NAZI ARMY SMASHES TO NEW VICTORIES

Ten Coast Guard Cutters Released To Britain By U. S.

ARE PREPARED FOR DELIVERY

Vessels To Be Transferred Under Terms Of Lease-Lend Bill; No Commercial Or Naval Craft Involved In Deal, Accorded To Announcement By White House Secretary

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—The release of 10 Coast Guard cutters to the British was announced today at the White House.

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, told reporters the Coast Guard vessels had not yet been delivered to the British, but were being prepared for the transfer under terms of the lease-lend bill.

He said he preferred not to disclose the names of the cutters, but said they were built from 1928 to 1932.

No commercial ships or naval craft are involved in the deal, Early said. Presumably he added, the cutters will be turned over to British crews on this side of the Atlantic, as was done in the case of 50 destroyers released to Britain in exchange for defense base sites.

The vessels will help replenish Britain's vital forces used for maintaining her trans-Atlantic supply lines, but whether additional armed craft will be transferred to England was not indicated. Britain has said that she is badly in need of ships to escort convoys.

The cutters are armed, but Early said he thought they had little more than small cannons mounted on them. He said he doubted that additional armament would be placed on the ships before the transfer.

Minister Praises Recreation Plans

By REV. W. A. RYAN

One of the finest pieces of local work recently undertaken is that being done by the Committee on Parks and Playgrounds.

The thoroughness which has marked every step taken by this committee since its appointment by the mayor and board of aldermen has been a matter of gratification to every person interested in seeing that our community has the necessary equipment and direction adequate to the meeting of the recreational needs of our people both old and young, and white and colored. After expert survey had been made minimum needs were indicated and areas allocated. The next step immediately before the committee and the community is that of providing the necessary equipment. Much of this can be made locally, but some will need to be purchased elsewhere.

The minimum amount needed, I am informed, is the sum of $200. In the future it will be possible to make advanced provision for this as a regular item of city expenditure. At present, this work must be done without the cost having been included in budgets now in operation. The members of the committee will have to ask for the support of the people of the community in the raising of funds for this necessary equipment. As a clergyman, I assume that the churches and the clergy will be most vitally interested in this matter—interested enough to make substantial contribution to its program.

The work of those directing parks and playground activities will have direct bearing on the moral, spiritual and social life of the community, hence a matter of primary interest to the clergy and the churches. I hope the religious forces of (Continued on page six)

Suez Canal Next?

Rome, April 9.—(AP)—The British-controlled Suez canal is the Axis goal after Yugoslavia and Greece, the officially-controlled newspaper Popolo Di Roma said today in a dispatch from Berlin.

(To reach the Suez canal, the Axis forces would have to drive through Turkey, which was reported in Ankara to be watching the Balkan war calmly and viewing the situation as "not dangerous yet.")

Popolo Di Roma's dispatch said that instead of a static front in the Balkans as in the World War, the Balkans constitute "a dynamic, offensive theatre intended to strike British power directly in one of its vital centers." The Italian high command announced today.

U.S. EMBASSY IN ROME GUARDED BY TROOPS

The striped arrows on this map indicate Germany's latest drives along the Balkan battlefield. Withdrawal of Yugoslav armies in southern Serbia (1) menaced the Greco-British army flank in the Struma valley and opened a path for the Germans toward the Vardar river. Another Nazi drive cut through Thrace (2) to the Aegean sea. A Greek thrust at Lake Ohrid (3) was repulsed, the Italians claimed. Scutari was taken by the Yugoslavs.

Prospects Seem Brighter For Ending Ford Strike

TO OFFER AID ON BLUE MOLD

Demonstrations to be Conducted Thru-out Pitt

Many farmers are planning to treat their plant beds for blue mold. Inasmuch as blue mold has already shown up in the county, R. R. Bennett and James F. Webb of the county agent's office, are endeavoring to hold demonstration meetings in all townships to show how to mix the materials and discuss other questions that have come up relative to blue mold.

The schedule of demonstrations follows:

Ayden—At the Jackson farm belonging to J. R. Harvey and operated by Jess Smith, on Thursday morning, April 10, at 10 o'clock.

Beaver Dam—At Will Young farm, Friday morning, April 11, 10 o'clock.

Belvoir—Ben Pollard farm, belonging to J. H. Blount, Friday afternoon, April 11, at 4 o'clock.

Bethel—At F. C. Martin's farm, Friday afternoon, April 11, 2 o'clock.

Carolina—A. L. Woolard farm, Friday morning, April 11, 9 o'clock.

Chicod—at the farm of Jethro and Elbert Mills, 5 miles from Greenville, on the Washington highway, Friday afternoon, April 11, at 2 o'clock.

Falkland—R. R. Stokes' bed on the farm of R. B. Tyer, Friday afternoon, April 11, at 4 o'clock.

Farmville—Davis farm, located at Marlboro, belonging to Alex Allen, Friday morning, April 11, 11 o'clock.

Fontaine—Earl Trevathan's farm, Friday morning, April 11, 9 o'clock.

Negotiations Also Continue In Soft Coal Strike

By The Associated Press

Prospects of settling a strike at the Ford Motor Company's River Rouge plant were declared today to be brighter than on yesterday following long night negotiations. Official word to that effect was given out early today after recessing of a conference attended by federal and state mediators, company officials, and leaders of the CIO-United Automobile Workers who called the strike a week ago. Another conference was set for later today.

In like manner, another meeting of soft coal operators and CIO-United Mine Workers representatives was called at New York in an effort to break a deadlock over a new working contract. Since the old contract expired March 31 approximately 400,000 miners have been idle.

Another top labor development was the action of Secretary of Labor Perkins in certifying to the National Mediation Board a two-day-old CIO strike at the Phelps-Dodge copper products corporation, Elizabeth, N. J.

Ford plants over the nation have $155,000,000 in defense contracts and the shut-down of the River Rouge plant has affected directly and indirectly an estimated 300,000 workers. Phelps-Dodge holds $30,000,000 in national defense contracts and employs 1,800 persons.

Wages, hours and a union shop were at issue in the strike at Elizabeth, while the CIO members at the Ford plant demanded a contractual relationship between company and union, abolition of what they called a "company spy organization" and wage increases for some workers.

E. T. Seago Dies At Brother's Home

E. T. Seago, 69, was found dead in bed at the home of his brother P. Z. Seago of 113 Summit street, at 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Seago had been in bad health for the past several months and it was not considered unusual for him to remain in bed until late in the morning.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, pending the arrival of members of the family. Mr. Seago was born and reared in Anson county. After going to Charlotte while a young man, he stayed there about 15 years and then went to Washington. He came to Greenville in December, 1938, and since has made his home with his brother here.

Mr. Seago is survived by one daughter, Mrs. O. S. Hillman of Columbia, S. C., and one son, J. T. Seago of the U. S. Navy. Several brothers and sisters also survive.

WPA APPROVES AIRPORT WORK

$90,000 Project To Get Under Way In Near Future

Final approval of a $90,000 improvement project for the city-county airport was received today by Mayor B. E. Sugg in a telegram from C. C. McGinnis, State WPA administrator, who wired that "all clearances received Greenville airport. Work may now proceed."

Mayor Sugg said that work probably would actually get under way on the project on April 15 with a large number of WPA workers on the scene.

The project provides for the grading of the field and approval of the project came only after the war department had found that the local site was suitable for expansion to meet army requirements if the army should decide to make use of the airport.

Final approval of the project has been held up for some time while the War Department officials studied the expansion possibilities of the project.

With a hangar already erected and Civil Pilots Training courses being conducted at the airport, the local field will be among the most modern in Eastern Carolina when the $90,000 project is completed.

T. A. Smoot Named County Club Head

T. A. Smoot was named president and W. H. White vice president for the current year at meeting of the members of the Greenville Country Club at the regular annual meeting of the board last night.

New members, named to serve three years each on the board of governors are J. J. Edwards, F. M. Park and J. S. Ficklen. W. Z. Morton was named to serve for two years, filling out the unexpired term of Roy M. Campbell, who has moved to Richmond.

Two golf trophies were presented at the meeting, the regular champion award went to Reynolds May and the president's trophy was presented to J. L. Kilgo, winner of the handicap match. The trophies were presented by Judge Albion Dunn.

The board passed a resolution granting privileges of the club to all persons serving with any of the armed services of the United States during the current emergency.

IL DUCE MAY RECALL ENVOY

Rising Fascist Irritation Over U.S. Seizure Of Vessels May Lead To Recall Of Italian Ambassador To Washington

Rome, April 9.—(AP)—Italian troops continued to stand guard over the United States embassy today as rumors circulated that Premier Mussolini might recall his ambassador to Washington because of the seizure of Italian ships in American ports.

Amid indications of rising Fascist irritation, an authoritative source declared that the Italian government had withdrawn Admiral Alberto Lais, naval attache at the embassy in Washington, under protest that the United States action was unfriendly and illegal.

The recall of the Italian ambassador, it was pointed out in diplomatic circles, would put American relations with Italy on the same basis as U. S. relations with Germany.

Both Washington and Berlin long have been without ambassadors representing their respective governments.

The display of troops with an attempt at student demonstrations has been the prelude before to strained diplomatic relations as during the Russian-Finnish war when Moscow and Rome recalled their ambassadors.

March Fire Loss Stated At $7,328.00

Greenville had five fires during the month of March, causing damage totaling $7,328.27, according to the monthly report just issued by Chief George Gardner.

Of the total damage caused by the blazes, $6,828.27 of the loss was covered by insurance, only $500 worth of property having been unprotected. Valuation of the property endangered by the fires was estimated at $35,200, on which a total of $17,699.50 was covered by insurance.

For the first three months of this year fire damage was estimated at $38,462, of which $37,227 valuation was covered by insurance. Property threatened by 1941 fires was estimated at $177,200, on which $131,199.50 worth was covered by insurance.

The most destructive fire of March was at the Miller-Jones shoe store, damage of which was estimated at $4,293.27.

Hemorrhage Fatal To Sen. Sheppard

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—Sen. Marjorie Sheppard of Texas, dean of Congress in point of service and sponsor of the national prohibition amendment, died today. He would have been 66 years old next month.

The death of Senator Sheppard makes possible the elevation of Sen. Robert R. Reynolds (D-NC) to the chairmanship of the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

By the seniority rule, Reynolds outranks the next Democratic member, Senator Thomas of Utah, by three months.

Sen. Sheppard died from a hemorrhage attack.

Another Dunkerque

London, April 9.—(AP)—The Rome and Berlin radios, heard today in London, quoted what they called a report from Sofia, Bulgaria, that sailings of British transport ships in Piraeus, port of Athens, had been cancelled.

AXIS SUCCESS ACKNOWLEDG'D

Churchill Says No Britons Engaged In Conflict

London, April 9.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told Britons of grave extent of German's smashing advance through Greece today and warned Soviet Russia the Nazi drive was heading her way.

In a war report to the House of Commons, Churchill announced the Nazi troops had entered Salonika at 4 a. m.

"Up to the present the British and Imperial troops have not been engaged" in the fighting in Greece, he said.

He refused to give any indication of what would be done with the troops in the "widespread battle."

The Prime Minister declared there were increasing signs that Germany would pounce on the wheat lands of Russia's Ukraine. He also announced the British capture of the Red sea port of Massawa, Eritrea, and the virtual completion of the conquest of Italian East Africa.

He appealed anew for use of Irish ports and airfields to guard Britain's northwest approaches, and told France she would be strictly blockaded and that British guns would resist any attempt on the part of the Vichy government to transfer the French navy from Africa to Metropolitan France where Hitler could get it.

Native Of Greenville Dies In Mobile, Ala.

Word has been received here of the death Sunday of W. L. Rouse, 79, retired government engineer of Mobile, Ala., who was buried yesterday.

Mr. Rouse, a native of Greenville, the son of the late Richard and Martha Ann Rouse, was the only brother of Mrs. W. J. Cowell of this city. Since his retirement he has visited here on several occasions and will be remembered by a number of the older residents of the city.

The church at Stokes is fortunate in having this outstanding woman to speak for this Easter service, and invites all its friends to come and share this fellowship.

GERMAN CRAFT RAID ENGLAND DURING NIGHT

Hundreds Of Planes Attack Southern Coast Points

SHIPPING ALSO SUFFERS RAIDS

Two Direct Bomb Hits On British Destroyer Claimed By Nazis; Kiel Attack By RAF

Berlin, April 9.—(AP)—Several hundred Nazi planes raided England last night, heavily bombing Portsmouth and Coventry and other objectives on the south and southeast coast, the Germans reported today. (A Berlin broadcast by DNB said 700 planes took part in the raids).

The night raiders were said to have inflicted further losses on British shipping, sinking one 4,000-ton vessel and damaging another of 20,000 tons.

Two direct bomb hits were scored on a British destroyer near Grimsby and two merchantships, one of 4,000 and one of 3,000 tons were damaged, the returning pilots declared.

The Royal Air Force was reported to have lost four planes in an overnight raid on the German naval base of Kiel, making a total of nine English aircraft said to have been downed in air fights and by ground batteries.

Strong British air units were said to have killed and injured a number of women and children in attacks on north German coastal towns, during which bombs fell in residential districts.

Funeral Thursday For W. B. Harper

Funeral services for W. B. Harper who died suddenly at his home in Black Jack, will be held from the Black Jack Free Will Baptist church Thursday afternoon at 3:30, with Rev. J. C. Puppet Show Now Appearing In Pitt

The Puppet show sponsored by the State Division of Oral Hygiene, Dr. E. A. Branch, Director, and by the Pitt County Health Department is now appearing in the Pitt County Schools.

The show is cleverly conducted by John Morgan and Miss Catherine Mallory. The show began in the county Monday and will continue through Friday. Today it is showing at Falkland, Belvoir, and Bell-arthur schools.

The Puppet show is Oral Hygiene Education through entertainment, and according to Dr. Ennett, the Health officer, it is a most effective way of teaching the children good dental care.

This program supplements the oral hygiene work now being carried on in the county schools by Dr. A. D. Underwood. It is understood that the program has the warm endorsement of Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, secretary and dental member of the Pitt County Board of Health and of all the other dentists of Pitt County.

Greek Wing Surrenders To Invaders

With 300,000 Greek Soldiers Having Surrendered En Masse, And With Yugoslav Forces Cut Off From Allies, Many Observers Express Belief Balkan War May be Almost Over

Bern, Switzerland, April 9.—(AP)—Britain and her Greek and Yugoslav allies appeared tonight to have lost in four days their major defenses in the Balkans.

Solonika, great natural fortress of the Aegean throughout history, fell to the Nazis today.

Greece's eastern army, estimated to number 300,000 before hostilities began, surrendered en masse. The German blitzkrieg army, fighting westward over mountain terrain, were within 15 miles of a junction with the Italian forces in Albania.

To some observers these facts signified that the Balkan war might be almost over, although it still was not known how well Britain and Greece have prepared other positions to which they were retreating tonight.

It was almost certain, however, that Yugoslavia from now on is fighting on her own unless she can break through the German lines strung out across southern Serbia dividing her from the British and Greeks.

To reach their goals in western Yugoslavia, the German motorized columns sped over roads little better than goat trails. The Italians in the meantime had pressed eastward into Yugoslavia to take the town of Grad.

Berlin, April 9.—(AP)—The powerful Nazi army has smashed its way clear down the Vardar river valley, captured Salonika and forced the surrender of the whole eastern wing of the Greek army before the German lines struck out across southern Serbia dividing her from the British and Greeks.

Other German forces have taken Skopje and Veles, Yugoslavia, and are advancing rapidly toward the Albania border and junction with Italian forces after taking two other small towns, the high command announced today.

Further north in Yugoslavia, a communique said, German armored troops captured the vital railroad city of Nis, while others took Marlboro and crossed the Drava river.

In northeastern Greece, the communique said, panzer divisions driving south from Bulgaria, captured the town of Xanthi, 30 miles northwest of the port of Kavala, and advanced from there to the shores of the Aegean sea.

Many of the Greek soldiers who surrendered had fought desperately in the Struma river valley trying to stem the crushing German advance which broke through the extensive (Continued on page six)

AMERICA, OUR HOMELAND
America! the land whose flag has never been lowered.
We feel so proud of Thee
The Land of the Brave
The Home of the Free.
But for how long—that secret of mankind may yet be stored.
America! we trust that through our noble leaders
Our deepest trust in God,
Our hope of life free from strife
We may yet protect thy sod.
America! our homeland
May our noble youth implore
Their hearts and minds,
Their walk in life
To more than wounds so sore.
America! may she ever a refuge be
To those in life
Who amid the strife
May yet look up to Thee.

Art Exhibition in Winterville.
There will be a display of paramount interest at the Winterville high school this week, April 9-11, an art exhibit. More than 150 pictures will be shown, pictures that you will want to see and know something about. You wish to keep up with your children in school. They are learning to recognize these pictures and to know something of the artist who painted them. In addition to your enjoyment in this collection you will assist us in raising a fund for the purchase of pictures for our schools, and they are badly needed.
The Woman's Club of Winterville is putting on this Art Festival in cooperation with the faculty and students of the Winterville school. Besides the 150 beautiful prints, there are exhibits in oil and water-color.
Don't forget to hear the North Carolina Symphonic Choir. The choir will sing in the Winterville school auditorium tonight. Please come and help these deserving boys and girls carry on the work they have begun in the field of music.

CHICOD NEWS

Mrs. N. H. Beddard has as her guest Mrs. Bettie Pate of near New Bern.

The Christian Service ladies of Salem Church met with Mrs. Fred Edwards Friday afternoon at three o'clock. The home was beautiful with Easter jonquils in profusion. Mrs. S. T. Porter, our leader, read the devotional. Songs in keeping with the Easter season were rendered by the group. Mrs. Roy Edwards, Mrs. Brooks Tucker and Miss Rosa Lee Briley read appropriate selections. Rev. Crow was our guest. Mrs. Edwards, assisted by Lucille and Edith Tull, served delicious gelatin, cakes and Easter eggs. We received from our gift exchange $3.75.

Several from our community have been attending services in Grimesland. The Rev. Eubank of Aurora is conducting the services, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Crow.

Miss Dorothy Edwards entertained the Salem League recently and invited guests numbering forty-two. Games were enjoyed by all present. Delicious punch, cakes, peanuts and candy were served by the hostess.

Service League Meets.
Mrs. Walter Harrington presided over the Service League's meeting in the Sheppard Memorial Library on Monday at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. D. M. Clark spoke on the new recreational program for Greenville. She said, "I bring this to you because I knew the League would be one organization in Greenville to be interested in this program." The Service League made a contribution of $10 to the playground fund.

The League, being one of the sponsoring group of the Girl Scouts, was asked to help in the Scouts forthcoming events, as the cookie sale in May and the day camp which is to be held for two weeks in early June. This aid will be purely of a supervising nature in the cookie sale, and chaperoning in the camp.

The Service League aided in the Seal sale for crippled children being held this week.

Mrs. Ralph Garrett, chairman of the Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse Hospital Bed Fund, reported that three patients occupied the League's bed in the local hospital during March.
The excellent service that the League renders the underprivileged in providing hospitalization requires real financial aid. To make this bed possible, the League gives an annual dance. This year the dance will be held on May 1 in the Armory, from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m. If you do not dance, come and enjoy the music of Deane Hudson and the Lance orchestra. This orchestra played here most successfully last year.
Your support will aid in the hospitalization of many an unfortunate.

High School Day

Yesterday the seniors of this high school, along with three thousand other high school seniors, had a very enjoyable time at the college.

In the morning up until 11:45 the seniors looked over the campus, and socialized with students from other schools.

Then everybody went to the program held in the Wright Memorial auditorium.

There was a very interesting talk on the necessity of going to college by Dr. Meadows, president of the college; also several beautiful selections were rendered by the college girls' choir and the mixed choir.

After the program everybody had a barbecue dinner—which I'm sure was enjoyed very, very much.

After lunch a variety of entertainment was furnished.

There was a dance in the Wright Memorial auditorium, a picture show in the Austin auditorium, a baseball game, and a tennis match.

A Suggestion To Farmers

Winterville, N. C.
Owing to the extreme scarcity of labor we would advise all farmers to arrange their tobacco rows so every eighth row will be five feet wide, and by so doing you can use a tobacco truck and thus house your tobacco with much less labor and cost. There were some trucks used in certain sections last season for housing tobacco, and we find in every section where the truck was used there will be a great demand for them this season.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—George Wojcinski is a Pole.

He came out of the traffic of West Street, kicking the slush from his feet and stomping his feet just a little on the pavement in front of the freight office of the 42nd Street ferry station.

He hadn't been there a minute before hundreds of gray, softly-talking pigeons began dropping out of the sky, crowding him on the sidewalk, pecking at his feet, trying to light on his shoulder.

George Wojcinski gave a deep laugh and began tossing corn about on the sidewalk and onto the street. His pockets were bulging with grain. He fills them every day and comes looking for the pigeons, and they wait for him. When you feed a thing every day, it gets to know you pretty well.

"You do this every day?" I asked. "Sure, I eat every day, don't I?" "I didn't have any answer for that. These are my babies," he said. "Been doing this for years—maybe ten years. I got lots of corn. . . This isn't the only place. . . I got five feeding stations."

As he talked he continued to sprinkle the yellow grain, but you couldn't see it on the ground. Pigeons eat fast. At least New York waterfront pigeons do. One moment it is there and the next it has vanished down a hundred gullets.

"I go over to 11th Avenue from here," volunteered George Wojcinski. "I cross the street here and go over to 11th Avenue.

I asked him if he didn't get the same crowd, whether or not these same birds wouldn't follow him and sup from the second table. "Oh, no," he replied earnestly. "I can recognize them. I wouldn't stand for it."

If he was trying to pull my leg he made a good job of it. He seemed perfectly sincere. To him these feathered fat fellows were personalities. He could pick an old friend out of the flock at a glance.

"That's old Buff," suddenly said George. "Hello, Buff," he called. He pointed to a mouse-colored bird that waddled out from under a big freight truck. "Me and old Buff's been friends for years. He went away last month and I thought something had him. He was gone five days."

George Wojcinski, who is 51 and who came out of the ancient winding streets of Krakow 23 years ago says his hobby costs him about 25 cents a day.

"You go to movies I bet," said George. "I don't, I fed pigeons."

He threw old Buff a glance and moved on down the street. He didn't say anything more. His pockets still bulged with the yellow manna. Old Buff stared back at George and the loo he got in return was the equivalent of "Nix, pal. . . You've had yours. Don't let me catch you horning in on the little party I'm about to throw your friends in 11th Avenue."

Then he struck out across West Street, and old Buff and I just stood there and watched him go.

The Baroness de Kuffner's hobby is flirting—and she says the art can be learned.

"Never say 'yes' and never say 'no'—that's the most important thing," she says. "Flirting, for women, is pleasure. It's not quite the same with a man. Once he knows what the answer will be, he relaxes—doesn't keep his mind on his work. N'est-ce pas?"

The Polish-born baroness is a painter, a role in which she is known as Tamara Lempicka. Her pictures, chiefly heads in eye-smashing colors set in sunken silver frames, will appear in a one-man show in New York.

As she sat on a blue divan in her New York hotel drawing room, the baroness herself looked like something to paint. Tall. Slim. Sleek. Curved in the right places. Sun-tanned skin and tawny blonde hair curling to her shoulders. White satin housecoat with fluffy white marabou sleeves.

She ordered morning coffee and came back to the subject of flirting. The talk went like this:

"You must give the man the feeling he's the only one. Make him feel important. If he is a sportsman, pretend you like sports. If he is a business man, be interested in stocks and bonds. Don't talk much yourself. Ask questions. Tell you learn what he likes. Then let him do the talking."

"And isn't the way you look important?"

"Mais oui, c'est tres important. You mustn't smile too much or flutter the eyelashes. These things are too obvious. You have to put men at ease and be at ease yourself. Look sincere—straight in their eyes sometimes—and don't flutter. Remember the voice. Low. Smooth. Never high or shrill."

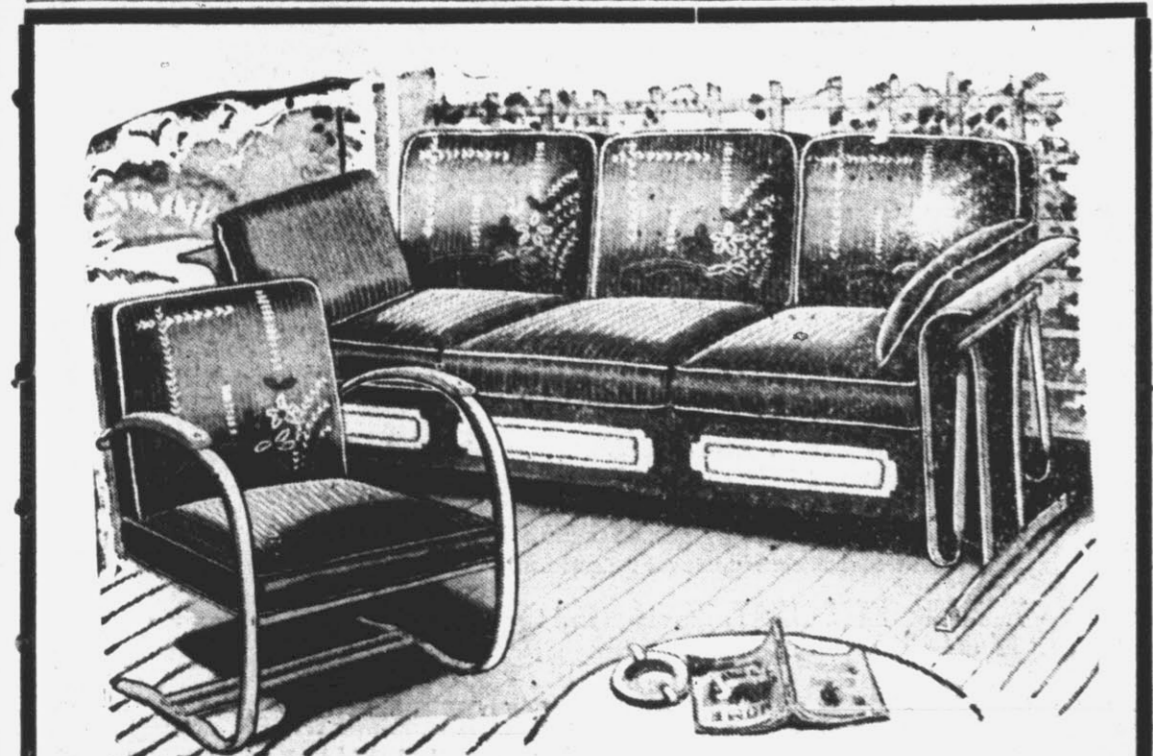

"Do you think clothes make much difference?"

"But yes. You must always make the most of yourself. You must choose the right frock for the right man—not something too fussy or too much sports for his taste. And you should wear a little perfume."

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

Pink forget-me-nots are just one of the strange and rare flowers blooming on newest spring bonnets. Used here on the angel wing halot hat worn by the girl at the top. Back of the hat is of black toyo. Lower left, nasturtium toque posed on a natural leg-horn calot, bound in nasturtium-red velvet. Right, coral moss roses bedded in gold machine. All designed by Florence Reichman.

Not too heavy. Not too much make-up.

"And you shouldn't always look the same. Me—I love change. So I had my hair dyed soft rose. My husband didn't even notice it. But he said, 'What's different about your face? Is it the powder?' I said, 'Oui, cheri, it's the powder.' He loved it! I just never told him it was dyed at all."

Just then the blue-eyed, gray-haired baron came into the room and bent to kiss her hand.

"Where did their romance begin?"

"When I saw one of her pictures in a Paris exhibition and bought it for my collection," said the baron. "I wrote her after that . . . and well, now we've been married seven years."

"But I still flirt with him," the baroness said when he had gone. "A little flirting does a lot to keep the home fires burning. And, besides, he's still my favorite flirt."

The baroness balances her hobby with her serious interest in art. She has been immersed in that since her grandmother took her on an Italian museum tour when she was a little girl. She "worked like a slave" in Paris for years, she says painting such celebrities as King Alfonso of Spain and Gabriel d'Annunzio.

She says her art has given her a few tips for her hobby.

"Flirting is like a sketch," she told me. "It's light. You have a white canvas before you on which you start your sketch. Up. Down. Balance. Color. Until it begins to take shape. If you fill it in, until

N. C. Power Line Mileage Nearly Half Road System

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, April 9 — Ten years ago there were practically no rural power lines along North Carolina's highways. Today there is almost one mile of electric wire for every mile in the Tar Heel road system.

Comparing the two as of the last date on which figures for all counties were available (July 1, 1940) the rural electric mileage was 21,195.39 or 37 per cent of the 57,811.8 miles in the highway system, including all state and county roads, from primitive to the last thing in hard surfacing.

No accurate figures for power mileage as of today is available, but J. M. Grainger, engineer for the State Rural Electrification Authority, reported more than 22,000 actually built by January 1, 1941, and in the three months since then there has been a big boom in power line construction. Assuming the 2,400 (in round figures) miles under construction on January 1 to be all built by now, and the 2,500 then authorized to be at least under way, it is certain that by May 1 the rural power system will include more than 27,000 miles.

Meanwhile the Federal Rural Electrification Administration is doing its best to aid all cooperatives in extending their lines and actively promoting the organization of others. In view of this activity, it seems that by July 1 of this year it becomes a picture, it's no longer a flirt. But you don't have to fill it in. I kept one flirt for ten years."

the electric mileage will have risen to at least 50 per cent of the highway.

The Tar Heel road system, incidentally, grew almost 4,000 miles in the decade between 1930 and 1940. The figures for 1930 showing 45,091.9 in the county systems and 8,520 in the state setup as compared with 47,285.1 and 10,326, respectively on July 1, 1940.

No county had, last July, as many miles of electric lines as of roads; but two Davie, with 269.11 miles of wire and 356.7 of highways; and Davidson, with 706.87 miles of wire and 937.9 of roads, reached the three-fourths mark.

From these highs the counties ranged downward (rated on ratio of electric lines to roads) to Tyrrell, which had less than one per cent, with 1.56 miles of wire and 170.3 or highways.

Seven counties showed less than 10 per cent, but in four of them the situation has already been radically changed by actual construction or authorization of electric lines. In Swain, Tyrrell and Graham the state REA authorities frankly admit they have problems for which no solution currently appears.

In Madison, Pamlico, Cherokee and Avery (the other low ranking units) lines have either been built since July 1, 1940 or plans for construction are near consummation.

Rather oddly, thirty seven counties show percentages equalling or exceeding the state ratio of 37 per cent, and the thirty-seventh county shows almost exactly 37 per cent electrification on a road-mileage basis.

In total miles of country lines Guilford leads with 797.19. Davidson, runner up to Davie on the percentage ranking, likewise stands second in actual mileage with 706.87. Wake county has the most miles of road (1,309.8) with Robeson (biggest in area in North Carolina) second with 1,265.5.

Pitt county has 930.5 miles of road and 496.34 miles of rural power lines.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WEDNESDAY—DAY OF SILENCE
This is Wednesday, the fourth day of Holy Week, and the Scriptures record no event in our Lord's life for that day. He evidently remained at Bethany in prayer and quiet meditation preparing Himself for the two following days on which He would suffer so acutely and be crucified.

Silence has its place in life as much as anything else. We need frequently to hearken to the admonition, "Be still and know that I am God." Frequently the reason why we fail to receive messages from God is because we do not stop to listen. We offer up our petitions, and then rise from our knees hurriedly and go about our work. There is a certain necessary leisure in the devotional life which, while it does not involve the expenditure of any long period of time, does involve a complete detachment for a few minutes at least every day in order that God's purposes may be revealed to our souls.

There was probably no day in that important week preceding His crucifixion which contributed more to the strengthening of our Lord's heart than did Wednesday, the Day of Silence. Among His friends at Bethany, in the quiet of a hospitable home, He gained strength to endure the most fearful ordeal that anyone has ever had to face. In silence He confronted His own soul and heard the voice of God speaking to His deepest needs.

SHALL STRIKES IMPERIL NATION?

(Mansfield (Ohio) News-Journal)
Borrowing from the thought of Lincoln, as expressed at Gettysburg more than three quarters of a century ago, it may now be said: Eight score and five years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Then it was the crisis of a great civil war—now it is the crisis of totalitarian threat from without, and labor strife within our own borders, that is "testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure."

In these crucial days when the fate of our nation hangs in the balance, when millions of people in Europe have already been deprived of liberty of thought and action, and when the surviving remnants of democracy are fighting desperately for self preservation, a small minority in the United States is permitted to wreak havoc with the national program of industrial production of war materials, vital to defense and aid to Britain.

If Hitler were, at the moment, directing the affairs of the United States in his own interests, he could ask no greater show of sympathy and co-operation than is now being evidenced by the numerous strikes in essential defense industries, the violence associated with the Bethlehem Steel and the International Harvester strikes, the internal dissension in the ranks of organized labor and the revelations of racketeering methods used in collecting exorbitant initiation fees and dues in connection with construction work on government projects.

Fable of the Country Mouse and the City Mouse with systems in adjacent areas. "In nine important war material areas, the demand was 53 per cent more (in December) than estimated three months before."

Shortage Zones
Listed as potential shortage areas where greatest plans must be made for unexpected power loads: Upstate New York, Georgia-Alabama-Pittsburgh, Virginia, Arkansas-Louisiana, and northern California-Oregon-Nevada.

This kind of talk about the nationwide power situation, private and public, sent me around to see Secretary Harold L. Ickes to find out how this Department of Interior power projects were standing the strain—and I got another jolt. In 1930, when the power plans for Boulder Dam were being made the boys looked over the situation and estimated that by 1960 they would need a capacity of 750,000 to 900,000 kilowatts. The installed capacity of Boulder Dam today is 704,800 kilowatts and three more generators are being added to bring capacity immediately to 947,500 kilowatts—and according to the secretary, every watt is needed. In words of one syllable, Boulder Dam is operating 40 years ahead of schedule—a schedule laid down just ten years ago by some of the nation's ace power authorities.

The Bureau of Reclamation's 25 power plants are increasing their generating capacity of about 872,000 k. w. to 1,042,000 and shooting the program to development of their program of 40 plants with a capacity of more than 4,000,000 k. w.

Five-Fold Increase
At Bonneville Dam, Interior is already planning to increase the initial capacity five-fold. At Grand Coulee, where first of the three initial "largest generators in the world" started putting out pay loads the other day, the initial program has been doubled. At Parker Dam on the Colorado river, the first generators will be installed by the end of this year, nine years ahead of original plans. And at Shasta Dam in northern California, they are racing to complete the project a year ahead of schedule just to get electricity into the highlines as soon as possible.

With the gleam that comes in the Ickes eyes when he scores, a point the secretary said: "The so-called 'white elephants' certain shortsighted spokesmen used to find under every dam can barely keep pace with the needs of the moment."

If the Federal Power Commission report has it right, it looks to me as if some of the government guessers were a little myopic too—especially those who missed 40 years on Boulder Dam.

Reorganization of the Highway Commission is holding up action on a road to the summit of Mount Mitchell so long that it now seems likely that nothing can be done in time to help this summer tourist season.

The needed surveys have been made, the Conservation department has been given authority to condemn lands it cannot acquire by private negotiation, and all that is needed is the go-ahead signal from the Highway Commission.

But there isn't any real Highway Commission head—or a commission for that matter—right now, and will not be until Gov. Broughton has made his appointments. That will not be until after April 15, he has said.

Unless work on the Mount Mitchell road is begun before long, there will be no chance at all to complete it this season.

came to town this week to bring his son back to State College after a week-end at his Statesville home. Mr. Leonard is far from discouraged or down on the world as the result of his abortive efforts to wean Tar heels away from FDR to Willie—his greeting is "I'm alive, and glad of it"—but he admits he has learned one lesson thoroughly: "This thing of trying to support the Republican national ticket and the Democratic state ticket at the same time just will not work," he said very emphatically.

Those who went to Fort Bragg on Monday for the various Army Day activities came back unanimously agreed that there was only one thing wrong with the day's doings. Nobody had enough eyes to see everything that went on.

In order to permit anglers to take advantage of the Easter holidays, two changes in the usual fishing season are being made by authority of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Bass fishing, now in its closed season until May 10 (with the exception of Currituck and Lake Mattamuskeet) will be allowed on April 13 and 14.

Likewise the trout season, scheduled to open on April 15 is to be advanced two days, so as to open April 13. It will close, as usual, on August 31.

Trout dates, however, refer only to waters under state control. Federal authorities make the dates for troutling in streams of the Great Smoky mountains national park and in the national forests.

To Address Doctors

Dr. Francis C. Wood

Dr. Francis C. Wood of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, who will discuss "Diagnosis and Treatment of Coronary Diseases" at the fifth of a series of six weekly dinner sessions composing a graduate course in medicine at the Hotel Cherry in Wilson Wednesday evening, April 9, at 7 o'clock.

The sessions, which are being sponsored by the University Extension Division and the University Medical School, are being held for the purpose of giving doctors in Wake and neighboring counties an opportunity to hear well known authorities discuss latest developments in their fields.

A similar course is being given in Raleigh. Dr. Wood received his A. B. degree from Princeton University and entered the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in 1922 where he interned for two years following graduation.

In 1928 he became a Fellow of the Robinette Foundation which is the cardiovascular division of the University of Pennsylvania hospital, and an assistant instructor in medicine.

Since then he has worked continuously in the Robinette Foundation and in the Department of Medicine of the University where he now ranks as associate in medicine.

Dr. Wood's main interests are in internal medicine, but most of his investigations lie in the field of cardiovascular diseases.

Short Shots

Raleigh, April 9.—Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission, is going to make an address before the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies tomorrow. He hasn't said what he is going to talk about, but it's dollars to doughnuts he will not make it North Carolina history—certainly not the kind set out in either the Jule Wren or the Newsome-Lefler textbooks, nor is he likely to touch on the authenticity of the alleged Virginia Dare stones which have been found in so much profusion between Dare county and middle (or maybe even south) Georgia.

By Jack Stinner
Washington.—Because of all the mammoth power projects we have been hearing about for years, you may be as shocked as I was to know that the Federal Power Commission is talking about a shortage of electricity. It is potential—not imminent even in the areas where the drain has been greatest—but it is going to take some kilowatt juggling to avoid it. Unless the power production program is stepped up to top speed in the danger zones, says the commission, there may be—within two years or sooner, when national defense swings toward maximum capacity—blackouts of whole cities. Remember the "lightless nights" of the World War?

The last complete national report on the situation was made the first of the year, but the power commission says the situation is getting worse, not better. Here's what the commission has to say: "In about half of the supply areas, there is installed or scheduled for operation this year sufficient capacity to supply anticipated demands. In other areas, it appears that anticipated demands can be met by encroaching on reserves or by additional capacity made available through inter-connections

HEART'S HAVEN

Ruth Rosemary Corby

YESTERDAY: Although it had been Julie's plan that Eve was to find herself a rich husband, and although Eve did just that, she thought, the thing has not worked at all. For Neil Bowron turned out to have lost all his money, and Eve found she did not love him anyway. But now, on their way back to the old house on the island where all their party has been marooned a week, Eve has agreed not to say anything about their broken engagement for a while.

Chapter 25 Rescue In Sight

In the morning, Eve was wakened gradually by sounds that merged into her uneasy sleep. Even after she had opened her eyes and gazed into the sunlight—and shut them again because her eyes still burned with staring wakefulness into the dark—she could not believe that the noises below stairs were real. But gradually she could make out voices. Neil's—strong and masculine. She could not think for a moment why it seemed so far away. And then she remembered, with a blessed sense of peace, she had told him the truth and had broken her engagement.

Gina's voice was below stairs, too, a faintly reproachful treble; and Brett's—odd, how she strained to hear it, in spite of the knowledge that his own thoughts must be far away!

She was getting up when Julie appeared. One sight of her friend wrapped in an unbecoming towel, looking like a drowned rat, with her hair dripping with cold cream, was enough to tell Eve that something unusual had happened. She paused, still bent over, one hand circling around the floor as she tried to locate her slipper and still keep an eye on Julie.

"Is it a fire?" she asked, as Julie went swiftly to the dressing table and began to remove the cream with quick, efficient dabs.

"No. But Mrs. Jackson is back and she's ordered a plane to be here tomorrow. She's brought some food, too. Breakfast will be ready in about 15 minutes." Julie proceeded with her speedy dressing.

Eve was more inclined to talk about it. "I suppose she'll expect to get off at five," she mused, tucking her foot back under the covers while she hung, head down, over the edge of the bed. "I sort of hoped Mr. Marbury would get here first, and we could ask what this business was all about."

"Mr. Rodman did ask that," Julie confided to say. "But Mrs. Jackson refused to answer, and Mrs. Marbury and I decided that if we could get off the island unharmed, we did not care to talk about it any more."

"But Gina likes the place!" Eve protested, her slipper found. She gestured with it, as she went on. "If only the Jacksons are to blame there is no reason for letting a lovely old place like this go to ruin."

"You're as bad as that Rodman," Julie declared, squirming into her dress. "There's nothing lovely about this place. It's lonely and damp and without proper plumbing. I'm glad you're going to marry Neil Bowron. Then you'll be able to do your decorating in a modern Park Avenue apartment."

Eve was silent, remembering quickly those moments last night when Neil had begged her to marry him and when she had at last no lack of affection for Neil but a genuine and unreasonable love for Brett.

But, if help were to come in the morning, perhaps she need not tell

Julie yet that her carefully laid plans were a dismal failure. Perhaps she could even wait until they were back in New York!

Eve was sure Neil would remain as attentive as ever, and that he would not be the one to announce the change in their plans.

Hint From Gina

She realized, as Julie was about to leave the room, that she had been silent for a long time. Hastily casting about for a remark that would lead her guardian away from further comment on her engagement, Eve said quickly:

"But Mr. Marbury? It's over a week now, and he must be worried in spite of what he told the lawyer..."

"That Jackson woman has the ingenuity of a fiend," Julie admitted grimly. "She even thought to phone Marbury and assure him that his wife would be back at the hotel tomorrow. Naturally, he believed her although he had been preparing to fly down here tonight. Anyway, I'm going to eat heartily today and give that woman something to do."

Julie frowned out of the room but before Eve had finished dressing, Gina slipped inside. She sat on the tumbled bed while Eve tried to bring her tangled curls to some sort of order. Eve had put on her scarlet blouse and the slacks she had worn coming down, and now with an impatient exclamation, tied a scarlet ribbon around her hair. Gina looked at her critically.

"You're really beautiful," she said at last, dispassionately. "But I think you've got some thing more than that, too. I'm not bad-looking, either—I've been called beautiful—but it isn't the same." Gina went on without rancor.

"Men look at me and think 'There's a pretty little thing,' but they look at you and shout 'That's the girl I'm going to marry!' You've got that additional something that men will always be possessed by."

"You must be hungry," Eve said decisively. "This is too much philosophy for a young lady so early in the morning. Come on down and have breakfast. We're rescued, you know."

"Yes, I know," Gina got up slowly, but she did not appear to be swayed from her line of thought. "But, Eve, before we go down, I want to ask you this: I've been thinking you're making a mistake to decide on Neil, so soon? Other men will be in love with you..."

She broke off and then went on in a rush: "Remember what I said about wanting the adventure and glory of love? I—I guess that isn't for most of us. At least, I'm pretty sure now that it isn't for me. But, Eve—I do want you to have it. And—perhaps Neil isn't the person to give it to you. I've watched you together—it's like me and Ham—friendly, but not exciting. Oh, Eve, please be sure!"

Eve could only stare at her in bewilderment. She thought for a moment that perhaps Gina was in love with Neil, but discarded that thought. No—whatever Gina's purpose, it was not selfish. The girl looked as if she were utterly miserable, and the hand on Eve's arm trembled.

But, like a thoroughbred, she was refusing to whimper, and the blue eyes that met Eve's were as steady as her own.

"Neil and I have agreed to talk it over again, in—in a less romantic spot. Eve finally admitted. "Now will you come downstairs?" Gina kissed the cool cheek close to her own and then, her hand in Eve's, descended the stairs meekly. After breakfast, watching as Gina teased Ham and ran off with Lordy,

'Banish Selfishness'

Eve could only shake her head, still mystified by the girl's behavior. If anything, it seemed obvious that, with the let-up in tension they all felt since they were sure of leaving the next day, Gina would either quarrel with Ham or be engaged to him before many hours had passed.

Date With Brett
Eve did not dare look at Brett and he seemed as reluctant to meet her eyes. After the breakfast, he disappeared and did not come back even for lunch.

But Mrs. Jackson—"the iron woman," as Ham continued to call her—appeared in no way disturbed about this and proceeded to serve them excellent meals all day. Brett returned about dinner time and Julie said tartly:

"We missed you, Mr. Rodman. Were you out meditating on the hazards of bringing such a large party to an unprepared house?"

"Some thing like that," Brett said noncommittally. Then, having glanced involuntarily at her, his expression became concerned. "Don't you feel well?" he inquired.

Julie did look pale, but as Eve knew she was merely suffering from the effects of trying to eat Mrs. Jackson out of house and home, at breakfast and lunch she had eaten far more than usual, although she answered sharply that she was feeling all right, and at dinner, Eve noted with a smile, she scarcely touched her food.

Brett, too, seemed unconcerned with the steak before him, and he looked pale and exhausted. During cover of the conversation which had resumed its normal gaiety, Eve managed to whisper:

"What's the matter? Are you disappointed that you won't get to do the house over?"

"Partly that," he whispered back. He waited so long before he said

John D. Biggers, dollar-a-year defense production director in the office of production management, told the House Military Committee in Washington that the country is 100 days away from mass production of defense supplies. On the witness stand, Biggers asked the American people to "put the interest of our country above our own," and "banish selfishness."

anything more than Eve had of him, most decided he was in one of his "silent" moods.

But he added suddenly, "Can't we go out on the sand for a little while? I won't keep you long." He glanced at Neil, who was being very gallant and gay about Eve's dismissal and acting, to her annoyance as if he did not believe that she really meant to break the engagement.

"We can stay as long as you like," she whispered to Brett, impelled by Neil's reproachful glance at her. "I have no obligation to observe the curfew."

Brett was puzzled, but he nodded, and the next minute was engaged in a low-voiced conversation with Mr. Howe, on his right.

Neil, meanwhile, demanded to know what Eve and Brett had been saying, and was sulky when she refused to answer him. After they had left the table, he perversely kept close to her. She had no opportunity to slip out and join Brett, waiting, she knew, in the shadowy porch. Her heart pounded as she thought of him there, yet she knew that to walk out openly would bring Neil at her heels. And tonight, although she did not want to tell him so, she could not bear to have Neil around.

Nature Of Christ Topic Of Sermon

By WYATT BROWN
"The divine nature of Christ was just as real as his human traits; I cannot see how anyone could seriously doubt the claim of our Christ, said Rev. L. C. Larkin, District Superintendent of the Rocky Mount District of the Methodist Church, last night in his sermon at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church as the second evening's service in a special pre-Easter series. He went on to remark upon the feeling of some people that it would be nice to have some portrait of Christ or recordings of his voice.
"Such feelings he characterized as superficial for those who could like Paul find the true Christ and live by faith. The people of Jerusalem who had felt the impact of Christ's presence from his birth and most frequently the effect of his efforts during his ministry abused Christ so much, Mr. Larkin explained, because they envied Him and, further, were unwilling to yield the throne of their hearts to him, and were unwilling to break with tradition and their daily living. But Christ moved them so that they had him arrested and crucified to be rid of him.
"We thank God that at this Easter time, we can come back to the altar of our fathers and receive again the touch of love of his matchless heart upon our spirits again," he said in conclusion.
Tomorrow night Reverend J. A. Russell, District Superintendent of the New Bern District of the Methodist Church, will preach.

TULIP-TIME TEAMWORK

A little girl in Dutch costume is an essential complement to the honored flower in most anybody's tulip festival. Little Maureen Messick above, will be a flower girl at the Washington, North Carolina tulip festival, April 17-18. Millions of tulip bulbs are being grown in the Washington vicinity. Domestic bulb production has taken on new importance since war cut off shipments from Holland, Michigan and the Pacific Northwest are heavy tulip producing areas.

Minister

Prime Minister at the Gallopade Coronation ceremonies in Rocky Mount on May 2 will be Major General Jacob L. Devers, now widely known in this state as commanding officer at Fort Bragg. The high army officer, accustomed to army ritual and ceremony, will find himself in a very different sort of a ceremony on the night of May 2 when he crowns the King and Queen of the Gallopade. He will be surrounded by two score belles and their formally-attired escorts representing practically every town in eastern Carolina. Major General Devers will fly here from Fort Bragg for the Coronation and Ball, concluding activities on the three-day festival program. Representative Harold Cooley of Nashville played the part of the Prime Minister during last years ceremony.

JOBS LOCATED FOR TAR HEELS

Southern States Lead Placements In February

Raleigh, April 9.—North Carolina along with Louisiana, Missouri and New Mexico, made outstanding gains in the placements of workers on jobs during the month of February, these states topping the 18 states which showed increases over the longer preceding month of January, Chairman Charles G. Powell, of the N. C. Unemployment Compensation Commission, reports, on figures issued in Washington.
While practically all states filled more jobs in February, 1941, than in the preceding February, exceptional gains were shown in North Carolina, Missouri, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wyoming, in which placements were from three to six times as great as those made in February of last year, this report shows.
Benefits for unemployment paid in North Carolina in February amounted to $215,988 or 26.8 per cent less than in January.
The 56 North Carolina employment offices made 29,020 complete placements in February, an increase of 52.8 per cent over January and an increase of 482.6 per cent over February of last year. Of the 29,200 February placements, 27,745 were in regular jobs, that is, lasting for one month or longer.
In the January-February period, 49,024 complete placements were made in this State, or 382.3 per cent more than in January-February, 1940. Of these, 45,260 were in regular jobs, 92.9 per cent of the total.
The five, charged with signing false statements to their earnings, to get more in benefits, are Belos Jordan, Leroy Moore, Ralph Watson, Lewis Herring and Eddie D. Mills.

Five Are Convicted Violating UCC Laws

Raleigh, April 9.—Five claimants for unemployment benefits were recently given 60-day sentences for violating the Unemployment Compensation Law, suspended on condition that they pay court costs and do not violate this law for two years, in the Kinston Recorder's court.

Five claimants found guilty in the High Point City court of failing to report proper earnings, were ordered to reimburse the Commission the amount of over-payment, in addition to the following fines: Clyde E. Currie, Lawrence R. Jarrett and Tom Gaddy, $20 and costs; Grace W. Plummer, $25 and costs, and Helen M. Mitchell, one-half the court costs.
