Berlin Orders Return Of Legation Staff In Belgrade

MANY BELIEVE WAR IMMINENT

Diplomatic Circles Express Belief Hitler Regards War Against Yugoslavia Inevitable; Veteran Croat Leader Joins Belgrade Cabinet, Assuring Unity Despite Axis Interference

Belgrade, April 3.—(AP) Germany ordered all of her legation staff save two men home to Berlin today in a flurry of ominous military activity, and diplomatic circles expressed belief that Hitler had decided that war with Yugoslavia was inevitable.

Veteran leader of the Croat autonomists, Vladimir Macek, announced he was entering the new government of Premier General Simovic as a vice premier and the nation thus seemed assured of unity despite German and Italian efforts to split it.

Macek said he hoped that "despite all difficulties piling upon us we can, with collaboration and a common effort, preserve peace and overcome the difficulties which dark times recently have brought upon us."

MotORIZED German troops were reported massing in Rumania opposite the Yugoslav frontier only 50 miles from Belgrade.

The German radio, in early morning broadcasts reminiscent of those which preceded the Nazi entry into Czechoslovakia, accused the Yugoslavs anew of committing atrocities against the German minority in the country.

Indications that the recall order was unexpected were seen in the fact that last night the staff members had been making extensive preparations to barricade themselves in the legation if war came.

More than 500 persons have passed Red Cross first aid examinations conducted in Pitt county since the movement was inaugurated. It was revealed today by C. W. Willard, chairman of the local chapter's First Aid Committee.

Four classes have recently been completed in the county, one at Greenville, one at Ayden, one at Farmville and one for the Greenville firemen.

Another class got started in Grimesland yesterday afternoon, the first conducted in that community and the first conducted in the county exclusively for women. Nothing but women are being enrolled in the Grimesland class and any woman in the community desiring to take the 209-hour course is urged to see or call Mrs. S. A. Porter. The course is being conducted by Mrs. Orier Kelly of Washington and classes will be conducted each Monday and Wednesday nights until the course is completed.

Memorial Baptist To Put On Drive

A year ago the members of Memorial Baptist Church voted to erect an educational building which would provide adequate space for its expanding program of religious education. At that time the church appointed a committee to make plans for the erection of the proposed building. The committee has been at work for several months. They secured the services of Messrs. Wallace and Gill, with whom they have held a number of conferences, and whose sketches they have studied carefully.

Last night the church met in special conference to receive the report of the committee. Dr. Johnson acted as chairman in the absence of J. J. White. The committee presented the last sketch of the architects, which calls for the erection of a three-story educational building in the Gothic style and the enlargement of the present building by 60 per cent. The church, following a period of deliberation, instructed the committee to re-study the sketch with a view to making certain alterations and to put on a drive for the necessary funds.

15 PERSONS ON MISSING PLANE

Transport, Long Over Due At Daytona, Feared Lost

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—An Eastern Air Lines transport plane carrying 15 persons was missed and hours overdue this afternoon on a storm-beset run from West Palm Beach to Daytona Beach.

Heavy rains, high winds and clouds laid a belt across the state along the route of the plane, last heard from when it left West Palm Beach at 8:16 a. m., for a one-hour run into Daytona, next stop on the Miami-New York trip.

Tentatively listed among the passengers were famed surgeon George Crile of Cleveland, and Mrs. James Cox, Jr., daughter-in-law of the former Ohio governor and Democratic presidential candidate.

The Daytona Beach airport manager said apprehension was felt first when the plane failed to make its usual radio report from Melbourne, about a half hour out of Daytona.

An order was issued to all Coast Guard vessels and planes along the route to aid in a search for the plane.

Local Democrats To Attend Dinner

Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive committee, disclosed today that a number of Pitt county men planned to attend the Jackson Day dinner to be held in Raleigh tomorrow night.

While Pitt county already has sent in its quota, Dr. Jones said that any member of the party who had not planned to go and desiring to do so would be welcomed and could be provided for if he is advised immediately.

The meeting will be held in the Sir Walter hotel for the purpose of raising funds with which to help wipe out the party debt incurred in electing Roosevelt for a third term. Senator Scott W. Lucas of Illinois will be the principal speaker.

MOVE ORDERED BY ROOSEVELT

Note Demanding That Admiral Lais Be Withdrawn Declares Attache Connected With Sabotaging Of Italian Ships in This Country

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—The United States today demanded the immediate recall of the Italian naval attache in Washington, Admiral Alberto Lais, on the grounds that he was connected with the sabotaging of Italian merchant ships in this country.

Secretary of State Hull sent a note to this effect to the Italian ambassador on orders of President Roosevelt.

The note, made public by the State Department, declared that Admiral Lais was "persona non grata to this government as naval attache of the Royal Italian embassy at Washington," and requested "that Your Excellency's government withdraw him immediately from the United States."

The note said action was taken because of the "various facts and circumstances" which had come to the attention of this government "connecting" Lais "with the commission by certain persons of acts in violation of the laws of the United States."

President Roosevelt, the note said had decided that the continued (Continued on page six)

CHARGED WITH FORGING CHECK

Local Young Man Reported Arrested Yesterday

W. O. Register, Jr., about 21, of this city was reported by local police authorities to have been arrested in Lillington yesterday on a series of charges of giving worthless checks and also in connection with the forgery of a $1,100 check on H. Rivers Goodall of Greenville.

Chief of Police George Clark said this afternoon he had talked with the sheriff of New Hanover county and was advised that the local young man would be returned to Wilmington for questioning, probably next Tuesday, following a hearing in Lillington on charges of giving worthless checks. The local chief said Register represented himself as a representative of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and had checks printed with his name on them.

According to Chief Clark, Register forged a check for $1,100 on Mr. Goodall of this city several days ago to purchase a new automobile.

As explained here, Register "thumbed" a ride from Holly Ridge to Wilmington with Mr. Goodall, who went to a Wilmington hotel.

The young man is said to have gone to the Maudlin Motor Company in Wilmington, represented himself as Mr. Goodall, advised he wanted to buy a new automobile, that he was registered at the hotel and suggested that the automobile agency manager call there for identification. The manager, Harris W. Haskett, is reported to have called the hotel and was advised that Mr. Goodall was registered there. The agency manager also was said to have called the Greenville bank on which the check was drawn and was told Mr. Goodall's check would be good. After these inquiries, the agency took the check and the car was turned over to the man, purported to have been Register.

The car was later wrecked and the driver is alleged to have given a garage in Kinston another check for $100, also said to have been drawn on Mr. Goodall.

Fowl Play

Columbia, S. C.—(AP)—It's no longer dogs, but roosters, that nestle postmen. The current issue of the Columbia Postal Employee reports that B. F. Claitt was "assailed by a bantam rooster with the idea that the mail would not go through." Claitt experienced difficulty, the item said, in putting the "foul fowl" to flight.

PREMIER DIES BY OWN HANDS AT BUDAPEST

Cabinet Resigns Following Death Of Count Teleki

WAS CONSIDERED AS PRO-BRITISH Foreign Minister Selected as New Premier and Charged With Job of Forming New Government

Budapest, Hungary, April 3.—(AP)—Count Teleki, 62-year-old Premier of Hungary, died unexpectedly in the night, and hours later the mystery of his death was partly clarified by an official Hungarian news agency dispatch which said he committed suicide.

The agency said the manner of the death was determined by physicians who examined his body. No explanation was immediately forthcoming. Friends said the Premier took poison.

The Hungarian government was said to have resigned as a result of Teleki's death.

Dr. Bardossy, foreign minister in the Teleki government, was appointed premier and charged with formation of a new government.

Budapest, Hungary, April 3.—(AP)—Count Teleki, 62-year-old Premier of Hungary, died unexpectedly during the night and the Hungarian government was said to have resigned as a result.

The foreign office said the premier's death resulted from a heart ailment and denied first reports by friends that Count Teleki had taken his own life. Early dispatches also had said the count's wife died an hour before her husband, but the foreign office said she was still alive, although very ill, at a sanatorium.

Count Teleki visited his wife's sick room late last night, then returned home, where he was found dead in bed by his servants this morning, the foreign office statement asserted.

Teleki was chief of one of Hungary's great landed families and often was regarded as Regent Admiral Horthy's righthand man, remaining in the cabinet largely to circumvent complete German domination.

The premier personally was known as pro-English rather than pro-German, but sought to maintain the appearance of neutral independence in order to make his influence the greater on the Germans, whose drain of Hungary's food and other supplies often aroused cabinet controversies.

The people of Greenville are invited and urged to attend these services. The guest speakers are as follows: Monday night, Rev. W. A. Crow of Grimesland. Tuesday night, Rev. L. C. Larkin, district superintendent of the Rocky Mount district. Wednesday night, Rev. J. A. Russell, district superintendent of the New Bern district.

Thursday night, Rev. B. B. Slaughter, district superintendent of the Elizabeth City district. Friday night, Holy Communion will be observed.

Each morning at 8 o'clock union services will be held in this church with the different preachers of Greenville bringing the messages.

Voters, 167, Votes 0

Seattle.—(AP)—Although the new suburban area of Blue Ridge has 167 registered voters, including a county official and a number of persons prominent in civic affairs, not one vote was cast in the March municipal election. There were two contests, for school board and port commission, and it cost the county $40 to open the polls and pay three officials to sit around all day.

U.S. Officials Studying Possible Forfeiture Of Thirty Seized Axis Ships

Secretary Morgenthau and Attorney General Jackson Considering Possible Action Provided For Under Same Law By Which Vessels Were Seized; New Vigorous Protests Received

Washington, April 3.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today he and Attorney General Robert Jackson were "studying" possible action to forfeit to the United States 30 German and Italian vessels seized last week-end.

Morgenthau declined to discuss the problems of forfeiture, and referred reporters to the attorney general.

The 1917 law under which the Axis ships were seized because of sabotage by the crews also provides that the government may seek forfeiture of the ships as a penalty for such sabotage.

Asked whether he had any information that sabotage of the ships was ordered by any diplomatic representatives of the Axis in this country, the secretary said, "the facts speak for themselves."

New and more vigorous protests against the seizures came yesterday from the Axis powers.

Asked whether the ships of any other nation might be taken into custody, Morgenthau replied that no advance notice of such action could be given, if it were contemplated. The secretary added that the Coast Guard, which is a Treasury unit, had received letters of commendation from many officials of this government for the way in which it conducted the ship seizures.

PEACE SOUGHT AT FORD PLANT

Foundation Laid For Successful Mediation

(By The Associated Press) "The foundation has been laid for successful mediation" of the Ford Motor Company strike, Michigan's Governor Van Wagener said today, while a new outbreak of fighting occurred near Ford's vast River Rouge plant at Dearborn.

In Washington, House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts agreed with a questioning representative that it was "about time" for President Roosevelt to speak out on the strike situation.

The House Military Committee decided to start an inquiry into the defense program and strikes Monday.

Four Negroes were severely beaten by union pickets near the Ford plant and three pickets were struck by an automobile which plowed through the fighting groups.

Officials of the American Banters Car Corporation at Butler, Pa., where midjet reconnaissance cars are being produced for the army, reported operations had been suspended because a strike in Michigan had tied up materials.

Strike Settled In Western Carolina

Asheville, April 3.—(AP)—Employees and the management of the American Enka Corporation signed a contract today at 12:45 p. m., and a 13-day-old strike at the plant was ended.

Picket lines were discontinued 30 minutes later and the first of more than 3,000 workers arranged to return to their jobs tomorrow.

More will be return later as production picks up. Inability to meet public demand for telephones at Pelzing, China, has resulted in a system whereby new installations are assigned by lot.

Nazi and Fascist Planes Armed With Torpedoes and Bombs Attack Convoys in Eastern Mediterranean; German Battleships and Submarines Take Toll in Atlantic

Rome, April 3.—(AP)—German and Italian planes, armed with torpedoes and bombs, sank six ships in two convoys in the Eastern Mediterranean and probably sank a seventh, Italy's high command announced today.

Berlin, April 3.—(AP)—German battleships and submarines operating in the Atlantic sank 367,800 tons of merchant vessels from March 16 to 23, informed circles reported today, in one of the heaviest series of blows yet claimed against British shipping.

German planes were declared to have sunk two armed merchantships totaling 16,000 tons out of a strongly protected convoy south of Crete in the Mediterranean.

In addition, the high command announced, two ships of 4,000 tons were sunk and six others "so severely damaged that their loss is apparent" in waters around the British Isles.

A lone German combat plane was said to have destroyed three British planes and damaged several others in a raid on an airport in southern England. Other attacks were made on ports and industrial facilities in southern England and Scotland.

Local Man Forced To Pay Back Wage

Washington, N. C., April 3.—J. H. Clark, employee of J. Sam Fleming of Greenville, was awarded $1,100 due him under provisions of the Federal Wage and Hour law in an employee suit heard by Judge I. M. Meekins in District Court here yesterday.

Judge Meekins held that Clark, night watchman of the defendant, is an employee within the purview of the Fair Labor Standards Act, and that he should have been paid the minimum wage provided by the act and overtime for hours worked in excess of the standard work week.

The defendant was ordered to pay attorney fees of $200 and court costs, and stated that if the defendant failed to comply with the judgment within 30 days, he would order him to pay an additional $1,100 in liquidating damages.

Maneuvers To Be In Two Carolinas

Columbia, S. C., April 3.—(AP)—Two large and separate army maneuvers—one involving 120,000 troops and the other 350,000 men—have been tentatively set for the area between Fort Bragg, N. C., and Fort Jackson, S. C., Governor Maybank announced today.

The governor made public a letter from General George Marshall, army chief of staff, advising him that this territory had been tentatively selected.

Under plans Marshall revealed to Maybank, the first maneuvers would be for the First and Second Army Corps and would be staged between October 6 and November 1. The second maneuvers would involve the First army and would run from November 3 to November 30.

Maybank said also that there was a possibility the Sixth army corps might use the Forts Jackson and Bragg area at the same time as the First and Second corps. This depended, the governor explained, on whether an area in Virginia, now under consideration, was available.

Officials of the company were present and, in addition to showing two moving pictures demonstrating proper methods in the lubrication and general care of equipment, pamphlets on the problems were distributed among those present. R. R. Bennett, Pitt farm agent was present and spoke briefly on the value of proper care of equipment. Tractors and other farm equipment had been placed in the armory building and were put into operation for the purpose of actual demonstrations. Among the Sinclair officials here were C. E. Hornsby, merchandising representative for North Carolina; George G. Hughes, engineer of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation with headquarters in Charlotte, and L. E. Parkerson, district supervisor.

Strength For The Day By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SOLUTION IS RELIGION The worst of all heresies is the theory that individuals and nations promote their best interests by strife. The more civilized we become, the more destructively does war become. No nation wins a modern war. In the end the victors, bleeding and panting, cling to each other with nothing to rejoice over save that the struggle is at an end. The only reward war offers is the crushing of some leader who had marshalled a horde of misguided folk behind him. But the world has not yet learned how to control conditions by which it can prevent the man on horseback from arising, at stated intervals, to plague the world. Up to the present time, the best that combinations of international force have been able to do is to dispose of particular individuals who menaced society. Politics seems to have no technique for getting down to the basis of the problem and dealing with the conditions which permit the man on horseback to arise. The reason for this, of course, is that politics deal with the mechanics of social procedure while wars have their origin in the hearts of men. The desire for power, the love of money, the widespread willingness to exchange the humdrum of everyday living for the excitement of war, the callous indifference to human life, and the willingness to perpetrate injustice if it brings immediate gain—these are the motives which produce war, and politics cannot deal with them. The solution lies only in the Christian gospel. (All Rights Reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

We would like to add our endorsement of Lieutenant Lester Jones, of the State Highway Patrol, for appointment as major of the patrol. Lieutenant Jones' past experience as chief of police in this city and Washington, and his more recent efficient record as head of this division of the patrol, fits him adequately to fill the higher post and his selection for the job would be a wise move.

The current issue of "Tobacco," the national tobacco trade magazine, features the Greenville tobacco market in an article prepared by R. C. Rankin, local market supervisor. The magazine circulates throughout the tobacco buying industries, and the bringing of the Greenville market to the attention of the tobacco manufacturers in this forceful way should do much to create greater demand for the types of tobacco handled here. A greater demand for the types of tobacco sold on the Greenville market will not only aid the market, but will also help every tobacco grower in this section.

With around half a million men involved in strikes that are slowing down our national defense program, there is a growing feeling in Congress and on the part of the country as a whole that the time has come to crack down on those forces that are causing all the disturbance. In our opinion the government has used every means possible to aid labor and see to it that its rights are preserved, and unless labor is willing to do its part in meeting conditions, there is but one course left and that is drastic action on the part of the government.

The matter of whether or not American ships will be used for convoy of ships carrying war supplies to England and the other democracies is coming up for almost daily discussion, but as we see it, there is but one common sense view to take of the matter. In enacting the lend-lease bill we officially recognized the fact that it is necessary for our nation to give material aid to the democracies if they are to win their fight against the dictators and preserve freedom in the world. If it is necessary for our warring friends to have these materials to win and if we are determined to see to it that they do win, then certainly it seems to us that it will be necessary for our nation to see to it that such supplies as leave our country reach their destination safely even if we have to use our navy to protect them.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett Washington—Rep. George H. Bender, the Ohio Republican editor, publisher and insurance man, has a mad on. It has to do with band music—not band music in general—but the band music specifically planned by Leopold Stokowski, the eminent conductor who resigned after more than two decades with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra to see that the American army in training hits the proper note. Congressman Bender surveyed the conductor's plans and pronounced them, gulped twice and pronounced to tell his colleagues what he thought of it. What he thought ran like this: "Leopold Stokowski, well-known orchestra director, is conducting an experiment with an army band at Fort MacArthur, Calif. He proposes to revolutionize military music and to send soldiers into battle formation to the tune of mobile musicianship. Mr. Stokowski has informed the nation's press that army bands should go into battle in tank formations and armored cars. Mr. Stokowski also believes that bands should be removed from battle-ships because there is not room for them. "Under the Stokowski plan, a band could play throughout a battle either in motion or standing still, and Mr. Stokowski further says that 'these bands could be very effective in motion for adding cheerfulness and morale."

Needs A Tank "No wonder army men and band musicians are so purple with indignation that they cannot laugh. The new band would have one piccolo player, eight saxophones in various flats, two cornets, a half dozen trumpets, trombones, tubas, drums and so forth. Mr. Stokowski is apparently at work at the present time figuring out some kind of a tank to hold this assortment of army entertainers. "He even has a proposal for the bandmen on horseback and describes the band formation as one which would be "modern, easy to handle when required to move with immense swiftness, very brilliant in the open air, both soft and brilliant indoors, capable of playing jazz, swing and live. "Music for battleships would be piped by radio from bands on land. All these weird suggestions concocted by Mr. Stokowski have been dreamed up under Mr. Stokowski's authorization from Chief of Staff George C. Marshall. Picture their possibilities. As a tank dips into a sharp and unexpected hollow, the cries of anguish from the perturbed saxophone players would probably frighten the enemy to a quick and decisive retreat, unless our soldiers themselves would first throw up their guns in anguish to shut their ears. "Having seen some of the tanks in action recently in camp maneuvers, we can understand Mr. Stokowski's determination to avoid the use of clarinets. On some of those dips, certainly some of those clarinets would be swallowed forever." So concluded Congressman Bender.

Needed: Anvil Chorus I regret to say that, being some 3,000 miles from the base of Director Stokowski's operations, I haven't heard his little prelude on plans for army and navy bands. If Mr. Bender should have heard it wrong, I'll be happy to play Mr. Stokowski's version on these same typewriter keys. But if he heard it right, it seems to me that there is something; both conductor and critic have overlooked. About the only way in the world you could run a band in with the tanks, trucks or even cavalry these days would be to make the deafening clatter of steel-on-steel a part of the composition. A sort of anvil chorus with the anvil clamer blasting forth on every other note. As for bands playing in battle—those days are gone forever. Why one rookie, standing on Mr. Stokowski's podium with a machine gun or semi-automatic rifle could make Wagner, with full brass fortissimo, sound like a backstage whisper.

Short Shots Raleigh, April 3.—The football fellows who represent that staunch, fundamental Baptist institution, Wake Forest, were entertained at a chicken barbecue here on a Tuesday night—and going the rounds about the "chicken" and the "Tuesday" angles is a story which bears all the earmarks of authenticity, although your correspondent probably couldn't prove it by legally competent testimony. It seems that sponsors of the affair first set it for a Friday night, but when due and formal invitation was extended to the piskinners through their coach, D. C. (Preacher) Walker, word came back that it couldn't be, on account of the fact that so many of the players couldn't eat meat on that particular day of the week. Next, the tale goes on, it was decided to have barbecued pig on Wednesday night, but in view of the earlier incident it was decided to consult the coach again. This time Walker was in considerable doubt and advised the sponsors to get in touch with the Catholic bishop before setting any night or selecting any particular kind of flesh, it being Lent, and all that. And so, 'tis said, the Denon Deacons were fed chicken on a Tuesday after due consultation with the Pope's representative.

Next week's Supreme court calendar is made up of cases from the Seventh District (Wake and Franklin counties), but on it is listed one capital case—State vs. Melvin—from Wayne—specially set at the end of the regular calendar.

Note on American Democracy in practice—in Wilmington, the city's form of government will be changed radically (from a commission to a city manager and council) on the affirmative vote of less than 1,800 citizens out of a population which approaches 35,000.

Actually the number of votes cast in favor of the city manager plan was less than the general law required to sign a petition to call an election on the subject. The polling was held as the result of a special local act put through the legislature at its recent session.

There were approximately 8,500 registered voters eligible to go to the polls (the general law would have required that 25 per cent, or more than 2,100 sign, sign a petition to call the election). Only slightly more than 3,000 voted. Yet it's a sure, settled fact that if any large part of the 35,000 don't like the new form of government they'll set up a terrific din and blame everybody in the world except themselves for what they get.

Whether Duke University hospital is an "eleemosynary" institution and, therefore, not liable for the negligence of its physicians and employees, is among the points raised in the case of Smith vs. Duke University which will be argued before the Supreme court next week. Smith claims his wife was permanently injured by use of radium (without his or her permission) in treatment given her at Duke Hospital, for which he alleges he paid. He was non-suited in Franklin Superior court and has appealed. Testifying as to the character of the hospital Smith said: "I did not hear anything about chart—I paid."

Road Project. Raleigh, April 3.—(AP)—The State Highway Department announced today that bids will be opened on April 17 on a project for gradings, concrete pavements and structures on four miles between the Vance county line and Norlina.

Buns and Biscuits Buoy Breakfasts

TUCKED in a warmer (a sight to warm the appetite!) so that butter will melt in their "middles," these biscuits and buns, made with Rumford Baking Powder, bid for breakfast, lunch or dinner fame. They're easy-to-make hot-breads as the recipes below prove:

Basic Baking Powder Biscuits
2 cups flour 1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Rum- 6 tablespoons ford Baking Powder 1/2 cup milk (about)
Sift flour, Rumford Baking Powder and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured surface and knead gently for 30 seconds. Roll out to 1/2 inch-3/4 inch thickness. Cut into rounds of desired size and place on greased

Pecan Buns
Cream 6 tablespoons brown sugar and 3 tablespoons butter until well blended. Spread in bottom of well-greased muffin pans and place 3-4 pecan halves on top of this mixture. Make baking powder biscuits as in basic recipe using 4 tablespoons shortening. Roll out to 1/2 inch thickness and brush with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup brown sugar. Roll as for jelly roll and cut in 1 inch slices and place cut sides down in prepared muffin pans. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 20-25 minutes. Makes 18 small buns.

Eispute On History Text Flares Higher Than Ever

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 3 — The blazing fifth-grade history textbook controversy seems certain to become itself historic as return of Governor J. Melville Broughton from Mexico piled fresh fuel on the flames and caused them to flare higher than ever.

No sooner had His Excellency got the Roosevelt visit to Fort Bragg off his immediate agenda than things began a-poppin' — a meeting of the state board of education was followed by newspaper announcement that the board had recalled the Jule Warren textbook for overhauling and correction and that the author had, to all practical intents and purposes, been kicked off the School Commission.

Next Mr. Warren, who up to that point had taken no part in the public conversation, issued not one, but two statements. In the first he insisted that his "resignation" from the commission had no connection with the textbook row. In the second he hotly denied having played politics to get his book adopted and averred somewhat heatedly that the book is going to be done, not at the instance and insistence of the board of education, but as the result of a letter he wrote Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin two weeks ago offering to correct any proved errors at no expense to the state.

On the heels of that, Commissioner of Revenue Allen J. Maxwell, presumably in the capacity of a sort of amicus curiae (fellow who gets into a row because he likes it and not because he has to) was said to be preparing a kind of "pot calls the kettle black" analysis which will purportedly show that the Newsome-Lefler rival of the Warren book is just as erroneous (probably a bit more so) as Jule's publication.

As this story was being written, the Maxwell statement was unavailable, but was said to be on its way to release for this morning's newspapers. Its general contents was stated to be a listing of the whole multitude of errors and inaccuracies the revenue expert found in the Newsome-Lefler opus. How this is supposed to prove the board of education right in adopting the Warren book has not been explained; though it may or may not show that the board was correct in rejecting the text offered by the two University of North Carolina professors.

Mr. Warren, in his second statement of yesterday, admitted, by way of confession and avoidance, that the first edition of every book has errors of one sort or another. He asserted, with avowed controversy, that no book ever sold or offered for sale in North Carolina has been subjected to the same kind of "fine-tooth combing" as his. He added, probably with the Maxwell statement in mind, "This same type of scrutiny of other first editions of books will likewise reveal errors of various types."

But when all the actions of the board of education had been considered, and all the statements of various and sundry parties had been analyzed, there were some things undeniably true (in addition to the obvious fact that principals are getting hotter and hotter under the collar.)

First: That the state is in the midst of the nastiest mess in many days — with a raging controversy on its hands which is bound to leave thousands of citizens with a very bad taste in their mouths no matter what action is taken.

Second: That both the Warren and the Newsome-Lefler textbooks are so thoroughly discredited in the eyes of thousands that neither will ever make a fully satisfactory textbook for far-seeing youngsters.

Third: That the method of selecting and purchasing North Carolina's school books is such as to give some grounds for suspecting that politics and favoritism play a part.

What the final outcome of it all will be remains for the future to tell. The state seems pretty well tied up to a contract with Mr. Warren, which it will have to go thru with, unless there should be found so many glaring and uncorrectable errors in the text as to make it clearly beyond the pale — and to admit that would be to impeach the intelligence, if not the integrity, of the board of education. Wherefore, that seems ruled out as a possibility.

And so the chances are that every effort will be made by the authorities to let things cool off. Action in moving to revise the text in the interests of accuracy and in figuratively throwing Mr. Warren to the lions by bouncing him off the school commission seems about all that can be done at the moment.

In the not too distant future, however, there exists a distinct possibility that the board of education will make the best of a bad situation by adopting another fifth-grade history textbook which may be used as an alternative to the Warren edition. In this case the word would quietly be spread to counties that this other book is preferred.

Should this happen, the most likely beneficiary appears to be the Ashe-Garber history (authored by Miss Willie Ashe and Mrs. Paul Garber and backed by the book concern of Alfred Williams and Co.)

There have been suggestions here and there that parties interested in this third book would shed absolutely no tears whatever if mud enough can be thrown at both Warren and Newsome-Lefler books to discredit them so thoroughly that neither is possible as a state-approved text. There are even rumors that these parties are doing no little to keep the fires burning — but that's another story.

The Greenville golfers chalked up another victory yesterday when they defeated the Kinston club swingers by the score of 38 to 6. The match was played on the local course which proved rather tough for the visiting aggregation, numbering 18 of Kinston's best players.

As a result of yesterday's matches Greenville and Wilson are perched on top of the standings, each having won both of its matches to date. Wilson yesterday defeated Farmville 51 to 3.

Two of the teams which won victories in the opening match last week were defeated yesterday. Goldboro was dropped 13-31 by Henderson and Rocky Mount was tripped, 34-15 by Tarboro. Harvey Ward of the Tarboro club set a record in his home course yesterday by turning in a brilliant 66.

Next week the Greenville club will go to Goldboro to participate in a three way meet with Wilson and Goldboro.

Tigers Stack Up As Third Place Club

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service
Lakeland, Fla. — The outlook was dark at the Detroit camp here last spring. It's much brighter now. But still the chances are that the Tigers won't repeat their 1940 surprise feat of copping the pennant.

Think back to last March: There were two big uncertain experiments — clumsy Rudy York was being tried at first base and Hank Greenberg was making his debut as a flycatcher. Dick Bartell, whom the Cubs were willing to let go because he was slowing up, was at shortstop.

THUMBNAILED PREVIEW

DETROIT TIGERS

Infield fair
Outfield good
Catching good
Pitching fair
Hitting fair
Finish probably 3rd or 4th

The veteran Charley Gehring was tentatively set at second. He had an all-in back and there was some doubt if he would play at all. Hitting hadn't looked so good the year before at third. Rowe wasn't figured on for much pitching and Tommy Bridges was frail and getting older. Buck Newsom had won 20 games for two straight years and many doubted his ability to do it again.

Well, the Tigers held together and won the American league championship. Now, although a year older, Gehring is in much better shape and says he'll be as good as last year. Bartell apparently is no slower and Eric McNair is around to spell him. Hickeys had a fine year at third. Rudy was a success at first and Greenberg became one of the loop's best flycatchers while continuing his hard hitting.

But Greenberg is eligible for the draft and may be called during the season. If he goes the Tigers will fall.

Everyone admits that Rowe, although he worked hard, was pretty lucky to win 16 games last year.

Bridges hardly will do better than his dozen. Hal Newhouser and John Gorschka, who won 9 and 7, respectively, should turn in even better records. Until shown otherwise, Bib Bobo evensome must be counted on for another 20. And there are several good looking rookies, with Hal White, who won 16 at Buffalo, probably the best.

The situation definitely is an improvement over last spring but Gehring and Bartell can't go on forever, the draft may get Greenberg. Rowe should slough off, the hot summer probably will worry Bridges and the chances are small against any of the rookies becoming overnight sensations.

The Tigers surprised me last year and they'll surprise me just as much this year if they finish better than third.

HURLER SIGNS WITH GREENIES

Lefty Long, Here In 1939, To Be With Locals Again

Howard Ellis Long, known to baseball fans here as "Lefty" when he was with the Greenville club at the end of the 1939 season, has signed his 1941 contract and will be counted on to turn in a number of victories during the coming season opening May 8.

Dave Moore, secretary of the local club, received a letter today from Manager Rube Wilson, who is in Western Carolina in search of new material, stating that Long had signed. The contract was included.

Long, a life-handed hurler, came with Greenville as a rookie near the end of the 1939 season when each club was permitted to take on three rookies. He made a fine showing while here, winning a number of games. Last year, however, he failed to come to terms with the club and stayed out of professional baseball.

The skipper wrote he would be back in Greenville the first of next week. With a number of new players having been signed and with

for improvements already completed and contemplated at the field; offered full cooperation to the Tar River Port Commission in developing waterway facilities; opposed removal of passenger trains operating through Greenville.

The chamber was found behind every constructive program to advertise the Greenville tobacco market and the city in general; urged steps by the city administration toward having highway markers at important intersections designating the direction and mileage to Greenville; had published and distributed pamphlets advertising Greenville and otherwise helped publicize the city.

The chamber also played an important part in securing numerous district and state conventions for the city, which brought thousands of visitors here.

Under the heading of miscellaneous the organization supported such moves as the NYA training center which is being established here, worked to see that Greenville was given credit for every citizen in the 1940 census; sponsored entertainment features, supported various moves for expansion of the college; urged flood control projects and rendered hundreds of other forms of service.

The 1941 program of activities, in general, includes a continuation of efforts to make Greenville a more balanced city with a constant year round income.

CALCUTT CASE HEADS DOCKET

State Supreme Court To Hear Arguments Next Week

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, April 3.—The case of Joe Calcutt, slot machine baron, heads next week's calendar in Supreme court—both on the micrographed copy thereof and in general public interest.

Their motion in arrest of judgment denied recently, attorneys for the convicted Fayetteville man will use orally the fourteen-points they set out in a 66 page brief; points which they contend are legally sufficient to make null and void the heavy sentence imposed on Calcutt by Judge R. Hunt Parker last December after one of Wake county's most spectacular court hearings. There wasn't any real trial, as Calcutt entered a guilty plea.

All 14 points are directed to what the brief sets out tersely as the "Question Involved: Is the Judgment Erroneous?" But after that concise beginning there is nothing else brief about the brief.

Something of the tremendous problem the whole slot machine question has posed for North Carolina is conveyed by a review of legislation on the subject. The brief gives full text of slot machine laws enacted in 1923, 1931, 1935 (two) and 1937—making an even half dozen within the last eight years and

Unusual Angles To Race Of Reynolds For Mayor

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 2.—Most mayoralty races in North Carolina are of purely local interest and importance but every once in so often there comes a case which has statewide implications and ramifications.

Such a case has just arisen in Winston-Salem with the announcement of R. J. Reynolds, Jr., and the formal withdrawal of the incumbent Mayor James R. Fain as a candidate to succeed himself.

In the first place, young Dick Reynolds has been so much in the state and national limelight through his connections with the national Democratic party organization that any political activity in which he engages becomes a matter of interest to many thousand Tar Heels.

And so the very fact that he is an avowed candidate for the head post in the city his father really put on the map would, in itself, be of more than mere local import.

But beyond that there are a number of unusual angles. The withdrawal of a candidate as potent as the sitting mayor would ordinarily be considered a real boon by any other candidate; but in the instant case there is good reason to believe that Mr. Reynolds does not relish one bit the Fain withdrawal in his favor.

This is for the very unusual reason that Reynolds would much rather beat Fain than have him on his side, according to information passed along to this reporter by those familiar enough with Winston-Salem conditions to know exactly what they are talking about.

Fain is the representative of the "big business" group in the Forsyth capital which has so persistently tried to destroy young Reynolds as a political and business figure, according to this source, and it was Dick's intention to beat this group to a political pulp.

By withdrawing promptly, the mayor confirmed the Reynolds' confidence of victory and at the same time robbed that victory of much of its sweetness. It was, the opinion of this reporter's sources, a well-known political maxim "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." So while Reynolds, according to all indications, will win election as Winston-Salem's mayor, he will not have the happy privilege of marching into office over the bodies of a thoroughly beaten group of rivals.

Most of the bitterness goes back to Reynolds' loyalty to President Roosevelt. When he took upon himself the task of heading a financial campaign for the Democratic national ticket last year, he roused all the anger and venom and spleen of the Roosevelt-hating big business group in his home city; and his success in money-raising and the tremendous Roosevelt sweep of the state and nation only served to make these forces hate him the more.

Many who are familiar with Winston-Salem's history — both political and economic — point out that the principal Reynolds planks in his campaign for mayor — extension of the city limits and slum clearance — are distinctly distasteful to the same business group which dislikes him on account of his Roosevelt leanings. This group it is said, have consistently fought anything which might conceivably disturb the status quo in Forsyth and for Reynolds to come along with these "socialistic" ideas is like waving a red flag at a bull — only in this case the "bull" realizes they are beaten before they start.

There are 32 cities in the United States with population between 250,000 and 1,000,000.

THIMBLE THEATRE (Staring Popeye)

Now Showing: The Goon Drops A Dud!

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

YESTERDAY: Eve Prentice has one problem in addition to the general problem of how she and the rest of Mrs. Marbury's party will get off the little island on which they have been marooned for a week, at the mercy of evil forces none of them can understand. Eve's problem is whether she shall marry Neil Bowron or not, and she just has decided that for her friend Julie's sake as much as her own, she will do it.

Chapter 20 Yielding

Eve turned, happily, to find that Neil had come to where she stood on the porch. "That looks like a good idea," he nodded to where two figures were sitting on the sand, looking at the ocean, Lordy Mac romping about awkwardly, and getting them covered with sand. "What say we take a little stroll—in the opposite direction?"

"All right," Eve agreed, her voice scarcely above a whisper. She went down the steps and turned toward the boathouse, feeling a queer shiver of anticipation within herself. But Neil, once they were walking seemed to find it the time for reminiscence. He recalled a summer long ago at Bradley's Beach, and another time when he and a group of his friends had gone to the Riviera and tried to break the bank at one of the famous gambling spots. By the time they had almost reached the pier, Eve was listening enthralled, to the story of a world she had never known. A world where the principal object was enjoyment, and where money—or rather, the lack of it—was not a constant subject of irritation. She looked at Neil's tall, strong figure, and wondered what he would think of the small, scrubby town where she was born, and where her mother had worked so hard to provide the pitiful little bit of income needed to send her, Eve, through school. "He probably gambled away in one evening more than my mother earned in a year," she thought. She was looking at him, as he talked, and was utterly unprepared when he turned, suddenly, and met her glance. Her own eyes were hastily averted, but Neil had one of her hands in both of his, and he held it tightly. "Eve!" His voice seemed roughened by his thoughts. "I—I've been talking like a fool—trying to make you see something of my background. But—but it doesn't really matter, does it? If—if I were someone else, and you were someone else I think we'd still feel the same. Eve—I know it isn't strictly according to etiquette, but—but will you marry me?"

As Eve started to draw her hand away, unprepared, in spite of his attentiveness, for the sudden proposal, he held it more tightly. "Please—don't be unkind. You've known—you must have known how I felt from the first minute I saw you. The stars and the moon and heaven itself mean nothing at all unless you're beside me. Lord—I'm getting poetic! But don't—please don't make me wait for an answer." "There—there isn't any moon..." Eve said desperately, starting into where the sun was burning a bright pathway across the sea. "Eve!"

The pleading and yet the dignity of his appeal, made Eve turn toward him quickly, her shoulder leaning against his. "Yes, Neil," she said quickly.

"Honestly"—she put him off as his arms reached for her—"I'm not sure I don't know whether any girl is, until she's been... been married. But if getting thrilled when you speak to me... and feeling sort of... sort of happy every time I see you, means I'm in love."

She had no chance to finish, for Neil's arms were around her, holding her so closely, while his mouth pressed so hard against hers that she could scarcely breathe. She had time to wonder, while he still kissed her, and kissed her again as if he would not let her go, if every girl thought, as she did of entirely extraneous matters; such as the warmth of the sand between her fingers, and the sound of the sea lapping along the shore, and even the odd call of the birds, so unmusical, yet reassuring. When Neil let her go, finally, she was looking at him with a puzzled expression.

"You can't back out on me now," he warned. "If you don't go through with it, I'll sue you for— for breach of promise." Eve laughed with him, and managed, after some time, to persuade him to return to the house. They agreed to say nothing until dinner time, and Neil promised that he would have Mrs. Jackson serve the best wine in the cellar to crown the announcement.

Announcement Party
Julie was more her old self when Eve went to change into her one dress for dinner. She deliberately ignored Eve's attempts to tell her about the afternoon, and launched, instead, into the story of how she and Mrs. Marbury had explored the secret passage, and their opinion of the people who would keep anyone—even slaves—in such a dark hole. Eve finally gave up, and was quiet, following her aunt meekly down to the dining room. Throughout the meal, which was chiefly spaghetti—and Eve thought she detected Mrs. Jackson's delight as she served the simple food—she was equally quiet. Only Brett Rodman, however, seemed to notice her silence.

"Are—are you feeling well?" he asked hesitantly. "Yes, thank you," Eve answered remotely. "You seem so quiet..." "Really?" Eve's question seemed to silence him, too. It was not until dinner was almost finished and Mrs. Jackson appeared with a bottle of sparkling burgundy that he joined in the conversation. "It's a celebration!" Brett said in surprise. "What's the occasion?" "Good for you!" Neil cheered standing up and raising his glass. "Mr. Rodman has guessed it. This is an occasion. Miss Evangeline Prentice and I are announcing our engagement!"

What Neil said after that was lost on Eve. She could see, as she automatically got to her feet and faced Neil across the candles, only the odd, stricken look in Brett's eyes and the unbelief in his expression. It seemed to her that everyone must see his reluctance to join in the volley of congratulations, the wisecracks that came from Gina and Ham, and the beaming satisfaction expressed by Julie and Mrs. Marbury. But as she managed a troubled smile, Eve noticed that everyone was looking only at Neil or at her.

And when she glanced again at Brett he was on his feet, smiling, his glass raised in a gay salute to her. Doubt
Being engaged made a difference. Eve discovered. The rest of the company took it for granted that she and Neil wanted to be alone and although they gathered in the living room after dinner, it was plain that they expected the engaged couple to take themselves off. Brett enlisted Jim Droissard's help and the two started up to the secret room. Gina and Ham went after them, but Lordy Mac could not be induced to mount the stairs. He whined softly as they approached the open bookcase.

"Why don't you take Lordy for a walk?" Julie suggested to Eve, her eyes twinkling. "Don't go far," put in Mrs. Marbury. "I'm still a little afraid of what might happen—although we've been very quiet her lately." "That's a perfectly swell idea," Neil chimed in. "Come on, Eve. There is a moon tonight."

Eve went with a strange reluctance, which she hoped she did not show. She was eager to see the room upstairs, and the idea of sitting on the sand with Neil, even in so romantic a setting, did not have the same appeal.

But she did appreciate the beauty of the night, when they finally found a fallen log and were seated on it, watching the restless movement of the sea against the shore. The moon laid a silver path to their very feet, and the salt smell of the ocean mingled with the pungent sweetness of the flowers.

Neil, as if he sensed her mood did not make love to her, but sat close, gazing with her at the water and talking now and then in a desultory fashion about nothing in particular. Eve, to her embarrass-quickly. But Neil laughed and drew her to his feet. "Of course you're sleepy. We've had a rather hectic day. Just one goodnight kiss—" he held out his arms and Eve was, for the moment, thrilled by their strength and tenderness. She kissed him, and his arms tightened. "I'm going to make you happier than any girl has ever been before," he promised, as if he were taking a vow. "And I'll never get over thanking the powers that be for letting me have you. As soon as we get off this place," he said more practically, "I'll send to New York for the ring—there's an old emerald in the safety deposit box that Mother's hung onto, for just such an occasion. Wait until I tell her that her future daughter-in-law has eyes to match the emerald!"

They ran with Lordy Mac back to the house, to find that everyone but Brett Rodman had already gone to bed. He was looking through the old book again, reading not the love story, but the account of how the original house had been laid out.

"What was in the secret room—Marguerite's room?" Eve asked. "Absolutely nothing," Brett said "but dust and cobwebs. They'd even taken away the furniture. It's a terribly small room— whoever does the house over might make it a though it seemed rather embarrassing in front of Brett. To Be Continued

The address of welcome was made by Mayor B. B. Sugg and a brief talk also was made by F. C. Harding, dean of the Pitt County Bar Association. Special music was provided during the evening by Mrs. Knott Proctor and Mrs. H. C. Haynes.

Band Is Selected For ECTC Program

The Ahsokie high school band will represent the school bands of this section on the program of High School Day at East Carolina Teachers College next Tuesday, April 8. It will furnish music for the morning assembly, at which there will be roll call of counties represented, with number of schools and number of individual visitors from each, a brief greeting by President Leon R. Meadows, and an outline of the day's activities.

The band is directed by T. J. Meeks, a Pitt County and a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College, whose home is in Bethel, played in the band and orchestra while in college, and is now teaching at Ahsokie and directing the high school band.

Each year one high school band has had a special place on the program for this occasion, Greenville, Wilson, Belhaven, Plymouth and Pasquotank county having been the featured bands in other years.

The college glee clubs will sing several numbers also.

Today—JANE WITHERS in "GIRL FROM AVENUE A"

Malomet waits in a Big Red Truck Winter Haven, Fla.—(AP)—"Hurry, there's going to be a fire at the Seaboard station in about 10 minutes," came the excited summons over the fire station telephone. The fire, on the baggage car of a southbound passenger train, arrived on schedule and the firemen went to work. The blaze was discovered some miles back and trainmen called ahead to announce the emergency. More than an hour was required to extinguish it.

Today's Short Story
Fish can drown. They must absorb oxygen from the water in order to live, and certain varieties, mackerel for example, must have a swift flow of water through mouth and gills to get oxygen in sufficient quantity. Consequently if fish are confined in a small body of still water where there isn't enough room to swim swiftly, they will suffocate.

He Who Gets Soaked
Bartow, Fla.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Wayma Robson was stumped, but only momentarily, when a man arrested in a moonshine case broke a gallon jug containing the evidence. Noting that part of the liquor slopped into the prisoner's shoe, Robson made him pull off a will-soused sock and wrung from it about an eighth of a pint of "evidence."

BREVITY IS NOT THE SOUL OF FIT

It's that extra inch or so of fabric, that extra hour or so of time, that keep a suit from looking like a "once over lightly."

With Hart Schaffner & Marx master craftsmen, brevity is taboo—whether in materials or in painstaking labor. Coats must have longer lines to meet this season's style requirements, and it's a foul if vests DON'T hit below the belt. So Hart Schaffner & Marx have designed and tailored the clothes they have made for use to fit these and other rigid style specifications for 1941.

We're sure you'll be satisfied with the fit of our Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes... for when you wear a Hart Schaffner and Marx suit, you're wearing

DOUBLE CHECKED FIT

Every Hart Schaffner and Marx suit is checked patiently, expertly, carefully for fit before it leaves the benches of Hart Schaffner & Marx tailors.
