CRITICAL STAGE NEARS IN BALKAN STRIFE

AXIS POSITIONS ASSAULTED BY BRITISH FLEET

Warships Continue to Hurl Shells On African Posts

FOES ENGAGED IN LAND FIGHTING

Same Tactics Used to Check Nazi Drive as Employed by British in Their African Offensive

Cairo, April 18.—(AP)—British warships are continuing to pump hundreds of tons of shells into Axis positions west of Salum, Egyptian outpost just across the border from Libya where land fighting is raging between the British and Italian and German advance units.

The shelling started 48 hours ago and helped put the brakes on the Axis advance across the western desert, military authorities reported today.

Long columns of Axis motor transports were declared destroyed by the British men-of-war, which moved closer in shore and kept up the attack despite frequent Axis air attacks.

Particularly heavy casualties were believed by the British to have been inflicted on Axis forces by naval shells hitting the road west of Salum.

Units from the British Mediterranean fleet operating west of Tobruk, where a British force is battling repeated Axis assaults, delivered a terrific blasting against the air base at El Gazala. At least five planes on the ground were said to have been destroyed and huge craters torn in the air field.

The naval bombardments were declared to have dispelled much of the force of the Axis drive, which has pushed the British back nearly 400 miles from El Aghella, advance point of their westward surge across Libya.

It was just such teamwork as the British employed in their own drive New Guinea, which literally battered pieces of the Italian advance into the fortifications of Salum and sunk two destroyers and 14 other vessels at Tobruk 80 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.

British Strike Back At Nazis With Air Attack In Very Heart Of Berlin

Royal Air Force Uses Powerful Super Bombs In Biggest Assault Ever Carried Out On German Capital; Luftwaffe Wages New Assaults On England Following Wednesday's Attack On London

London, April 18.—(AP)—The Royal Air Force, striking back in swift and fiery answer to Wednesday night's heaviest Nazi raid on London, pounded the heart of Berlin overnight with new and powerful "super bombs" in its biggest assault yet upon the German capital, the British announced today.

"Very substantial damage" was inflicted on Berlin, the Air Ministry declared, while the Luftwaffe aimed new blows at southern, eastern and northeastern England, singling out the south coast naval base of Portsmouth for an hour-long attack.

"It will remind the Germans that the RAF still is able to reach Berlin," London sources said of the Berlin assault.

London, still recovering from the effects of Wednesday night's raid, the worst of the war, had two brief air raid alarms between midnight and dawn, but no bombs fell in the capital.

Two German night raiders were officially reported downed, bringing to 66 the total the British say that have been destroyed in the last 18 nights.

Herbert Morrison, Ministry of Home Security, told London defense workers some of the new type high explosives were carried to Berlin by the new four-motored Short-Stirling bomber which is capable of carrying several tons of bombs and reputedly is the most powerful in use by an air force in the world.

Details of the Short-Stirling are secret, but it is known to have a long range, high speed and particularly strong defense weapons. It has been used heretofore in British attacks on German-occupied territory.

The senator said his information came from "a man who has close contact with the government," a "government investigator" and two private citizens.

Tobey read the Senate a telegram from President Roosevelt requesting information on administration policy toward convoys and noted he introduced a resolution on March 31 to forbid convoys.

"The Board of Trade and the Ministry of Economic Warfare announce that Yugoslavia is to be regarded as enemy-occupied territory for purposes of trading with the enemy and blockade.

"It accordingly is a punishable offense to have commercial, financial or other intercourse or dealings with or for the benefit of any person in that territory. As from today moreover, Yugoslavia will be regarded as an enemy destination for contraband purposes and all goods of Yugoslav origin or ownership will be liable to seizure."

NO ACTION YET ON FIRE TRUCK

Question Discussed by Board In Meeting Last Night

The Greenville Board of Aldermen met in a called session last night with the question of the purchase of a new fire truck and other equipment the principal business up for consideration, but definite action again was postponed.

After a general discussion, the board authorized Mayor B. B. Sugg to secure by wire additional revised bids and to purchase a truck and other equipment. It was agreed, however, that before a purchase is made the mayor and Chief George Gardner of the Fire Department are to make an inspection of the equipment and ascertain if the apparatus to be purchased meets the requirements of the South Eastern Underwriters Association, which agency has the sole authority to reduce insurance rates in this area.

Several other matters were taken up by the board.

Mayor Sugg turned over a $5,000 check from M. O. Minges to help pay for the erection of the fire tower. The mayor was authorized to officially notify Mr. Minges of the acceptance of the check and advise him that the tower would be known as the Minges fire tower.

R. B. Lee, city attorney, advised the board that the Federal Housing Authority had released property purchased from the Higginbotham brothers of building restrictions. The site is to be used for erection of the fire tower, a curb market and the remainder to be used as a playground. It is located adjacent to the West Greenville school.

The proposed curb market also was discussed and after suggestions (Continued on page six)

OPERATION OF U. S. CONVOYS FLATLY DENIED

Charge Made By Sen. Tobey Refuted By Barkley

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—Democratic Leader Barkley told the Senate today that Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, had given him "unequivocal and emphatic assurance" that the navy has not convoyed and is not now convoying shipments of war materials.

Barkley made his statement after Senator Tobey (R-N.H.) had asserted he had information from four unnamed individuals that the navy was engaged in convoy duty.

"I conferred with Mr. Knox and Admiral Stark this morning," Barkley reported, "and they authorized me to say that not a single ship, American or foreign, carrying war materials had been convoyed or is being convoyed."

"They said that no order had been given by anybody in authority to convoy such shipments anywhere in the world."

Noting that Tobey had not named his informants on the convoy question, Barkley said he believed the declarations by Knox and Stark "are entitled to credit by American people over the rumors and backstairs gossip given by people whose names are not revealed."

"With all frankness and kindness," the Kentucky senator continued, "I believe that any man in a responsible position renders the people no service by trying to create the suspicion that the President is not acting in good faith."

The senator said his information came from "a man who has close contact with the government," a "government investigator" and two private citizens.

Tobey read the Senate a telegram from President Roosevelt requesting information on administration policy toward convoys and noted he introduced a resolution on March 31 to forbid convoys.

James Mayo, 37, died at Taylor Hospital, Washington, N. C., at 1 o'clock this morning after four days of illness. Death was the result of a ruptured appendix.

Funeral services will be conducted at the grave site in Mount Pleasant cemetery Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. L. E. Ballard, Free Will Baptist minister of Greenville.

Mr. Mayo was born and reared in the Fleming's Cross Roads community but for the last three years was employed as a guard at a state prison camp two miles from Washington.

Surviving is one sister, Mrs. W. J. Mizelle of the Pactolus community.

U. S. AIRCRAFT SAFELY FLOWN TO SINGAPORE

Bombers Arrive At Singapore For Patrol Duty

Singapore, April 18.—(AP)—American-made patrol bombers—the same as the latest addition to the U. S. Navy—roared in here today after a trans-Pacific flight.

They were greeted by squadrons of R. A. F. pilots in Brewster-Buffalo fighters which authorities announced, were in the air within 24 hours of their uncrating.

American-built Lockheed Hudsons also roared seaward to meet the big patrol bombers completing their voyage across the South China sea to join British and Australian patrols charged with keeping the empire's Eastern sear lanes clear.

Arrival of American-made patrol bombing planes at Singapore, apparently in quantity, is news of which only terse advance hints were given.

The aircraft made in San Diego, Calif., and used by the United States navy for a number of years, ostensibly made the Pacific crossing via the "island-stopping stones" used by the Pan-American Airways commercial flying boats.

Midway, Wake and Guam are used as refueling and overnight stops on the course westward from Honolulu.

Whether the patrol bombers, two-engine aircraft which many times have taken the flight from the American mainland to Hawaii in stride, were new ships manufactured for the British, or were loaned to them by the Navy department, was not clear.

The Brewster planes, mentioned in the Singapore dispatch, were shipped by freighter to Singapore and are rated as some of the top fighters of the navy.

Nazi Troops Force Allies To Fall Back

Allies Retreat Deeper into Aegean Kingdom Acknowledged By British Middle East Command; Axis Drive Continued Despite Heavy Casualties; Yugoslavia Capitulates To Axis

By The Associated Press German troops, flooding down from the north—presumably from fallen Yugoslavia—drove the Allied armies to execute a "gradual withdrawal to a shorter line of defense" in northern Greece today, and it appeared that the 13-day-old battle of the Balkans was fast approaching its critical stage.

British Middle East headquarters acknowledging the allied retreat deeper into the Aegean kingdom, declared, however, that the German advance had involved a "costly" toll.

Some estimates put the Nazi dead at 50,000.

"The situation is developing unfavorably," a Greek spokesman acknowledged sadly.

The struggle against two empires (Germany and Italy) imposed on us by Germany could not last indefinitely.

Dispatches from Athens said at least 10 German divisions—about 120,000 troops—were smashing at the allied lines, supported by more than 1,000 warplanes.

Australian, New Zealand and other British troops fighting in the Mount Olympus sector were reported under terrific aerial bombardment, while on the west flank Nazi panzer columns knifed down the Greek-Albanian border placed the Greeks in new jeopardy.

Yugoslavia's struggle was pronounced.

Hitler's high command said surviving troops of Yugoslavia's 1,200,000-man army surrendered unconditionally, effective at noon (5 a. m. EST) after 12 days of fighting.

By contrast, Holland lasted only five days against the Nazi blitzkrieg last year, Poland 18, Belgium 19, and France 45.

Authoritative quarters in London acknowledged that the situation in Greece was "serious" but that the British-Greek line had not been pierced.

One report from the front estimated Nazi losses in the Greek invasion thus far at 50,000 dead, but the German war machine continued to hurl its forces southward.

Military sources in Berlin said the Yugoslav victory was "one almost without bloodshed," and declared German dead in the campaign would be "counted in the hundreds."

They said the capitulation of the Yugoslav army would mean that "more men, equipment and a greater concentration of brilliant leadership" could be thrown into the campaign in Greece.

Rome, April 18.—(AP)—Italian divisions advancing without rest against the Greeks are within sight of Porto Edda, the Albanian port formerly known as Santi Quaranta, but which was renamed for Premier Mussolini's daughter, the official Italian news agency reported today.

Porto Edda is the last Albanian port held by the Greeks, who occupied it December 6.

Premet, Argirocastro and Porto Palermo also have been re-occupied by the Italians driving the Greeks back in disorder, the high command said.

Arrival of Fascist troops at Dubrovnik coming from both north and south also completed occupation of Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the high command indicated.

Later, the members were delighted with a paper written about "The Romance of Trains" and given by the hostess, Mrs. Pace. INDUSTRIAL VISITS PLANNED BEFORE STATE CONVENTION

Between now and the convention of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs a number of industrial visits have been planned. Mrs. John D. Robinson, president of the Federation, expressed the hope that the club women of the state will avail themselves of the fine opportunity and the real privilege of going into these wonderful plants.

Mrs. Robinson expresses the hope that many club women will visit the plants and write papers on these visits. Only a limited number of women can go through the plants and if you want to go let Mrs. Robinson know at once so that your reservation may be made. Mrs. Robinson expresses the hope that if you make a reservation, you will keep the appointment or send some clubwoman in your place as it is desired to give as many women as possible an opportunity to see these plants in actual operation.

On Thursday of this week there was a visit to the Hanes Manufacturing Company of Winston-Salem at 10:30 in the morning. On next week on the 24th, there will be a visit to the Champion Paper and Fibre Company of Canton. The women are asked to meet at the main office at 1:45 p. m.

On the following day there will be a visit to the Chatham Blanket Company at Elkin. The women will meet at the main office, the time to be announced later. On April 29 the Tomlinson Furniture Company of High Point will be open to the clubwomen, at 2:30 o'clock. Then the following week, May 7, a part of the program of the convention, the Vick Chemical Company of Greensboro, will be open to the clubwomen that afternoon at two o'clock. The executive board of the Federation will meet in Greensboro on that day, May 7, at 10:30 a. m. for a board meeting and luncheon, going on to Winston-Salem that afternoon for the opening of the convention that night.

The Junior Club meets in Winston-Salem Tuesday night, May 6.

Supervisor

Dr. R. L. Slay, teacher of chemistry and director of instruction in the Science department of East Carolina Teachers College is one of the faculty supervisors of the Open House being held today and tomorrow.

Between the hours of 2 to 5:30 this afternoon, 7:30 to 9:30 tonight, and 9 to 12:30 Saturday morning the public is invited to visit the science laboratories, and see the exhibits.

Dr. C. W. Edwards' lecture on liquid air, to be given Saturday morning from 11 to 12, is to be an outstanding feature of the program. Another item will be movies to be shown today at 4:30 and 8 o'clock tonight, and 10 a. m., Saturday.

Ward James of Winterville, as Edgar Linton, and Jane Copeland of Ahoskie as Isabel Linton, complete the foursome who complicate the romance of the play.

Joseph will be played by Russell Rogerson; Hinely Ershaw, Cathy's brother, by Billy Greene; Ellen Dean by Irene Mitcham; and old Ellen, the narrator, by Martha Rice.

The play's setting, two English moorland estates of the late eighteenth century, and the play's beauty to the beautifully-written story by Emily of the famous Brontë sisters.

"Wuthering Heights" will be offered in two performances, Friday and Saturday nights, May 16 and 17, in Austin auditorium.

Later, the members were delighted with a paper written about "The Romance of Trains" and given by the hostess, Mrs. Pace. Stating that she was glad she was given this subject because it was a hobby of her three boys, she gave several intimate glimpses of incidents that had happened in her family, such as going to House's station to let the boys ride home on the train.

Tracing the mode of travel from the beginning, first from limb to limb to escape the wild beasts, to about 1850 when a wagon drawn by a horse which followed a rail track was the mode, a graphic picture of the transition from one kind of travel to the next was given.

The first American built locomotive was the "Tom Thumb" constructed by Peter Cooper in 1830. Mrs. Pace vividly described all the types of trains from the beginning, showing pictures of each one to the present day of luxury trains which can be seen on all the main lines. In addition the importance of the trains in our national defense was pointed out.

After the program, a short business session was held. The club voted to give a donation to the playground project.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Lee Hannah and Mrs. W. G. Glass.

THESE Daring WOMEN Of The Flying Trapeze

ANTOINETTE CONCELLO
By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Feature Service Writer)
When Antoinette Concello flies from a trapeze in her spangled tights, she stops the show. Thousands hush to silence. Then, below the blaze of circus spotlights, the drums begin to roll.

Antoinette's pink clad body swings out, breaks sharp and full and flips into a ball. One...two and a half somersaults. Then she comes out of the spin and flies into the catcher's hands, swinging to meet her high above the net. The gaping thousands relax—and get back their breath.

Antoinette is billed as the only woman who does that two-and-a-half somersault trick. But it's not her only trick. Flying between trapeze and pedestal, she does some other difficult and dizzy spins.

She came to the circus from a convent school. At vacation time, about 12 years ago, she went to visit her circus performer sister in winter quarters at Bloomington, Ill. There she met Arthur Concello, a young aerialist who was destined to go places on a flying trapeze. They were married a few months later, when she was barely 16.

Arthur trained her for his profession, and now she is woman star of his troupe of 35 aerialists as well as a star of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus.

When the circus opened in Madison Square Garden, I went to see her in her be-flowered dressing room. I sat on a red and silver trunk beside her dressing table and watched her trim the callouses—heavy as corns—from the palms of her hands.

"They get like this when we work," she said. "Blisters first. And then they harden. It takes work, you know, climbing ropes, chinning yourself, swinging from a bar. You have to be strong before you can even try this work."

She slipped the negligee from her slender little body and flexed biceps that would have done a wrestler's credit. "Art taught me. He's a wonderful teacher."

I made a rapid back-stage tour—past bareback riders in spangled skirts, acrobats, elephant girls—to the dressing room of Russian-born Elly Ardely, another star. She holds the spotlight alone in the ring with trapeze balancing tricks so difficult she is said to be the only woman to try them.

She is a slim little blonde with sad blue eyes, fragile-looking as a

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDEMER

YESTERDAY: One minute Eileen Gardner had thought her life pretty well in hand, marriage with Jordan Estill in the offing. But in the midst of her post-graduation party Eileen jumped literally into the arms of a man named Martin, and now she has tracked Martin to another party, ostensibly to return the little gold ski he lost. Martin's group is just leaving.

Chapter Four Desperate Cry

The crowd surged forward. They were pressing close to the distinguished group as it crossed to the door. Eileen tried to force her way through, to get at least close enough to Martin to catch his eyes, to quickly ask his name and shove the ski into his hand.

But the people who had already met the party, the very important university and society set, the various notabilities who had been invited to meet Miss Willson and the other famous ones with her, were a solid mass around the party company. Their voices rose loud. Eileen, despairing, still tried to force herself through. But she was little and slender, and notabilities have a way of fattening in middle age. She merely got a terrible look from the two nearest dowagers.

"This isn't a bargain sale, young woman," the wife of the biggest businessman in the city hissed at her. It was not until the others were halfway down the awninged pavement to their cars that Eileen got free, even to see them.

"Martin!" she called desperately. He was just helping the shyness-haired young secretary into the limousine. He turned at the voice; he looked up and laughed and waved. Then he was inside, the door slammed, and he was gone.

The group inside the hall loosened, fell apart into chattering small units with a shrilled and gratified air. Eileen heard the scraps of talk: "Isn't she wonderful?" "The dear Senator is so simple and genuine." "They are doing a

"Did you know him?" Annette demanded.
"No—no." Eileen slid away, unheeding Annette's avid questioning. She tried the hostess, who was not too pleased at being stopped, as she trotted to a back room with some cronies for an after-party discussion.

"I don't know," Mrs. Onderdonk said. "Really, the manners of the present day, my dear child. . . . He crashed the gate, as they call it. Ran upstairs, burst into the women's dressing room. Came back without a word to me—to me, the hostess!"

"Possibly some important secret message," suggested another of the women; her prominent eyes widened at the idea. "You know, after all, Ida, nothing is too wild to happen. It might have been one of the young Roosevelt's they are all blond—"

"I know them. It wasn't," snapped Mrs. Onderdonk. "A playboy, that was what he was. What he had all the marks of being. Flying across the continent that crazy way for two minutes with some chit in the group. Some decadent young New York waster."

No Luck
Eileen let the group of fussing dowagers drop past her. Older people were such idiots. She walked to the back of the room and found a telephone. The airport.

The airport did not know. It seemed that to her that they almost overdid not knowing. And then it occurred to her that there were people with private flying fields. And that perhaps that was where Martin had taken off. But that was a dead end. You couldn't find out that way.

You couldn't find out any way. Eileen stopped herself, as she came out of the little telephone room. Was she crazy—clever, capable little Eileen Gardner, who had been planning her life so cannily and carefully till now?

She looked around the room. Jordan had lost her. He was up at the other end of the farthest parlor. He was talking agreeably to one of the older professors; one of a black-coated group who were standing round a mantelpiece, gossiping and relaxed. The sight of him, so usual, so kind, so sane, so ambitious should have pulled her back to herself as she had been.

She took one step toward him. Then she halted. There was another group, near them. Not so important; the women's dresses were brighter and more trimmed and less expensive, the men laughed louder—a couple of voices with a foreign accent echoed toward her. The musical and artistic group drawn together in secret boredom with the others, clustered in chairs and on a stool or so.

One man had a leg thrown over his chair arm, one of the younger women was on a floor cushion—even here in the sacred Onderdonk mansion. The group's center was a middle-aged woman with a tanned plump, intense face and long banged hair, filleted with unbecoming gold ribbon that had probably by its creases come off a candy box. Her dress was artistic but badly made, and her shoes were wrong for it.

But her vitality made up for all that. She was laughing and gesticulating with one hand; the other usual, imprisoned in that of the dark man with a crumpled shirt front who sat close by her, his spectacled eyes doglike on hers. The Weigands.

Eileen came close to them. She stood above them, and waited, till Martha Weigand's last staccato sentence came to its close. Then she spoke, deliberately.

"I wanted to talk to you. That audition you wrote me about, Mrs. Weigand."

Retrospect
"It isn't like her," her aunt said. She looked up from the pile of exercises she was correcting.

The neat, little old mission desk in a corner of the square, trim, inexpensively pretty living room, was what Eileen always remembered as her aunt's natural background. She belonged there, much more than at any of her other occupations.

Miss Gardner had a life which she said brightly, was a very satisfactory one. A broad life, she called it, with innocent pride. She and Helen Doran were popular with the other teachers in their school.

There was their group—two tables of bridge—which met fortnightly on Friday evenings, with a couple of bachelor teachers, a married assistant principal and his wife. It had small jokes which had become mired in for a generation; it had predestined partners, who knew each others' ways; it had a final gala night once a winter when the gentlemen took the ladies to a real show, with a two-dollar table d'hote dinner beforehand.

When Louise Gardner's brother and sister-in-law had died, close together, of flu in a bad flu winter in the late twenties, Miss Lou had taken over sixteen-year-old Eileen as a matter of course. Everybody had always had high hopes about Eileen. Even Helen Doran, who had been pretty and popular in a tall dark, serious way, and had lost her lover in the World War. The two women felt that it was a sort of carrying on the torch when the boys began to flood the little apartment; they smiled reminiscently over telephone calls by shy gruff young voices, and high school girls giggling with Eileen in little groups after school.

Miss Louise didn't know it, but in her dismay at Eileen's decision to go a hundred miles away and take a job that did not pay a living wage there was not only an unselfish concern for her niece's welfare, but dismay at losing her greatest pride and most valuable possession.

"But darling, any moron can go singing love songs down a radio," she mourned. "What about your intellectual life? And you had such a high I. Q.!"

"Black mark for brains," Eileen quoted to herself. She remembered every word Martin had said in that brief ten minutes, it seemed.

She paused in her work. She was sorting a pile of sheet music, on the long, narrow, and mahogany-stained table that served for a living-room piece and a dining table. Its makeshift elegance was all of a piece, she suddenly realized, with all of Aunt Louise's ways. She wanted, impatiently, either to eat sitting on a packing box or in a room especially for dining. Her usually deft hands blundered, and the plaster-bronzed book end in the shape of Rodin's "Thinker" went over and was just saved.

"But any moron can be a secretary to a professor, too," she said. "It's safe."

Eileen laughed. "Who wants to be safe?"

"It probably wouldn't be for long I'd like to see you in a little home of your own."

"The have them in lots of places besides here," Eileen said demurely; "or perhaps, if you married some kind of men, you might prefer just alighting for a while and going on again." A shack in New Zealand. A casual hut in Hawaii.

ST. LOUIS LAWYERS ISSUE FEE SCHEDULE

Hollywood—Not that I recommend the procedure for extra-curricular application, but getting swacked on the screen is an almost guaranteed method of attracting attention. It works in night clubs, too, but the only reward there is, is a hang-over.

Lana Turner has some drunk scenes in "Ziegfeld Girl" which have helped to convince bosses she can act as well as wear sweaters. Ann Southern, bored with the type of roles she was getting, refused to take any more until something different came along. It did in "Trade Winds," wherein hearty imbibing keyed the character and produced Ann Southern, comedienne.

Palmer's new one "The Puzzle of the Happy Hooligan," hits even closer home—starts with discovery of a writer's body murdered in his own office—at Paramount. . . .

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PROBLEM OF TEMPER

Frederick William IV of Germany lost his temper one day over a servant's neglect, and his wife, the Queen, stood still and looked about the room until the king asked her what she was looking for. "I am looking for the king," she said. His ungovernable passion had led him to act in an unkingly fashion.

Henry Marjyn was one of the greatest saints that the Church of England has ever produced. It was said of him that no man of his generation more perfectly showed forth Christ's characteristics of gentleness and patience than did he. But Marjyn himself testifies that in his youth he had an ungovernable temper. He spilled it out over anyone, and his hot words and malicious rejoinders to those who presumed to differ with him often ran like molten lava over the hearts of his loved ones. His description of himself at that time gives us a picture of a most unpleasant person.

The worst passion in the world can be mastered if we set about to master it not by ourselves alone, but by ourselves and God working together. Marjyn became a conspicuously saintly character not because of his strong will, but because of his strong faith. St. Paul declared that he could do all things, but he was careful to add these words, "through Him that strengtheneth me."

Be the passion little or great, it drives us at last to the despairing conclusion that we are helpless beneath its tyranny. But with God's help, all things are possible. (All Rights Reserved.—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

OUR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

While official announcement of highway commission appointments will not be released until tonight or tomorrow, authentic information from Raleigh is to the effect that Col. E. G. Flanagan, of this city, will be the appointee from this district. Col. Flanagan's candidacy for the appointment has received the wholehearted endorsement of citizens of this county as well as some of the other counties in the district, and the news that he is to receive the appointment is welcome hereabouts. Col. Flanagan is widely known throughout the state and well qualified for the post, and we feel that Governor Broughton in making this appointment has chosen wisely.

THE 13TH JUROR

The incident in Superior court here yesterday which necessitated the declaring of a mistrial by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle could not have happened had we had the system of a thirteenth or emergency juror in this county.

In yesterday's murder trial the evidence was all in, the lawyers had completed their addresses before the jury, and Judge Frizzelle was on the verge of closing his charge to the jury, when one of the jurors was notified that his wife had suffered a severe heart attack. Judge

Russia Speaks

Frizzelle immediately excused the member from the jury, making it necessary to declare the uncompleted case a mistrial.

On a few previous occasions such incidents have happened in our court here, with the result that mistrials were ordered and the whole case had to be tried again. We believe this matter of an extra juror, especially for important or long-drawn-out cases, should be adopted by our county as a safeguard against unnecessary rehearing of cases that might have to be declared mistrials because of emergencies that require the releasing of a juror during the trial.

Washington — Romance comes to Washington about as often as to any other city of its size — but rare are the stories like this one, involving a newspaper man and a movie star. It's a Japanese romance — which is why it could only happen in Washington. The state department and the war department are all mixed up in it.

Clarke Kawakami is an American. The fact that he is half Japanese doesn't mean that he isn't an American. The fact that he works for Domei — the Japanese news agency — doesn't mean that he isn't American. Clarke was born in Mokena, Ill. His mother was Caucasian-American. His father was Japanese and probably would have been American, too, if it hadn't been for the immigration laws.

About eight or nine years ago, Clarke was ordered back to Japan and for six years he pounded out Occidental news for Oriental newspapers. Although he had been born, reared, schooled and had received all his cub reporting training in the United States, he liked his job.

After a while he met a girl. In nearly all of Japan she was known as Chieko Susuga — the "Young Lady of the Bamboo Everlasting." She was a stage and screen star. She was a sort of Bette Davis to Japanese films. Clarke and Chieko fell in love. The barriers of birth and different educations broke down. It wasn't very long before Mokena, Ill., and the Hollywood of Japan were joined by a matrimonial pledge.

Couldn't Get Visa.
Then Clarke was ordered back to the United States. For eight or nine months, Chieko Susuga pounded her little fists on the doors of the American embassy and tried to get a visa to come to the United States. Why? they asked. Well, oh, well, because she wanted to study, explained the shy little Oriental lady, who didn't understand Occidental ways. She didn't get to first base. Probably with tears spreading the ink spots, she wrote Clarke "They won't let me come to America."

was on the high seas, Clarke Kawakami got a questionnaire. He read it over and over. And all that he could make out of it was that if he was physically fit, he would have to report within a few months for induction into the United States army. Clarke Kawakami was and still is physically fit. By summer, he probably will be marching with a gun over his shoulder — earning all of $21 a month.

Couldn't Support Wife.
"What can I do?" he asked the other day. "I can't go on working for or drawing salary from the Japanese news agency while I'm serving in the United States army. I'll have to resign."

"But I am not rich. My father is not rich. Even in Japan I could not support my wife on $21 a month. She is willing to marry a newspaper man. And that is something very considerable, because in Japan she makes more than the prime minister. But how could she live on the salary of a draftee — $21 a month?"

So the romance of Clarke Kawakami, the Domei newspaper man who happened to be born American; and Chieko Susuga, the Bette Davis of Tokyo, hangs in the air. I am sorry that I cannot put a "hired-happily-ever-after" on this romance. But that's the way it is. By the time you read this Chieko will have been told of her fiance's dilemma. But you can't expect a little lady who can't speak English and doesn't know Occidental ways to solve a problem that has completely stumped a young man from Mokena, Ill. At this writing, it looks like another instance where romance will have to wait on world affairs and the Young Lady of the Bamboo Everlasting will have to bide her time while an otherwise willing rookie does his year of military service for Uncle Sam.

Short Shots

Raleigh, April 18.—Whoever gets the recently created post of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles is going to have a man-sized job on his hands setting up an organization which will function smoothly and without a lot of internal friction.

This because the new commission will take over a number of divisions whose chiefs are habitually and perennially at logger heads. He will either have to fire them all and make a new start, or he will have to do the job of conciliator, which would tax the "ace" of the federal labor conciliation service.

Take the three main divisions, for example. They are highway safety, headed by Ronald Hecutt; the highway patrol, commanded by Major John Armstrong; and the motor vehicle bureau, bossed by Dick McLaughlin.

Obviously no one of these three gentlemen will come out in the open and publicly declare his dislike and distrust of both or either of the others; but there is enough evidence to make it safe to say that none of them is proud of, or happy over the work of the others.

Not only that, but every one of them hopes he is smitten by a political bolt and made Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Probably none has even a remote chance, but as the song goes "You Can't Stop Me From Dreamin'."

That's the lay (or should it be lie) of the land around the division in charge of motor vehicle activities, and that's why the commissioner, when named, is going to face a task requiring considerable judgment and perhaps a great deal of tact and diplomacy.

They Get The Same Pay Now!

chance that North Carolina's total of motor vehicle registrations will reach the three-quarter million mark this year.

Through April 11, this year's registrations were 698,383 as compared with 554,999 on the corresponding date in 1940; an increase to that time of 53.383.

Total 1940 registration was 669,000, in round numbers, meaning that 114,000 vehicles were registered after April 11. That same total, added to the 608,383 of this year would bring 1941's registration above 720,000—not so far from the 750,000 mark.

It is possible, on the other hand, that there will not be as many registrations the rest of this year as there were after April 11 in 1940 because it is possible that last year several thousand persons were financially unable to pay their license tag fee until later than they were forced to wait this time.

The play "Young Hale of Connecticut seems rather inappropos as the theatrical vehicle to be put on by Washington, North Carolina, high school students during a North Carolina celebration like the Tulip festival.

Weren't there available for production any plays about the Tar Heel state?

The highway safety division received 903 reports from law enforcement officers of the state last month. Carl Barefoot, statistical expert, said today. That's a big improvement on the reporting record of officers for last, and previous years, he added.

Now quite happy. Nell's problem is this: he is six feet six inches tall. When you play a trombone for an orchestra, as he does with Woody Herman's orchestra, you have a lot of cross-country touring to do.

When you tour the country you run into a lot of small hotels that just aren't equipped with beds long enough for a six-foot-six man to sleep in.

So they bought the trailer. Nell plays the trombone all night and then his wife Betty, (formerly of Des Moines) drives.

It is, he says, quite a load off his mind.

Those top-notch comedy dancers (probably the best in the country) Paul and Grace Hartman, got their start in the profession as a serious act. They began in Los Angeles with one of the Ruth St. Denis ballet troupes and for three years tried to make a go of it as a straight ballroom dance team. But Paul was too homey. His carrot-colored hair and peter-pumpkin pan just naturally made people laugh.

One night at Len Marden's old Riviera they decided to heave dignity out the window and go comedy whole hog. Marden was so angry he sent word backstage they were fired. But when he saw them and heard the crowd guffawing he changed his mind. Since that night on the banks of the Hudson they have been the town's goofs plus ultra.

That phrase "Ben Marden's old Riviera" is a story within itself. The new club, as this corner has often and loudly proclaimed, is the most beautiful nightclub in the world. The old one wasn't bad either. But Ben got big hearted as he usually does around Thanksgiving, opened the place and prepared 500 turkey dinners for homeless men. That night the place caught fire and burned to the ground.

Greenie Batterymen Work Out With College Players

FULL PRACTICE OPENS MONDAY

Pitchers Declared To Be Getting Into Good Shape

Rube Wilson, skipper of the Greenville baseball team, took his pitchers and catchers over to the college field this afternoon and a scrimmage game was played with Coach Christenbury's college squad providing the infielders and outfielders.

The local pilot used all of his pitchers and catchers in an effort to see how they looked against opposition. He expressed satisfaction with the way the pitchers are showing up in early spring training and said they would be ready to start real work next week when the remainder of the squad arrives to get into full training. The season opens on Thursday, May 8 and before that date Rube plans to whip a formidable team into shape. Greenville opens in Wilson this year. The two teams will return to Guy Smith stadium for the first game here on Friday afternoon. The arrangement gives Greenville a home game the first Sunday of play. The Williamson Martins will provide the opposition.

Prior to the opening of the season, however, the Greenies will play several exhibition contests, two already having been scheduled with the Class D Sanford club.

This speedy ball hawk and timely hitter is Gerald (Gee) Walker. He'll give Cleveland's outfield some power it lacked in 1940.

Concession

The Greenville Baseball Club, Inc., today is advertising for sealed bids on the soft drink and all other concession privileges at Guy Smith park during the 1941 baseball season.

Bids will be received until noon, Friday, April 25, at the office of the secretary, D. C. Moore, Jr., 515 Dickinson avenue, or by mail, Box 93.

The ad stipulates that a $50 deposit must accompany each bid.

BOARD LIKELY SEE NEW FACES

Three Members of Conservation Body Slated To Go

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, April 18.—The fifteen-member Board of Conservation and Development (which will be named by Governor Broughton sometime between now and May 1) will likely include at least seven brand-new members, probably more.

That's figured on the theory that at least three of the present eleven incumbent board members will not be re-named. There already exists one vacancy—that created when John McLaughlin of Fredon resigned to serve in the House of Representatives.

Without professing any information and relying only on the logic of the situation, your reporter does not look for reappointment of Coleman W. Roberts of Charlotte, Thurmond Chatham of Winston-Salem or James L. McNair of Laurinburg.

The first-named has been in bad health for a long time and has been very irregular in attending board meetings as a result. The other two became very sick politically when they quit the Democratic ship and openly supported Wendell Willkie last fall. Both are prominent industrialists and it has been said in some quarters that the governor will not dare fire them because of their financial prominence; but it is obvious that Mr. Broughton can hardly remain consistent with his claims to being a New Dealer and at the same time re-name these bolts.

Dodgers' hope is Hal (Pete) Reiser, heavy-clubbing youngster slated for centerfield starting duty. Flatbushers say he'll star.

Josh Horne, vice chairman of the board, head of the advertising committee, and publisher of the Rocky Mount Telegram, comes very close to being in his same political group—certainly neither he nor his paper helped Roosevelt any last year though Mr. Horne did deny the categorical statement of Editor and Publisher that the Telegram was a Willkie sheet. It is believed, however, that the Horne neck was saved when Rocky Mount's Lee Gravely one of the many gubernatorial candidates eliminated in the first primary, declared for Broughton in the second. In addition, it is everywhere conceded that Horne has done a remarkably efficient job in handling the state's advertising program.

The other members seem likely to be re-named—though there isn't any certainty that all of them want to be or that Broughton will appoint them, even if they do.

Santford Martin, ranking member in point of service, was a roommate of the governor at Wake Forest and their sons are now rooming together at the same school. The Winston-Salem editor not only will likely be reappointed, but he is a good bet as vice chairman of the board—the governor is ex-officio chairman.

Colonel J. W. Harrelson of Raleigh was once director of the department and would be a cinch for reappointment if he were not such a busy man. Governor Broughton has already named him to one important post—the retirement board.

Roy Hampton from Plymouth is qualified to represent commercial fishing industries, and the governor has said he wants a well-rounded board with membership from all forms of North Carolina interests.

Charles E. Ray, Jr., is from Waynesville in the heart of the tourist section and is interested in the Blue Ridge Parkway and other recreational activities.

RECORD SET BY CITIES OF N. C.

Fewer Urban Traffic Deaths Despite General Increase

Raleigh, April 18.—North Carolina's cities are hanging up a creditable record in the matter of traffic fatalities so far this year, the Highway Safety Division reported today.

In the face of a 45.8 per cent increase in traffic deaths for the state as a whole, the 28 cities of the state more than held their own with 36 fatalities against 37 for the first quarter of last year. Fourteen of the 28 cities of over 10,000 population got through the three-month period without a traffic death being charged against their record. Out standing among these was Winston-Salem, which had five traffic fatalities the first three months of last year.

Fatalities for the first quarter of this year, by cities, were as follows: Charlotte, 9; Greensboro, 5; Raleigh, 4; Wilmington, 4; Kannapolis, 2; Fayetteville, 2; Durham, 2; Asheville, 2; and Wilson, Roanoke Rapids, Reidsville, Kinston, Hickory and Greenville, one each.

Cities with clean slates for the first quarter were: Winston-Salem

High Point, Rocky Mount, Concord, Gastonia, Elizabeth City, Goldsboro, Leighton, New Bern, Salisbury, Shelby, Statesville and Thomasville.

"The fact that our cities showed a slight decrease in traffic fatalities the first quarter of this year while fatalities outside of cities increased by 58 per cent, indicates that North Carolina police departments are doing a pretty good job of enforcing traffic laws and regulations," commented Ronald Hoeft director of the Highway Safety Division. "I urge them to keep up the good work."

SEN. REYNOLDS MAY GET POST

Acts As Chairman Of Senate Military Committee

Washington, April 16.—(AP)—Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.) acted as chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee today at its first meeting since the death of Senator Sheppard (D-Tex.), former chairman.

Reynolds, ranking majority member, would be elevated to the chairmanship under Senate seniority rule, but there have been reports of opposition by the administration, because of Reynolds' disagreement with its foreign policy.

Reynolds, however, expressed belief he would get the chairmanship as soon as the Senate Steering Committee, which will make the nomination, considers the matter.

"There is not a senator more interested in national defense than I am," he said, recalling that he had recommended fortifications in islands near the United States, also military training for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

All Dairies In County Given Grade A Rating

The regular quarterly grading of dairies furnishing milk to the citizens of Pitt county was released today through the local health department.

The report shows that all dairies are in a class of Grade A, which means that the citizens of Pitt county are being furnished with the highest grade of milk.

According to Dr. Ennett, Pitt county health officer, the citizens of Pitt county do not drink enough milk. He stated that milk is regarded as a health food of first importance and he expressed the opinion that a milk cow and garden for every farm in Pitt county would not only greatly improve the general health of our people but would actually wipe out pellagra, a disease which now affects either in a mild or severe form hundreds and hundreds of our citizens.

The dairies are: Blount's, Harvey's, S. T. Lewis' Little Creek, Barnhill's, Greenhill, Carolina Dairy Inc., Pecan Grove, East View.

REVEALS DATA ON MATTRESS PROJECT

(Continued from page one) cess of four persons. The total income means the cash income received, or earned and collectible, from all sources, plus the local market value of unsold farm products raised for sale or received as payment for services or rent and held for sale, minus farm rent paid or to be paid in cash.

Important: Each eligible family may receive one mattress for each two persons in the family but not to exceed three mattresses per family. This means that a family of six could receive three mattresses.

If a family of four or six has already one mattress they can now receive one or two more as the case may be.

The same responsible member of the family should make each application if the family is eligible for more than one mattress.

All applications must be filed by April 30, 1941.

To fill out applications, a person may go to one of the centers or to the following stores: H. H. Porter in Simpson; L. C. Venter in Shelmerdine; W. C. Spence in Black Jack and A. P. Fleming in Grimesland, or at the home demonstration office.

Declares Mistrial In Case Against Negro

The trial of Moses Anderson, Negro, charged with murder, was suddenly halted yesterday afternoon after a day and a half had been devoted to the case, when the wife of one of the jurors, Mrs. J. H. Stocks of near Ayden, suffered a heart attack, which later proved fatal.

When word of the condition of Mrs. Stocks reached the bench Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, who was in the midst of charging the jury, permitted Mr. Stocks to return home and declared a mistrial.

BIG AUTO FIRM FACING STRIKE

General Motors, Is Threatened by CIO Union Walkout

Detroit, April 16.—(AP)—One week after settlement of their strike at the Ford Motor Company, the CIO's United Automobile Workers threatened today to walk out at plants at General Motors Corporation.

R. A. Thomas, union president, announced that a five-day notice of intention to strike had been filed with the Michigan Labor Mediation board in compliance with state law, and at the same time union heads instructed locals in 61 General Motors plants throughout the country to take strike votes.

The action came after six weeks of negotiations between the corporation, world's largest producer of motor cars, and the union over the latter's demands for amendments to an agreement governing wages and working conditions.

Expiration date of the agreement is Sunday. It automatically renews itself from year to year, however, and union officials said they believed it would be kept in effect beyond Sunday even though no settlement of differences may be reached by that time.

A strike in the 61 plants would affect an estimated 160,000 workers. Union officials omitted 13 additional plants from the strike vote notification in order, they said, to prevent an interruption of defense production.

"In no case will any defense work be struck," a union statement said.

The 13 omitted plants, the union said, have the bulk of defense orders, an estimated $42,500,000.

U. S. Coast Guard Raises Age Limit

The United States Coast Guard is now accepting applications for enlistment, from young men between the ages of 18 and 28 years. Applicants must be citizens of the United States, of good moral character and meet the physical and educational requirements.

Base pay for original enlistment is $21.00 per month and usually increases to $36.00 per month at the end of 3 months in a training school. The average boy is advanced to $54.00 per month usually after the end of his first year of service. Each man on his first enlistment is given $12.75 clothing bounty allowance for uniforms, etc. Enlistments are made for a period of three years.

Schools are maintained to teach approximately 25 different trades and every man is encouraged to study some specific trade, which will give him an opportunity for broader, general and professional education.

Each man is granted thirty-days' leave of absence with pay each year and shore leave for a brief period not to exceed forty-eight hours. Free medical attention is provided for members of the service.

This service of 150 years of tradition offers, career, adventure, education and action. For further information apply in person or by mail to the U. S. Coast Guard Recruiting Office, Room 226 Post Office Building, Norfolk, Va.

Evangelist To Be At Church Here Sunday

Mrs. Lizzie McAdams, evangelist of Brownwood, Texas, who several years ago conducted a city-wide revival meeting in Greenville, will be at the Greenville Free Will Baptist church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to deliver her prophetic message on "The Dove Will Come Home in the Evening."

The meeting will be interdenominational in nature, and has been scheduled for this hour so that friends of Mr. and Mrs. McAdams in other churches of the city can come and hear her without neglecting their own services. Mr. McAdams will have part in the service and the public is cordially invited by the pastor and people of the Free Will Baptist church to attend and meet these old friends again.
