GERMAN FORCE IS LANDED AT FINNISH PORT

Moscow Organ Prints Report Without Any Comment

FORCE REPORTED WELL EQUIPPED

Although Nazis Explain Troops Headed For Norway, No Previous Comment Had Been Made In Moscow

Moscow, April 30.—(AP) Pravda, Communist party organ, reported today that four German transports had landed about 12,000 German troops equipped with tanks and artillery at the port of Turku in southwestern Finland, April 26.

The troops proceeded northeast to Tampere April 28. Pravda declared in a dispatch from Tallinn, Estonia.

The report was contained in the following dispatch printed without comment:

"According to reliable reports, on April 26 there arrived at the Finnish port of Abo four German transport ships from which about 12,000 German troops landed with arms, tanks, artillery, etc. On April 28, the troops began to move to Tampere."

Germans here asserted the Nazi troop arrival was merely part of the regular movement of troops through Finland to Norway which had been going on for some time under agreement with the Finnish government.

It was the first time, however, that notice of such movement had appeared in the Soviet press.

Eure Is Heard By Grifton Graduates

Secretary of State Thad Eure told members of the graduation class of the Grifton high school in an address at the school yesterday morning that they were going into a world under circumstances more grave than has been faced by any other senior class.

Senator J. Con Lanier of Greenville introduced the speaker, saying "The class was indeed fortunate in having a person so well qualified as speaker Eure to extend to them advice at this time."

Mr. Eure further told the class that they were a great factor in the building of a great defense program which today seems to be the outstanding idea in a world so unsettled. He also challenged them to go forth and make new frontiers to conquer.

Principal H. C. Oglesby presided during the program. The Rev. Percy Case of Wilson gave the invocation and was followed by the audience singing "The Old North State." The Glee Club, accompanied by Miss Billy Williams and directed by Miss Elizabeth Mariner, sang "Sylvia."

Mayor W. I. Bissette presented the seventh grade certificates, and the diplomas were presented to the seniors by Supt. of Pitt County Schools D. H. Conley. Miss Myrtle Price was valedictorian and Miss Betsy Hodges salutatorian of the class.

Principal Oglesby recognized those who were on the stage and they included Dr. W. I. Wooten of Greenville.

There were 14 seniors, as follows: Myrtle Price, Betsy Hodges, Audrey Patrick, Mary Eleanor Gower, Lucille Stokes, Agnes Gardner, Lucille Cannon, Bernice Manning, Margaret James, Catherine Manning, Sam McLawhorn, Jr., Edward Patrick, William Whitehurst and Mac Lee Mumford.

On Sunday evening at 6:45 the senior class gave an interesting and impressive service at the community building, this was in the form of a candlelight vesper. Audrey Patrick was narrator, the vested glee club sang "Dear Father of Mankind," the prayer was sung by William Whitehurst. Participating in the program were the senior class, the glee club and members of the seventh grade. Miss Josephine Essey, Miss Billy Williams and Miss Elizabeth Mariner had charge of the program.

U.S. Believed Already Playing Vital Role In Atlantic Patrol Duty

Observers Express Possibility That Naval Craft Already Patrolling Part Of Area Covered by Extended German Counter Blockade; Patrol Program May Make Dead Issue Of Convoy Question

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Warships of the United States Navy, patrol bombers, and in all probability carrier-based aircraft, informed sources reported today, are already playing a vital role in patrolling ocean stretches which figure in Britain's "Battle of the Atlantic."

N. C. GETS NEW NAVY PROJECT

Blimp Base To Be Located Near Elizabeth City

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Secretary Knox said today that operating bases for navy blimps to be used in a coastal patrol would be located at South Weymouth, Mass., Elizabeth City, N. C., and at a point in the San Francisco area not yet selected.

Knox said the navy planned to increase its fleet of non-rigid airships to 20, and added it was planned to speed up construction of those under contract.

Captain Charles C. Rosendahl, advisor on lighter-than-air craft policies, said, that in addition to the three principal patrol bases there would be a few auxiliary bases. He said the latter would not require acquisition of property for sites.

Secretary Knox informed Rep. Bonner (D-N.C.) a mile-square site on the Pasquotank river four miles below the Coast Guard air base had been selected for the Elizabeth City base.

Observe Progress In Clean-Up Drive

The clean-up campaign, which is being sponsored by the Junior Woman's club is already making a great deal of progress. It has been observed that numbers of backyard are beginning to look like front yards. Some of the city schools have already begun their spring cleaning. Various efforts are being made everywhere to make Greenville look like the city it should be.

It has been said by Phinehas ben Yair that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness."

Abraham Lincoln has said, "I like to see a man proud of the place he lives in."

From Theodore Roosevelt came the following statement: "This country will not be a good place for any of us to live in, unless we make it a good place for all of us to live in."

Our own President of the United States Franklin D. Roosevelt has said this: "The home-owner frequently does not give proper consideration to the question of conditioning his home, consequently he often does not get proper value of his investment in his home, either through neglect or through badly planned alterations. Even a modest sum properly spent on a good house often enhances its value many fold, giving it not only a much greater sale and borrowing value, but also giving it much greater utility and beauty."

High School Play Set For Tonight

"Night Must Fall," senior play starring Herbert Lee, director, and Ruby Taylor, will be presented in the high school auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. A strong supporting cast will appear in this popular murder mystery.

Rehearsals have been under way for over a month and all indications point to an evening of delightful entertainment. Misses Imogene Riddick and Evelyn Buchanan have assisted Herbert Lee with the production. John Horne has supervised the stage work and will share tonight's honors with the actors and supervisors. Proceeds from the play will be applied to the high school curtain fund. The public is cordially invited to attend tonight's performance.

GREAT BRITAIN HOPEFUL OVER SOVIET DECREE

Shipment of War Materials Across Soviet Banned

MANY PRODUCTS GOING TO NAZIS

Optimistic Circles Interpret Order As Expression Of Disapproval To German Expansion

London, April 30.—(AP)—British circles expressed hope today a Soviet Russian ban on transit of war materials across the U. S. S. R., would result in the closing of one of Germany's vital supply routes.

Some quarters interpreted the Russian action as an expression of Moscow's disapproval of German expansion in southeastern Europe.

Less optimistic observers, however, discounting talk of cooling German-Russian relations, said they interpreted the ban as "more window-dressing than anything else."

Despite this disagreement on the true significance, most economic experts agreed the development was loaded with potential importance.

There have been repeated assertions here that large quantities of machine tools and other vital commodities purchased by Russia from the United States were finding their way into Germany, thus circumventing the British blockade.

Also last January 28 Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare told the House of Commons that Russia was buying cotton, copper machinery and wheat from the United States to replace huge consignments being sent from the Soviet to Germany.

Soviet Russia signed a new economic agreement with Germany last January 10 under which she agreed to supply the Reich with large quantities of industrial raw materials and oil products in return for German manufactured products.

Reveal Plans For GHS Award Night

The Athletic Council of Greenville High School will hold its second annual "awards night" banquet Thursday evening, May 1.

Last year's banquet was held at the Country Club and proved to be a very successful affair with many students, faculty and townspeople alike present.

As of last year, the public is cordially invited. There is a small admission price on each plate. Citizens planning to attend will please get in touch with Coach Bo Farley chairman of the council.

Coach Wallace Wade of Duke University will be guest speaker at the affair. Coach Wade is also head of the Physical Education Department at Duke and should give a very interesting talk in relation with the occasion.

H. R. Goodall, popular junior will preside over the dinner as master of ceremonies. Music and entertainment of various sorts will come at different times on the program.

Awards will be presented to members of the football team, boys basketball team, girls basketball team and the junior high quintet.

Salt Water Poured on Tobacco Bed In Pitt

Members of the sheriff's office today began searching for the person or persons who last night poured salt water on Curtis Spencer's tobacco bed in the Black Jack community.

Plants in the bed were ready to be set out and a large portion of them were ruined by the brine. Although no arrests have been made, officers expressed the belief they had some "good leads," which might take them to the guilty person or persons.

Rep. Folger Injured In Automobile Wreck

Mount Airy, April 30.—(AP)—Rep. A. D. (Lon) Folger, Democratic congressman from North Carolina's fifth district, was seriously injured in an automobile accident here today.

Possible Nazi Drives After Greek Mopping Up

Germany continued mopping-up operations in lower Greece (1) and indicated the next objective was Crete (2) and the naval base of Suda Bay. Capture of Thasos, along with the islands of Camothrace and Lemnos (A) was looked upon in London as a move which would enable Germans to "leap frog" into the Dodecanese islands (B) and place them in a position to move toward Alexandria and the Suez Canal (3) or Syria (4) by passing up Turkey. This latter move would make a wedge toward rich oil fields of Iran and Iraq (5).

PLAN IMPROVE CITY SCHOOLS

Architect Selected For Proposed Improvements

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City schools last night Eric G. Flannagan of Henderson was selected as an architect for the proposed improvements of the Greenville school plant.

Mr. Flannagan is at the present time the architect for East Carolina Teachers College. The beautiful new classroom building on the college campus was built under his direction, and he has drawn plans for future buildings at the college. In addition to building buildings for the college, Mr. Flannagan has studied the problem in the North Carolina Sanatorium, the Roanoke Rapids City schools, and the Henderson High School and has supervised the school building program of several counties of the state. He is regarded as one of the best architects in North Carolina.

The Greenville School Board has authorized Mr. Flannagan to go ahead and consider the problem of the Greenville schools and to make some preliminary estimates and drawings at a very early date. The board feels that after the architect has studied the problem in Greenville it will have something definite to submit to the people of the city regarding the school expansion.

Mr. Flannagan will return to Greenville on Friday and spend the day here studying the situation. He will again meet with members of the board concerning the problem.

N.C. Symphonic Choir To Be Here May 7th

The North Carolina Symphonic Choir which will be heard here on Wednesday, May 7 at 8 p. m., at East Carolina Teachers College, is a special touring choir, composed of 40 singers (boys and girls) selected from the choirs of four small Class C high schools in Eastern North Carolina.

It is, as its name suggests, a symphony of human voices, always singing a cappella and from memory, and is capable of expressing itself in all styles of choral singing. In its programs, which include both classical and secular music, the beauty of tone, remarkable technique and intonation, are equally apparent. It is one of the most outstanding Cappella choirs in America today.

This choir was organized in March, 1940, and in less than three months had memorized a concert program and set out upon its first tour. Few choirs have been able to achieve, in so short a time, the acclaim from critics and public alike that the North Carolina Symphonic Choir received on this tour.

An increased domestic consumption is the only chance for tobacco growers. The proposed increase in taxes, which would place an 8 cents tax on every package of cigarettes will undoubtedly seriously curtail consumption of tobacco in this country, and thereby tend to restrict the only market left for flue cured tobacco.

The members of Congress from the tobacco producing areas are conversant with this situation, and (Continued on page six)

District Woodmen Meet Held Today

The Bright Belt Log Rolling Association today was to hold its regular meeting in Farmville with White Oak Camp No. 917, Woodmen of the World as host.

This association consists of 70 camps in 14 counties. L. C. Centers of Shelmerdine is president, John Hill Taylor of Farmville, vice-president, State Manager T. E. Newton of Kinston, Judge B. T. Hill of Wadesboro and Rev. Dr. W. H. Carter of Goldsboro will be principal speakers.

A business session was to be held at 4 o'clock in the high school auditorium, at which time officers for the coming year were to be elected and installed. A banquet will be held at 7 o'clock in the gymnasium. A large delegation was expected and a good program was arranged. Seth Barrow, consul commander and C. B. Mashburn, Jr., financial secretary, were in charge of the meeting.

All advertisements, church notices, notices of church societies, club activities, etc., must be in our hands on Friday afternoon to assure publication in the Saturday edition. The cooperation of the public in letting us have this material on time will enable us to meet our new working schedule and will be greatly appreciated.

Reports On Allied Loss In Campaign

Three-Quarters of 60,000 British Troops Sent To Bolster The Greek Defense Declared to Have Been Safely Withdrawn For Conflict Elsewhere; Withdrawal On Advice of Greeks

London, April 30.—(AP) Three-quarters of the 60,000 soldiers Britain sent to Greece, pulled out on the Greeks' own counsel that further resistance was futile, so far have been saved to fight again on other fronts, an authoritative source declared today.

This was the first precise indication here of how Britain had fared in withdrawing her expeditionary force under the twin blows of Nazi panzer divisions swiftly rolling back the Greek front and German air squadrons hammering get-away ships and harbors.

Removal of 45,000 men and listing of 3,000 casualties left 12,000 of the original 60,000 unaccounted for, it was reported.

(The German high command, reporting Nazi motorized forces in sharp pursuit of the British to block their flight across the sea, said that so far five thousand Britons, including one general, have been taken prisoners in Greece.)

In Cairo, the Middle East command's war bulletin said simply that the withdrawal from Greece is "continuing satisfactorily."

Because it felt that further bloodshed would be useless to the allies, the government said, Greece advised the British on April 21 to withdraw their forces and avoid vain sacrifices.

On April 21, Greece's Epirus and Macedonian armies were negotiating surrender, other Greeks and the British were falling back across the Thessaly plains and resistance had turned into mere bitter-end delaying actions. The Germans then were beyond Larissa and Metsovon and, two days earlier, had planted their flag over Mount Olympus.

Early said Johnson was eligible for reappointment on the score of his age, as he is only 58, and that the War Department had waived the question of his physical fitness.

The department also had recommended to the President that Johnson be reappointed. He had been reappointed previously for three five-year periods. During that time, Early said, Johnson had not been on active duty or indirect touch with the army.

Troops Leave For Duty At Trinidad

New York, April 30.—(AP)—The 13,736-ton army transport American Legion sailed today with an undisclosed number of troops for the new military base at Trinidad.

Army officers announced that the troops included elements from the 252nd Coast Artillery of Fort Screven, Georgia, containing many North Carolina National Guardsmen, and from the 11th Infantry of Fort Custer, Michigan, as well as military police and "miscellaneous service detachments."

Revenue Collections For N.C. On Increase

Raleigh, April 30.—(AP)—The State of North Carolina collected $6,505,202.15 from its taxpayers during April—an increase of $1,323,476.40, or 25 per cent over the $5,172,725.75 collected in April of 1940. The Revenue Department reported today.

The April tax take brought to $75,381,118.51 collections for the 10 months of the current fiscal year. This was $9,375,079.63 more than the $66,006,038.88 taken in during the first 10 months of the 1939-40 fiscal year.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Wednesday, April 30, 1901

Last day of April. Bionic weather now. One-third year gone. Everybody glad to see warmer weather.

The oyster gets out of the snip now and takes a rest for the summer. The leaves must do lots of growing if they have their full growth by the 10th of May.

Query: Why does the street sprinkler wait until it rains to come out?

The reception in the opera house Tuesday night given by the home circle of the King's Daughters to the delegates and visitors, was a very delightful feature of the convention here. A large number of our people were present to meet the delegates and enjoy the occasion. They were entertained for an hour with a musical program that was of a high order.

After the music there was mingling together socially while refreshments were served. It was an enjoyable evening.

decorated in spring flowers and greenery, the large brick fireplace and mantel being especially lovely with a color scheme of yellow and white carried out in yellow tulle and white spirea in white containers.

Greeting guests at the door was Mrs. B. F. Weaver, who presented each one with a dainty nosegay. The receiving line was introduced by Mrs. H. B. Baker. This line was composed of Mrs. J. R. Lewis, president of the club, Miss Verona Lee Joyner, Miss Katherine Holtzclaw, Mrs. R. B. Tyler, Mrs. B. L. Tyson, Mrs. B. R. Fields and Mrs. W. T. Hobgood.

After the serving of tea Mrs. Lula Forbes and Mrs. Lizzie Allen directed guests to the register, presided over by Mrs. R. F. Twigwell. Serving tea at the table were Mrs. J. H. Bynum and Mrs. W. R. Hinson. The tea table was centered with an arresting arrangement of yellow tulips and white spirea on each side of which were tall yellow candles in crystal candelabra.

Assisting in serving dainty sandwiches, cookies, nuts and mints were Mrs. W. J. Baker, Mrs. C. B. Joyner, Mrs. C. L. Dozier, Mrs. Albert Bell, Mrs. R. L. Carraway, Mrs. S. F. Hobgood and Miss Penny Norman. In their usual gracious manner, Mrs. J. S. Heath, Mrs. Julia Allen, Mrs. W. E. Baxley and Mrs. C. L. Ivey also assisted in serving. Mrs. A. C. Carraway directed visitors to the kitchen, where Mrs. L. W. Andrews displayed very interestingly the complete kitchen equipment of which the club is so proud. From there Mrs. B. M. Lewis very graciously said goodbye to all. About 200 guests called during the afternoon. Music was rendered throughout the afternoon by Mrs. J. S. Gates, Mrs. J. D. Holmes, Mrs. Elbert Holmes and Miss Pauline Stroud, all of Farmville.

Music Week Program Planned.
The week of May 4 to 11, a most important one for music lovers throughout the nation because it is National Music Week, will offer unusual attractions in Greenville through a series of programs by the music department of East Carolina Teachers College to which practically all students studying music on the campus will contribute. Three public concerts, all of different nature, will be free to the public, says A. L. Dittmer, head of the department, and through cooperation with WGTC four other programs will be broadcast from the Wright building.

Tuesday night, Miss Elizabeth Coppedge, soprano, and Donald Perry, tenor, voice students in the department, will give a joint recital in Austin auditorium. Wednesday night, from 8:30 to 9, students in voice will broadcast.

Thursday night, a variety radio program will be broadcast from the Wright building. The entire department will cooperate in a program Friday night, with numbers by the orchestra, the women's chorus, the college choir, the orchestra and choir from the Training school, and piano, vocal, and violin solos. This will be given in the Wright building.

The week of music will close with a Sunday afternoon concert by the school band, which will play on the front campus.

To all of these programs the public is cordially invited.

To Celebrate May Day.
Salem College, at Winston-Salem, will celebrate May Day on Saturday, May 3, at 5 o'clock in the beautiful natural amphitheatre of the "Pleasure Grounds" on lower campus, under the direction of Miss Margaret McGehee of Lenoir College, Va., student chairman, who is the author of the original program used upon "Belmont," an ancient spring festival of Brittany. The May court includes Miss Myra Blount of Greenville.

Freshman Class Banquet.
The Freshman class of East Carolina Teachers College will get together in a class banquet tonight at 6:30 in the college dining hall, with Margaret Russell of Richlands, president of the class presiding.

For the chief speaker of the evening "Billy" Arthur, Jacksonville, editor and humorist, who is known for his skill in entertaining auditions, has been chosen. He will be introduced by James Whitefield, Tece Echo editor, who is to be one of the guests.

Before the address, Verda Harris of Greenville will offer a toast to the faculty, to which Professor R. C. Deal will respond. Ida Ruth Knowles of Roper, president of this year's junior class, will give a toast to the Freshman class, and Jaquie Eakes of Greenville will speak in answer.

For music, there will be a trio composed of members of the class and piano numbers by Carl Whitehurst, Greenville freshman. Among the guests will be President and Mrs. L. R. Meadows, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Deal, faculty members who take their meals at the college and those who teach groups of freshmen.

To Appear Here in Concert.
When Lucielle Browning, young American mezzo-soprano, appears in concert Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Wright building of East Carolina Teachers College, she will already have completed over 150 performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, this year being her fourth season at that historic "hall of song," mecca of all singers the world over. She has established herself at the Metropolitan as a great favorite both with the artists and the public, through her charming personality, beautiful voice and adaptability.

In the past few years she has achieved much for one so young in such a taxing art. Apart from her important operatic work, Miss Browning has appeared as soloist at the Worcester Festival, as soloist with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, with the National Symphony orchestra, and for the Bach St. Matthew Passion in two successive seasons in New York. Her numerous concert appearances in the United States and Canada have added new landmarks of outstanding achievement.

Her striking personality, marked beauty, sterling musicianship and lustrous voice combine to bring raptures from her audiences everywhere who agree that she lives up to the title one critic has conferred upon her: "Lucielle Browning favorite daughter of song." Miss Browning arrived this morning. While in Greenville she will be the guest of Mrs. J. I. Kilgo.

Completes Course.
Joe Butts, 111 W. Horns avenue, Farmville, has completed a course in practical and theoretical radio and television and has been awarded a diploma by the National Radio Institute of Washington, D. C.

Open Forum At Christian Church.
The largest attendance of the year marked the Open Forum held in the Eighth Street Christian Church last Sunday night, when Dr. Olin T. Binkley, head of the Department of Religion at Wake Forest College, spoke on "The Imperatives of a Good Home."

By way of introduction, the speaker mentioned some of the contributions which a good home makes to the social order. Among these, that a good home furnishes the only legitimate source of population increase; it satisfies some of the deepest cravings of the human race for companionship, love, cooperative effort, and a sense of personal stability; and is an indispensable force in the process of maturing human personality. Dr. Binkley suggested four imperatives of a good home:

1. Monogamic marriage, which, after long experience and trials of many types of man and woman relationship has been found to be the only type that works successfully. It was pointed out that marriage never solves individual problems, rather intensifies them. But, granted the essentials of love, loyalty, and patience personal problems may find adequate adjustment. Unless two people are definitely committed to each other, they are not prepared to build good homes.

2. Fairly secure economic foundation. While wealth is not essential to the building of a good home, it does take money to meet its obligations. The income must be adequate to allow for the proper function of the family with a fair degree of regularity and certainty.

3. The good home promotes the growth and health of human personality. In the good home there is no dominating personality, but a mutual association in an equal partnership where all members of the family share in the responsibility for the carrying on of the home enterprise.

4. A good home must be nourished by vital religious experience. To try to build a good home on purely material and human foundations is to try to do the impossible. To leave religion out of the home is to leave out an essential element without which the development of life in the home can never be such as to warrant the description "Good." While the home functions in time, it must have in it something of eternity if it is to be good.

The Forum of last Sunday night was sponsored by two organizations in the local Christian Church, the Matrons of the Woman's Council, and The Fireside Club, an organization of young married people. Mr. T. I. Wagner, co-chairman with Mrs. Wagner of the Fireside Club, presided and introduced the speaker.

Election
The second election to decide who will be president and vice-president of the student body was held today. Bill Turner and Richard Duncan are candidates for president, while Jack Edwards and Billy Horne are candidates for vice-president. Eustace Conway and Louis Dupree were elected treasurer and secretary, respectively, in the first election held last Friday.

Senior Play Tonight
Tonight at eight o'clock the senior class will present their play "Night Must Fall." The play is a gripping study of a murderer at his murdering. It is as terrifying and fascinating a play as you are likely to see in a month of Sundays. For an evening of good, spine-twisting amusement, I recommend "Night Must Fall."

Flash!
The school board officially employed an architect last night to present plans for some sort of school expansion. Congratulations to the school board, we are all behind you.

CCC enrollees, assigned to erosion work eight years ago, have constructed 3,500,000 check dams, planted more than 250,000 trees in gullies and fields subject to critical erosion, constructed 27,000 miles of terraces and installed 350,000 terrace outlet structures.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FREEDOM FOR THE ASKING

If we are bound by any and habit of wayward disposition, it is largely our own fault. We can be free any time we are willing to recognize freedom and enjoy it.

A woman was in the habit of tying her dog every day to a pole in the back yard. One day the dog bit through his leash. But he had been so accustomed to the restraint of the leash that he did not recognize the fact that he was free. He sat there with the leash in his mouth apparently oblivious of the fact that he could have his liberty any time he wanted it.

There is not a single debasing habit that is inevitable. There is no case of moral turpitude which is hopeless. Men who have been drunken all their adult years are sometimes changed in the twinkling of an eye. Many men have been released from the power of a life of crime after enduring for many years the penalty of their crime.

Many people who fall into evil ways keep on going until they plunge over the precipice. But there is the reason why this should be true. It can be otherwise if we will make it so. Christ declared that He came to bring release to the captive and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bound. The purchase price of freedom is faith. We can have self-control and happiness any time we are ready to trust the One who is able to give us that release.

EVENTS SHOW FOLLY OF ISOLATIONIST DOCTRINE

(Scottish Rite News)

Now that Yugoslavia and Greece have fallen under the sway of Hitler, he dominates fourteen European countries. Three of them, France, Belgium and The Netherlands, have extensive colonial possessions in both the Eastern and Western Hemispheres.

Some of the countries he conquered by the blitzkrieg method, Czechoslovakia and Austria he seized. Others succumbed to the mere threat of military power. But the long list of countries that preferred to resist—Poland, Norway, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, and valiant Greece and Yugoslavia—fell before Hitler's mighty war machine.

Italy is practically under the domination of the Fuehrer, and Franco's Spain has neither the desire nor the power to resist. Many observers believe that after the fall of the Republic, Spain would eventually become the springboard of the dictators to strengthen their influence in Latin America.

It is now obvious that Finland, Sweden and Switzerland can be liquidated by Germany at any time it chooses. These countries have no place in the picture of immediate resistance to Nazi aggression.

Once the German war machine moves into Spain, Portugal must fall. This would mean that the Azores and Cape Verde Islands, several hundred miles closer to the United States shores than Hawaii, could be used as bases from which to attack this country. Rio de Oro, a Spanish possession in West Africa, could be used for the same purpose.

Observers gravely fear that, with a German army in Spain, Hitler will be able to force France to surrender General Weygand's army in North Africa, together with the French navy and merchant fleet. France is already seriously weakened by the enormous and outrageous German demands upon its economy. Huge numbers of former French soldiers are prisoners of war, working in German fields and factories, and France cannot rise alone against its conqueror.

Should French North Africa fall into German hands, the next move would probably be to take over Casablanca and Dakar on the west coast of that continent. Reliable reports indicate that Nazi agents are at work bribing natives and winning disloyal French officers to their cause. It must be remembered that Dakar is only 1,700 miles from Brazil and that German influence is at work both in the army and among the civil officers of that country.

The implications of German domination of French and Spanish territory on the Atlantic toward the future of Brazil and all of South America are well known. A new feature is the fact that air and submarine bases from Dakar to Norway will give the Nazis points from which to attack British shipping throughout the Atlantic. This would not only challenge British ships from the Far East and South America, but would seriously endanger the proposed plan of the United States to send merchant vessels around Africa to Port Said by way of the Red Sea. Thus Hitler would be in a position to challenge the value of both British and the United States navies in the Atlantic, from comparatively close submarine and air bases.

Should Germany succeed in this plan, many observers believe it would herald the fall of the British Empire, and the rise of German Nazism throughout Europe and in the possessions of the conquered countries. It is not difficult for the average mind to visualize what result such a situation would have on our own way of life. Many contend that it would threaten, if not destroy, our national existence. Certainly those who take this view have ample and grave facts to support their position, and every hour furnishes more facts pointing to such a conclusion.

Moreover, the German Chancellor emphatically stated his objective when he declared: "Two worlds, two philosophies of life are in conflict. One of the two worlds must break asunder." If recent event on Continental Europe mean anything, they show conclusively that it would be folly for the United States to discount Hitler's declaration as covering too much territory.

The Fuehrer's admonitions during the past few years should cause us to believe him in just one respect—that he proposes to destroy the democracies. Judging from his present war tempo, there are observers who believe that another six months will put him into position to dictate trade, if not military, terms to countries in South America.

Opponents of all-out aid to Britain argue that President Franklin D. Roosevelt's policy is interventionist and that it involves the probability of the United States entering the war. Friends of the President's policy contend that it is defensive, and question the sense of contributing to a German victory by sitting on the sidelines while peoples of similar ideals are destroyed. The President has repeatedly explained the dangers to the United States of such a victory. He recently expressed confidence in the ability of his fellow countrymen to think for themselves when he referred to the old crack-er-barrel discussions which took place in the grocery stores during earlier days of our history. It is hoped that the innate good sense of the United States public will see, from recent events, that a British victory is vital—that aiding Great Britain is a necessary step in preserving this country and its free institutions.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson
Washington — In a hole in the ground in Kentucky, the U.S.A. has nearly all of its gold buried. Some day, in a hole in the ground in Kansas (or somewhere) the country may have much of its culture buried.

Archibald MacLeish, head of the Library of Congress, has been pushing the Library's M-day scheme for months. He now is able to report that before any bomb blasts the old-fashioned building that houses more than 6,000,000 books, 1,500,000 maps and cartographers' photographs, nearly that many pieces of music, and at least a half million fine prints, plans will have been completed to make some 600,000 of the most treasured of these items safe against blitzkrieg.

The details are a secret, but since they are based on the experiences of great libraries abroad, some conclusions may be drawn. In the first place, there is the problem of the selection of books, manuscripts, prints, to be saved. To get at this, Librarian MacLeish appointed Dr. Jerrold Mac, a fellow of the Library, as coordinator. Then he asked for volunteers to work on the cataloguing. Seven hundred men and women stepped forward and to date they have put in more than 10,000 hours of overtime (without pay or compensation time off) to get the library's treasures tagged for storage.

Originals Head List.
At the head of the list are such irreplaceable literary and historical gems as the original Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Lincoln's first drafts of the Gettysburg address, the private papers of George Washington and other Presidents. Thomas Jefferson's library (or rather what was left of it after the British got through burning Washington in 1814) and thousands of irreplaceable first editions which comprise almost all the masterpieces of American literature. There also is that famous Gutenberg Bible. There are scores of prints, including the world-known Pennell collection of etchings. There are musical gems like original scores by the great German composers, Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner. There also are Payne's original "Home, Sweet Home," Key's "Star Spangled Banner," and Nevins' "Rosary."

Perhaps that will give you some idea of what will go into the bomb-proof hole in the ground. As for the hole or holes, David Lynn, Capitol architect, and MacLeish still are working on that. You can't bury books and art treasures like you do gold. The library caches will have to be ventilated, bug-proof and fire-proof. That's no small order, but the successes and failures of European libraries and museums are pointing the way. So far, MacLeish and Lynn have little more than plans. To execute them will cost money. The only way you can get money out of the government is through Congress. Therefore, if you are interested in following up this safeguarding of the library's gems of inestimable value, watch for an appropriation bill that will provide the funds.

Short Shots

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, April 30.—They will not openly admit it, but two of the 1941 House members appear to be hot after the Unemployment Compensation Commission chairmanship which is one of the major bits of political pap still to be spooned out by Governor J. M. Broughton.

This pair consists of Claude C. Abernathy of Nash and James B. Vogler of Mecklenburg. Both happened to be in Raleigh Tuesday. Both called on the Governor—to pay their respects only it was elicited from them.

Your reporter met them walking cheek by jaw on Fayetteville street and asked them point blank: "Are you two running against each other for the U. C. C. job, or are you working together so that one can be chairman and the other his chief assistant?"

This brought, first, a denial from each that he is "running for anything."
"I haven't been hanging around Raleigh much, have I?" queried Vogler.

Finally the Nash lawyer said: "Well, maybe we are running against each other—hey, Jim?"

Good Picker, Too
A laudatory editorial in the Salisbury Evening Post compliments Director Bruce Etheridge on being able to hang on to that job under three governors, and points out that such popularity must be deserved through great efficiency.

While your reporter cheerfully concedes that "Cousin Bruce" has done a swell job of conservation directing, he likewise would like to point out that Mr. Etheridge was found fighting valiantly in the political ranks of each successful gubernatorial candidate.

Gentleman Again
Meeting W. I. Halstead of Camden on the main drag tother day your reporter first addressed him as "Senator," then remembered that he was a House member in 1941 after having served in the so-called "upper chamber" in 1937 and 1939; and amended his greeting to "How are you, sir?"
"That's right," he replied. "I'm a gentleman again, after being a senator for four years."

Youth Week
Youth seems to be having its fling in North Carolina, if statistics on licenses revoked for drunken driving are indicative.
For the week ended April 25 there were 161 revocations by the highway safety division, about the normal number. Age of the offender was listed in 119 cases, of which 19 were of the teen age boys—18 or under. That's practically 16 per cent or one in every six revocations. Maybe the youngsters just can't hold their liquor as well as their elders. Anyway, it's a rather startling percentage.

Usury Is Criminal Offense

The legislature did nothing about regulation of small loan businesses which charge usurious rates of interest; but those who are bled through exorbitant interest charges can get revenge through criminal proceedings in certain cases, at least. The Attorney General has just ruled that usury is a criminal offense when the loan is "upon any article of household furniture or kitchen furniture or any assignment or sale of wages earned or to be earned."

Thomas Gainsborough painted his famous "Blue Boy" to disprove a statement that blue should not be massed together in a picture.

The New Goodrich Silvertown of Liberty Rubber made with Ameripol

14 years ago Goodrich recognized the critical situation that would face American motorists if a world emergency shut off supplies of natural rubber from the far east.

Today—after untiring research—Goodrich has not only achieved American freedom from dependence on natural rubber but has created a new Silvertown of "Liberty Rubber" made with Goodrich Ameripol.

Hooker-Slicer Golf Tournament All Set For Saturday

TWO CAPTAINS REVEAL TEAMS

Fifty-Six Golfers Are Listed To Take Part In Event

On Saturday afternoon, May 3, the Greenville Golf and Country club will put on its annual "Hooker-Slicer" tournament. This is always a gala occasion and this year's contest bids fair to be the best ever. The "Hookers" captained by Jack Kilgo will do their best to have Captain Reynolds May's "Slicers" buy the meal.

It is the custom to have a big feed at the club immediately following the tournament. The losing team being hosts of the winners.

Golf lovers of the city will have a fine chance to see some swell matches as great care has been taken by the two captains to match the players as evenly as possible.

Below is a list of the pairings. This is not a complete list and any club member whose name does not appear below and who wants to play should get in touch with either one of the captains or Pro. Bob Bailey as it is desired to have every golfer in the club take part. In case any of the people listed below cannot play Saturday they are asked to get in touch with their captain.

BY MARGARET WIDEMER

Chapter 14 "Nothing Just Now"

It was by now about the middle of September. It was warm enough to wear summer things, but Eileen dressed in her smart little dark taffeta, fussed longer than usual over all adjustments of make-up, hat, gloves, and walked valiantly out. The great building looked formidable. Men and girls, going and coming, talking and laughing easily, downstairs, somehow cheered her as she walked back to the elevator. Her letter from the Weigands—her own recordings—had secured her a personal appointment with somebody named Grayson. Somebody with a curt, pleasant voice, whose secretary also had a voice like that. "People are the same everywhere," she told herself to make her heart stop pounding as she reached the floor where she was to be interviewed. But it didn't seem to do much good.

The pleasant, brisk girl at the reception desk made her wait, sitting in a row among others on curved red leather seats, there in the wide hall. Presently her name was spoken and, heart still pounding, she went to her interview with Mr. Grayson.

He was easy to talk to; he had a warm, swift friendliness which she was to find as characteristic of all radio people; the immediate, intimate manner of the stage, very nearly. But it was backed by less temperance. Mr. Grayson was a business man.

Thin, dark, smiling, inspiring, he wandered about one of the audition rooms—a room of padded gray splendor and incredible space—and said, "Yes, we liked your recordings. Of course, you know, we never advise people to come on to New York on the chance of anything here. Still, as you're here, we may as well get your record—Mary!"

Mary, as smiling, friendly and casual as her employer, drifted in from some adjoining spot and greeted Eileen.

"Make out a card for Miss Gardner—" Mr. Grayson said, and Mary took a pencil from her blond curls and smiled, and took an exhaustive history of Eileen down on the spot.

"Sounds promising."

"Would there be anything—"

"Just now, no. But you never know."

"Would another audition—"

"Why, I think so. I have some time." As casual as that.

"Come along now, don't be afraid—oh, of course you're not."

Mary laughed. "Mr. Grayson! He's so absent-minded. She's been singing on a radio hour! I just took it down!"

"Of course, I'm a bit screwball, we mostly are," Mr. Grayson said brightly.

And with no more trouble than that, beyond the summoning of a sound man, a little running about, Eileen had an audition. She had, hoping for the best, brought her music.

"Went nicely. No stage fright. Nice voice, nice personality," said Mr. Grayson cheerfully.

She went away, walking on air. It was not until she was back with Molly, excitedly relating her story, that she realized that nothing definite had happened. Still, as she and Molly agreed, it was a lot to get an audition right off the bat that way. It was on account of the recordings the net work had bought of course.

She did not have such good luck with other networks, excepting that dreamy, said, "Ah, Molly's wonderful. His smile was charming. Molly turned crimson under it, and openly squeezed her hand."

"Well, if you can say that," she said crisply, "after the way I've been hounding you about the shop, you're a good kid, Ris."

He shrugged. "It's for my good. You and Nick—well, I'm sort of your protegee," he said, unexpectedly. "I guess it's all right for me."

Eileen could see that Aristides had been managed for his good all his life—passive, sweet-natured, romantic. Nick had been in charge till now; and now Molly was taking over.

Little Mrs. Papoulos, whose Christian name was Myrtis, laughed. "Some folks boss and some get bossed," she said, jumping up to clear off the plates and replace them with a sticky Greek sweetmeat which Eileen looked at in some dismay. "You and me, Ris, we get bossed, hey?"

"Ris says you're swell," Molly confided to her later. "He says he likes you better than any friend I ever had. He thinks you have beautiful eyes and hands."

"That's nice of Ris. I liked him too."

"Nothing ever gets by Ris," Molly said fervently. "I never noticed you had pretty hands. But he would. He's like that. Sometimes I think he oughta been a writer or something. He does write poetry a little."

Old Job

Eileen did not need to talk at all that night. When Molly had finished about Ris's personal perfection, she continued about his prospective flower shop and his plans for running it. He thought he could swing it alone—with Molly running in from Nick's shop next door to give a hand from time to time. Presently, of course, it would expand to the point of needing twice the space and twice the employees.

Just before she slept she thought to ask, "What happened with you?"

"Nothing so far," Eileen said. "But I can't expect everything to happen at once."

"No," Molly said drowsily. "Anyway, an audition's a lot. You got to keep going to see them and calling them."

Eileen, before she slept, did some thinking. She must keep enough in the bank to fall back on. Two weeks did not prove much—the radio people were encouraging; there must be jobs for so competent a secretary. She decided to try the Part Time Bureau.

It proved to be offered by a Aristides, his big black eyes bright, kindly lady who answered telephone calls with the patience of a switchboard operator. And the part-time jobs proved to range from interior decorating to maid service. "Secretarial work by the hour—the lady said, 'Yes, we get calls for that. Of course, we get a fee.'"

She took Eileen's telephone number, and the hours when she was to be found at home.

Eileen went out again on the round of job hunting. It was getting closer to October. Being in New York by itself, was exciting, stimulating—and there was plenty of time. There'd be a radio job. There'd be—lacking that a secretarial job.

She was suitable; she was pretty alert, capable.

"What you have to have's contacts," Molly said wisely. "They are what count, nowadays."

Eileen got another audition in a few days. And more encouragement. And nothing coming of it.

The Part Time Bureau called Eileen a couple of times. She picked up, as good reports, she supposed, came of her, five or six dollars a week that way, doing typing by the hour. And then things lagged. She went, on her rounds, in to see the manager, by way of stirring her up.

"Not a thing for you, my dear," she was told. "And honestly, sometimes I get so discouraged—the saddest stories—"

The telephone interrupted her. "No," she said. "I'm sorry. I haven't anybody at all that kind right now."

"What kind?" Eileen demanded, hand on the manager's black crepe shoulder.

"Nothing you want," said the manager, hand on the mouthpiece. "That's Mrs. Carrier. She wants her cockers washed."

Eileen laughed. "Well, I suppose it's the same price per hour as typing."

"A little more," said the manager, frowning. "So many less people want to wash dogs! You mean you'd take it?"

"Sure I'd take it. It would cover my half of this week's rent," Eileen said recklessly.

GAME SET FOR 4:00 O'CLOCK

Exhibition Game with Kinston Here On Saturday

Rube Wilson's Greenies will engage the Rocky Mount entry of the Coastal Plain league at Guy Smith stadium tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Greenies will return the game on Friday afternoon.

This is the first opportunity for the Greenville fans to see Rocky Mount in action this year. The club is being managed by Norman McCaskill, veteran catcher, who came to the Railroad City along with a number of other Snow Hill players when a group of Rocky Mount citizens purchased the Snow Hill franchise. McCaskill was a star at the University of North Carolina and has seen service in a number of minor leagues, including the Texas league.

In a game played yesterday at Rocky Mount, the East Carolina Teachers College went down to defeat before the Railroaders to the tune of 10-6. Rocky Mount's Kurt getting three home runs and Norman Mayo, the college's husky left fielder also parking the ball.

"Lex" Ridenhour, former EOTC player, who has been coaching at Ayden High School, is reporting to Manager Rube Wilson today. The former college player was used at practically every position on the team during his four years at college. He is expected to try out for second base for the Greenies.

The Greenies are engaging Coach Christenbury's EOTC boys in another practice game this afternoon at the stadium.

Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock Cowboy McHenry's Kinston Eagles will engage the Greenies here at the stadium in the first of two exhibition games with the Eagles. The Greenies will journey over to Kinston for a return game on Sunday at 3 o'clock. Negotiations are under way for games on Monday and Tuesday of next week, and Wednesday will be an open date and will be used by Skinner Rube Wilson to make final preparations for the opening of the league on Thursday.

Theatres To Present Film On Girl Scouts

A Girl Scout film trailer, "Scouting Begins At Seven" is being shown at the Pitt theatre, May 1 and 2 and at the State theatre May 3. This picture is of superior quality and is one of the very few non-commercial films accepted for showing in the famous Radio City Music Hall, New York City. Brownies, Girl Scouts, parents and friends of Scouting are all urged to see this film while they have the opportunity. It carefully interprets the Girl Scout program which begins for girls at the age of seven and may carry on for them in some way for the rest of their life. This film should be of particular interest to Greenville people at this time since it is being shown during the Girl Scout Cookie Sale and the opening of the new Girl Scout Equipment Shop at the Blount-Harvey Department Store. It is hoped that the showing of the film will help Greenville people to realize even more so that "from Maine to California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, nearly a million young Americans are enrolled under the emblem of the Girl Scouts - happy, healthy girls, quick-thinking, right-thinking girls who will lead their lives as they build their council fires - by the rules of the game. Our citizens of tomorrow - they deserve your support."

Mr. Walker, manager of the Pitt theatre has cooperated with the local Girl Scout Council in bringing this film to Greenville.

Ready To Work

L. Ebersole Gaines, chairman of the Southern coal operators' conference, informed President Roosevelt that the operators have accepted the President's proposal for ending the coal mine tie-up and are "ready to resume work immediately." Before leaving the conference room in Washington, Gaines stopped to make a long distance telephone call.

U. S. IN NEED OF MORE PORK

Tar Heel Farmers Expected to Respond To Plea

Raleigh, April 30 - North Carolina farmers are expected to respond to the Government's plea for more pork with increased farrowings this fall. Earl H. Hostetler, professor of animal husbandry at N. C. State College, said today. To assure farmers of adequate returns, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a program that will support hog prices. The Department, as well as calling for more pigs, is also asking that farmers feed the animals to a heavier weight. "If North Carolina farmers are to take advantage of these increased prices," Hostetler said, "it will be necessary for the pigs to make efficient and economical gains. Likewise, their feeds must be utilized advantageously."

To attain this objective, the State College man said, it will be necessary to feed the brood sow and the suckling pig a well-balanced ration. This means a ration containing corn, barley, or other grains amply supplemented with protein feed such as a mixture of tankage and cottonseed meal. Fortunately, Hostetler pointed out North Carolina farmers can grow the necessary grains, plant proteins, and vitamins on their farms and need only to purchase the necessary mineral and animal protein supplements. The mineral mixture is inexpensive and easily obtained and while the tankage or other animal protein is more expensive than other feeds, only a small amount is needed in the ration. "Profitable hogs must be healthy," Hostetler said, "and to be healthy they must have been farrowed on clean land that is well covered with a succulent annual pasture."

are organizing to oppose this discriminatory tax on tobacco. Every tobacco farmer can help in this fight by immediately writing a letter in his own language to his Congressman and Senators and especially to Congressman R. L. Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Doughton is a North Carolinian and a farmer, and is the key man in this committee. "I am going to Washington tonight to tender my services in this fight for the tobacco growers. I urge all the tobacco growers to join us and help us by writing these letters at once. Address your letter to Congressman R. L. Doughton, Washington, D. C., and to your Congressman and Senators. Ours is not a fight to evade the payment of just taxes for defense. It is a fight to prevent a gross injustice to tobacco growers. It is a fight to oppose the levying of an excessive tax on one farmer's product which is already carrying an enormous and unfair tax load. It is a fight for the very financial existence of the tobacco growers. Five hundred letters to Mr. Doughton in the next few days from tobacco farmers will in my honest opinion have a decisive effect in defeating this increase. "I again urge every tobacco grower who reads this article to immediately write such a letter."

When work at home tires... pause and Turn to Refreshment

For recreation the radio workers play darts, ping-pong and give each other language lessons. Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's minister of aircraft production, emphatically borrowed his title from the name of a tiny billiard in northern Ontario.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola is refreshment at its best. It leaves you with a happy, refreshed feeling. It is pure, wholesome and delicious... the drink for home refreshment. So when you pause throughout the day, make it the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola.
