CHURCHILL GIVEN 447 TO 3 VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

SETS DEFENSE COST IN YEAR AT 18 BILLION

Defense Price Administrator Ups Previous Figure

MAY EVEN REACH TWENTY BILLION

Official Agrees With Treasury's Revenue Goal of $3,500,000,000, But Opposes Excise Levies

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—Leon Henderson, defense price administrator, predicted today that "the compulsion of events" would increase defense spending during the coming fiscal year to "at least $18,000,000,000 and probably to 20 billion dollars."

This forecast, higher than any previously made officially, was presented to the House Ways and Means Committee in the discussion of the relation of a proposed new $3,500,000,000 to the big defense war aid effort.

Budget estimates in January were that defense costs in the next fiscal year would be $10,800,000,000.

The price administrator expressed agreement with the Treasury's new revenue goal of $3,500,000,000, but opposed excise levies on what he classified as "goods and services of massed consumption" and on "luxuries" on the ground that they were "deflationary and unnecessary."

At the same time he said that the treasury proposal for stiffer income taxes on lower and middle income brackets seemed "fair and equitable at the present." The Treasury proposal would add a new and higher system of income surtaxes, starting at 11 per cent on the present bottom tax bracket.

Fluoroscope Now At Health Office

It was revealed today that the local Health Department had been presented with a fluoroscope which was given by the division of the Venereal Disease control of the United States Public Health Service and the North Carolina State Health Department.

According to Dr. Ennett, the local health officer, this fluoroscope will prove a valuable diagnostic aid, not only in the Venereal Disease Clinics but in the Orthopedic and Tuberculosis Clinics as well.

The chief use of the fluoroscope will be to determine how much damage if any has been done to the heart by the Syphilis germ.

By placing the patient before the fluoroscope the doctor can readily see whether or not the heart has become enlarged.

The way the fluoroscope will be of service in the Orthopedic clinic will be in examining the joints, particularly old fractures and other bone injuries.

And the fluoroscope, of course, has for a number of years been an important means of detecting Pulmonary Tuberculosis.

Some months ago the Public Health Service and the State Board of Health gave the Health Department an expensive microscope with a darkfield attachment. By taking a smear from the primary sore and

Berlin Comments Consequence of Such A Policy Would Be Clear as Spokesmen Refer To Previous Threats To Sink Any Vessels

Berlin, May 7.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson's suggestion that the United States fleet be employed to protect shipments of material to England prompted in Berlin today the comment: "the consequence of such a policy would be clear."

Authorized spokesmen referred again to the oft-stated German warning that any ships sailing through the blockade to England "which comes within the range of our torpedo tubes will be sunk."

(At Rome, Virginia Gayda, the Fascist editor, said that Stimson's advocacy of United States naval protection for shipments to Britain could be considered a preliminary announcement of open American intervention in the war.)

German spokesmen appeared more interested in a statement attributed to Stimson that the German blockade of England is contrary to international law.

"How come?" was the gist of the German comment. "It is impossible to support the thesis that it's all right for England to blockade Germany and even non-warring European neutrals, but that it's all wrong for Germany to try to do the same thing to England."

The choir was organized in March 1940, and in less than three months had memorized a concert program, and set out upon its first tour, which took them as far north as New York City.

In 1941, the choir has sung for the D. A. R. convention in Wilson and March 5, and the North Carolina Education Association in Asheville on April 4 and 5, and will sing at the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs convention in Wilmington on May 8.

On June 24 the choir will represent the North Carolina State Federation of Music Clubs at the convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs and American Music Festival in Los Angeles, Calif.

At the close of this year's tour, these young people will have traveled, in only a little more than a year, approximately 13,000 miles, presented 70 concerts in 16 states. The people of North Carolina will be interested in the following comments:

"It is one of the most magnificent jobs I have ever seen or heard a group of young people do."—Dr. R. W. Morrison, Dept. of Education, University of North Carolina.

"The North Carolina Symphonic Choir is certainly to be congratulated upon the marvelous progress it has made. You have made a distinct contribution to the field of music in our state."—Clyde A. Erwin, State Supt. of Public Instruction, Raleigh.

PRAISES TALK OF WAR CHIEF

Reveals Navy Taking Over Seagoing Activities of Coast Guard Patrol; Only Eight Of 205 Supply-Laden Ships Sunk

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—Secretary Knox said today that the navy is "readier now than ever" to undertake the job of assuring delivery of war supplies to Britain—if and when it is assigned to such duty.

The Navy Department chief made the statement at a press conference in commenting on a speech last night by Secretary of War Stimson in which Stimson advocated use of the United States navy to assure a victory for Britain in the Battle of the Atlantic.

At the same time Knox disclosed that the navy was taking over "the seagoing activities" of the Coast Guard. The process, he said, amounts to a transfer bodily of the Coast Guard ships and their crews.

Knox was asked by reporters for comment on Stimson's plea for naval action "right now," and he said "I thought it a forthright, courageous and very enlightening talk, animated by a high spirit of patriotism."

Shortly before Knox's press conference, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced that Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission had informed him that "only eight out of 205 ships that left our ports with supplies for England were sunk in the first three months of this year."

Quoting a letter from Land, Vandenberg told the Senate Commerce Committee that "many losses of vital facts I have been able to obtain from any responsible official as to how much of our magnificent aid to Britain is actually going to the bottom of the sea."

"This is a very encouraging report," Vandenberg told other senators. He charged that many losses of vital facts I have been able to obtain from any responsible official as to how much of our magnificent aid to Britain is actually going to the bottom of the sea."

The general headquarters commander reported that Iraq troops under the British colors helped in the assault on a plateau from which anti-British Iraqis had been throwing shells into the British base.

"In this successful action the enemy suffered heavy losses, whereas our casualties were slight," it said. Headquarters said the Royal Air Force bombed and machine-gunned the Iraqi troops, "keeping them in the move" in their withdrawal toward Salluja.

In the Libyan fighting around besieged Tobruk, the British claimed a successful attack on Axis positions, but said operations again were hampered by a severe sandstorm.

Health Deptm't Backing Campaign

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, has expressed the interest of the health department in the cancer control program and has pledged support to Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, county chairman of the campaign.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Kirkpatrick from Dr. Ennett:

"For years health departments were only interested in contagious diseases, such as typhoid fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis, etc. Now the health department is interested in all diseases, non-contagious as well as contagious. Especially is the health department interested in the control of cancer. Cancer is now believed to be neither hereditary nor contagious.

"Unfortunately, we have no vaccine against cancer like we have for typhoid fever, but cancer can be prevented if the patient will consult his physician early. Here are some of the danger signals:

"1. A lump in the breasts, or other part of the body which begins to grow or change.

"2. Any unusual discharge or bleeding.

"3. Any sore which does not heal, particularly on the face or in the mouth.

"You are in a noble cause and I would like for you to know that the health department is wholeheartedly backing the cancer control campaign."

ITALIANS SAY ORDER OBEYED

Declare They Were Forced Wreck Engines

Wilson, May 7.—(AP)—Each member of the Italian freighter Villagerosa on trial with the ship's master and chief engineer on charges under the anti-sabotage law of tampering with the vessel's engines testified in Federal court today they "had to obey orders" and knew nothing of the United States laws, but "only of the laws of Italy."

Each crewman admitted a part in the alleged attempt to destroy the huge Diesel engines.

Benicio Severino told the court that he was "not concerned" with United States laws.

All the witnesses testified that they knew they would be punished if they failed to obey orders of Captain Merlano Bersia on the ship.

The chief engineer said he had orders from the captain to destroy the ships and that he in turn ordered the engine room crew to carry them out and that no one else on the vessel had anything to do with it.

Captain Bersia said yesterday that the assistant Italian naval attaché advised him on February 19 to be ready to wreck the engines of the ship, then in port at Wilmington. The order, he said, was received March 20 and immediately obeyed.

Fleming Is Named Grimesland Mayor

A. F. Fleming was elected mayor of Grimesland by a substantial majority in a spirited election yesterday in which citizens of the community voted almost 100 per cent.

Fleming won over J. J. Elks for the office of mayor.

Five candidates were entered in the race for aldermen, with the three high men being declared the winners of the three seats. Dr. C. H. Spiggle polled the largest number of votes and along with J. H. Brooks and David Proctor, who received the same number of votes, were declared the winners. Others entered in the race were F. A. Elks and J. L. Outley.

L. E. Elks, the incumbent, defeated John T. Lewis for the office of constable by the small margin of six votes.

C. R. Arnold won over J. H. Clark for the office of treasurer.

Something of a record was set in the percentage of eligible voters participating. Of the 141 persons registered and in the city, 139 voted. The two who did not vote were confined by sickness.

ALIENS VIEWED AS THREAT TO U. S. SECURITY

6,000 Deportable Foreigners Reported Still Free

ORDERS ROUNDUP OF NAZI SEAMEN

Attorney General Jackson Declares Real Critical Period Before Outbreak Of Hostilities

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—Attorney General Jackson said today there were 6,000 deportable aliens who are still "free" in the United States, as he ordered the roundup of 160 German seamen for questioning.

The Justice Department revealed that officers had been directed to round up the seamen who were supposed to be in New York, Miami, San Francisco, Chicago and Kansas City under an agreement permitting their freedom after deportation orders were completed but could not be executed for lack of machinery.

The attorney general in an address prepared for the American Juridical Society warned that "under modern methods of warfare the most critical period for a nation under attack is the period preceding the actual employment of military force."

"The secret weapon of the Nazis has been the failure of nation after nation to recognize and deal with this non-military invasion," Jackson said.

"Our statute law has in many respects failed to take into account this non-military period of attack."

The 160 seamen were on tankers of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey when they were transferred to Panama registry, a Justice Department official said. They were removed from the crews and the company agreed to provide upkeep for men who were to maintain fixed residences, notify of any change of address and follow other regulations as there was no way to deport them.

"They are now being picked up for questioning at the direction of the attorney general," the official said. "They will probably be held in custody for some time. Their final disposition has not been decided upon yet."

Believe Campaign Meeting Success

Mrs. David W. Mosier and her Junior Woman's club committee in charge of the Clean-Up Campaign expressed much satisfaction over the success of "Up-Town Day" phase of the drive today.

The committee, with City Street Department Superintendent C. K. Beatty and City Sanitary Inspector Welch, today started a canvass of the back lots of the business district. Owners of the stores and other business establishments were invited to make a tour of the back lots with the committee.

"I really feel that they see the necessity of cleaning up these back lots and realize the advantage to be derived from such a campaign," declared Mrs. Mosier, in reporting that they received "fine cooperation" from the business men.

All those visited today agreed to clean up, she reported and added that the campaign would continue until all business houses were visited.

The committee is suggesting that boxes in which to put trash be provided with locks for which garbage collectors have a master key. Anyone interested in such a lock is urged to get in touch with a member of the committee or with the Street Department.

Critical Debate Ended On Britain's Reverses

Overwhelming Favorable Vote Comes After Prime Minister Reveals 500,000 Troops Standing On Guard In Middle East And That Britain Expects New American Vessels To See Her Through 1942

Miss Helen Samonski, daughter of Lt. George D. Samonski, is shown above beaming in a navy cap placed on her head by her father as she became a member of the navy's medical corps in Washington, D. C. Samonski, retired, always wanted a son to carry on the family's navy tradition, but of four children, all were girls. Now, though, Helen will do the job.

By The Associated Press
The British House of Commons gave Winston Churchill an overwhelming vote of confidence today after he had disclosed that nearly 500,000 Imperial soldiers stand guard against the Axis in the Middle East and that Britain expects enough new American merchantships to see her through 1942 in the Battle of the Atlantic.

The vote was 447 to 3 and thus ended a critical two-day debate on Britain's grave reverses on both shores of the Mediterranean.

It was climaxed by a sharp duel of words between Churchill and David Lloyd George, who was prime minister during the World War and who sharply demanded a "real war cabinet" and better organization of man power.

Confidently Churchill declared "we have every reason to believe we shall be successful" in holding the valley of the Nile, Suez and the mid-Mediterranean island of Malta.

The prime minister proclaimed, too, a halt to the British retreat in the Mediterranean with the flat declaration:

"We intend to defend to the death and without thought of retirement Crete and Tobruk."

At the same time Captain A. J. M. Hudson, Civil Lord of the Admiralty, drew thunderous cheers from the House when he declared "we have every reason to be encouraged by recent results" achieved in Britain's struggle against the German U-boat campaign.

Even as Churchill spoke Nazi raiders jabbed anew at the island kingdom.

British and German planes fought a spectacular battle over the English channel after a night of aerial fury in which Adolf Hitler's air forces pounded British shipyards and ports of arrival for United States war materials.

Royal Air Force night raiders attacked the north German port of Hamburg and the docks at La Havre.

These claims of air losses were made: London, 19 German planes shot down, seven British fighters lost.

Berlin, six British planes destroyed, German losses none.

Waves of Nazi bombers smashed at the big shipyards of Glasgow, attacked Liverpool for the sixth straight night and bombed Northern Ireland for the third night in a row.

A British communique acknowledged that the raid on Glasgow was on a "fairly heavy scale," inflicting considerable damage and a number of casualties.

The Beacon filling station on Dickinson avenue was damaged by fire about 4:30 o'clock this morning. One of the tanks of the loss was stated, although it was declared the back end was badly damaged. Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, firemen were called to a Negro house on Fleming street, but found only some rags burning.

"Yugo" in the name "Yugoslavia" means "south."

FOREIGN SHIP BILL ADOPTED

House Passes Measure And Sends It To Senate

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—Legislation to permit President Roosevelt to requisition idle foreign ships in United States ports for national defense was passed by the House today and sent to the senate.

Approval came on a roll call vote after the members had defeated two attempts to prohibit the President from transferring any ship taken over from one belligerent to another.

The legislation specifically would authorize the President to purchase requisition or take title to any idle foreign merchantship deemed necessary for national defense "for such use or disposition as he shall direct."

It would apply to 83 foreign ships including two German and 28 Italian vessels, and would expire June 30, 1942, unless the present emergency ended before that date.

Hostess To Inter Se Club.
Mrs. Sam Northrop was hostess to the members of the Inter Se Club on Tuesday afternoon, May 6, at her home on West Fifth street.
The president of the club, Mrs. Jack Edwards, called the meeting to order and presented Mrs. B. H. Stancil, who gave a very interesting paper entitled "A Southern Author."

William Sydney Porter was chosen by Mrs. Stancil because he was a native North Carolinian and a notable short story writer.
Mrs. Stancil brought out that Porter is said to have remarked when asked if he read fiction, "It is all the same as compared with the romance of my own life."
Taking up the four stages in O. Henry's career, Mrs. Stancil pointed out that the reader notices in an O. Henry story:

First, the quiet but ardent beginning comparable to his early life in Greensboro.

Second, the beginning of a plot or plan which recalls his second of Texas period.

Third, the beginning of a mistake.

Fourth, his New York period. During this period he was proclaimed "the greatest living master of the short story."

Mrs. Stancil said in her paper that O. Henry biographers seem to differ on the time of his birth, for some have given 1862; others 1863. She, however, talked with his brother who lives in Ayden, and found the correct date to be 1862.

At the conclusion of the paper, Mrs. Stancil read a very interesting short story by O. Henry entitled "By Courier."

Mrs. Fitzhugh Duncan, chairman of the program committee for next year, gave a short report and Mrs. William Taft reminded the club of the Doll show which is to be held at the Art Gallery on May 20.

Mrs. Northrop, assisted by Mrs. Staunton Harvey, served a delicious frozen salad with sandwiches and food tea.

Local Army Awarded Standard.
Captain Charles Samms of Charlotte, of the divisional office, visited the Greenville corps of the Salvation Army on May 4 and met the young people. There were 40 who gathered for the meeting. The Greenville corps was awarded the Y. P. Standard for the year of 1940.

The Greenville corps has come up to the standard that is required of the territorial headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. Major Patton of Atlanta wrote a letter of congratulations to Adjutant Sadie Brewer of the fine work among the young people. Captain Katherine Pinnix, assistant of Adjutant Brewer, has charge of the young people's work. The Greenville corps is the only one in the North and South Carolina district to win one of the banners and at the present is the only corps to have one out of the 36 posts.

The Standard of Excellence consists of 10 branches of young people's work. They are: Cradle Roll, Sunday School, Y. P. Converts and Junior Soldiers. Junior Soldiers transferred to the Senior work, Y. P. Converts made members of the Junior Roll, Weekly Bible class, Y. P. band and singing class, Corps Cadets certificates received (that is, a Bible class held weekly). Young People's Legion enrollment and attendance, active local officers commissioned and recreational activities.

All of these above are held weekly at the local Salvation Army post.

Straighten Up Lovers' Lanes
Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—The straight line between two points also is the most unromantic, city officials have decided. They removed some of the winding tree-shrouded lanes in City Park because there was "too much loving going on."

Now lovers don't go there any more.

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds
By Robbie Coons

Hollywood.—The movies will have to look far to find a better self-censorship man than Joseph I. Breen, who resigned after holding the hot spot since 1934, the year the Legion of Decency and other groups clamped down on Hollywood and made it look to its morals.

The censor, wherever he may be is always the brunt of jokes. It is easy to find the seemingly absurd and ridiculous quirk in his rulings many of which make him appear as a tedious and literal-minded fuss-budget out to spoil whatever gaiety is left to nations and to rob every body of his good fun.

The Breen organization, which passes on movies before and after production, has had more than its share of kidding, some of it not so good-natured. I think Joe Breen never minded it seriously. I know he went right ahead, doing his job as he saw it, regardless of the popularity or unpopularity of his decisions. He has had some pretty stiff fights, convincing producers and directors that they couldn't "get by" with various censorable scenes themes, or "subtleties," but when Breen got his Irish up he was convincing enough.

In 1934 many feared that self-censorship meant the end of "adult" pictures and the stifling of realism in films. The advent of Breen was followed by an epidemic of costume films and juvenile classics mostly highly profitable, but in recent months the "adult" movies (if you include the risqué in that category) have been plentiful enough to suggest that the self-censorship was relaxing.

Breen, however, was never prudish in his decisions; his main assistance has been that good taste be observed in dealing with situations of all kinds including the risqué. Even such a film as "The Primrose Path," bristling with implications, did not offend in this respect.

"Not For Children" is a curious title for a Jane Withers movie which means the stage play in adaptation probably will acquire new name none's most pressing need at the moment, it strikes me is a best friend to tell her to restrain the mugging that still crops out in her performances. I'll tell her, for that matter, but it's strong direction that must turn the trick.

In the interior of a London subway for "Man Hunt" John Carradine was "killed" in a fight with Walter Pidgeon, who hurled the villain down to the deadly third rail. After several rehearsals, Director Fritz Lang ordered the scene shot. As Carradine struck the fatal rail there was a blinding flash—courtesy of the special effects department—and he was "electrocuted."

"Well," said Lang, "that finishes you in the picture, John."

Carradine rose, dusting himself off, and made a deep bow: "And what a fitting way to be washed up," he observed, "with an odor of fried ham!"

PAINT UP—FIX UP

Someday I'll Find You
BY MARGARET WIDEMER

YESTERDAY: It looked for a long time as if Eileen Gardner's wild decision to go to New York and make a place for herself was futile. For she had gone mostly to find Martin Dane, and she could not find him. But one night she did, and she asked him whether he believed this mother's feminist teaching that a girl had as much right to propose as a man. He did believe—now Eileen is going skiing with Martin's crowd, and talking for the moment with Lewis Delevan.

Chapter 20
Tough Going

Eileen faced his fine, hard eyes, and realized what that deliberate emphasis meant. Of course, she had told Martin to check on her. This man—well, better of course than a detective bureau—had been turned to, for checking. Whistled up as a sort of private guard. Well, at least then, Martin knew she'd told the truth about herself.

"Public Enemies: Numbers One and Two, in fact?" she said coolly. "Tell me, who these people are. Hands in pockets, small face tipped up to him far above her, she defied him silently.

He introduced her without more words to those nearest. A big, healthy black-browed girl giving a last wax to her skin, kneeling beside them. A bigger, red-faced, black-browed man, pawing records from a high cabinet—Bill and Lolly Grant, obviously brother and sister, obviously rather dumb and friendly to everybody. They grinned at her without prejudice.

The married couple, the Roland Perrines, were too much in love to bother one way or the other about outsiders or insiders. She was a round, cheerful, bright-eyed child in a tuffy collared jacket and trousers. He was lank and collegiate and taffy-colored. They held hands and sang, most of the time, she was to find.

Eileen was relaxing when Caroline burst in. She was swathed in a big white woolly coat that set off her fair flare of hair and her exquisite, high-cheekboned face. She waved ski sticks and shouted and disordered everyone indiscriminately with an attack of embraces and kisses. She stopped short, an arm still around Robina Perrine, and said, "Hello! Quick work, Martin—if it isn't little Gardenia!"

Eileen said, "The name's Gardner. You got it a little wrong." Caroline wasn't giving quarter. Her voice rose gaily.

"Can you beat it, children! This is the one Martin found in the flower shop when he didn't get back for an hour! The girl with the trained ankle, coming right along with the party!"

Holy Perrine stopped singing and pulled his wife closer. The friendly big Grant boy sobered, his hands stopping above the records. There were limits even to what Martin the playboy could hand to their women-folk, the silence said.

Then Martin said casually, amused, over his shoulder from among the pile of luggage, "should have broken it to you I was adding a pair of guests to my own party, Car. Matter of fact, I met Eileen when I flew out to Denver last June to say good-bye to my mother—danced with her, all that. She'd just graduated from the University of Colorado—you may remember Mother made their commencement speech. She and I held an Old Home Week in the taxi. I wanted her to come along to the night club but she wouldn't do that, so we compromised on the skiing party. Sort of appropriate, she'd had my gold ski all this time."

"Had your gold ski?" Caroline's eyes gleamed green.

"I found it," Eileen said, and for whatever reason, Caroline quieted. Robina Perrine said, as the tension dropped, "Oo-oo, and you're in a flower shop, what fun! I'm going to start a dress shop next fall if I can't buy freedom enough out of the brutal bridegroom."

them into the big heated limousine. She found herself squeezed between the little bride and Lewis Delevan under the big furry rugs. Robina went on chattering in a friendly fashion. Lewis talked brief commonplaces.

She relaxed into the novel pleasure of the big swift car, the good cigarettes, the easy laughter and plans. She didn't force her self, but she put everything she had into getting along with the crowd. Show Martin that she could fit in with his friends.

By the time they piled out for luncheon at an upstate inn, Bill Grant turned out to be friends with a man she'd known at college, and Robina Perrine, as they did their faces in the ladies' room, was telling her excitedly how she came to fall for Roly. Careful, though, it wouldn't all be as easy as this.

That night, in sparkling moonlight, they bundled out, laughing, into a sweep of snow-filled landscape. They were racing up a shoveled path between snow piles to a long low lodge, bursting into a long pine-paneled room where a big fire roared in the middle.

A couple of roughly clad men who yelped greetings to Martin by his first name were efficiently bringing in luggage and passing drinks and coffee and sandwiches. And presently Eileen was alone, deep in a soft narrow bed, staring at a fire crackling, and at a moonlit snow covered hill beyond a window. Tomorrow morning, instead of jumping awake with the alarm dressing like a fire horse, snatching a cup of coffee at the drugstore, she'd wake and ring for a tray across her knees. She'd bathe leisurely in the big tub beyond the door. She deliberately shut out everything but that as she fell asleep.

Late as she rose, she found, coming into the living room, that only the men were up. Bill, in a corner, was working on his skis, the other two, lounging on low upholstered couches that grouped by the fire, were razzing Lewis for his energy.

"I'm a workingman," Lewis was saying unmoved, shrugging himself into his leather windbreaker. "Got to make use of holidays." He stopped as the others rose at Eileen's entrance, but only to say, "Here's another worker. Put your things on, Eileen, we'll skate till luncheon."

Probably a showdown. Well, as good first as last. She laughed back at the others and followed him. There was a small lake about a meadow's length from the house, with a little wood black above it. It was freshly swept. They changed to skates in silence, and as silently took two turns round the tiny sheet.

"You have something to say. Get it over," Eileen said.

He took her at her word. "What will you take to stop this?" he demanded.

She did not pretend to misunderstand him.

"Nothing can make me," she said. "Except Martin, of course. I'm here with his consent. I can't see where you come in."

"I can't let my best friend marry an adventuress."

She wrenched away from him, at this, furious and scarlet. Then she got hold of herself, made herself answer quietly. "I'm not an adventuress. You know that if you looked me up. If Martin told you anything he must have told you that I'm doing this because I care."

you work to do." "Live for others—like Caroline Dempster—or Lewis Delevan? 'Unscrupulous as to methods!' according to a magazine I read?"

"Caroline? I can handle her," he said. "As for me, yes, I'm working for power any way I can. Because I can push this fool country the way it ought to go, when I'm a step or two higher up." His voice roughened, his eyes blazed. "And Martin has to marry a woman who won't help him throw his millions away as he's doing now. Not you, nor Caroline. I won't see him ruined."

A hand came down on Eileen's shoulder. Martin's voice, laughing, said, "You two playing statues? Your feet will freeze off, Lew. He caught Eileen's hands and swung off with her. He grinned down. "Mind's not on your work, Eileen. I'm it, not Lewis!"

He skated like heaven—they were flying. Presently she heard music. He had turned on a radio amplifier wired out to the pond. The waltz music carried them. The sun glittered on Martin's bare bright head. Eileen was back in the enchantment Martin's presence meant.

"Lewis plucking you like a brand from the burning?" he said presently. She almost lost step. She had forgotten Martin's trick of walking into the middle of a situation and making it seem not painful merely because nothing mattered a lot and most things were amusing.

"Wants me to go home. Must I?" she smiled back.

"Certainly not. The party's just beginning. Don't mind old Lewis. He bossed me when he was my tutor. Terribly important guy—but much better for the world at large than the likes of me. And was the only one I dared trust to check you through. . . . I did have to, you know."

"I know. But you believe I'm honest. He doesn't."

"Why didn't you slap him down? You could. He's a rotten skater."

She laughed with him. "Maybe I'm showing you I can keep my temper and get on with your friends. Even make them want to skate with me. Be a lady under all circumstances—" she was half in earnest—"be a good sport."

"You are a good sport."

"Oh, if you'll just believe that—just believe I didn't know you from Adam's house cat when you came into Jerry's last June—or anything but your first name until day before yesterday—"

"Sure I believe it. You're a sweet kid."

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE MUST BE EQUAL TO THE TIMES

In one of our large cities an old bridge has been closed and condemned. There is nothing the matter with the bridge except that its structure is not equal to the requirements of modern traffic. It is not equal to the strain imposed upon it by heavy trucks and the incessant stream of automobiles which would daily pass over it.

Nothing in this matter with the bridge save that it fails to measure up to modern requirements! There is many an ancient idea in the world which needs to be closed out and condemned; not because there is anything the matter with it, but because it fails to meet the exacting requirements of modern life. War brings many curses upon humanity and few blessings. But what few blessings do follow in the wake of war almost always arise from the fact that outworn ways of doing things are superceded under the frantic stimulus of war preparation. We sometimes have to have a nation-wide and world-wide cataclysm to rid us of certain tenaciously held ideas which have grown old.

It is good for us all once in a while to ask ourselves whether or not our philosophy of life, our attitude toward our fellows, our social customs, and our business methods are really meeting the requirements of efficient and successful life in the modern world.
This does not necessarily mean that we need to stream-line life; it simply means that we need to stabilize it and strengthen it.

That Great Britain is solidly behind Winston Churchill and his prosecution of the war is evidenced by the 447 to 3 vote of confidence his administration received in the British House of Commons today.

Monday's election in Grimesland was literally Democracy at work, for in the city election of the 141 eligible voters present in the city 139 voted and the other two were prevented by illness from going to the polls.
This is a fine example for other cities, towns and communities to follow, for when all the people of a community have a part in the naming of their officials there can be no doubt that the wishes of a true majority prevail.

We agree with Senator
Pepper in his declaration yesterday that if and when America actually enters the war, its first task should be to definitely place Japan outside the picture. As previously stated in this column, we believe Japan should not be permitted to stand in our way of helping Great Britain and when we actually enter the war Japan should immediately become either an ally or an enemy and be treated as such. Japan's present role of "fist-shaking"
just to draw our attention from the task of furnishing all possible aid to the democracies should be definitely ended one way or another as quickly as possible.

CIGARETTES AND GOOD CITIZENSHIP

A wise man said, "Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are." He might also have said, "Tell me what you do with your cigarette stubs and I will tell you what kind of a citizen you are."

When driving your car, do you throw your stub out of the window? If so, you aren't a good citizen. Your stub may land in some leaves or rubbish by the roadside and start a fire. The place for such stubs is the ash tray provided in your car.

When you are smoking in the house and you leave your stub in the ashtray, do you make sure it is actually out before you leave it? Women are said to be among the worst offenders in this respect. Cigarette stubs smoulder on the edge of an ash-tray, and sometimes drop off. That is how many house fires begin.

When you drop your stub
in any public place, do you step on it, hard? You should.
It might set fire to the clothing of some passer-by. The best plan is never to drop your stub on any floor at any time, but use the receptacles provided for smokers.

Good citizenship is simply consideration for your fel-lowmen. According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, now celebrating its 75th anniversary, one test of a good citizen is whether he puts cigarette stubs only in a safe receptacle, and, even then, makes sure they are completely extinguished.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—It may be nothing for Joe Doaks to get jubilant about, but his income tax burden at its prospective worst next year will be light compared to that of the English taxpayer's, though it should be recalled that the Englishman's additional taxes are fewer than the American's and that the per capita tax in England is lower.

500 American donate for rising defense costs

Moreover, congressmen familiar with the unpopularity of tax increases, may soften the blow somewhat.

However, the U. S. tax bill next year will be pretty terrific. Proposed increases in federal levies are figured to lift the total, including state and local, $22,000,000,000
next year compared to about $7,389,000, 000 in payments by the English.

On a per capita basis that would represent 187 for every man, woman and child in the United States compared with $160 for every person in the United Kingdom.

Taxes, however, are not paid on a per capita basis. Experts here say the so-called per capita payment is not a real gauge of the pinch on the taxpayers. The simplest way to measure that pinch, say the experts, is the comparative rates of taxation on persons in given income brackets or the proportion of total tax levies
to the taxpayers' income.

Per capita tax collections run higher in the U. S. than in England because there are many more people in this country with larger taxable incomes. This is particularly true in the $2,000 to $10,000 and even up to the $50,000 income bracket.

Little Income Hit Hard
The little income fellow is hit particularly hard in England. Over there the childless married man with a net income of $1,000 will pay a tax of $66 under the new war rates. If he earns $1,500, his tax will be $232. The married man in this country with $1,000 or $1,500 net income wouldn't have to pay any federal income tax, since the new plans retain the personal exemption of $2,000 for the head of a family.

The personal exemption for a married person in England is $560 while that of a single person is $320 compared with $800 for the bachelor in the United States. The British surtax reaches a maximum rate of 98 per cent, while our top surtax levy as proposed by the

As High As 24 Per cent

The English purchase tax—similar to a sales tax—is at a rate of 33 1-3 per cent on the wholesale price (about 24 per cent of the retail price) of such luxury goods as jewelry, toilet preparations, articles of real silk and furniture. The proposed U. S. excise tax on jewelry musical instruments and radios is 10 per cent of the retail price.

The English purchase tax on goods in common use, such as clothing, shoes, pots and pans, is about 12 per cent of the retail price.
Such necessities as food, gas, coal and medicine are exempt. Some of our states have sales taxes on almost all commodities including food, but the maximum rate is about 2 per cent.

For the privilege of enjoying a spot of liquor the bomb-harassed English Joe Doaks has to pay his government a pretty penny. The tax on distilled spirits over there is $14
a gallon compared with a present $3 and a proposed $4 a gallon here.

John Bull's tax on cigarettes is 20 cents a pack of 20, compared with a present federal 6 cents and proposed 8 cents a pack in this country

Your News Test What Do You Know About COAL?

1. Identify the man in the picture should be easy, but can you explain in a few words his connection with the coal industry?

2. True or false: The war has not changed materially the ownership of European coal deposits.

3. Who gets the greatest share of America's coal? Railroads? Domestic users?

4. Why has coal achieved new importance in recent years—aside from its use as fuel?

5. Which gives off the greatest heat: Bituminous coal (soft)? Anthracite coal (hard)?

6. America's recent coal strike was called by miners in the nation's most productive bituminous field. By what name is it generally known?

Each part of the first question counts 10, all other questions 16 each. A score of 80 is good.

Job For Poole, Maybe.
Bruce Poole, resigned Raleigh detective captain who lost to incumbent Commissioner of Public Safety Robert C. Powell in a very close race Monday, is quite likely to wind up with a job in the North Carolina prison division.

There were repeated reports during the campaign that Poole was receiving the outspoken support of Oscar Pitts, prison division head.
The day after the election Pitts lauded the ability of Poole, though without flattery saying he will offer him a job.

Poole's record as chief of detectives was excellent and hundreds who voted against him for safety commissioner consider that Director Pitts would make no mistake in employing him — despite the cry of "politics" which would be certain to follow.

Rare Specimen.
"Lobby" report submitted by Comptroller Bill Carmichael of the University recites that R. E. Little of Wadesboro worked for the "es-cheats bill" without compensation of any kind.

"We have offered him his expenses repeatedly as we have paid hired workers to collect the money, but he has refused to accept a penny,"
said the report.

Carmichael recited how the fund has grown from "almost nothing"
to "close to $300,000."

Manager Wilson Counting Heavily On Pitching Staff

SEASON OPENS FRIDAY NIGHT

Greenies To Play In Wilson At 8:00 O'clock

Manager Rube Wilson was none too optimistic today on the eve of the opening of the Coastal Plain league and frankly admitted that he was counting on his pitching staff to give the locals a good start.

Termining his offensive as "fair," the skipper admitted that both his infield and outfield were uncertain quantities.

The Greenville pilot will start the season's play against Wilson Thursday night with an untried rookie, Finfrock, who was secured from Kinston, at second base. He also will have a rookie in the right field garden. At present Carraway, Greene county boy, is slated to hold down the berth, but club officials are dickering with an East Carolina Teachers College youth, Hinton, who has been playing infield, but who Rube feels he can develop into an outfielder if he signs and comes through.

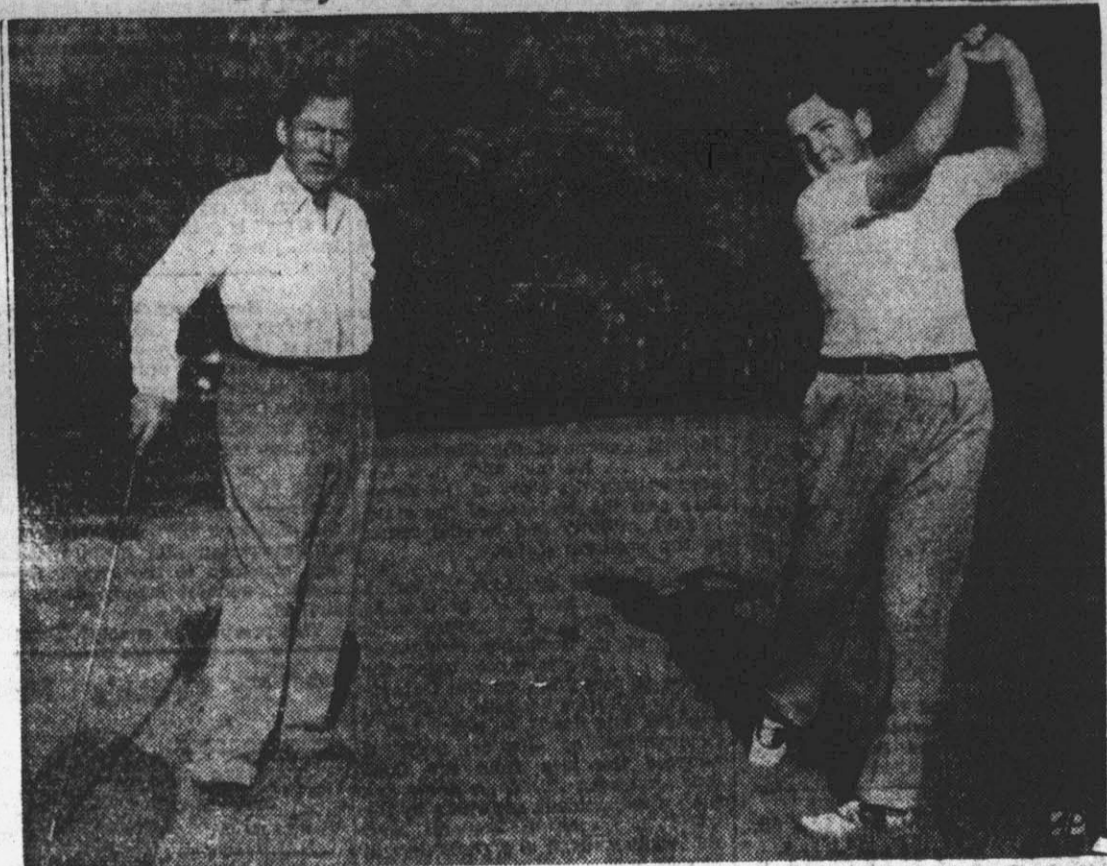

Two "good" outfielders were released "with regret" Wednesday because of the fact that more than the medium number of experienced men were on the roster. The two were Mike Dides and Harold Forbes, the latter a local boy. The local pilot expressed regret at having to release the boys and said both were good and would be an addition to any team. A club is allowed only 11 men with professional experience, three of which may be of unlimited experience and the remainder being of less than three years experience in professional baseball.

The Greenville pitching staff has been looking good in exhibition games. The six men on the staff are Lefty Long, with Greenville the latter part of 1939; Melvin Adams, both left-handed; Bill Severin, Bill Teller, both members of last year's staff; Melvin Ames, a rookie by the name of Pickering who has been playing with the House of David team and pitched against the locals yesterday, all right-handers.

The local manager also feels that his catching staff will stack up with any in the league. McGarity will be the regular catcher, with Hicks, a rookie from Wilson, being held in readiness to take over the backstop position. Hicks also will be used as a utility man.

As usual, Rube himself will hold down first base and is not planning on doing any pitching this year. Rookie Finfrock will start at second, while Sonny Kracke, who has been looking good during training,

Bobby Jones Sees Son Start Competitive Golf

Under the watchful eyes of his famous father (left), 14-year-old Bobby Jones, 3rd (right), went around the course in practice shortly before they left Atlanta for Chattanooga, Tenn., where the boy made his debut as a competitive golfer in the annual Southern Prep and High School tournament. Bobby, the father, says he hopes his son will take the game for the fun of it and never be a tournament golfer.

Automobile Races Sunday, May 11th

High Point, May 7.—A field of outstanding drivers is rapidly being assembled for the 100 mile championship stock car race to be held on the one mile High Point speedway Sunday, May 11.

One of the latest entries received is that of C. D. "Smoky" Purser of Daytona Beach, Fla., who has been burning up the tracks for 15 years as a racing driver.

Promising to be the most outstanding driver in the field is Bill France, also of Daytona Beach, Fla. This 33-year-old driver has been giving stiff competition to the racing field for the past ten years.

again will be at short. Harry Jenkins also will be at his old position at third base. Harry, who is considered by all to be a good third baseman, is showing up better in hitting this year and is counted on to boost the locals' offense.

Charlie Seagr and Benny Crow, holdovers from last year, will hold down left and center fields, respectively, with the right field position uncertain. Carraway at present is slated to start.

New uniforms were issued to the players today in preparation for tomorrow night's opening in Wilson.

GREENIES WIN BY A 4-0 SCORE

Long Hurls Shutout Over House Of David Team

Lefty Long, who was with the Greenies the latter part of the 1939 season, but not on the roster last year, yesterday allowed the bearded House of David team only four scattered hits and turned in a 4-0 victory in the final pre-season game for the locals.

The Greenies will go to Wilson tomorrow for the opening game. The game is set for 8 o'clock and the two teams will play here at the temporary home in a display win-down.

permitting. The Greenies made their first run in the initial frame when Harold Forbes smashed out a double to score Finfrock who got on via a walk. Held scoreless in the second, the Greenies came back to add another in the third. Forbes drew a walk, advanced to second on a single by Benny Crow, went to third when Jenkins walked and strolled home as Dides took first on four balls.

The locals scored their other two runs in the eighth frame when Harry Jenkins poked out a circuit blow with Manager Rube Wilson on base by virtue of a single. Harry's blow went for 300 feet and, like most of his homers, sailed over the scoreboard.

Forbes led the locals in hitting, getting a double and a single in three trips. Although his hitting did not figure in the scoring, McGarity got two for four.

ARMY 'SHOTS' THEM BIG

This reel of film is the largest ever produced, reports Major George W. Goddard, chief of the army's photographic section. It is 19 inches wide and was made to order for one of the air corps' cameras.

WAR ON NORTH ATLANTIC SHOWN IN MARCH OF TIME

The first motion picture story on the newest phase of the war—the battle of the Atlantic—will soon be brought to the screen of the Pitt Theatre here in the latest March of Time film, "Crisis in the Atlantic," which vividly portrays the many aspects of the current struggle to keep open the sea lanes over which war materials and vital foodstuffs must safely and quickly be carried to Britain.

This latest film scoop by the editors of March of Time includes several sequences of exclusive pictures which movie-goers have never yet had an opportunity to see. It includes thrilling scenes filmed by March of Time cameramen during a long and perilous voyage from Canada to England aboard a tanker in convoy, and the first pictures to arrive in the U. S. from Greenland—Denmark's strategic island continent in the Western Hemisphere, now under full U. S. protection.

Besides the operation of the convoy system, this latest March of Time also shows the ships and planes of the U. S. Navy in action, patrolling their newly-extended areas to keep merchant vessels informed of the whereabouts of lurking Nazi raiders.

The film also depicts the joint U. S.-Canadian defense efforts to make impregnable the iron band of bases stretching from the Arctic to the South Atlantic, and to get to Britain quickly the ships, planes and armaments necessary to ensure her of victory over the Nazi war machine.

With Adolf Hitler's campaign in the Balkans already concluded and the Atlantic now ranking as the chief theatre of the war, March of Time's "Crisis in the Atlantic" is exceptionally timely just now. The film will be shown at the Pitt Theatre for two days, Thursday and Friday.

Risk Writer's Cramp For Country.

New Wilmington, Pa.—(AP)—Five Westminster College co-eds have discovered a new way to aid national defense—they are writing to soldiers, sailors and flyers in Hawaii and the Philippines. An advertisement in a Honolulu newspaper—"Five college girls would like to correspond with men in the army and navy"—started it. Within two weeks 200 letters arrived airmail. Every single one was answered.

'North Star' Welcomed Home From Polar Regions

The ice-scarred motorship North Star was greeted in Boston by a driving rain and relatives of expedition members as she nosed into her berth at the army air base. The North Star returned from a year and a half in the south polar regions. The expedition, headed by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, was the first government-sponsored expedition to the Antarctic.

PITT FARMERS TO HEAR CHIEF

At Least 250 Expected To Hear Secretary Wickard

Raleigh, May 7.—It may be different in the hinterlands, but here in Raleigh political practitioners and observers are laughing out loud at special stories from Washington that eyes are centered on the "Hoey-Rucker fight."
Reason for the amusement is that as it looks in the state capital, there isn't any "fight." Hoey is in as national committeeman and Rucker is still a nice, jolly fat man from Greensboro.
The plug which J. S. Senator Reynolds has put in for his ardent and loyal supporter from the Piedmont, however, is viewed as a prelude to a Hoey-Reynolds race for the upper federal house in 1944. Here again it is the capital's judgment that this wouldn't be a race as of today, but a complete walkover for the Shelby man who retired the first of this year from the Governor's mansion the most popular occupant of that big, ugly structure in lo these many moons.
Nevertheless, it is recognized that "Bob" now disowned by many who once affectionately prefixed "Our" to the first name, is a redoubtable vote gatherer and it is admitted that things can come to pass in the next three years which would change the complexion of prospects four or five times.

Congressman Harold D. Cooley will accompany the Secretary to Raleigh and will introduce him to the expected crowd of 5,000. Governor J. Melville Broughton will deliver the address of welcome. Others to appear on the program include Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer, Dean I. O. Schaub, director of extension work, T. E. Browne, director of Vocational Education, W. Kerr Scott, state commissioner of agriculture; W. W. Eagles, of Macclesfield, president of the Farmers Cooperative Exchange and John T. Thorne, of Farmville, president of the Cotton Association.
A full and detailed report on the last year's operations of both the Cotton Association and the FCX will be presented to the assembled members by Mr. Mann and the meeting will then be thrown open for a general discussion from the floor.
One of the highlights of the day will be the induction into office of directors of the two cooperatives for the coming year.

Hoey-Reynolds Contest Now Considered Likely

humanly possible to head it off. It was the only political brawl during his four years in office in which he was completely routed. Other times he may have been forced to a compromise or two, but in that case he lost everything but "face" and didn't even save all of that.
Reynolds was still 100 per cent for FDR and the man he now advocates for national committeeman was one of the Roosevelt movement's most enthusiastic Tar Heel boosters.
But the development of the foreign situation changed things all around. Governor Hoey found himself able to follow the presidential lead in opposing Hitler and the Nazis—in fact he sometimes seems ahead of FDR in that respect.
Reynolds, on the other hand seems obsessed with his anti-British ideas and has been consistently, if not willingly, aiding Hitler at every turn.
So Hoey, once a kind of bugaboo to the New Deal, is now used already the FDR and Washington administration choice for national committeeman over anybody backed by Reynolds. And "Our Bob," once a darling of the Washington powers? They'd probably cheer a first class political funeral for Bob; but certainly not any political victory for him anywhere.

In this connection, it is pointed out that the current choice for the national committee will be looked upon by the Washington administration and by New Dealers in North Carolina in a manner diametrically opposite to the viewpoint which would have been adopted even one year ago.
Turn back a couple of dozen leaves on the calendar and it will be recognized that then Senator Reynolds was something of a fair-haired child of the Administration; while Governor Hoey was definitely in the Tory lineup in the opinion of New Deal advocates.
Bob had gone along with the President on almost every domestic issue, while it is no secret that Clyde always regarded FDR as entirely too radical in his economic theories and too much under the spell of organized labor and of John L. Lewis in particular.

giving amateur performances for the wounded. He learned the words of songs in English as taught him by his Yankee pals, although not understanding their meaning. Some of the lyrics were a trifle risqué but Sherkot never knew why the Americans laughed so much.
"Those comic antics of his almost transformed him into an American. A troop of New Yorkers adopted him as mascot. He was provided with miniature uniform and, although lacking a passport, was shipped to New York with his buddies after the war. The French consul met him on his arrival and hustled him back to his native land."
All this was 22 years ago. And this piece was written some seven years ago. I wonder where Sherkot is today.

Library note: A strange book has just come off the Harvard University press, strange because there isn't anything like it anywhere. . . . Lawyers will like it and students of the War Between the States will like it because it is a history of the judicial system of the Confederate states. . . . No one until now has ever written the story of the structure and the business of the state federal, military and judicial courts of the southern states.

The name of this book is "Justice in Grey." It was written by Wm. M. Robinson, Jr. . . . It is packed with a ton of indescribably fascinating detail. . . . For instance, today the public is very high on the Department of Justice because of G-man exploits, but the U. S. never had a Department of Justice until it adopted the idea from the Confederate states. . . . There never was such a department anywhere in the world, not even in England, says the volume, until the Confederates formed it.
Now take the case of Arkansas. When the state was invaded and Little Rock taken by the enemy there were no more penitentiaries available, so jail sentences were abolished and if you were guilty of felonies or crimes of any nature you were either hanged or flogged. The law stipulated that no white man should receive more than 39 lashes on the bare back.

That was frontier justice and seems a trifle rough, but then those were rough days. . . . In this book all the states and the districts pass in review, and with them all the great legal minds and the gallant blockheads who were a part of the scene. I know little about Mr. Robinson himself but I can tell you he has done a monumental thing, and in the "Corn Pone and Jeff Davis" section of my own library "Justice in Grey" is going to occupy a prominent place.

New Army 'Weapon'
Ogden, Utah.—(AP)—Thin metal sheets, bent inward at the edges like a square saucer, provide the shields with which the army expects to repel the first attack on its great military establishments here.
Thousands of these galvanized iron plates are being fashioned and fixed in inverted position over the concrete piers from which will rise the pinewood barracks, warehouses, administration and hospital buildings attached to the army's Ogden arsenal, general supply depot and airfield.
