HITLER WARNS OF NEW TYPE SUBMARINE

NAZI TARGETS ASSAULTED BY RAF BOMBERS

Ports On German-Held Invasion Coast Suffer Bombing

GERMAN PLANES CONTINUE RAIDS

Nazi High Command Also Reports Four Enemy Merchantmen Sunk Through U-Boat Activities

London, Feb. 24.—(AP)—British bombers hit again overnight at familiar targets along the Nazi-held invasion coast, raiding Boulogne for the 74th time and Calais for the 61st.

British officials said the attacks were on a "moderate scale," but were "quite successful" despite unfavorable weather.

Hostile warplanes appeared over East Anglia in the first daylight activity of the day in the air war.

German offensive operations had begun in the darkness before dawn when long-range guns fired across the Strait of Dover from the coast of France.

Overnight bomber raids on Eastern England dwindled away before the big gun bombardment.

A communiqué said the night attacks were "not heavy and soon ceased" and caused "little damage and few casualties."

(Authorized Germans reported that Nazi shore batteries on the French coast had dispersed a British convoy off Dover.

The German high command announced that a Nazi submarine had sunk four armed "enemy" merchantmen totalling 33,100 tons, thus boosting the sub's commander's record for the war to 19 merchantmen of 111,943 tons. Another submarine the communiqué said, reported sinking two armed merchantmen totalling 7,000 tons.

In the Mediterranean, the communiqué continued, "German combat planes sank a 10,000-ton enemy merchantman north of Derina."

Fourteen Negroes Called To Service

Fourteen Pitt county Negroes—six from Selective Service Board Number One and eight from Board Number Two—have been summoned to report to their respective boards at 10 o'clock Friday morning to be sent to Fort Bragg for induction in the U. S. army, if they pass final physical examinations.

All 14 were taken from the voluntary enlistment lists and these rolls still have sufficient names to provide the county's colored quota for some time yet. It was explained by officials of the two boards. The white voluntary lists, however, have been exhausted and the next men to be sent to camp will be drafted.

The following colored selectees will be sent from Board Number One on Friday: Oakley Carr, Greenville; Route Three, Sam Sneed, Bethel; Route One, William Wilkins, Bethel; William Donaldson, Greenville; Route Two, John Alfonso Vines, Bethel; Rudolph Tyson, Farmville; Route One.

Those to be sent from Board Number Two are: Samuel Washington, Bullock; Greenville; Lee Edwards Vines, Greenville; Lamb Ormond Ayden, Route Two; Edward Eorum, Greenville; Albert Moore, Greenville; James Bradley, Greenville; Raymond Bynum, Grifton; Route Two; John Henry Hammond, Winterville.

Ward Street Home Entered At Night

Chief of Police George Clark and other officials thought they had solved the series of "peeping tom" incidents Saturday with the arrest of James Clark, Negro, who was run down after having been seen peeping in the window of the home of D. E. Jones on West Fifth street, but another home was entered last night, leading police to believe that the belief more than one Negro was engaged in prowling and peeping activities.

The home of Early Davis on Ward street was entered last night for the second time within the past several weeks. The home was entered last night through the removal of a screen from the window. On the previous occasion the intruder entered through a door. Nothing was reported missing either time.

With the new report, officials are pressing their campaign to break up the series.

Foreign Minister Says Impossible For Turkey To Remain Indifferent

Told Leave Siam

Bangkok, Thailand, Feb. 24.—(AP)—United States citizens without urgent reasons for remaining in Thailand (Siam) have been advised to leave for home, United States Minister Hugh Grant announced today. There are about 200 Americans in this country.

In Tokyo, the Cabinet Information Bureau announced a second 10-day extension of the armistice between Thailand and French Indo-China, prolonging it to March 7.

Japanese mediators were said to have suggested the extension of individual talks yesterday with negotiators for Thailand and the French colony because of "some points requiring further consultation."

Statement Interpreted As Reference To Expected Invasion Of Bulgaria By Nazi Legions Asserts Turkey Will Oppose With Force Any Encroachment On Her Territorial Integrity

Ankara, Turkey, Feb. 24. (AP)—In what was interpreted as a reference to the expected movement of German troops into Bulgaria, Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu said in a statement published today that Turkey would find it impossible "to remain indifferent to foreign activities which might occur in her security zone."

"Turkey will oppose with force any and all aggression which might be directed against her territorial integrity or her independence," he said.

Turkey has always considered Bulgaria to be a part of her own security zone, but diplomatic observers were puzzled over the exact interpretation of the words that Turkey, a non-belligerent ally of Great Britain, would be unable to "remain indifferent."

In Bulgaria, meanwhile, all automobile traffic in the Sofia district was halted by police as they began a nation-wide search for Bulgarian spreading anti-German leaflets, one of a number of signs interpreted by observers as indicating impending Nazi troop movements into and across the country.

Reports from Hungary said still more German soldiers were moving across that country into Rumania near door to Bulgaria, whose border regions, including the area along the Danube river facing the Rumanian border where Nazi troops are massed, were forbidden to foreigners.

At the same time, Rep. Vogler of Mecklenburg said he planned to introduce tonight or tomorrow a bill to permit municipalities with over 10,000 population to extend or increase their corporate limits by ordinance without special legislative acts.

Vogler said he also was studying the idea of a bill to add two new judicial districts in the state, making 23 in all and making Mecklenburg and Guilford counties each a judicial district. That would also make a separate judicial district each of Gaston and Davidson counties, Vogler said.

The governor said the committee to study the field of vocational education would also consider the matter of teacher training for vocational work.

The commission on civil service would study the coordination of civil service or merit systems now in effect for federal-state agencies such as the UCC and old age assistance division, as well as a general civil service for the state.

D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the Agriculture committee, said the General Assembly would be asked to change the state fertilizer law "to give farmers greater protection, to decrease the use of sand of various grades and simplify information on plant food guarantees."

Coltrane explained that the proposal would lower the number of grades of fertilizers and would promote greater use of grades recommended by the North Carolina experiment station.

Three charges of drunkenness, two assault cases, a wreck case, a whiskey charge, one of trespass, another of vagrancy and two of traffic law violations were aired in the regular Monday morning session of Municipal recorder's court.

Prisoners for judgment was continued in the two traffic law violations cases, in which Cecil H. Sawyer and Harvey Moore were the defendants.

Two defendants, both colored, were charged with assault with a deadly weapon, but convicted only of simple assault. The two were Ceretha Ward and Jesse Battle, each of whom was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs.

A nol pros with leave was taken in a whiskey case naming Caesar Green, Negro, as defendant. Similar disposition was made of a vagrancy charge against Alfred Perry, Negro, and also on a charge of trespass and damaging personal property against Charlie Jenkins, Negro.

Mrs. Rebekah Satterfield, white, and Selena S. Lang, colored, were acquitted of charges of careless and reckless driving.

Heber Anderson, colored, and Vernon Bunting, white, convicted of drunkenness, were given 30 days each, suspended upon payment of costs. Raymond Butler, white, also convicted of drunkenness, was given a 30-day sentence, but the defendant was given until tomorrow to get out of the city.

Lend-Lease Bill Foes Resume Senate Debate

ASK NEW LAW ON FERTILIZER

New Measure To Save Farmers Worry And Money

Reflector Bureau. By LYNN NISBET. Raleigh, Feb. 24.—Result of study and conferences among manufacturers, dealers, farmers, and department and college experts on the whole question of commercial fertilizer, is a proposed new fertilizer law, due to hit the legislative mill any day. Many of the changes in the old law are in the interest of simplicity and better understanding on part of the farmer of just what he gets in the fertilizer he buys.

Certain ingredients will be stated in terms of percentage of the total, rather than in decimal content as at present. The range of available grades of fertilizer will be reduced and will be fixed at not more than fifty nor less than thirty-five. That one item is expected to save lots of money and confusion. Increase in minimum plant food units will be made from 14 to 16 for the elimination of thousands of tons of worthless filler for which the farmer now pays ten dollars or more per ton.

Other changes in the law deal more with the mechanics of its operation and enforcement, method of registering brands, increasing penalties, etc.

According to D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the commissioner of agriculture and a recognized authority on commercial fertilizer, the new law will make it much easier for the North Carolina farmers to know what he gets and what he may expect in the way of performance of fertilizer.

The new law also will conform more closely to federal regulations and to the laws in neighboring states than the present statute does.

Clark assailed the legislation in an address prepared for Senate delivery as the general debate moved into its seventh day.

Britain, he asserted, was fighting for "commercial supremacy," not democracy.

Propose Extension For Civil Service

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—Extension of the classified civil service to all federal employees, except those in policy-making positions and those requiring Senate confirmation was proposed today by a committee headed by Associate Justice Reed of the Supreme court.

President Roosevelt created the committee in civil service improvement two years ago. He transmitted its report with an accompanying message to Congress.

We are satisfied," Reed informed the chief executive. "That the organization of the government service as a career on a Democratic basis is essential to the proper conduct of public affairs."

DEFENSE FUND IS REQUESTED BY ROOSEVELT

Nearly Four Billion Dollars Requested For Year

WAY IS CLEARED FOR N.C. PROJECT

House Rules Committee Paves Way For Bill Containing Funds For Erection Of New Marine Base

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for an additional $3,812,311,197 for national defense purposes for the balance of the current fiscal year.

Of the total $1,716,225,000 would be a direct appropriation and $2,096,086,197 would be in contractual authority.

Also today, the House Rules Committee cleared the way for consideration, possibly tomorrow, of an authorization for a $84,902,883 public works program, mostly for expansion of existing facilities.

The bill called for the committee called for $122,902,883, including $40,000,000 for a new marine base in North Carolina, but Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval Committee said that Secretary Knox had asked that only $1,500,000 be authorized for the Carolina project at this time. Vinson said the change would be made.

He told the committee that it was contemplated that 110,000 acres would be purchased for the North Carolina post. Most of these would cost an average of $12.50 an acre but several thousands which he said would be used for an air field would cost $25 an acre.

The President also asked Congress today for $150,000,000 to build community facilities in towns where he said an acute shortage impeded "essential national defense activities."

Reading a lengthy address, La Follette agreed with Senator Clark (D-Idaho), who preceded him on the Senate floor, that Britain was not fighting America's battle and this country should devote its energies to home defenses.

"This bill means war," La Follette declared. "Whatever fine trappings it is decked with, it hides the skull and bones and death on old world battlefields and death on the seven seas."

Clark assailed the legislation in an address prepared for Senate delivery as the general debate moved into its seventh day.

Britain, he asserted, was fighting for "commercial supremacy," not democracy.

Expanded Sea Warfare Slated Start In March

Up from the Ranks

The new chief of infantry in Uncle Sam's army is General Courtney H. Hodges who left West Point without graduating and enlisted in the army as a private. He was named to infantry chief post with the temporary rank of major general. He has been commandant of the Infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., since last October.

Hitler warned Britain of a great naval offensive to come in March and April and gave point to the threat with a report that 215,000 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space" had been sunk in the last two days, including a convoy of 125,000 tons.

Of the total, he credited 190,000 tons to submarine action.

His reference to the successes against shipping in full said: "Two hours ago I received news that German surface craft and submarines sank 215,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping space in the past two days."

"Among them was a convoy comprising 125,000 tons. Submarines share this success by 190,000 tons."

Then, he added, "the gentlemen (the optish) can rest assured that beginning in April bigger things will happen."

A little later he returned to this theme.

"I wish to assure the enemy that I am feeling especially fresh now," he said. "Spring is coming, the season in which we will be able to challenge the opponent."

According to the Berlin radio, he said at this point: "And I know that in this moment millions of German soldiers are thinking exactly the same way. This was perhaps an indication that the army too, figures largely in Hitler's plans for the spring drive."

He addressed the whole German nation, but his visible audience was made up of the Nazi comrades who gathered in Munich's Hofbrau house.

The Reich leader, speaking on the 21st anniversary of the founding of the National Socialist party, said that within the last two days the German U-boat and air force campaign had destroyed 215,000 tons of enemy shipping.

Hitler said that the dreams of Germany's enemies following the World war were to keep her "small and ineffective."

The party was thereupon provoked to unify the German people, he said. "To us all Germans had to be Germans first, last and always."

Bit by bit Hitler recited the rise of the party he helped to found and shouted to his partisans a recapitulation of the hardships he said the party had endured in freeing Germany from the shackles of the Versailles treaty.

Then he told how political leaders were forced to convert the post-war German government from one for special interests into one for all the people of the Reich. In this respect, he said, the Jews had the "greatest responsibility for the maintenance of that ill-fated system."

Hitler touched on American participation in post-war developments when he said that "even the high-sounding promises of former President Wilson turned out to be so much talk."

"Promises made to us by other nations were utterly futile and hollow," he said.

Just before the fire broke out at Mrs. Warren's home, firemen were called to the Primitive Baptist church at the corner of Tenth and Cotanche streets when steam from a leaking pipe caused some one to fear the church was afire.

Various aspects of the topic of the evening, "The College Student As a Modern Disciple," were discussed by three members of the visiting team. Harold McManis, discussed the student as a modern disciple in the church; Paul Early, in the college; and C. B. Northrop, in the community.

The service was closed with a prayer by the quartet.

Christian Science Service.

"Mind" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in the Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, February 23.

The golden text was from Philippians 2:13: "It is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "For God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (II Cor. 4:6).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The universe reflects and expresses the divine substance or Mind; therefore God is seen only in the spiritual universe and spiritual man, as the sun is seen in the ray of light which goes out from it. God is revealed only in that which reflects Life, Truth, Love—yes, which manifests God's attributes and power, even as the human likeness thrown upon the mirror, repeats the color, form, and action of the person in front of the mirror. Man, in the likeness of his Maker, reflects the central light of being, the invisible God."

Garden Club Meets.
The Greenville Garden Club held an unusually enjoyable meeting Friday afternoon in the club house. A short business session was held. Mrs. M. M. Garrett, president, presiding. Some excerpts from the Bulletin of the N. C. Garden Club were read by Mrs. Garrett, calling the club's attention to the annual Conservation Conference of the N. C. Garden Club held at State College in Raleigh, Friday, February 21. Mrs. K. W. Cobb represented the Greenville Garden Club at this conference.

Another item discussed, which is of much interest to all Garden Club members, was the selection of a state flower—North Carolina being one of the few states having no official flower. It is hoped that the present session of the North Carolina Legislature will adopt one. The Florida Azalea has been most generally approved. The National Council of the State Garden Clubs

New Bank
Work commenced today in the store next to The Reflector to fit it up for the Greenville Bank & Trust Company. The new bank will have nice quarters for its business.

A Noble Work
The Singletary chapter of Daughters of the Confederacy was beautifully entertained by Mrs. E. B. Ficklen on Friday afternoon. Rightly claiming that the South has adhered more strictly to the principles of liberty instilled into our forefathers by Washington and his followers than any other section of the Union, and that Washington, had he lived in our day, would have stood side by side with Lee.

The Greenville chapter passed a resolution to furnish necessary supplies, and gentle hands are now busily at work hemming sheets and pillow cases and making night garments for the inmates of the soldiers' home.

is to hold its annual meeting in Asheville May 26-30, at which time it is hoped that North Carolina will take her place along with those states having an official flower.

The meeting at this point was turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. Herbert Waldrop, "the prima donna of Greenville." In a most effective manner Mrs. Waldrop sang two delightful selections, "Yesterday and Today," and "Where Heaven Is."

The program continued with a talk by Mrs. Travis Hooker, entitled "Gardens I've Visited in the North-west." The Lambeth Garden in Portland, Oregon, the Duffy Garden in Seattle, Washington, and the Butchart Garden in Victoria, Canada. Graphically Mrs. Hooker pictured these gardens, in fact so graphically that her listeners in their imagination saw all the beauty of nature and more that she had seen. As she closed her talk she left her audience hoping that some day the path of opportunity might actually lead them to the beauty and the glory of these wonderful gardens.

A social hour followed. The hostesses were Mesdames Walter Cherry, F. P. Brooks, C. F. Keenokamp, Cammie Moore, J. H. Randolph, A. E. Gibson and J. L. Briley.

Library News
The library has recently had framed a splendid map of North Carolina for nature lovers, a chart—an authoritative guide—offered as a practical aid to those seeking the beauty of their state. The map was given to the library by Mrs. Will Hooker, and for the time being is hung over the south mantle in the main reading room.

The younger patrons of the library are very much interested in some handwork of Hogan Gaskins, Jr., a mounted butterfly collection, which is on display in the children's reading room.

Comment heard at desk—"Why can't we have more of the new books? It takes a long time for two copies of a popular book to cover Pitt county."

In the past years the library has spent approximately sixty dollars for newspapers and magazines. This year twenty dollars has been added to that amount so that the patrons may find on the magazine table and the newspaper rack a more representative group of periodicals.

The library has just purchased the latest edition of the Americana Encyclopedia, complete in 30 leather-bound volumes, the set containing the equivalent of approximately four hundred average size volumes.

This encyclopedia was first published in 1829 and is America's best known and authoritative major reference book. It is written from an American viewpoint but international in its scope. All of the main articles are signed by unquestioned authorities from all over the world.

What the Britannica is to England, the Larousse is to France, and the Brockhaus to Germany, the Americana is to the United States.

Thirty beautifully bound volumes of a series of books gotten together like the National Geographic Magazine and entitled "Lands and Peoples," has recently been put on the shelves of the library. The editor is Holland Thompson. The volumes contain hundreds of colored pictures of every country of the world, and the descriptions are written in simple, discernible language for children to enjoy. Each country is portrayed fascinatingly and informatively.

A recent Saturday Review of Literature recorded this happy omen: "Ten years ago British authors had far greater success in America than American authors in England. Now the scales have tipped the other way, and today more American books have been appearing on British best-seller lists than British books on America's."

Library patrons will be interested to know that a bill is to be put before this legislature entitled "An Act to Provide State Aid for Public Libraries." It is to provide, aid and equalize public library service in North Carolina, the sum, $100,000 annually, shall be appropriated out of the moneys within the state treasury, the fund to be known as the Public Library Fund, and to be administered by the governing board of the North Carolina Library Commission.

A bit of research at the library by a staff member shows a favorable trend in the reading public. It records that during the month of January, 1941, twice as many non-fiction books on religion and philosophy (philosophy including child study and self-improvement books) were read as in January, 1940.

Of the ten most important books of non-fiction for 1940, a selection made by the Literary Advisory Board of Current History and Forum, the library has eight, namely: Brooks—New England; Indian Summer.

Zinsser—As I Remember Him. Mills—Why Europe Fights. Armstrong—Twelwamy. Henderson—The Failure of a Mission.

Maurolis—Tragedy in France. Yutang—With Love and Irony. Taylor—The Strategy of Terror. The two books not in the library are "John D. Rockefeller," two volumes, by Allan Nevins, and "Pilgrim Way," by John Buchan.

PUBLIC DEMAND BRINGS REISSUE OF FREE BOOK

Chesterfield Prints 1,000,000 New Copies of "Tobacco Land, U.S.A.," Colleges Praise Book

So many requests have been received for the big free book "Tobacco Land, U.S.A.," offered by Chesterfield Cigarettes in a recent national newspaper advertisement, that another million copies for immediate distribution are being rushed thru publication.

Individuals and groups will receive copies on request to Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York.

"Tobacco Land, U.S.A.," is the name given to the group of states in which America's fine cigarette tobaccos are grown. Here tobacco is grown in 22 states of the Union, the primary cigarette tobacco states are Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and Missouri.

Scores of colleges have written to praise the completeness of this story of America's great tobacco industry, which in 42 pages with over 100 large photographic illustrations fully describes tobacco farming and cigarette manufacture.

Of particular interest to many readers is the long preparation of tobaccos for Chesterfield, a process lasting from two to three years. Careful steps of planting, growing, harvesting, curing, ageing, conditioning for correct moisture content, and blending of the various domestic tobaccos with imported Turkish leaf are the groundwork. Then comes modern fool-proof manufacture, making possible production of millions of packages of cigarettes per day.

The Chesterfield factories at Durham, N. C., portrayed in this book, alone cover one hundred and fifty acres. Every visitor to "Tobacco Land" finds a tour through these factories an adventure in American manufacturing ingenuity, and he never forgets the bright golden color and rich fragrance of the newly-opened hogsheads of tobacco fresh from their long mellowing in storage.

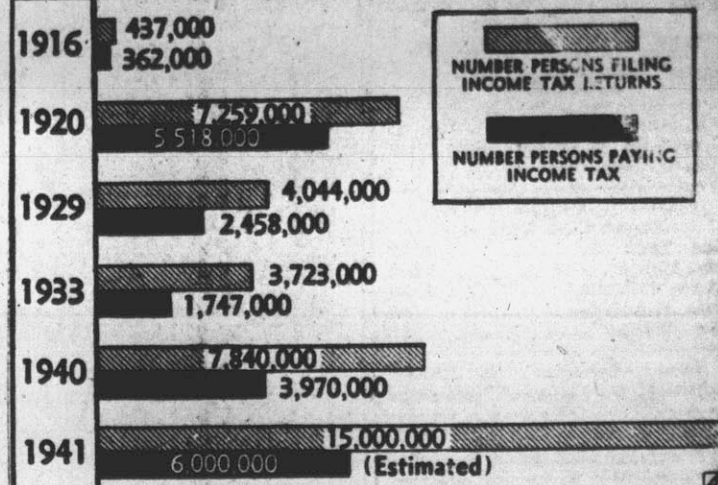

"Tobacco Land, U.S.A.," is also the story of a typical Southern tobacco-growing family, showing how the family's life revolves around the progress of the tobacco crop from season to season. The importance of the cities and universities of America's tobacco capital are shown in pictures and text.

Many celebrities are again included in the new Chesterfield advertising campaign, scheduled nationally in newspapers during February and March. Among these are Dick Schaughnessy, U. S. all-gauge skeet shooting champion and winner of nearly 70 skeet titles; Sally Young, top-ranking bridge player; Frances Burke, 1940-41 "Miss America"; and Brenda Joyce of motion pictures. Patsey Garrett, singer from Fred Waring's "Chesterfield - Pleasure Time" broadcasts, and Pat O'Brien, film star, are featured together in a special St. Patrick's Day advertisement.

Your Income Tax

Who Must File Returns

First of six articles on changes in the income tax law and how returns are filed.

By ALEXANDER E. GEORGE

AP Feature Service Writer
Washington — Some 15,000,000 persons — 8,000,000 of them for the first time — are expected to file federal income tax returns this year.

The vast increase in the number of folks reporting their income to Uncle Sam is the result of changes made by Congress in the basis of liability for making a return. Those required to file returns on or before March 15 include:

1. Every single person having a gross income of $800 or more.
2. Every married person, not living with wife or husband, having a gross income of $800 or more.
3. Every married person, living with wife or husband, having an aggregate gross income of $2,000 or more.

(Previously only those with net incomes of $1,000 and $2,500 or more were required to make returns.)

About 6,000,000 will contribute directly to the cost of governmental upkeep by paying individual income taxes. Some 9,000,000 who make returns, it is figured, will escape paying a tax because allowable exemptions and deductions will leave them without a taxable income.

Take the case of a man living with his wife and one dependent child and having a net earned income of $2,500. He has an exemption of $2,000 for being the head of a family, $400 exemption for a dependent and $250 deduction as a 10 per cent credit on earned income. Since these exemptions and deductions total $2,650, or $150 more than his net income, he pays no federal tax.

On the other hand, a single man with no dependents and a net earned income of $1,500 pays a $20.24 tax. It's figured this way: He gets $800 exemption plus $140 earned income credit. After a total deduction of $950, his taxable income is $460. At 4 per cent his normal tax is 10 per cent of $18.40, or $1.84, making a total tax of $20.24.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HE'S MY BROTHER
In one of our large cities a poster displayed during a recent United Charities drive called forth widespread and favorable comment. It was the picture of a vigorous looking boy carrying an emaciated and crippled lad in his arms, and beneath were these words: "He ain't heavy—he's my brother."

It makes a difference when we love people. We can bear heavy burden in their behalf and do it without complaint. Like the boy on the poster, we declare that the burden is nothing—we love this person.
What difference does a little extra weight make?

Henry Drummond said many years ago that love is the greatest thing in the world. As a matter of fact, love is the only thing in the world. Everything else is footnote and comment. God's power comes from His love. Our power over others has its origin in our devotion to them. Our love for the higher things of God makes self-restraint possible.

If we could only learn to think of God in terms of love, we would think of Him as Jesus thought of Him. Many people look upon Him as a punisher. But He is not. He is perfect love personified. And because of that, He bears the burden of our unworthiness as if it were nothing at all and enables us to bear the burdens of those we love without complaint.

CAN SUCH THINGS BE POSSIBLE IN A GREAT NATIONAL CRISIS?

(Scottish Rite News)

The defense program is being retarded in many respects, none of which, in the opinion of many observers, can be justified in the face of the world crisis that involves our national existence.

Certain labor groups hamper production and the arms industry by strikes.
Some of these strikes, as brought out in the testimony of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold in hearings now being held by the House Judiciary Committee, are mere jurisdictional fights between the A.
F. of L. and C. I. O. unions; others, however, may or may not be justified. In some parts of the country union practices affect food and housing prices.
Mr. Arnold stated, by way of illustration, that it cost $112 more to unload a car of fruit or vegetables in lower Manhattan than in other markets in that area.
In Chicago, he said, under union rules concrete cannot be made in cement mixers, but must be prepared in "puddles." This obsolete method greatly affects housing costs.

Mr. Arnold cited other conditions in which a labor union, alone or in combination with other groups, has imposed artificially fixed prices to consumers. To this end, labor, either alone or in combination with other groups, has attempted to keep modern methods or techniques out of the mark-

Fiddling While Rome Burns

et. All these factors, he pointed out, are inhibiting the defense program.

Other inhibitions are caused by greedy capitalists and land speculators. Still others arise out of devious practices bordering on fifth-column activities, as between American and foreign controlled concerns, which have slowed up, if not actually stopped, construction of many essential materials in this country.

Certain real estate dealers have deliberately raised land prices for cantonments and other war purposes to twice and three times the actual or fair value. This has not only delayed the transfer of land to the Government and precluded the starting of improvements, but the dealers have made such enormous demands in profits, commissions and other charges, that Congress has been obliged to increase appropriations to purchase realty for defense purposes. This is not all. The cost of building materials in many respects has been arbitrarily increased due to what are regarded as unreasonable demands by certain capital and labor groups.

In his testimony before the House Judiciary Committee,
The Assistant Attorney General told of collusive bidding on Army and Navy contracts. He said such bidding existed not only between domestic concerns but between foreign and domestic companies; that in the latter, foreign patents and cartel arrangements were factors in excessive and unreasonable prices. Group bidding and artificial charges have increased the cost of some of the most important war materials. In this connection foreign patent agreements have not only blocked American development, but have put in foreign hands the right to determine where and how the American companies may sell certain vital military supplies. Further, he said that is probable that vital military information has been disclosed to foreign companies under the requirements of patent license agreements.

The Assistant Attorney General said that "identical bidding" in government contracts—another method of getting as much as possible out of Uncle Sam—had increased greatly. He disclosed a typical case of identical bidding involved in an Army contract for cement. Two such bids were received and rejected, he said, when another firm from an outside territory offered a much lower bid. The two who had submitted identical bids wanted the bidding reopened. They promised to undercut "the outsider" and show him

"what they would do to price-cutters."

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett
Washington. — Around Capital
Town:

For the first time in the memory of the oldest living sarge, the United States army has a general for a press agent. Of course, you mustn't get the army wrong. Maj.
Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., is no more like the Broadway or Hollywood "press agent" who "plants" stories and items glorifying his clients than one of those "Congressional Sirloin Steaks" ($2.25) is like the tough little hunk of beef you get on a 65-cent "steak dinner."

Major General Richardson is really the director of press information —the chief liaison officer between the men who write what you read about your greatly expanding army and the men who are responsible for the actualities of its expansion.
How important the army thinks this is shown by the fact that Major General Richardson was (until his latest assignment) commander of the First Cavalry at Fort Bliss (Texas)—the first completely mechanized division in the whole army. In that capacity, he had covered himself with glory, experimenting with mechanization of the cavalry and working out a plan for correlation of planes, horses, armored cars and tanks to bring the new cavalry divisions to their highest point of efficiency. Under his direction, the army tested midget cars as substitutes for motorcycle courier service... and found them perfect.

Knows The Problems
Why then was this son of West Point, recipient of the Distinguished Service medal in the World war, and ace of mechanization named the army's No. 1 "P. A."? The reasons are several, but a couple of them are interesting.

When a group of newspapermen recently were taken on an almost nation-wide inspection of defenses there wasn't an army man who made a bigger hit for frankness, intelligent consideration of their questions, and recognition of the problems of writing the news than Major General Richardson.

In the second (and more important) place, the army had come to realize that what its press information needed was a man who could talk to the department heads without saluting every other second and saying, "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," to any question. In other words, the army needed a man who could push over the needs of the newspaper reading public, without kowtowing
—because of army regulations—to the whim of every fuddy-duddy who might be tops in his job as general, but a scared rabbit when it came to letting the taxpayers know what their thinking pocketbooks were bringing in, in terms of national defense.

As we say in this business, it's a tough assignment and Major General Richardson, the one-time Charleston, S. C. boy who had glory by the tail as a commander of our first great unit of mechanized cavalry, ought to get some kind of medal for taking the job at all. If he makes a big go of it—and first guessers are guessing he will—congress ought to shovel them out by the carload.

Like Father...
How time flies department—The Army Times reports that James H. Doolittle, Jr., son of Maj. James H. Doolittle—World war ace and now one of the advisers to national defense—has been placed on the eligibility list for appointment as a flying cadet. James, Jr., is 30 years old, a junior at Purdue university (Lafayette, Ind.), and thinks the only thing in life worthwhile is to "follow in Dad's footsteps."

Not that it matters, but the army's best "dog" story is that the quartermaster corps has 90 shoe sizes in its regular stock of "bro-gans." The lengths range from 5 to 12, the widths from A to EE. You figure it out. In the "tramp, tramp, tramp" corps, a pair of shoes (with two repairs) lasts an average of 27 days—and the army now has approximately 2,500,000 pairs "on order."

Short Shots

Raleigh, Feb. 24. — Objection to the state of North Carolina, as proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Victor Bryant, is already being voiced by some of the legislators from coastal counties having ABC stores.

They claim that having to close the liquor stores at beach resorts an hour earlier (actual time) than in the rest of the state would be a violation to bootleggers. They would like to see an exemption for them, such as is always allowed the railroads to continue to operate on Standard time, as is.

The Bryant bill, would at 2 a. m. of the last Sunday in April of each year, advance Standard time by one hour, and on the last Sunday in September "the standard time in this state, shall, by the retarding of one hour" be made to "co-incide with the mean astronomical time of the degree of longitude governing the zone wherein the state is situated."

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIAN GREY

YESTERDAY: Although Roger Cosgrave has known since he met lovely Della that he could marry no other girl in the world, the knowledge did not help him with his father, Emily Perry. But now Emily has the wedding is off, and Roger is not sure how he feels about everything. His father has taken him into his study—for what Roger cannot guess.

Chapter 17
Confession

There Cosgrave fumbled through the papers in a drawer that Roger knew had always been kept locked. Finally he found what he sought and turned to Roger.

Roger took the object his father held out to him and looked down at it in wonder. It was the photograph of a beautiful girl in a Merry Widow hat—lush, full blown. For a minute Roger was reminded of lovely.

"I once thought I could not live without her, Roger," his father said slowly. "It was just before I married your mother. But it would have been the great mistake of my life if I had gone on with Lilli."

A little silence punctuated the story.
"But," he went on finally, "I had an awful battle persuading myself then. It took everything I had to stick to my promise to Marcia. I've never been sorry. I'm sure no two people ever found more happiness together than your mother and I." He paused a long moment. "I don't know why I've kept this photograph of Lilli."

He tore it across and across and dropped the pieces into the waste basket.
"I thought," he said finally, "it might help you to know that."

"Thanks, dad," Roger's voice choked. He knew it had cost his father something to bring up that old romance.

"But I think," Roger went on, "this isn't the same, lovely is different."

"We all think that son, about the women we want," Cosgrave's voice was still low and thoughtful. "That's as it should be. It's probably our salvation—the faith we've got in our women." A tender smile twisted Cosgrave's lips. "I don't suppose I ever smell violet perfume that I don't think of her. She had a funny little trick of putting perfume on the hems of things instead of anywhere else. And there were a great many hems in those days. Girls prided themselves on the clothes they wore instead of those they didn't! And we used to have a little joke about a man being lost when a girl began putting violet perfume on the hems." His face became more serious as he added: "But I've always been glad I didn't fall for Marcia."

Roger wondered what had happened to the beautiful Lilli.
"I feel," his words came slowly weighed with thought, "like a louse doing what I am to Emily. That was cruel tonight."

"That isn't so important. Life is cruel. The important thing is to get things right now. Straight. So you're doing what you really want to do, what your heart and soul and honor and whole being can agree to later on. Not just what the flesh drives you to."

"I know. That's just it. If I could there, mother, with all sorts of silbelieve it was only the urge of my ideas. I went up there expecting or it will be argued for them—that $1,550 a year is not sufficient to meet their actual expenses due to the necessary travel and living away from home connected with their duties. That's all there is behind the bill to increase their expenses allowance to $2,580, according to Victor Bryant, who introduced the bill in the House.

Purely Coincidental?
The first week-end that Libby Ward of Craven was seen around the hotel lobby over the week-end (by this bureau's operatives, at least) was the week-end immediately after introduction of the statewide liquor referendum bill.

Honor Senator's Mother.
Adjourning in honor of George Washington, whose birthday it was, both house and senate closed short sessions Saturday. In the senate adjournment was also in honor of Mrs. Julia Peterson, mother of the senator from Mitchell county and one of the two Republicans in the senate, whose birthday it was.

Without Lambasts Reynolds.
An otherwise dull and inauspicious session of the house of representatives Sunday was enlivened by Grady Withrow, representative from Rutherford county, who rose to a point of "special privilege" and proceeded into a five minute vitriolic castigation of "one of North Carolina's senators in Washington who has disgraced the state." He was talking, of course, about Senator Reynolds opposition to the lend-lease bill. When he had finished he heaved a sigh and remarked "Well, I got that off my chest and I feel better."

Barbers Ask For More.
Representative Goble of Forsyth, himself a master of barber, is seeking to rewrite the whole barbering law so as to further limit the practice of cutting hair and shaving customers. He'd require a certificate for free work, as well as for paid. The working barbers appointed one of their own kind on the state board and master barbers beat that plea. Working barbers are not now enthusiastic about this new bill, which they say is further effort on part of the bosses to hog the whole thing.

All's Fair.
The state has done so well in operating the state fair, it is now proposed to set up a division of county and district fairs in the department of agriculture and give it supervision of all such enterprises, and provide $25,000 to assist in paying premiums.

It was a never-to-be-forgotten hour for Roger. Never in all of their years of close companionship had he been so close to his father. They talked long into the night, quietly, patiently, trying to find the happy solution to a problem that was bigger than either of them. Marcia had gone straight to her room. She heard Roger and his father pass her door but she sensed that it was no time to interrupt her men. They could do better without her. There were such times.

Bitter Scene
And in a room in the Perry house the lights were still on too. But there was a no calm conversation there. Emily's mother had dropped, crumpled, on a chaise longue in Emily's room, and was crying softly.
"You're killing us," she said over and over again. "Killing your father and me."
"I'm sorry, mother, but what else can I do?" Emily's voice was weary. "I can't marry a man who doesn't want me."

"What else could you do? You could think of us! You could think of father and me once in a while."

"That's all I've been doing. Trying to figure some way so you wouldn't be hurt. Because it doesn't matter about me. I've gotten over it," she paused and then added, "as much as I ever will. But I've tried to think of some way for your sake—"

"You could marry him! Marry him anyhow! Mrs. Perry began vehemently. "He couldn't do anything else if you held him to it! All men must have their fling. Let him have his. But this wedding must go on. I must!"

"But that's just it," Emily was heart sick at having to go over and over the thing. "Roger isn't like that. If he had been I could never have loved him. He's not like that and neither am I."

"Oh, you and your honor!" And then Della Perry sat up. A new thought had come to her. "Don't you see, Emily, you're doing the best thing for him, making him go on with the wedding? He'll be sorry if he marries this girl. He'll never forgive himself for giving you up. You're his kind. It's the right sort of marriage—yours and Roger's."

"Not without love," Emily said quietly. "No marriage without love is right."

"Love! Love! Della Perry raged. "There was more than disappointment in her raging. There was a sort of distraction. This Emily found it hard to understand. After all it was her life that was being blown to bits."

"We're disgraced! Disgraced!" Della went on and on. "After all we've done for you! Everything we've done for you! Trying to make your future what it should be. Now there's nothing—nothing—"

Something about the bitterness of her mother's voice turned Emily to her in sharp alarm.

"Mother, what do you mean?" she asked. "Is there something else—something I don't know? Something—" But Della Perry was crying softly into her crumpled handkerchief.

Finally she said unsteadily: "Roger will never be happy with a girl like that. He'll thank you some day for refusing to release him now."

"Yes, I thought that too," Emily's voice was very low. "I went up there, mother, with all sorts of silbelieve it was only the urge of my ideas. I went up there expecting find a girl who's face would look like the experimental laboratory of a cosmetic factory. Instead I found one who reminded me of tropical flowers. Do you remember the way the geraniums grow in Mexico? Well, she's that way."

It wasn't until Della had trailed out of the room, turning out the light as she did so, that Emily, already in her fragile night robe dropped wearily into bed. Lying flat on her back, hands under her head, she closed her eyes. Tears she had been denying all evening squeezed through under her lids.

She wondered vaguely with a faint unaccountable sense of alarm why her mother was so distraught. She could hear her parents' voices talking in their room. She remembered then that her father had seemed strange lately, not himself, and thought it was too bad her mother was keeping him awake discussing something that couldn't be helped or changed.

She was reminded of an old Spanish proverb she had heard somewhere: "Give your child luck and throw him into the sea." Lovely had that sort of luck.

New Jolt
Next afternoon Marcia Cosgrave's shock found relief in tears. She cried prettily.

"But, Roger, you really can't mean this foolishness?" she asked. "Foolishness?" from Roger.

"Yes, about being in love with this strange girl."

"It isn't foolishness, mother."

"But, Roger, you've always been in love with Emily."

"I thought that too. I thought a lot of things, among them that I'd love and love and was immune to it. But I didn't even know what love was."

"You don't think this girl would want you if it wasn't for your money?"

"I don't know about that. I'd want her anyhow. Whether she wanted me or not. If you and father want to disinherit me—but Marcia's voice was quick to interrupt.

"Disinherit you! Roger, you're our son, our only son! Whatever we have is yours always. Such things—our love for our children—can't depend upon whether or not they do as we wish."

"Thank you for that, honey bee." His pale face relaxed in a smile and he bent and kissed his mother. Roger would have been hurt to the heart if he had been asked to choose between Lovely and his parents.

"I was thinking of the Perrys," Marcia continued in the young, fragile and lovely voice. "They'd plan on this now that I think of it. They've lived awfully quietly lately. You feel they're lived for Emily and this marriage."

It was a telephone call from Mrs. Perry that interrupted that conversation. She asked for Marcia.

"My dear! Marcia said, the instrument in her hand. Then she said, alien for so long that Roger wondered. Words were pouring from Della Perry's lips.

"They're only children, you know," she was saying. "They don't know what they're doing. We're so much older and wiser than they. We've been through it all. We must keep them from doing anything foolish for Roger's sake as well as Emily's. Never let us forget us later if we speak by me let this thing go on—I mean breaking their engagement and all!"

And Marcia was agreeing with one part of her mind and wondering with the other why such devastating panic should possess Della Perry.

"Emily's coming to her senses!" Mrs. Perry went on. "It was just a nervous reaction. You know how girls are! She is not breaking her engagement. I've made her see how silly that was!"

When finally Della Perry stopped speaking Marcia returned to Roger with a grave face.

"I'm sorry, what was what you're going to do. Della's just said Emily isn't giving you up. She won't release you."

Eighth Annual County Cage Tourney Opens Tomorrow

ARTHUR GIRLS ARE BEST BET

First Game Slated To Start At 4 P.M. Tuesday

The eighth annual county-wide basketball tournament will get under way at East Carolina Teachers College tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock with Stokes and Ayden girls scheduled to fight it out in the opening contest.

Bethel is defending champion in the girls' division, but is expected to meet keen competition from Arthur, which team lost out by a single point in the finals last year.

Ayden boys are defending champions in their division, with Winterville, Farmville and Fountain also expected to put in strong bids for first place honors this year.

The tournament will run through Tuesday, Wednesday, suspend play Thursday due to the appearance here of Westminster choir, resume play Friday, with semi-finals set for Saturday and the finals on Monday.

Following the Stokes-Ayden game tomorrow afternoon, five other games will be reeled off in the first round play as follows: 5 o'clock, Belvoir-Grifton boys; 6 o'clock, Farmville-Pactolus girls; 7 o'clock, Bethel-Pactolus boys; 8 o'clock, Arthur-Grifton girls; 9 o'clock, Winterville-Farmville boys.

The last two games on the opening round's schedule are expected to be among the best of the tournament. The Arthur girls slipped up and were defeated 31-25 by Chocod last Friday night and other girls in the county are gunning for the favorites, after having been encouraged by Friday's turn. Both Winterville and Fountain boys have outstanding teams this year and the final battle tomorrow night is expected to see a real fight from start to finish.

CAN NOT QUIT BY MARCH 8TH

Adjournment Date Continues Uncertain, However

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET

Relish, Feb. 24—With nine weeks behind them and with just two weeks remaining of the 60-day period which was first set as the probable duration of the 1941 general assembly, leaders are much more uncertain about final adjournment than they appeared to be a week ago.

Rather definite predictions were made that since the adjournment would be had on March 8, one influential senator even suggesting the hour as "about two in the morning." Some pressure was brought to bear on main committees to get them to speed up work, and it was one time thought that the appropriations bill—one of the two major "must" bills—might be reported out early this week. Now there is not even remote prospect of the spending bill reaching the floor this week, but it is hoped to have it out sometime next week.

The revenue bill has passed both houses, but with requests piling up on the appropriations group for more and more money, with appropriations already approved in excess of a million and a half dollars above budget recommendations, there is a possibility that either the finance bill will have to be reopened for further consideration, or long drawn conference committee negotiations will be necessary to reconcile the opposing interests and bring about some semblance of a balanced budget.

The money bills are not the only items likely to prolong the session beyond expectations of last week. The senatorial redistricting matter is not getting along with anything like the ease or speed of congressional redistricting. There was scarcely a murmur of protest at the committee suggestion for congressmen, but state senators aren't ready to yield so easily on their own jobs.

After a stormy session in committee Senator Sanders, chairman, remarked that it "looks like we'd just as well throw all this away and start over." That issue is further complicated by the proposal for a constitutional amendment to limit counties, regardless of population, to one senator and not more than three representatives.

For months before convening of this general assembly prediction was freely made that liquor would cause a lot of trouble, and that there would be a hard fight on the question of a statewide referendum on that subject. As the session progressed and it became evident that such a bill would have little chance in the senate, and as this and that representative first agreed and then declined to introduce it in the house, impression grew that there would be no argument over liquor.

However, a bill calling for a state vote on the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages was offered in the house Friday by McGowan of Pender. A public hearing on it has been fixed for Thursday and the sponsors of the legislation say they'll have more than a thousand people here to demand its enactment into law. There can be little doubt that many legislative leaders are sorry that the issue was raised. Sentiment in the legislature is evidently opposed to it. But on a roll call vote many a member will vote for the referendum for benefit of the record and the folks back home who otherwise would vote against it. This group may be expected to join with the advocates of local option in voting to have the bill sent to the finance committee after it comes back from propositions and grievances where it is now under consideration. The "when" rather than "if" is used advisedly for it is consensus of members and observers that the committee over which Mr. Quinn presides will give the referendum idea its approval. The finance boys aren't likely to be so eager to throw out a million or so dollars from the state and more than that from the counties.

Departmental reorganization bills sponsored by Governor Broughton have fared well and several of these have been enacted into law with little or no opposition. The proposal to revamp the constitutional board of education is having harder sledding, and while it is not likely to occasion prolonged debate it may require several days for its final passage. The scrap is over the one word "executive" before the title of secretary which it is proposed to give to the elected state superintendent of public instruction. School teachers want the superintendent to be the chief officer of the new board; school business administrative officials want a business man on that job. One is foolishly indeed to forecast actions of a legislative body when the going gets hard and tense as it always does near the close of a session. General opinion around the capitol may be quoted without getting the quote out on a limb. Summarized that opinion is about this:

The appropriations bill will come to the floor the latter part of next week with nearly three million more approved for spending than the revenue bill has provided. Larger surplus than had been anticipated at the end of the current year, plus revised estimates on revenue yield, will bring the budget into approximate balance, and no serious complications will arise. If the diversion should be much more than three million adjustments would have to be made in conference committee.

A large part of the appropriations increase will be for agriculture and its education, particularly research and Senate reapportionment will wind up with very little change in existing district lines — this being taken as the easiest way out.

The state referendum will be defeated and the existing ABC set up retained.

GREENVILLE HI NEWS

By SIDNEY JOHNSON

Carolina Band
This morning the University of North Carolina band gave a concert here at the high school.

The concert consisted of several good marches, some semi-happy classics and a few fine novelty numbers. The band was under the direction of Earl Slocum, head of the music department of the university.

Spanish To Be Offered
A course in Spanish will be offered in the high school during the spring semester. If enough students sign for the course it will be installed in the school.

Dramatics
Dates for the two dramatics contests have been set. "The Devil is a Good Man," senior high entry, will compete in New Bern March 21, while "The Apothecary," junior high play, will go to Durham March 14. Both will be given in the high school on March 14.

Senior Tryouts
Tryouts for the senior play "Night Must Fall" will be held this afternoon at 4:30. Many students were present for the tryouts.

SEEK RECOVER TVA TAX MONEY

Counties And Cities Ask Return Of Full Sum

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, Feb. 24.—Representative Malone of Cherokee county, one of the several counties and cities in western North Carolina which lost substantial tax valuations when the Tennessee Valley Authority took over wide acreages there, is asking that the local government units get back a full share of the money paid to the state by the Authority in lieu of taxes.

Provision is made in the congressional act setting up the Authority for such payments, and heretofore the payments have been made to the state, rather to the local unit in most instances. Mr. Malone's bill would require the state treasurer to send back to the local unit its prorate part of that money based on previous tax collections, but with the proviso that the local unit should receive not less than the amount of actual loss based upon the two year average of taxes on said property next prior to its being taken over by the Authority. In other words, under this bill if it becomes law, any tax loss would be to the state and not to the county. If the payments by the Authority exceeded the total tax collections for the preceding two years, then the counties would get their share of the excess.

At present the problem involved in this legislation affects only a few western counties, but with the increasing amount of federal and state government owned property coming off tax lists in every county, the principle is of interest to every section and every county in North Carolina.

edge forward.
Price changes on the whole were in small fractions and near the fourth hour, trends remained indefinite. Dealings were sluggish throughout.

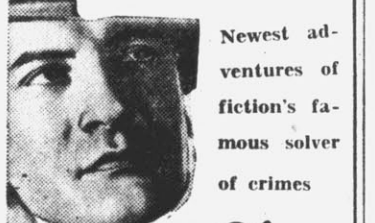

Bonds were narrowly uneven and commodities fairly steady.

One Dead, 14 In Hospital After Oil Dock Fire

One member of an oil tanker crew was drowned trying to reach shore and 14 others were sent to a hospital to be treated for shocks and exposure as consequences of an oil fire that swept the docks of the Pan-American Refining company and endangered the tanker at Texa City, Tex. The tanker, loaded with 107,000 gallons of gasoline, was towed away from this blazing dock by tugs a few minutes before the flames reached her.

ONE-THIRD OF POPULATION SELECTS HOUSE MAJORITY

The complexion of things in the Senate may be quite different next time, even, should any real re-districting bill be worked out.

The following counties are in the group which can always control the House:

Less than 10,000: Alleghany, Camden, Clay, Currituck, Dare, Graham, Hyde, Pamlico, Perquimans, Tyrrell.

10,000 to 19,999: Alexander, Avery

Brundswick, Carteret, Cherokee, Davie, Gates, Greene, Hertford, Hoke, Jackson, Jones, Lee, Macon, Mitchell, Montgomery, Onslow, Pender, Polk, Swain, Transylvania, Watauga, Washington, Yancey.

20,000 to 29,000: Anson, Ashe, Bertine, Bladen, Caswell, Chatham, Granville Henderson, Lincoln, McDowell, Madison, Martin, Northampton, Orange, Pasquotank, Person, Scotland, Stokes, Vance, Warren, Yadkin.

30,000 to 35,000: Craven, Franklin, Haywood, Moore, Stanly.

The Senate district which at present elect a majority are:

First (Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Gates, Hertford, Pasquotank, Perquimans); Second (Beaufort, Dare, Hyde, Martin, Pamlico, Tyrrell, Washington); Third (Bertie, Northampton); Fourth (Edgecombe, Halifax); Fifth (Pitt); 8th (Johnston, Wayne); Twelfth (Harnett, Hoke, Moore, Randolph); 14th (Vance, Warren); 15th (Granville, Person); 18th (Davidson, Montgomery, Richmond, Scotland); 19th (Anson, Stanly, Union); 23rd (Stokes, Lincolnton, Mount); 25th (Catawba, Iredell, Lincolnton, Mount); 29th (Alleghany, Ashe, Watauga); 32nd (Haywood, Jackson, Transylvania); 33rd (Cherokee, Clay

THE BANKS OF GREENVILLE

WILL OPEN AT 9 A. M. AND CLOSE AT 1 P. M.

The change in Banking Hours is not the Voluntary Act of the Banks of Greenville. It is brought about by the fact that it has been definitely ruled that all Banks are subject to the Federal Wage and Hour Law as well as the Rules and Regulations made thereunder. This Law provides that no employee of any Bank may work more than 40 hours in any one week unless the employing Bank pays such employee at the rate of one and half time normal pay for each hour of overtime worked. The present Earnings of Banks do not warrant or justify such overtime payments. A Bank must Close and Balance its Books at the close of each Business Day. To do this means that after Banking Hours its employees have to work a number of hours equal to approximately 60 to 70 percent of the hours its doors are open for the transaction of Business with its Customers and the public generally. Even with this change in Banking Hours it remains problematical whether or not the Banks of Greenville can keep within the Wage and Hour Law without in some instances having to pay overtime to some of its Employees. However the change in Banking Hours represents an honest and sincere effort on the part of the Banks of Greenville to comply with this Federal Wage and Hour Law. This action on the part of the Banks of Greenville is in no way an effort or attempt to curtail or lessen their services to their customers and the general public. It only represents an honest attempt to meet a situation which the Federal Government has forced upon them.

WE ASK THE SINCERE UNDERSTANDING AND COOPERATION OF OUR CUSTOMERS AND THE GENERAL PUBLIC TO THE END THAT THE LEAST POSSIBLE INCONVENIENCE MAY BE CAUSED THEM
