AVERT STRIKES IN U. S. PLANTS BY MEDIATION

Truces Enable Work To Continue During Negotiations

DEFENSE ORDERS HELD BY PLANTS Walkouts Averted At Several Industrial Companies Engaged In U. S. National Defense Program

By The Associated Press Truces brought about by mediation permitted negotiations to proceed today in labor disputes without interrupting production in industries vital to the nation's defense preparations.

American Federation of Labor Iron workers called off a strike against the Ingalls Iron Works company at Birmingham, Ala., when they learned the National Defense Commission was sending a representative to seek an agreement.

CIO workers at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of the Aluminum Company of America indicated that a threatened strike could be held in abeyance until union officials conferred with the management and until a federal conciliator could look the situation over.

The Ingalls plant at Birmingham, holding about $100,000,000 worth of emergency defense orders, is fabricating steel for naval and maritime commission ships. The union demanded higher wages and a security clause to protect the jobs of union members.

Acceding to a request from the Office of Production Management at Washington, 350 striking CIO unionists agreed to return to their jobs at the Combustion Engineering company, Chattanooga, Tenn., pending further negotiations with the management on wage and hour problems and the question of a collective bargaining agent.

The original bill repealed the present law entirely.

At any rate, Robert is safe now and is getting a ride on the shoulders of his happy father.

WORLD NOTED SCULPTOR DIES

Gutzon Borglum Succumbs Of Brief Illness

Chicago, March 6.—(AP)—Gutzon Borglum, 69, internationally famous sculptor, died today after a brief illness.

Borglum succumbed at a hospital here, where he had been since February 13. On March 3, Mrs. Borglum said her husband had been working too hard recently and had entered the hospital for a rest. His wife and a son, Lincoln Borglum and a daughter were at his bedside.

Borglum, whose best known work was the nearly completed Mount Rushmore memorial in the black hills of South Dakota, was an artist whose work could be described as "colossal" without fear of overstatement.

The Mount Rushmore memorial, hewn into the side of a mountain, consists of gigantic faces of Washington, Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt, a monument dedicated to America as a pioneer nation. Borglum expected to complete the heads this year.

Two Aldermen For Fifth Ward Asked

A bill has been prepared and sent to Raleigh for introduction in the General Assembly which will give the Fifth ward two aldermen whereas the district now has only one.

The additional member of the Board of Aldermen will greatly reduce the opportunity of the mayor to vote, since the new member will make nine in all and leave less chance of a tie vote.

Under the bill, the Fifth ward will name two aldermen at the May primary election. The term of George Clapp, present member from the Fifth, will expire this year. This office will be filled for the regular two-year term and, in addition, a second alderman will be named for a one-year term. The one-year term will enable the Fifth to name an alderman each year beginning in 1942.

It was pointed out in a petition requesting the Board of Aldermen to name an additional member that the Fifth casts the largest vote of any ward in the city except the Second and that it had only one member, while the Second, Third and Fourth had two members. No change will be made in the First which has only one member, at present.

U. S. MESSAGE SENT TO ROME

Italy Also Requested To See That All Consular Officials In This Country Confine Their Movements To Recognized Duties

Washington, March 6.—(AP)—The United States has notified Italy that the movements of Italian consular officials throughout this country are to be restricted and has asked that Italian consulates in Detroit and Newark, N. J., be closed.

The State Department made public today a note to the Italian government requesting that its consular officials confine their movements to those areas in which they exercise the recognized duties of their respective offices.

The Italian diplomatic staff in Washington was excluded from the request, but the embassy was asked to keep the State Department currently informed "of the movements outside Washington of the military and naval personnel" attached to the embassy.

Washington, March 5.—(AP)—The United States told Italy today to close its consulates at Detroit and Newark, N. J., "for reasons of national policy."

The decision of the government that foreign consulates in certain areas should be closed was announced by the State Department.

It followed the recent action of the Italian government to have the United States close its consulates at Naples and Palermo, Italy.

The State Department announcement said: "For reasons of national policy, it has been decided that foreign consulates in certain areas should be closed."

"At the present time the Italian government has been requested to close its consulates at Detroit, Mich., and Newark, N. J., and to withdraw the personnel."

Woodard, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville. Interment will follow in the family cemetery near the home.

Memorial Marker At Cemetery Is Proposed

Summit Street Home Is Damaged By Fire

The roof of a house on summit street owned by J. N. Williams and occupied by Leon Tyson, was razed by fire this morning, the second roof fire at the same house in a single month.

The entire roof was destroyed and the fire spread throughout the attic before firemen arrived. Origin of the fire was not determined, having been so far advanced when firemen arrived they were unable to make a close investigation. The blaze, however, was said to have started near the chimney.

BRITAIN SHOWS AXIS REPORTS ARE EXCESSIVE

Claims Of Fleet Losses Exceed Actual Strength

REASONS CITED FOR STATEMENTS London Says Exaggeration Apparently Aimed At Eliciting Reply Stating Actual Strength

London, March 6.—(AP)—An Admiralty statement asserted today that Germany and Italy claimed to have sunk or seriously damaged 34 British Empire battleships or battle cruisers, whereas Britain had only 15 such warships at the outbreak of the war.

Amplifying the statement of A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, before Commons yesterday that the Axis had claimed to have sunk or seriously damaged more than twice the number of capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers while her enemies claimed in some cases units of the fleet had been claimed sunk "several times over."

Today's statement said Britain possessed seven aircraft carriers while her enemies claimed 13 were sent to the bottom.

Britain had 58 submarines at the start of the war and Germany and Italian high command communications, the Admiralty said, had listed 71 accounted for.

Only in the case of destroyers—according to German and Italian claims—did Britain have any warships left. The Admiralty said 187 were on hand in 1939 and 144 have been claimed by the Axis powers.

Speculating on the reason for what was called "this exaggeration," the Admiralty said it was done apparently for three reasons:

1. In the hope of eliciting a denial which would convey information on the actual strength and disposition of fleet units.

2. To bolster the morale of their own people who "are uneasily aware of British naval power."

3. To cause alarm and despondency in enemy occupied territories and neutral countries and in the hope of causing anxiety among relatives and friends.

Eight Fires Here During February

Of the $1,099.75 total fire loss in Greenville during February, $1,046.50 was caused by the blaze at the home of Mrs. Susie E. Warren on West Fourth street, the monthly report of Chief George Gardner disclosed today.

A total of eight calls were answered in the city during the month. In addition, the department was called to extinguish a blaze in Grimesland.

Of the $1,199.75 loss during the month, all but $10 was protected by insurance.

The value of buildings and furnishings threatened by February fires was placed at $24,000, which was protected by insurance totalling $12,500.

The loss for the first two months of 1941 was reported at $30,884.99 of which all but $485 was protected by insurance. The value of property threatened by fires during the two months was reported at $142,000, with insurance in the amount of $113,500 protecting the property.

Priest To Make Talk At Christian Church

The Reverend Father Maurice will be the guest speaker at the Eighth Street Christian Church on Sunday night.

War Pot Boils Hotter In Balkans

With warfare spreading in the Balkans, Italian warships bombarded the Greek-occupied Albanian coast (1) and Axis planes bombed British bases on Crete and in Libya as Great Britain broke relations with Bulgaria. Meanwhile, Britons quit Yugoslavia (2) as it appeared that country would join the Axis. Officials of Turkey (3) pondered a note from Adolf Hitler, reputed to have offered protection and trade agreements if Turkey will forsake Britain. Germany shifted troops (4) through Rumania to key points in Bulgaria. Russia reinforced Prut river garrisons (5) and held black-out practices in Bessarabian cities and Odessa.

Lower House Receives Record Spending Bill

Other Important Measures Get Assembly Attention

Raleigh, March 6.—(AP)—The House got the record $166,000,000 appropriations bill for the 1941-43 biennium today and Representative Kerr of Warren, House Appropriations chairman, asked for its consideration as a special order starting at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Kerr explained there was desire for the legislature to finish its session quickly, that he wanted each House member to have a chance to look over the bill and that he believed all could study it and still speed it along by holding an afternoon session.

Senator Palmer of Cabarrus offered a bill to allow any city with over 10,000 population to hold a referendum on establishing liquor stores with beer and wine sales to be banned if liquor stores under the state ABC system are rejected.

Two bills signed by Senator Tronzo of Alleghany were sent up. One would amend the revenue act and provide for a flat two per cent sales tax instead of the present three per cent levy, with foods exempted. The other would levy a flat tax of 50 cents on the $100 valuation of intangibles and give local units 90 per cent of the receipts.

Rep. Whitener of Gaston and others sent in a measure to permit absentee voting in primaries by persons inducted into military service. A bill was reported to the House favorably to provide daylight saving time in the state. Others approved by committees included measures to: Make Justices of the Peace selective and limit their number; Prohibit scalping of tickets to athletic events; Classify low-paid highway workers and give them pay increases.

On motion of the author, Rep. McGowan of Pender, the House recalled from committee and indefinitely postponed his bill to regulate transportation of alcoholic beverages.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to provide a state trademark for agricultural products pasting state standards.

It appeared that the House-passed bill to limit sale of fortified wines to ABC stores in the 26 counties having them was encountering trouble in the Senate Finance Committee. It has been put off three times when reached on the committee's bill list.

The House ordered ratified into law a bill to reorganize the Utilities Commission, making it a three-man appointive body, instead of a one-member elective commissioner, with two part-time associate commissioners.

Both divisions suspended their rules and rushed through a bill to make all living former governors of the state honorary members of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina.

The Senate approved and sent to the House a measure to permit is- (Continued on page six)

Has Pledge Of Britain To Send Aid

Greece, Backed By Pledge of Britain to Fight at her Side "Until Final Victory Is Won," Stations Soldiers in Mountain Passes For Imminently Expected Thrust of 150,000 Germans.

By The Associated Press With Britain pledged to fight at her side "until final victory is won," embattled Greece massed 90,000 troops in the mountain passes north of Salonika today in readiness for the imminently expected assault of 150,000 Germans, poised on the Greek-Bulgarian frontier.

Observers in Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, said the Nazis might invade Greece at any hour.

Waves of German bombers were reported arriving from the north, reinforcing the Nazi fourth air fleet, totalling 1,700 bombers and fighters, already based in Bulgaria.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and General Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff, left Athens last night and a communique announced that they and Greek leaders had reached complete agreement "on all aspects" of the crisis.

Turkey pressed defense preparations as her officially-controlled press called on Russia to halt Germany's march, ever deeper into southeast Europe.

Government quarters in Bucharest acknowledged that Rumania had received a communication from Moscow—a message which high diplomatic sources declared was a virtual ultimatum to Rumania to cede naval bases on the Black sea to Russia.

If true, two sharply divergent explanations arose: 1. Since Rumania is German-dominated it may have been a warning to Germany to beware of jeopardizing Russia's Black sea interests.

2. Or cession of Rumanian Black sea bases may have been Russia's price for giving Germany the Green light in the occupation of Bulgaria.

Diplomatic action continued apace in the nervous Balkan capitals. Britain was said to be putting heavy pressure on Yugoslavia to keep her out of the Axis; Turkish government quarters were quoted as saying Turkey's policy of loyalty to Britain had not been altered by a recent message from Adolf Hitler; Premier General Ion Antonescu of Rumania summoned an emergency meeting of his cabinet after a hasty conference in Vienna with Reichsmarshal Goering.

In the Far East, an official announcement in Tokyo said France and Thailand had agreed "on the principal points" of the Japanese mediation plan for settling the Thailand-French Indo-China border dispute.

Clio Club. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Lee Folger was "at home" to the Clio Book Club. Mrs. Henry Harrell gave, in a couple of imaginary broadcasts, a very unique, interesting, and instructive survey of the history of radio. Taking us back to our country's initial broadcast, that of President Harding's election November 20, 1920. She told of the circumstances which led to the important event of broadcasting over the radio. Announcing her second broadcast as being 1941, she gave the story of the development of radio. Her enlightening discussion and vivid illustrations of the growth of the complicated engineering and the innumerable uses of the radio were greatly enjoyed by the members.

The business meeting was concluded by Mrs. James Johnston, the president. Continued interest in the Bundles for Britain day was urged. Officers for the new year were elected as follows: Miss Eane Hadley, president; Miss Mae Joyner, secretary; Mrs. Henry Harrell, secretary (a unanimous vote); and Mrs. Needham Ward, treasurer-librarian. A rising vote of thanks was given the outgoing officers. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.—Reported.

Alpha Iota Sorority. Mr. James Fleming was the guest speaker of the Zeta Delta chapter of Alpha Iota Sorority on Tuesday evening at the college. Tommie Lou Coffitt, vice-president, introduced Mr. Fleming, who spoke very interestingly on the philosophy of the average Frenchman. He compared the Frenchman, a man of thought, with the Englishman, a man of action, and the Spaniard, a man of passion. He vividly described the different sections of Paris, stressing the fact that in the student section are found boys and girls and men and women all trying to create and absorb the culture of France.

Mr. Fleming pictured night life in Paris and told how tourists were taken to clubs that were operated especially for their benefit, in order to give them the excitement they believed was to be found in such places. The club owner generally succeeded in doing this by having pre-arranged holdups and tough fights during the floor show. He pointed out that therefore tourists who spent only a few days or a week in Paris were incapable of really understanding the lives, customs, and ideas of the French. One has to live among the French for at least a year before one even begins to comprehend the French culture, thoughts, desires and feelings, he said.

Barbara Keuzenkamp, president, wishes to thank Mr. Fleming for the club members for his delightful and informative speech.

Mrs. Gaston Honored. Last evening at eight o'clock, Mrs. Paul Batchelor and Mrs. William Woodard entertained at bridge, at the home of Mrs. Batchelor, honoring their sister, the former Miss Frances Woodard, who on last Saturday became the bride of Mr. Joe Gaston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Gaston of this city. The rooms where the bridge tables were arranged, were effectively decorated with spring flowers, quantities of hawthorne and jonquils being used. At the close of the playing, Miss Edla Taylor was presented the high score award and Mrs. Eugene Gray of LaGrange, the low. The floating prize went to Mrs. T. G. Basnight. The gift to the honor guest was a Universal percolator. A sweet course with coffee and nuts was served by the hostesses. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Eugene Gray of LaGrange and Mrs. Richard Thornton of Goldsboro.

Greenville Meets Kinston In First Night of Tourney

QUAKES MEET TARBORO FIVE

Winners Of Two Games Will Play In Finals Friday Night

Tonight is the first big night of the Eastern Conference basketball tournament scheduled for this week in Greenville. Greenville High's conference champs will meet Kinston in the opener and the Goldsboro Earthquakes and Tarboro Tigers will meet in the last game of the night. The outcome of these two contests will determine the two teams that will meet in the finals tomorrow night.

At the end of the regular season the Phantoms were true to form and the final games found the boys on the top of the list followed closely by Goldsboro, Tarboro and Kinston. The local boys had a record of eight wins and four losses for the season. Tarboro and Goldsboro tied for second with seven wins and five losses and Kinston edged out Washington for the final berth.

According to records of previous games this season, the Phantoms should gain and easy victory over the falling Red Devils of Kinston. Greenville triumphed over the Devils twice by large margins, 37-22 and 32-15, and Tarboro has a slight edge over Goldsboro in previous records but the Reflector picks the Goldsboro boys to lick Tarboro and meet the Phantoms in the finals. After then—Well who knows?

For the first game tonight Coach Farley will probably depend on Larry James and Troy Riddle at forwards, Burney Warren at center, and Smag Clark and James Briley at guard. Coach Farley can also fall back on such able reserves as John Collins, Leonard Briley, Bill Turner, John Spearman, John Horne and a host of others.

Coach Voltz Davenport's starting line-up will probably consist of Roland Paylor and Colon Byrd at forwards, Pickford Whaley at center and Mickey Wetherington and Jeff Oglesby at guards.

Goldsboro-Tarboro
This should be a thriller in every way with both teams hitting it off for a win and both about evenly

Rube To Tarboro

Rube Wilson, manager of the Greenville Coastal Plain baseball club for the past two years, today signed a contract to manage the Tarboro club during the coming season.

Greenville has not employed a manager for the year, the matter having been left with the executive committee. It has been unofficially reported that at least part of the members of the committee were opposed to re-hiring Wilson.

Tarboro's starting line-up will include Hatton and Carpenter at guards, Edmundson at center and Carter and Gilliam at forwards. Coach Jeffreys will probably start King and Pate at guards, Smith at center and Nickens and McClenny at forwards.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: The difficulty with Emily, who is the girl Roger Cosgrave foretook to marry, is that Emily is too good. Lovely is jealous of her, and yet Emily is so careful there never is anything real to be jealous of. And now Lovely has burst out to Roger, not knowing that Emily is in the room, and has been overheard.

Chapter 26
New Quarrel
Roger and Emily stood transfixed as Lovely ran from the room. "I never thought this could happen." Emily was the first to speak. "I shouldn't have kept coming here. I—I had no idea—"

"Don't Emily. It isn't your fault. Perhaps it's Lovely's. Probably it's mine. But certainly it isn't yours."

"I—I—but it seems I—" once more she didn't finish but stood helplessly looking down at beautiful Getta, so like her mother. Emily seemed more frail than ever then, with a certain puzzling incompleteness about her; exactly like her little broken phrases and unfinished sentences.

Impelled by something he didn't understand or pause to think about

Roger moved toward her, gathered her in his arms and kissed her. And Emily was saying softly against his shoulder:

"Don't mind, Roger. Don't mind. There always have to be sacrifices. I suppose."

Lovely went home. She didn't stay for the pleasant Sunday night supper that was a feature of life at the big Cosgrave house. There were always guests, interesting conversation and companionship.

Emily was taking a nine twenty-six train from Harmon back to New York.

"I'll run you down," Roger offered.

"But do you think you should?" Emily objected in her lovely soft voice. "I don't think so."

"Of course I should."

"You'll be back, Roger?" Marcia asked as she turned from kissing Emily goodbye.

"No, dear. I think I'll push right on home." He smiled into his mother's anxious eyes and then turned to Getta. She was too small to sit in the car beside him after Emily got out at the station.

"Leave Getta here, Roger," his mother seemed to read his thoughts and to be eager at the same time. She loved and was proud of her beautiful granddaughter.

Roger went home to a dark house. He let himself in and knew instinctively Lovely was in bed. There was a subtle scent of her about the house, like a flower garden slightly muted. He didn't turn on the light in the bedroom but undressed in the bathroom with the door closed so Lovely wouldn't be awakened.

The shades had not been drawn in the bedroom or the windows opened. That was like Lovely, Roger reflected. He paused for a moment to stare at the moon etching the almost bare trees against the night in exquisite beauty.

He tried to close his mind to his quarrel with Lovely. There had been something especially unpleasant about it. There had been a time when their quarrels, like lovers' quarrels, had drawn them more closely together than ever. But this had been different, ugly, a family quarrel and had brought with it the peculiarly clear, clear judgment of family disagreement. He didn't want to see where Lovely had been wrong. But he was forced to.

"Where's Getta?" was the first question Lovely asked when they met at breakfast. She found it hard to keep the smile from her eyes as she looked at him. Lovely never held to her quarrels.

"At mother's. You left her, you know," Roger was grinning faintly. He knew she had had her punishment.

"You should have brought her, Roger."

"There are a great many things that should be done. One is to make some sort of apology to Emily. She's suffered enough through us, and I know she won't want to come back if something isn't done to right what happened yesterday. We shouldn't be the means of robbing her of a friendly week-end having."

"Who is? That's your mother's house. I don't live there any more!"

"No, but Emily knows she'll meet us there."

"Well, so what?"

"That isn't any answer, Lovely. If you'd only get over this cheap gutter talk."

Lovely smothered.

"Gutter talk! Well, that's what I am. Gutter stuff! And if you don't like it you should have thought of that before. You can't change me! I'm what I am and I'll stay that way! I don't want to be any other way. I wouldn't be like your wishy-washy Emily for anything in the world. No woman'd get my man from me! The softie!"

"Lovely! Emily can't help being as she is and she's not my Emily. Stop talking like that. And I don't want you to be like her."

He drove down the hill to his father's place. They were readying the green houses for winter and Roger was overseeing the work. But first he went to the house and to his mother's sitting room. She was playing with Getta. The young father stood held to the spot by the cheer charm of the scene before him.

Roger was working that afternoon with the extra men when Lovely's car swooped into the drive and stopped near the greenhouse.

Lovely, dressed for a party, walked toward him, her face lighted with the smile he knew so well. He felt his heart lift and warm as it always did when she came to him in a happy mood. He remembered Mari was giving a cocktail tea for one of the girls who was getting married.

"Forgive me, darling?" Lovely asked penitently. "I didn't mean to fly off the handle this morning. I was all wrong again!"

"You're forgiven before you ask it, Lovely," Roger said softly. "You're very gorgeous this afternoon."

"Thanks lambie pie!" Then, her eyes shadowing swiftly: "Oh, Roger I'm always so ashamed of my outbursts and so sorry afterwards! But sometimes I just can't help being jealous of Emily."

"Why, darling?" Emily hasn't anything to be jealous of. She's been robbed of everything but the little friendship we can give her."

"Maybe that's it. Everything's been taken from her and yet she goes on—still Emily. Just as sweet and lovely as she ever was. Nothing—none of the bad things seem to really touch her at all. She's got something, like an armor. Maybe it's her background. She's—"

Lovely paused thoughtfully while Roger watched the men working. Italians most of them who seemed to know what to do with wood and earth and flowers.

"And Getta's taken to her so. And your mother. But I don't mind your mother so much. Getta's, she forced a little ripple of laughter to her lips, "an aristocrat like you. Like all of you. She's, one of you. I never really will be."

"You're talking foolishness now, sweet."

Dogfight
Suddenly the air of that clear fall day was rent with screams of pain. Lovely was off like a streak. On a rise of ground a full grown white bull terrier was fighting a half grown Kerry puppy. The bull had distinctly the advantage in size and weight but the little Kerry was fighting valiantly. Heedless of Roger's warning call as he raced after her, Lovely plunged into the melee, beating at the bull with her purse with his heart pounding with fear for her Roger saw her stoop and scoop the Kerry puppy up in her arms when the bull let go of it in surprise at the fierceness of her attack.

Roger had picked up a stick. He came up just as the bull had gripped the saile on Lovely's jacket and was dangling there, ripping the garment viciously, Roger struck at the animal. Shrieking with fear before it was hurt the bull let go of the fabric and ran, tail between its legs.

"Lovely are you hurt?" Roger asked breathlessly.

"No, but I've got to get Win to fix Midnight."

Heedless of the blood that was spotting her suit she turned toward the kennels.

"Phone him, Roger, while I take care of Midnight."

you Cosgraves and Emily. You're thoughtful, considerate about other people. You think before anything dreadful happens. The rest of us people who just grow in the weed patches, never think until after the damage is done."

"You mustn't class yourself with such people, Lovely. You aren't that kind."

"I don't know—" she was still subdued. "Perhaps you're right. Perhaps you're wrong."

"Of course I'm right." He slipped his arm about her as they started upstairs. "And forget Emily. She's nothing."

Lovely looked up at him and smiled. "Perhaps you're right," she repeated. "Perhaps you're wrong."

Campaign Organized For Control Of Rats

A county-wide rat control campaign has been organized by C. D. Griggs, assistant county agent, in cooperation with the township committees.

Plans have been made for interested farmers to place their orders for mixed (ready to use) poison bait with a member of their township committee. Orders must be placed between now and March 18th.

The committee will report to Mr. Griggs and L. C. Whitehead, rodent control specialist, and will take the bait to one central place in each township on March 21 where it will be distributed to farmers who have placed orders.

Three pounds of bait will cost $1 or 50 cents for a single pound. Three pounds will be required for most average size farms.

For a program of this kind to be most effective the entire county will have to poison at the same time; therefore, farm owners and tenants are urged to place an order with a member of their committee not later than March 18th.

Purchase Is Made Of Pure Bred Stock

A. R. Barnhill of near Greenville has recently purchased an outstanding purebred Guernsey bull to head his herd of dairy cows.

The bull which Mr. Barnhill purchased is Ideal Rose Noble who is a son of Quail Rost Maxin's Ideal (1940 grand champion at the N. C. State Fair) son of High Point Prince Maxin.

Ideal Rose Noble's dam is Quail Rost Noble Rose whose sire was Quail Rost Majesty's Rose.

The bull is one of the better bulls in breeding and quality found in eastern Carolina, and was purchased from Dempsey Ellis of Bahama, N. C. Dempsey bought the dam from Quail Rost farm for a 4-H club project.

Demand Is Brisk For Local Bicycle Tags

The demand for bicycle license tags has been so great since the Police department started licensing the vehicles that the initial order of 500 has nearly been exhausted.

More tags are being ordered, however, and the campaign to have every bicycle in the city registered will continue.

Sales up to this morning totalled 481.

With all bicycles in the city registered, police officials believe the traffic situation will be greatly improved as the law provides for the revocation of licenses for infractions.

Three young men were received yesterday.

The veteran naval man of 30 years experience, also invited anyone interested in the navy and its personnel to visit him on any of his visits here.
