of German troops or to exercise freedom of choice over her own foreign policy.

Turkey, these sources said, "is completely loyal" to Great Britain and kept the British government informed throughout the negotiations with Bulgaria.

In Albania, Greek mountain troops were reported to have captured two heights in "strong local engagements."

Negro Convicted Vernon Robertson, Greenville Negro arrested at a still just across the Martin county line week before last by Pitt and Martin ABC officers, was convicted in Martin county court yesterday and given a four months sentence, suspended upon payment of $75 and costs.

of the branch were discussed at length. At the March meeting Miss Kate Lewis of the college will give a demonstration of weaving. The program followed, which consisted of reports on Democratic Living in the Schools. Contributions to the discussion were made by members from the Third street school, the Training school and West Greenville school, of the city, and Stokes and Winterville schools of the county.

The King's Daughters Meet.
The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters held its February meeting with Mrs. C. A. Boxen on Liberty street. The meeting was well attended and full of the spirit. Mrs. E. W. Harvey conducted the devotional. She used as her subject "Faith in God," and brought to mind how each day we worked and lived by faith.

After the minutes and treasurer's report, the report of the Christmas work was read by Mrs. Harvey. Owing to the nice gifts given by the Kiwanis Club, our report really surpassed any given for a long time and the circle was able to give help and Christmas cheer to 14 families as well as substantial aid to three who have been on our list for continued assistance. The president asked that all who have quilt squares, please bring them to her as early as possible. Also that the March meeting will be the time to collect the plates. The circle wished to go on record as favoring the Bundles for Britain movement and members were urged to help in every way possible. The meeting adjourned. The hostesses served hot tea and delicious cookies. —Reported.

Dr. Watson To Speak Tonight.
This evening at 8 o'clock in the new classroom building at the college, Dr. James M. Watson, famous psychiatrist, will deliver the final lecture in his series in Greenville on various phases of nervous disorders. His topic will be "Prevention, Treatment and Cure of Nervous Maladjustments."
Dr. Watson's two previous talks on the nature and causes of nervous disorders have made evident that he is an authority on all phases of psychiatry, and his quiet humor and sympathetic understanding of human problems make him an appealing speaker.

The meetings were arranged by Mrs. Hazel Brown Maize, member of Pitt County Welfare Department and chairman of the Social Studies committee of the American Association of University Women. They are open to all interested persons.

Christian Science Service.
"Soul" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, February 16. The golden text was from Psalms

70:5. "Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee; and let such as love thy salvation say continually. Let God be magnified."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Incline your ear, and come unto me; hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David." (Isaiah 55:3).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The immortality of Soul makes man immortal. If God, who is Life, were perished for a moment from His creation, man, during that instant, there would be no divinity reflected. The Ego would be unexpressed, and the father would be childless—no Father. But man cannot be separated for an instant from God, if man reflects God."

Dogs Jam Traffic, Land In The Clink

Patrolman Arthur Boston looked for the cause of a traffic jam in Baltimore. Right in the midst of the traffic snarl were these two Great Danes which Turnkey Gary Keil is holding. The dogs were bewildered by honking horns. They were hauled off to jail to await their owner.

GREENVILLE HI NEWS

Student Council Meeting
Last night's student council meeting lasted longer than it was predicted to last.

Most important business of the meeting was the report from the home room representatives on how their home rooms voted on the amendment to the resolution that the council put a sum of money aside each year to be placed in a certain fund. The amendment was to the effect that the council do away with this fund. The vote taken showed that 16 home rooms are in favor of keeping the fund and three against the fund.

The other vote taken was on whether to publish a student handbook this year or not. The vote showed that 19 home rooms are in favor of not publishing a handbook this year and that no home rooms are in favor of printing one.

Dramatics

The first year dramatics are producing a play "Two Against the Gods" with an all-girl cast. The cast is made up of Marguerite Hudson, Doris Brown, and Josephine Gibson. Miss Jeanette Early is directing the production.

The Lion's club has decided to have a junior Lion from the high school. There will be a new one chosen each month. Paul Scott has been chosen the first junior Lion.

Basketball Tonight

The girls' team is meeting Washington high girls here tonight while the boys meet the Kinston boys there. A large crowd is expected to travel to Kinston to support the boys. But those who don't go are expected to be at the high school tonight to support the girls.

Where we grow tobacco and cotton grow feed, food, poultry, swine, other livestock and "have a garden."

While the meeting was in session not a wheel was left unturned to move the stumbling blocks from the path to a better live at home program.

Mr. J. D. Lennon, the vocational teacher of the Ayden high school told how to add to the family budget by canning and raising chickens. The county agent told about the hogs, gardens, cows, and training the boys and girls in 4-H work for future farmers. Several of the farm ladies told how they made their spending money by selling chickens, eggs and vegetables.

Mr. John W. Mitchell, Negro state agent, gave the outlook plans for the year for better living.

Sharper Forbes, 4-H club leader in the Cox community was awarded a certificate for his good work done in the county as a leader.

Mr. Forester, Negro county agent of Wilson county, was present and gave some timely remarks on the defence program also Miss I. M. Donnell clench all that was said by the speakers by telling the hearers to go and plant something in their gardens besides collards.

After listening to the welcome by Prof. Ormond, principal of the school, and prayer by Rev. Jackson all felt they were glad they came.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the music furnished by the Ayden Coral club. Plant in your garden this month kale, lettuce, mustard, onion sets, tengerreens, strawberries and carrots.—Negro County Agent.

NAZIS' NEXT MOVE?

Concentrations of German troops in Rumania lead to speculation as to the next Nazi move. Except for the bad roads, worse in winter weather, there is little to hold back troops once they decide to cross weak Bulgaria. Arrows at the left mark possible routes to the rescue of Italy in Greece. Double-pronged arrow at right marks the roads to Istanbul and the Dardanelles and British oil resources which lie beyond.

STREET SEAM—When part of West Pittston, Pa., a town of 8,000, settled recently due to underlinings of mines in that area, this fissure appeared in street. Another Pennsylvania anthracite town, Shenandoah, was similarly affected last year.

COLORED NEWS

11, 1941. During this meeting many expressed themselves as gaining new ideas for the year. There is a great need for a better understanding of need for us to stop and ask our local problems as well as those of ourselves where are we going? And it wider scope a helpful meeting was well for us at times to change held in the Ayden High school Feb. our course.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SEE TO THE FOUNDATIONS
A prominent church leader who passed away a year or two ago made this statement just before his death:
"We are like people straightening pictures on the wall while the foundations are being shaken by earthquake."

Trying to patch social injustice
with a few concessions grudgingly
given constitutes what this man called an attempt to straighten pictures on the wall, while the foundations are being shaken by earthquake. There are still people in the world who seem to be ignorant of the fact that a multitude of national and international situations need to be made over from the ground up, and that patches will never do it. If this war ends with nothing but a redistribution of loot and a realignment of nations into a new balance of power, the sacrifice of men and money will have been in vain. Most of the politicians and so-called diplomats are nervous, excited little people running about and trying to straighten the pictures on the wall, instead of going down into the cellar and seeing what needs to be done to the foundations.

Apply this principle also to the moral issues in your life which need correction. What are you doing about these straightening pictures of trying to strengthen foundations? No job is ever done right until it is done thoroughly.

It's bicycle registration
time in Greenville, and all bicycles must be registered and licensed at the city hall.
It is necessary that the bikes
be carried to the police department at the time of applications for licenses in order that the make and serial number might be recorded.
This registration is required
by law and persons not obtaining licenses will not be permitted to operate their bicycles. Don't let your boy or girl overlook this important matter.

The ever-growing number
of juvenile delinquents here, both whites and Negroes, is a problem that is reaching serious proportions. Almost every day the police are confronted with a series of petty thefts or other crimes committed by these small boys. Naturally these boys cannot be confined in jail and their crimes in most cases do not justify lengthy terms in a state reformatory, but some provision should be made locally whereby these juvenile offenders could be placed under proper supervision to cause them to mend
their ways before they grow older and the seriousness of their crimes increases. It does little good to have the officers pick up a wayward boy, try to scare him into being a good boy and then send him on his way. Some suitable place where such boys
could serve short terms
under proper supervision
now might prevent their having to serve longer terms for greater crimes when they grow older. This is a matter that is giving our local au-

authorities no little concern and it is time something definite was being done about it.

There is general satisfaction here as a result of the preliminary inspections of our airport and the favorable reports received so far.
There are, of course, further inspections that must be passed, but so far all those officials who have visited the field have expressed surprise that so much had already been accomplished and have expressed the opinion that the next inspectors would probably likewise make favorable reports. There are, of course, a lot of our people who have been lukewarm
toward the airport project,
but we would like to suggest that everyone pay a visit to the airport at their convenience and see just what is going on there. In a few more days will come the erection of a hangar, to be followed by the bringing here of planes for use by student fliers. If all goes as planned, a group of our college students will begin to receive flying instructions at the airport around the first of March. Our airport has already been included in the national defense program
and in time it should prove a great asset to this city and county.

Washington Daybook

Washington - In Government
City, where any visitor is likely to find himself in a tangle of red tape
credit Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones and one of his assistants, Norman Baxter, a former Washington
business man with clearing out one of the most remarkable red-tape
jungle for visiting business men.
Officially, it is known as the Service and Information office. It is located in a room that opens off the Department of Commerce main lobby. It doesn't look like much. Its staff consists of four men, a couple of women and a kindly, middle-aged woman who is a human distributor of names and numbers and probably could beat the local telephone book at its own game.
At Commerce, the Service and Information office generally is referred to as "Baxter's baby." It was from him that I got the facts of the case.
Nobody knows exactly, but it is estimated that there are somewhere around 1,000 "salesmen" a day in Washington, trying to peddle their wares to Uncle Sam. These generally aren't salesmen at all but heads of companies, vice presidents, etc.,
of firms that would like government contracts for everything from toothpicks to zeppelins.
On the other side of the fence are about 500 major purchasers and thousands of inspectors, consumers, supervisors, etc., who have to be convinced before a government contract can be signed.

Was Bad Before Defense
Are you beginning to see the picture? Even before national defense it was utter confusion daily, but with vastly increased buying in recent months, Washington has become a veritable cluster of harried business men—harried, not because they can't put over a deal, but because they can't even find the person to whom they can make their sales talk.
A few months ago, a letter came across Baxter's desk, in which a de-beveled business man listed 12 persons on whom he had called and he still hadn't located the man he was supposed to see. That was the day of the birth of the Service and Information office.

Now, a business man can call at the Department of Commerce, check into the office and within a few minutes have a complete list of government officials he has to see.
One amusing thing is that the very completeness of this list has caused almost as much consternation in some cases as the pick-and-hunt
system did before.

For example, there was a fellow in the other day who wanted to sell the government some lawn-mowers.
While he sat and chatted about the low estate of the lawn-mower business it seems that mass production of "cheap lawn-mowers" was wrecking the old masters' a secretary ran out a list. The list contained 16 names. The lawn-mower tycoon was libbergasted.

"Do I have to see all these people?" he asked.
"Well, you do if you want to cover the field," the S. and I. man answered. "You see, there are 16 people in the government who buy lawnmowers."

Six Cracker Buyers
The fellow who came in to peddle
a new soda cracker bulging with vitamins had an easier job. There are only six persons in the government who buy crackers.

The real kick in Service and Information (to me, anyway) is that according to Baxter, most business men make the junket to Washington needlessly. They could sell just as quickly, many times much more so, by staying at home, and making their contacts in their own trade territories.

Uncle Sam's buyers, it seems, are scattered all over the globe. It's a result of a thing called "decentralization," which Uncle Sam started a long time ago when he discovered that if you want to buy a good mouse trap, you have to beat a path.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—Governor J. M.
Broughton has apparently talked less about his possible appointments
than any politician in a long time.
He just isn't letting anybody know whom he intends to appoint to any post.
Even with this preface there are those hereabouts who will go all the way overboard in predicting that former State Senator Ben Prince will be the next chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission.
Prince is now a member of the State Board of Elections.

The new Department of Motor Vehicles had been approved by only half the legislature, as of early Monday afternoon, but even then there was much speculation about identity of the inevitable Commissioner to head up the new agency.
Nobody was very sure who will get it, but everybody agreed that Ronald Hooton, now director of the Highway Safety Division, would like to.

It seems that it's not only "millions" but everything else for defense nowadays.
Latest to come to this corner's
attention is "Gardens for Defense."

Reports from Belgrade say Yugoslav officials, conferring with Nazi leaders in Germany, will discuss passage of German troops through the rail junction of Nis (1) and then by railway (indicated by line) to Greece in the Nazis' reputed plan to strike at British interests in the Balkans and eastern Mediterranean area. Meanwhile there were military reports of German troop concentrations in western Rumania (2). At the same time a letter circulated secretly in Sofia accused the Bulgarian government of risking participation in the war to satisfy "national aspirations." One of the "aspirations" was interpreted as being the Aegean port of dede Agach (3).

Says Carl Rehder, Wilmingtonian
who has accomplished wonders in the way of interesting city folks in gardens:
"A defense garden movement is under way and rapidly gaining speed. Avoiding hysteria, it seeks not to correct, but to prevent a shortage by developing the latent food production power which lies in every fertile, vacant lot and back yard with an experienced amateur gardener to till it."

Numerous legislative leaders are preparing a 60-day session only,
which would make sine die adjournment come March 8; but there are others who think that's just a little bit too early, even under the most optimistic view of the situation.
March 15 looks more like adjournment date to quote a number of competent observers.

Wednesday committee hearings will see the so-called "Oil Lobby"
on both the offensive and defensive.

terests will be bending every effort to scrap the present gasoline and oil inspection law which requires every gasoline pump in the state to proclaim the grade of gasoline it delivers—"Motor," "Regular" or "Premium." They would also abolish these grades and substitute only a minimum standard for all gasoline.

Before Roads, the petroleum people will be fighting against a favorable report for the Uzzell-Poole bill limiting capacity of petroleum products hauling trucks to 1,500 gal-ons.

NEGRO HIGH SCHOOL
SPONSORS UNIQUE PROGRAM

In the process of public education,
the mastery of the three R's is considered of fundamental importance.
However, the importance of a good character, both to the individual and his community is so outstanding that it should not be overlooked,
neither should it be taken for granted.
In the process of character building, there is no teaching that affords a firmer foundation than that of the Lord Jesus Christ. Cognizant of this fact, the Farmville Colored high school has for the past three years, sponsored an entire week of Christian Endeavor services. During the week, public services were held each night in one of the local churches. The entire community threw itself into these services and the result was all that could be desired. Each evening the church was filled to overflowing mostly with young people who listened attentively while the plain, simple teaching of Jesus Christ was expounded to them with the emphasis upon its relation to their success and happiness in this life as well as the life
after death.

Similar meetings will be held this year beginning Sunday, March 2nd, and continuing throughout the week. No isms, creeds or doctrines will be discussed. The plain, simple teaching of Jesus Christ as it should be practiced in one's daily life will be the theme. The public generally is very cordially invited to attend
these meetings.
The Farmville Colored school may well be called a pioneer in this broader view of public education as well as other things of value to its community. H. B. Sug, its principal, is considered one of the most ablest Negro school men of the state. A visit to this school at work will convince one of this statement.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Roger Cosgrave is not the sort of young man to get into difficulties, but he has. He is to marry a beautiful and charming Emily Perry in a month—and he is madly in love with a girl from the New York tenements named Lovely Day. And he has known Lovely only a couple of days. Now Roger's mother, Marcia Cosgrave, has asked her son to explain himself to her and to Emily.

Chapter 12

Tough Spot
Roger didn't answer immediately. He sat staring at the pattern of the rug, not because he wished to avoid anything, merely because he was trying to find words with which to couch the truth he must tell.

Emily was looking at him, her wide gray eyes calm but shadowed. Her face looked as if she was crying slowly, inwardly.

"John had no business to come here like that," Roger said finally. "But there is a girl, mother. I mean besides Emily."

"What do you mean? Who is she? How long has this been going on? And what in the world if there is a girl? You're marrying Emily shortly and then there will be no more girls. Every young man has his affairs. I'd hate to think my son was any different. The words had come quickly and in a relieved tone as if she had discovered there was less than she had feared.

"But this is different, mother," Roger persisted. "I mean—" he found it difficult to go on. The thing that had happened had surprised him so that how could he expect anyone else to understand it? "It isn't just an affair."

Marcia smiled sweetly. "Just what are you trying to say, Roger?" in a pretty sort of helplessness and exasperation. Things had always been simple for Marcia Cosgrave. Going from parents who adored her to a husband who adored her more had made her life a thing that moved at her desire.

Roger looked at Emily. Her presence was making it doubly hard. Yet he had no wish to conceal anything from her. It was just that her sweet face made him feel doubly unworthy. Then his mother was speaking in that pleasant but imperious voice that took everything for granted.

"You must be sensible, Roger. You've always been sensible about everything before. I know how it is. Emily's probably feeling the same way about the wedding's so near. Half afraid there's some other man she'd rather marry. Why, I felt that way about your father, dear."

Marcia paused as if to give him time to get over his astonishment at that.

"I wasn't at all sure when the time came. And you couldn't find a happier couple than we've been."

"I know, mother," Roger said, aware of Emily's haunted eyes on him.

"Of course you do, so everything's all right. The wedding is going on exactly as we planned. Why we couldn't do anything else now, with the Perry's going away on their Mexican trip as soon as Emily's married. Their second honeymoon. Isn't that sweet?"

Emily was looking down at her hands. Roger's diamond still sparkled there. She started slipping it off and on. Roger thought she looked as if she was about to cry. He must do something. He must. But what? Anything he could do in honesty would be sure to make her tears real.

"Now I'm going to leave you children alone. That's probably the trouble. You haven't had any time to yourselves lately. Too many parties. And another one tonight. Aunt Amalia's dinner for you and Emily Roger. Both families. It's such a lovely thing of Aunt Amalia. Well, you'll soon be off on your honeymoon together!"

She was gone and Emily sat facing Roger in the tense silence.

"You should have told her Roger," Emily said finally. She knew it was tactless. But the silence had gotten unendurable.

"I tried, didn't I?" with the first impatience he had ever shown her. "What can you do with a woman like that? Mother's always been that way. Had her will about things. God knows I wish she could now I wish it was as easy as that."

How It Had Begun
Emily was staring at him as if in surprise at discovering he could be impatient. Something about it made him faintly angry. She was too good and she had taken it for granted he was that way. That annoyed him intensely. She seemed to expect him to be superhuman just because she was able to live in that smooth unruffled shell of sweetness. His thought turned to Lovely. Lovely with her quick mood, her high temper and of tenderness. A man could be himself with her. He knew as he sat there in the library, its venetian blinds drawn against the brilliant light of the late August day, that he was a little glad to escape from having to live up to Emily.

Some day he would cut loose emotionally one way or another—perhaps not in anger, but some way and then Emily would be shocked and startled and hurt. With Lovely he hadn't that to fear. Life had been frank and ruthless with her long before he'd met her, and now she was joyously grateful for its unexpected little tendernesses and niceties.

"What are you going to do?" Emily asked finally.

"What can I do?" still with that note of impatience.

"Roger you've got to go on with it—the presents and all—she was toying with his ring again.

"You've said that before." He felt as if he was being cruel to a helpless puppy. If only she'd flare up and tell him she hated him for it all.

But she didn't. Instead she leaned back in the big chair and covered her face with her hands. She sat so, motionless and wordless, for a long time and Roger was reminded of that other time when she had sat in a wing chair so quietly. At Mar's party when she had overheard her cousin John talking about Lovely. He felt like an actor in a ward play. This thing couldn't be happening to him.

Roger remembered with startled clarity the day Emily's mother had come into the living room as he waited to take Emily to the dog show at Madison, New Jersey. It was late May, Mrs. Perry had started to talk of their engagement as if it was an already established fact.

"I think it would be nice to announce it soon, Roger," she had said.

Roger tried to recover his emotions at that time. There had been no other girl he liked as well as Emily. Probably all this stuff about a grand passion was foolishness. There wasn't such a thing. His mother and father adored Emily as the daughter they had never had.

So he had watched Winthrop Ramsey show the Cosgrave Beddingtons and Kerry Blues that day in a glamorous haze. He was to be an engaged man!

Roger bought the ring for Emily next day.

Well, it hadn't been Emily's fault any more than it had been his. As a matter of fact it really hadn't been very fair to her.

Strange Request
Finally Emily looked up at him, a strange expression on her misery-masked face.

"Roger," she said in a very small voice, "I want you to do something for me."

Roger looked at her, waiting for her to go on. He dared not say he would. She might ask something he couldn't do—like give Lovely up.

"I want to see her. I want you to take me up there. Now." Her voice came in little broken pieces with taut silences between.

Roger wasn't sure he had heard aright. He stared at Emily.

"I want to see her, Roger," she insisted. "I must see her."

"But," hesitatingly, "I can't do that!"

"Why not?" her hands moved out in the dimness of the room like pale ghosts of appeal. "Why not, Roger? We're two girls in love—" she paused and changed it, "who want the same man. If I thought she really loved you—" she paused thoughtfully. It was a long time before she went on. Blaze had gotten up, tired of inactivity and strolled from the room.

"Roger," finally, "I think we have a right to see each other. You have belonged to me first. I have a right to see the girl I give you up to, if I must give you up." The last scarcely above a whisper.

Emily showed a firmness that Roger had never suspected existed under her soft pretty exterior. There were depths of sustaining metal there he'd never touched before. He was to see more of that quality as months wore on.

Eventually they were walking to the garage together. They got into a roadster and Roger backed out expertly. Marcia Cosgrave watched them and smiled contentedly.

Everything was all fixed again. They were going out together and they looked completely poised as if nothing was wrong. Young love had its ups and downs. Marcia thought indulgently. It was unthinkable that Emily shouldn't eventually be her daughter. Emily was so suited to fit into their family circle and ornament, the home Roger would eventually create for her.

She was perfect for carrying on all of the fine old Cosgrave tradition. She belonged with all of the priceless old Cosgrave possessions. It would be a pleasure to pass them on to her. Marcia Cosgrave's heart was light and glowing with happiness.

Emily and Roger rode up the hill in silence. There were still hollyhocks in bloom around Grand-Hale's cottage. Phlox was a riot of tender lavender and white at the edge of the lawn. Old fashioned Lady-of-the-Lake lifted heliotrope spikes toward the sun. A gnarled apple tree bent under its weight of fruit.

"It's beautiful!" Emily's voice was muted.

Roger knew quite well what she was thinking. Honeymoon cottage. That's what it always had been. And she had always loved the place, and supposed her own marriage would start there. It would be, if not their real home, their hide-away. The place they'd go when they felt the need of each other and the sky and the stars and the scent of flowers blowing in from the garden.

But Lovely did not come to the door immediately.

All Phantom Teams On Schedule For Tonight's Games

LASSIES MEET PACK SEXTET

Boys' Teams Journey to Kinston to Meet the Devils

With a three game schedule confronting the Phantom teams tonight, and their opponents, it should be a big evening with no less than three victories. The varsity boys and junior team will journey to Kinston to engage an unpredictable Red Devil squad. Coach Mary Shaw Roberts-Lady sextet will meet the Washington girls on the local floor at eight.

By all means the varsity boys should be the heaviest victors with the baby Phantoms not far behind. In an earlier season meeting the Farley men handed the Red Devils a 37-22 defeat on the local court. The game was easier than the score intimates as the reserves played most of the last period. Roland Faylor, sharp-shooting forward caused the Phantoms a little trouble by running up a high score for his team, but they were not able to match the scoring of the Farley men.

For the past two games, Coach Farley has done a little changing in his line-up. Burney Warren, hook-shot artist, was moved from his old forward slot into the pivot position of center. Larry James, former center has been switched to forward.

This change in positions has seemed to fill in the weakness and has changed the team quite a lot. Coach Farley's line-up will probably include James and Corey at forwards, Warren at center and Clark and Johnson at guards.

Junior Boys
Coach Fulkerson can probably count on the junior varsity to bring home some bacon and pull them from their defeat last week to a Class A ball club. Durham hung a three-point licking over a scrappy Baby Phantom team after they were doped to win by a large margin. With three defeats on record against them, some might say the juniors are slipping but two of the defeat were at the hands of Class A teams.

Although Coach Fulkerson's line-up is unpredictable, he will probably include as his starters, Murphy and Merritt at forwards, Teel at center and Harrison and Register at guards.

Girls
While the boys are battling to come back into the win column tonight in Kinston, the girls will be fighting to come back from a licking last week by Tarboro and also get back into the victories. Against their earliest opponents this season, the Lady Phantoms have made their worst showing. In the first game of the season a falling Ginstons sextet took a win but the Phantomettes showed their superiority and came back to soundly trounce the Kinstonians in the second meeting. In the first meeting with Tarboro earlier in the season they came out victorious by a large margin. Tarboro won last week in the second meeting by three points. Joy Flanagan, Betty Tyson, and Peggy West will probably get the starting call at forward while Jane Harrison, Doris Roberts, and Lib Wells will likely start at guard.

Man About Manhattan

New York.—If you think everything happens to you, consider the plight of the poor taxi meter countered today. Twice in two days he has been overwhelmed by event that were none of his choosing. He was just an innocent bystander.

Last Thursday night he was parked on Fifth Avenue at 49th Street waiting for a car. A roadster tore past and as he followed it with his gaze he was horrified to see two bodies tumble from it. "It happened so fast," he explained, "that for a moment I thought a couple of drunks had toppled out of the rumble seat. But they weren't drunks. They weren't even in the car. They were pedestrians and that hit-and-run roadster had knocked them down."

The caddy went on to say his first impulse had been to rush them to a hospital. But in New York, a very big city, picking up bodies has complications. It might be difficult to prove that you weren't the one who knocked them down.

Fortunately, however, another caddy ran up and said, "I saw that guy. I'll be a witness." The victims therefore were speedily taken to a big mid-town hospital. But this hospital had no emergency entrance and the driver was told he would have to go up to the third floor to see about having the patients received. Angered, he rushed around the corner to another hospital that had less red tape.

But his troubles were only beginning. He then had to hurry to the police station and report the accident. The police received his report with skepticism, despite the accompanying driver's corroboration. Fortunately the roadster's bracket mirror had been knocked off, and after a detective checked to see that the caddy's mirror was intact, he was released.

That was Thursday night. Friday night he drove from a mid-town address to Amsterdam Avenue, and quickly returned to his downtown stand. When he checked into the taxi's garage about 3 a. m., the other drivers in the fleet began clustering around him excitedly, crying, "Haven't the cops picked you up yet?"

When he ascertained that his colleagues were in earnest, he hurried away to the police station to find out the trouble. It seemed that just as he dropped his fares at Amsterdam Avenue two men had held up a corner store and escaped. An eyewitness to the robbery had noted that a green Packard cab at that moment had turned around and driven away. He jotted down the cab's number.

Here's Notre Dame's Past And Present

A few moments later the bandits held up another store further uptown, and escaped again, and about an hour later held up still another store and escaped—in a green Packard cab. Nobody got the license number this time but the inference was obvious.

It took our driver a lot of explaining to convince the police that he was innocent, but they finally released him.

"Not only that," moaned the driver, "but think of all the time I lost."

Roosevelt's Visitor

With his credentials tucked under his arm, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, new Japanese ambassador to the United States, enters the White House in Washington to call on his old friend, President Roosevelt. Mounting tension in the Far East gave an unexpected touch of gravity to the visit.

Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain is reported to have renounced his claims to the inactive throne of his country in favor of his son and heir, Juan (above). Alfonso was said to have urged the Spanish people to place Prince Juan on the throne in the event the monarchy is restored. Some observers said Generalissimo Franco favors restoration of the monarchy.

Indians Flock To Camp For Early Training

Row Appears Certain On Senate Re-Districting

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Feb. 18.—Predicting that the current General Assembly will show any fight on any subject is very much like forecasting that the many bearskin rug that has been relegated to the attic will come downstairs and claw up the family, but it does seem that at last there has been found something over which the boys will bow their back and grow just a little bit belligerent.

That's because many of them have been hit right where they live by the Senatorial redistricting bill that has been cooked up by the chief political chefs and served up as something of a main course. For too many, it's crow, however, and that's why there may be trouble of sorts. Even so, the concoctors of the bill were politically very bright. They didn't do enough re-shuffling to make everybody fly into a tantrum and tear his hair. There are enough districts left as is to furnish quite a nucleus of "aye" votes. The legislators from these untouched districts may not be wholly and completely satisfied, but they are not going to court trouble by starting anything which might end up in their being much worse off at the finish than they were at the start.

Signs of trouble are clearly apparent. From Salisbury comes word that Rowan objects violently to losing its strange hold on a full time Senator. At present its a separate district. It is proposed to merge it with Cabarrus and Davie, with two senators from the three counties. From Guilford there is a noise to the effect that a fight will be made for two Senators. Maybe so—but that would be little but a waste of time, temper and effort. The legislature simply isn't going to vote any county two senators unless things get so hot that more than fifty per cent are willing to cut off their own nose to spite their face.

Eighty-Eight January Highway Victims In State

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Feb. 18.—Death worked overtime on North Carolina roads in North Carolina during January claiming 88 victims in highway traffic accidents, according to provisional figures of the highway safety division.

This is an increase of 20 over January, 1940, and there remains a good chance that the fatality figures will climb even higher when all the returns are in; because they are provisional only and not final.

Reckless, speeding and drunken drivers combined with careless and perhaps pie-eyed pedestrians to account for the greatest single item in the long casualty list, with no less than 36 pedestrians numbered 'mid the slain.

Not only was there no letup in the ghastly slaughter on the roads last month, but this month promises to provide even grimmer evidence that those at the wheel in North Carolina are, in far too great a proportion, heedless of the hazards of handling high speed, powerful motor vehicles.

Next to the running down of pedestrians, the crash of motor vehicles with motor vehicles was deadliest in January, with 23 dead. Thirteen persons died as the cars they were driving or in which they were passengers ran off the roadway and overturned.

Four races between trains and motor cars for crossing rights finished in dead heats—and nine dead were strewn along the tracks—four lying in one smashup in Johnston three in another in Halifax and one each in Durham and Orange.

Two bicyclists were killed in Surry. Three perished in car-fixer collisions, and two were killed in what is technically termed "other non-collision" accidents.

There were fifteen more persons killed than there were fatal accidents, this accentuating a recent tendency to kill 'em off wholesale rather than one by one.

Three more accidents in all which claimed more than one life apiece. In addition to the four-dead and three-dead crossing tragedies, already mentioned, there were three other triple-header (or rather triple-decker) accidents and four doubletons.

With Charlotte killing off more than all the other cities of North Carolina combined, Mecklenburg took an early lead in the annual race for dishonorable mention, though Johnston, thanks to its quadruple killing, and Wake, with a three-in-one morgue filler, were tied for second place, within easy killing distance of the top. The tally showed eight for Mecklenburg, half a dozen apiece for Johnston and Wake.

No city other than Charlotte had more than one death dealing wreck during the month. Durham, Greensboro, Kinston, Wilmington, Greenville and Raleigh had one each.

Killings by counties were: Alamance 3, Anson 1, Buncombe 2, Burke 1, Caldwell 1, Chatham 3, Cleveland 1, Columbus 2, Cumberland 4, Currituck 1, Duplin 1, Durham 2, Edgecombe 1, Forsyth 1, Gates 1, Graham 1, Greene 1, Guilford 3, Halifax 4, Harnett 1, Hoke 1, Johnston 6, Lenoir 2, Macon 1, Madison 1, Martin 1, McDowell 1, Mecklenburg 8, New Hanover 2, Orange 1, Pasquotank 1, Pender 2, Perquimans 1, Pitt 1, Robeson 1, Rockingham 1, Rowan 1, Rutherford 1, Sampson 1, Stokes 1, Surry 2, Union 3, Wake 6, Warren 2, Wayne 1, Wilkes 3, Yadkin 1.

Sights And Sounds By Robbin Coon

Hollywood — "Buck Privates." Screenplay by Arthur T. Horman. Directed by Arthur Lubin. Principals: Lee Bowman, Alan Curtis, Bud Abbott, Lou Costello, the Andrews Sisters, Jane Frazee, Nat Pendleton.

All corn and a yard wide, this first comedy featuring selective service adds up to the sort of thing some critics will grant more or less indulgent sneers while the mass audience clasps it avidly to heart.

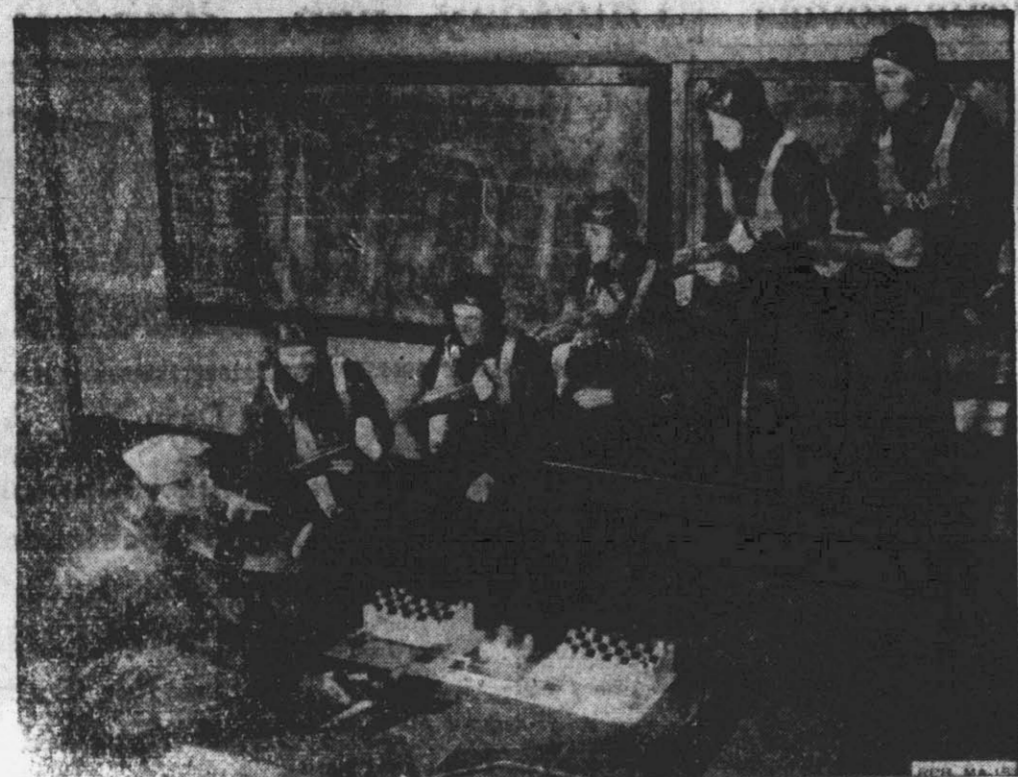

It is tailored to the measure of the comic pair, Abbott and Costello whose humor has steamroller subtlety, whose gags in the main have a pleasant familiarity and more than likely will win roaring approval. Best sequence: pudgy, long-suffering Costello being drilled by straight-man Abbott, pulling all the faux pas the average man can—and a few more—with the manual of arms.

"Buck Privates" tells a story of sorts, which doesn't matter much. It's about a rich snob (Bowman), his former chauffeur (Curtis), both draftees, and a camp hostess (Frazee) with whom they both fall in love. Army life reforms the snob, or did you guess?

There's a quick pace to the picture, plenty of catchy music, plenty of something very funny called "boogie-woogie" dancing, and on the whole you ought to have more fun at "Buck Privates" than you've had at a dozen more colossal epics.

"Western Union." Screenplay by Robert Carson from Zane Grey's novel. Directed by Fritz Lang. Principals: Robert Young, Randolph Scott, Dean Jagger, Virginia Gilmore, John Carradine, Slim Sumner, Chill Wills, Barton MacLane, Russell Hicks, Victor Kilian, Minor Watson, George Chandler, Chief Big Tree, Chief Thundercloud. Darryl Zanuck's lot is still bent on winning the west, and this chapter can be rated among its more successful efforts.

What Goes Up Must Come Down!

Some airplane pilots say the first hundred feet are the hardest. Others maintain the last hundred are harder yet. In any case, landing a plane is not a simple task and at Randolph Field, Texas, where the rapidly expanding U. S. Army Air Corps is filling the air with alert young men in swift training ships, it is a job for skill and concentration. The rules of flying must be combined with the strict aerial traffic rules. Above, cadets at the "West Point of the Air" learn from an instructor (kneeling) the complete technique for a 180 degree approach to the field, using model planes and a model airport. They will try the real thing later.

WHAT IT MEANS

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington—The lease-lend bill touches the fuse again to the perennial debate over the emergency powers of the President.

Legal lights even have refined the thing down to the fine point of arguing the meaning of words like "make" and "declare" as they appear in the Constitution.

In the past historians have woven power into the role of public opinion, and biographers have psychoanalyzed the personal leadership of Presidents, attributed to it the great powers often exercised by a strong President.

The historian's point is easier to prove. All authorities agree that public opinion is the fountain-head of the President's powers, especially in emergencies. Public approval saved T. Roosevelt from a fate worse than a political death when they took the Panama Canal Zone.

The only question is, which came first, the public opinion or the President's influence on that public opinion? At any rate, most authorities agree that during crises Congress usually acts merely to ratify the decisions made by Presidents.

The first use of emergency powers by a President came almost immediately after the union was formed. President Washington proclaimed an emergency and ordered out troops to quell the Pennsylvania whiskey rebellion. The farmers were using arms to back up their boycott of a new whiskey tax. As they saw it, they couldn't get their grain to market in any other form than as distilled whiskey and the new tax worked a hardship on them.

Congress changed the law in their favor, but still the farmers' riot. After a year or so, Washington tired of waiting for peace. He issued his proclamation and sent the soldiers to back it up. Those two acts of the first president are highly significant, because they were taken independently of Congress and thereby established precedent.

Since that day both Presidents and Congresses have declared emergencies, depending on which one got the idea first. Lincoln started the Civil War months before he called Congress.

Presidents usually welcome legal backing for their emergency decisions, sometimes create it. For instance, when President Roosevelt declared an emergency last year, he (1) followed the Washington precedent but also (2) by that act he put life into several laws that lie dormant until an emergency arises. One of these is the preparedness law of 1916, which gives the President powers to mobilize industry.

Although the color photography does wonders with some spectacular Utah scenery, Director Lang's interest is centered on action, and "Western Union" wastes no time dallying by pretty waysides.

Scott plays Vance Shaw, ex-Missouri bandit who has joined up with the telegraph company. Jagger (ex-"Brigham Young") is the company's chief engineer, with the job of spreading wires across the continent for the service of his country engaged in civil war. Young is the Harvard dude who joins for the experience, and Miss Gilmore (who gains immeasurably in color) is the engineer's sister.

The marauding Indians who plague the line crew's progress are discovered to be not Redskins but blackguards, members of Vance Shaw's former gang. Shaw, loyal to the company, but hating to give away his old pals, tries to warn them away, but takes no decisive stand until they ruthlessly rout the construction camp in a beautiful crackling, horrendous technicolor fire.

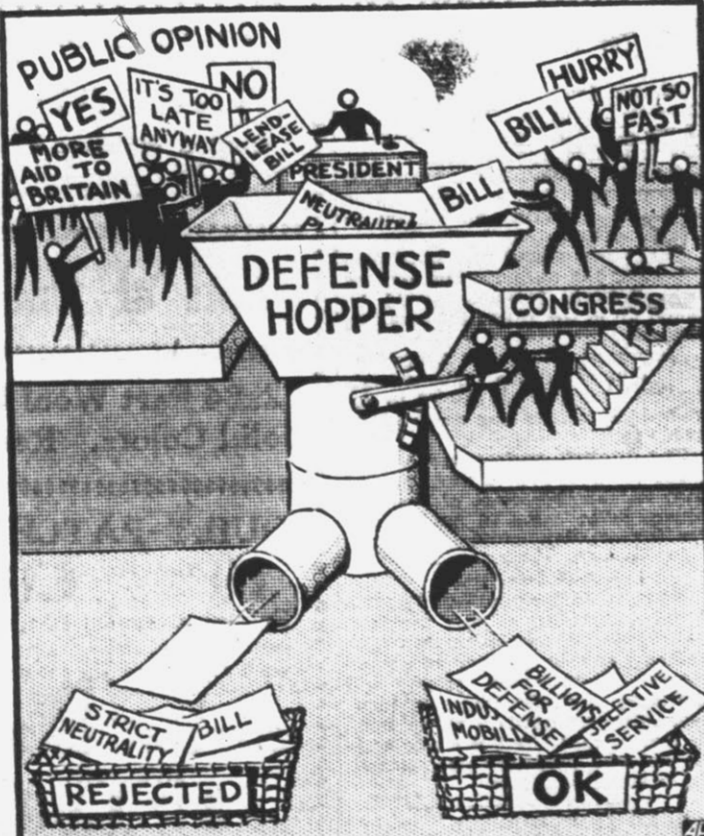

There's a rousing Indian battle, some lightly played love interest, some comedy relief by Summerville as the reluctant camp cook, and a generous measure of all other ingredients essential to a movie of the type. Excellent sequence: the powwow with the Indians to convince them that the "singing wire" is heap strong medicine and should be allowed to pass through their country.

ger, and declare war. Or it could declare a war of aggression, though the President may not do that.

They base the argument on the fact that the founding fathers decided whether Congress should have the power to MAKE war or to DECLARE war. The original word was "make." "Declare" was substituted when it was pointed out that the President might have to make war to defend our short while Congress was gathering.

The trouble with that argument is that almost any act of war ordered by a President or a military officer would be called defense whether it actually was or not. And so nothing is settled.

In the Spanish-American and World war—a new technique began to develop in the White House. Both Presidents McKinley and Wilson tried to keep Congress, public opinion and Presidential emergency decisions abreast of each other. How much influence they wielded to create the public opinion that touched

COTTON helps build CONCRETE ROADS

Concrete road building uses vast quantities of cotton! Each year, millions of pounds of cotton are used for sacking the portland cement with which concrete is made. Each year, hundreds of thousands of heavy cotton covering mats are used for "cutting" the freshly placed concrete in hundreds of miles of new roads. Concrete is the most economical road for hauling your cotton to market. Figures prove that concrete is the real "low cost road" for everybody—superior in safety, durability and economy. For these reasons—all important to YOU—demand concrete for your roads.

Padlocks Station On Judge's Orders

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor revealed today that Craig's place near James' mill, between Bethel and Conetoe, had been padlocked by order of Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill, resident Superior court judge, on charges of being a place of public nuisance and disorder. The order closing the place was made returnable before Judge Leo Carr, presiding over the current civil session of Pitt Superior court, on Friday of this week. Craig's place was the second such place closed by the sheriff's office within the past few months, the other having been the Log Cabin on the Washington highway.

First Aid Course To Be Conducted

A First Aid course, to be conducted principally for members of the Greenville Fire department and volunteer firemen of the city, but open to anyone wishing to enroll, will get under way in the fire station tonight. Classes will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays for five weeks, thereby giving those enrolled a 20-hour course. C. W. Willard of the Water and Light Commission, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross chapter, will have charge of the program and will provide experienced instructors. Although the course is being conducted primarily for firemen, others wishing to enroll can do so by attending tonight's class. Several hundred persons have received training in first aid during the several classes conducted throughout the county under the supervision of Chairman Willard.

To Start Soon On Huge Marine Base

Washington, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval Affairs Committee today promised speedy action upon the navy's request for a $40,000,000 appropriation for a huge marine base and a marine air station in Onslow county, North Carolina. Vinson announced that legislation providing the authorization for the twin projects probably would be called up in the House tomorrow or Thursday. Meanwhile, the House Appropriations Committee had under consideration an item of $1,500,000 to acquire land for the base and air station. The project envisages the purchase of about 100,000 acres for the base and another tract of about 14 square miles, some 25 miles away for the aviation development. A Gentle Hint Bern, Switzerland.—(AP)—The Swiss department of war economy has forbidden merchants to wage verbally and in written advertisements of increased prices and shortages of goods.
