ALLIES ASSERT DEFENSE UNBROKEN

AUTO INDUSTRY TO PARAMOUNT DEFENSE WORK

No New 1943 Model Cars Expected To Be Produced

ACTION TAK'N BY GENER'L MOTORS

Ford, Chrysler And Other Manufacturers Expected To Take Similar Action In Near Future

Detroit, April 19.—(AP) General Motors' announcement that it is making no plans for new model passenger cars in 1943 is expected in automotive circles to be followed shortly by similar decisions by the remainder of the motor car industry.

In announcing his company's decision yesterday in New York, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., General Motors' board chairman, said the action had been determined upon so that all possible acceleration might be given to the national defense program.

All other companies manufacturing motor vehicles have pledged their fullest efforts to the defense materials production program and decision to forego 1943 model changes has been regarded among authoritative observers in the industry as an "obvious eventuality."

While the Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corporation, which with General Motors produce about 80 per cent of all the nation's automobiles, have made no definite statements yet of their 1943 model plans, their reaction to the Sloan announcement left little doubt of their plans for 1943.

"The entire industry," said a Ford spokesman, "has been of the opinion that there would be no new models for 1943. As far as the Ford Motor Company is concerned, the defense program comes first and we have so stated."

Chrysler's attitude was expressed by K. T. Keller, its president.

"We have been so busy with defense work that we have not had a chance to think about 1943 models," he said. "We have not got out out 1942 models yet."

He is seeking the post now held by G. H. Clapp, who, until today had not filed for re-election. The Fifth also is to name an alderman for a one-year term.

The other candidate to file was R. E. Sellers, who filed to succeed himself as alderman from the Third ward.

Communist Party Organ Explains Japanese Pact

Declares Act Mixed Up Cards Of U.S. Politicians

Moscow, April 19.—(AP)—Pravda, organ of the Communist party, said today the Soviet Union made a decision not to join the Axis last November, but asserted Russia's new neutrality pact with Japan was not directed against Germany.

Discussing the implications of the Japanese agreement, in a lead article, Pravda said the pact "creates a solid foundation for development of friendly relations between the two states."

The assertion was made in reference to foreign comments on the new pact, which Pravda said "continued to flow in a broad stream."

(The Soviet-Japanese pact provides that if one of the signatories is the object of military action on the part of one or several powers, the other will remain neutral.)

Pravda declared the pact with Japan "mixed up the cards of London and Washington politicians."

Calling the agreement an instrument of peace, the party organ said, "this evidence did not leave foreign political circles which aim not to restrict, but to expand the atmosphere of war and mainly to involve the Soviet Union in its orbit."

Typical of this point of view are the comments of some organs of the British and American press."

Pravda asserted that study of the pact with Japan started 10 years ago and was revived after Russia decided not to sign with the Axis.

Tobacco Plants Improved By Recent Warm Weather

The recent warm weather has brought a decided improvement in the condition of tobacco plants, especially in the past five or six days during which time plants have grown rapidly and generally speaking they are strong, healthy and well-rooted, although still small for this time of the year, it was pointed out in the monthly bulletin issued by R. C. Rankin, sales supervisor, on the condition of the tobacco crop.

The bulletin continues: "Reports from growers and observation reveal an irregular condition regarding stands. In a few instances, beds are practically barren and have been abandoned, on other beds stands range from poor to fair, and on others plants are plentiful. In many sections very few plants come from the first sowing more from the second or third sowing in size, but plenty of yardage has been sown and growers believe

ALSO CONTEND LARISA TAKEN

German Political Circles Jubilantly Indicate Greek-German Armistice May Come As Birthday Gift To Hitler Tomorrow

Berlin, April 19.—(AP) Nazi troops have placed the swastika on Mount Olympus, fabled home of the gods of ancient Greece, and have taken Larisa, an important rail and road junction 40 miles south of it, the German high command said today.

Larisa is well on the road toward the narrow peninsula to Athens.

Jubilant German political circles indicated a belief that a Greek-German armistice might come as a birthday present for Adolf Hitler who will be 52 tomorrow.

Reports from Rome that Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, was en route to Berlin as a Greek intermediary to seek an armistice found no confirmation in the German capital, however.

(Larisa had been abandoned by the civilian population.)

"In thrusts which passed both sides of Mount Olympus," the high command, communique said, "the rear guard of the British main forces were repulsed and the southern exits of the mountains were taken in fighting and sharp pursuit."

The air force, the war bulletin went on, pounded "enemy columns" in the region of Larisa and on the road from Ioannina to Arta.

The several transport vessels, totaling 29,000 tons, were said to have been destroyed by air bombs in the port of Katakis, on the southeast coast of Greece.

Informed Germans earlier had said the British were pushed out of strongly fortified mountain positions after stubborn fighting and that the Nazi troops were keeping the heels of the British despite desperate British efforts to stem their advance by blasting bridges in mountain roads.

London, April 19.—(AP)—A quarter-million women of 20 and 21 are expected to register today in England's first conscription of feminine labor in war industries.

When Labor Minister Ernest Bevin announced the plan to draft women workers March 16, he declared the registration was to be headed equally in the drawing room and the laundry room.

The only exemptions will be for women already serving with the nursing service, full-time air raid precautions and civil defense volunteers, and students at universities, technical and professional schools.

Two or three weeks will be required for classification of today's registrants before the Ministry of Labor begins interviewing those who will best fit into the nation's humming industrial machines.

Bevin has explained the Ministry would select from the list all women "likely to be useful to the war effort whether in employment or not."

"I am satisfied," he said, "that this great democracy will submit itself to discipline and demonstrate its ability and determination that

More Government Than Ever! But Babson Still Is An Optimist

New York, April 19.—If any reader believes that the Administration has set aside its social reforms he is sadly mistaken. Washington may give the impression that it is working hand in hand with manufacturers on the defense program. General Babson, however, is not so sure.

In a great gift to the New Dealers who, while outwardly quiet, are by no means asleep at the switch. If they had their way I fear they would kick the dollar-a-year business men out of Washington and take over their work. The President is too wise to permit this. Such

NATION AGAIN MAY RESORT TO EXCISE TAXES

Revival of World War Levy Described As Logical

WOULD AUGMENT INCOME TAXES

Psychological Effect In Impressing Public With Situation Also Considered As Factor

Washington, April 19.—(AP)—Revival of a long list of World war excise taxes, such as those on railroad tickets and life insurance policies, was described in congressional circles today as a logical step toward the proposed goal of $3,500,000,000 in additional revenues.

Some members of the House Ways and Means Committee went so far as to say that renewal of such levies was "a foregone conclusion." Those legislators explained that the excise taxes would be necessary to make up what ever amounts the prospective increases in income and corporation taxes failed to produce.

Well-informed members said that in addition to procuring new revenue needed to finance the defense program, the administration looked to higher taxes for a psychological result—impressing the general public of the gravity of the current situation.

Among the biggest money-raiser in the excise tax group 20 years ago was a levy on the transportation of freight by rail or water which in the fiscal year ending June 30 1921, produced $140,019,200. The preceding year, the tax on passenger travel by rail or water produced $98,786,635. Both levies were discontinued in 1922.

Other excise taxes imposed during or immediately after the World war included levies on lighting fixtures, medicinal preparations, soft drinks, cameras and lenses, chewing gum, firearms, and electric fans.

In the year ending June 30, 1920, the tax on candy brought in $23,142,033, but the yield dropped to less than half that sum in 1924, the last year it was collected.

Producer - Consumer Service To Be Established

The Chamber of Commerce and Mayor B. B. Dressed poultry will be sold to merchants and other larger handlers on a wholesale basis.

A poultry picking machine will be installed here to insure merchants and consumers a nicely dressed carcass free from pin feathers and bruises.

The welcome given the troops by the natives was attributed in part to Iraq's memory of British and Indian soldiers of the last war.

Authorized sources said the Imperial troops had been given a warm welcome by the population at Basra and that the cooperation of the Iraq government in making possible the execution of this new move had made a "favorable impression" here.

They added that the circumstances gave rise to the hope that "more normal relations between" Great Britain and Iraq might soon be established.

Greeks' King George Works On New Government Following Death Of Premier; Premier Of Yugoslavia, In Exile, Says Lack Of Prior Cooperation With Allies Partly Responsible For Downfall

Athens, April 19.—(AP) British and Greek defenders of the tightened Hellenic line declared today their front was unbroken and their flanks unturned under the tremendous onslaught of Axis armies, bolstered by Nazi divisions streaming south from Yugoslavia.

As King George, II, worked to shape a new government—possibly a military cabinet—in an overnight change necessitated by the death of Premier Alexandros Korizis, word from the north indicated fighting had intensified along the entire defense line.

The British army headquarters in Athens declared repeated Nazi attacks by armored formations and infantry "have been repulsed" and said the attackers failed to penetrate the line at a single point.

"Imperial forces are in contact along the whole front," the British headquarters said. "Heavy attacks by armored formations and infantry have been repulsed and many prisoners taken. Enemy casualties are severe."

"Heroic Greek cooperation on our left is playing a valuable part. Despite all efforts, our front has nowhere been penetrated and our flanks nowhere turned."

An Australian detachment, surrounded by a German battalion near Seta, northwest of Olympus, was reported to have fought its way back to British lines, taking 150 prisoners. The Germans were said to have lost 300 dead.

Meanwhile, Premier General Dusan Simovic of Yugoslavia, as head of his government in exile, released (Continued on page six)

Attend Tulip Festival.
Among those attending the Tulip Festival at Washington yesterday and were luncheon guests of Dr. and Mrs. Z. L. Edwards of Washington were: Dr. and Mrs. Paul Jones of Farmville, Or. and Mrs. Ralph of Belhaven, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. Hicks Corey and Mrs. J. Preston Corey of Greenville.

Mrs. E. E. Rawl and Mrs. K. B. Pace
No home in Miami could have been a more perfect setting for the marriage at five o'clock today of Miss Louise Herbert and James McKinney Moyer than the one selected—the beautiful colonial home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Brickell, on Brickell avenue. High ceilings, Chippendale, Duncan Phyfe and Hepplewhite furniture were in keeping with the fragile, dainty, old-fashioned beauty of the bride and the dignified simplicity of the ceremony and dresses of members of the wedding party.

The bride was a picture of loveliness in her antique ivory faille taffeta gown, made on long, simple lines, as she descended the hand-carved stairway on the arm of her father, Frank L. Herbert, who gave her in marriage. A stately neckline was a distinguishing feature of the plain bodice, which was shirred onto the full, entrained skirt. The shoulders were squared and the long, close-fitting sleeves came to a point at the wrists. Her veil of illusion was finger-tip length and fell from a dainty arrangement of pleated net and orange blossoms. Her flowers were a spray bouquet of white roses and orchids.

The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Florence J. Sullivan, took place in the north living room before an improvised altar of Easter lilies and white gladioli. A profusion of tropical greenery and plumosa fern formed a background for the fragrant white blossoms and seven-branched candelabra holding tall white tapers. The stairway presented a mass of Easter lilies and fern being banked all the way to the balustrade with blossoms and the side down which the wedding party walked was formed of standards of Easter lilies and glads, streamers of white satin ribbons tying the standards in place. Prie dieu upon which the couple knelt, was of white satin.

The bride carried out the traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue" in her costume. In her shoe, for luck, she wore a three-piece piece worn by Martha Tinsley Cheatham at the time of her wedding; an heirloom handkerchief of the sheerest lace was the something old. This was a gift from Mrs. Thomas E. Grady. For the something blue, the bride attached to her apparel a good luck piece, tied with narrow blue ribbon. Her only ornament was a string of pearls.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Betty Herbert. She wore a summery frock of delicate pink marquisette, fashioned Empire style, with high waist, square neckline on to which the bodice was gathered in soft folds, and a bouffant skirt, adorned with bands of lace. Sleeves of this dainty frock were long and full, gathered on to a band at the wrist. She carried a bouquet of pink roses designed in her hair wore a cluster of tiny blossoms. Marshall L. Starkey of Greenville, N. C., was best man.

A stringed orchestra played music before the wedding, the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional, and furnished music at the informal reception which followed.

The large, colonial dining room, with its old-fashioned, handsome furniture, and Wedgewood china, white being used throughout the house with the exception of the porch, on which yellow was the color motif carried out. The bride's table was centered with a huge tiered cake, surrounded by fern and tiny white flowers, and crystal candelabra holding tall white lighted tapers added a soft glow to the scene.

Receiving with the newly married couple were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert, Mrs. Charles Brickell, the bride's aunt; Mrs. Bain Brickell, Mrs. W. H. McDonald, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. A. Moyer, Jr., mother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. A. E. Shackell, sister of the groom.

Mrs. Herbert was gowned in cream lace, her long tea gown made with close-fitting sleeves, V-neck, and the marquisette skirt trimmed with lace. Her corsage was of tallman roses. Mrs. Charles Brickell wore a handsome gown of cream colored imported linen, embroidered, and made with bolero jacket. Mrs. Moyer, mother of the bridegroom, wore orchid georgette, and her shoulder corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. James Brickell chose a white net hand embroidered dress, accented with panels of blue, and Mrs. McDonald was attired in black and white flowered chiffon a touch of color added in the violet and gardenia shoulder corsage she wore. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. A. E. Shackell, wore blue georgette, caught at the waist with cerise belt. Her flowers were gardenias.

Assisting in serving and entertaining at the reception were a group of close friends. Out-of-town guests, in addition to members of the wedding party, were the bridegroom's brother, R. O. Moyer of Greenville; Miss Rose Hadley of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. A. E. Shackell of Tarboro; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farrelly of Wilmington, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Julian White of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Webb, also of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dooley of Jacksonville.

Mrs. Moyer is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lawrence Herbert of Miami, Florida. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Henry McDonald and the late Mr. McDonald, pioneer Miamians. She is a graduate of St. Catherine's convent and the University of Miami, where she was a member of Kappa Gamma, social fraternity. For the past several months she was connected with the personnel department of the Bell Telephone Company in Miami, Fla.

Mr. Moyer is the youngest son of Mrs. E. A. Moyer, Jr., and the late Dr. Moyer of Greenville. He graduated from the Greenville city schools and also attended The Citadel at Charleston, S. C., and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Bride Of Today

Mrs. James McKinney Moyer, who, prior to her marriage this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Charles Brickell in Miami, Fla., was Miss Louise Herbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lawrence Herbert of Miami, Fla. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. E. A. Moyer, Jr., and the late Dr. Moyer of this city. The couple will make their home in Greenville following a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Claude Howell's Work To Feature Festival

Annual Art Festival To Be Held Here Next Week

One of the outstanding exhibits during the Greenville Art Festival will be the most recent paintings of Claude Howell, one of North Carolina's most talented artists. Mr. Howell's work shows very definite personality and individuality for a young painter. He has been awarded several prizes, and his paintings have been purchased by government agencies as well as by private collectors.

At present, he is connected with the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of this city.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Moyer left for a motor trip through the state. For traveling, the bride wore a three-piece shear wool suit in winter blue. The close-fitting topcoat was full-length with squared shoulders, and with this she wore a white tailored blouse. Her hat of toast millan straw, trimmed with navy veil, was fashioned with rolled brim. She wore alligator shoes and carried an alligator purse. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer will reside at 611 Evans street, Greenville, N. C., at the conclusion of their wedding trip.

Returns To College.

Miss Julia Ann Bland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bland, has returned to Pasadena Junior College, Pasadena, Calif., after spending a 10-day vacation touring Southern California and Mexico. She visited Long Beach and from there to Mexico and Palm Springs, through the desert. She reports it as the most beautiful trip she had ever seen. The cacti is in full bloom, usually bright scarlet. There were large orange and palm groves. All the desert wild flowers are blooming, just blankets of various colors with a never ending range of mountains in the background. Many of them are above 5,000 feet and some places 300 feet below sea level.

She says that the water is very fine in the Pacific ocean at Long Beach.

Miss Bland will graduate from the 12th grade high school course in June. The graduation exercises will be held in the Rose Bowl.

CHICOD NEWS

(By Mrs. Milton Tucker)
The Rev. W. A. Crow conducted service at Salem last Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

We had 100 present for church school last Sunday morning. Come join our church school. We need you. Let us keep our attendance up.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edwards and Mrs. Milton Tucker attended services at Grimesland last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Edwards and Harold Edwards attended services at Jarvis Memorial Church, same date.

Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker, Mrs. Fred Edwards, Max Tucker and Mrs. Milton Tucker attended the P. T. A. and party in Grimesland Tuesday evening. Mrs. G. P. Carr, our president, was introduced by Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker, secretary, as "Madam Quiz," who asked us various questions. This was very amusing and instructive to all present. Mrs. Cecil Tucker received the jackpot and most graciously presented her bounty to those having missed. Stunts were given afterwards. The stunt winning was "Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag." Miss Vaughn, assisted by Home Economics students, served delicious ice cream and cup cakes.

Claude Howell was born in Wilmington, North Carolina. He is above all, a Southerner and believes the future of art in the South lies in its painters remaining in their native surroundings to paint people and the landscapes they know. In 1939 he won first prize for water color in the annual exhibition of Wilmington artists and also second prize in the North Carolina artists' exhibit, in Raleigh. In November of the same year, Mr. Howell was invited to exhibit at Duke University. His painting "Whittling Bench" was exhibited in the Southern States preview exhibition at the Virginia Museum of Art.

At present, he is connected with the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of this city.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Moyer left for a motor trip through the state. For traveling, the bride wore a three-piece shear wool suit in winter blue. The close-fitting topcoat was full-length with squared shoulders, and with this she wore a white tailored blouse. Her hat of toast millan straw, trimmed with navy veil, was fashioned with rolled brim. She wore alligator shoes and carried an alligator purse. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer will reside at 611 Evans street, Greenville, N. C., at the conclusion of their wedding trip.

The Grimesland debaters left for Chapel Hill Thursday morning at 10:30. Mr. G. P. Carr and Miss Lewis accompanied them. They returned this morning. We wonder who won the Aycock cup?

Those attending missionary meeting at Asbury Church from here, were: Mr. J. B. Rouse, Mr. G. S. Porter, Mrs. Jack Edwards and Miss Louise Porter.

Mrs. Sammie Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Edwards, Miss Ethel Tucker, Mrs. Bertha Buck, Mr. Karle Lee Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Tucker and Bill Tucker attended the beautiful Tulip festival in Washington yesterday. It was a gas occasion and a large crowd of people attended.

Mr. Lollie Vick is improving from a recent illness.

Mrs. N. C. Moore is home from a Washington hospital, we are glad to report.

Stokes club women had a splendid meeting at the Home Economics department. Twenty-six ladies were present. Mrs. D. N. Nobles, poultry leader, gave some fine suggestions for raising poultry. Mrs. Heber Fleming followed with a good report on the value of a cow to every farm family. She pointed out that the dairy products could mean food for the family and the surplus sold, supplying the family with a cash income monthly. Mrs. Clarence Barnhill gave a book report.

Mrs. Laurie Ellis and Mrs. George Rouse were charming hostesses to the fine group at Winterville at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Ellis. Mrs. Harry Worthington, president, presided, encouraging the members to plant home gardens and care the surplus this summer. The club is very active in encouraging all Pitt county farm families to paint their mail boxes in order to help beautify Pitt county.

Pierce club met with Mrs. Heber Cox. Mrs. Jerome McGlohon, food conservation leader, offered her services to help any of the club women use a pressure cooker. Pierce club regretted that the mattress center had to be removed from their club house because they were all proud that their club could serve such a large number of families. The center there owes its success to the cooperation and services of those women with the capable supervision of Mr. Dahl. They are now busy helping us get established in our place at the old hotel in Ayden.

Lester Earl Turnage gave an excellent book review of "Out of the Night," by Bartin, to the Older Youth group. A recreation hour followed conducted by Mr. Griggs. The club was glad to welcome two new members, Mary Alice Avery

Baseball
The Washington and Greenville boys played a game of ball here Friday afternoon and another this morning. The first game was won by Greenville in a score of 12 to 4, and the second was won by Washington in a score of 3 to 2. The second game was a very pretty one. The visitors returned home on the boat today.

In the last few years there have been a number of prisoners to escape from Pitt county jail, enough to convince anyone that the jail is not safe. It would be wise if the county commissioners would have a high wall built around the jail and allow no one to go in to see the prisoners unless accompanied by an officer.

4-H Clubs
Neighborhood 4-H club groups will begin holding regular meetings as soon as the Pitt county schools close. A leader has been appointed in each of the Home Demonstration clubs to assist in carrying on the splendid work this summer. For the 4-H club leaders, Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant state 4-H club leader, plans to hold a leaders' school on Tuesday, May 13, at 9:30 a. m.

Dead Letter Comes To Life
Helena, Mont. (AP)—Twenty-seven years later and 1,000 miles off its original address, a letter has just reached Mrs. Conrad Dahl of Helena.

It was posted at Carpio, N. D., in 1914 by Mrs. Dahl's younger sister and was addressed to her at Lakeview, Minn., where she then was living.

That night a pouch was stolen from the mails and the thieves dropped it between the studding of a house under construction at Carpio.

It was mailed in the next day without workmen finding it.

Recently a brother of the Dahl sisters was working as an electrician in the house and ripped the partition away to get at the wiring. He reached in and pulled out the letter, forwarding it to Mrs. Dahl at Helena.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: The night Eileen Gardner graduated from the University her life had been pretty simple to her, probably including Jordan Estill as husband. But that night a stranger literally caught her in his strong arms; now she has decided to take a job with a struggling radio station, and a chance on the rest of it. Although the stranger is gone, and all she knows about him is that his name is Martin, and that he has a tiny golden ski—which she found.

Chapter Five
Date With Jordan
Eileen stood up and pined her mouth. "Why worry about all that? I'm to seek my fortune. The Wells' little chain is the first step."

Eileen Laughed. "Come In, Jordan"

Maybe, to a career. And I'm not sure. I think I can pick up enough clerical work to carry me, maybe think I'm terribly prudent."

But her aunt, intrenched in a job that ended in a teacher's pension took her head mournfully. Besides she liked Jordan Estill. Such a man wasn't, as Aunt Lou seemed to feel, something like money in the savings bank. Her hand felt for the little gold ski. She had clipped it carefully to her charm bracelet with pincers. It could not come off. The bracelet had enough other charms, so the ski was not noticeable—every boy she knew had given her a gadget or two. The bracelet was as thick as a leg.

It was nearly the last time she had a chance to talk alone with her aunt. The little apartment was overrun. Everybody was dashing in and out, excited about Eileen's departure, envious, thrilled, or disapproving. And not least, Jordan Estill.

"I want you to have dinner with me at Jerry's, and come dancing," he said without preface on the telephone. His voice didn't sound like himself. It was a little tentative, usually. And Jordan hadn't ever been too fond of dancing. He usually preferred a picnic lunch and a tramp over the hills, driving out to Boulder, perhaps, or beyond to Estes Park and walking in the late daylight, picnicking, driving back.

Eileen would have liked that more, perhaps, if Jordan's society had been as much to her as hers was to him. But with a man who didn't especially interest you, dancing or a movie was better. And Jordan knew it, though he didn't realize that the trouble was not so much that twosome tramps lacked excitement for Eileen, but that Jordan Estill did.

Pretty For Jordan
"I'd love it," she said. There was probably going to be a showdown. A week ago Eileen would have temporized, have gone on letting Jordan have hope. But now she knew that there wasn't any more hope for Jordan.

Nevertheless she made herself as lovely as she could for Jordan, automatically. The new pastel crepe dress, blue, gold-belted, which she had bought because of the little glassed-in cage at Weigand's radio room; where she would stand and be seen by people coming to visit the station. The tiny flower hat; the freshly washed white suede-cloth gloves.

She brushed her brown curls to more glossiness; she even, for some obscure reason, dug up the expensive new foundation cream someone had given her, which made her skin look even more fresh and faultless than it was, tipped her lashes with ten-cent-store mascara, her nails with new coral to match her lips.

Jordan was a little late. The pine-smoke pastille, Eileen always lighted after meals to get the faint, good smell of cooking out of the living room, had been curling up on the air, blown through by the sharp June mountain evening wind, for ten minutes before he walked in. When he did he looked at her, for a moment, as if she were not real. He stopped, stared.

Eileen laughed. "Come in, Jordan." She had opened the door to him; she moved a little back as he stood still, eyes focused on her. "What is it? Like my dress?"

"Like... you," he said thickly. "What have you done to yourself, Eileen? You're so—so alive. So—almost incandescent."

She slipped her arm through his and pulled him farther in. "Why, Jordan, then? Isn't it just a dress? Why wouldn't I be? Rebound from studying my head off, probably."

He pushed her off a little, put his thin gentle hands on her shoulders. "No. Something new. Is it this radio business, or something I don't know anything about?"

Bemused Young Man
The nearsighted, watchful eyes behind the eyeglasses searched her face; the pleasant, thin mouth with its parentheses already forming from the habit of professional tension went more tense.

"I don't know what you don't know about," Eileen said with a wild little laugh. "We always said you knew more than anybody in any of our other classes."

"You're always so gay. I know I'm a sober sort of person. I—I suppose I seem dull to you," he said suddenly.

"What on earth's the matter, Jordy? Look here, this is no way to take a glamorous girl out to a popular dance den. If you seemed dull to me I'd tell you so. Didn't I just tell you you were terribly clever?"

"Don't fence," he said soberly. "English literature and fooling around the way the rest do are two different things."

She had been fencing, and transparently. He looked at her again. "Ready?"

"Shamelessly ready. Didn't you see my little hat all on, and my gloves—glove to honor you, my dear sir—all ready to grab?"

He shrugged, laughed, gave up. "It's crazy, of course, but I like it. The hat, I mean."

"And me I hope — I hope — I hope!"

"Come along," he said. Miss Lou, cautiously emerging to repossess her living room, saw them going into the hall arm in arm, and gave a sigh of relief. Maybe this radio job was just a stopgap till suit in less trouble from this distasteful you so little, nowadays.

They settled in across one of the well-known little tables. Jerry's assistant was just finishing the scattering of some mysterious substance on the dance floor. He was a cheerful black-jawed Italian who grinned at them in friendship as he passed. They had both been coming there since their respective early teens. For a quick moment the place seemed warm, homely, friendly, to Eileen; the outside world a strange, untried, doubtful place after all. Then the mood passed.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE FAULT IS OURS
Emil Brunner, the great Swiss theologian, has said: "We suffer most from ourselves, even when we do not realize it, even when we su-pose the cause of our grief and suffering is from without. The deepest cause of all that is not right, is that we ourselves are not right."

A headache, an upset stomach, a poor night's rest can make us feel that all time is out of joint. The constant pursuit of a selfish ideal can fill us with bitter resentment against what we consider the self-seeking of others. But nothing changes the appearance of the world and makes it appear a seething caldron of trouble so much as to dwell on human weakness and evil and to keep our minds constantly stirred up by brooding over the things we dislike in other people.
But we ought to remember that every unpleasant characteristic in some-one else can be matched by at least an equal number of unpleasant characteristics in ourselves.
And we should furthermore remember that we will never make people more to our liking by brooding over their disagreeable characteristics or arguing about them.

Get on the positive side, therefore—the side of tolerance, good cheer, quiet understanding. Don't try so hard to change people. Accept them as they are. They will soon detect in you a quiet nobility of nature which will do more to change them than any word you could ever utter.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington, Defense ditches: Selective service headquarters has just received one of its most irate letters. It's from a Class 1-A selec-tee who is due for the hop to camp any minute now. He is fuming because his draft board refuses to consist of his college dog a dependent.
There is no man with whom he can leave the dog, he says, and he can't take him along.

What the loudspeaker (more properly referred to as the public address system) has done to the army would give an old-time top sergeant the screaming meemies.
For instance, if someday you are going to murder the bugler, you'll have to catch him in bed. Why?
Because today, that's where the bugler does his "You-can't-get-em-up." Here's how: The bugler is awakened by his alarm. He reaches under the bed, turns it off, picks up his bugle, pulls a funnel-shaped mike to the end of the bugle and softly blows reveille. From loud speakers all over the camp, his notes blare the bad news that it's time to get up. Not only that, but regimental commanders (colonels) traveling in "jeeps" (reconnaissance cars) have P. A. system engineers along with them. When they want to bowl out an order, they whisper it into a microphone and a big fellow echoes across the parade ground.

There are no statistics obtainable on how many selectees have been trying to dodge the draft by having teeth pulled—but it must be considerable, because the army has just put teeth into its regulations about men who try to work the old dental dodge. The new ruling is that men who appear at induction centers without the required number of molars, but did have them when they were selected, are now to be given the open passport to a year's training.

Washington newspaper men are confirmed pessimists, but it nearly always is just verbal—which is no explanation why several in the better-bracket salary range in recent weeks have obtained reserve commissions in the Army or Navy and any day now may be shifting over to jobs which pay only half to a fifth of their present remuneration.

Pvt. Nathaniel Arlington Platt, of Camp Upton, N. Y., has got his name in the army reports. It seems that Private Platt—former farm youth—gets up at 4 o'clock every morning and spends the three hours before breakfast tramping around the countryside "to get a little exercise."

The new army has everything on the dossier of Glenn B. Robbins, who is in the air corps in California, is written opposite profession: "Circus owner." Glenn inherited the three-ring circus which was built up years and years ago by his grandfather. The inheritance came after his induction into the air corps. Now he asks: "Just what does one do with a circus?"

The army claimed that it got 15-000 applications for jobs as hostesses of the training camps. A congressman, who asked that his name not be used, told me the other day that he got 15,000 letters from women in his state asking that he help them get jobs as hostesses.

Army physicals are strange things.
Chuck Fenske, the great miler, practically walked into training—but Joe Rice, the distance record holder, couldn't make the grade.
Four days before he was turned down (he had a double hernia, doctors said) he ran through two miles faster than any man had ever run tem before in this world.

Around Army headquarters they are telling the story about the Fairbanks, Alaska, detachment that went out in search of bad weather.
They took a train and guns, foot-gear, tents and things they wanted to test, and went north of Anchorage in search of sub-zero weather.

not the governor.
"He can't be the governor, grand-daddy," she explains, "his hair and his coat aren't long enough."

What's The Law
Reporters at Governor Broughton's press conference one morning recently were sharply taken aback when the chief executive, one of the state's most noted attorneys said without even a twinkle in his eye to give him away:
"I want to ask you fellows what the law is."
Recovering from the shock one of the news men laughed and countered with: "Well, what do you want us to enlighten you on?"
"What does the law say about the fishing season," asked Mr. Broughton, "you know, I've got a lot of fishing to catch up with."

First Death Case
Decision to let Dollie Lee Hudson Negro, die for the killing of his white landlord, was Governor Broughton's first death case; and the ruling may or may not be indicative of what he'll do in those arising later.
He'll have plenty to act upon, as there are now 14 men on central prison's death row—a dozen Negroes, one Indian and a white man. All but two were convicted of murder, the exceptions being rapists.
Two of the Negroes (Fleet Jack Wall from Anson and Sylvester Woodard from Wayne) will die in the gas chamber May 24 unless clemency or reprieve intervenes.

Intensive Campaign
Probably the most intense campaign for any of the highway commission posts was waged in behalf of Carroll Wilson of Halifax—though his rival from that district, Dr. Colin Barnes, also received endorsements by the scores. Letters, telegrams and petitions in Wilson's behalf poured into the Governor's office from all parts of the state. Somebody did a lot of pressure organizing in his behalf.

J. D. Simpson Resigns As President Of Softball League

BASEBALL FIRSTS

AP Feature Service
The new major league baseball season got underway the other day and these players came up with the first firsts of the year:

Marius Russo, young New York Yankee southpaw, hung up the first triumph. He limited the Senators to three safe bingles.

Tommp Henrich, Yankee outfielder, scored the first run as Joe DiMaggio exploded his first 1941 extra-base blow, a triple.

Ace Adams, 27-year-old rookie from Iron City, N.C., up from Asheville, hung up the first victory for a rookie hurler. He went in as a relief pitcher for the New York Giants and beat the Dodgers from Brooklyn.

Cecil Travis, veteran Washington infielder, committed the first error — in the first inning, of more than local interest.

NO SUCCESSOR SELECTED YET

Only Six Clubs To Be In Loop During Coming Season

J. D. Simpson, who has steered the Greenville softball league since its organization, resigned last night and today declared that he would be unable to continue as head of the loop despite the reluctance of members of the board to accept his resignation.

Mr. Simpson explained that his duties had been increased as head of the Railway Express agency and added that he would be unable to devote the necessary time to the sports.

It was evidenced at the meeting last night that some followers of the sports desired to play more nights than an arrangement not to play when the Coastal Plain league is at home permits.

It was agreed, however, to follow the plan of playing only on nights when the Greenies are away.

The suggestion of using Guy Smith park, however, was abandoned and all games will be played at Third Street park. Two games will be played each night and the season is scheduled to open early in May.

No successor was named to succeed Mr. Simpson, but Withers Harvey is vice president and therefore acting president.

In resigning as president, Mr. Simpson pledged his continued cooperation and offered to render any services possible in the operation of the league.

PITTS IN PRINT ON NEW FRONT

Prisons Head Mentioned In Raleigh Campaign

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 18.—Oscar Pitts, superintendent of prisons, has been in print time and again in speculation over what job Governor Broughton will give him; but now his name is appearing in quite another capacity—as an active participant in Raleigh's super-heated battle for commissioner of public safety.

At the very same moment, stories are going the rounds that the Catawban is mixing and mingling in politics of the Second Congressional district to an amazing extent.

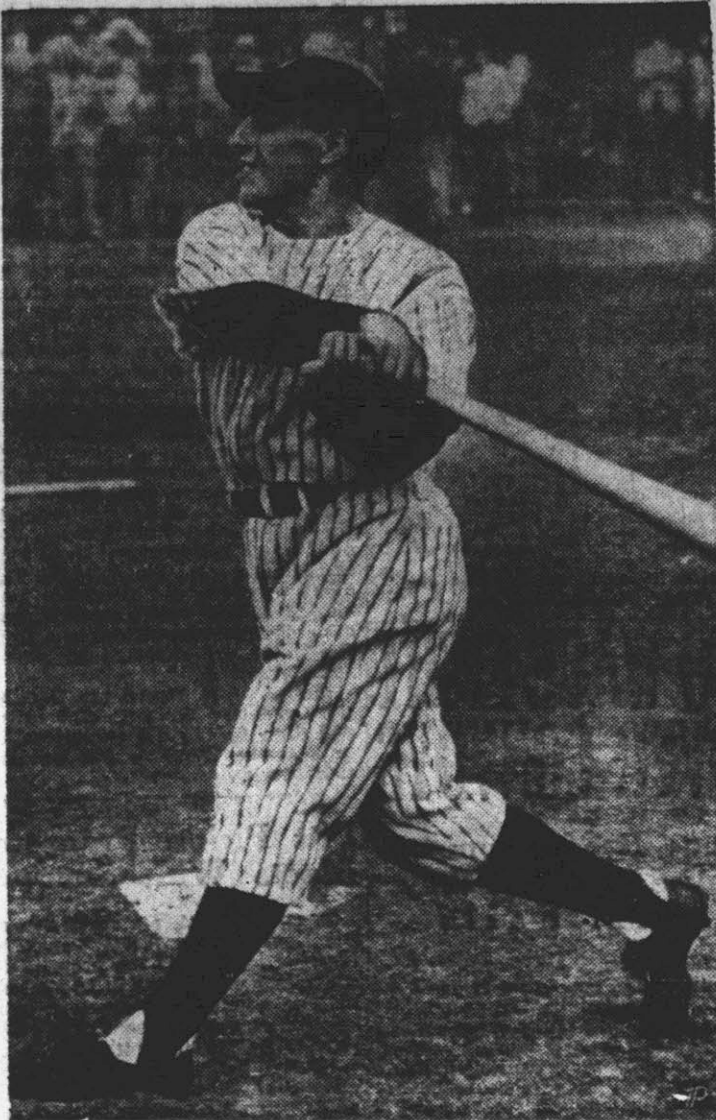

Coupling these alleged activities with his open work as liaison man for the governor during the late legislature, there is a growing belief that Mr. Pitts rather fancies himself as a sort of "Warwick, the King Maker" in Tar Heel politics of the moment.

R. C. Powell, in an ad. brought into the open things which have been bruited about in Raleigh circles for a week or more—such, for instance, as the fact that persons very close to the governor's office are actively supporting Bruce Poole, resigned captain of detectives, against Powell.

Said Powell: "I have found little opposition to my re-election except that engineered by Postmaster Carl Williamson, a former commissioner of public safety, who apparently still desires to control the office, and by Oscar Pitts, head of the state prison department and a voting citizen of Catawba county."

That tallies exactly with the contention of many knowing capital observers that the whole city race is merely a battle between Williamson and former City Judge Wiley Barnes for control of the police department.

The Pitts angle, which brings the battle close to the coat tail of Gov. Broughton, makes the matter first error — in the first inning, of more than local interest.

Phil Rizzuto, voted top minor league player in 1940, may wind up as the major leagues' rookie of the year. He's a flashy shortstop and is scheduled to show here a year for the Yankees.

The report about Pitts' purported activity in the second district are not as circumstantial or as well substantiated as his meddling in the Raleigh race; but there is smoke enough to raise a prima facie belief that there is some fire.

According to the reports, Oscar claims to be engineering some sort of a deal whereby Carroll Wilson of Halifax county, will be appointed to the State Highway and Public Works Commission, is a sort of reward for not running against Judge John Kerr, Sr., for Congress.

The tale tellers have it that Pitts has worked hard to swing Kerr support behind Wilson on the theory that this support would be highly potent with Governor Broughton while at the same time it would be smart politics in keeping a dangerous rival out of the Kerr path.

Weakness of the yarn is that Kerr has been so close to unbeatable in his section that it isn't thought very likely he would go far out of his way to boost anybody just to induce withdrawal as a prospective Kerr opponent.

There doesn't really seem to be any doubt that Pitts has been actively at work against Powell, but the second district maneuverings are none too well substantiated. In any case, however, both stories confirm a belief that Pitts is a currently very powerful political figure in North Carolina, or at least that he thinks he is.

So far there isn't even a scintilla of evidence that Broughton is taking

Solon Addresses Winterville Club

Representative S. O. Worthington of Greenville spoke before the Winterville Ruritan club Tuesday evening on the accomplishments of the 1941 legislature. Introduced by Register of Deeds Roy T. Cox, Mr. Worthington pointed to the new farm and school legislation as an outstanding achievement.

Among other things the farmers of North Carolina will get improved fertilizers, more money for the experimental side of farming and better seeds. Mr. Worthington stated that North Carolina would spend more money to help the farmers during the next biennium than has ever been appropriated in the past.

The schools were given a great deal of consideration, according to Mr. Worthington. He mentioned the large increase in money for vocational training, the teachers' retirement plan and the addition of a twelfth grade to every high school in North Carolina.

The new law controlling the sale of fortified wines was referred to by Mr. Worthington as the best that could be obtained in view of great differences of opinion on the subject among the legislators. A law of much local interest, the new tobacco scrap law, was explained by Mr. Worthington. Tobacco warehouses and factories may buy scrap without paying a license but other buyers must pay a tax of $500.

Brantley Speight introduced his father and uncle, Louis and Oscar Speight, as his guests. Rev. Frank Morris was a guest of President Obed Castellor. The meeting was held in the home economics building and supper was served by the Woman's club.

an act would slow up much of the practical defense work which, in spite of everything, is moving along. It would also bring into the open the personal jealousies, the continuing bids for power, and the real program of the old New Dealers who still have the President's ear. The defense program appears to have taken first place in the heart and mind of Washington; but it is being used by a small group as a means of promoting further governmental power over business.

Methods Of Control
Capital and labor have always had their difficulties and always will. This is really a healthy state. Our high standards of living are due much to the efforts of certain intelligent and unselfish labor leaders. On the other hand, management usually is willing to meet the demands of employees halfway. Left alone, sensible and honest leaders of both sides could settle their difficulties. Neither side needs nor wants government interference in settling wage disputes and in establishing policies. The Administration, however, is being forced by irresponsible radicals to take an increasingly active part in the disputes between management and labor. If this keeps on increasing, it will end by the government outlawing strikes and putting both employers and workers into uniforms at least for the period of the national emergency.

Bankers and investors have so long been subject to controls that they are more hardened to them than are manufacturers and other business men. Most business men, however, are scared stiff. It is by no means the scareheads from abroad that are keeping the stock market stagnant. Most of Hitler's moves, including any spring drive against England, have already been discounted. It is fear by business men of further internal domestic regulations and taxes which paralyzes markets and slows up defense work.

A Planned Production
Once the New Dealers were talking about a planned economy. This included fixing prices for farmers, a redistribution of property, and many other broadly socialistic ideas. Fortunately for the country, the Roosevelt Administration has thus far never quite got the machinery set up to accomplish this. Now they have it given to them on a silver platter in the form of the Defense Program. The new term for our coming economic order is planned production! Through priority controls alone, the government can plan industry's entire activity.

In World War I, the War Industries Board and other agencies functioned independently of politics. Today, the program is largely directed and controlled by the Administration's bureaucracy. No organization except the charitable ones like the Red Cross, functions free of red tape. Yet, I have confidence this will cure itself if you voters will only write your congressmen how you feel. I am still bullish on the United States. President Roosevelt is getting wiser as he becomes older. Even New Dealers leave Washington when some New York law firm offers them more money! Honestly, hard work, and thrift will make you succeed wherever runs Washington.

COMMUNIST PARTY ORGAN EXPLAINS JAPANESE PACT

No reason was given for Russia's decision not to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo line-up.
"This historic information discloses the entire ridiculousness of the suppositions of commentators that the Soviet-Japanese pact was directed against Germany, and also the other supposition that the pact was concluded under German pressure."

sure," the article said.
The article quoted reports that the United States had sought friendly relations with Russia, noting that strained Soviet-Japanese relations would deter Japan from attacking Britain's Singapore base.

"Thus we see that these 'friendly gestures' with regard to the Soviet Union had the purpose of deceiving American public opinion," said Pravda. "As to the alleged 'bad conduct' of the Soviet Union, it is known that by this British commentators mean the lack of desire of the Soviet Union to fight for foreign interests."

will far transcend anything Hitler or his Nazi regime can bring against us."

Special care will be taken, the minister added, to avoid calling women with small children or those with exceptional domestic responsibility.

As soon as the group born in 1920 has been classified, another age group will be enrolled.
Opposition to today's registration was voiced by the Council of the Women's International League meeting in Oxford, in a resolution protesting conscription of labor and omission of "conscientious objections" as special ground for exemption.

through the Yugoslav legation in Athens a statement attributing the swift defeat of Yugoslav armies to Germany's speed in striking into Croatia and to lack of "prior collaboration with the allies" by his country.

He expressed determination to "go on fighting at the side of our allies until final victory."
All reports from the front up until noon today indicated the allied lines were unchanged in the last 12 hours, despite relentless Nazi pressure.
"We mow them down by the hundreds as they try to climb the steep mountainsides, but as soon as one wave is thrown back another pushes forward," said a military officer.
"Their losses are tremendous, unequalled. I believe, by anything they have suffered in the European war to date."

Athens, April 19.—(AP)—Britain's Imperial forces in Greece, declaring their front nowhere had been penetrated, announced today that they had repulsed heavy Nazi attacks by armored formations and masses of infantry with "severe" losses.

"Despite all efforts, our front nowhere has been penetrated," said a communiqué.

It added that many prisoners had been taken.

The Imperial troops were reported in action along the entire front as waves of German infantry tried vainly to force a way up the mountains guarding the passes in the face of murderous fire.

Observers said the slopes were strewn with dead and wounded Nazi blitzmen.

The mountainous country and the stout resistance has put Nazi mechanized warfare in reverse, observers said.

Instead of the German panzer columns breaking through to clear the roads for the infantry, Hitler's legions now must fight their way on foot ahead of the tanks, it was said.

Presbyterian Class To Conduct Campaign

At a supper meeting held last Thursday night the Men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church "changed oil and filled the tank with high-powered gas" for a long run. The purpose is to "round up the herd" that has roamed the planes too long, and get one hundred men in the Bible class on or before May 25.

Two ranking officers, J. Bryan Brown and Jack Whitley, will head the groups for this intensive campaign for members. Hunter Keck, president, will present details tomorrow and line up all "regulars" for the work. The campaign will last till May 25. It was the unanimous opinion of the class that there are many men in Greenville besides those already enrolled in Bible classes who should be enjoying the fellowship and receiving the instruction of such a teacher as Albert Gibson.

Golden Rule Week Observed By Club

The Greenville Kiwanis club last night observed "Golden Rule Week" in accordance with a policy of Kiwanis International, started by the Dallas, Texas, club in 1929.

The event has been made an international program this year to vitalize and give life to the second constitutional object of Kiwanis—"to encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships."

Dr. E. R. Browning of the Commerce Department of the college made the principal address of the evening. He was presented by Ed Batchelor, acting chairman of the club's Business Standards Committee.

Judge Dink James of the Vocational Guidance Committee presented two vocational students from the High School, Misses Janet Edwards and Irma Fleming.

C. D. Ward called attention to the seventh divisional meeting to be held in Goldsboro April 28.

Additional publicity was given to the twenty-fifth annual convention of Kiwanis International to be held at Atlanta, Ga., June 15-19. The club's delegates and alternates were elected at last week's meeting, and a number of other Kiwanians from Greenville are expected to attend the convention.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of the Greenville Woman's club called attention to the art exhibit to be held at the Woman's club building next week.

Pitt Pickle Program Meets With Success

T. G. Basnight, representative of the Mount Olive Pickle Company, revealed today that the proposal to contract for 150 acres of cucumbers in Pitt county was meeting with success and that about 100 acres already had been contracted.

He said he felt certain that the additional 50 acres would be secured. Anyone desiring to raise cucumbers under contract for the pickle manufacturing company is urged to see Mr. Basnight, who lives on Fourth street extension, or officials of the County Farm Department or Chamber of Commerce.

Under the plan the company contracts to pay stipulated prices for certain grades of cucumbers.

How can we help right here at home? This seems to be the question around Cox school, J. C. King John L. Williams, Freddie Jackson and Henry Lee Corey have a school garden with seven vegetables. This garden is on the school campus and is supervised by the 4-H club leader Mr. Shopper Forbes. The vegetables from this garden are to be canned and stored for school lunch. Each family of the Cox community has been asked to plant two rows of vegetables in their gardens to be given to the school after being canned to add to this supply for the school lunches. During a meeting held at this school Monday, "God Bless America" was sung. This song was never sung more reverently by any group with their whole hearts in it. After which they promised to do all they can for the defense of America which is very dear to us all.

If every community in the county will do as this community is doing, the program will get added strength. It will be well while in the Cox community to visit this school under the supervision of Mrs. Forbes and overflow well has been harnessed and made into system water with hose and faucet.

A kitchen nicely furnished with necessary needs even to tooth picks and curtains spick and span like snow is in the school.

The grounds are envying with garden in the background like a college farm. The children are strong and healthy looking, voices strong as a locomotive, they were so full of school lunch.

The essential of foods, and told them they might give the first fruits of their gardens for the defense cause.

The 4-H club motto, and 4-H club pledge was given by the 4-H members.
