Winant Says Navies May Decide Nations' Destinies

TALK DIRECTED TO PEACE LOVERS

Ambassador To London Declares Mere Statement On Shipping Losses Does Not Tell Full Story

London, May 14.—(AP) United States Ambassador John G. Winant told the English-speaking union today that "freedom-loving and peace-loving people of this earth are coming to realize that this is not Britain's fight alone" and that their destinies may depend on the use they make of their navies.

He expressed hope that in debate over losses at sea of goods manufactured in the United States both Britons and Americans "realize that the mere statement of sinking of ships from America does not tell the whole story."

"It only proves, as does the successful transport of troops to the Middle East, the protective power of adequate convoys," he said.

"Such figures do not show the necessity of selection. They do not disclose what food may have been taken from the children of Britain to give her soldiers arms."

Waldrop Is Named District Scouter

At a special meeting held at the Woman's club Tuesday evening, J. Herbert Waldrop was unanimously elected chairman of the Pitt district of the East Carolina Council. L. M. Buchanan was elected vice chairman. Mr. Waldrop succeeds Roy Campbell, who was transferred to Richmond.

W. A. Dabson, regional executive of Region Six, which includes the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, delivered the principal address. His message was both inspirational and instructive. Mr. Dabson explained the technique of administering the scouting program in order to reach more boys.

At the conclusion of Mr. Dabson's remarks additional men to serve on the district committee with Mr. Waldrop were elected. They include Lebern S. Spence, T. Wagoner, W. H. Stewart, Jr., Billy Nesbit, Ed. Bachelor, A. M. Schultz, C. Wallace Bourne, R. L. Hildrup, S. B. Underwood, Jr., J. M. Taft, John G. Fleming, J. B. Kittrell, Dr. N. T. Ennett, D. J. Whitchard, Jr., B. B. Surr, E. R. Conway, Jr., D. H. Conley, R. L. Rollins and J. L. Peele.

Special guests in addition to the speaker were Dr. M. O. Fletcher, president of the East Carolina Council; J. A. Gaskins, scout executive; A. L. Hodge, assistant executive; D. L. Kelley, field executive.

Cure Is Found For Plant Bed Weeds

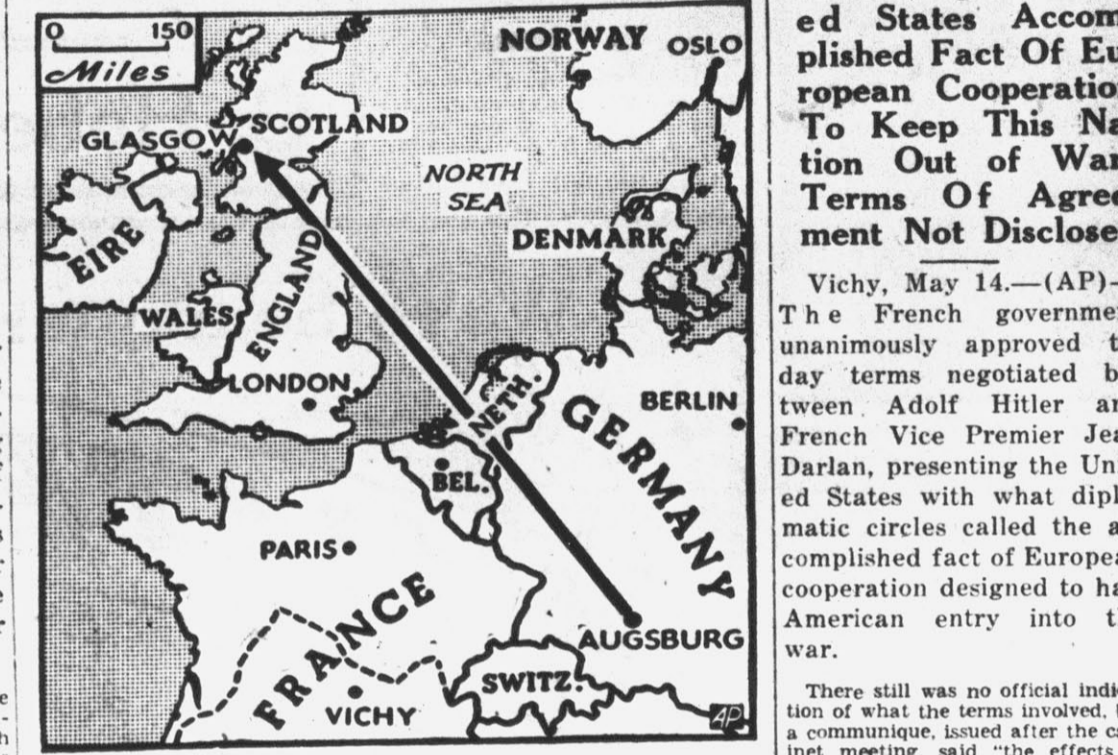

Raleigh, May 14.—Tobacco farmers have found a cure for one of their pestiest problems—weeds in their plant beds—L. T. Weeks, Extension tobacco specialist of N. C. State College, reported today. They used a chemical known as cyanamid to satisfactorily control foreign growth in plant beds.

In Johnston county four tobacco growers controlled 90 per cent of the weeds in their plant beds at a cost of $2 per 100 yards of bed space," Weeks said. The farmers are: J. Hector Langdon of Benson Route 1; C. A. Lassiter of Smithfield; Route 2; J. Rufus Creech of Smithfield; Route 2; and A. D. O'Neal of Middlesex, Route 1.

"Last fall these farmers applied 100 pounds of cyanamid to each 100 yards of plant bed space," the specialist continued. "The chemical was applied at least 60 days prior to the planting of the seed. The material was worked in with the first four inches of the soil.

U.S. Believed Topic Of Recent Axis Conference

Approximately 250 Pitt county farmers and farm women were in Raleigh Tuesday to hear Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard declare that the south can aid the cause of democracy by producing enough food and feed for its own consumption in an address featuring the annual joint membership meeting of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association and the Farmers Cooperative Exchange.

250 FROM PITT HEAR WICKARD County Well Represented At Raleigh Gathering

"It is ironical," the cabinet member said, "but a fact, that the south has been equipped by nature to produce almost anything that grows and yet there is ample evidence that its farms do not even feed their own."

Secretary Wickard's address was heard by more than 5,000 farmers and their wives, gathered from all parts of North and South Carolina who overflowed into the balconies of Raleigh's big Memorial auditorium. The occasion marked the completion of 19 years of service for the Cotton Association and six years for the FCCX.

During the past year the two cooperatives did a combined business of over $9,000,000. M. G. Mann, general manager of each, told the farm audience in his annual report on the operation and condition of the organizations.

Governor J. M. Broughton, who welcomed the visitors to the capital city, declared that he had been a member of the Cotton Association since its beginning and planned to continue his membership as long as he lived. Governor Broughton also assured Wickard and the audience that patriotism of North Carolina farmers was unquestionable, and that "there are no fifth columnists among them—they wouldn't even know one if they saw him."

Secretary Wickard was introduced by Congressman Harold D. Cooley of the fourth district, and more than 100 farm leaders from the Carolinas and adjoining states were present to welcome the Nation's No. 1 man in agriculture and hear him describe his views on "The South's Stake in the Battle of Britain."

Wickard, who is a practical farmer and has served as a co-operative organizer and president in Indiana, told the group that co-operatives set a standard that influences entire regions, and that "organizations such as these can perform a great service in the present crisis."

FOES CONSIDER DELAY IN VOTE ON U.S. CONVOY

May Wait Showdown Until Address By President

ENTIRE QUESTION GETS NEW TINGE

Germany's Warning To Commerce Plying Red Sea Puts A New Slant On Issue Of Naval Convoys

Washington, May 14.—(AP)—A group of senators opposing administration foreign policy discussed today the possibility of delaying a Senate showdown on the convoy issue until after President Roosevelt has indicated whether he wants to use the navy for convoy service.

They talked over the situation as the whole convoy picture was given a new tinge because of Germany's warning to commerce plying in the Red sea.

No definite decision was reached at the senators' meeting, but Senator Tobey (R-N.H.), author of an anti-convoys resolution, said he would have a statement later in the day. Tobey originally had planned to offer the prohibition against convoys as an amendment to the administration's legislation authorizing governmental acquisition of foreign ships lying idle in American harbors. That legislation is up for Senate consideration today.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said after today's meeting that "all are united on the determination that we should not send convoys, and we will fight that issue from hell to breakfast."

Another conferee said that "the only question involved is one of strategy and timing" and added that it might be preferable to await some presidential declaration on convoys before pressing for Senate action. The chief executive will make a major address May 27.

Possible Entry in War Thought To Have Been Issue

Rome, May 14.—(AP)—The major three-power pact nations were understood reliably tonight to have conferred here within the past few days and some observers said the prospect of the United States becoming involved in the war through convoys probably was the major topic of discussion.

The subject of the talks among Italy, Germany and Japan could not be ascertained, but since Japan's only concern with the three-power pact is supposed to be her relations with the United States and Soviet Russia, one or the other, or both, may have been discussed.

The Fascist press recalled Japan's pledge to fight the United States under the treaty in case the United States entered the war and both Il Giornale D'Italia and Il Lavoro Fascista accused the United States of planning an attack on Japan.

The tri-partite pact pledged its signatories to an all-for-one and one-for-all promise to fight any new nation entering either the European or Asiatic conflict.

White Man Given Sentence On Road

Charles Norton, school teacher of near Manteo, who was involved in an automobile wreck on the Falkland highway following the Thanksgiving holidays, in which Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Slocum of Benson and a Goldsboro woman were injured, was sentenced in County court yesterday afternoon to two years on each of three counts, the sentences to run concurrently.

The defendant, whose home is in Boone and who was principal of the Avon school, was sentenced on charges of driving careless and with a deadly weapon. Norton appealed to Superior court and bond was set at $500.

Four other cases were disposed of at the afternoon session. George West Tyson and Pat Tyson, Negroes, were given four months each on charges of larceny. Abraham Best, another Negro and a third defendant in the case, was acquitted and also was freed on an additional count of larceny.

Edgar Davis, white man, was acquitted of a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Thomas Best, colored, was convicted of abandonment and non-support, but prayer for judgment was continued until the second Tuesday in June.

DRAFT BOARDS BOSTON YARDS ISSUE ORDERS STRIKE ENDED

Persons Changing Address Must Notify Boards

Officials of the two Pitt County Selective Service Boards today disclosed that they were encountering difficulties because of the fact that many registrants had changed their address without notifying their respective boards, as required by law.

The officials called attention to the law requiring persons changing their address to notify their board and pointed out that anyone failing in such action was subject to federal prosecution.

They also declared that when questionnaires sent to the address given when a person registered failed to reach the addressee because of a change in address the burden rested on the individual and not the board.

The two local boards, under orders from national headquarters are engaged now in sending questionnaires to all persons who registered. At first questionnaires were sent only to those who would be subject to call within the first year or so.

If persons who have changed their addresses continue to fail to notify their Selective Service boards, names of such persons will be published in the press in an effort to locate them, it was declared by board officials.

Anthony Eden Directs Blunt Warning To Japs

Easing of Restrictions Dependent On Tokyo

London, May 14.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden bluntly warned Japan today that British economic restrictions against her would not be eased unless Japan recognizes British rights in China.

He said instructions to this effect had been sent to the British ambassador at Tokyo.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Eden declared also that Britain had "great sympathy with Syria" and that she would support any "aspirations for independence."

On Iraq, which adjoins Syria, Eden said that British forces there were being reinforced swiftly, but that Britain had no intention of threatening Iraq's independence.

Makes Report On Free Dental Work

It was revealed at the Pitt County Health Department today that Dr. A. D. Underwood, member of the State Board of Health dental staff, under Dr. E. A. Branch, director of division of oral hygiene has just completed 18 weeks of dental service in the schools of Pitt county. Dr. Underwood served the Belvoir, Grimesland, Griffin and Bethel schools, and in addition the Third Street School in Greenville.

Dr. Underwood's report to Dr. Ennett, local health officer, reads in part as follows: Children inspected, 1909; children treated, 858; fillings for the teeth extracted, 341; teeth cleaned, 858; total operations, 3,961; an average of nearly five operations per child; lectures on "Oral Hygiene," 41.

According to Dr. Ennett this free dental service to poor school children is furnished jointly by the state and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

The health officer expressed the opinion that the Oral Hygiene program in the schools is of prime importance to the child's present and future health. He stated that it was applying preventive medicine in the youthful years when prevention is worth most.

It is understood that Dr. Underwood has served Pitt county schools for the last several years in a capable manner and is not only popular with the principals and the teachers but with the children as well.

London Airs Unique Case Over Radio

Deputy Fuehrer Who Escaped to Glasgow Declared To Be Disclosing Facts That Will Make German High Command Sweat; Prime Minister Churchill Expects To Interview Nazi Personally

By The Associated Press

Rudolf Hess, the escaped Nazi deputy fuhrer, was described by the British radio today as talking and writing "words which will make the German high command sweat"—the first semi-official intimation that he may already have divulged vital German military secrets.

In a counter assertion, Nazi officials insisted that, despite Hess' position as a member of Adolf Hitler's secret war council, he was "not initiated in the plans of the Reich's supreme military leadership."

The Germans declared that Hess carried no documents to Britain, likely to reveal Nazi military secrets and that he knew enough to be "convinced that the German-English war would be carried out to its last consequence."

Any peace proposal Hess might make in Britain, it was said, would be disavowed in Berlin.

British military intelligence officers were reported questioning the number three Nazi closely. Simultaneously, the government-controlled British Broadcasting Company began a barrage of 10 broadcasts a day to Germany on the Hess affair.

The London Daily Mail said that in preliminary conversations, Hess had "indicated his personal disgust with the Nazi party" and told of mounting tension among Adolf Hitler's party chieftains.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said documents left behind by Hess indicated he planned to visit the Duke of Hamilton in Glasgow in an effort to bring about peace.

"Hess had the fixed idea that he was a sort of Messiah, by whom a spectacular individual gesture could bring about a termination of hostilities," a Nazi spokesman said.

The spokesman declared that Hess had no intention of approaching Prime Minister Churchill or other British government leaders, but that he had a "crazy notion" that a pacifist group could end the war.

"Hess did not flee as a traitor," the spokesman asserted. Nazi officials had previously declared that Germany would not accept any peace offer—except on German terms.

In the Reich itself, Germans received an oblique warning against listening to foreign broadcasts on the strange case.

Even as the British radio flooded the air with news about Hess' mysterious flight to the British camp, Prime Minister Churchill, himself, was expected to follow up the preliminary questioning of Britain's number one prisoner with a personal interview.

Attend Retreat At Camp Hanes. Eight Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. delegates, Virginia Whitley, Rebecca Ross, Grace Ross, Charlotte Shearman, Mildred Beverly, Howard Adams, Jennings Ballard, and John Anderson, represented East Carolina Teachers College at a state "Y" retreat held at Camp Hanes near Winston-Salem May 9, 10 and 11.

Here they met with representatives from State College, Duke, the University of North Carolina, Salem, Davidson, Elon, Woman's College and Atlantic Christian College to discuss Christian work on college campuses and to exchange ideas for making better programs and more energetic Y. W. and Y. M. organizations.

An inspiring program was carried out on the theme "The Challenge of Christianity." Each evening and morning during the stay in camp, a devotional was led by students from one of the colleges represented. Elon making the Friday evening service; East Carolina Teachers College, the Saturday morning one; Atlantic Christian College, Saturday evening; and Salem, Sunday morning. After each devotional, Dr. Kenneth Foreman, professor of philosophy at Davidson College, delivered one of a series of addresses. Under his first subject "The Challenge of a Crisis," he led from national crises to crises that come to each individual and pointed out various ways of meeting them. The only satisfactory method is to recognize the existence of the crisis and meet it in a way that will turn it to one's advantage. "Good in the long run, is stronger than evil," declared Dr. Foreman.

In "The Challenge of Conflict" he discussed the conflict of choices and outlined three varieties of choices one has to make: "The choice between I ought and I want, between I ought and I ought, when it is a matter of picking the greater good, and between I ought not and I ought not" where the problem is choosing the lesser evil. The greatest happiness comes when what you want to do, what you ought to do, what you can do, and what you are doing are the same.

Dr. Foreman listed in the third of the series, "The Challenge to Leadership," some of the characteristics of a good leader: a healthy body to bear the strain of leadership, the power to command, and the power to be commanded, and the reason many leaders fail to get cooperation is that they fail to cooperate.

He closed the group of lectures with the "Challenge of Christ." Using Simon Peter and Paul as examples Dr. Foreman presented a picture of how Christ challenges the minds of men to a better way of life.

After each lecture there was group discussion in which the students asked questions on the topic and exchanged opinions among themselves.

Dean Cloyd and Edward King of State College had charge of camp supervision and recreational activities.

Student Council Meeting

Another plan to solve the council finance problems was added to the numerous collection by James Worsley in last night's student council meeting.

His plan is to give every club a small amount of money, not over five dollars, for running expenses, while the remaining money will be used for school projects which will directly benefit the students. This plan seemed to meet with more favor among the council members than any other plan which has been presented, since one of the most severe criticisms to the present system is that too many projects are backed by student money which benefit the students too indirectly.

Other business taken up at the meeting was the passing of the bill by the council to give students veto power over the council by a three-fifths vote of the entire student body, and the possibility of buying a school banner to be carried to various conventions by delegates, from

VALENTINE ON NASH HOT SPOT

Left Out In Cold On Abernathy's Appointment

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 14.—Itimous Valentine, astute Nash county politician associated with the McDonald wing of the Democratic party, is said to be irked no end at the surprise action of Governor J. Melville Broughton in naming Valentine's fellow countian, Claude Abernathy, as burial association commissioner.

Not that he has anything against Abernathy—on the contrary it is quite probable he would have gladly backed Claude for the post; but he is reported much put out at the way in which he thinks the Governor left him "gangling out on the well known limb."

It came about thus: Valentine was approached by Edgecombe county friends with a request to support one Simmons for the job; and without knowledge that any of his home folks were, or would be under consideration Itimous came to Raleigh, conferred with the Governor about getting up endorsements for Simmons. The story is that Valentine wasn't promised anything, but certainly was not warned that his efforts for Simmons would be useless.

So he went back home, told the Edgecombe people he'd do all he could; and proceeded to do it. While right in the midst of these activities, Valentine was startled to read in the papers an announcement that Abernathy had been named for the $4,800 post.

Whereat the storm broke around the Valentine head. The Edgecombe folks said he had double-crossed them, telling them he was working for Simmons while in fact he was boosting Abernathy. They couldn't conceive that the appointment was made without a word to Itimous. On the other hand, Nash people hopped him hard for backing Simmons against a man from home. In short, Itimous caught it coming and going

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: Eileen's marriage with Martin Dane has broken on the rock of Martin's incorrigible play-boy manner. And so far as Eileen knows, Martin is getting a divorce and probably will marry Caroline Dempster, who had always intended to marry him anyway. And Eileen has forced Lewis Delevan, who manages the Willesdon Institute and distributed Martin's father's money, to give her a job.

Chapter 26 New Life

Eileen was, so far as she knew, doing her work well. She was engaged in some emergency typing with a nervous kindly Miss Violet Lee. Miss Lee interested her. She combined rather old-fashioned soft-voiced Southern graces, and what must once have been a clear-featured delicate old portrait prettiness with an able grasp on her job, which concerned statistics on population. She was an important person, Eileen found, in the institute.

Aside from that she was rather pathetically domestic. Her personal interest centered around the period perfection of a small apartment which held the remains of a Virginia manor's furnishings, and attentions to what sounded like a rather selfish invalid mother. The mother's photograph, frail, gray-haired and bravely smiling, was silver-framed on Miss Lee's desk along with those of a half-dozen stair-step nieces and nephews.

Doing Miss Lee's checks at the bank and offering a further insight into the smallest niece's tonsillitis. For a layette. For the last term at a Connecticut boys' school.

She was called into Delevan's office some weeks later, again. He was not alone. A gray-haired, stocky man stood examining one of the pin-stuck maps on the farthest wall. Lewis came forward with that heartening warmth in his manner which she had seen in him once before.

"I've been hearing fine things of your work," he said. He dropped his voice to add, "This gentleman is not to know that you work here."

He turned to him, saying, "This is Mr. Harbison, Mrs. Dane. He has a paper here that I believe you want to sign."

She knew what it was, of course. Even before Mr. Harbison said something pleasant about appreciation of her co-operation, and the other side's hope that she would reconsider her too unselfish attitude about a settlement. She only shook her head, with a look at Lewis, who said, "Mrs. Dane, let me tell you that she has good reasons for wishing nothing she is provided for."

So in a short moment the paper was signed and Mr. Harbison was gone and it was done.

She said to Lewis, trying to let the words sound easy, "He's marrying Caroline as soon as it's over."

Lewis nodded. "I understand. A sound fine girl like Laura Grant would have been a better balance wheel for him, but after all Caroline is Martin's own sort. Pity. . . Now Eileen, we're going to put all this behind us. You've a long life ahead of you with fine things in it."

She spoke bitterly before she thought.

"You mean ending in an important job like Miss Lee's. Getting all set up about whether Mother will feel well enough to go to the Savoy Company's 'Patience' this season. Visibly overcome with happiness because everybody says little Joan is her image!"

"No." He was smiling, as if at a child. "After all, Miss Lee might be as excited about small things if she was Mrs. Jones. Eileen, my dear, I have been watching you. What I see pleases me. I have always thought you could go far. I am convinced now. I intend to train you to be one of my principal helpers."

"Train me?"

"You. You have brains and ability. Though—" he smiled—"they're excellently hidden by the personality of a big-eyed sweet kid. . . Here, this has been too much for you, you look white. Now run along. You'll get a memorandum tomorrow morning."

Learning How
She was a little sorry when she found it on her desk, for it detached her from Miss Lee, whom she had grown to like. She was detailed of all places, to the filing department, she said, puzzled. "But, Miss Lee, anybody can file—I know how."

Miss Lee said pleasantly, "Mr. Delevan tells me he is giving you special training—he has his own methods. I understand I am not losing you permanently." She added, her faded clearcut face kind, "I agree with him that you are worth training. Indeed, I'd been thinking of suggesting to you that you take evening courses in social service at Rand School or Columbia. I did that."

It was a kinder world than she had lately known, at least.

Lewis explained, later, "I am giving you the old-fashioned training experience in each department by turns. In between, you will be with Miss Lee as a sort of back-of-all-trades. Twice a week you'll go over your problems, technical and personal, with me or perhaps Burton—according to where they most belong. Make notes of the personal problems, for me, mostly. Handling people is more important than technical stuff."

"But—Mr. Delevan—you're doing too much."

"You'll be worth it," he said. "However, say as little as you can. There's always jealousy and politics in a place of this sort. Make friends, win liking. You can, you have charm. I'll always be here for you to check with. And it's Lewis when we're alone, please." He began then and there discussing with her the character and methods and ways of the people she was with in the filing department. And how to handle them with objectivity. "Look at them with entire detachment," he said. "You must learn to handle them, never to be flattered or hurt by what they do or say."

"But—it's so chilly!" she protested.

"It's the first lesson of all executives. Tell me again what little Miss Kelly said about the salary scale. And I'll tell you how you should have answered."

She realized as time went on that this was training of a sort she could not have bought or found anywhere. She was maturing. She was learning to think.

"But it's as if they were all things in a game," she said once, dismayed.

"They are," he said. "The only difference is that if we move them they'll go where they should. If they blunder into moving themselves, or the wrong hands push them, they'll go wrong."

And at his fervor, as always, she was excited, and stimulated to go on.

The Other Side
Being human, the obvious liking of the various people she worked with pleased her, in spite of Lewis' admonitions. He had told her to make friends, win good will. Naturally, she gave it back. And more and more she was enthralled by Lewis' side of her work; analysis and methods of handling personal relationships, personal behavior, actions.

And so she could not understand it when she began to feel, vaguely at first, and presently too clearly to doubt, a slackening of good will among those around her. But one day, down in the lunchroom, she understood.

She was talking to Rose Puccini one of the girls in the publication department, questioning her with honest interest. The girl, a black-eyed heavy-jawed little creature turned on her furiously.

"I'm sick of your prying," she cried. "Find out for yourself. And tell Saint Lewis I said so, if you like."

Eileen said, after a minute of silence, "Just what do you mean?"

One of the others at the table tried to hush Rose, but she glared and went defiantly on. "I mean you're in with Delevan, that's what I mean! Smiling and smooth with everybody, and reporting everything. And Louise Marks hooped out of the accounting after—"

"Stop, Rose! Please." one of the other girls at the little table said. But Rose said, "I'm getting out anyway. I wish this hadn't happened!"

He had her suddenly in his arms, saying almost her face, "I'm glad you know. Darling, don't ever think what I know about you would make me love you less. That desperate bid of yours for Martin made me see what was in you. I've taken chances like that, too."

She pulled away from him. He let her go.

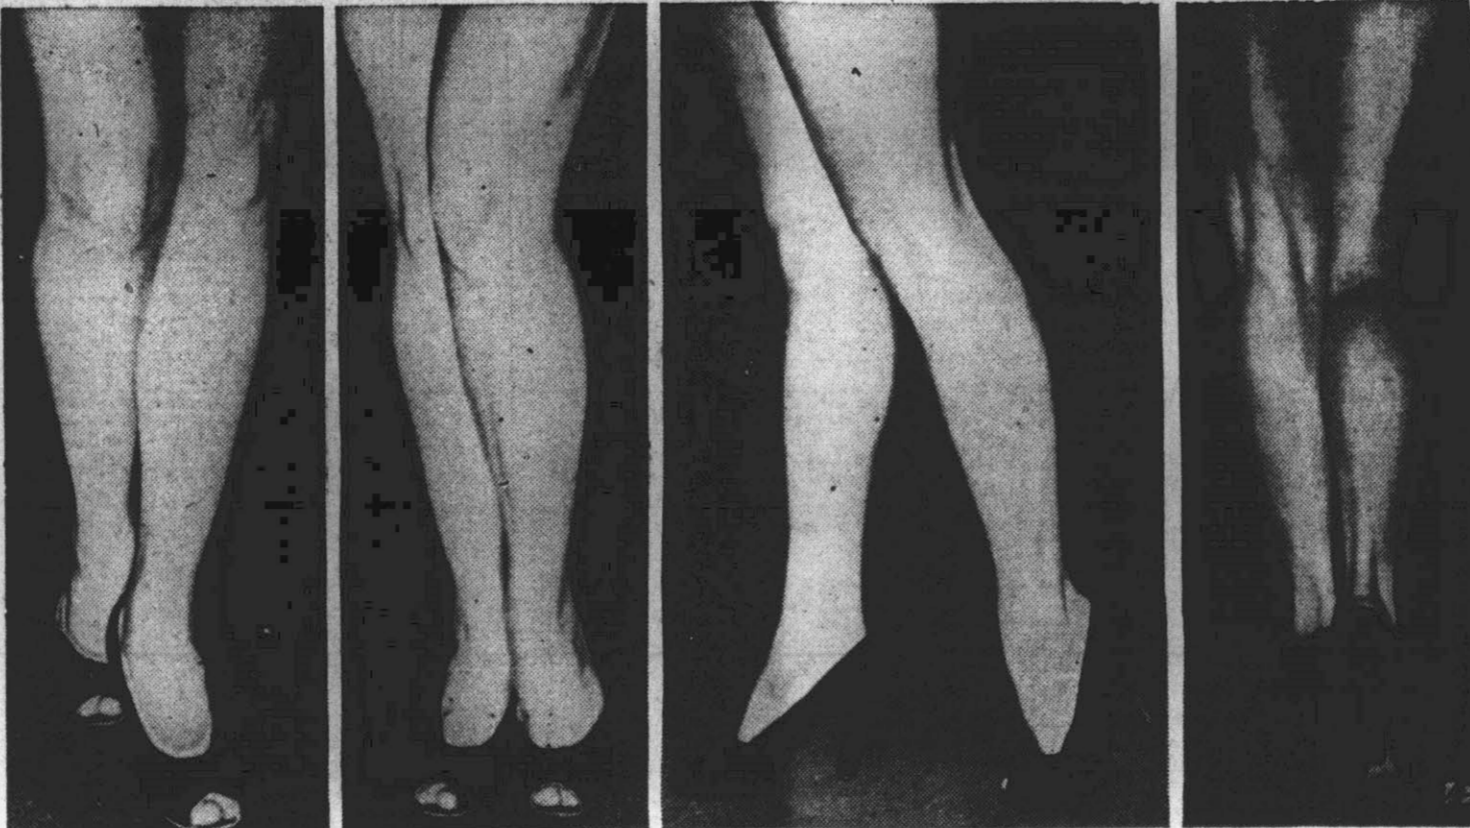

"We won't talk about it in hours till you're more wakened to the fact. Control's down." He smiled, though his breath was coming quickly.

Four Lessons In How To Walk Gracefully

1 In a correct walk the moving foot should encircle the other. Ankles should hug each other closely as shown in this picture.

2 The hugging process should extend to the knees and thighs. Top curve of calf of forward moving leg fits over its mate.

3 A good stride is forthright, with no hint of weakness. The body weight must be well forward, but not so as to give the least suggestion of stiffness. When in doubt about length of steps, make them shorter.

4 Rear view of a stride should be attractive. The perfect walk reveals a minimum of light between the knees and ankles.

ted her hand, clenched on the edge of his desk.

"I suppose it was to be expected Eileen," he said. "I hadn't realized that I was behaving differently with you than with anyone else I've ever trained."

"What do you mean?" She seemed always to be saying that.

He said, still with that down-bent smile, "Things are never too easy for any ordinary attractive man who works with a lot of young women. They haven't been for me. I've had to antagonize, sometimes. And now—there's a Spanish proverb to the effect that 'love and a cough cannot be hidden.'"

She stared at him. His warm, sudden smile flashed. "It's jealousy," he said. "Don't you see?"

Eileen said, "What?" again, staring at him.

Lewis leaned closer. He said, "I believe now I began the minute you walked in among the crowd at Martin Dane's apartment, a little scared, courageous outsider going through with it anyway."

The man's magnetism was like a physical atmosphere. He said his hands holding hers. "You and I together can go far—we belong. You know that."

Eileen tried to shake herself free of his spell. She said, "Oh, Lewis I wish this hadn't happened!"

He had her suddenly in his arms, saying almost her face, "I'm glad you know. Darling, don't ever think what I know about you would make me love you less. That desperate bid of yours for Martin made me see what was in you. I've taken chances like that, too."

One For Ripley

New York, May 14.—Speaking of coincidences, here's one for Ripley:

Ronald, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe S. Drapkin, 561 N. Lindley avenue, Philadelphia, shares a birthdate with Alexander, the "Baby Dumpling" of the famous newspaper, radio and movie family, the Dagwood Bumsteads, of which the Drapkin family are devoted fans.

And a new baby, a daughter, arrived at the Drapkin home the same day a new daughter joined the Bumstead family.

Mr. Drapkin, reporting the coincidence to Chic Young, creator of "Blondie," expressed the hope that Blondie's baby would be named Elaine Sandra, thus extending the coincidence, for that is what the new Miss Drapkin was tagged. His was one of close to 400,000 suggestions made to Young after the artist asked newspaper readers to help name the new Bumstead baby. The winning name is to be announced in two or three weeks.

HOUSEWIVES HINTS TO

Are you on the lookout for something new and smart for the main part of your buffet supper menu? This will make a big hit. Alternate thin slices of smoked turkey and savory baked ham on a large platter. Surround with stuffed eggs, anchovies and mayonnaise and garnish with crescents.

Cocoanut waffles add appetite appeal as dessert for luncheon or supper.

A leader in the low-priced field. Ordinarily a first-quality General Tire would sell at a much higher figure than has been set on this tire.

per. Make up waffle batter, pour into hot iron and sprinkle with cocoanut. Bake as usual and serve hot with hard or orange sauce or maple syrup.

Ash trays need frequent cleanings. Soak in hot soapy water, wipe dry. If there are any stubborn stains, remove them by lightly scrubbing with steel wool or a stiff brush dipped in hot sudsy water.

Try this new topper for fresh gingerbread. Mix 1-3 cup crushed peppermint stick candy into half a cup of whipped cream and spread roughly over the top of gingerbread.

To help prevent cut bananas from darkening, sprinkle the slices with French dressing and store in refrigerator until time to use.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

PREPARE THE HEART NOW

We should use our good hours to reinforce our purpose and power in such way that we may stand fast in hours of temptation and temptation. If we do not begin to fight evil until we confront it, we are like those nations which now find themselves harried because they did not make sufficient preparation in peace-time.

"We cannot kindle when we will the fire which in the heart resides. The spirit bloweth and is still. In mystery our souls abide; But tasks, in hours of insight will'd May be through hours of gloom fulfill'd."

There is a remarkable difference in people in the way they endure trouble. Some people seem to be ready for almost anything that happens to them; others seem never to be prepared. The difference is not so much a difference in endurance as it is a difference in preparation. Those who endure well are the ones who have prepared well; those who collapse before every calamity do so because they failed to use the hours of insight and composure to arm themselves against the day when their world would be in chaos.

WE NOMINATE HERR LEWIS

We nominate John L. Lewis for appointment by Hitler to fill the vacancy created in the Nazi regime by the flight to England of Rudolf Hess. Judging by Lewis' actions in this country in the way of creating strikes to delay our defense and aid-to-Britain programs he has rendered enough service to Hitler to rate officially becoming one of the higher-ups in Nazidom. On the other hand, we believe our country could well afford to spare Herr Lewis and some of his co-agitators and be much better off for the sparing.

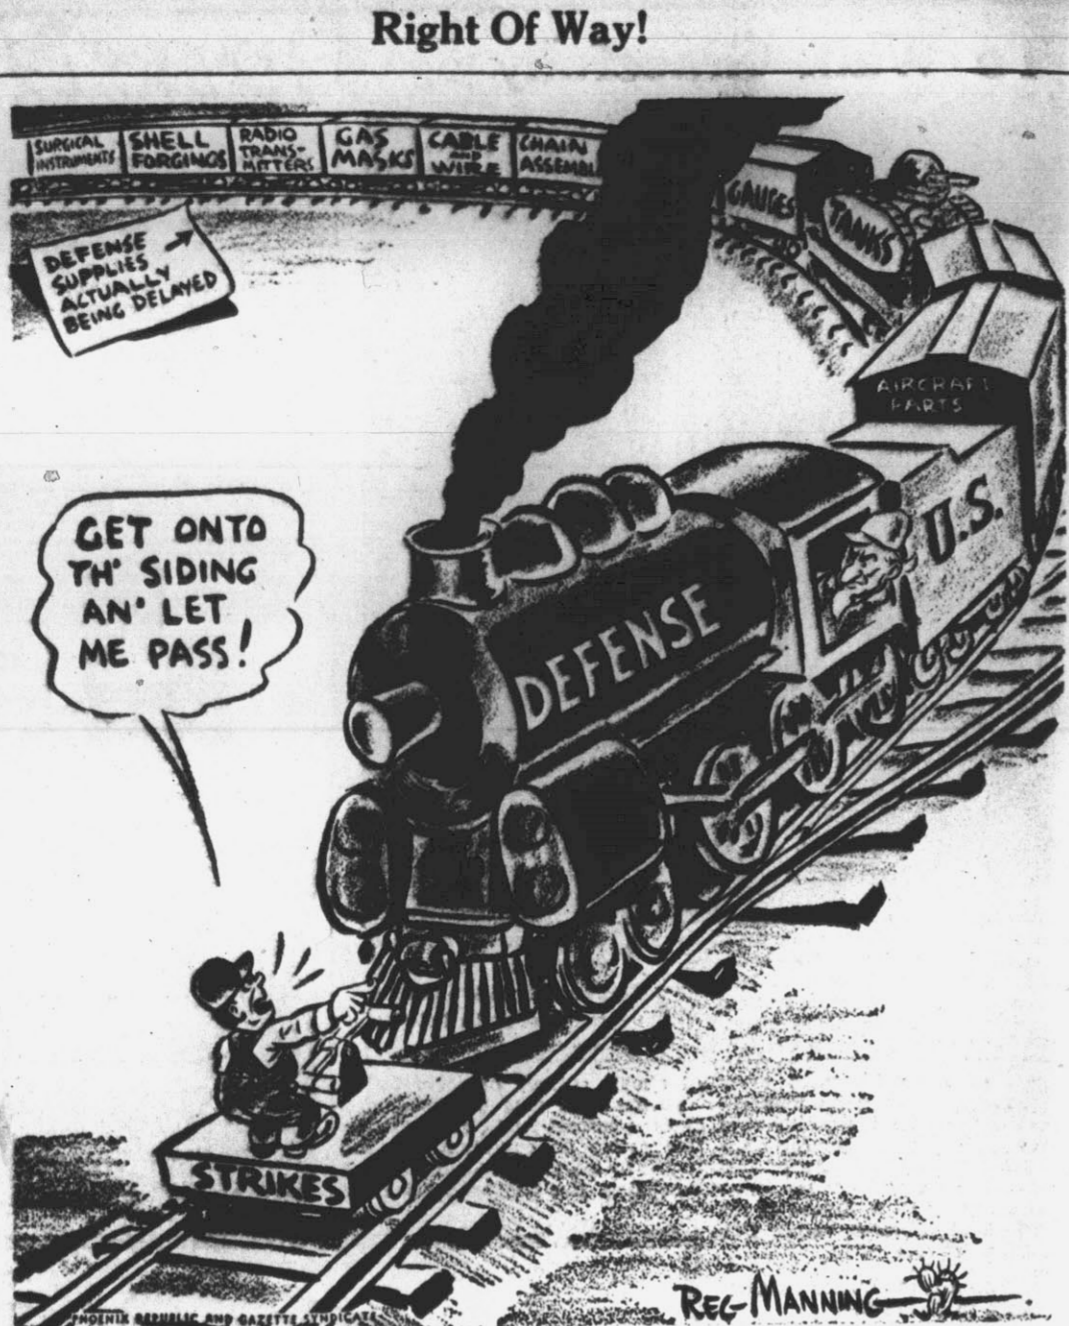

THE GRAVEST DANGER

(Industrial News Review)
Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Harry Scherman, the author of "The Promises Men Live By," discusses the danger of inflation. He points out that individuals who believe they can save themselves from loss if inflation comes, or even profit by it, are simply deluding themselves. There is, he says, but one way to beat inflation—and that is to avert it. He then makes a number of suggestions for specific action.

First, all of us, to the limit of our ability, must lend to the Federal government, in order to keep our present huge money supply from dangerously rising.

Next, we can insist that the government demonstrate that it will never repudiate this debt by further writing up the value of gold. It can only demonstrate that fully by again restoring gold to circulation.

We must demand of Con-and literature—but the problem is simplified when your group, club, or whatever, can buy its own books on a chip-in basis. If your own librarian can't supply the list, write the American Library Association for its Latin-American edition of "The Booklist" (Vol. 37, No. 3).

The matter of getting speakers still is up in the air so far as any governmental agency is concerned. Speakers—good speakers—cost money and this is Mr. Rockefeller's and Miss Winslow's No. 1 headache. However, it is one that may be cured at any moment and if you have a large enough organization to pay a little fee and traveling expenses, either Miss Winslow (Room 7110, Commerce Department, Washington, D. C.) or the Pan-American union, probably can point the way for you.

The Field Is Yours
After that, says Miss Winslow who knows all about these things the field is yours. Does your neighborhood grocer or downtown department store carry South American goods (not in competition with American goods)? If not, why not? Do the schools in your vicinity teach Spanish and a history of America below the border? Do they have exhibits of Latin-American products? Can you and your children describe all of the flags of the Latin-American republics as quickly as any second grader south of the Rio Grande might describe the Stars and Stripes? Do you know one of the 20 national anthems that are sung by nations to the south of us in this hemisphere?

If you have negative answers to all of these questions, the chances are you, as an individual, can do only so much to change the picture—but you, as an organization (if you are interested), can do a whole lot. You can get booklets from the American Library Association; music, records, motion pictures pamphlets from the Pan-American union; Latin-American speakers from your state university or nearby colleges; cooperation from local newspapers and radio stations; and from Miss Winslow, an answer to almost anything else in the world that has to do with understanding Latin-America.

Short Shots
Raleigh, May 14.—Marshall Kurfees is a candidate on the Republican ticket for Congress in the Fifth district; but he insists he is still a Democrat and avers that his party sponsors in the special election are not under any misapprehension about his status.

"I told them I'd take the nomination if they wanted me to, but that I am a Democrat, that I expect to remain a Democrat, and that I'll make the race as a Democrat," he told your reporter while in Raleigh Tuesday.

He explains that he is running because of action by the district congressional committee which ignored the recommendation of Governor primary he held. The committee nominated Folger at a short session last week.

"The people of the district are up in arms about it," Kurfees (commonly known as Raskob) said.

Optimistically he proclaimed: "I'll carry Forsyth by the biggest majority ever given a candidate there."

In view of the fact that he's run for almost every conceivable office and has never yet been nominated for anything, Kurfees ought not to be very much surprised when he finds, as he will, that the people who are "up in arms" still vote the Democratic ticket with monotonous regularity.

Those who have kept up with editorial policies in North Carolina for any length of time are growing a little confused in their morning papers. The Charlotte Observer, bitterest critic of President Roosevelt and his New Deal, is now FDR's most strident champion in North Carolina, while the once ardent New Deal sheet, the local News and Observer, has veered its editorial course until it now approaches feeble support of Nazism and appeasement.

"Red" Powell, recently named public relations man for the State Highway and Public Works Commission jokingly told reporters he met on the street Tuesday as they came from the commission's offices: "Sorry I missed you, boys, but I was over talking to another press agent, getting a little information on how it's done."

"You can't get away with that with us, Red," replied a reporter, "any man who has been press agent for Cyclone Mack doesn't need any pointers from anybody."

Red, it seems, once fronted for the well-known evangelist of that name.

Clyde C. Carter, supervisor, and George C. Franklin, assistant supervisor of the North Carolina Municipal League-WPA police records projects, report that work has been completed in five cities, is underway in seven others and will soon begin in thirteen others where budget estimates and co-sponsors' agreements have been approved.

Work will begin soon in Tarboro, Greenville, Fayetteville, Elizabeth City, Farmville, Rocky Mount, Salisbury and Asheville; and is under way in Statesville, Reidsville, Charlotte, Kinston, Mount Airy, Raleigh, Concord, Lenoir, Lexington, Durham, Burlington and Forest City. Units completed are Fayetteville, Washington, Roanoke Rapids, Wilmington and Greensboro.

The Saga Of Film Fan Sage
Cleveland.—(AP)—In the days when Cleveland's first honest-to-goodness cinema palace consisted of a row of kitchen chairs in a darkened shop, William de Loove was a regular customer. As the city's theaters increased, he followed a pat system in order to see every show. On Monday and Tuesday he saw three shows a night and again on Thursday and Friday when the bills changed.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust executed by H. W. Martin and wife Susie S. Martin, to W. H. Woolard, Trustee, on the 18th day of July, 1936, and recorded in Book O-22, page 152 of the Pitt County Registry; and default in the payments as provided in said deed of trust having been made, and at the request of the owner and holder of the notes secured in said deed of trust, the undersigned will on Monday, the 2nd day of June, 1941 at 12 o'clock, noon before the Court House door in Greenville, N. C., expose to public sale the following described land: That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being situated in the County of Pitt and State of North Carolina, and on the north side of Tar River, and beginning at a corner of the public road leading from Packwood and gap, one of the John Boyd corners of the house tract of land; thence running N. 68 E. 16 poles to the said line to the center of two dogwoods and pine, said Boyd's corner; thence South 76 poles to the public road leading from Packwood to Greenville, to a stake; thence S. 47 W. 34 poles; thence S. 65 W. 38 poles; thence N. 88 W. 40 poles to a persimmon tree on said road near a school house; thence N. 2 E. 44 poles to an old gap post in the field, John Boyd's corner; thence N. 41 E. 32-4 poles to an elm in Boyd's corner; thence North 6 poles to a stake in the edge of the field; thence with the old deed line to the beginning and containing 17 1/2 acres, more or less. This is a part of the land allotted as C. E. Fleming's part of the late T. A. Fleming lands. For a more definite description see deed of record in Pitt County Registry in Book F-21, at page 31.

Sale made to satisfy said deed of trust.

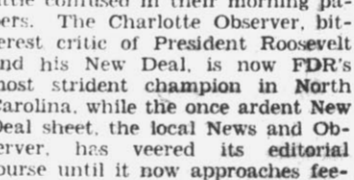

This 29th day of April, 1941.

Flight Of Rudolf Hess Puzzles World

Rudolf Hess, wearing flying goggles, struck this pose in Germany after taking part in a German air race. His melodrama and mysterious flight to Scotland mystified not only Britons but the rest of the world as well.

Those who have kept up with editorial policies in North Carolina for any length of time are growing a little confused in their morning papers. The Charlotte Observer, bitterest critic of President Roosevelt and his New Deal, is now FDR's most strident champion in North Carolina, while the once ardent New Deal sheet, the local News and Observer, has veered its editorial course until it now approaches feeble support of Nazism and appeasement.

"Red" Powell, recently named public relations man for the State Highway and Public Works Commission jokingly told reporters he met on the street Tuesday as they came from the commission's offices: "Sorry I missed you, boys, but I was over talking to another press agent, getting a little information on how it's done."

"You can't get away with that with us, Red," replied a reporter, "any man who has been press agent for Cyclone Mack doesn't need any pointers from anybody."

Red, it seems, once fronted for the well-known evangelist of that name.

Clyde C. Carter, supervisor, and George C. Franklin, assistant supervisor of the North Carolina Municipal League-WPA police records projects, report that work has been completed in five cities, is underway in seven others and will soon begin in thirteen others where budget estimates and co-sponsors' agreements have been approved.

Work will begin soon in Tarboro, Greenville, Fayetteville, Elizabeth City, Farmville, Rocky Mount, Salisbury and Asheville; and is under way in Statesville, Reidsville, Charlotte, Kinston, Mount Airy, Raleigh, Concord, Lenoir, Lexington, Durham, Burlington and Forest City. Units completed are Fayetteville, Washington, Roanoke Rapids, Wilmington and Greensboro.

FREE PRIVATE PRE-VIEW OF YOUR SUMMER CAR TRIP
TODAY simply gather up your fondest wishes and ideas for your Summer tour. Now go to your Conoco Mileage Merchant nearby—no obligation. And in a few days he will present to you—FREE!—your custom-built Conoco Touraide.
It's really a Private Edition travel book, to your own specifications. After the trip it becomes your Memory Book, but now in advance it pictures and describes points of interest on your route—or near it! You can line up every point to cover or skip, from your Touraide precision maps—patented—no folding or fussing. Routes you request, plus side-trips and options, are all marked for you. And complete Touraide information about accommodations and play spots lets you figure the best use of every dollar.
Your Free Touraide does not obligate you to buy one drop of Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline and Conoco Germ Processed oil. Even the good will generated by Conoco Touraides couldn't bring Your Mileage Merchant as many customers as he gets from the demand for maximum mileage. And that takes full-firing, hill-powered, seasonally adjusted Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline, used in an engine that's OIL-PLATED.
OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine surfaces by the action of Germ Processed oil—patented. OIL-PLATING can't all quickly drain down "between times." Small chance, then, of ruinous "dry starts," or "dry spots" on swift-flying parts. That keeps engine parts close-fitting... helps keep up the oil-level! OIL-PLATING is as advanced in its way as your Conoco Touraide—FREE. Apply today at your nearest Conoco station.

(Second of two articles on "How to be a Good Neighbor" in Washington.—An individual beating his way through the wilderness might have a pretty tough time trying to establish an intellectual and cultural contact with Latin-America. A medium-size large organization, concentrating its efforts in this direction, will have no trouble at all.
In the first place, there is Nelson A. Rockefeller's "Office for Coordination of Commercial and Cultural Relations Between the American Republics." In the second place there is Miss Mary Winslow, advisor for civic projects in that department. Then there is the Pan American Union (Washington, D. C.); the Foreign Policy Association (New York City); the American Library Association (520 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.)—and so many other groups working on this subject that not a half of them could be listed in the space allowed here.
Let's suppose that you are more than just an individual interested in Latin-America, secretary or program committee chairman a club or civic organization that is going all out for understanding Latin-America.

Bill Teller Displays Rare Form To Defeat New Bern

BLANKS BEARS AT LOCAL PARK

Richmond Hurler Also Leading Hitter Of Game

Bill Teller, playing his second season with the Greens, held Doc Smith's New Bern Bears under control throughout the route last night as the Greens racked up a 7-0 victory.

Teller allowed only six scattered hits and failed to walk a single man. He also was the local's leading batter, getting two hits, drawing a walk and striking out in his four trips to the plate. He drove in two runs — more than enough to win his own game.

The Richmond player got into trouble several times — mostly through no fault of his own — but with the comparatively small crowd who braved the cold pulling for a shutout, he came through to retire the side with men on bases more than one occasion.

Centerfielder Benny Crowe saved the shutout in the ninth inning when he raced back to snag a tough one. He rolled over backwards but held on to the ball to draw individual fielding honors for the game.

The locals' second base combination of Finrock at second and Jenkins at short looked good last night and reminded fans of the old Christopher-Alen combination.

The Greens scored two runs in each of the first three innings last night, the first run of the game being walked in and the second Greenville man coming home on a balk.

New Bern used two pitchers, both of whom were wild. Biggie yielded to Hamilton in the second and the first two men to face the new hurler drew walks.

Les McGarity proved the offensive star of the game, garnering a 340-foot homer in the seventh — the first homer by a local player this year.

The only New Bern player to reach Teller for more than one safety was Lyle Thompson, first baseman, who got four for four to mark up a perfect night.

Afternoon Game

Thursday's game with Goldsboro at Guy Smith park will be played at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the recent cool nights having influenced local officials to switch to the afternoon.

The series—the first between Goldsboro and Greenville, opens there tonight.

It was originally planned to play some day games during the current season and tomorrow's tilt will be the first day game, other than on Sunday, played here since the season opened.

Actress

Irene Mitcham, senior at East Carolina Teachers College from Goldsboro, will play Ellen Dean in Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights" being presented Friday and Saturday nights, May 16 and 17 in Austin Auditorium at 8:30.

Having played in various high school productions, Irene has become an outstanding dramatics worker on the campus. She had a role in a one-act play, "For The Love Of Pete," last year. Her performance as Senora Morena in "Ramona," this year's senior play won for her favorable criticism from all those who saw the production.

A role in "Women's Ward" was among her activities of last year. "Wuthering Heights" is a presentation of the Chi Pi Players.

Girl Scout Activities In Greenville

All Girl Scouts who plan to go on the Gypsy Trip to Atlantic Beach may obtain their physical examination which it is necessary for each girl to have, before going on the trip, from the Health Nurse at the County Health office, immediately after school Thursday, May 15. Each child must present a certificate to the Girl Scout office stating that she is free from any contagious disease before she will be permitted to go on the Gypsy Trip, May 17th and 18th.

A signed certificate from a doctor will, of course, meet the necessary requirement.

It is through the cooperation of Dr. N. T. Ennett, County Health officer, that the service of the County Health Nurse has been obtained for the Girl Scouts.

Praises Results Of Clean-Up Drive Here

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, has issued the following statement complimenting the Greenville Junior Woman's club on its recent clean-up campaign:

"As Pitt county health officer I wish to express my appreciation to the Greenville Junior Woman's club for the very efficient manner in which they put on the clean up campaign. This general city house cleaning, if maintained throughout the year will do much to prevent disease in Greenville.

"And I am delighted to note that Mrs. D. W. Mosier, president of the Junior Woman's club, plans a monthly check up on city sanitation throughout the year.

"Since good health and good sanitation are so closely related I feel that the health department and all of the citizens of Greenville owe the Junior Woman's club a debt of gratitude."

Hot Fight In Making For National Committee Post

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 14.—Early indications that there will be no contest for the national committee post vacated by the death of Lon Folger are coming in for overhauling as all the ingredients needed to make up a rousing battle for the post are coming to light.

Governor J. Melville Broughton's statement to news men Tuesday strengthened belief that he will actively drive for the selection of Clyde R. Hoey, his immediate predecessor in the Governor's chair. There wasn't the slightest sign that he has weakened a bit in the face of announcement from Winston-Salem that R. J. Reynolds, Jr., treasurer of the Democratic national committee, will let his friends enter his name for consideration by the state committee. Previously there had been some doubt that the governor would join active battle.

Confirming the indications of strong gubernatorial support for Hoey were two facts: the Governor's secretary Tom Banks was closely scanning a list of the state committee, while Oscar Pitts, the Governor's political chief of staff, was actively urging Broughton supporters to secure committee proxies for use at the meeting on May 23.

Roosevelt partisans who have put Reynolds into the race are still professing to believe that Hoey will quit rather than go to the mat for a knock-down drag-out fight; but that probably is wishful thinking. Meanwhile they are preparing to wage an active fight, even if Hoey stays in.

Innocent bystanders foresee a victory for Hoey if it comes to a battle royal. With gubernatorial support, the natural conservatism of the state committee will win over the FDR argument. The president himself is unbeatable in North Carolina, but his name can't carry anybody else to victory.

MANY INFERIOR CHICKENS SOLD

Farmers Warned To Beware Of Peddlers In State

Raleigh, May 14.—Farmers are warned by C. F. Parrish, Extension poultryman of N. C. State College to beware of peddlers who are selling inferior and diseased baby chicks in Eastern North Carolina. Parrish said he has had several reports of such activities.

H. E. Alphin, farm agent of the Extension Service in Nash county, wrote Parrish today. "Many inferior and diseased baby chicks in Nash county by peddlers at a very low price to the detriment of farmers. Most of the poor grade, mixed chicks are being brought in from other states. Some of the salesmen are claiming the chicks to be blood-tested, despite the fact that the mortality is above 50 per cent in the first week or ten days.

"Several farmers purchased some of the chicks hoping to get layers. Later they found they were all cockerels. They have asked, in indignation, that other farmers of Eastern Carolina be warned against the purchase of 'bargain chicks.'"

Parrish emphasized that scrub chicks are a liability at any price. Scrub chicks from any hatchery, inside or outside the state, are the most expensive chickens that can be purchased in the long run. They eat up feed which should be consumed by good chickens, and then they die or fail to develop into productive birds.

"In this period of national defense emergency, when farmers are being called upon to increase egg production by at least six per cent it almost might be termed sabotage for peddlers to sell farmers scrub cockerels and claim them to be blood-tested pullets," the Extension specialist declared.

Technically, Katharine Cornell is right when she says she does not like to be called an actress. As the boss of her own productions, she prefers to be known as an actor-manager. This is another of those grammatical instances where the masculine always embraces the feminine.

Two proud fathers of a kind are Ernest Truax and Sinclair Lewis. Their sons are both in the army. They wanted Mrs. Emyln Williams to accept another of those "best play" awards, but she was already on her way to join her husband by clipper in England. Williams is the author of "The Corn Is Green," but at the moment he is helping Mr. Churchill fight a war. The two Williams children remain on Robert Montgomery's farm at Brewster, N. Y.

As for Mr. Montgomery himself the news is that he will come to New York for sure in the fall and make a belated appearance on a Broadway stage. The drama probably will be produced and directed by Elliott Nugent. It isn't generally known, but Montgomery had a stake in Nugent's successful "The Male Animal" last season.
