Doll Show At Art Gallery.—A doll show will be given by the sponsors of the Greenville WPA Art Gallery on May 20 at 4 p. m., and again at 8 p. m. It will be held at the Woman's Club since the art gallery is too small to take care of a large crowd.

Mrs. E. H. Kochutsky of Mount Airy, sister of Miss Alma Sparger, director of the art gallery, will show her private collection of American dolls and tell about the history of the doll collector for ten years or more. She began by collecting foreign dolls when she traveled abroad. She gave these to her small granddaughter who now has over 200 of them. When the European war made travel there impossible and cut off the supply of foreign dolls, Mrs. Kochutsky began collecting American dolls. She has traveled from the east to the west and from the north to the south, looking for representative of each period of American history. She has been both surprised and delighted to find how many varieties of dolls can be found in this country if a person is interested enough to weed them out of their hiding places. This collection shows the various types of dolls that were played with by little girls

Series Of Bible Studies.—The first of a series of four studies in the New Testament will be conducted in the Fifth Street Christian Church this evening, Wednesday, eight o'clock. This preliminary study will deal with the social and political background of the New Testament and the childhood period of the life of Jesus Christ.

These study groups are open to any who may be interested in a brief study of the material of the New Testament. The studies will be conducted by Mr. Ryan and will last about one hour each. Teachers and officers of the church school, leaders of the various organizations, and members of the official board are especially invited to attend.

Board Meeting Postponed.—Notice to members of the official board of the Christian Church: The board meeting, originally scheduled for tonight, Tuesday, has been postponed. This action was taken at a called meeting held on Sunday morning.

Association Officer.—At the convention of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association in Winston-Salem the past week-end, Lallah B. Watts, East Carolina Teachers College junior of Raleigh, was elected first vice-president of the association.

The general program included business sessions and formal programs, banquets, dances and other forms of entertainment for the delegates. The selection of the best publication in each A and B class and the awarding of gold keys to the winning editors and business managers were features of the meeting.

Others representing the college were Mary Agnes Deal and W. M. Burks of Greenville, Harold Taylor of Stantonsburg, Rose Carleton Dunn of Rocky Mount and Anne Poythress of Henderson.

Musical Program At Assembly.—Of the two programs scheduled at the college today in observance of National Music Week, one was given this morning at assembly featuring A. L. Dittmer, head of the department of music, as violinist, and Denton G. Rossell, teacher of singing, as vocalist; and the other will be given tonight at 8:15 in the Austin auditorium with two students, Elizabeth Coppedge, soprano and Donald Perry, tenor, presented in a song recital.

Mr. Dittmer, in introducing the program of the evening, pointed out that the slogan of Music Week is "Make Good Music Familiar in 1941," and said that practically every student in the music department is having some part in helping realize the goal by taking part this week in either a broadcast or a public concert on the campus.

Mr. Rossell, with Wida Royall as his accompanist, gave a group of five short selections: "Dedication," "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Neapolitan Love Song," "I Heard a Forest Praying," and "When I Think Upon the Maidens."

Mr. Dittmer played as violin solos Beethoven's "Solfeggio," "Tarentella" and "Meditation from Thais." Miss Lois V. Gorrell, of the music faculty, was his accompanist.

The program tonight is open to the public and all interested are cordially invited to hear this student recital.

Student Council Meeting.—Tonight at 7:30 the Student Council will hold its regular weekly meeting. Probably the most important business to be taken up will be work on the project to give students veto power over the council's action.

Tennis Match.—Tomorrow the boys' tennis team will travel to Goldsboro where they will meet the Goldsboro High tennis team. So far this year the Phantoms have been defeated twice by Wilson 4-3 and 4-1, and fought to a tie with Kinston 3-3. The boys who will probably make the trip are Gene Johnson, Sidney Johnson, Ben Harrison, Percy Wells and Clinton Joyner.

Track Meet.—This afternoon the High tracksters will meet the Rocky Mount tracksters here. This is the first home meet of the year.

Sleepwalker Awakens in Morgue.—Pratt, Kas.—(AP)—Dave Holopeter was startled when a voice on the telephone asked: "Have you lost one of your boys?" Holopeter said no, the boys had been in bed for hours. "You better look," he was advised. Holopeter did, and found Bobby, 7, missing from bed. Bobby had had a bad dream, and, apparently, had walked, barefoot, and in pajamas, downtown and into a mortuary where the attendant awakened him.

Need Roller Skates For Markers.—Calxico, Calif.—(AP)—The border earthquake of May 18, 1940 shifted the Mexican line ten feet north into American territory, government surveyors report after a careful investigation. Give Mother Something Personal

Let the surge of memory carry you back . . . back to the time when you were small. Oh, how many things you can remember . . . things your mother did for you! The happiest of all our memories are those of mother and childhood . . . when no trouble was so serious that she couldn't soothe you, when nothing was as much fun as the thing she planned and did for you.

These memories make Mother's Day, 1941, much more meaningful and significant . . . and what fun it can be to remember her on this day . . . surprise her with something nice . . . a gift from Blount-Harveys. Whatever you do, remember Mother on Mother's Day . . . show her you haven't forgotten . . . show her what she really means to you . . .

WHAT IT MEANS

President Roosevelt has said U. S. naval ships could operate anywhere deemed necessary for hemispheric defense, and Chief of Naval Operations Harold E. Stark has disclosed that at some points ships are cruising as far as 2,000 miles off shore.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—It is possible to draw on a map part of the answer to the question, "How close is war to American shores?"

1. The Hitler combat zone as revised by the German government on March 26, and superimposed on that—

2. The American defense line 1,000 miles from American shores from Greenland south to Florida, as defined on April 23 by Chairman F. H. LaGuardia of the United States-Canadian permanent joint defense board, and then draw on top of that—

3. The steamer lanes between Halifax and Liverpool, over which most of our aid to Britain must travel.

When you have done all these things you have a mid-Atlantic trouble spot, where American patrols, British convoys, and German blockaders might meet.

Washington's closest observers of the war scene suggest that when American patrols meet German sub or surface raiders close to British convoys, the stage is set for fireworks.

The next question is, will they go off?

If the observers read their history right, the answer to that question has been left at this stage of the game to Adolf Hitler. Here's how: During the first World War President Wilson created an American precedent, backed by a majority of the American public of that day.

Before we entered that war, a series of public statements and notes exchanged between the United States, Great Britain and Germany made it clear that the United States would ultimately fight if the European belligerents sank American vessels, or vessels on which American citizens were legally traveling.

Germany at first respected that position, refrained from sinking American ships. Later she revised her position, flatly announced she'd carry on unrestricted submarine warfare against ships she thought were carrying aid to Britain. The United States went to war.

Finally, Winston Churchill says United States naval patrols have been ordered to war the peaceful waters of all nations outside the combat zone of the presence of lurking U-Boats or raiding cruisers.

Washington observers add all these statements together, conclude that the American patrol puts a mighty ticklish point up to Hitler. Raiders and submarines are effective only if their presence at a given moment in a precise spot is not known. If American patrols were to broadcast the presence of German raiders, would Hitler order his raiders to attack American patrol vessels? Or would he prefer to limit raider actions to the area he has already announced to be the combat zone?

If he ordered his raiders to fire on patrol vessels, what risk would he run? Would America decide to fight?

As the cards have been played in the war game up to now, Roosevelt, Churchill et al. have checked the bet to Hitler.

Chapter 19
Strange courtship
Martin said, as Eileen had scarcely dared to hope he would, "Here Caroline, you go along. I'll be there in five minutes, tell them." He steadied Eileen. "I'll get this girl home. I guess she was going—she has her wraps on."

Eileen was silent while he got her into another taxi. He asked the address, and she gave it. She leaned forward and slid the window shut, and spoke quickly.

She said, "Listen, I'm Eileen Gardner. I'm the girl you lifted down off the bar at Jerry's, and danced with when you flew to say good-bye to your mother last year. I've never forgotten. You said you'd listen for me on the radio. You did when I was singing on that little Weigand chain, out in lute, you cabled a message from the steamer. You didn't sign your last name. You said I hadn't."

He turned and looked at her with attention, which he had not done before.

"Why—I remember," he said. "Sure. But I'm pretty sure I did sign my name to the cable. And you certainly never did. Hey, I know. I didn't get the original type-written cablegram; some of the crowd copied it for me—and took it back." He laughed a little.

"Who?"

"Oh, never mind. One of the girls. Well, what do you know? You must come on to the club and have a drink on the strength of our reunion!"

She hadn't time to go on with that. She shoved her coat sleeve back and hurriedly unclasped her charm bracelet. She pushed it into his hand.

along to have a drink with the crowd after all this and that!" He leaned forward to pull open the alid and redirect the driver. She stopped him, she said, "No, Listen, you must listen. You said, just now—Word of honor—you thought a girl had as much right to court a man, ask him to marry her and—be taken the right way—as a man with a girl."

"Well, of course I mean it." His voice was light, but he spoke definitely. "All right. Well, First—I fooled you about the ankle. It was the only way I could get to talk to you. . . . No, you must listen. I care about you. I have ever since that evening last June. That's why I went on the radio. That's why I came to New York. . . . No, you must listen. I haven't any chance to make you care the way I care. I can't go around with you like Caroline, like girls that go the same places you do. By wiles, as she said—"

"Why, you crazy little thing!" he said. But his voice was gentle. Success "I'm not crazy, it's just—you're the only man I've ever felt that way about. I can't let you go, never see you again. . . . I'm decent enough," she pleaded. "My people fought in the Revolution; one was a Colonial governor. Dad kept a drugstore out West—he never made much money. But my people have always been fine, been good citizens. I'm college-educated; I'm quick; you wouldn't be ashamed of me. Look me up, of course you must—"

She rapidly gave him her old firm's name, the name of the people she knew in radio. She wrote them down with shaking hands. "Will you keep your word of honor or?" she said. "Will you give me the chance to see you—to make you care enough to see me, just as if things were reversed—as if you'd seen a girl you wanted and had to go into a different world to tell her so?"

He looked down at the small lovely face and said quietly, "You don't know a thing about me—or do you?"

"No, only that you're everything I always knew I wanted, and I know it." She still spoke with a choked desperate sincerity.

He looked at her a long minute longer. He said again, "Crazy kid, I get you. Honest kid, too. I think. All right, I warn you you'll probably steer into a lot of masculine instincts that'll block the whole thing. But I'll take cards." He held out his hand for the slip of paper. "So what?"

"So tell me where you're going to be—help me to see you somehow." "That's up to you. You start with just what I would. My telephone number and house address. He was laughing as he handed them to her, scribbled on his card. "I'll be there round ten tomorrow."

The reaction hit her as she climbed the long stairs to her room. What had she done—what was she up against?

She and Molly had been talking very little of late. She couldn't help that. She poured it all out to Molly. Molly sat up on her couch, a hand bracing her against the cracked stained wall, her broad face more blank at each sentence. When Eileen was done, she only said in a less sharp voice than she had used lately, "What's his name?"

"Martin—wait." She took the card over under the little wall bulb "Mr. Martin—McClure—Dane."

Molly screamed, "Martin McClure Dane! Well, you did a good job while you were at it! And the girl was Caroline?" She clawed for a tabloid under the bed among a pile of papers, opened it and threw it. "These them?"

Eileen stared down at the man and girl, snapped with balloons at a night-club table.

"Yes." Molly threw herself back and screamed again. "Holy cats! Jesus, Mary and Joseph! The season's top glamour deb, and the most eligible cafe-society younger-set millionaire this year! Martin Dane. You little goof! Call him up tomorrow and you'll get the razzberry from an ice-voiced secretary. He was just mellow enough to 'yes' you tonight."

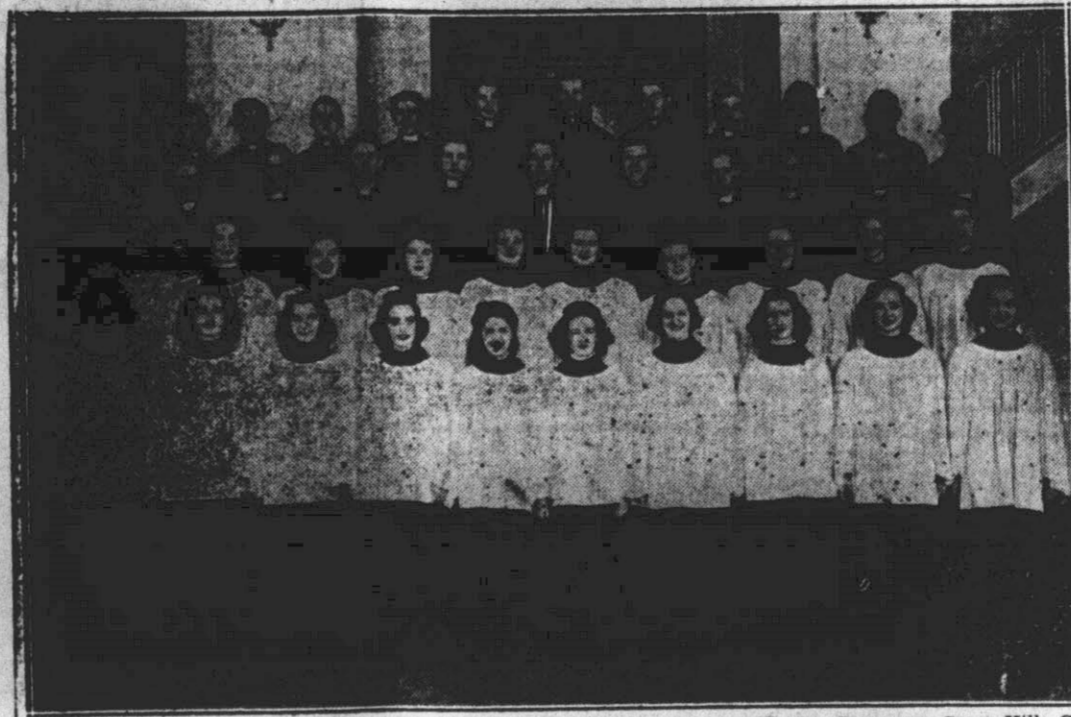

Eileen felt cold inside. But she only said, "I met his mother once." "You did? What did she say to you?"

It came back to Eileen sharply: Prexy saying, "This is Eileen Gardner. . . . We think she'll be one of the ones who will go far." And Miss Willesdon's warm "Ah, these young things. . . . They're worth all we went through. I hope you do go far, my dear. . . ."

Eileen giggled hysterically at the memory. "Go far!" "Here," Molly said, "You're all in. Shut up and go to sleep and forget it."

Chorus To Appear Here

14—CHORUS—WITH CUT

But at ten next day Eileen telephoned. It was Martin's voice. He was keeping the word of honor. He spoke as if it was nothing at all. "Hello pirate! How are the methods of capture coming?"

It was easier that way. You could laugh. She laughed too. She said

"How about a walk in Central Park?" "Just a bit chilly. See here, we have to postpone this a bit. When I got back to the Nine O'clock last night, the gang had doped out a plan for a week of winter sports up at my place in the Adirondacks. Driving up tomorrow."

There was a pause. Her palms were wet and her throat choked. Then Martin's voice: "Well . . . all right. But I can't just drop it! In the middle of them. Any lie ready?" She thought fast. "Call me your mother's protegee—you found it out in the taxi."

"Near as wax. Most apposite. Nine tomorrow, my place, then." He didn't believe in her. . . . Well why should he? Never mind. Nine tomorrow.

Her last fifty in the bank got her bargain basement sports clothes. The girls would be too rich to know the difference. The scene with Ric brought on another proposal, as she had been afraid it would. He cried. "Always here is my love."

But the problem which had loomed so big wasn't much, now. Later, likely. . . . No time to think about burned bridges.

Martin's low spacious enormous living room seemed to Eileen's tense eyes filled with shouting, scuffling young giants as she stood in the doorway at nine next morning. She saw Martin at the far end, in sweater and ski trousers.

He was rounding up bundles of skis and ski sticks and rugs, laughing as usual, and shouting answers to questions. He yelled "Hi, Eileen!" across the room to her. "Hi, Lewis Delevan, that's Eileen Gardner. Hot coffee for the little stranger!"

She looked up at Lewis, Tall, awkwardly built without any air of awkwardness, sallow, craggy-featured, a manner of authority. Older than the rest. Deep-set, unusual eyes. The name registered in her mind, she tried to place it, and did. Oh, yes. The Something Institute. Brilliant, radical young director. Courageous and forward-looking, one paper had said. Unscrupulous as to methods, another. "Our hope for a better state. . . . a deliberate wrecker. . . . Somebody who could be a formidable enemy."

Lewis was saying in that rather speech-sounding voice, smiling, "I'm an old friend of Martin's grandfather; was his secretary, in fact. Now I run the Willesdon Institute. I have no business to take time off for this party, ut Martin gave me the S. O. S. yesterday. You said I am the surprise. The outsiders." To Be Continued (Copyright, 1939-40, Margaret Widdemer)

Odd, But Science
By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
Urbana, Ill.—An electrical change on the surface of the body has been found at the University of Illinois.

When a person is awake, electrodes placed on the scalp and on the forearm show a current of around ten millionths of an ampere. This current flows from the scalp, showing that the scalp is positive, while the arm is negative.

In sleep this current decreases to virtually zero. It drops similarly during anesthesia or unconsciousness.

The scalp, however, is merely an indicator. The brain during consciousness is negative in electrical sign, and this is the apparent reason why the scalp is positive. In unconsciousness the brain loses its negative charge, and so the scalp loses its positive one.

Work and athletics of all sorts increase the strength of the current flowing from the scalp to forearm. Exposure to cold also raises it.

Bring Old Customs Down To Earth Ber, Switzerland. — (AP) — The war has reversed one of Switzerland's oldest customs.

In a celebration known in Swiss-German as "Uffrichti," workmen on a new building always have hung a beribboned wreath on the point of the framework to become the highest point of the finished building.

On the day the building is crowned they receive beer, sausages and popular delicacies.

Now workmen have reversed the procedure and hold their celebration at the lowest spot for the basement air raid shelter.

New York City's 1941 budget is larger than that of any of the other states.

What can we learn about FLAME-CONTROL from these cannons?

Everybody knows there is far more power in modern guns and today's propellent powders than in the old-fashioned wide-mouth cannon.

In the old-fashioned cannon power was wasted, spent in violent explosion and shock—in uncontrolled flame. But with new guns and powders we have built-up power, e-x-p-a-n-d-i-n-g pressure, because the flame is controlled.

Now—FLAME CONTROL In Gasoline!

Just as the modern gun needs modern powder, so modern engines need modern gasoline. Old-fashioned gasolines waste potential energy in violent, uncontrolled explosion.

In the new Hydro-formed American Gas the explosion is controlled—the combustion is regulated. The result—as in the modern gun—is power with less wasteful explosion. Violent shock is cut down, and in its place comes increasing thrust on the pistons, driving them with terrific energy.

Flame Control Gives Cushioned Power!

Because the flame is controlled, power is cushioned. The pent-up energy of the gas is now transformed into a silky-soft f-l-o-w of power. Violent shock is cut down, replaced by velvet s-m-o-o-t-h-n-e-s-s, as sustained as it is dynamic.

Now try the latest triumph of gasoline science—

QUESTIONS THAT ANSWER THEMSELVES

"The high priest then asked Jesus concerning his disciples" (John 18:19).

This has been called the cruelest question ever asked. If the high priest had asked Jesus about the purity of His life, or the truth of His teachings, he would have received an answer made in accents of assurance and pride. But when he asked our Lord concerning His disciples, there was nothing much he could say except that they were fearful, that they had forsaken Him, that one had denied Him with curses, and another had sold Him for thirty pieces of silver.

The most embarrassing question that can ever be asked our Lord is the question concerning His disciples. Are their standards conspicuously higher than those of the unbeliever? Are they selfish and willing to put the welfare of others before their own? Do they really live up to the Sermon on the Mount?

The questions of course answer themselves. The greatest embarrassment the Christian Church experiences is the lives of many people who call themselves Christians. It is when the Lord is asked concerning His disciples that He blushes with shame.

The greatest need in the Church is not some stream-lined scheme for catching and holding the attention of the unbeliever. The greatest need is that those who claim to be Christians actually live up to what they profess to believe. All Rights Reserved.—Babson Newspaper Syndicate

WHY IMITATE FAILURE?

For nearly a quarter of a century, smart boys and girls who write books and deliver lectures, have been telling us of the great things to be expected from Soviet Russia. It was to be a workers' paradise. The capitalistic system was destroyed. The government became supreme, and the individual was a pawn of the state.

A quarter of a century is a long time. But if one can believe the record, results in Russia have been in reverse, rather than forward.

The principal idea of Russian communism is that government should own all means of production and distribution — all natural resources were taken from private enterprise and left to government to develop. Russia seized everything from private individuals. What has been the result? Want, starvation, stagnation, terrorism.

And, yet, in our own country, with Russia as an example to go by, we have those who would do, slyly and gradually, what was done in Russia ruthlessly and at one bold stroke.

If we are to learn anything from the object lesson of Russia, it should be to scrutinize all the laws of this land and discover to what extent our country is being influenced by Soviet ideas.

"EVASION PROOF"

In a letter to Representative Robert L. Doughton,

-- And I Do Mean You!

chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, President Roosevelt has called for the enactment of tax levies which will be "evasion proof."

Everybody will applaud that objective, but the ingenuity of the committee and its experts will be taxed to the utmost to attain it. But the time has arrived when, as the President states, it should be generally recognized that "the income tax cannot fix the liability of individuals and corporations with equity as long as the tax base is defined to exclude substantial portions and significant elements of income."

In other words, the time for immunity from taxation through tax-exempt bonds or other means has passed. The pending tax bill is being written to defray a portion of the cost of a great national effort. There should be no favoritism and no exemption.

And it is also about time that the tax laws be written simply. That would help toward realization of the President's aim that the levies be made "evasion proof." (News and Observer).

already was announced before they discovered they were going to sell 10-cent defense saving stamps. They had intended to make the minimum 25 cents, as in the World War. But the story already had gotten out and the reaction was so favorable they left it in. The "March of Dimes" idea already has paved a lot of good ground — it having been proved paradoxically that children and small savers can go a lot farther on dimes than they can on quarters.

So the answer is that all of this talk you have been hearing lately about defense stamps, baby bonds (that's not the official name for them, but it already is the accepted way of describing the $18.75-at-purchase-$25-at-ten-year-maturity bond) and the Series F and G defense bonds is about little more than what the postal savings saver has known for 20 years.

The stamps look a little different; the albums that the national defense stamp collectors paste them into will look a little different; the bonds issued in lieu of them and the bonds purchased outright will look a little different — but it's the old postal savings system just the same — and just as safe as long as Uncle Sam can jingle gold and silver in his jeans.

Not For Banks.

There is just one thing about these defense stamps and bonds that you may not have heard. No banks can buy them. That's the rule. Treasury officials won't come right out and say, but they sure hint that the rule is there, because if it weren't banks would take advantage of a good thing. Don't ask me: I'm too busy figuring how to pay last year's little income tax and next year's (to me) big one to bother with that kind of high finance.

The stamps don't pay any interest until you convert them into bonds. As soon as you do, the bonds start paying around 2.5 per cent interest and keep on paying from 10 to 12 years.

The reason the stamps don't pay any interest is simple. If Mr. Morgenthau's boys had to start computing interest for odd days, weeks and months on 10-cent stamps, his staff would soon be about 130,000-000 persons and there wouldn't be anyone left to buy stamps.

Short Shots

Raleigh, May 6 — Claude C. Abernathy, just named Burial Association commissioner, must post an approved bond of $10,000 before taking office July 1, under terms of the act creating his job.

This law likewise provides that the commissioner can be removed by the Governor — but only "for cause." It requires every mutual burial association operating in North Carolina to deposit $5,000 in cash, North Carolina or U.S. Bonds; or to put up a surety bond for that amount, secured by deed of trust on real property; or to give a surety bond signed by some bonding company legally authorized to do business in the state.

Principal tightening of the reins on burial associations will be the existence of the commissioner as a regulatory agent; but other more stringent provisions have been added: (1) No free embalming or ambulance service will be allowed; the number of soliciting agents per association is limited to five, who must obtain license from the commissioner and post $10 for supervision; expenses of the commissioner's office will be assessed against the association.

WHO HE IS

LEONARD JOY has charge of making popular records for one of the largest phonograph companies. Born in Claremont, N. H., in 1894. Went to Dartmouth, led a college jazz band, majored in English, minored in music, graduated in 1918. Became an insurance salesman, next a steel salesman. Enlisted in World War I. Discharged in 1919 as a second lieutenant in the air corps. In 1922 he became a pit conductor for Keith in various vaudeville houses. Arranged music, led orchestras, made phonograph records, handled radio programs from then on. He's married, has one child, lives in Glen Ridge, N. J. Has blue eyes, stands 5 feet 10, weighs 175 pounds.

"It seems as if everyone and his brother are writing war songs these days. "During World War I, there was a great rage for patriotic and war songs. Today the situation is much the same. We have 'God Bless America,' of course. Then, there's 'I Am an American,' 'America, I Love You,' 'We're All Americans,' and 'I'm Nuts About the Good Old U.S.A.' "Going even further in the same trend, we're on the verge of a wave of 'steam-up' songs. You know the type. Such things as 'Smiles,' 'Over There,' 'Good-bye Broadway, Hello France,' 'Give My Regards to Broadway,' and 'Hinkey Dinkey Parlez Vous.' "Current counterparts include 'They're Making Me All Over in the Army,' 'Is It Love, or Is It Conscription,' 'What Will I Do If I Marry a Soldier?' Old favorites which various artists have revived include 'Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning' and 'You're in the Army Now.' "Billy Murray, who was a record favorite during World War I, has revived 'I'd Feel at Home If They'd Let Me Join the Army.' "Almost everybody who writes a song wants to have a phonograph record of it made. We are forced to return almost all of them, either because they're unpublished, or because they're too controversial.

"A new song trend not present during the last war is a wave of nostalgic songs about the old Europe. These include 'The Last Time I Saw Paris,' 'A Little Old Church in England,' 'My Sister and I,' which is based on a book written by two Dutch refugees, and 'Somewhere in England,' composed by singer Lanny Ross. Probably the most different thing we've done is to make records of Lynn Fontanne, the actress, reciting Alice Duer Miller's 'The White Cliffs' to music composed especially for it by Dr. Frank Black."

1941 Softball Season To Get Under Way Here Tonight

TWO CONTESTS TO BE PLAYED

Four Teams Entered In Loop To Play Twice Weekly

The 1941 softball season will get under way at Third Street park tonight with only four teams entered in the loop and with games scheduled only two nights each week—these to be on nights when the Greenies are away from home.

The league also has a new president. Withers Harvey who has taken an active interest in the sport for several seasons. He was elevated from the vice presidency when J. D. Simpson resigned as head of the loop.

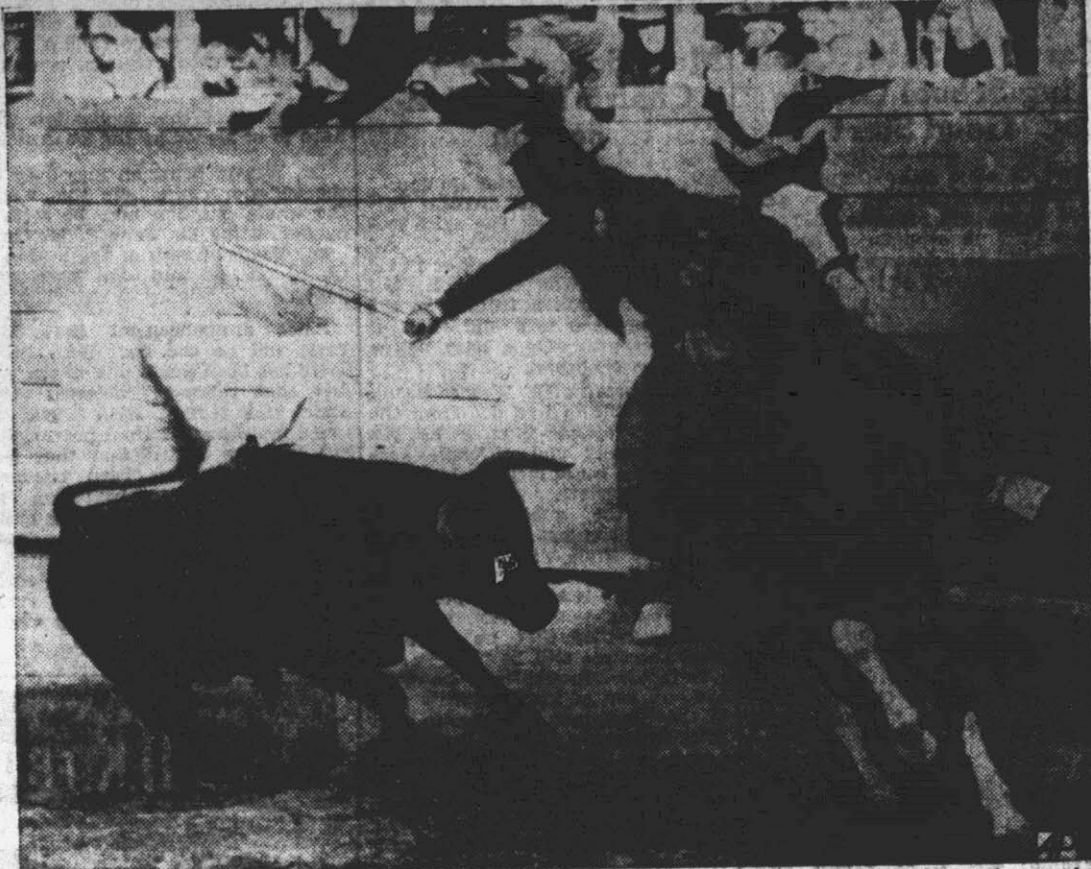

The four teams entered in the loop this year are: Pepsi Cola, Carolina Sales, Blount-Harvey, and Double Cola.

L. G. Hamilton will pilot the Pepsi Cola boys. Jack Tripp is manager of Blount-Harvey team. Clifton Bullock will steer the Double Cola boys and Raymond Hart is acting manager of the Carolina Sales entry, although he indicated today he would name someone else to take over the helm.

The four-team loops is expected to provide much faster play this year. The various sponsors and managers were left free to get the best men they could and the best players in the section will be in action.

Because many former players are in camp or employed on defense projects it was decided to cut the loop down to four teams.

In the opening game tonight Pepsi Cola will be the home team to Blount-Harvey. Double Cola will entertain the Carolina Sales team in the second contest.

Conchita Cintran, shy 18-year-old Matadora who fights bulls from horseback or afoot, plunges her handkerchief into a bull's heart—a perfect kill—before 10,000 cheering fans at Tijuana's (Mexico) first fight of the season. This was her second bull of the day. Conchita is the daughter of an American mother and Spanish father, fights nearly every Sunday, making from $500 to $1,500.

some of them have begun to experiment with installation of sewerage and other plumbing jobs under their own direct control and without letting sub-contractors to the qualified plumbing concerns (who, of course, are just as anxious for government "grave" as everybody else).

This grieves the plumbers mightily and hits their pocketbooks, too, which may be more important from their point of view.

SONNY KRACKE ABERNATHY IN IS EX-HURLER NEW POSITION

Local Infielder Started Out As A Pitcher

When Sonny Kracke deserted his second base post for the Greenies to pitch a few innings last summer it was not a case of just finishing out with any old sort of a thrower. He did anything except pitch, and his record around Brooklyn and New York was one that commanded respect.

Sonny started chinking with the independent clubs of the metropolitan area in 1934 and in 1938 worked his way up to the Bay Ridge club of the Metropolitan Baseball Association, the goal of all amateurs in the Gotham area.

In 1936, Kracke had unfurled a no-hit, no-run game early in the spring, and later that same season he repeated the performance against the strong Saranacs.

With consistently good records each year, and the asset of uncanny control, he got his trial with the Bay Riders. Working only in relief roles, his record was all that could be asked, but there was not room for him on a staff crowded with older heads. The manager of the club got him a job in the Canadian-American league, but only decided he'd rather stay in New York.

He signed with the Corsairs of the Inter-City league for 1939 and won 14 games against three defeats. His hitting was far above par, and his manager was using him in the infield and outfield. Sonny got the idea he could make his way as an infielder better than as a pitcher so he turned pro last summer with the Greenies.

He played swell ball at the key-stone, but his hitting was a disappointing 236. However, the veteran Rube Wilson is too smart to keep a kid who shows no promise, and Art is back on the job this year. He may be shifted to short for the current season, but wherever he is, he'll be in there giving somebody a battle for a ball game. He's that type.

Becomes Commissioner Of Burial Association

Reflector Bureau By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, May 5 — Claude C. Abernathy, long-time Representative from Nash county, today took over the post of burial association commissioner, with the statement that he believes the new state agency provides a "big opportunity."

He said that in the rapid, unrestricted and unregulated growth of the societies to a point where they now number more than a million members in North Carolina, there have grown up some abuses and practices which amount to "gypsies on the poorer people of the state. He absolved the vast majority of associations from any such practices however.

"The whole setup is new, and I'll have to start from scratch in making my plans," he said. "Under the law actual functioning of the department will not begin until July 1, which will give me two months in which to study the whole situation."

If there are any neighboring states with burial association regulatory bodies, Mr. Abernathy indicated he is likely to visit them in an effort to start North Carolina's new setup off on the right foot.

The new commissioner will be paid $4,800 a year and traveling expenses. Funds for administration of the department will be drawn from fees paid by the associations regulated by the act.

Abernathy has been a member of the legislature for the last four terms and has ranked as a leader in the House since 1937. In the 1941 session he was chairman of the U.C.C. committee and steered to unanimous enactment the complicated legislature revamping the U.C.C. setup and amending the rules and regulations governing its activities.

on the poorer people of the state. He absolved the vast majority of associations from any such practices however.

"The whole setup is new, and I'll have to start from scratch in making my plans," he said. "Under the law actual functioning of the department will not begin until July 1, which will give me two months in which to study the whole situation."

If there are any neighboring states with burial association regulatory bodies, Mr. Abernathy indicated he is likely to visit them in an effort to start North Carolina's new setup off on the right foot.

Ride On Corn
Buenos Aires.—(AP)—The National Railway Board has advised all rail operators in Argentina to burn a mixture of 90 per cent coal to 40 per cent corn to meet two serious economic problems. One is the shortage of coal, usually bought in Great Britain, and the other the enormous carryover and overproduction of corn with no visible markets abroad.

Smoke Carefully, Please
New York.—(AP)—Safe smoking helps to make safe driving, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters. To be a safe smoker says the board, you should never (1) use a match to light up; (2) smoke while your car is being filled with gasoline, and (3) throw cigarette butts, cigar ends, or pipe ashes on the road.

Railroad Offers 'Air Raid Excursion'
Kumming, China.—(AP)—A railway line running from Kunming 25 miles to the southwest is operating "air raid excursions" which start whenever Japanese planes approach the city.

For less than an American cent city dwellers are carried to the countryside. They detrain and scatter over the landscape, visiting temples or resting until the raid is over. The train also "scatters" itself along the track, leaving the cars at long intervals.

HOME TEAM WINS THRILLER!

Captain "Civic Pride" won today's game by hitting a terrific home run off of Pitcher "Neglect" of the "Indifference" Club. The bases were loaded with "Clean Up", "Paint-Up" and "Fix-Up"; and when the ball sailed over the fence they all sailed standing up. This win puts our city on top in the Clean-Up League.

Where British And Iraq Forces Clashed

Soldiers help a truck tow an armored car which had become bogged in the sand at the British-held airport at Habbaniyah, Iraq, 60 miles west of Baghdad. British reports say Iraq artillery opened fire on that airbase May 2 and the British fought back. Meanwhile a Berlin radio report said the British troops guarding the airport have been surrounded by the pro-German Iraq troops.

Reveal Transfer Of Lieut. Col. Babcock

Lieut. Col. Leslie E. Babcock has received orders transferring him on May 15 from the 30th Division to the 8th Division at Fort Jackson. This transfer is in accordance with the policy of the War Department of placing officers in the Regular Army on duty with Regular Army units as soon as they can be spared by the units which they have been serving in an instructional capacity.

Col. Babcock was detailed as Instructor of Field Artillery of the North Carolina National Guard in July, 1936, and was re-assigned to accompany these troops to Fort Jackson for intensive training last October, being assigned to the headquarters of the 30th Division as Artillery Adviser.

The recent designation of Col. Babcock by Major General H. D. Russell to take the course at the Command and General Staff school now in session at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, bears testimony to this officer's usefulness in his assignment to the 30th Division, since there was only one much coveted vacancy for the Division in this class.

MANY WOMEN GIVEN PRIZES

Carolina Sales Cooking School Off To Good Start

The Carolina Sales Corporation's cooking school got off to a good start today with between 250 and 300 women in attendance. Another session will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Pitt theatre.

A large number of prizes was awarded at this morning's school, the following women having been the lucky persons: Mrs. N. L. Scott, 107 Summit street; Mrs. Eugene Jones, 308 Meade; Mrs. Wiley Brown, 929 Dickinson avenue; Mrs. A. C. Tadlock, city; Mrs. T. S. Tyson, Greenville, RFD; Mrs. Ed Hester, 210 Eastern; Mrs. C. H. Hilton, 425 West Fourth; Mrs. L. W. Edwards, 406 East Tenth; Mrs. Joseph M. Taft, 1704 East Fifth; Mrs. S. H. Mullen, Third and Woodlawn; Mrs. William Newsum Ayden; Mrs. J. Vance Perkins, 310 Lewis; Miss Louise Earhart, East Fifth street extension; Mrs. C. P. Johnston, 1114 Chestnut; Mrs. A. E. Hobgood, 621 Evans; Mrs. Bill Sermons, 219 Harding; Mrs. L. M. Ernest, city; Miss Sara Brown Braxton, Winterville.

Valuable prizes were awarded, including flour, toasters, percolators, china, electric iron and food. Although the school is being directed by Mrs. Miriam Little, director of home economics for the Carolina Sales Corporation, two prominent guest home economics experts are assisting. They are Miss Polly Gade of Detroit, director of the Kelvin Kitchen, and Miss Anne Vandiver, director of home economics for the Durham Public Service Company.

Legislators Do Not Seem In Line For Best Posts

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, May 5.—During the legislative session this year there was much talk to the effect that members were following the governor almost blindly in expectation and hope that they would be rewarded with many of the juicy jobs at the disposal of J. Melville Broughton.

Subsequent events have shown that such hopes and expectations, if in fact they were really entertained, were very poorly founded; because the best of the patronage pie has been cut and passed out, and exactly one legislator has received a slice that can be described as anything but exceeding slim.

N.C. REA BOARD WITHOUT HEAD

Meet Scheduled With Chairmanship Uncertain

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, May 6.—The state Rural Electrification Authority will meet Thursday, at the call of David S. Weaver, acting chairman; but unless some light is thrown on the matter between now and then, it will meet with only a hazy notion of who is chairman.

That's because Dr. Weaver hasn't yet been able to find out from the governor's office whether he has been formally and officially succeeded as a board member by Gwyn Price, of North Wilkesboro, or whether the gubernatorial announcement of last last week meant only that Price will be named to the board at some later date.

The theory is being accepted that Dr. Weaver, not having been officially notified that he is "out," must therefore still be "in."

Governor Broughton, however, has been out of town a goodly part of the time since announcing that Price will be the next chairman and hasn't got around yet to relieving the REA head of the doubts of his exact position.

As an academic question it would not matter and as far as Weaver is concerned personally it doesn't make a bit of difference because he took over as chairman only for accommodation and will be glad to get out as soon as he can.

The question of which is on the board now — Weaver or Price — assumes importance because there are important papers to be signed. When Thursday comes around it will be even more important because the board cannot elect Mr. Price chairman unless he is already a member of the board. The law sets out that the members are appointed by the governor, but the board elects one of "its members" as chairman.

Probably the governor will "light" from his journeying over the state and his school "bustings" in time to
