TAX RESEARCH UNIT APPROVED BY HOUSE VOTE

Would Be Set Up Under State Revenue Department

MAXWELL LIKELY TO GET NEW POST

Capitol Hill Gossip Lists Willie L. Lumpkin As Most Likely To Be Named Revenue Commissioner

Raleigh, March 13—(AP) The House approved without debate today an administration bill to create a new department of tax research in the Revenue Department.

The measure was sent to the Senate and general gossip was that upon its enactment, which is considered a certainty, Gov. Broughton will make Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell the director of the new division. Rumor has it that Senator Willie Lee Lumpkin of Franklin county may be the new revenue commissioner.

Also, without a word of opposition, the House ordered ratification of a Senate bill backed by Broughton to create a new State Board of Public Buildings and Grounds.

Governor Broughton said he would transmit to the Senate tomorrow for approval his nominations for the newly revamped Utilities Commission. Stanley Winborne, the present commissioner, will be chairman of the new body and Broughton will name two full-time commissioners to work with him. Speaker Mull told House members that the bill calendar was in fine shape, that apparently practically all local legislation had been introduced and the legislature was on the verge of sine die adjournment now tentatively set for some time Saturday.

The Senate Calendar Committee reported unfavorably the House-passed bill to make the flame azalea the official state flower. That was believed to have killed the measure. Senator O'Berry of Wayne committee chairman, said he had received a number of protests against designating the azalea. On motion of Sen. Leary of Chowan, author of the measure, the Senate refused to concur in House amendments which cut in half the scope of his bill to permit imposition of life prison terms in lieu of death sentences when juries convict persons of capital felonies and recommend imprisonment. The House struck rape and murder from the bill, leaving them under the law requiring death sentences in first degree cases. Leary proposed the change for first degree convictions for rape, murder, arson and burglary.

The Senate passed and ordered ratification into law House Bill 806 to authorize an airport in Wilson and House Bill 879 relating to the Pitt peace officers benefit fund.

House bill 879 relating to the Pitt County Officers' benefit fund, passed today by the Senate and ordered ratification into law, permits directors of the fund to pay the treasurer up to $25 monthly in funds at present are handled by County Treasurer J. Vance Perkins.

MARINE CHIEF PRAISES BASE

Declares Eastern Carolina Site Is Almost Ideal

Washington, March 13—(AP)—The marines are still "telling it to Congress" about the advantages of the site on the New river in Eastern North Carolina for a new marine base.

Major General Thomas Holcomb, marine commandant, told the House Appropriations committee in hearings published today that the New River site was the one area between Norfolk, Va., and Corpus Christi, Texas, that was "suitable in all respects."

He was testifying on the 1941-42 naval appropriation bill. "It is almost ideal," General Holcomb said. "There are two or three things we would like to have a little different, but you can not get the ideal, and this is much closer to the ideal than I thought we would ever find."

"It is inexpensive, and it is a large enough area to fire all our weapons—all types of guns. It has four and one-half miles of surf beach with land behind over which we can advance."

"It has excellent communication facilities—the Atlantic Coast Line runs right around the edge of it—and it has power close behind at Wilmington which can easily be brought up."

Varieties Tested To Find Best Corn

In the last four years carefully checked corn variety tests have been conducted in cooperation with Mrs. D. J. Wilson of Stokes, L. S. Brown of Stokes, and Francis Proctor and Miss Helen Smith of Falkland, county agents, and E. C. Blair, agronomist of State College.

The object of these variety tests was to keep a close check on the yields and adaptability of new varieties and hybrids being introduced as compared to our old varieties of corn.

In each case small plots (approximately 1-20 of an acre) were planted to each variety so as to have as near uniform soil and other conditions as possible.

The varieties were planted at the same time and cultivated and fertilized alike. At harvest time the varieties were harvested and weighed separately.

Results: the average yields in bushels per acre for varieties tested for three or more years were: Biggs Two Ear, 53.6; Cooke's Prof. 52.9; Boschen's Special, 51.8; Local, 51.4; Latham's Double, 50.4; Highland Horsetooth, 48.3; Wood's Hybrid Golden Prolific, 48.2; Golden Makequik, 47.9; Wood's Hybrid White Dent, 46.8; Jarvis Golden, 44.5; Indian Chief, 43.7; Mallard's Yellow, 43.0; Wood's Hybrid Yellow Dent, 42.3.

In Unheralded Address At Linz, Germany, Reichsfuehrer Recalls Success German Achieved In 1870 and Adds That The End Of The Current Struggle Will Not Differ By A Hair's Breadth

Linz, Germany, March 13. (AP)—A prediction by Adolf Hitler that the war will end with a tremendous Nazi victory, insuring plans for "a greater Germany" sounded the keynote for ceremonies today commemorating the third anniversary of the union of Hitler's native Austria with the Reich.

The Fuehrer made the prediction in an unheralded speech as he arrived here last night to take part in the celebration.

Recalling the "tremendous success" Germany achieved in the year of 1870, Hitler declared "the end of today's struggle will not differ a hair's breadth."

"The hour of our final victory will come," he said, "whereupon we will develop very thoroughly the plans we have made."

"Then we will work harder and more and more to give the Greater Reich the character of a nation of endeavor, the character of strong social community life...."

"We are not obligated to any class or to any group and we bow to no human being. Before us is the recognition of the German people, before us is a greater Germany."

Five Pct. Tax Proposed On All Earned Income

Amounts Would Be Deducted From Pay Envelopes

Washington, March 13—(AP)—Congressional fiscal experts casting about for new revenue sources to help pay for the $7,000,000,000 British aid program were reported considering today the possibility of imposing a five per cent tax on the weekly pay of most of the nation's workers.

If such a five per cent "earned income" tax should be levied that amount would be deducted each week from the pay envelopes of a large proportion of job-holders. Thus a worker now receiving $40 weekly would get instead $38 and a tax receipt for $2. Small wage-earners—possibly those receiving $25 weekly or less—would be exempted.

Although it was emphasized that this proposal was merely in the discussion stage and might never mature, responsible individuals who have been studying the plan said they had received estimates that a five percent levy of this nature would raise $3,500,000,000 yearly.

No Halt In New Bills As Adjournment Approaches

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, March 13.—The end of this legislative session has been quite generally set for the end of this week, but this near approach of sine die quitting hasn't completely dried up the torrent of bills being tossed into the machinery.

Not only local bills, but measures of considerable public interest and importance have been introduced this week; though chance for their serious consideration is much slimmer than it would have been earlier in the session.

This bureau, using mail correspondence, cannot pretend to keep right up to the minute with the status of each bill at this late date, and so there is no guarantee that the following measures, introduced very recently, are not either already law or already dead when this piece is read.

House Bill 902, introduced by U. B. Blalock of Anson, Empowering the governor to appoint a special commission for the purpose of studying a building program for the state and allocating space to state constitutional officers of auditor treasurer and secretary of state.

This, if ever worked out and made effective, would leave the governor the sole occupant of the capitol except during legislative sessions.

Passage would also give the governor another commission with which to reward the faithful by

MINE WORKERS BOOST DENIED BY OPERATORS

One Dollar A Day Salary Increase Is Rejected

ALUMINUM PLANT REMAINS CLOSED

Labelle Works of The Crucible Steel Company, Holding Defense Orders, Also Closed By Strike

By The Associated Press

The nation's bituminous coal operators rejected today union demands for a blanket one dollar a day wage increase and proposed that the present two-year contract covering wages and employment conditions for 450,000 miners be extended another two years.

The United Mine Workers of America, CIO, had asked Tuesday for the wage boost, along with other changes at the opening in New York of the biennial joint conference of union and management representatives from the eight-state Appalachian region.

The present contract, expiring March 31, provides $6 a day for miners in northern fields, $5.60 in the south.

The big Aluminum Company of America plant at Edgewater, N. J. still is by a strike early yesterday remained closed. Three thousand workers were affected. CIO union leaders contended the company had violated over-time pay provisions of a labor contract.

Also idle was the Labelle Works of the Crucible Steel Company of Pittsburgh. Officials of the company, which employs about 900 men declared CIO steel workers had called an "unauthorized strike." The firm has defense orders for small arms parts.

New York's Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia appeared sanguine of an early settlement of the bus strike which has stalled 95 per cent of Manhattan's surface transportation for three days.

Dr. Frank Speaker At Ruritan Club

Dr. A. D. Frank of East Carolina Teachers College, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Winterville Ruritan club Tuesday night. He spoke on "Current Problems of Democracy in America."

First, he pointed to the rapid increase of strikes in defense industries. About fifty are in progress now and the result is a slowing down of the flow of defense materials to Great Britain. Unless the CIO and AFL leaders take action to curb strikes, Dr. Frank predicted that the government may be forced to prohibit them by law.

The second problem that is facing American democracy is the growth of the labor vote and the government employee vote. According to Dr. Frank labor controlled 12,000,000 votes in the last election and government employees controlled 10,000,000. If this trend continues a block could easily be formed which would control an election and leave the minority groups with little or no representation in our government.

The speaker closed by calling attention to the delicate relations existing between the United States and Japan. He said that the U. S. would not be likely to permit Japan to take over the Dutch East Indies or the Philippine Islands. Japanese aggression in the East Indies would almost surely draw the U. S. into war.

A large group attended this meeting. Eight members of the Aulander Ruritan club were present. The members of the Winterville boys' basketball team, winners of the recent county tournament, were special guests. Players present were Captain Louis Cox, Clifton Forrest James Move, Dick Barnes, Alvah Worthington, Elva Forrest, Quentin Avery, Simmons Hill, William Kittrell and Riley Cox.

President Obed Castellone announced that the town of Winterville had purchased a group of vacant store buildings as a site for a proposed community building.

Brief Holiday Begun By College Students

East Carolina Teachers College completed the winter quarter today, closing at noon for a recess of a few days between terms.

The Royal Air Force, Freed Of Worry Over Replacing Lost Craft, Carry Out Greatest Aerial Offensive of War; Berlin Included In Targets; Nazi Planes Rain Bombs On Port Of Liverpool

By The Associated Press Swarming over the continent from Boulogne to Berlin and from the Low Countries to Norway last night and today, the Royal Air Force has launched its greatest offensive of the war. The British declared today they had been freed of worry over plane replacements by passage of the United States aid to Britain bill.

British planes sped across the English channel this afternoon to follow up "very successful" raids yesterday and last night on Berlin, Bremen, Hamburg, airdromes in Norway and The Netherlands, Boulogne and Ostend, Belgium.

With new and more powerful bombers thrown into the assault, a well placed source declared that as a result of passage of the British aid bill "we now are able to launch a real offensive war."

Meanwhile, several hundred Nazi planes struck with fire bombs and high explosives at the port of Liverpool.

Berlin listed 16 killed and 33 wounded as the Royal Air Force shattered an 82-day period of immunity from aerial attacks enjoyed by the German capital.

It was believed the new types of planes the Royal Air Force said was used in the day and night assaults may have included four-motored American-made bombers flown across the Atlantic by the British.

The Germans asserted that the attacks on Liverpool inflicted destruction "even exceeding that at Coventry." English Midlands town which was all but destroyed on the night of November 14.

The British said officially that casualties were "not unduly heavy," however, and that transportation facilities in Liverpool this morning were normal.

On the Albanian war front, the Greeks quoted Italian prisoners as saying that Premier Mussolini was now in the field and had given his generals until Saturday to "do something."

A Greek spokesman said it Duce had personally ordered the fierce Italian attacks on the central front, which the spokesman said had been repulsed in four days of bloody fighting.

At sea, the British reported a Royal Air Force plane torpedoed a German destroyer in the Skagerrak gateway between the Baltic and North seas. The plane's crew said it was too dark to see whether the German warship sank, but that she ceased firing.

Hitler's high command countered with a report that a Nazi speedboat sank a British destroyer off the English southeast coast.

Coal Mine Blast Is Fatal To Four

Revloc, Pa., March 13.—(AP)—Four men were killed early today by an explosion in the Monroe Coal Mining Company's mine in this western Pennsylvania community a few miles from Johnstown.

None of the other miners at work on the third shift was injured. Bodies of the victims were brought to the surface by a rescue crew about four hours after the blast was discovered.

A state mine inspector tentatively attributed the explosion to an accumulation of gas.

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging headaches, rheumatic pain, leg pains, loss of sex and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty urination with smarting and burning sensations shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Where we'll ever live with Jesus
In that land beyond the skies.

Thou art gone, our precious darling. Never more can we meet you here. But we hope some day to meet you in that land so bright and fair.

Oh my precious, precious darling, How I miss you none can know. But I hope some day to meet you On that happy, happy shore.

Oh, our precious boy and child How I long to join you there, In that blessed land over yonder With that happy band of angels so bright and fair.

We loved you, yes, we loved you, But the angels loved you best. And they have sweetly called you To yonder shining home to be at rest.

Rudolph has gone from a world of pain. And we're left to mourn and weep for our darling who has fallen asleep. Sleep on, dear one, and take thy rest. For God called you home, he thought it best.

All our days are dark and dreary. Lonely are our hearts today. For the one we loved so dearly has forever passed away.

You are gone but not forgotten. Nor shall you ever be. As long as life and memory lasts we shall always remember thee.

Rudolph was to us so dear. It grieves me much to you go. But you are gone and left me here in this wilderness of woe.

But when the righteous Judge shall come to summon me away I hope with Rudolph to go home to the brighter world of endless day. (His Loving Cousin, Annie Howard)

Training School P. T. A.
A most interesting and informative P. T. A. meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Training school auditorium. Women always choosing to be up-to-date were therefore pleased to hear what the North Carolina legislature has just done for schools. Supt. J. H. Rose spoke upon this timely subject. He said this legislature was the most constructive one we have had in some time, and has given great impetus to a forward school program for the next two years.

Mr. Rose told how effectively the Grange, P. T. A., N. C. Educational

Association, State School Board and Classroom Teachers Association had cooperated in focusing attention of the legislators upon educational goals set up by these groups. He listed and discussed five outstanding achievements. They were: Retirement—one of the best in America; salary increase; twice previous amounts for vocational education and addition of the twelfth grade; a continuous contract for teachers; and a constitutional amendment, effective two years hence, unifying the several existing boards into one more effective State Educational Board.

Mr. Rose in closing, told of the acute housing shortage facing the Greenville city schools. An interesting open discussion was then enjoyed in which some of the pros and cons of whether or not we should take care of our boys and girls by erecting a junior high school or by adding one grade and much more room to our already existing elementary schools.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, president, presided over a business session. Mrs. Leelle Jones reported for the welfare group and said they had accomplished a great deal along this line. Miss Frances Wahl made reports concerning the library and supervised playground. Mrs. Waldrop announced plans were under way for the summer round-up with Mrs. Elmo Savage heading this committee.

Spring is here, and plans for the fourth North Carolina Garden Pilgrimage sponsored by the State Garden Club have been set in motion.

Thirty-three clubs are participating in the Garden Pilgrimage this spring. The gardens in the extreme eastern part of the state will open first because the blooming season is earlier here than anywhere else. The other gardens will be open from east to west on dates chosen which are expected to coincide with the best blooming period.

Greenville gardeners are naturally conservative. They plan and plant their gardens primarily for their own enjoyment. The result is that they are hesitant about opening their gardens for the enjoyment of outsiders, but the Garden Pilgrimage gives to our state a splendid bit of advertising. It is a real "Good Neighbor" gesture and the Greenville Garden Club feels glad to do even a little to help in this splendid work.

It is not and we hope, never will become merely a money-loving project either for the state or local clubs. The money from that part of which goes to the State Garden Club is placed in a Restoration Fund which will be used to restore old homes and gardens in our state.

Ten of Greenville's loveliest gardens will be opened to visitors on April 3 and 4. We are hoping that all our friends and neighbors in Greenville and the nearby towns and communities will appreciate this "Good Neighbor" gesture, visit our gardens on these dates and help us to help our club in this splendid work.

The local garden tour is being arranged by a committee of three. Mrs. J. Key Brown, chairman; Mrs. J. H. Blount and Mrs. W. G. Glass, representing the Garden Club, of

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

YESTERDAY: Julie Emerson, who is an actress a little past her prime, and her young friend Eve have won some money in an advertising contest, and Julie has insisted on investing it in a month at an expensive hotel on the chance that Eve can pick up a young husband for herself—with money. She just has wangled an invitation out of wealthy Mrs. Marbury, yet she has a feeling Eve will not be too pleased.

Chapter Two

“Mrs. Marbury has asked us up for cocktails tomorrow afternoon,” Julie announced with some triumph in her voice. “You see, dear I was right about coming here—and please try to act a little less bored, won't you, Eve? Even if you do think we're wasting the money you might as well enjoy yourself while we're here.”

Eve turned her head so that it rested on her arm, while she looked at her self-appointed guardian. “I thought you looked as if you had just swallowed a canary when I came in—in spite of the eye-pads. Of course I'll try to be the gay young thing, if you want me to, but for heaven's sake, Julie, let's cancel our reservation next week and get back to New York. I could still get back my old job at the Sheraton Decorating Shop and we'd have some money left, anyhow.”

“But we have over two thousand dollars left!” Julie said with astonishment. “And of course you can't walk into a place like this and get to know everyone within five days. We really should stay, Eve, now that we're just getting to know the right people. You'll feel better about it, too, I'm sure, when you meet Mrs. Marbury's niece—Gina Goodell—and her friends.”

“Oh, Gina Goodell!” said Eve enigmatically.

“Don't you like her?” inquired Julie anxiously.

“I probably would if I ever got the chance,” retorted Eve. “But after all, she is the heiress to the Marbury lumber millions. In spite of your hopes, Julie, I'm just a poor working girl and Gina and I don't have much in common, I'm afraid.”

And there was slight friction in the Marbury suite as well.

“But—Aunt Helen, you won't ruin the afternoon with that—that architect, will you?” Gina Goodell's light voice was a wall, as she watched her aunt directing the caterer in the “bridal suite” at the Ocean Park Hotel.

Gina matched her voice; her blonde hair hung in softly waved lengths around a pert, childish face that was too sharp to be pretty. She could, if she wished, look like an angel straying out of her celestial world, but usually, as now, she looked merely like an annoyed kitten.

Mrs. Marbury, however, knew that Gina's claws could be sharp, and she hastened to reassure her niece.

“He's not an architect, darling—he's an expert on Early American houses; there's quite a difference.”

“What difference?”

“Oh, don't be trivial, dear—” Her aunt vaguely moved a tray of canapés nearer the edge of the table. She did hope Gina would forget her penitence. If she actually took a dislike to Brett Rodman there would be little hope of getting her interested in this house. As the waiter left the room, she clutched at the first straw that came to mind.

“And by the way, dear—I've invited that nice Mrs. Emerson and her niece to come up. She's such a good bridge player—and interested in old houses, too. We had quite a chat about it.”

“You do pick up the strangest people, Aunt Helen. You've scarcely seen this Mrs. Emerson a dozen times. . . .” Gina's voice wandered off as she lit a cigarette and stuck it in a long amber holder.

Mrs. Marbury thought it time to be authoritative. “I don't pick up people,” Gina—and it's disrespectful of you to use that tone. I know some Emersons once, out in Chicago—fine people—and I'm sure this Mrs. Emerson must be related. It seems to me the younger generation condemns everyone it doesn't know.”

“Darling!” Gina was all contrition, her blonde hair a scented cloud as she swooped down on her aunt and kissed her soft cheek. “I'll keep the crowd under control for the sake of these cronies of yours. But the niece is such a queer duck—always dodging off and looking down her nose. It's a nice nose too—funny she hasn't just swarms of men around.”

Hunt For Moonlight

To Eve and Julie, presenting themselves at the Marbury suite at 8:30 the hostess and her niece seemed to be in perfect accord. Mrs. Marbury came forward instantly and drew them into a group of chattering young people, whom she introduced with vague gestures right and left.

Eve instantly identified Gina; she was curious to see what type of girl she could be. She noticed with surprise that Gina was regarding her with the same challenging expression. It was Gina who spoke first, and held out her hand.

“Hello!”

“Why—hello!” Eve's husky voice held a surprised note. Gina's welcome had taken her entirely off guard. The next minute Gina's arm was slipped through hers, and Eve was turned half away from the crowd.

“All those who want to be presented—the line forms at the right,” Gina announced, her long red-tipped fingers warding off the men nearest. “I'm not going to have this gal killed in the rush.”

“Just introduce her to me, then.” A young blond giant looked down at Eve unsmilingly, but she suspected there were dimples. “I'll protect her.”

“You're the worst of the lot!” Gina's retort brought a ready grin and Eve saw that, as she had thought, there was one lopsided dimple. “But I suppose I'll have to do it. Eve, this is Neil Bowron, third, and if he even mentions moonlight run like a deer. This is Evangeline Prentice, Neil.”

“I like moonlight,” said Eve thoughtfully. Instantly Neil stooped picked her up in his arms, and started for the door.

“Out of my way,” he commanded Gina. “We're going to look for some moonlight.”

In the ensuing hubbub, Eve found herself set on her feet again, slightly bewildered, but having entirely lost her first feeling of strangeness. No one seemed to object to the little scene. The girls told her carelessly “not to mind Neil” and the men crowded up for their introductions until Neil was pushed into the background.

One slight earnest-looking young man whose hair was perpetually in his eyes, came up just as Eve began to look for Julie.

“I'm Hamilton Milliard,” he said casually. “My friends call me Ham. I hope you don't think we're just a bunch of roughnecks.”

“Not at all,” Eve managed, although her heart was thumping heavily. “Usually introductions are so dull, don't you think?”

“Good girl!” Ham caught Gina's hand as she walked by and said in a stage whisper: “If I don't propose some night—this is the reason why.” He pointed a finger at Eve. Gina's small face was unexpectedly serious. “I don't believe I'd mind,” she said slowly. “I'm afraid I'm going to like her, Ham.”

Fun At Last

The rest of them evidently accepted Gina's pronouncement, and Eve found herself the center of a laughing group that dissolved and came together again with apparent lack of design. Yet she knew, even without glancing over her shoulder that Neil Bowron was always near at hand. For the first time since she had come to the hotel—indeed, for the first time in many months—Eve began to enjoy herself.

She forgot that she did not belong, that most of these young people—even Neil—were accepting her on face value. She entered into their running comment on the hotel and its lack of excitement, until a question from one of the girls brought her up short.

“Are you coming down to Spring Lake next month?” she inquired.

“Don't stay at the hotel—we can put you up.”

Eve caught her breath and hoped she did not look as startled as she felt.

“My aunt must return to New York,” she said fumblingly. “We haven't made any plans beyond that.”

Again Eve looked desperately for Julie, but she and Mrs. Marbury were sitting at east in a corner talking briskly and paying no attention to the others. Eve was hoping for escape when she felt Neil's hand on her arm. She glanced up gratefully.

“The moonlight's turned off—but there's a nice sunset out on the terrace,” he said in a low tone. “Maybe we could make it do. What do you think?”

Eve nodded, and together they strolled to the long, open windows. Julie, happening to see them go interrupted her hostess' often-repeated complaint about Mr. Rodman's lateness.

“Who is that with Eve?” she asked with a shade of concern. The man was too handsome to be true, she told herself.

Mrs. Marbury looked around, and locating them just as they stepped inside, said placidly, “Oh, that's Neil Bowron, you know. Nice boy. I knew his mother quite well at one time, but she's lived abroad now for the last five years. She married a count, I believe. Well—at last!”

Her exclamation was directed toward two men who came in at that moment and stood, obviously ill at ease, just where the maid had left them. The older man was almost bald, and his head shone almost as much as his unrimmed glasses. The other man, looking around with what Julie privately thought was a disdainful expression, appeared more at ease, but defiant, as if he dared the assembled party to do its worst.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SCIENCE AND RELIGION
We should always have a profound distrust for human knowledge when it operates outside its field.

It is very decidedly a field. The human mind reaches out and tries to learn more about the world in which it lives. Science deals with matter and teaches men how to adapt themselves more helpfully to the material order in which they live.

But the Christian religion claims to be based on revealed spiritual truth, and such being the case, it claims the right to speak on spiritual matters with authority. Practically all the vital truths in religion are given us by revelation rather than by reason. It is true that religion truth is reasonable, but it is not true that man can arrive at this religious truth by the use of reason alone. What we know about God, His character and His purpose, His plans for the human race, are things we could never have known had they not, in the providence of God, been revealed to us. Science deals with matter, and therefore never speaks with any real authority about spiritual truth. When religion and science resolutely stay within their own fields, each contributes to the enrichment of the other and both show forth the glory of God.

WILL THE PEOPLE FORGET?

(Williamson Enterprise)

Will the people forget the disgrace brought upon them in the past by Robert Reynolds when he runs again for United States Senator in 1944?

Ushered into office by conditions rather than by any meritorious claim, Reynolds has been one big disappointment to the people back home. Apparently without the capacity to hold down the job, Bob Reynolds has disgustingly held himself in the spotlight by cheap publicity schemes and extended traveling mostly at government expense.

Reynolds, a few days ago said, "I'm getting awfully weary of being denounced in the legislature of my State and all its newspapers. . . . And, Mr. Reynolds, the people of North Carolina are getting weary of your four-flushing and disgraceful antics. The people will forgive you, however, if you will only forgive them for ever nominating and electing you the first time. And by some miracle they hope and pray the record of their vote and your record in the United States Senate will be obliterated from the records that future generations will be spared the shame and humiliation that is certain to follow. And it is to be hoped that nearly all of your colleague's record be blotted out, too.

Democracy Vs. Dictatorship

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington - I'd like to make a recommendation to the historians for a couple of thousand years from now. When they are looking for "Americana," let them dig up a few copies of the Congressional Record and tap the richest well of our time.

There's nothing in the world quite like the Congressional Record. It's printed by the Government Printing Office, and if you subscribe to it ($1.50 a month) in Washington, you'll get it every morning. Today it may be 400 pages; tomorrow only 50; maybe day after, it won't be published at all. (That's when Congress doesn't meet.)

The Government Printing Office (GPO, as it is called in Washington) is probably the greatest publishing house in the world, but that is another story. Right now we are talking about the Congressional Record.

Minutes Of The Meetings.

Its main body contains a verbatim report of everything that happens in the Senate and House of Representatives. The word "verbatim" should be used with some reservation, because any congressman has the privilege of asking his house that what he has just said be stricken from the Record. When such a request is made, it almost always is granted, for congressmen are among the first to recognize that, in the heat of debate, to err is common.

Not only that, but even if a Congressional Record is printed, members may ask for corrections to be made in their dissertations and this also is almost always granted unanimously, because what man hasn't reread his statements and found in them things he wished he had said differently - or not at all?

Still the Congressional Record is corrected very few times and the pleas for withdrawal of statements don't crop up once in ten or twenty thousand words.

The "Appendix"

In spite of all the laws that are passed, all the debates over what is good or bad for our way of life, I don't think tomorrow's historians will think tomorrow's historians will think tomorrow's historians will think the word-for-word reports of what was said on the floors of the House and Senate as they will be in the "Appendix"

This section of the Record comes last. In it any member of Congress may "extend his remarks," merely by requesting the consent of the House in which he is a member. I've never heard of a member's being refused this privilege of "extending his remarks." And it is in these extensions that the real Americana is to be found. As a matter of fact, there generally is more from OUTSIDE Washington in these Appendix records than from inside.

Perhaps I can illustrate by running over a few "extensions of remarks" in recent publications of the Record.

Sen. Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri had printed three editorials from the St. Louis Star-Times and the St. Louis Post Dispatch about recent airplane accidents. Rep. Karl Stefan, of Nebraska, held forth at some length on the merits of the "shelterbelt" project—the whole-sale tree-planting, funds for which were not included in next year's proposed Agriculture Budget. Sen. Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, put in a letter from a woman in Boston, who dilated on the theme, "Must American boys be shipped into the maelstrom of war in the Far East to protect England's opium trade?" Rep. Leland Ford stuck in an editorial from one of his state papers, the Orange (Calif.) Daily News, about the importance of rural America in national defense. Rep. Usher L. Burdick, North Dakota, put in nearly five columns about what he would do if he were President. Rep. Thomas D'Alessandro, Jr., of Maryland, told the boys how Baltimore had solved its traffic problems. Rep. Compton I. White, of Idaho, inserted the more than 250-line poem of Horace C. Carlisle, "unofficial poet laureate of Congress," which set Washington's Farewell Address to verse.

Here indeed is Americana—a thousand-fact reflection on what is going on in America and the world today.

Short Shots

Raleigh, March 13 — When someone called attention of the governor to the fact that a copy of the New-son-Lefler history, about which so much has been written during recent weeks, had been installed in the state library, his excellency with a grin suggested that perhaps he would have to call out the guard to protect the volume.

Baby Pagette.

Little Carolyn Cook Cromartie of Salisbury, a granddaughter of Rep. John H. Cook of Cumberland, was made an honorary pagette in the house Tuesday upon motion of Mr. Uzell. Unusual feature of that performance is the fact that Carolyn was not present to acknowledge the honor. Being less than three months old she was at home with her mother.

Warehouseman Best Lawyer.

Rep. Rex Gass who is a tobacco warehouseman at Winston-Salem proved himself the best lawyer in the room at the committee hearing on the High Point power project. Learned lawyers were arguing lengthy phases of the case, when Mr. Gass asked that a group of farmers from his county of Forsyth be heard. He presented them one by one, and each told of living and farming in what would be inundated sections of the Yadkin valley if the proposed dam were built, and of how they regretted the idea of being forced out. That sort of appeal was understandable, and the committee lost little time in giving an unfavorable report on the bill which would have eliminated the requirement for a utilities commission certificate before the dam is built.

Viewed With Alarm.

Rep. John Umstead of Orange viewed with real alarm the proposals in the state board of education amendment which would give the state superintendent of public instruction a veto power upon appointment of a comptroller of the school system's financial affairs. "If this thing goes through the governor and all others will have to ask the superintendent if they can run or hold office," he said.

Nothing For Children.

Gaston's Basil Whitener went even further than Umstead in opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment, which he scored as unnecessary and bad. "It creates a political combination unprecedented in the history of the state," he asserted.

The Gastonian lashed out at the failure of this and previous legislatures to make the welfare of the state's children their guiding star in all school legislation. "We've done something for the organized school forces, but nothing for the children," he charged.

He Wasn't By Himself.

"What's happening?" asked a news man who had just entered the House in the middle of Wednesday's first session. "I don't know, they're going too fast for me to keep up with 'em," replied a Representative who usually is quite up to the minute and who pays strict attention. Which gives some idea of the situation as desperate efforts are being made to quit Saturday.

amendment which would give the state superintendent of public instruction a veto power upon appointment of a comptroller of the school system's financial affairs. "If this thing goes through the governor and all others will have to ask the superintendent if they can run or hold office," he said.

There is no question concerning the church since the founding of it seventy years ago that she cannot answer." There is none better. She was one of the charter members of our Home Demonstration Club which was organized about thirteen years ago and has since been one of its most ardent supporters.

Softball Directors Meeting Is Set For Tomorrow Night

TO LAY PLANS FOR THIS YEAR

Meeting To Be Held In Offices Of M. P. Fox

SOFTBALL
President J. D. Simpson of the Greenville Softball League has called a meeting to be held in the offices of M. P. Fox in the Blount building tomorrow night at 8 o'clock to lay preliminary plans for the 1941 season.

Every director is urged to attend as policies will be discussed and many important problems will come before the initial meeting of the year.

A soft ball schedule is expected to be worked out so that no games will conflict with home games of the Greenville Coastal Plain league club. It is proposed to play both at Third street park and Guy Smith stadium.

Not all softball games will be played on nights when the Greenies are at home.

Softball has enjoyed increased interest since it was introduced here about three years ago. M. P. Fox is credited to a great extent with having started the sport in Greenville. J. D. Simpson, who has been retained as president each year, has guided the sport through its infancy and has the respect of all directors and players. President Simpson's word is law and the board of directors seldom go against his wishes.

Stokes Is Scene For Auto Demonstration

"Excessive speed is the greatest single cause of automobile accidents," said Mr. Pontius, assistant safety director of the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies, today, when he addressed assembled students of Stokes High School.

Mr. Pontius explained, and later demonstrated, that the actual stopping distance required for a car is usually much greater than the driver estimates. The program was one of a series being given before students and other groups in numerous cities in which the Farm Bureau safety representative conducts unique driving tests demonstrating actual stopping distances required when a car is driven 20, 30 and 40 miles per hour.

The demonstration was preceded by a short talk in which Mr. Pontius emphasized the fact that each and every driver must make safe driving a personal problem and that his driving judgment must be based on true facts if he is to form the necessary habits for daily safe driving.

Actual tests were conducted in a popular make car with hydraulic brakes. The car has three guns, loaded with yellow marker bullets, mounted on the front bumper. Mr. Pontius rides in the car with the driver and when the car has achieved a given speed, the first gun is fired. This is a signal for the driver to apply the brakes, at which time the second gun is fired automatically. The third gun is fired when the car is actually stopped. This leaves three yellow marks on the street; one where the signal to apply brakes was given, one where they were actually applied, and one where the car was stopped. Mr. Pontius asked students to stand on the marks so that all present could see clearly the reaction distance which is the distance between the first gun and second gun, and the braking distance, which is the distance between the second and third gun. The distances were measured by two students and the records were announced over the public address system with which the car is equipped.

Use it in mixed fertilizer before planting, and as top dressing or side-dressing. And use it regularly—that is the way to get full benefit of its fertilizing and soil-improving qualities.

"When drivers know the true facts," said Mr. Pontius, "and base their driving on these facts, high-way accidents will drop sharply." He especially complimented North Carolina on its fine highway safety enforcement program. He also demonstrated that, with a little thought and practice, and no additional effort, cars can be turned around much more safely than is the general practice.

The driving tests were held under the sponsorship of the Stokes school with the cooperation of State Patrolmen Massengill and Young.

REP. UMSTEAD GIVEN CREDIT

Credited with Amendment To School Board Bill

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, March 13.—John Umstead, Orange county's gift to the House, is getting very general credit here for completely outsmarting the pack in the really pretty legislative fight over submission of a Constitutional amendment setting up a new state board of education.

He didn't get all he wanted in the matter, but in the windup, he did get adopted by the House the principal amendment he desired. All the talk is that he accomplished his ends largely by the strategy of passing his pet amendment on to somebody else and having it introduced under the authorship of Clarence Stone of Rockingham rather than in his own right and title.

The change made in the bill as passed by the Senate struck out the provision giving the state superintendent of public instruction a practical veto power over selection of a comptroller to have charge of all school finances.

Umstead was bitterly opposed to this clause. He contended vigorously in committee that it would make the school superintendent a sort of political dictator of the state. He nearly convinced the group of the correctness of his position, but eventually lost on a 6 to 5 vote after once winning by the same score.

The committee fight made the Orange representative a marked man by the opposition. The word was passed along that any amendment offered by Umstead must be beaten at all costs. Arch Allen, the chairman of the committee on education, and other leaders of the so-called "school forces" lay grimly in wait to knife any Umstead amendment.

So when the time came Tuesday for the House's most interesting floor fight of the session, the representative from Orange sent up an amendment making the superintendent of public instruction an appointive rather than an elective officer, and making the whole board of education setup a matter for legislative discretion.

There is no reason to believe Mr. Umstead had any idea this amendment could or would be adopted. He didn't even offer it in committee. Anyhow, it was beaten as the opposition gleefully hopped on the Gentleman from Orange.

Thereafter the Stone amendment was adopted on a standing vote.

50 to 44. This was really the amendment most desired by Umstead. It took from the state superintendent of public instruction the right to "approve" selection by the board of education of a comptroller. Instead it lodged this power of "approval" in the hands of "the Governor as director of the budget."

That change strengthens the tight hold already in the Governor's hands on the new board of education which will be set up if a popular vote gives approval to the constitutional amendment to be submitted.

Under the bill the Governor appoints a member for each Congressional district, giving him the selection of twelve of the board's fifteen members—the other three being the Lieutenant Governor, the State Treasurer and the superintendent of public instruction—all of whom are elected by the people.

As an issue in the current General Assembly this matter of reorganizing the board of education has been one of the most controversial of the session. Ever since the first bill was introduced there has been a great deal of discussion and debate. The prime question at issue has been throughout the matter of lodging authority over school money in the hands of the superintendent of public instruction. Any proposal giving him this control has been bitterly fought at every turn; and it now seems that those opposed to such grant of power are going to be the ultimate winners.

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, March 13.—(AP)—The forward march was resumed by scattered favorites in today's stock market, but there was a notable lack of rallying animation in most departments.

While selling was light from the start, bids in most instances were apathetic. Buyers again came in for shipbuilding and specialty issues. Declines and losses generally were in fractions and numerous stocks were unchanged near the close.

Funds Of Hungary In U.S. "Frozen"

Washington, March 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today "froze" all funds of Hungary in the United States and Secretary Hull explained shortly thereafter that Hungary was considered by this government to be under German domination.

Hull asserted that the United States put Hungary in the same category as Rumania and other countries under domination of the Reich and against which freezing orders previously were issued.

The action on Hungarian funds the Secretary of State added, might have been taken at an earlier date and there was no particular development which caused the order to be issued today.

Hungary, the 12th nation whose funds have been frozen, signed the Axis pact about two months ago. Customarily such freezing orders have been issued when nations were occupied by troops of another country.

Knudsen Urges Use of Employment Services

Raleigh, March 13.—William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, has sent a letter to all holders of defense contracts directing them to utilize fully the 1,500 government employment offices in the United States in recruiting their labor needs, and to refrain from labor scouting and nationwide advertising.

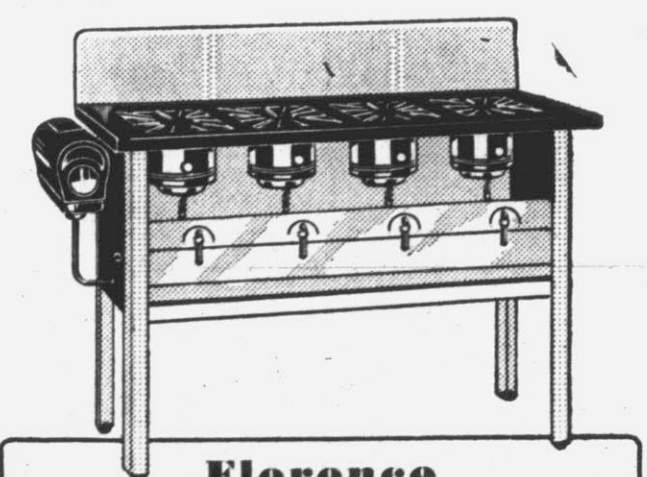

"No employer should attempt by any method to recruit labor from outside his local area or engage in any advertising, local or otherwise, without first consulting with the local public employment office as to the necessity of such action and as to the methods to be employed," Mr. Knudsen advises defense contract holders.

"The Office of Production Management expects you to make the maximum practicable use of the public employment service, to inform the local office of that service in advance of your labor requirements, and to refrain from engaging in recruitment efforts outside of your locality," the director general advises.

The 56 local employment offices in 46 North Carolina counties have already done yeoman service in supplying labor for construction work at Fort Bragg, Holly Ridge and other national defense projects, as well as furnishing workers in production plants, through its local contacts and state clearance system. Also, it has sent workers into other states when labor shortages developed, through its far-flung clearance system.

YOU DON'T NEED US TO TELL YOU WHAT A whale of a car the Pontiac "Torpedo" is. The new Pontiac speaks for itself—and it tells you clearly that a smarter, roomier, sweeter-acting car will be hard to find.

The only time this Pontiac needs our help is when somebody says, "It's too high-priced for me." That's when we go to work, and here's what we tell them:

With all of its size, its beauty, its "expensive" look, Pontiac's prices are so close to the "lowest-priced three" that the difference is only a few dollars per month.

SIZE AND LUXURY. Not will you get any impression of low cost from the roominess and luxury you find inside its handsome body by Fisher. Pontiac is tailored and fitted to compare favorably with the finest cars on the road.
