YUGOSLAV GOVERNMENT OVERTHROWN

GREAT BRITAIN PROFFERS AID TO YUGOSLAVIA

Would Lend Military Help To Oppose Nazi Thrust

MOVES BY FLEET ARE PREDICTED

Promise of Churchill To "Make Common Cause" Seen As Direct Move To Make Ally Of Yugoslavia

London, March 27—(AP) Britain will back the new Yugoslav government with her navy, army and air force to lay open the right flank of the German thrust into the Balkans, a reliable source declared today.

This statement followed upon Prime Minister Churchill's prediction that the revolt-torn Balkan kingdom would repudiate her pact with the Axis and his announcement that "in such an eventuality" Britain would recognize the new Belgrade regime.

The Prime Minister's promise to "make common cause" with the Yugoslavs was regarded as a direct move to make them allies.

There are three ways for Churchill to make good his promise of "all possible aid and support" to the Yugoslavs, a reliable informant said. He listed:

- 1. Sweeps by the British battle fleet up the Adriatic to demonstrate British friendship and naval strength and offer cooperation with land forces, as in the Libyan campaign.
2. Military aid from the Middle East command. Such troops could disembark at Salonika, Greek port, and move into Yugoslavia over existing rail and highway routes.
3. British fighter and bomber aid from Royal Air Force bases already established in Greece.

TB Clinic Is Set To Start April 7

It was announced by the Pitt County health officer, Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, today that the State Sanatorium extension department is to give Pitt county a two weeks' tuberculosis clinic beginning Monday, April 7, and ending April 18.

As a matter of course the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, of which J. H. Waldrop is president, is vitally interested in the control of tuberculosis.

Much progress has been made in the control of this disease but it still takes a heavy toll throughout the county, state and nation. Doctors declare that it is the unrecognized case of tuberculosis that is chiefly responsible for the spread of this disease.

The main purpose of the early diagnosis clinics, such as is to be held in this county in April, is to find all of these unrecognized cases. There is no cost to the examination, even the X-ray is free to all deserving patients.

"As president of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, I not only wish to heartily endorse the tuberculosis clinic, but I wish to request all members of the association and all other good citizens to urge their neighbors to take advantage of this early diagnosis clinic for it is said that 'early discovery means early recovery,'" declared Mr. Waldrop.

Treaty Signed

London, March 27—(AP)—The treaty formally ceding naval bases to the United States in the Western Hemisphere in exchange for 50 destroyers was signed today at Prime Minister Churchill's No. 10 Downing street residence.

Bill Signed

Aboard The U. S. S. Benson At Sea, March 27—(AP)—President Roosevelt, aboard the yacht Potomac on a fishing-yacht cruise, signed the $7,000,000 British aid bill at 10:58 a. m. EST, today.

His action makes the huge fund immediately available to establish the United States as the "arsenal" of nations fighting aggression. Accentuating the record-breaking speed with which Congress voted the money, the bill was sent by airplane to the President's yacht cruising in Florida waters a few hours after legislative action was completed Tuesday. Bad weather, however, delayed delivery until today.

Police Hold CIO Officials Following Bloody Conflict At Strike-Bound Plant Gate

They're Both In A Tough Spot

Five-year-old Robert Bocca, victim of Hemophilia, was comforted by his mother, Mrs. Catherine Bocca, in a New York hospital as doctors debated the wisdom of an operation for appendicitis. Because of his hemophilia, any operation is dangerous. As for Mrs. Bocca, her husband died last November, her three sons are suffering from hemophilia and she has received a 10-day notice to vacate her home on a dispossession procedure.

CIO Chief Challenges Authority For Demand

FIRM WILLING RESUME WORK

To Comply Fully With Federal Government Demands

Milwaukee, March 27—(AP)—The Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, strike-bound since January 22, today instructed some of their production workers to report for duty this afternoon in order that full operations on $45,000,000 worth of national defense orders can be resumed tomorrow morning.

The company announced that it would comply fully with the federal government's demand for immediate resumption of work.

"We hope to have the plant in full operation tomorrow or, at the latest, Saturday," a company spokesman said.

Dispatch of a formal reply to the government officials' demand was being deferred temporarily. This was due to the necessity of determining the best way for notifying the 7,800 production workers to report for duty.

20 Negroes Called For Army Service

Allis-Chalmers Workers Told Continue Strike

(By The Associated Press) Philip Murray, CIO president and a member of the new Defense Mediation Board, challenged the authority today of Navy Secretary Knox and O. P. M. Chief William S. Knudsen to demand an end to the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company's CIO strike.

Company spokesmen at Milwaukee earlier had announced plans to comply fully with the request. They said 7,800 production workers were being notified to resume normal work tomorrow.

But Harold Christoffel, president of the striking union at Milwaukee, told a group of strikers outside the plant gates that anyone returning to work before the union voted would lose his job. He explained that rules of the union were to that effect.

Murray, in a telegram from Pittsburgh, asked Knox and Knudsen "by what powers" were they "authorized to issue ultimatums" when an executive order of the President had provided for the settlement of labor disputes through the conciliation service and national mediation board. He also charged that the company had refused to accept a settlement proposed by the O. P. M.

All Persons Found In Headquarters Of Richmond, Ind., Union Arrested On Charges Of Assault And Battery Growing Out Of Head-Bashing Fight Between State Police And Pickets

Richmond, Ind., March 27 (AP)—After a bloody head-bashing battle between local police and pickets at the gates of the International Harvester plant here this morning, state police raided the downtown headquarters of the CIO farm equipment workers organizing committee and arrested all those in the headquarters on assault and battery charges.

Those arrested included Clifford Kerr, president of the local union and Robert Foley, an organizer.

Captain Walter Skert Eckert, who led the state police, said about 160 of his men had been concentrated at Richmond in anticipation of opening this morning of the harvest plant, closed since the CIO union called a strike on February 17. Some state officers formed a double line on the sidewalk in front of a stairway leading to the second floor headquarters of the union while others entered the building and herded all those inside the headquarters to waiting state police cars.

A score or more of those taken away wore blood-stained bandages. The raid came shortly after the wild melee outside the harvester plant, where local police battled about a hundred pickets to clear a path for workers who responded to the company's published announcement that the plant would reopen this morning.

After the pickets were dispersed by the club-wielding police, eight men and a 19-year-old girl were taken into custody by the police, but no charges were placed against them immediately.

Art Gallery Here Sponsors Exhibit

The Greenville WPA Art Gallery will have a one-man show of water colors, beginning tomorrow and lasting through April 17. These paintings were done by William Sommers, who was born in Detroit, Michigan, seventy-four years ago and now lives in Macedonia, Ohio.

Mr. Sommers has had a long career as an artist, becoming interested in art processes when he was only a small boy. The father of Gar Melchers, the well-known American painter, used his influence to get Sommers and apprenticeship in lithography. He worked in lithographic firms in Boston, London, New York and Cleveland, Ohio. He had little time for painting except at night and was known as a "Sunday painter." Finally, when lithographic processes threw poster artists out of jobs, Sommers found himself with plenty of time in which to paint without interruption. He started to work on the Federal Art

TANKER SINKS WITH 20 DEAD OFF N. C. COAST

Last Determined Position About 65 Miles Off Cape

FIVE SURVIVORS REACH MD. PORT

Rescued Group, Including Captain, Expected to Go to New York Immediately For Investigation

Morehead City, March 27. (AP)—The oil tanker Cities Service Denver, which exploded and caught fire Monday night about 90 miles south of Cape Lookout, sank last night. Twenty of her crew were killed in the explosion.

The Coast Guard cutter McLane based at Morehead City, reported today that the vessel sank at 10:45 p. m. last night.

The Denver, whose last determined position was about 65 miles off the cape, was towed a considerable distance yesterday by the Coast Guard cutter Shoshone.

The Shoshone reported last night that the tanker was taking water rapidly and that the Cities Service Denver, another tanker, had given up attempting to pump the water from the Denver.

Baltimore, March 27.—(AP)—Five survivors of the explosion and fire on the tanker Cities Service Denver, off Cape Lookout Monday night, were landed in Baltimore today by the tanker W. W. Bruce.

Captain John Saxon, master of the stricken ship, was among those rescued by the Bruce.

The men were put in charge of an official of the Cities Service Company, and gave no details of the disaster. The officials indicated they would go immediately to New York for questioning by steamboat inspectors.

Captain George Robinson, skipper of the Bruce, said the men, all suffering from shock but uninjured, were picked up from a lifeboat four hours after the blast tore open the fore quarters of the Denver, en route from Texas to New York with 150,000 barrels of crude oil.

The Bruce was about two miles from the Denver when the explosion occurred, Capt Robinson said. "We could easily see the fire," he recounted. "As we drew closer we saw that the Denver's captain had tried to lay her before the wind so that no fire would not blow toward the Denver's bridge.

"We went around to the Denver's port. The tanker Pan-New York, which had been about three miles off, went to her starboard. The Pan-New York picked up a lifeboat with 17 men, some of whom were very badly burned."

U.S. Aid For Yugoslavia Is Considered Possible

Congratulations Sent To New Belgrade Regime

Washington, March 27.—(AP)—The United States sent congratulations today to the new Yugoslavian government and noted that President Roosevelt was empowered to assist the nations seeking to preserve their independence.

Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of States, announced that the American minister in Belgrade had been instructed to inform the new government, which has overthrown the pro-Axis regency, of the following:

"That the information received here on the change in power in Yugoslavia has been widely welcomed in the United States as a matter for self congratulations to every liberty-loving man and woman.

That in accordance with terms of the lease-lend act, President Roosevelt was able in the interest of the national defense of the United States to render effective material assistance to nations which are seeking to preserve their independence against aggression.

Welles indicated also that Yugoslavian assets in the United States, which were frozen immediately after the former Belgrade government joined the Axis, might now be released.

Local Home Guard Unit Is Organized

The Pitt county unit of the State Home Guard was officially organized last night when 44 of the 50 members were sworn in and the men went through basic drills.

The six members absent were either sick or out of the city. Upon a vote of a majority of the company members, drills will be held each Thursday night instead of on Wednesday night, as previously announced. The weekly drill periods will last for an hour and a half.

Enlistment papers of the 44 members sworn in last night were mailed to the Adjutant General's office in Raleigh today by Captain Arthur B. Corey of the local unit.

No appointments of non-commissioned officers have been made as yet, but will be announced within a few days. Officers of the company, other than Captain Corey, are First Lieutenant LeRoy Rollins of Farmville and Second Lieutenant Jasper Jones of Greenville.

STERN ACTION FOLLOWS RIOT

King Peter Reported To Have Rejected Axis As First Act Following Coup; Army Chief of Staff New Premier; All Reserve Officers Ordered to Report For Possible Nazi Invasion

By The Associated Press Yugoslavia's 17-year-old King Peter II, overthrew his pro-Axis regency and took the reins of government today after a wild night of rioting against the kingdom's adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

Officially unconfirmed London reports said the first act of King Peter's new government was to reject the Axis.

This was supported by the fact that the new government which took over the regency's "capitulation" cabinet included two ministers

(By The Associated Press) Virtually ringed by German and Italian troops, Yugoslavia took new defense measures today soon after a military coup had overthrown Regent Prince Paul's pro-Axis regime and established 17-year-old King Peter II, on the throne.

Balkan diplomatic observers said entrance of German troops into the country appeared certain once Yugoslavia indicated definitely that the coup meant a bolt from her Axis alliance.

A wild night of rioting, with crowds shouting "Down with Germany and Italy," preceded the change-over.

who resigned in protest against yielding to Germany.

General Simovic, army chief of staff, quickly formed a new government with himself as premier.

Reports reaching Budapest said Regent Prince Paul had fled the country. The premier and foreign minister, who signed the Axis pact in Vienna only 48 hours ago, were said to be under arrest with other cabinet members.

Belgrade reports said many persons were killed and wounded in night-long fighting which preceded the coup.

The new government's reported action in throwing off the Axis yoke—possibly providing an excuse for German troops to march into the turbulent kingdom—coincided with a Belgrade radio broadcast ordering all reserve officers to report to their garrisons at once.

Yugoslavia is said to have mobilized 1,000,000 men in recent weeks. In London, Prime Minister Winston Churchill greeted the coup with the fervent declaration:

"The Yugoslav nation has found its soul! "A revolution has taken place in Belgrade, arising from the wrath of a valiant and war-like race who had their country betrayed by the weakness of their rulers and foul intrigues of the Axis powers."

There was little action on the fighting fronts. Bad weather kept bombers on the ground in the west-ern air war and London had its sixth raid-free night. One raider skipped across the channel to the southeast coast this morning, dropped a stick of bombs and machine-gunned the streets of a town.

After a brief business session the program committee introduced Mrs. T. A. Person as program leader for the afternoon.

Continuing the study for the year "Adventures Around the World," Mrs. Person's topic for discussion was "The Hudson River." Her interesting descriptions and the fact she has traveled there made the trip down the river quite real. From the background of its earliest history, the changes throughout the years, its unrivaled picturesque and beautiful scenery, its important historical position, its people along the banks coupled with the fact it is the largest river in the State of New York and one of the most important commercial highways in the United States made one feel strongly the rhythm and flow of this mighty old stream.

Several interesting news items were given for discussion including topics on Greenland, Iceland, the Hall of Fame and the refugees now gathering in our country. The pronunciation referee gave, as usual, an interesting and informative report. Members were happy to welcome Mrs. A. L. Dittmer as the guest of Mrs. W. A. Browne during her absence from the city.

A profusion of cut spring flowers and blooming potted plants was used throughout the house.

During the social hour Mrs. Tighman, assisted by Mrs. F. A. Person and Mrs. Milton White, served a delicious ice course.

Happy Where He Was
Hutchinson, Kas.—(AP)—A Hutchinson reformatory parole violator says he was motivated by a report that his wife was planning to take him back. That was the least thing he wanted. So he got drunk, robbed a store and surrendered.

Marching down the avenue, these four young fashionables have spring in their hearts—and on their backs. The dashing girl at the left wears a suit, cape and blouse ensemble of softest beige wool. Blouse and cape lining are a deeper beige with white dots. Her bang-off Breton is of beige felt. The girl carrying the fur scarf wears a navy suit with all-around pleated skirt and a white detachable frill. Her sailor is made of rows and rows of organdy with white feather flowers. The third girl's black coat shows new shoulder interest with the row of scallops that is repeated in the skirt. And their escort! The very peak of Easter fashion.

By AMY PORTER (AP Fashion Editor)
On the first Sunday after the first full moon after the 21st of March, that part of the feminine population which cares enough about its appearance to curl its hair, bloom like the rose and step out of doors to join the Easter parade.

But nobody can bloom like the rose or even the violet all of a sudden. It takes careful premeditated shopping to produce an Easter parade charming enough to catch the eye of a beau or the lens of a newspaper's camera.

The "best-dressed" women seem to follow one Easter parade formula year after year. They choose costumes that speak for them with definiteness, the sort of thing that can be described in one line—

"Her all-navy costume was topped with a flying red cape." "She was 1960 come to life, in a Gibson girl suit and sailor with a veil tied under her chin." "A lavender girl caused heads to turn—dressed all in one color except for white violets at her lapel."

A definite idea is what it takes to produce a definitely charming effect.

WOMEN WANTED
38 to 52 years old. Women who are cross, restless, NERVOUS—who suffer hot flashes, dizziness—caused by this period in a woman's life—to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Pinkham's is famous for relieving distressing symptoms due to this functional disturbance. WORTH TRYING!

Once you've decided how you want to look—smart and striking or fluffy and feminine, dynamic in one bright color or demure in a delicate palette—then juggle the season's new styles to your purpose.

Here are style elements slated for Easter success, highlights of what you'll see on your spring shopping tours:

In hats, six silhouettes appear in all the colors of the rainbow and then some. First, the sailor, small, soft, flannel, neatly dekked out with veils and flowers. His for suits.

Next, a modified postilion, dipping forward over the eye, strictly altered for striking effect.

Exaggerated brims, right with soft suits and prints, are usually made with a softening flange edge.

Bonnets, perched well back of bangs or pompadour, for the sweet and pretty.

Berets, flattened out, are worn straight on the head.

Rounding out the half dozen, here's the flower toque, perennial Easter favorite.

The classic tailor-made leads the suit parade, this year as always, and nothing looks better on the tall girl.

Coats are full of style news. You may or may not like the rocco coat with its self-scroll or brain decorations, but it's a fashion leader.

BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN
Many years ago, Lord Bryce, then ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, said that public opinion in America "is generally right in its aims and has tended to become wiser with the march of the years." Bundles for Britain is an excellent example of the sage observation. The aim of the American people in this crisis has been to supply necessities to the British civilians. Within one short year, a tremendous organization of seven hundred branches and units has sprung up all over the United States. American men and women, most of them volunteers, maintain and operate every one of these branches. Clothing for men, women and children is gathered and forwarded to the warehouse in New York. Funds are raised through social functions. Bandages, knitted wear, hospital garments are made. Interesting constructive work of many kinds is accomplished. The wisdom of all this is easily apparent. Americans, through Bundles for Britain, are helping the British people maintain their high morale. The local branch is at the Fire station. Join it today.

1937	336,892,222.12
1938	356,589,153.53
1939	419,052,558.01
1940	456,669,516.25

Figures released today by Commissioner of Banks Gurney P. Hood place the total resources of all state banks and trust companies (excluding industrial banks) at $456,669,516.25 as of December 31, 1940. This is $37,000,000 and more up from the statement of December 31, 1939 and compares with the low of $203,295,400.56 reached on December 31, 1932.

Even more encouraging than the absolute gain in total resources is the tremendous increase in the item "Loans and Discounts" which is usually the real test of prosperity. In good times banks lend more money than in bad. Of late years there has been constant harking on the piling up of hoarded wealth in bank without its getting into the veins of business through loans by the banks.

The current statement puts loans and discounts of the North Carolina state banks at $137,296,162.55 almost $22,000,000 above loans and discounts as of December 31, 1939 and above $13,000,000 up from the bank statement of June 29, 1940.

Commissioner Hood stressed this point in a statement accompanying release of the figures.

"The outstanding thing in this report," he said, "is the increase of $71,845,990.12 in the amount of loans, which indicates that our banks are not only willing to make loans, but are actually loaning money to carry on the increase in the volume of business now being transacted."

In informal conversation he emphasized the fact that all evidence including the rising bank figures shows that North Carolina will this year have the greatest income in its history—and he was referring to Tar Heels, in the aggregate, and not to the state's revenue from taxation.

"It's going to be true of the nation as a whole and North Carolina will be right up near the top among the states which will show tremendously increased income totals," he added.

Banking prosperity was not confined to state commercial banks alone. Resources of the 50 national banks and branches moved up to a new high, and the total for industrial banks showed a technical decrease which is, in reality, a big gain when circumstances are considered.

Aggregate resources of the national banks were $144,717,000, while the 31 industrial banks and branches showed gross assets of $19,158,634.18, which with the total piled up by the 154 state banks and their 119 branches, brought total bank resources of North Carolina to $630,545,056.43.

This total for the industrial banks compared with $19,635,425.28 at the close of 1939, but the drop is accounted for by the fact that two industrial banks (at Winston-Salem and Kinston) were transformed into national banks during the year. These two had assets of more than $3,000,000; so that there was an actual increase in resources of some $2,500,000 by the banks which remained in the industrial group.

Private deposits, particularly demand deposits, increase in the state commercial banks during the year while public deposits (both United States government and those of states and political subdivisions) dropped rather sharply.

Demand deposits rose $20,588,305.20 to $163,925,310.85; time deposits climbed $3,959,302.20; and deposits of other banks increased by $12,025,918.85.

Capital structure of commercial banks increased during the year by $1,895,010.07, after the retirement of $652,570 of preferred stock and an increase of $148,000 in common stock.

Total capital account at the end of 1940 was $30,530,524.94 compared with $27,635,814.87 a year before.

Total trust assets in the state commercial banks amounted to $77,178,435.66.

Down town, she put a special delivery stamp on a greeting, addressed it to her husband at their home, and at 3 p.m. dropped it in a mailbox where she thought it would be collected that night. When she got home at 4 p.m., she found the greeting had got there ahead of her.

A Scout Is Thorough.—El Reno, Okla. (AP)—Boy Scouts invited to conduct a two-hour survey of El Reno traffic conditions, reported more than 10,000 traffic violations. Police immediately began a campaign and handed out several hundred traffic tickets.

Your Help Needed

In North Carolina there are hundreds of tots like the chap above who are being restored to normal, happy, healthy lives through the efforts of the North Carolina League for Crippled Children which is launching this week its Easter Seal Sale for tragically needed funds.

Citizens Of Pitt Asked Back Easter Seal Sale

K. T. Futrell of Greenville has been named Chairman of the Easter Seal Sale for crippled children in this county.

Half of the proceeds of the sale will remain in the hands of the county committee for the aid of our own children, and half will be sent to the state office for assisting those whom a county committee cannot serve.

Some counties already have established clinics for their crippled children, and the State-supported Orthopedic Hospital at Gastonia, to which the more serious cases are sent, also has a splendid record of service. But the Orthopedic Hospital has facilities for only 160 children, and there are now more than 300 on the hospital's waiting list.

A recent federal report says North Carolina has a 62,000 physically maimed residents. Of these 17,000 are listed on the Social Security records at Raleigh, showing that many belong to the lower economic levels. There are more than 300,000 crippled children in the country as a whole, and it is estimated that approximately 10,000 of these are in North Carolina.

Mrs. J. Melville Broughton, North Carolina's First Lady, who is vice-president of the North Carolina League for Crippled Children, has issued an appeal in behalf of the Easter Seal Sale.

"The North Carolina League for Crippled Children is doing a great and useful work and deserves the support of all our people," Mrs. Broughton's statement says. "The humane and constructive program of this organization, its fine record of service and its plans for reaching out and helping an even larger number of crippled children will undoubtedly receive a generous and sympathetic response from the public."

"As vice-president of the League

What To Do In A MARCH WIND

Adel Mara, radio singer, tries out the technique

(AP Feature Service) It isn't hard to hold your skirts down in a March wind, if you know how.

First, put on your fullest skirt. Now add a wide-brimmed straw hat, resting it lightly on top of the head. Fill your arms with a good-sized handbag, five packages from the dime store, and a candy bar.

Ready? Get set. Go—round the corner smack into a wind. Now action! First you drop your arms and several packages and everything is fine. You are holding your skirt down, in front anyway. Your hat, of course, has blown off—you let go your skirt to grab your hat to grab your skirt, repeating in reverse until a crowd gathers, and you realize how smart you were to wear a ruffled petticoat and panties with lace edgings.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

PAIN PRODUCES IRRITABILITY

When people are hard to get along with, it is frequently because they are sick. They may not be sufficiently ailing to call a doctor. In fact a physical check-up may not reveal much the matter with them. But everybody who is even slightly below par feels a drag to his life which greatly increases his irritability.

Many years ago I knew a woman who kept her family, her church, and her bridge club seething with contention all the time. Those of us who knew her intimately, however, realized that every time she took a step, pain shot through her body. No wonder she had a devil's disposition.

A physician told me recently that a man had come to him in a great state of mental despondency, his mind plagued especially with religious doubts. This doctor gave him a few treatments, and his religious doubts disappeared. They had been caused, of course, by a subnormal physical condition which in turn produced a subnormal mental condition.

If we could take all the pain out of the world, we would probably remove most of its crankiness also. Once in awhile we encounter big, strapping people who are controversial in their attitudes because they have malice in their hearts. But these are few. Most people who are hard to get along with have aches and pains which, if relieved, would allow their latent qualities of personality to develop as they should.

Last night's revolt in Yugoslavia that resulted in the overthrow of the government and denunciation of the recently signed agreement with the Axis places another stumbling block in the path of Hitler's march to the east. Likewise the Yugoslav situation should cause Premier Matsuoka of Japan to take Hitler's statements and promises with an extra grain of salt.

The firm hand that the government is taking in the matter of resumption of work in the long-closed Allis-Chalmers plant as a result of a CIO strike looks as if we are really beginning to get down to business. It seems to us that persons who deliberately slow down or hinder the American defense program are enemies of the government and should be dealt with as such. We agree with Reg. Manning's cartoon on this page today, that all the strike trouble we have been having in this country must be a great satisfaction to Hitler and his associates in aggression.

While the matter of additional fire fighting equipment for Greenville is still under consideration it is to be hoped that the aldermen will not overlook the need for more paid firemen also. Before the matter is finally closed it might be wise for the committee to have a representative of the underwriters to set forth just what will be necessary in the way of additional equipment and men in order to get us a better rating with its resultant lower insurance rates. While we are making these expenditures it is possible that for a little more money we might attain the better rating and save far more in insurance rates than the cost would be in addition to having better protection against fire losses.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

A. T. L., Portland, Oregon — I don't think it has been completely overlooked, but at least you have hit on something that hasn't been mentioned for a long time. That is, that although the legal profession is the best passport to Congress, the college professor rates just about second to none when it comes to getting a prominent appointment in the present administration (and this has held true from the days when the New Deal was in kindergarten). I couldn't list them all, even if I took a week off and didn't do any thing but check the record, but even a superficial glance proves the point. Adolph A. Berle, Jr., one of the prime movers in the state department, was once on the Harvard and Columbia university faculties; Francis B. Sayre, the Philippines high commissioner, is from the Harvard law faculty; and Charles W. Eliot, of the national resources planning board, also is a Harvard faculty graduate. Clarence Dykstra, selective service director and chairman of the new national defense mediation board, is Wisconsin university's president. Dartmouth's President Ernest M. Hopkins is in the Office of Production Management. Nelson Rockefeller's office for coordination of commercial and cultural relations between the American republics is full of professors. Harry Elliot, who is watching over consumers' problems for the Council of National Defense is a dean of the University of North Carolina. Leon Henderson, of the Securities and Exchange commission, and government watchdog on prices in the defense set-up, is a professor of economics. Laughlin Currie, who is battling his way about China as the President's special representative is a former Harvard professor of money and banking. There are professors galore in the department of agriculture and the treasury department probably has as many as some well-known colleges. Topping it off, John G. Winant, now ambassador to the Court of St. James, was a prep school prof long before he had nicked the job of politics. Don't write to tell me that I missed a lot of the professors who are holding government jobs. I just skimmed the surface — which should be proof enough that a classroom desk is a good stepping-stone to Uncle Sam's payroll.

Mrs. R. P., Louisville, Ky. — It is impossible to say what chances your son, a reserve officer, has of getting out of the army at the end of his year of duty, but I would say the odds are more than even. The army has a "policy" on this score, but it is hard for a civilian to comprehend. Only 75 per cent of the reserve officers in corps area service commands and not more than 50 per cent in each regiment, separate battalion or company, will serve more than 12 months. There are, however, a long list of exceptions. These include officers who started duty before August 27, 1940, with the understanding that their duty would extend beyond a year if their work was satisfactory; officers called from the lists of warrant officers and enlisted men formerly in the regular army; officers already serving in a special service, such as the signal corps, or R.O.T.C.; officers in foreign service; and officers in specialized positions for which there are not readily available any other reserve officers. I think this all boils down to officers who are doing special service or those who have signified their willingness to serve "for any duration" that they are needed.

T. M., Enid, Okla. — The reason you don't see your senator or congressmen vote on an important piece of legislation is generally that he is ill or necessarily out of the city or occupied with some other government business that he considers just as or more important. Your Sen. Elmer Thomas was seriously ill when the vote was taken on the lend-lease bill.

K. R., Lincoln, Nebr. — The President's proclamation DOES designate Army day as April 7; but the reason you are seeing so many plans for parades, demonstrations and so forth on April 5 is that the latter date is on Saturday and special activities on Saturday are less likely to interrupt the national training program. In many cases these demonstrations can be combined with 24- to 36-hour leaves which will leave the soldiers without any complaints of overwork.

Short Shots

Raleigh, March 27.—No particular mention is made of it in Bank Commissioner Gurney Hood's release about the condition of North Carolina's banks at the close of 1940, but down in the figures there is an item which puts into sharp contrast banking practices of today and those of the lush days of 1929 when gambling in stocks was the rule and most everybody was confident there would soon be two chickens in every pot.

The item is "Overdrafts." In the December 31, 1940 report the total is an insignificant $1,435,69, from all the 272 commercial banks and branches in North Carolina. In the December 31, 1929, report overdrafts amounted in the aggregate to $254,000, in round numbers.

Commissioner Hood says the difference is wholly due to an overhauling system of supervising and regulating banking. Back in 1929 it was the general practice to permit overdrafts with dangerous laxity. Now it is practically impossible to get away with writing a check for more than is on deposit.

This change is one of the many which have made what Mr. Hood calls a "two hundred per cent" improvement in the stability of North Carolina's banking structure.

An unusual feature in connection with the ten opinions handed down by the Supreme court Wednesday was that there were dissents in four—a proportion far above the average. North Carolina's judicial "Big Seven" ordinarily are much more in accord than that.

In two causes, Justice A. F. Seawell dissented alone; in another he joined a minority of three which included Justices Heriot, Clarkston and W. A. Devin. Chief Justice Stacy, Justices Barnhill and Winborne formed a minority in the fourth.

Bus Boy Is Playwright Now

George D. Batson, 25, brews a pot of coffee in his apartment at New York after quitting his job as a bus boy in a Fourteenth street cafe to devote all his time to writing plays. His comedy, "Treat Her Gently," opens in Amarillo, Texas, March 29 preliminary to its debut in New York.

There wasn't a dissent in the Supreme court decision overruling Slot Machine Czar Joe Calcutt's efforts to beat $5 rap through technical objections to the record.

Said Justice Seawell in finding against Calcutt: "The defendant knew when judgment was pronounced that he had been sentenced on a two-count bill. He says as much, and the judgment so recites."

No weasel words there. Just a plain getting at the heart of the matter without obfuscating terminology.

State Senator Willie Lee Lumpkin of Franklin county was spied moving up Fayetteville street toward the capitol, and losing no time in moving.

Three strikes is usually "out" but the Supreme court gave Rena Warren an extra one in her suit against the Pilot Life Insurance Company.

On the case's fourth hearing in the appellate court it was ended by affirmation of a lower court verdict of dismissal as of non-suit.

She was trying to recover on a double indemnity insurance policy covering "accidental" death. The court held evidence showed the insured in this case was killed by an "intentional" shooting.

COURT STRIKES AT EXEMPTIONS

Requires Taxes On Commercially Used Buildings

Raleigh, March 27.—North Carolina's Supreme court, in two plainly worded decisions, has again made it plain that the state's constitution does not permit exemption of property from ad valorem taxation when such property is used to make money and in competition with others in the business world, even though the owner be a religious, educational or other type of corporation, and even though all profits and rents from the property are used for religious, educational or charitable purposes.

"It is not the character of the corporation or association owning the property but the purpose for which the property is used" which determines liability for taxation Chief Justice W. P. Stacy wrote in holding that Elon College must pay taxes on the Citizens Bank building it owns in Reidsville and which is rented and used for ordinary business purposes.

The chief justice left no doubt whatsoever of his ruling, in which all the court concurred:

"Property held for these purposes (religious, etc., as outlined in the revenue machinery bill) is supposed to be withdrawn from the competitive field of commercial activity," he wrote. "When it is thrust into the business life of a community it loses es its sheltered place." As a result of these decisions, following the leading case of Odd Fellows vs. Spain, from Wake county vs. Guilford county, in which three lots owned by the college were involved. In the latter case it was held that taxes are due on two of the lots which are rented to non-college persons, but finding of further facts was sought in the case of a house occupied by a professor with "30 a month considered in fixing his salary."

These Women!

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

Gracie Allen has a "coat of arms" now. She bought an illuminated reproduction of an Allen family coat of arms on her last visit to New York.

"And she loves it!

When I called on her in her New York hotel, she showed me the framed painting—a shield with alternating black and gold sections and three talbots passant (hounds walking), collared in red. The description accompanying it states that the way the shield is divided "signifies readiness at all times to serve the public."

"I was in a Fifth Avenue shop—and saw some like it," Gracie told me. "So I tried to find one for George (who was born Bernstein) and I couldn't. Then I looked up Allen and sure enough I found an Allen coat of arms, and they made this up for me. George thinks it's silly. It is a little silly at that. But I love it. It has more gold on it than some of the others. I'm going to keep it on my desk at home."

GRACIE AND HAT

All this talk of heraldic splendor followed a chat about Gracies herself—about her house, her children, her husband—and her new hats. Woman's talk. And during that talk she revealed a woman whom the fans of one of radio's dizziest characters and highest paid personalities never see. A woman's woman wrapped up in the problems of keeping her household happy.

She wore a dark blue wool frock accented by gold hoop earrings and a wide gold bangle bracelet—simple becoming and smart. Nothing ha-ha about it. Nothing ha-ha about her conversation either.

"I don't have anything to do with writing our program," she told me. "I just have to rehearse—and do my bit—but I'd better be good when I do it."

"At home I spend all morning going over the house, seeing that everything's in good shape. I check up on our clothes and sheets and things for the kitchen. Then I have to look after the garden—tell the gardener when to prune the vines. And I spend about three hours a day with the children."

"The children?" Sandra, six and a half, and Ronnie, a year younger were adopted when they were only gies. (They recognize the Allen voice.) Once she went into a department store and asked for a rolling pin and everybody went into stitches. "Gracie's going to hit George with a rolling pin," they said. Gracie got so rattled that she wound up buying a table and two chairs instead.

"Most of my New York shopping was for hats," she told me. "Don't you want to see them? They're wonderful."

So we went into her pale blue and crystal dressing room and tried on hats. Her new ones aren't dizzy but they've got zing. A rose covered toque with a green veil. ("You're supposed to do this kind of thing," said Gracie swishing the veil.) A black toque with a swirl of shocking pink feathers. ("This is my love.") A little black cap with two white pompons. ("My Duchess of Windsor hat.")

There were at least a dozen more. But it was growing late. I went home and Gracie went off to rehearse.

New York.—It will be a pity if the Aquarium, which is one of New York's most colorful and best-loved landmarks, has to be sacrificed to "progress."

Yet this may soon take place. Mr. Robert Moses, the commissioner of parks, says the old building at the tip of the Battery should be torn down and moved to another section of the city, probably the Bronx.

If they go through with this they will be destroying an old fort, built originally in 1807 and devised for

Art And Nurses

Here are five of Duke University's student nurses enjoying a meal in the new hospital dining hall, bright new quarters decorated with reproductions of famous paintings. On the wall is a copy of a landscape by Ferdinand Burgdorff, but, far more interesting, at the table (left to right) are the following young nurses-to-be: Marian White, cr. the defense of New York harbor.

After it had outlived its usefulness as a fort it was turned into something of a pleasure resort and became celebrated, under the name of Castle Garden, as the place where Jenny Lind first sang before an American audience. It was there, too, that Morse demonstrated his findings with electrical currents. At least two presidents—Jackson and Tyler—were entertained there, and so was the Marquis de Lafayette.

In later years, when it became a wonder of marine life, it was visited by tens of millions of visitors. Writers from all over the world have paused in admiration before its tanks and have gone away to record their impressions. Of all writers who have been enthralled by it I think Paul Morand best understood its strange drama and caught its color.

"One of the beauties of New York," he wrote, "is the silent to-and-fro passage of the long black sturgeons, the monstrous darting of the great turbot. In each tank, like the model of a mythological submarine, ballet with its setting of rocks and grass, the buoys shoot up the surface like fireworks. Colored fish from the tropics, trout, the icy great lakes, streaked catfish, reals and sharks. Most monstrous of all is the June-fish, which I first saw four years ago when it was called the Pew-fish; fat, bald orinetal, open-mouthed, waving fins like a baby's arms, it watched Wall street with its small, haggard, keen, marble-hard eyes—so ugly a creature that New York Jews demanded that his name should be altered. . . .

As was to be expected, a squall has burst around Mr. Moses' head because of this decision. Indignant meetings are being held, and the mailbags of New York's editors are filled with letters of protest. But I think it would take something, proximating a "march on Rome" to sway the commissioner, who is a man of determination and who does not mind a good fight.

Moses has done a good job beautifying parks and highways in the metropolitan area, and he usually has his way. But he may run into considerable opposition before the wrecking crews actually descend on the old Aquarium, which sits at the tip of Manhattan island like a squat round cheese.

Whose Meat?

WHILE YOU ARE CONSIDERING THE HEALTH-VALUE OF MEAT IN YOUR FAMILY'S DIET, DO NOT OVERLOOK EATING PLEASURE, TOO.

In choosing meat for your family, remember that Nature gave us that very important Sense of Taste. She made the act of eating one of life's great pleasures. She did this to insure that we would eat sufficient food, including meat, for our good.

Fine flavor in meat products increases the pleasure of eating, and thereby insures an adequate intake of the healthful elements that meat supplies so generously.

Wilson & Co. has for years, in its own way, endeavored not only to produce the finest meat products, but to make their quality and healthfulness so positive that our now famous slogan "The Wilson Label Protects Your Table," will always have a genuine meaning for every purchaser of Wilson products.

The purpose behind this slogan has never wavered and the products produced by our company will always back with full measure this pledge it makes to the public.

We are proud of the public's confidence in the sincerity of these words. It has helped us to build well.

Today Wilson's meat products are recognized everywhere, not alone for excellent quality, but also for tenderness and taste—approved by that great "Ambassador of Good Eating," George Rector, himself.

Include a generous ration of healthful meat in your family's daily diet—especially the growing boys' and girls'.

But to cater to the love of good eating, choose meat products identified by the Wilson name and the famous Wilson trade-mark shown below.

OUR IDEAL: "To make well and to trade fairly. To profit not alone in dollars but in the good will of those with whom we deal. To correct our errors. To improve our opportunities and to rear from the daily work a structure which shall be known for all that is best in business."

Card Prospects Bright Despite Infield Puzzle

By DILLON GRAHAM (Sports Editor, AP Feature Service)

St. Petersburg, Fla.—They've substituted B-1 vitamin pills for Pepper to inject pep into the Cardinals this spring and the St. Louis gang is casting threatening glances at their Cincinnati and Brooklyn rivals in the National league pennant chase.

The old Pepper—John Leonard Martin—is missing this year for the first time in a decade. He's out on the coast prepping the Sacramento team. And without Pepper to pep up the practice drills, the Cardinal bosses are feeding vitamin pills to everyone.

Judging from the club's noise and ginger the pills are working.

Manager Billy Southworth's major task appears to be that of building an infield around hard-hitting slow-footed, bulky Johnny Mize and five short-stops.

Mize, big gun on the Cardinals now that Joe Medwick has departed, was late reporting to camp—because of a contract argument—but Big John will be at first base when the campaign starts.

Gus Manusco, former Cardinal who later did turns with the Giants and Dodgers, will help. Manusco is being counted on to develop the flock of young pitchers.

Only the Boston Red Sox, with 21, have more pitchers at camp than the Cards. There are 20 here and several of them had impressive minor league records. Southworth may go nuts trying to decide which to keep.

Ernie White from Columbus and Howard Krist from Houston may be the best of the new whippers. White won 13 and lost 4 and led the American association in percentage, .765, and earned run average 2.25. Krist hung up 23 triumphs, had a .716 percentage and a 1.71 earned run mark.

Harry Breechen from Columbus was the association's best southpaw with 16 wins. Henry Gorncki won 19 for Rochester, as did Herschel Lyons.

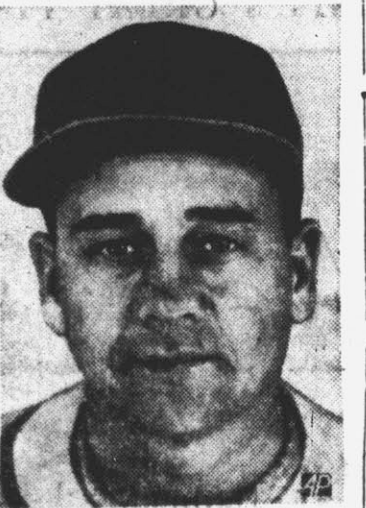

For experienced starters Southworth has thin Lon Warneke, Mort Cooper, Mill McGee and Clyde Shoun. Max Lanier, who won 9 for the Cards last year, also may be a starter.

The club looks fair defensively, the catching should be satisfactory, and the hitting should be about tons in the league. If Southworth can develop some of his young pitchers and get good results from the veteran hurlers, the Cardinals may grab the flag.

The Cards are doing some experimenting with the pitchers and catchers. A rookie for Columbus, Walker Cooper, is due to do most of the backstopping while the veteran

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

YESTERDAY: The truth is that everybody in Mrs. Marbury's impromptu houseparty at Heart's Haven is worried. Nobody believes in ghosts, yet the caretaker insists he has seen them. Nobody believes in sinister murderers, but Ham and Eve have been shot at. Nobody believes in underhanded doings, yet Brett and Eve find the supposedly dilapidated boathouse in very good repair. And now Brett and Eve find Lawyer Howe helping his assistant, Jim Droissard, upstairs after an injury.

she was trying to hurt him that made her almost sorry she had spoken. But the next minute, his face settled into its accustomed stern lines, and he spoke, as usual without looking directly at her.

"It would be easier to make a sale—as you so charmingly put it—if there were fewer people about. However, I would like to remind you that I am not concerned with the sale. My only interest is in restoring the place as it should be. But of course you are not interested in this." He stopped abruptly.

"But of course I am," Eve contradicted sweetly. "I'm still waiting for an answer, remember? You said you were not interested in the sale per se, but you can't do the restoration without making the sale, can you?"

"Why not?" His words were like the flick of a whip and Eve, who had been momentarily ashamed of herself for badgering the man, reverted suddenly to her usual resentment of his manner. She started to explain belatedly, but his voice cut across her words.

"I can do the decorating even if the King of Siam buys the place. But until Mrs. Marbury decides against it, the place is here. I'm not worried about whether or not I'll have an opportunity to work on it. There is always a market for a house as beautiful and charming as this one."

Eve tried to think of one devastating sentence, but they were already at the beach, and Mr. Howe was calling them into a tight circle in the air and join Gina, as if she'd found Brett tiresome as a companion.

But her mind was busy searching for a possible retort, and she scarcely heard the discussion swirling about her.

She absorbed just enough to realize that each of the men had decided to sit up in the living room for three hours, in order to make sure that there would be no return of the marauder who had shot at her and Ham the night before. The next minute Ham called to his dog and started off down the beach. Gina followed them, leaving Brett still scowling, sitting alone.

Eve forced herself to walk over to him. "At least," she said coolly, "you might act human. If I thought it took a lot of money to make people friendly and pleasant, I'd certainly be sorry for most of the world. But I've noticed that most people who are pleasant are that way in spite of their worldly goods. And those who aren't—are just naturally bent on being disagreeable."

It wasn't quite as clear as she wanted to make it, and Brett seemed obviously bewildered by her attack. But Eve, without waiting, walked over to where Julie stood looking out to sea, thinking, Eve knew, of the small but comfortable apartment they had left in New York.

Perhaps Brett did not—or would not—understand at the moment. But later, when he thought it over he would know that she, for one, considered his lefty, contemptuous air completely silly. There was a little satisfaction in that.

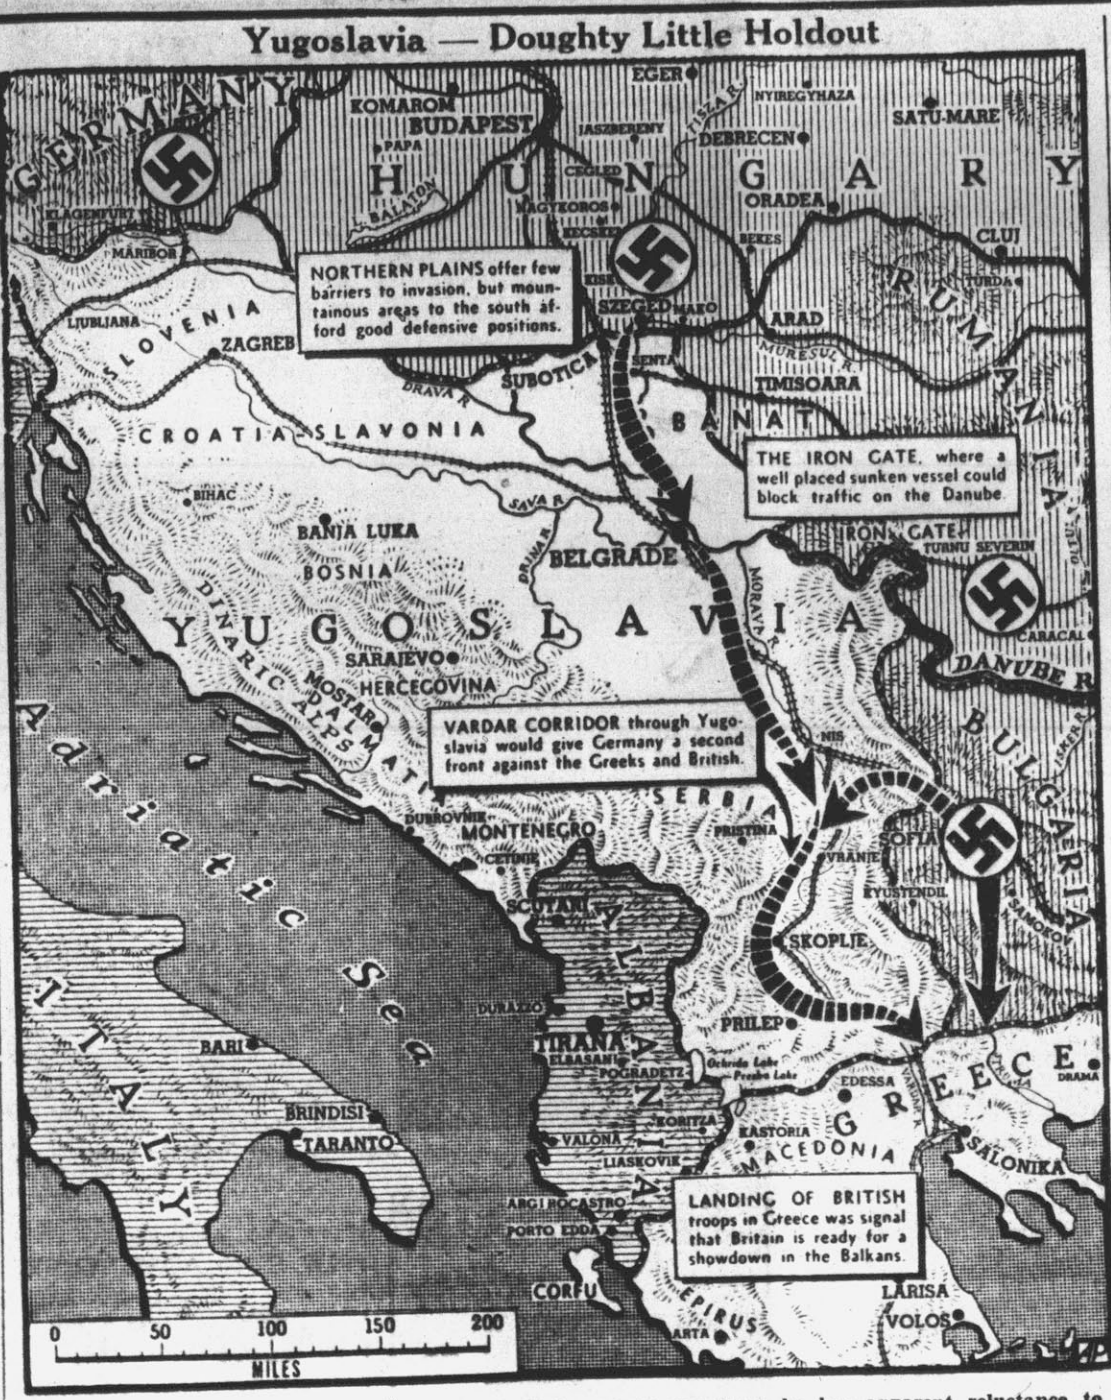

"Have you a fever?" Julie inquired absently. "Your color is so high clear. Perhaps you'd better go to the house and lie down."

"I'm perfectly all right," Eve said with some dignity, feeling that the whole world was against her at the moment. "I just wanted to know if I could borrow your hand mirror. The sun may come out later today and perhaps I could send some signals. I've heard of people doing that."

It had been an inspiration of the moment, but when Julie agreed, and later when she spoke to Gina about the idea, Eve herself became enthusiastic.

About Love
When they returned to the house the two girls went out on the second-floor porch with the mirror and waited for the sun to appear. It was a fateful day, and the sun, although it peeped through occasionally from behind the driving clouds that chased each other across the sky, was a fickle companion.

During the periods while they waited for a favorable moment, Eve hesitantly broached the subject of Yugoslavia, a baby of the last war, has come into current war news by her apparent reluctance to accept an invitation to join the Axis. This map shows Yugoslavia's position in relation to possible developments in the Balkans. Broken arrows mark a route German troops could take through Yugoslavia to get at the British and Greeks. A million soldiers—below Axis standards in equipment—and a small navy bolster Yugoslavia's resistance to absorption into the Axis.

Honestly—there isn't a minute in his life, I do believe, when he isn't thinking of you, and wondering if he can't make you happy."

"Oh—Ham's a good sort," Gina agreed lazily. "Get set now, Eve. The sun is coming out. Here it is! Ready? Oh—doggone it! There's another one of those mean little clouds."

"You're evading me," said Eve firmly, looking at Gina's silky hair blowing in the wind, and wondering how it was she came to be giving advice to someone whom she would never have dared to speak to a

Chapter 14 Council Of War

"Hello" Brett called. "Is anything the matter?"

"Droissard here has had an accident," said the lawyer. "He hurt his arm. I'm afraid it may be broken."

"No," said Jim, "not broke—but it hurts like—" he choked back a word hastily. "Like blazes," he finished.

"But how did it happen?" Eve asked.

"Jim stepped on a broken board in the back porch—he came in that way," the lawyer explained.

"Them caretakers did it," Jim put in. "I looked at that step—it had been sawed clear through."

"It doesn't seem reasonable to think that the Jacksons did it," said Brett. Rodman thoughtfully.

"In a spot like that, they might have got hurt themselves."

"They wouldn't if they knew just where to step," Droissard contradicted quickly. "That isn't the door the Jacksons use most of the time," he added. "They go out through the side door. I came that way only because I was on the other side of the island."

"I do hope your arm isn't broken," Eve said, sounding more distressed than Jim.

"I'll bandage it," the lawyer said. He urged his employee up the stairs. Jim Droissard turned to go, but his resentful mumble was clear to them in the hall below.

"Anyway, I tell you it wasn't an accident. It was a fix."

Almost A Quarrel
There was a council of war the next morning. As they gathered in the dining room and made a pretense of eating, they eyed one another with some disfavor, with the exception of Brett. Rodman, who did not look at anyone at all.

Even Gina's attempts to sound him out on the fact that the plane might yet come—made when the Jacksons had left the room—brought nothing but non-committal answers.

Yet when Mr. Howe suggested that they all walk out to the beach, where there might be a small amount of privacy, Brett agreed readily enough.

He was beside Eve as the party walked down to the shore. She did not know whether he had chosen this place by accident or design, and his lack of apparent interest in her or in any of the company, gave her a clue. Instead, he seemed to be studying the house, turning from time to time to glance back at where it gabled charm belied the anxiety they all felt.

The storm had cleared during the night, but there was still a wind that ruffled the surface of the water, and slapped the wet branches of the rhododendrons against their faces. But even when Brett, turning unexpectedly, found the wet leaves impossible to duck, he put them aside apparently without rancor.

His frown was directed, it seemed to Eve, more at the straggling company ahead of them, than at the tangled shrubbery through which they walked. Finally she could no longer stand it.

"Do you hate us so much?" she demanded. "Are we spoiling a sale for you—just because there are so many of us to be frightened? I suppose if only Mrs. Marbury and her niece were here, you could easily have explained away these odd happenings."

He looked at her and, for the first time, Eve saw him off guard. He did not look formidable or even sulky, at the moment. Instead, his expression was as youthfully bewildered as her own might have been.

There was something else, too, in his face—a sudden awareness that

"I'm talking about Ham," Eve went on, "and you're going to listen. He's a very nice boy. Gina and if you don't care for him, really the kindest thing you can do is to send him packing. I mean it."

"Mother Wisdom herself!" Gina derided. "This sounds kind of stupid when you put it into words—she hesitated and began over again—

"What I mean is, there are two kinds of love, Eve. The way I look at it. There's the kind that usually never happens. It's — it's sort of wild and adventurous and terribly happy all at once. Then there's the other kind — the kind that mother always beam about. It's safe and quiet and happy in a way, I suppose."

"I gather you mean that Ham's love is the second kind," Eve said. "And it isn't fair to him."

Eve played with the mirror, feeling very uncomfortable. She did not want to agree with Gina and yet she admitted to herself that she did agree.

"But it isn't fair to Ham," Eve protested feebly. Gina's eyes, however, had lost their dreaminess and her retort was more in her old manner.

"Ham will keep for a while. But before I say yes definitely, I want to know that I can't have the first kind of love. Don't be shocked, Eve. If I do marry Ham he'll have nothing to complain about the rest of his life. But I just want to be sure that I can't have—well, all the glory and high adventure first."

New York, March 27.—(AP)—A little better turn to the war news and revived hope for strike settlements at home, received the principal credit today for a stock market rally that lifted favorites fractions to around two points.
Industrials led the upturn at the start and rails, hesitant for a while, soon joined the procession. Utilities, however, remained in the lagging division at their low levels of the year. Extreme gains were reduced here and there near the fourth hour.

Glamour Is Old Stuff So We'll Settle For This

Anne Scott — For Self-Reliance And Natural Beauty.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer
If it's glamor that's been worrying you, here's good news:
Latest choice for the Ideal American Girl is a self-reliant career girl, selected for her natural beauty
—not for glamor.
She is slim, hazel-eyed, chestnut-haired, sun-tanned Anne Scott, a New York model from the middle west.
She was chosen by John Powers head of the model agency, from hundreds of beautiful girls because of her natural good looks, simplicity
—and her career.
"Glamor is out," Mr. Powers told me. "It's been done to death."
University Graduate
Anne is the daughter of Russell
Dana Scott, chief chemist of the Ohio Department of Health, and the wife of Earle Thomas, a young New York business man. She is a graduate of Ohio State University, and is interested in writing short stories.
Recently she was chosen Queen of Height 5 feet 8 inches (in high the American Theater's Carnival in aid of Britain.
She is not a dazzling beauty, but she certainly is pretty. She doesn't use heavy make-up. She puts on her lipstick to follow the natural contours of her lips and dresses her chestnut hair to balance her features and to frame her face. She doesn't strive for an exotic effect;
simply brings out her good points.
And she has a sense of chic.
When I saw Anne she wore a trimly tailored olive drab suit, with a hint of the military in its design.
Perched behind her pompadour was a tassel knitted cap—red as a flag to match her lips, nails and bag. She says she never wears black, prefers suits and sports clothes in soft colors, and likes white best for evening clothes.
How Do You Compare?
Here are her measurements:

Boots).
Bust 34 inches.
Waist 24 inches.
Hips 35 inches.
Dress size 12 (or small 14).
Shoe size 7 1/2 AA.
Glove size 6 1/2.
Anne Scott swims, skis, dances,
cooks and is a candid camera fan.
She and her husband keep house in a little apartment in Greenwich Village.
Do they budget?
"Well," she said earnestly, "I think we're going to begin next week."
Beauty "Not Necessary"
When I asked Anne for her own idea of the Ideal American Girl she had this to say:
"I think she should be healthy good in one or two sports, and intelligent. Maybe that should come first. She should have a definite interest in life, and a hobby. She should be slim and fairly tall—but not too tall. She definitely does not have to be beautiful. But she must be beautifully made up, well colored and well dressed—and then forget about it."

This chart is revised to include war losses up to February 1. At least two of Italy's battleships are believed (but not announced by Italy to be) disabled. The United States' destroyer total does not include over-age World War vessels. Only the data of the U. S. Navy is official; other data represents estimates from diplomatic, consular, and naval services. It is believed reliable, however; where there was a question a question mark is used.

Project and says it has given him his first opportunity to see what he could do with a brush.
Sommers has done murals for public buildings in Cleveland, and has work hanging in the Cleveland museum, the Chicago Institute, and in private collections. His themes are chosen from his surroundings and are much the same as any artist might paint. His work has a child-like quality and he shows the workings of a mature well seasoned mind.
Some of the paintings are more like quick sketches, hurriedly done in order to satisfy a mood. His color is delicate and many times wistful, perhaps reminiscent of their gone by.
This exhibit shows a marked contrast with some of the work of our younger artists, who use their color fearlessly, paint in a vigorous style and express their ideas abstractly.
William Sommers has lived to a ripe age, has traditions based upon years of activity and has placed upon paper expressions and feelings that have developed as a cumula-tion of his varied experience.

THIS ADVERTISEMENT is addressed to those owners of lowest-priced cars who have often wished they could own a Pontiac, but never felt they could afford one. Its purpose is to tell you that you can afford a Pontiac and to show you why you can. First, Pontiac, far from being an expensive car, is actually a low-priced car—in fact, just a very few dollars more than "the lowest-priced three." As a result, your present car will, in all probability, easily cover the down payment on a Pontiac. Second, if the size of your monthly payment is an important item to you, you may easily arrange the number of payments so that the amount of each payment fits your pocket-book. No wonder former lowest-priced car owners are saying: "Monthly payments on my Pontiac are so little more I hardly notice the difference!" What's more, many owners will tell you that in the long run, you actually pay no more for a Pontiac—you simply invest a little more, because you will eventually get those few extra dollars back again in a higher allowance at trade-in time! See your Pontiac dealer today!
