STRIKE CALLED AT NEW JERSEY ALUMINUM CO.

CIO Claims Overtime Pay Provision Is Violated

STRIKE AFFECTS 3,000 EMPLOYEES

Chief Of Conciliation Service Meanwhile Prepares To Confer On Allis - Chalmers Dispute

(By The Associated Press)
CIO union employees at the Edgewater, N. J., plant of the Aluminum Company of America struck today, claiming that the company had violated overtime pay provisions of the union contract.

The plant employs about 3,000 workers and manufacture aluminum used in many defense articles.

Labor Secretary Perkins said that John R. Stettinman, chief of the U. S. Conciliation Service, would confer with management of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company and CIO United Automobile Worker officials in an attempt to end a strike which for seven weeks has delayed production on $45,000,000 worth of national defense orders.

Thomas Finn, another representative of the Conciliation Service, was assigned to try to settle a fresh dispute between the CIO's steel workers organizing committee and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Lackawanna, N. Y., which was the site of a brief strike last month. The union, which claims 10,000 of the 14,000 employees as members, declared the company refused to discuss grievances.

Labor men attached wide significance to negotiations at New York between CIO United Mine Workers of America and the nation's major bituminous coal operators concerning a new two-year contract for 450,000 miners.

John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers' union, presented the union's demands yesterday: a wage increase of one dollar a day; no change in the existing five-day 35-hour week. Terming the demands "rather formidable," the mine operators prepared to present their counter proposal tomorrow.

GHS Journalists At New York Meet

U.S. IS THANKED BY CHURCHILL

Passage Of Lend-Lease Bill Officially Recognized

London, March 12.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill formally thanked the United States today for passage of the British aid bill, which he termed a "new magna carta x x x, and inspiring act of faith."

With a United States military mission in the gallery—he later received the Americans in a private room—Churchill solemnly read the following statement to the House of Commons:

"The lease and lend bill, as the House is aware, became law yesterday when it received immediately the signature of the President (cheers) (cheers)."

"I am sure the House would wish me to express on their behalf and on behalf of the nation our deep and respectful appreciation of this monument of generous and far-seeing statesmanship (loud cheers)."

"The most powerful democracy has, in effect, declared in solemn statute that they will devote their overwhelming industrial and financial strength to insuring the defeat of Nazism in order that the nations great and small may live in security and freedom (cheers)."

"By so doing the government and the people of the United States have, in fact, written a new magna carta, which not only has regard to the rights and laws upon which a healthy and advancing civilization can alone be erected, but also proclaims by precept and example the duty of free men and free nations wherever they may be to share the responsibility and burden of enforcing them."

Gallery To Show Making Of Mosaic

A new showing "The Making of a Mosaic" will be held at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery March 12 to March 27. This exhibit represents work that has been done by California artists under the WPA art program. The warm climate of California, the type of architecture used there, and the co-operative work that this project provides, makes this type of work practical for this region.

Mosaic work is a very old art and has been used in certain types of architecture since ancient times. The most highly developed mosaic design appeared under the Greco-Roman civilization.

Germany Declared Not To Have Been Surprised By Passage Of Lend-Lease Bill; Roosevelt Described As Unpredictable Man by Official
Germany, Dared To Send One Convoy To Britain

Berlin, March 12.—(AP) The official German attitude toward the United States aid to Britain bill, a Nazi spokesman said today, may be summed up with the words: "We are not surprised, but are prepared for anything."

More solemn than usual, the spokesman declared: "Mr. Roosevelt is an unpredictable man. Let him send one convoy and x x x."

The sentence was left hanging. "We are determined to torpedo everything that approaches England," the spokesman went on after a pause. "We will see. We are ready for anything, come what may x x x."

"As a matter of fact, the law's aims have been in operation a long time. They (the British) got 50 destroyers, but the fact remains that needed materials have not arrived in desired volume and we will see that they do not do so hereafter."

The German radio declared "the lease-lend bill was rushed through the Congress merely to make a showing of honesty whereas, in reality, the United States government is intent only upon the speediest acquisition of a maximum number of British possessions."

Two Are Killed In Navy Plane Crash

San Diego, Calif., March 12.—(AP)—Two navy men died in the crash of a torpedo bombing plane last night, raising to 18 the number of airmen killed since January 1 in tragedies befalling navy planes based in San Diego.

The bomber spun out of a thundercloud 65 miles northeast of here, struck the ground and burst into flames.

The pilot baled out shortly before his ship struck the ground, suffering only minor injuries.

FDR'S REQUEST FOR 7 BILLION GOES TO HOUSE

Money Asked To Carry Out Fixed Policy Of Govt.

QUICK ACTION ON MEASURE ASKED

Detailed Estimates Show Largest Sum Of $2,054,000,000 Is Asked For Aircraft And Equipment

Washington, March 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today a request for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out a "fixed policy of this government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can."

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn transmitting detailed estimates of the budget director for the $7,000,000,000 expenditure, Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

"I strongly urge the immediate enactment of this appropriation."

The chief executive declared that America has felt that "it was imperative to the security of America that we encourage the democracies' heroic resistance to aggressions by not only maintaining, but also increasing the flow of material assistance from this country."

The President's request for the biggest peace-time appropriation bill in the nation's history went to Congress less than 24 hours after he signed the bill into law and approved the first list of supplies to be shipped to Britain and to Greece.

The appropriation estimate broke the $7,000,000,000 into various categories, of which the largest by far was $2,054,000,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spare parts and accessories."

Other categories were: $1,343,000,000 for ordnance, including armor and ammunition; $1,250,000,000 for agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles; $362,000,000 for tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks and other motor vehicles; $629,000,000 for ships and other water craft; $260,000,000 for miscellaneous military equipment; $752,000,000 for facilities and equipment for the manufacture of defense articles; $200,000,000 for testing, inspecting, repairing or otherwise putting in good working order any defense articles for the government of "any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

Tar Heel Highway System Is Held Up As U.S. Model

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, March 12.—While the general assembly is having heated arguments over the question of extending to other state agencies the right of eminent domain, the highway and public works commission is being commended by a national authority for its model system of acquiring land for rights of way and construction purposes.

In an address recently delivered before the association of highway officials from the North Atlantic States, held in Boston, L. E. Boykin, chief of the division of law and contracts in the federal Public Roads Administration, used the North Carolina eminent domain law as a model for other states. Other commonwealths having diversified methods of acquiring land for public roads. Some of them have an entirely separate organization for that purpose, while others use the authority of counties rather than a central state authority.

Mr. Boykin pointed out that the North Carolina plan of having the regular legal and engineering staff of the commission do all of this work makes for simplicity of operation and eliminates confusion. The speaker further emphasized that in North Carolina the plan of compensating former owners for land taken over by the state is simpler and assures the owner of more equitable treatment than it is possible for him to receive under some of the other plans.

Balkan Bomb Ring Blamed For Explosion of Bomb

Istanbul, Turkey, March 12.—(AP)—Turkish police and military authorities declared today they were searching for a "Balkan bomb ring" they believed behind an attempt to assassinate George W. Rendel, British minister, who left German-occupied Bulgaria.

At least four persons were killed and upwards of 20 injured last night, but Rendel escaped by a narrow margin when a bomb wrecked the lobby of the luxurious Pera Plaza hotel, where the British diplomat had brought his party from Sofia by train only a few minutes before.

Investigators, who indicated they foresaw possible "serious diplomatic repercussions" from the bombing, examined passengers on all trains searched baggage compartments and closely questioned all persons wishing to leave Istanbul for Bulgaria.

Survivors declared they believed the bomb had been placed aboard Rendel's train in Sofia—perhaps timed to explode in Turkey.

Yugoslav Leaders Gather With Capitulation To Nazi Demands Expected; Russia Tells Turkey It Need Not Fear Red Armies Massed On Danube If It Enters War On Side Of Greece

German warplanes have already begun bombing Greek towns from bases in Bulgaria, it was reported today, as Adolf Hitler massed 500,000 troops on the frontiers of Greece and Turkey and signs pointed to an imminent showdown.

Yugoslav leaders gathered in Belgrade amid forecasts that she would capitulate quickly to Nazi demands that she join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

In yielding, Yugoslavia presumably would open a new avenue for an expected German invasion of Greece.

Belgrade, March 12.—(AP)—Yugoslavia was reported in reliable government circles tonight to have agreed in principle to sign the three-power military pact of Germany-Rome-Tokyo.

These quarters said the Premier and Foreign Minister would go to Berlin within a few days.

British sources in Istanbul quoted a Greek army officer as saying German planes had raided a town in Grecian Thrace, likely striking point of a German attack.

Belgrade dispatches said Russia had promised Turkey she was not going to fear from Soviet Red armies massed along the Danube if she decided to fight on Greece's side.

Greek military dispatches said that Italians, using the biggest force they have thus far employed, attacked at six different points in Albania yesterday after careful artillery preparation, but all thrusts were repulsed.

Hitler's high command asserted that naval and aerial attacks on Britain's supply lines from November through February had destroyed 2,037,000 tons of shipping. Only a few days ago the British asserted Axis claims on sea losses were exaggerated 100 per cent.

In overnight raids Royal Air Force bombers attacked German's big Kiel naval base, the London Air Ministry announced, and blasted the docks at Bremerhaven.

Night raiding Nazi bombers subjected a city in northwest England to its heaviest sustained assault in months, driving at least 150 persons from their homes and burying others killed and wounded in the wreckage.

There was no outstanding business taken up last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Student Council. It was decided to investigate the possibilities of building a new bicycle rack or to put a top on the one we now have. Also, I think most of the parents will be glad to hear the council has postponed work on the new schedule indefinitely. This means that the council has dropped work on the project.

Girl Scout Activities In Greenville

GIRL SCOUTING IS DEFENSE
There seems to be a good deal of confusion these days as to just what constitutes national defense. The celebration on March 12 of the 29th birthday of Girl Scouting in this country is a timely reminder that national defense begins with the nations youth.

The good work done in the past year by the Greenville Girl Scouts shows what can be done to train girls for motherhood and citizenship. As for what should be done next, we can look at Great Britain where the Scout movement has flourished. Apparently a nation which has a large body of young people trained to think for themselves and to accept the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship is a nation which can't be easily overthrown.

Dictators recognize the value of youth organizations. They take them over or abolish them if they can't bend them to their wills. It would seem the part of national wisdom to support such organizations and strengthen them while there is still time.

Many national defense plans are for young people more than 18 years old. When girls from seven to 18 ask "What can we do to help?" the answer should be easy: "You can join the Girl Scouts. They show you plenty to do and you'll have fun doing it."

Parents know that future citizens and mothers of citizens need the sort of practical democratic experience offered by the Greenville Girl Scout troops. Any defense plan should certainly include giving more girls a chance to share this valuable training at once.

Happy birthday, Girl Scouts! America needs more like you!

"Five dollars, sir."

"Don't you think this boy deserves a break?" the auctioneer demanded of the crowd.

On the next bicycle there was only one bid—$5.

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

"I have some good news for you dear," Julie said.

Chapter One
"Two hearts!" Julie Holt Emerson glanced down at her cards and sighed impatiently. In the last hour of bridge she had already learned that her partner, Mrs. Selby-Williams, would bid just for the fun of it—and yet be hurt when Julie failed to support her.

She regarded Mrs. Selby-Williams' hands across the table, still sorting the cards, and sighed again with distaste. Why did diamonds always look vulgar on pudgy hands? She was glad her own hands—once called "the most expressive on the American stage"—had retained their slenderness.

She glanced toward Mrs. Marbury, on her right. Mrs. Marbury too, was plump, but her softness was the appealing kind. Julie thought even though it was an effort to smile when Mrs. Marbury said again as usual:

"I think hearts is such a nice suit—sort of romantic. I just won't bid spades, although I probably could. But they're such ugly things."

"Talking across the table!" The woman at Julie's left, thin and mousey-looking—"unimpaired," Julie had immediately labeled her—was plainly irritated by this type of bridge. But she had arrived only that afternoon at the Ocean Park Hotel and would, Julie thought, leave the next day. She had already complained bitterly of the "cobble-stone beach," the impossible food and terrible service. By morning she would have enough complaints to justify breaking her reservation.

Privately, Julie Emerson agreed with everything she said. But she had chosen this hotel for the intangible benefits it could bring to herself and her protégé, Evangeline Prentice.

What did poor service matter, if you were served in the same room as Mrs. Theodore Marbury and her niece? Who cared about the beach if, on the bridge path, Eve might bump into an eligible young man? She had been in far more uncomfortable hotels, Julie thought sturdily, although not, she remembered with a shudder, at thirty dollars subject, but even I could see they'd been built as late as 1830."

"But how old do you want this house to be?" Julie inquired, a little puzzled.

She wouldn't consider anything later than Revolutionary times, Mrs. Marbury explained. It was a period of American architecture that was particularly appealing, she thought. "Besides," she went on, "these really old places should be preserved as a record of our nation."

Anyway, now she had engaged a young man who knew everything about Early American architecture, and he was conducting the search for her. His name was Brett Rodman and she had heard only the day before that he'd found what he believed to be just the house.

Julie tried to keep her attention from wandering. Old houses! For her part, she liked a good hotel. Yet Mrs. Marbury and her niece seemed to be the social center of the summer colony at Ocean Park and Julie had grimly determined that she should serve to introduce herself and Eve to everyone worthwhile.

So far, Mrs. Marbury had done nothing to further this ambition beyond an occasional afternoon of bridge in which Eve refused to join them. Really, Julie thought, not for the first time, Eve was being too difficult.

"—And we're going to have Mr. Rodman come over tomorrow afternoon to tell us about it," Mrs. Marbury was saying. "Since you're so interested in old houses, why don't you and your niece drop in to our suite about five o'clock? Gina will probably have the place packed with her crowd and we won't be able to hear anything, but you and I can talk to Mr. Rodman in some corner."

For a moment Julie was almost caught off-guard. The invitation she had been angling for!

Telling Eve
"Why we'd love to!" she said, eagerly, too eagerly. "That is," she added with more of her old caution, "if I can persuade Eve to stop moping for a few hours. It's very kind of you to ask us," she went on, with just the right note conveying a fact—understanding between them. "I'm sure if Eve could meet some new young people she would get over this—this infatuation much sooner. Yet one has to be so careful in a

"Well, these young things you know—" Julie's expressive hands excused youth's shortcomings. "I'm afraid Eve is just a little upset right now. Not a serious love affair, of course, but if I hadn't dragged her away when I did—"

Mrs. Marbury's romantic nature was touched, as Julie had foreseen; nevertheless Julie glanced hastily over her shoulder to make sure that Eve had not come in unexpectedly and overheard any part of it.

Eve was being difficult, it was true, but Julie's explanation was born of impulse and Eve would probably have denied it at once if she had heard it. There was no sign of Julie's tall, dark-haired protégé, however, and Mrs. Marbury accepted the suggestion of a broken romance with alacrity.

"Never mind, my dear, she'll thank you for this later on Gina too—that's my niece, you know—has had her little flirtations, but I always think that if you can keep young folks amused and interested they keep out of mischief so much better. That's really why I'm trying to persuade Mr. Marbury to let me buy an old country place on an island, if we can get one like that. I would prefer to have it quite rudedown, you know, and let Gina help me redecorate it. I think it would bring out her homemaking instinct. But of course," she laughed, with an intimacy that delighted Julie—"I wouldn't let her know that for the world. All she thinks of now is parties and tennis and horseback riding—you know how it is."

"But how perfectly clever of you!" Julie broke in admiringly. "I wish I'd thought of doing that for Eve. You know she really has a little talent for interior decoration. But of course"—Julie shook her head—"my income is not what it was."

Mrs. Marbury, once on the subject, bubbled on about this search of hers for just the right type of house. She recounted her disappointments in looking at places said to have been built long ago, adding, "Of course, I'm no authority on the

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds

By Robin Coon

Hollywood.—Away back in 1926 there was only a slight ripple in this movie town when a lanky youngster from Montana, an unknown, took a role in a picture called "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

What little ripple there was, however, spread and spread and kept on spreading until now Gary Cooper is quite a big splash in the movie pool.

This is by no means a prediction that today's lanky Montanan George Montgomery is going to make another Cooper splash. But just on the chance, and because Hollywood is ever full of surprises let's record today that another cowboy star is getting started, and decidedly under the Cooper influence.

If star-lightning strikes George they'll be telling some day of this first major film of his, "The Cowboy and the Blonde."

Again Julie's hands expressed her thought for her. Mrs. Marbury immediately caught the infection. "Julie wanted to get up and run from the table, so that she might tell Eve at once how successfully her plans were working out. But she forced herself to sit quietly while Mrs. Marbury went on describing the hazards of having too much money. She felt her smile getting stiff as she agreed for the hundredth time that one couldn't be too careful nowadays. At last the other bridge players began to drift away, and Mrs. Marbury recalled that she had promised to have dinner with some friends. Julie went to the elevator with a sigh of relief."

When Julie reached the room she and Evangeline Prentice had taken for the month she found it deserted. She settled down before the dressing table of imitation mahogany and picked up a rubber, spoon-shaped instrument with which she proceeded to spank vigorously the slightly fleshy line under her chin.

The sound of the door opening cut a gross hair wandering thoughts. "Is that you, dear?" she asked, turning her face toward the sound. Pads steeped in ice water covered her eyes. Her appearance would have startled anyone less accustomed to the sight than the tall dusky-haired girl who was crossing the room with a swinging grace. Eve, as a matter of fact, barely glanced at the apparition that Julie presented, and the grotesque effect of the eye-pads was completely lost on her.

"Of course," she answered Julie's question, her tone lifeless. Julie heard the creak of the springs as Eve threw herself across one of the twin beds.

Since Julie Holt Emerson had appeared in Eve's life after her mother's death, the actress had been a good friend. Eve had to admit.

But Julie could do difficult at times, too. This idea of hers about marrying well, for instance, was one of the most trying for Eve to endure. Didn't Julie know that love could not be beckoned at will? The few thousand dollars they had won with that funny little soap contest jingle were melting rapidly in this expensive and uninteresting hotel.

If only Julie had let her do what she wanted: open her own decorating shop and at least try to make some provision for the future.

Julie removed her eye-pads and sat back for a moment contemplating the girl's long figure, graceful even as it sprawled on the white counterpane.

"I have some good news for you, dear," she said.

My Dear, How You've Changed

The 16-year-old Hedy Kiesler (left) who starred in "Ecstasy" and won highest Italian cinematic honors thereby, bears little resemblance to the sleek Hedy Lamarr of American-made films. Hollywood changed the Vienna girl's name, darkened her brown hair, did tricks with her violet-blue eyes, and otherwise made Lamarr synonymous with glamor.

boy and the Blonde." It's a yarn about a cowpoke (naturally) who comes to Hollywood and gets mixed up with a blonde (Mary Beth Hughes) and the movies. In it the cowboy becomes a movie star, which is just what 20th Century-Fox hopes George Montgomery, through the picture, will become.

George is 24, six feet three, broad-shouldered, handsome. He came down to Los Angeles to see off a brother, Michael, who was leaving for an engineering job in South America. There was some riding and doubling in western pictures, and the usual business of a talent scout, a test, a contract, and three or four minor roles. He was handsome in all of them.

When "The Cowboy and the Blonde" came his way, George went in to see the director. "I'm glad to be in your picture, Mr. McCarey," said George, with all the ease of a soldier at attention.

"Name's Ray," said Ray McCarey. "Sit down. Relax. How you feeling?" And so on—just gab about this and that.

George's military shoulders lowered a little. "Relax," reiterated Ray. "Let your shoulders down. You can't be an actor if you can't unbend and be natural. Here, I've an idea—"

McCarey took George to the movies. To six movies. To six Gary Cooper movies. "See," said Ray. "That's what I mean. Cooper's the most natural actor in pictures. Don't copy his style. Don't copy anything about him—but let yourself go the way he does and you'll be all right."

Meanwhile, the production has brought about an odd situation. Here's a newcomer for whose picture the name of the lot has been changed temporarily. Over the gate is a fictitious studio name. While he was acting there, the lot's biggest stars, executives, holy-toiletter to detour. In a sense, for a couple of days, he was the most important star on the lot. Afterward he was again just "That Montgomery boy," who might or might not—some day—click.

POINTING WITH THE FLOW... Some one asked the owner of a professional football team where he got his fine players. His reply was, "I get them for the most part in the country districts. If I see a young fellow plowing in a field, I ask him the direction of the nearest town. If he points with his finger, I strike him off my list. If he points with the plow, I sign him up."

Thought-for-Today Department... According to the Treasury Department, the government has just completed transfer of nine million dollars in gold from the Assay Office in New York City to the "hole in the ground" at Fort Knox, Ky.

BRIGHT FUTURE?... Reports from the highest sources say that Mussolini is virtually Hitler's prisoner. The Gestapo is in Italy. German officials are in key positions in all departments of the Italian government, including the War Office.

THE NEXT STEP... Now that the Lend-Lease bill has been made into law by the affixation of President Roosevelt's signature late yesterday, the next most important step for our government, according to our way of thinking, is to take immediate action to put a stop to all these strikes and other labor trouble, in order that there might be no further delays in our defense program and in the manufacture of materials so necessary for Great Britain if the fight against Hitlerism is to be won.

What We're Reading... There is food for reasons in the Census Bureau's latest survey of the book publishing field. Not only is the Bible still America's best seller way and yonder, but the Bible business is booming as it never has before. The total output of Bibles, Testaments and parts of the Bible published in 1939 totaled 7,927,848—nearly two and a half million more than in 1937. The number of white Bibles published was 2,243,069, with separately published Testaments amounting to 1,268,614. Compare this with earlier years when the census takers dipped into the publishing business. In 1935, there were 591,173 Bibles published; in 1933, there were 696,448; and in 1931, the number was 1,276,630.

ing to pass the Lend-Lease bill, it is probable that little or nothing could be done in the way of straightening out the labor situation. But now Congress and the administration should be free to tackle this next important task and we believe such a step would meet with the wholehearted approval of our people at this time. No labor organization, no individual or no group of individuals should be permitted to stand in the way of America doing the very necessary job ahead of her.

Under terms of a bill introduced by Representative Stone of Rockingham, and signed also by Joe Garrett and Victor Bryant, the state highway commission would have the right to fix building lines along highway rights of way at any point up to 20 feet back of the right of way.

Lady Wants Divorce... A letter read in the senate yesterday occasioned some humorous comment, but there was pathos rather than humor in the letter. A woman in Goldsboro addressed the letter to Lt. Regulate Foxes?... Senator Gregg Cherry is either an optimist or the stenographer writing his bill got crossed up. He introduced yesterday a bill "regulating foxes in Gaston county." Now the hunting of foxes can be regulated, but anyone at all familiar with the habits of a fox will readily understand that Sir Reynard is about as little susceptible to regulation as his personal habits as any wild animal.

END ROW OVER UNC TRUSTEES

Members Named At Calm And Peaceful Session

Reflector Bureau.
By LYNN NISBET
Raleigh, March 12.—Election of trustees for the greater university which promised to furnish the occasion for an open revolt of legislators against executive dominance, was accomplished with the peace and serenity of a Sunday school class at joint meeting of House and Senate Monday night.

Main reason for the harmony was that everybody won, and it is easy to be generous when you win. There had been a sort of impasse between the nominating committee and the governor with respect to placing the name of State Chairman E. B. Denny on the list. The governor asked to have him nominated; the committee did not oblige. A second meeting was called and both governor and committee stood pat. Over the week-end however, Robert Grady Johnson head of the prison division in the highway commission, tendered his resignation. This made another vacancy, and the name of E. B. Denny was inserted. There wasn't a single nomination from the floor and there wasn't a vote against the committee report.

It developed that Mr. Johnson was named the year he was speaker of the house, and that he never cared much for the duties or the honor of the post but he did not resign just so Mr. Denny could be named. Fact is he had another gentleman in mind. But in view of all the commotion last week over the joint committee meeting failing to nominate Denny, the news reporters being excluded from a second meeting because one of them violated the agreement as to what should be printed, and the governor's insistence upon Mr. Denny, the Johnson resignation came as manna from heaven and was eagerly seized upon as the way out of an unpleasant predicament. The governor got his man, the committee retained its dignity and prestige, the university got 31 good new trustees and everybody is happy.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
New York.—Tommy Tucker is an orchestra leader and a Phi Beta Kappa who thinks so little of jewelry that he doesn't even own a Phi Beta Kappa key.

He is a University of North Dakota product who played baseball and debated during his under-graduate days and then tried his hand at teaching, which bored him, and drove him, presently, to banging a hot piano in a Minot cafe. Thus the transition from professorship into a band leader, though, despite all the good things that have come to him, his great ambition has not been realized and never will be. "I have always," says Tommy Tucker "wanted to pitch for the Minneapolis Millers."

In his off moments Tucker is an "escape" movie fan and a reader of thrill fiction. He plays a lot of golf and dotes on barbecued ribs. In his wallet is a card which identifies him as a special police officer of Santa Monica, Calif. "Doesn't wear a thing," says he.
His musical signature is "I Love You (Oh, How I Love You)," and there, he says, only 251 other songs bearing this same title.

Unlike Kay Kyser, the late Hal Kemp, Skinny Ennis, and other ### band leaders who had their own bands in college. Tommy never became identified with a musical organization while residing amid the sacred groves of the University of North Dakota. On the side, however, he fiddled around with a trombone and a piano, writing bad songs that never got published but which drew curious rejections from publishers, such as the one about a football hero which the publisher called "Too English in Character."

So Tucker became an orchestra leader proper and began those crossings of the continent which seem essential to the development of any good band. It played tank towns up and down the country for years and finally became known and here it is. At 29 Tommy Tucker is still a bachelor. He is a native of Souris, N. D., a metropolis smack dab on the Canadian border and sporting a population of 250. His daddy was a railroad man.

Andre Kostelanetz recently wrote 150 letters to army camps, forts and similar concentrations of young draftees. His idea, he says, was to ascertain the musical preferences of the youngsters now being transferred into soldiers. He wanted to find out what their favorite songs were and, if possible, why.
The returns now are all in, and Kostelanetz, with some amazement, announces that "Beer Barrel Polka," the old Czechoslovakian drinking song, is the nation's favorite among marching men.
The runners-up were "U. S. Field Artillery March," "Semper Fidelis," and "Ferry Boat Serenade."

"God Bless America" and "I Am An American," Kostelanetz reports received only scattered ballots. At Arlington, Va., the Twelfth Infantry picked the Navy's song, "Anchors Aweigh," but the 32nd Coast Artillery at Ft. Hancock preferred "Sweet Sue." The old First Cavalry at Ft. Knox, Ky., is now the First Armored Regiment, but has remained loyal to four-footed friends in preference of a song. Its selection, "The Old Gray Mare."

She's Too Strong

Stanley Westgate, 190-pound Detroit policeman, and his 114-pound wife, Mrs. Violet Westgate (above) gave a ju-jitsu demonstration before an audience of women. The Mrs. was adept at the art, tossing her husband high in the air. Westgate made a bad landing. The result: a broken leg.

The winter sleep of some plants is over, a good plan is to plant all your garden calendar calls for this month.

We should have a few straw berries on every farm if not a big patch.
When you think of the pleasure of the berries gathered from two rows planted on one side of the garden you think of the most popular fruit among small fruits.

Henry House, Grimesland Route One, picked from his few rows, last season some over 275 quarts. He had all he could use for table use and sold some to market. Small wonder that Henry was walking around town the other day with a grip in his hand, maybe he still has money in it from the sales of his berries.—D. D. Dupree, Negro county Agent.

A new Woman's club has been organized in the Bevoir community. The president and her co-workers have pledged themselves to do all in their power to help make this a banner year. The slogan of their program is "Feed The Family." Each one in the club promises to adopt a family and see that they come up to the measure for the year in providing a well balanced diet of vegetables, fruits, and meats.
In the 4-H club meeting at St. Peters school the other day it was pleasing to see the number of children raise their hands to their leader, Mrs. Parker, promising that each would do all they could to help in this defence program. They promised to have gardens, chickens, turkeys and pigs. Two club members from this club attended the short course in Greensboro each year.

PINES SHIPPED BY NURSERIES

More Than 3,570,000 Seedling Are Distributed

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, March 12.—More than 3,570,000 forest seedlings, most of them pines, have already been shipped from the two State Forest Nurseries for reforestation of farm land and other tracts, it was announced today by State Forester J. S. Holmes of the Department of Conservation and Development. A majority of these seedlings were grown in the nursery in Johnston county, near Clayton, although several hundred thousand white pines locusts and poplars were grown in the mountain nursery in Henderson county.
"The forest tree planting season has just about closed and we would have disposed of this year's crop of seedlings before this but for the fact that shipments were delayed by the ground being frozen so hard that the seedlings could not be lifted from the beds," Mr. Holmes said. "We have an order for 100,000 long-leaf pines to be shipped within the next few days and there may be some small orders still to go out. But most of the crop has already been dug and delivered."
The production of trees from the two nurseries was about 1,000,000 more this year than last year and slightly exceeded the estimate of the Forestry Division. Mr. Holmes pointed out. Of the 3,570,000 seedlings that have already been shipped, 133,000 were used on reforestation projects in the Bladen Lake land-used area, now being maintained as game sanctuary and recreational area by the Department of Conservation and Development.
The increased interest in forest planting by individuals in the State is shown by the fact that this year orders for trees were received from 760 persons, while last year orders were received from 480 individuals. Thus there was an increase of almost 50 per cent in individual orders this year, Mr. Holmes pointed out.

BRITONS BRUSH UP ON WAR TIME DISHES OF SEAWEED

Glasgow, Scotland.—(AP)—Seaweed soup, stems of sea-tangle and sea moss jelly, swilled down with carrageen may not seem an intelligible menu to the average man but they are an example of what Scotland and Wales can turn out in an emergency.
Londoners got a taste of these "delicacies" at an exhibition of Scottish and Welsh dishes suited to wartime menus. The tasters politely praised the strange wartime food but confessed that roast beef and mutton were more to their liking.
Success of the dishes, made from dulse, an edible seaweed, depends on the cooking and flavoring. Slokan one of the favorites, has to be washed, steeped in milk and deprived of its bitterness with judicious pinches of bicarbonate of soda. Then pepper, vinegar and lemon juice are added according to taste.

GALLERY TO SHOW MAKING OF MOSAIC

A jig-saw puzzle to form designs over a drawing on paper. The mosaic works in much the same way—except that he uses bits of stone or glass for his inlay pasted to paper and ultimately places his design in a wet plastered wall or floor. When the design dries it becomes a permanent architectural feature of the building.
The exhibit at the art gallery will show three kinds of mosaics, natural marble, glazed tile and glass. Experiments in modern materials such as linoleum and plastics are being made by WPA craftsmen. It remains to be seen what strides will be made with this art in the "World of Tomorrow."
The mosaics in the art gallery are made of a substitute material to permit shipping, as cement would be too heavy.
The public is invited to see this exhibit which will be open from 2 to 6 p. m. each day except Sunday. The gallery is located on the second floor of the Sheppard Memorial Library.

STEAM ROLLER AGAIN ACTIVE

House Doesn't Like Bill, But Votes For It

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, March 12.—The old steam roller, or maybe it was a modern tank, was working good on the senate districts bill in the house of representatives Monday night. The bill had few friends, but got lots of votes. Half a dozen or more amendments were sent up, but only the innocuous ones were permitted to pass, perhaps there should be excepted from the innocuous classification the "separation clause" proposed by Representative Austin.
Mr. Austin, chairman of the senatorial districts committee, sponsored the main bill in the house as it came over from the senate; but he was afraid some of the innocent looking amendments might be unconstitutional. So he proposed a change in one section to make it very clear that if any section, sentence, clause, phrase or word was ruled out as contrary to the constitution the rest of the patchwork act should not be affected thereby.

Speaking against the bill and referring to it in extremely complimentary terms—such expression as vicious, unfair and despicable being common—were Representative Watkins of Vance, Kerr of Warren, Joyner of Northampton and both Pritchette—J. A. of Bertie and J. T. of Caldwell. But in the end all of them voted for the bill.
Mr. Joyner tried two amendments both designed to assure Northampton a senator next time, but both were voted down. John Kerr said the Democratic committees in the counties could arrange rotation, and his idea prevailed.
The bill goes back to the senate for concurrence in the Austin amendment and one or two others respecting rotation between counties.

The question at issue was whether the $10,000 required and tentatively approved by the appropriations committee should come out of the general fund allocation for contingency and emergency or out of the department of conservation and development. The appropriations committee said get it out of conservation; the governor suggested the contingency fund. So after the three quarters of an hour debate, in which some ragged nerves were evidenced the contingency fund was socked for the bill.

DAM QUESTION TAKES UP TIME

House Debates Columbus Project 45 Minutes

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, March 12.—With less than one page of a ten page calendar behind them, house members took time out Monday night to spend forty five minutes talking about who would pay for rebuilding a dam at Waccamaw Lake in Columbus county.

that private property owners around the lake would benefit mostly from it, and should help pay for it. The gentlemen, however, who held that the lake being a state park, the state ought to pay for the whole dam supported by the magic words "The Governor Approves," won the argument and the state will build the dam—unless the senate decides that the house was unwise in its disposition of the matter.
In this, as in so many other de-bates, the old east-west animosity cropped out and easterners who wanted Waccamaw saved could not resist the temptation to remind the westerners that they had secured several fish hatcheries from the state.
There were 35,880 major crimes in New York state in 1940 compared with 38,768 the year before.
