LONDON SUBJECTED TO EIGHT-HOUR AIR ATTACK

Servia Falls As Germans Continue Advance In Greece

ASSAULT MADE ON NEW LINE

Many Prisoners Declared to Have Been Captured As Nazi Troops Extend Advance Across Aliakmon River In Attempt To Smash At East Flank Of Reformed Defense Line

Berlin, April 17.—(AP) Nazi troops, continuing their advance into Greece, have captured Servia after sweeping across the Aliakmon river, the high command announced today, in a drive aimed at the east flank of the reformed British-Greek defense line.

The Germans declared they were taking many prisoners in their advance, which has carried them almost 70 miles southward from the frontier in this sector, west-northwest of Mount Olympus.

Earlier reports said the Axis have come to grips with the British expeditionary force south of Mount Olympus in an engagement which military circles said might develop into a major battle.

In Africa, authorized sources said, the Germans and Italians have repulsed repeated attempts of British armored cars to break through the Axis ring around Tobruk, and have inflicted terrific losses on the British.

Latest reports from the mountainous section of Thessaly, in Greece, said German motorized units had "pushed deep into enemy columns, forcing the Greek and British troops to fight."

Official quarters gave no details of the action except to say that the British, attempting to withdraw under cover of rear guard action, had been compelled to make a stand to meet the pressure of fast Nazi motorized units.

(The Greek high command said today that German forces were in action in the vicinity of Grevna and were trying to advance toward Kalabaka, which is about 10 miles north of the central sector of the front).

The German air force was said to be beating out a path for the Nazi advance, concentrating heavy attacks on airports and hammering British-Greek communication lines.

Twenty-two "enemy" planes were destroyed on the ground and 17 more were shot down in air flights yesterday, the Germans declared.

Still At Airport

Part of a still and 50 gallons of mash which would have been ready for distillation tonight or tomorrow, were found on the City-County airport site this afternoon by Elmo Savage, WPA foreman in charge of a group of workers laying out a runway toward the river.

ABC officers were called and found the mash, a 10-gallon doubler and another empty barrel. The cooker and condensing barrel had been moved, but the officers expressed the belief the owners probably would have returned to run the 50 gallons of mash before moving the complete still.

Secretary Knox Asserts U.S. Ship Construction Far Ahead Of Schedule

Navy Department Head Tells Senate Defense Invesitgating Committee That Two-Ocean Navy to Be Realized At Earliest Possible Moment; Declares Action Now Is Absolute Necessity

Washington, April 17. —(AP)—Asserting that "practically every ship that is under construction is ahead of schedule," Secretary Knox told the Senate Defense Investigating Committee today that the navy would have a two-ocean fleet ready "at the earliest possible moment."

Testifying in an inquiry into the letting of contracts, Knox said the navy had moved ahead at maximum speed under a deadline that "is always just tomorrow."

"Under such pressure," he declared, "we can not sit around and theorize on how to reform when we need something of absolute necessity for military results. We just have to have it, we are responsible for getting it and it would be a criminal act if we didn't get it."

Noting that the navy had contracted in the current fiscal year for the construction of 629 ships, Knox said many of the craft were being delivered months ahead of schedule. He said the total value of vessel contracts and orders placed since last July 1 was $4,476,412,021.

At the same time, he said, the navy had let contracts for 6,038 planes in the current year.

Editor Slain

John F. Arena (above), 43, editor of an Italian language newspaper in Chicago, was shot to death on a northside street after leaving a movie with a girl companion, Miss Eleanor Herrmeyer, 17. Police expressed belief he was killed because of his publishing activities. He recently conducted an editorial campaign against what he termed "fifth column" activities of persons in official Italian circles in Chicago. A congressional committee investigating un-American activities disclosed in Washington that he had given it information on Fascist activities in this country a few hours before he was shot.

FIVE FILE FOR CITY ELECTION

Two Out For Post Of City Court Solicitor

Only one race has developed for the city primary-election, to be conducted the first Monday in May—May 5—this being for the office of solicitor of Municipal court.

Both the incumbent, Harry Brown and Eli Bloom have filed with the city clerk, insuring at least a two-way race for the office of solicitor of the tribunal.

Judge L. C. Skinner, the incumbent, today filed for re-election and up until this afternoon no other candidate had filed for the post.

Although Mayor B. B. Sugg has publicly announced that he would offer for election to a full term, he has not officially filed his candidacy. To date there has been little or no talk of any opposition. Candidates for mayor have until 10 days prior to the election date to file.

To date only two candidates have filed for the office of alderman, although six seats are to be filled. L. B. Fleming has filed from the First Ward and J. A. Collins has filed from the Second. Both are members of the present board. Prospective aldermen have until five days prior to the date of election to file their candidacies.

One member of the board is to be named from each of the five wards, with the Fifth, which has been given two members instead of the one heretofore, will name two members, one for a one-year term.

The terms of three aldermen representing wards having two members on the board do not expire this year. They are J. A. Watson of the Second, J. D. Simpson of the Third and Dr. M. B. Massey of the Fourth. Aldermen whose terms expire this year are L. B. Fleming of the First; J. A. Collins of the Second; R. E. Sellers of the Third; D. A. Evans of the Fourth and G. H. Clapp of the Fifth.

BRITISH FLEET AIDS ARMY IN NORTH AFRICA

German And Italian Troops Shelled Near Salum

EGYPT MENACED BY AXIS FORCES

Blockading Squadron Also Attempting To Choke Off Supply Line Between Sicily And Tripoli

London, April 17.—(AP) Striking hard on the North African front, where an Axis army menaces Egypt, the British navy has been shelling German and Italian troops near Salum and Tobruk, while 800 miles west a blockading squadron sought to choke off the vital supply line between Sicily and Tripoli.

The Admiralty announced last night the blockading squadron had "intercepted and annihilated" an entire convoy of three Italian destroyers and five cargo ships carrying mechanized equipment, munitions and possibly fruits across the 90-mile stretch of water.

Other warships, cruising off the coast near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, were credited yesterday with "constantly and successfully" bombarding German and Italian troops locked in bitter fighting with imperial forces at Salum, Fort Capuzzo and Tobruk.

Great emphasis was placed today on the reported success of the convoy raiders off Sicily.

Two of the ships announced as destroyed were 5,000-ton vessels laden with motorized equipment, the Admiralty said; two others of 3,000 tons, "probably transports," were blown up; and the fifth, a 4,000-ton ammunition carrier, blew up with a terrific explosion."

The Italian destroyer escort was said to have included the 1,628-ton Luca Terarico, and two smaller destroyers not mentioned by name.

During the action, which occurred Tuesday night, the 1,870-ton British destroyer Hohawk was sunk by torpedoes, but the majority of the crew (normally 190 men), including the commander, were rescued, the Admiralty said.

Whether the Axis convoy was destroyed by gunfire or torpedoes was not specified, and there was no mention of the fate of the men aboard the ships.

U.S.-CANADIAN PLANS MAPPED

Military And Naval Defense Set Up For Both Coasts

Montreal, April 17.—(AP)—Completion of plans for the military and naval defense of the eastern and western coast of Canada and the United States was announced today by the Canada-United States joint permanent defense board.

"The board from now on will devote itself to keeping these plans up to date to meet changing conditions," said the announcement.

It followed a three-day meeting, including a session with Newfoundland government officials.

The announcement, released by Mayor LaGuardia of New York and Colonel O. M. Biggar of Ottawa, co-chairmen, added: "The board must naturally take a realistic view of conditions and therefore the plans have been prepared with minute detail in the event it becomes necessary to defend either the eastern or western coast of our countries. Nothing is left to be done to put the plan into operation."

Wayne Man Freed On Kidnap Charge

A charge of kidnaping against Ed Parker, member of a prominent Goldsboro family, was nol prossed in Pitt Superior court this afternoon, but the defendant was fined $50 and taxed with the costs after tendering a plea of guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Judgment was suspended in a case charging Parker with operating a baseball lottery on condition he not operate a lottery in Pitt county for a period of five years.

The kidnaping charge was lodged against Parker after he allegedly offered to take D. R. Peacock, Greenville man, to his home one night, but instead drove out into the country and threatened him at the point of a pistol.

$3,500,000,000 New Taxes Agreed On For Next Year

BOTH PARTIES ADOPT FIGURE

Administration And Republican And Democratic Leaders Set Figure To Be Raised By New Levies; No Methods For Raising Money Yet Agreed On

Washington, April 17. —(AP) —Secretary Morgenthau announced today that the administration and both Democratic and Republican congressional leaders had agreed to ask $3,500,000,000 of new taxes to be raised in the next year.

He told reporters after conferring with the leaders that President Roosevelt had approved the program and would, at an early date discuss the program with the American people.

No details of how the money would be raised were disclosed, but the Treasury secretary indicated the government would tap every possible means of raising a dollar in taxes.

Despite former policies of the administration, he indicated that such drastic means as a general sales tax payroll taxes and other heavy money-raising ideas were under consideration.

For the first time in Treasury-Congressional tax conferences during this administration, Republican leaders as well as Democratic leaders were called in.

UNION WILLING RESUME TALKS

Negotiation Left Up To Southern Coal Operators

New York, April 17.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) today announced that the union was willing to resume wage negotiations with southern bituminous coal operators in an effort to reach an industry-wide accord and reopen the nation's paralyzed soft coal mines.

Lewis' announcement came as northern operators of the eight-state Appalachian area and union negotiators were formally ratifying a new two-year wage contract designed for the nation's soft coal industry as a whole, and which southern operators had previously announced was unsatisfactory to them.

In a telegram to L. T. Putman leader of southern operators who last week bolted the joint wage conference, Lewis proposed that the union and the southern operators convene in New York tomorrow morning "for the purpose of negotiating a wage scale for mining areas represented by yourself and your associates."

This proposal, the union chieftain added, was made at the request of the federal government through Dr John R. Steelman, chief federal conciliator, who for more than two weeks has tried to help labor and management break the industry's involved wage dispute.

Lewis asked Putnam to advise him at once whether the southern operators, who produce about 35 per cent of the nation's soft coal, would agree to continue wage negotiations.

Rome Says Greek Line Facing Italy In Crisis

London Hears Talk Of German Invasion of Britain

By The Associated Press

Premier Mussolini's high command asserted late today that Greece's whole front with Italy was "in crisis," and simultaneously British and Greek troops fought a violent, perhaps decisive, battle with German panzer columns striking at the heart of the allied defense line 90 miles inside Greece.

Italian military quarters interpreted the high command's communique as meaning that the entire Greek front facing Italy's armies was collapsing.

Il Duce's legions, the communique said, had penetrated advance Greek positions, and other reports said that Italians were now fighting once again on Greek soil.

In London, serious talk that a German invasion of the British Isles might be imminent following in the wake of last night's 400-plane attack by the Luftwaffe on London.

Cabinet Minister Lord Beaverbrook's newspaper, the Evening Standard, warned:

"The new assault may be a prelude to an attempted invasion."

The British acknowledged that German pressure was "increasing" in the now full-blazing Battle of Greece.

Reports from the Mount Olympus zone, the locale of some of the bloodiest fighting, said the Germans were attacking ceaselessly and "throwing men away by the thousands."

Mass infantry and tank assaults south of Servia, it was said, "had cost the Germans two divisions in casualties in two days," about 25,000 men.

The action raged in the Kalabaka section as Nazi blitzkrieg invaders sought to storm into the lowlands of Grecian Thessaly.

Dispatches from the front lines said the allies were holding steady but no effort was made to minimize the gravity of the situation from the allied viewpoint.

Gold and silver are called the noble metals because they do not rust.

PARITY RATES ARE REVEALED

Payments to be Made From $212,000,000 Appropriation

Washington, April 17—(AP)—Secretary Wickard announced today rates on parity payments to be made to farmers who plant within 1941 AAA acreage allotments for cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco.

The rates were: cotoin 1.28 cents per pound; wheat 10 cents per bushel; corn five cents per bushel; rice 20 cents per hundredweight; flue-cured tobacco 0.6 cents per pound; fire-cured tobacco 0.2 cents per pound; cigar fillers and cigar binder (not including types 41 and 45) 0.7 cents per pound.

The payments will be made from $212,000,000 appropriated by Congress last year. These payments are designed to help boost farm income from the basic crops toward the administration goal of "parity" or "fair exchange value" for farm products.

Wickard estimated that the $212,000,000 would be divided among the five major crops as follows: cotton $88,300,000; wheat $57,300,000; corn $47,100,000; rice $2,500,000; flue-cured tobacco $3,700,000; fire-cured tobacco $100,000; cigar filler and binder tobacco $600,000. The remained of the $212,000,000 was allotted to administrative expense.

In addition to the parity payments, farmers who cooperate with the AAA programs will receive soil conservation payments in 1941 at the following rates: cotton 1.37 cents per pound; wheat eight cents per bushel; corn nine cents per bushel; rice 5:5 cents per hundredweight; flue-cured tobacco 0.8 cents per pound; fire-cured tobacco 1.5 cents per pound and cigar filler and binder tobacco 0.8 cents per pound.

Raid Worst Suffered By Capitol City

Morgue Filled With Dead, Hospitals Are Jammed With The Wounded; Property Damage Extensive; Economic Advisor And Wife Killed; Air Raid Service Men And Firemen Among Victims

London, April 17.—(AP) Hundreds of Nazi planes roared continuously over London for eight hours last night and early today to drop uncounted tons of high explosives and fire bombs in the heaviest raid of the war.

Morgues were crowded and hospitals were jammed. There were blocks of smouldering wreckage.

No one had any accurate idea of the number of dead or wounded or of the vast amount of property damage in the already battered capital, but there were no doubts of the intensity of the attack. Thousands of explosives and fire bombs fell. Observers compared it to the fierce raid on Coventry and said it was worse than anything seen in London during the height of the Nazi assaults last autumn.

Among the dead were Lord Stamp, the government's economic advisor, and his wife. His body was recovered, but searchers were still burrowing in debris for Lady Stamp's.

Death struck air raid service men in all parts of the city.

Members of a rescue squad were killed by a bomb which exploded directly in front of their truck as they sped to the scene of a previous blast.

Firemen high on a ladder pouring water into a blazing building were killed when a bomb hit the foot of the ladder.

Five fire watchers were killed by a hit on a church.

To an observer standing on the roof of a tall west-end apartment building it seemed that all London was burning or exploding as bombs crashed down and the anti-aircraft batteries poured unending streams of shells into the sky.

The air was filled with thick smoke and dust and sparks danced over the sky. The very earth seemed to shake. Screams could be heard even above the roar of guns and bombs.

In spite of the heavy anti-aircraft barrage and the activities of the RAF night fliers, only five German planes were reported shot down.

(The German high command described the raid as "reprisal for the English destruction of the cultural and historic center of Berlin on April 9.")

In Memory Of Jimmie Hardee.

Just one year ago today
God sent and took my dear brother away,
When April skies were blue.
But his resurrectoin promise
Is hope for you and me.

He was always nice and kind
To everyone he met
And now that he has left us
Our eyes with tears are wet.

Now we are sad and lonely
We wish that he could stay
But that which God has given
He doth also take away.

Tis so hard to give him up
And yet somehow we hope
That he is in a happier place
Away from grief and woe.

Some day we hope to meet him
And our hearts with joy shall fill
If we will trust the Master
And do His blessed will.

His Beloved Sister,
Mrs. Ola Porter.

In making this report to the health officer, Dr. Ennett, Messrs. The health officer said that he was pleased to learn from the sanitary officers that the managers of these food handling establishments are from month to month, giving improved cooperation in the matter of better sanitation.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood.—Just as a sample of what horrible turns things take when threy explored too seriously, there the statistical business on "Kiss the Boys Goodbye."

There's more than one kiss in the picture. Statistically: Mary Martin and Don Ameche, hercine and hero must kiss, by script, 79 times. They have 40 days to get this kissing done—an average of not quite two kisses daily. But we must not overlook possible delays due to weather, illness, dialogue changes, broken dishes and what not. And then there are rehearsals, hours upon hours; and an average of five takes to every camera angle; and some three camera angles to every kissing scene. This amounts, allowing as many kisses during rehearsals as during takes, to 60 kisses a day, or 2,400 in 40 days of shooting which is a heap of kissing.

"Kiss" was in its third day, or 240th kiss, when Elizabeth Patterson, as a die-hard daughter of the Old South, did her scene involving Ameche, Oscar Levant, and General Lee's chair.

Miss Patterson, who is actually from Tennessee and a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, wasn't too sure as to how her family would react to her role as Aunt Lily Lou. Though she plays the role straight, the implication of the part is all comedy.

They have switched the idea of the story somewhat since its Broadway days. Then, Clare Boothe's travesty dealt with a Hollywood search for a heroine of a picture with many purely coincidental resemblances to "Gone With the Wind." Now, however, "G. W. T. W." is finished and released, and the idea is rather dated. So Hollywood is throwing it right back on the stage: the search is for the heroine of a Broadway play, and to win the part showgirl Mary Martin hastens back to her old Dixie mansion to be "discovered" by the scouts.

Miss Patterson, as Aunt Lily Lou a regal lady splendid among spreading Southern splendors, gives an acidulously polite welcome to the Yanks (Ameche and Levant) in course of which she gaspingly demonstrates when Ameche is about to sit in a worn old chair beside the harpsichord. "No, no, not there! General Lee sat in that chair," is her line.

That isn't nearly as funny to me," the character actress said later, "as it should be to an audience My father, Lieut. Edmund Dewit Patterson, enlisted at the age of 16 in the Ninth Alabama regiment then was transferred to Lee's army in northern Virginia. He was seriously wounded at Gettysburg. My family has a chair which General Lee used when he visited my father's home, and it's regarded with just as much reverence as I'm supposed to regard the one in the script."

That Miss Patterson is playing the role might be considered something of a sign of final truce in the old struggle. For she recalls that once some years ago, she turned down a role in "The Copperhead" with Lionel Barrymore—because it would have shown her molding bullets for Northern soldiers!

BLOCKHOUSES BUILT ON UKRAINE FRONTIER

Moscow.—(AP)—Thousands of "defense cabins" are going up in the Ukraine, on the Soviet western frontier, in a campaign to enlist village masses in military work.

The first was started by collective farmers several years ago at the village of Vernopolie. Now they are estimated to number more than 3,000.

Each cabin, like an early American blockhouse, has one man always on guard. Every member trains in markmanship, riding, nursing and air-raid defense. Red army reserve officers lead the units.

It takes about 45 gallons of water to fill a bathtub of average size.

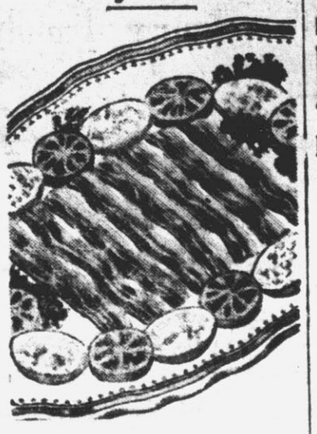
WILSON'S BACON RECIPES

I wasn't surprised to read that in a recent test in which babies were allowed to choose and pick the foods they wanted, those chubby hands reached first for bacon. Like babies, most grown-ups reach for bacon, provided it's good bacon, with the rich smoke flavor that wakes appetites. Such a bacon is Wilson's Certified Bacon. Buy it sliced, or in the piece (your dealer will slice it to desired thickness). Buy it by the pound or half pound, ready sliced in cartons, in cellophane rolls and layers, or in the thrifty two-pound Family Style package. This bacon is the "makin'" of many a wonderful meal.

George Rector
Food Consultant, Wilson & Co.



Bacon Dinners Easy —Thrifty—Good!

Broiling bacon is the method recommended by experts because it brings out all the delicious flavor. Broil together in a moderate oven (350°F.) two thirds of a pound of sliced Wilson's Certified Bacon, 8 thick slices of tomatoes and 4 large boiled potatoes, cut in half. Dot potatoes and tomatoes with butter and sprinkle with grated cheese. Turn bacon often so that it cooks evenly. Serves 4.

NEW WAY PROTECTS FLAVOR

To get America's best bacon, 1941 model, ask for Wilson's Certified Bacon Family Style. A two-pound "thrifty-buy" package in which the bacon is sliced in thicker he-man slices, then packed tightly back on the rind, bolt upright. This keeps in all that nut-sweet flavor.

EARLY AMERICAN SALAD

Wash and dry 4 big bunches of green lettuce. Put them in a big bowl. Cut into small pieces and fry ½ pound Wilson's Certified Sliced Bacon and add to lettuce. Heat together 4 tablespoons bacon fat, 4 of vinegar, 4 of water, 4 of sugar; salt, pepper, and green onions sliced. Pour over the lettuce. Toss thoroughly. Homey and delicious. For a heartier dish, add slices of hard cooked Clear Brook Eggs.

When It's Flavor You Want

Suppose you have a casserole of cooked hominy, noodles, macaroni, spaghetti or rice—and you want it extra-flavory. Simply cut up and fry one half pound Wilson's Certified Bacon. Add this and two tablespoons of the bacon fat to your casserole contents. Stir thoroughly but gently.

EASY BREAKFAST BACON

Place ½ pound Wilson's Certified Sliced Bacon on a wire rack in a dripping pan. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) until bacon is done. Needs no turning.

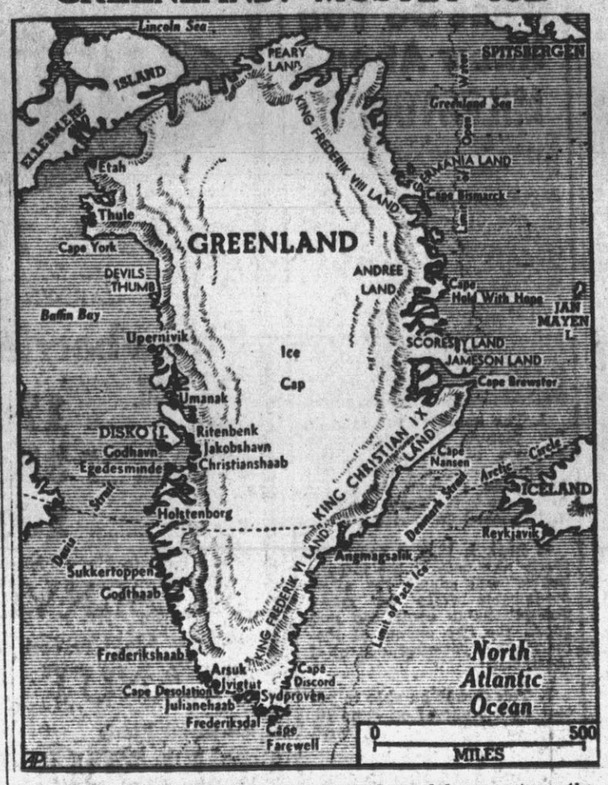
GREENLAND: MOSTLY ICE



Newly included in the western hemisphere defense system, the sparsely settled Danish island colony of Greenland is a vast field of ice with fishing villages and small farms on its fringes. The glacier, which has an elevation of 6 000 to 10,000 feet, overlies an area of about 15,000 square miles, obliterating the topography. The U. S. Army nad Navy are expected to begin construction of plane bases immediately. Map shows more important towns, water boundaries and various areas.

SHORT IN FARM LABOR SUPPLY

Ratio Of Supply To Demand Lowest In State History

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 17.—The ratio of North Carolina's farm labor supply to demand for it is the lowest in Tar Heel history, according to the State-Federal crop reporting service which operates in cooperation with the State Department of Agriculture.

As a result North Carolina farmers were, on April 1, paying higher wage rates to farm laborers than at any time since 1930.

This jump in farm wage rates during the past quarter reflects a quickened shift in the labor supply-demand situation thus far in 1941.

As of April 1, farmers were paying $19.25 per month with board and $27.25 per month without board to laborers. For the same date of last year, they were paying an average rate of $17 per month with board and $25 per month without board.

Average daily wage rates this year were $1.05, with board; and $1.30 without board, compared with 90 cents and $1.20, respectively, on April 1, 1940.

The whole situation reflects the defense effort throughout the country, which has quickened the trend of labor from the farms to industry and industrial areas. Employees have been added to both manufacturing and construction pay rolls and, beside, there has been a drastic reduction in the available labor supply through induction of thousands of selectees in to the army.

On April 1 North Carolina's farm labor supply was only 68 per cent of normal compared with 82 per cent on January 1. The demand was 94 per cent or normal on April 1 as compared with 92 per cent the first of the year. The farm labor supply, when expressed as a percentage of demand, dropped to 7° on the first of the year, or 17 points down January 1 and 31 points under April 1, 1940.

Carver Library News

We are submitting the following book review in the hope that some of those who have not yet availed themselves of the wonderful opportunity to secure wholesome reading material at the Carver Library might be interested enough to desire to read it, too. If this type of book does not meet your reading taste, our shelves are full of all types of literature.

Emma K. Jones of this city, who has read "A Lantern in Her Hand," by Bessie Streeter Aldrich, writes the following review:

A true story of a wife and mother. If the author had let her dreams come true as she first desired them, it would not have been life as we know it. What better way could any mother's dreams come true than through her children. Each child carried through one of her dreams until they all were complete. Through hardships she came, giving up all her dreams to make her children happy. She had one of life's greatest gifts—the love of a good man. Her love and faith in her husband carried her through the dark places. As her hair turned silver and old age became a fact, she still kept her faith.

Asleep, awake, by night or day,
The friends I seek are seeking me,
No wind can drive my bark astray,
Nor change the tide of destiny.
The stars came nightly to the skies,
The tidal wave into the sea,
Nor time, nor space, nor deep, nor high,
Can keep my own away from me.
When all my friends forsake me
And my hair is turning silvery gray,
I still have the lantern light
To lead me by the way.

We were very pleased to have the following visitors at the library recently: Miss Ella M. Gaylord, Williamston; Dr. Aycock, Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Miss Bessie Brown and Miss Elizabeth Flynn.

A&P INTRODUCES 'ENRICHED' BREAD AS DEFENSE HELP

In response to the National Research Council's much-discussed recommendations for new white bread nutrition standards, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company today announced a new white loaf, enriched with Vitamin B-1 and other mineral factors to the nutritional level of whole wheat bread.

Mr. M. A. Hogewood, vice-president of the food chain's southern division, said the action "is in line with intensified government interest in making these essential food elements more widely available on the national defense effort's civilian front."

The new loaf will be available in A&P stores throughout this area at the same price as the old loaf, the food official said.

Each pound of the company's 'Marvel" bread, Mr. Hogewood explained, will contain 450 International Units of the "morale-building" vitamin generally known as B-1 and added quantities of iron and the pellagra-preventive vitamin. Use of a large proportion of milk also provides calcium and riboflavin—Vitamin B-2—which are essential to normal growth. These vitamin and mineral additions not only meet standards proposed by the National Research Council's committee on food and nutritional needs, but makes this white bread the equal of average whole wheat bread in these vitamin and mineral factors, he said.

Heretofore much of the vitamin and mineral value of wheat has been lost in the milling process due to Americans' preference for delicate white bread, it was explained. The result has been that although white bread has been an important staple food, it has been relatively low in certain minerals and vitamins of the "B complex." Restoration of these elements, according to nutrition experts, makes white bread one of the richest food sources of these essential vitamins.

Nazis Crack Down

Strasbourg.—(AP) — Shopkeepers, many to their sorrow, are learning that Nazi Germany enforces its laws. Many have been fined, a few up to 15,000 marks, for raising prices. Inspectors found some shop were charging 30 per cent more for shoes than was being asked for similar shoes in the old Reich Clothing prices were up to 20 per cent higher until a couple of drastic fines regimented the merchants

A tablespoon of chutney sauce put into ½ cup mayonnaise makes a delightful new dressing for lettuce or other vegetable salads.

Dallas, Texas, manufactures nearly half the cotton gins used in the world.

With the spearhead of the German offensive at Kozane, the Nazi high command claimed a 40-mile thrust into Greece as the Italians renewed pressure in the west. This map illustrates these developments: (1) Italians claimed the recapture of Corizza. (2) A German column, sweeping past Phlorina, was reported at Kozane. (3) Germans reported they had crossed the Aliakmon river north of Veria in a drive against the British occupying positions near Mt. Olympus.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRUE FRIENDSHIP

Disinterested friendship is rare. It may appear cynical to say this, but facts have to be faced. Many a fair-weather friend deserts us in the day of trouble, or berates us if we fail to support him as he strives for some purely personal advantage.

Friendship has its roots in the deep and mysterious parts of human character. A person becomes our friend because for some indefinable reason he likes us, and his fidelity will even survive our indifference or hostility. Ask a man why he so highly respects another man, and he may give all sorts of superficial reasons—the man's high sense of honor, his cheerfulness, the depth and warmth of his affection. But these things are not the real basis of friendship. We are drawn to certain people because they supplement deficiencies in our own characters or reinforce certain powers. They give us a sense of assurance they allay our fears, they comfort our sorrows, they make living for us warm, cheerful, and full of meaning.

Many so-called friendships are entered into for the purpose of helping one in business or making it possible for one to advance socially. Such friendships go on the rocks at last and demonstrate the truth of the statement that friendships will not endure to the end that are begun for an end.

OUR NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

It has become obvious to almost everyone that labor is the Number 1 problem in the defense drive. Under the best of conditions our arms program is not coming up to original hopes, and when strikes occur precious days and weeks are irretrievably lost.

Labor's excuse for strikes is that it is not now getting its fair share of profits—that the industries which have been given war contracts are rolling up unprecedented gross revenues, and that the worker should be paid substantially more, and be given other, non-monetary benefits in addition. This argument may be valid in some cases. But, so far as most industries are concerned, gross profits are a poor gauge of net profits. The tax burden alone is taking most of the increased earnings, and there can be no doubt that taxes will be still higher in the years to come. Long ago, top government officials said that no one is going to get rich out of this war. That will be pretty largely true. Through taxation, the government can control and limit income just about as it pleases.

A number of thoughtful friends of labor are of the opinion that the strikes are, in a sense, suicidal—that they may alienate public good will to the extent that the immense gains made by labor during the past eight years may be lost. Every poll indicates that the public is "fed up" with what it regards as labor racketeering. They indicate an overwhelming majority of citizens favor some sort of forced mediation by government that will prevent strikes.

This feeling is obviously shared in government circles. According to columnists Alsop and Kintner, "Such episodes as the Allis-Chalmers strike have filled the Congress, the best of all reflectors of public opinion, with violent resentment. The demand for strong measures to deal with the labor situation would have produced results long ago had not the House and Senate leaders struggled manfully to hold their followers back. The demand will soon grow too pressing to be ignored."

In short, unless labor "listens to reason," you can look forward to severe laws to control strikes. The late defiance of Secretary Knox and Commissioner Knudsen by a CIO leader in the Allis-Chilmers strike, was almost universally condemned by the nation's press. And the threat of more strikes in our vital industries has caused some meaningful fist-clenching in Washington.

Labor leaders are mistaken if they think they can get away indefinitely with holding up the defense program. This is more than an arms drive—to millions of Americans it is a crusade. And they mean to see it through.

Good Huntin'

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington.—For the con-men, it's always open season on congressmen.

The jobs of senators and members of the House (and for that matter, any other persons who hold their posts by popular election) are no more secure than their reputations. To become involved in a shady transaction or to be caught playing the goat for some wolf with a slick confidence game is almost political death.

The con-men know this. The congressmen know it. It makes the congressman wary and a hard nut to crack. It makes the smart con-men willing only to try their slickest tricks around Washington. The risk is great, but once they have gotten inside and over the first hurdle, they feel pretty safe—for no politician can afford to raise any hue and cry over the fact that he has played dumb.

It isn't often that congressmen will even whisper off-the-record when they have been bilked by some sharper—but by whispering at least among themselves, they have just broken up a smooth bit of chicanery that for a few days threatened to spread all over the place. I'll tell you the story.

Worked Several Times

The game was worked several times—just how many not even members of Congress themselves know—but just let someone try it today and he will find himself rattling the bars for exercise.

A bright well-dressed young man put in his appearance at the congressman's office. He was from the congressman's state. He was a personal friend (or his father was) of some of the congressman's most powerful political allies.

He chatted about them amiably and intimately. He brought the latest bits of gossip and news about them and their families. The conversation ran on and to personal things.

The young man, it seems, was in Washington and in Baltimore and Philadelphia on business. He had inherited quite a fortune. He had just invested it in a large importing business. In a boat which was docked at Baltimore the young man had acquired a large quantity of Scotch whisky.

"I'm not in the whisky business," he explained, "and because I am now on the go all the time, I have no use for it myself. Because so-and-so back home thinks so much of you and because I think so much of him, I'd like to give you half a dozen cases.

Appreciated It

Now even if the congressman is not a drinking man, how could he refuse a thing like that—a gift from a friend of a friend and with absolutely no axe to grind. He appreciated it very much.

"All right," said the young man "that's settled then. I'll have it sent down to you." He started to leave then said: "Oh, I almost forgot. You don't mind paying the duty, do you. It's just $3.50 a case?"

No, the congressman didn't mind. He would write a check. He did. And except for the cancelled check, which had been cashed within the hour, that was the last seen or heard of the bright young man. If you think $33 is a paltry sum for so much trouble, remember that it could be worked many times in a day, and many times that in a week or so.

This is just the latest gag that the con-men have thought up to harass poor congressmen. There have been others down through the years, ranging from black-mail to petty touches from men who represent themselves as political down-and-outers. Oddly enough, a scheme somewhat similar to the whisky trick was worked some years ago with fine English tweeds.

A congressman's life is not an easy one, even if the electorate doesn't let him down.

Raleigh, April 17.—The 'Agricultural Review," official monthly publication of the state department of agriculture has proved so successful that Commissioner W Kerr Scott is requesting budgetary permission to double its size. It is now distributed to 20,000 readers each month.

The requests for space in the classified advertising section, which is a free service rendered to North Carolina rural folks having articles for sale or exchange, have become so numerous that it has been found impossible to print them all and at the same time carry the marketing news and information the department believes is really valuable to farmers.

Increased size of the paper would cost approximately $5,000 a year.

Cities Down, County Up

Statistics on highway fatalities for the first three months of 1941 reveal that North Carolina cities have improved their safety record over the corresponding period of last year, while in the rural areas the death toll has mounted steadily.

Final official figures for March have not yet been announced by the highway safety division, but enough is known of them to say that fatalities in cities have decreased almost 25 per cent from the first quarter of 1940, while deaths in the rural areas have climbed 50 per cent or more.

Last year several North Carolina cities placed well in the lists kept by the National Safety Council.

High Point, for instance, ranked 13th in the nation among the 25,000 to 50,000 population group, while Durham stood 14th in the 50,000 to 75,000 group.

So far this year High Point has not had a single traffic death while Winston-Salem and Durham have had but one each, the Bull city's coming during the Easter week-end.

Scott Accepts

Commissioner of Agriculture W Kerr Scott has accepted appointment from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau as a member of the "Defense Savings" committee for North Carolina.

In a telegram to the commissioner, the treasury head said that an intensive drive is to be made in an effort to "sell" the idea of financing much of the defense program through public purchases of defense bonds and stamps.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—When we remember that Sinclair Lewis once entered a pulpit and dared God to strike him dead, and that Ferde Grofe, in backing his car out of the drive one night, unfortunately ran over his little pet dog, a fox hound, and killed it, we may wonder briefly what urged Lewis to do such a thing or pause for the moment to sympathize with Grofe's grief over the loss of his friend. But we attach no special significance to these incidents. We accept them for what they are humanizing little incidents in the lives of two well known men.

And yet a hundred years from now, leafing through faded newspaper files, students doubtless will come upon these incidents and report them, and some even will try to read some special significance into them and wonder if they offer a key to Lewis' personality or whether the dog incident had any effect on Grofe's career.

I mention this because that is the way of those of us who like to read and sift, and analyze the remembered legends and episodes and anecdotes of people whose novels we have enjoyed and whose operas and symphonies have lived long years after they themselves are dust.

It fascinates me, for instance, to know that Mozart wrote his own funeral march. . . . That Bach had two wives and twenty children. . . . That Schubert wrote "Hark, Hark the Lark" on the back of a cafe menu, and that Richard Strauss composed "Dream Through the Twilight" while waiting for his wife to put on her hat.

I think it is interesting to know too, that the poet Byron had a morbid dread of being embalmed and once made his friend Trelawny promise "not to let those doctors push me around," if he, Byron, died first. . . . Later, when Byron was dead in Greece, Trelawny did his best to get there in time, but he was too late. . . . Five doctors had performed an autopsy and had already embalmed Byron.

Let's take Verdi, whose operas are immortal. . . . As a child he was an acolyte in a Catholic church and it is said that once an annoyed priest knocked him unconscious. . . . The legend is that later the priest was struck dead by lightning.

Wagner, generally believed the greatest of all composers of operas was in real life a prime chisler, a notoriuos anti-Semite and a revolutionist. . . . He was also dishonest in money matters. Brahms for a while earned 50 cents a night playing waltzes in a Hamburg dive for sailors and their waterfront sweethearts. . . . Tschaikowsky studied law and lived as a clerk. He was past 25 before music attracted him seriously.

Well, that's the way it goes. . . . Lewis in the pulpit and Brahms on the waterfront. . . . Tschaikowsky with his law books and Grofe with his dog.

Lewis has given up his new love the theater, and now will write another book. . . . "A novelist is supposed to write a novel now and then, isn't he?" he asks.

HARRY BROWN

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: Eileen Gardner just about had made up her mind, this graduation night, to take a job for a year and then marry Jordan Estill. But now she has jumped, literally, into the arms of a tall and handsome stranger, at a party in Jerry's, and she has for the moment at least forgotten all about Jordan—and the future as well.

Chapter Three

Change Of Front

"Too long. I'll say, 'Hey, Martin, this is Eileen. Come round'."

"Sure. Straight from New Zealand."

"Why New Zealand?"

"Oh, that's where I'm going for the moment. Not for long, just for the ride, I'll bring you back a moa. Know what moas are? I don't."

"Something in a crossword."

"I couldn't use a cross word to you—gosh!" The music had stopped them directly opposite the big wall clock. "That clock right?" He'd stopped fooling.

"Afraid so."

"Lord, I'll just do it. Goodbye, you sweet kid."

He kissed her quickly and lightly. As suddenly, almost, he was gone. Something had tinkled at her foot. Something which had caught on the clip at her neckline—she had felt the jerk. She did not stoop to get it till the swing door closed and she heard him calling "Taxi!" and a whirr of the starter.

The feeling of his face was still warm against hers, her body was warm from his hold. It had all gone so crazily, so quickly, that it seemed like something she had dreamed. Something she had always wanted to dream, rather than that which had come too briefly true. She stooped to the trinket glittering by her foot.

It was the sort of thing a man wore on a watch chain or in a buttonhole, or a girl on her charm bracelet. A tiny gold ski, delicate and perfect. She turned it over, holding it by its ring. It was initialed: "M. M. D.," and had a date of three years back. Under the date was: "Golden Ski Championship," and the name of a famous international meet. Something a man would hate to lose more than his fraternity pin.

There Were Voices On The Stair

She dropped it into her white silk handbag, then fished it out and anchored it to the lining by a safety pin. She must have it safe to give back.

But she couldn't give it back. He was gone, and she didn't even know his last name.

But she would give it back.

She moved slowly back into the smoke-heavy main room. The band was back to swing again; some of the dancers were going crazy, others were chee to cheek in eye-shut slow motion in corners.

A good party. Just the usual traditional good postgraduation party She saw with faint surprise, as if she had come back a very long way, from somewhere, Jordan Estill moving over to her. He had a worried frown. Jordan Estill. . . . She had forgotten there was any such person.

"Where on earth were you?" he said. "I was worried."

"Dancing," Eileen said.

"The crowd hid you, when you jumped down — darn that fool Huhn!—and when I got round to you you were gone."

"I'm here now."

"What's the matter, Eileen? Were you hurt? Did you faint or anything?"

"Not a thing." Suddenly she stiffened. "Jordan, you were right. Let's quit this party. Come on to the Onderdonks'."

Jordan looked relieved.

"We really should have done it," he said, in the first place."

Chill Party

Denver is a city of magnificent distances. And Jordan's old car broke down once. Not more than usual. It merely needed a little adjustment of the kind that he knew how to give. But to Eileen, tense with excitement, Jordan, in his evening clothes, very elegant even to the rubber gloves evening clothes demanded with a jalopy, fussing with the points, was under the hood for at least an hour. Finally they were off again.

"Hurry!" she said.

There isn't any great hurry," Jordan said mildly. "The Onderdonk parties always go on for an hour more than this, and we're almost there."

"I want to get there before the Willesdon party gets away," she said.

"That's all right. We will. They are on a special train. It doesn't go out until—" he looked down at his wrist watch—"One twenty. I had to make some of the arrangements."

She leaned back, drawing a long breath. She relaxed enough to take out her vanity and begin putting herself in order. She looked down into the tiny glass to see what Martin had seen. The great brown eyes were shining. She looked eager, gay, excited. She mustn't. She must look gay, but nonchalant enough. She must look as if Jordan Estill might have a chance with her. She must swing into the stuffy old Onderdonk party like a small princess deigning.

"I appreciate your doing this," Jordan said earnestly as they got out. "You know how it is. The Onderdonks mean a lot to the university."

Eileen pretended not to hear him She was sweeping into the Onderdonks' wide hall, in its party array of palms and cotton-gloved servingmen, head high, eyes ahead. The polite orchestra was still playing The long vista of rooms was half empty. Mrs. Onderdonk, high-bossomed, white-waved, over-sweetly beaming, came forward, hands out. She believed in encouraging the young, and also in the marriage of young instructors.

"So glad to see you," she murmured. "So sorry you were delayed."

No Luck

Jordan was able to say that the car had broken down, and did say so. Mrs. Onderdonk's black velvet bosom; supporting its orchids, lifted sympathetically. "Now, never mind. I quite understand. I don't mind in the least. Come back to the refreshment room. You must be very hungry after all that singing Miss Gardner. Your good aunt has been quite wondering about her little girl."

Ordinarily Eileen would have been tempted to point out that Aunt Louise was no better than anybody else But tonight she had only one idea.

"Has the Willesdon party gone?" she demanded, as they were shepherded out of the hall and into the dining room beyond still impressive and gleaming with candles.

Before Mrs. Onderdonk could answer, there were voices at the top of the stair. The party was streaming down. Congressmen, one important statesman Eileen remembered from a magazine cover, two or three older men and women, a couple of girls. She ran from the dining room, but the hall was full of others.

Miss Willesdon was in the center of the descending group, more beautiful than ever in the long red cape she had thrown over the gown she had spoken in. She might have ridden a whole circuit of white horses in her World War girlhood but, eyes sparkling, red lips laughing back to the hatchet-faced Senator behind her, she scarcely looked thirty.

One arm was thrust through Martin's. Martin himself was talking to one of the young secretaries, a handsome girl in a black dinner dress with black hair brushed shining smooth.

BEER LICENSE RENEWALS

(An Open Letter to County and City Officials)

May is the month when city and county authorities have the responsibility of passing on yearly applications for beer licenses.

It is the hope of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee that local authorities will scrutinize the record of each applicant, and will deny renewals to the few who have abused the privilege of a license.

Careful selection of licensees fosters better law observance—requiring a small expenditure for enforcement and allowing larger sums for welfare and school purposes.

Greenville's golf team yesterday suffered its second defeat in as many weeks, dropping the contest against Henderson in that city by a score of 29-7.

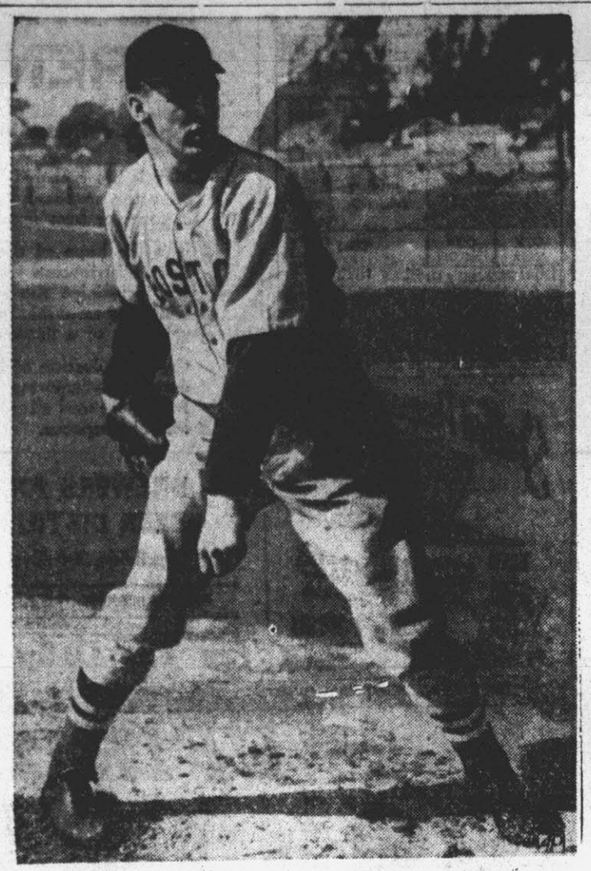
Rocky Mount took a double header from Wilson and Goldsboro and climbed into a tie for top of the standings. The leaders took Wilson 36-20 and Goldsboro 57-20. Tarboro also took two contests, defeating Farmville 48-7 and winning a forfeit from Kinston, which failed to send a team.

Henderson, Greenville and Wilson are in a tie for third place, with two wins and two losses each.

Only 13 Greenville players made the trip and the six-point forfeit for not having 15 men on the course helped pile up the margin of defeat.

Although making no alibis and in the words of Pro Bob Bailey, the locals "went down in glorious defeat," the long trip to Henderson was declared to have kept the Greenville men from shooting their best golf. Also, several of the city's best golfers were kept at home. Several lawyers were kept at home on account fo the criminal session of Superior court and doctor-players felt they could not leave their office in time to make the trip.

Simon Moye, captained the Greenville team, and turned in a 72 for medalist honors. Scores of other local players were: Bill Allen 74; Hunter Keck, 82; Tom Smoot 83; Edwards, Taylor, Dempsey and Jesse Moye, 84 each; Proctor 86; Morton, 90; Waldrop, 91; Kilgo, 92; and Baker, 99.



One of the late-comers to earn a 6-foot-3 southpaw who came up roll was youthful Earl Johnson, a t and posted a 6 and 2 record for in mid-season from Rocky Moun spot on last year's rookie honor the Red Sox. Joe Cronin expect s him to be a real sensation.

This is Hal White, best-looking rookie of the Detroit hurling staff. He won 16 and lost 4 for Buffalo. Baker says he'll star.

Lodge Turn Out Good

The I. B. P. O. E. of W. Pitt county Lodge 234 of Greenville, and Daughters had a splendid turn out on their educational day held Easter.

A splendid program was held at the A. M. E. Zion church at which many interesting things were brought out in regard to Negro Education. The parade that followed was said by many to have surpassed any in which they had participated, both in mode of dress and manner of marching.

The lodge members are planning to attend the state meeting of the Elks to be held May 30 in Durham and are hopeful of bringing back their share of the prizes.

An expression of gratitude coming from the lodge was expressed to the city government for their permission to have the parade, the feature that made the whole occasion possible.

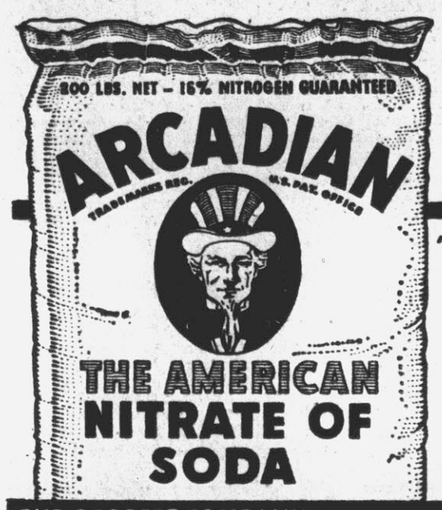
"I buy everything from homefolks"



"CHOPPING TIME is my last chance to make sure my cotton has all the available Nitrogen it needs to produce the yield I want. I used mixed fertilizer at planting. At chopping out I will side-dress with Arcadian, The American Nitrate of Soda.

"Cotton needs Nitrogen most when I chop out. I apply available Nitrogen when I apply Arcadian. It starts at once to build the weed that bears the crop. My cotton wakes up green and growing. And it bolls out sooner, with bigger yields of better quality lint.

"I always buy Arcadian. There is no better Soda. And Arcadian is made by homefolks here in the South. I want Southern Industry to grow. And I want my cotton to grow, too. Give me Arcadian with Uncle Sam on the bag!"

AVERAGE DEBT LESS IN STATE

Per Capita Public Debt Less In State Than Average

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 17.—He can't buy any groceries with it, but John Doe Tar Heel resident, owes $34 less of the public debt than does Richard Roe or Carrie Coe, average United States inhabitant.

Likewise Mr. Doe, if he lives in the city of Raleigh, pays $17.25 less taxes each year than does Mr. Roe or Miss Coe; though this probably won't make him feel any more cheerful about having to borrow money to pay income on the money he earned, but has already spent.

Obviously the county and city, if any, within which he lives has a very important bearing on the per capita share of the public debt and on the amount of taxes paid each year—but the state, as well as the nation, can be averaged as a whole on the debt side, if not on the taxes.

The public debt of the United tates amounted to $480 per capita at the start of the current fiscal year last July 1, according to U. S. Census Bureau figures; but at the same time the per capita share of every North Carolinian was only $446—or $34 less than the national average. The difference existed, of course, because the state and local debt in Tar Helia is smaller per capita than in the country as a whole.

As a matter of fact one of the outstanding items in any comparison is that the state and local debt of North Carolina has dipped sharply downward since 1932 while not only has the national debt soared skyward in that period, but the average of state and local debts has likewise moved upward, though only by 3.4 per cent.

The per capita taxes collected by governments over the whole country amounted to $109; but even here in Raleigh, where taxes are relatively high in comparison with many other parts of the state, the per capita collection of taxes for the 1939-40 fiscal year was $17.25 less—the figure being $91.75.

Here's the national situation with respect to the public debt:

Federal debt $42,971,000,000 ($326 per capita); total of state and local public debts, $20,225,000,000 ($154 per capita); making a grand total of $63,196,000,000 or $480 per capita.

Here's the state situation: North Carolina's proportionate share of the federal debt $1,164,349,098 ($326 per capita); total state debt (bonds outstanding minus money in sinking funds) $121,788,500 ($34 per capita); total of county and municipal debts $326,413,199 ($86 per capita); for a grand total of $1,592,323,-771, or $446 per capita.

Back in 1932 the state's condition as to indebtedness would not have been nearly so favorable on a comparative basis. The national debt was then only $19,487,009,766 or less than half the July 1, 1940 total; while the North Carolina state debt was $164,635,843, more than a third greater than the 1940 total, and local government units in the state owed $362,413,199, or 15.3 per cent more than they did last July.

While the average Tar Heel's share of public debt is less than the national average, that does not mean that the residents of all counties are in that condition. In Raleigh, for example, the per capita share of all public debt is $497, or $5 more than the state, and $17 more than the federal per capita. That's because the Raleigh man must add a $27 per capita county and a $110 per capita city indebtedness to the $326 national and $34 state debt per capita figures.

Figures for other localities will vary, of course, according to the amount of county and city debt in the area under consideration. Each inhabitant in the state, however, starts with the $326 federal and $34 state debt over his head. To find his entire debt load the per capita county and city debt is added.

On the tax side, the figures are $109 for each U. S. inhabitant; while is its impossible to give a statewide average without having available (and your reporter hasn't) figures showing the grand total of all local unit taxes collected during the fiscal years 1930-40.

There are available, however, the figures for Wake county and Raleigh, and so the tax burden in Raleigh is found to be $91.75 per capita; made up as follows:

Per capita federal taxes, $39; per capita state taxes $21.25; per capita county taxes $16, and per capita city taxes $15.50; for a total of $91.75.

The county and city figures were somewhat roughly arrived at by taking the actual cash tax collections for 1939-40 and dividing those for the county by Wake's 1940 population (109,544) and the city's by Raleigh's 1940 census count (46,897).

The county's public bonded debt (Local Government Commission figures) was $2,999,500; its cash tax collections (county auditor's office figures) $1,747,529.43.

Raleigh's public debt was $5,153,-000, its tax collections $732,299.94 (debt figures from the Local Government commission, taxes from the city tax collector's office).

And, by the way, the national debt has increased about five billion dollars since last July 1—the defense program did it, they say—and so to all the percapita debt figures there can be added $30.

Sing Sing Fugitives Caught After Bloody Break

Recaptured in the woods across the Hudson river a few hours after their break from Sing Sing prison at Ossining, N. Y., Joseph Riordan (left) and Charles McGale (right) were being hurried into the Ossining police station by officers when this picture was made. One convict, a prison guard and an Ossining policeman were shot and killed in gun fights as the convicts fled.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace (center) wife of the Vice President, took the place of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the annual Easter egg rolling on the White House lawn in Washington. Mrs. Wallace greets Kay Knapp, 2, while other children crowd around. At the right is Capt. Herbert L. Marcey, of the White House police. Thousands of children and adults attended the rolling.

TO OPEN GARDENS

Wilmington, April 16.—Through the generous courtesy of Mrs. Henry Walters, owner of Airlie, a truly gorgeous azalea estate, six miles east of Wilmington on U. S. Routes 74-76, the public will be permitted to see this beautiful place on two days in the immediate future. Mrs. Walters has authorized the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce to state that visitors will be admitted to Airlie on Friday and Saturday, April 25th and 26th. The hours each day will be from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. This is a considerable extension of time as compared with former seasons, when the gardens were open only during the afternoons of two days. This longer period for visitation will be of much convenience to flower lovers in North Carolina and other states, permitting them to visit Wilmington, see the gardens at their convenience, and leave sufficiently early to reach their homes in the evening.

Conforming with her accustomed generous policy, Mrs. Walters has indicated that the entire proceeds from the modest per individual admission fee will be devoted to charitable purposes and to relieve suffering humanity.

There are millions of azaleas in these gardens, and thousands of lovers of flowers will have an unparalleled opportunity to view a wonderful and truly gorgeous display of plants in full bloom. In addition other rare flowers and shhrubs of varied description may be seen by visitors who take advantage of this opportunity to visit the gardens, which are without a superior anywhere in the south.

Stewed rhubarb, chilled and mixed with cubed pineapple, seeded white cherries or sliced bananas gives a new spring dessert treat.

....Too Rich for whose Blood?"

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD anyone say about Pontiac, "Yes, it's a fine car, all right. Big, good-looking, easy to handle. But it's too rich for my blood"?

If and when you hear such a statement, you can be sure of one thing. The man who's talking has never owned a Pontiac.

As a matter of fact, both buying and driving a Pontiac are much less expensive than most people realize.

Pontiac prices are so close to the lowest that the difference in monthly payments is almost unbelievably small.

And many owners claim that they operate their Pontiacs for less than they formerly spent on much smaller cars.

Before you decide that a new Pontiac "Torpedo" is too rich for your blood, we suggest that you talk to a Pontiac owner who formerly drove a lowest-priced car. Then see your Pontiac dealer and ride in one, drive it—and get all the facts and figures which prove that, if you can afford any new car you can afford a Pontiac!

*PONTIAC PRICES BEGIN AT $828 FOR THE DE LUXE "TORPEDO" SIX BUSINESS COUPE

New York, April 17.—(AP)—The stock market, with the exception of steels, today contested with some success what the financial sector considered a generally "bad news" budget.

In relatively slow dealings early declines ranged from fractions to more than a point. These were later reduced or converted into modest advances when the carriers and scattered industrials began to attract support. Trends were no worse than slightly mixed near the fourth hour.

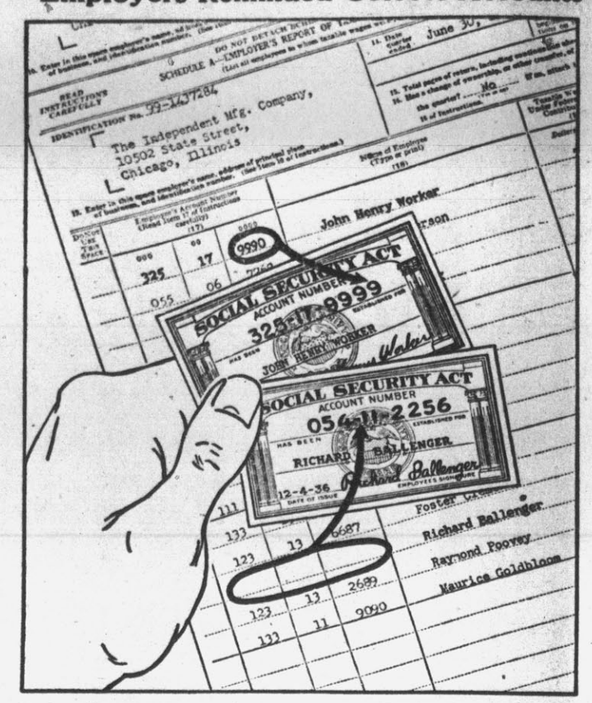
Employers Reminded Correct Accounts



Errors like this cost employers and the Government time and money. If the employer's social security tax return does not include each employee's social security account number or has the number incorrect, the Government must ask the employer to check back on his pay roll records to correct the error.

As the time for filing another quarterly social security tax return approaches, Marshall H. Barney manager of the Rocky Mount Social Security Board office, reminds employers to make certain they report each employee's name and social security account number correctly. In this way, he said they will save the time and expense of later having to check back on their pay-roll records to correct any errors.

Mr. Barney stated that practically all employers have now learned the importance of correctly reporting their employee's account numbers and names as well as their wages. He added, however, that occasionally an employee's account number will be missing from an employer's report, or the number will be slightly incorrect, or the employee's name will be spelled wrong. "In these cases," he said, "we must ask the employer to check back on his records and supply the correct information. Sometimes the employer has failed to get the correct name or account number from the employee and must take time to check with him. That means a waste of time and consequently is expensive for the employer."

Mr. Barney pointed out that the law makes the employer responsible for maintaining a record of the employee's name, account number and wages and for reporting them correctly to the government. The next quarterly social security tax return is due on or before April 30

Receive New Order of Bicycle License Tags

Chief of Police George Clark disclosed today that another shipment of 200 bicycle tags had arrived and advised all owners of the vehicles who have not already purchased the tags to do so at once.

The first shipment of 500 tags were exhausted with in a few weeks after they went on sale and another order was mailed.

A new city ordinance requires that all bicycles have the license tags attached and also require that they be equipped with a light if they are to be used at night.

Officers already have shown they intend to enforce the act by bringing into court violators of the act.

$3,500,000,000 NEW TAXES AGREED ON FOR NEXT YEAR

Morgenthau said, "I am happy to say that the combined Democratic and Republican leadership of the Senate and the House have given unanimous approval to this program."

"We reached this figure," Morgenthau said, "on the basis that we ought to raise at least two-thirds of our expenditures by taxation and one-third by borrowing. We figure expenditures in the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1, will be about $19,000,000,000.

Elk In West Are Air-Minded

Denver, Colo.—(AP)—Elk and antelope are such curious animals it's easy to take a census of them by airplane on western ranges. They run into the open and peer curiously into the sky when they hear the purr of an engine. Deer, on the other hand, run for shelter and hide.

The officials prefer to use planes because as much work can be done in a day in the air as can be accomplished in a week or more on foot or horseback.

FIND HAYDN MASS IN CHURCH ARCHIVES

Vienna.—(AP)—A hitherto unknown Mass by Joseph Haydn, famous Austrian composer of the 18th century, has been found in the archives of the "Heiliggeist Kirche" (Holy Spirit Church) at Oedenburg.

The new Mass is called "The Creation," the same title which Haydn had given to his well-known oratorio.

Swiss Put Children On Ration List

Bern, Switzerland.—(AP)—Even children are rationed in Switzerland.

Victimized children of other nations are permitted to enter, even for vacations, in small numbers only. The country's economic position is too precarious to permit many to come in.

The regulations are based partly on eperience from the first World war when 10,000 Austrian children received vacations.

Detail Cows For Cavalry Duty

Pueblo, Colo.—(AP)—It's hardly noticeable but a select number of Pueblo horses are wearing cows' tails this spring. After long years of faithful service on the City Park merry-go-round the horses (all wooden) needed new tails. No horse hair was available. So officials visited a cow barn and borrowed what hair was needed. They said even the regular merry-go-round customers failed to note the deception.

Down The Hatch

East Liverpool, O.—(AP)—Workmen cleaning a sewer near a laundry reported finding $7 in change a couple of wrist watches, several rings, numerous pieces of women's jewelry, three pen knives, a batch of marbles and at least a half bushel of safety pins.
