BRITISH ACKNOWLEDGE NAZI SUCCESSES IN CRETE

Open Hostilities Likely Between France And Britain

LONDON WARNS VICHY REGIME

Declares That If France Continues Her Policy of Collaboration British Forces Will Strike Alike In Occupied and Unoccupied Territory Of Ally of Less Than A Year Ago

London, May 22.—(AP) Britain warned the Vichy government today that if France pursued her "declared policy of collaboration" with Germany, British forces "will strike the enemy wherever he may be found" without "any distinction between occupied and unoccupied territory."

In advising the House of Commons of possible war action against any part of the expansive French empire, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said the Vichy government had "embarked on a course which must place the resources and territories of France increasingly at the disposal of Germany."

The British government is confident, Eden said, that the French people themselves look upon this policy as "incompatible" with honor.

Three signs pointed to the possible imminence of open hostilities between the allies of less than one year ago.

1. Forces of General Charles De Gaulle, still fighting on the British side, were reported unofficially to have crossed from British-mandated Palestine into French-mandated Syria, where the Germans already have established a foothold.

2. Reports to Vichy from German-occupied Paris said the French had ordered preparations for defense of the Caribbean island of Martinique against American attack.

3. British naval patrols in the Atlantic have intercepted the French tanker Shehrazade with a cargo of United States oil for French North Africa, it was announced officially, because of the actions of the Vich government.

11th Hour Reprieve Is Granted Negro

Raleigh, May 22.—(AP)—An eleventh hour commutation today spared the life of Cornelius Graham, Columbus county Negro, who was slated to die in the gas chamber tomorrow for the murder of Jenkins Robinson last November 9.

Raleigh, May 22.—(AP)—Two Columbus county Negroes, both 21 years old, will be executed at central prison here tomorrow morning unless executive clemency is extended by Governor Broughton.

They are James Shaw, convicted of murdering James Freeman last January 21, and Cornelius Graham convicted of murdering Jenkins K Robinson last November 9.

Both were sentenced in the January-February term of Superior court in Columbus county, and both homicides allegedly grew out of fights.

Governor Broughton yesterday granted a 90-day reprieve to Tom Melvin, Goldsboro Negro convicted of murdering Irby Holmes, Melvin who was also scheduled to die tomorrow, was given the stay in order that the State might investigate the killing of his son-in-law Frederick McGee, which occurred five or six weeks ago.

Drs. Haar and Watson Honored By Society

Two Greenville physicians were honored at the annual meeting of the State Pediatric Society held in Pinehurst this week in conjunction with the annual convention of the State Medical Society.

Dr. T. M. Watson was named president of the state organization succeeding Dr. Marion Keith of Greensboro, and Dr. F. B. Haar was chosen secretary-treasurer, succeeding Dr. G. W. Kutscher of Asheville.

The two local doctors are affiliated here as baby specialists.

French Ship Intercepted London, May 22.—(AP)—British naval patrols have intercepted the 13,467-ton French tanker Shehrazade en route to French North Africa with an oil cargo from the United States. It was made known today, and it was understood this was done with the full consent of Washington. The ship was in the Atlantic bound for Casablanca, French Morocco.

French Island Defense Is Ordered To Prepare For An American Attack

Kiwanis Speaker

Sherwood Brockwell, State Fire Marshal, will be the principal speaker at this week's meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club, to be held in the Kiwanis club building tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

BOMBS LOOSED ON HELGOLAND

German Island Reported Badly Damaged By RAF

London, May 22.—British bombers which attacked the naval base docks and center of the town at Helgoland left that German island stronghold in the North sea shrouded in a "swirl of dust and smoke lit here and there by flames," the Air Ministry news service said today.

A football game was in progress when the bombers swooped over the base yesterday, the report added, but the game quickly broke up and anti-aircraft batteries went into furious action while the bombers swept over at a height of only 40 or 50 feet.

Bombs from one plane made a direct hit on an anti-aircraft battery of four guns, it was said.

Another New Turn In Hess Mystery

London, May 22.—(AP)—Parliament was told today that the Duke of Hamilton, for whom Rudolf Hess asked when he parachuted onto a Scottish farm May 10, never met the lieutenant-fuehrer before confronting him as a prisoner of war.

This statement further heightened the mystery of Hess' coming. One of the German versions of the affair was that Hess hoped to make contact with Hamilton to further a hallucinatory peace plan.

Civil Court Docket Completed For Week

Cases set for trial during this week's civil session of Superior court were disposed of or continued by today and the two-week's session was recessed until Monday morning.

Judge Leo Carr is presiding over the session, the last of the Spring term for Pitt county. The Fall term will open in August.

After having been in recess on Tuesday, yesterday was spent in hearing the case of E. P. Blanchard et al vs. Todd Maxwell in which the plaintiff was suing for approximately $300 property damage. The jury, however, ruled that the plaintiff was not due any compensation.

U.S. ADMIRAL DECLARES WAR IS BEING LOST

Says U. S. Faces Defeat Unless Something Done

Shanghai, May 22.—(AP) Rear Admiral William Glassford, commander of the United States Yangtze naval patrol, declared tonight that the Battle of the Atlantic "at this moment is being lost by the Allies."

"We are not only facing inevitable defeat of England and collapse of the British empire, but also defeat of the United States unless something is done," he added.

Glassford told an audience of Chinese and American business men here that something must be done "to stop the sinking of Allied ships in the Atlantic, which are going in faster than they can be replaced."

"Once again," he declared, "it is the United States' job to save England. This means ships."

"Once again we are asked to build a colossal merchant marine to carry war supplies to England. We shall do it. But if it is not evident soon, this will not be enough. These ships must get safely across the Atlantic."

Referring to the possibility of convoys, the admiral said "this is the only real and deadly effective solution, but just how we are to insure safe passage of the Atlantic remains to be seen."

NAVY SEEKING TO END STRIKE

Funeral Held For Mrs. Mary Moore

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary M. Moore who died at her home near Stokes Wednesday at noon following an illness of three weeks, were conducted from the home of Ira Moore this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by the Rev. Walter Nobles of Winterville. Interment followed in the family cemetery.

Mrs. Moore, widow of G. A. Moore was born in Pitt county February 17, 1880, daughter of the late David and Addie Moore, and was a life-long resident of the community in which she died.

Surviving are three sons, Gilbert A. and Samuel Moore of the home and D. L. Moore of Falkland.

Army Calling For Negro Volunteers

Wilson, May 22.—All Negro volunteers who wish to enlist in Uncle Sam's Army can do so now without delay.

This was announced by Sergeant C. C. Floyd of the United States Army recruiting station located in Wilson.

Reports Of Possible Attack By U. S. On Martinique Island Given Publicity In German - Occupied France; Defense Would Be Centered Around Fortress Holding Gold Reserves Of Bank Of France

Vichy, May 22.—(AP)—Reports given publicity in German-occupied Paris said today that defense forces in the French Caribbean island of Martinique had received orders to prepare for an American attack.

The newspaper Le Matin, published in Paris, said yesterday that defense of Martinique would be centered around the fortress holding gold reserves of the Bank of France and that its defenders would blow up the stronghold as a last resort.

"Martinique defense works are being strengthened," the newspaper said.

Advices were said to have reached Paris from the island capital, Fort de France, quoting the French naval command in the Caribbean as declaring that the aircraft carrier Bearn and the cruiser Emile Bertin would remain in the Antilles.

Any movements of these ships simply are maneuvers, the commanding admiral was reported to have said, and no arrangements have been made for them to leave.

"Both warships recently have engaged in maneuvers, ostensibly to keep up the morale of the crews."

The Paris press said British warships were maintaining a patrol of Martinique.

Hits On Cruisers Claimed By Nazis

New York, May 22.—(AP)—The German radio broadcast today that Stuka dive-bombers had sunk a British cruiser off Crete and had severely damaged two others.

Authorized sources in Berlin, however, listed only one cruiser damaged in addition to the one said to have been sunk and located the scene of the attack merely as the eastern Mediterranean.

This was in addition to the attack yesterday, in which today's Nazi high command communique said a British battleship, six cruisers and a destroyer were hit by air bombs in the Mediterranean.

RAF STRIKES IN NORTH AFRICA

Most Intensive Effort Of War To Date Carried Out

With British Desert Forces in North Africa, May 22.—(AP)—The Royal Air Force has unleashed its most intensive effort of the war so far against German concentrations and transport columns in Libya.

In the past 30 hours, the British say, eight German planes have been destroyed—five on the ground and three in the air—and an ammunition dump and a gasoline dump have been exploded.

As flight after flight of British bombers showered missiles through the day and night, RAF fighter planes skimmed over the roads and desert trails sending thousands of incendiary bullets into Axis vehicles.

German aviation in the desert is described by the British as remaining strangely inactive. Among steps to counter the British air offensive, however, the Nazis are said to have stationed tanks at regular intervals along the roads and trails to shoot at low-flying, strafing British planes.

The main target of British air attacks has been a concentration in the Capuzzo-Bardia area, just across the Libyan frontier from Egypt, which is said to be made up of about 2,000 vehicles.

The only land action of the past 30 hours was some ineffectual artillery fire from German batteries.

Middle East Unit Tightening Lines

Cairo, May 22.—(AP)—The capture of 5,000 more Italian troops with 42 guns and 19 tanks in southern Ethiopia, where north and south British forces were reported drawing the strings of a net around Fascist divisions, was announced by the British Middle East command today.

In addition, 300 more Italians were reported captured in the Gondar area of northern Ethiopia.

The British said they attacked the main defenses in southern Ethiopia west of Sciasciamanna and repulsed an Italian counter attack.

The Italians lost 100 dead and 600 prisoners in the action, a communique said.

Farther south, a complete rear guard was reported overwhelmed with the capture of a brigade headquarters and three colonial battalions. Prisoners numbered 4,400 in this area.

Nazi Greek Bases Victim Of Attacks

Cairo, May 22.—(AP)—Renewed heavy British air raids on Greek airdromes from which the Germans are basing their attack on Crete were reported by a British Middle East air communique today.

ZAMZAM SURVIVORS Still Being Held

Berlin, May 22.—(AP)—Not all the 140 American survivors of the S. S. Zamzam will be treated alike, authorized quarters said today, and it is likely that some will be held longer than others.

"Certainly nurses and children which the German navy took from the vessel are of less importance from the military point of view than men of the ambulance corps who were about to enter service against Germany," it was said.

BRITISH CRAFT IS WITHDRAWN

London, May 22.—(AP)—British fighting planes on Crete were withdrawn after the German parachute started and air-borne troop attack started because of "the pronounced disadvantage under which our fighters were operating," it was authoritatively disclosed today.

"To do otherwise would have been a waste of the air forces involved," said a statement which warned against considering an invasion of Crete analogous to what Britain might expect.

The distance of Crete from our airdromes in Egypt is such as to preclude any possibility of strong air support by the RAF from our bases there," the statement said.

The defense operation at Crete it said, "must be regarded as one in which our side, naval and land forces primarily are employed. Offensive air operations are, however, being carried out by our bomber units in Egypt against airdromes from which the enemy are operating in their attacks on Crete."

Dr. Ennett To Head Public Health Group

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, was named president of the North Carolina Public Health Association, held in Pinehurst this week in connection with the annual convention of the North Carolina Medical Society.

The association is composed of public health officers throughout the state.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS MAPPED

Legion Seeks Names Of All Deceased Veterans

Pitt County Post No. 39, American Legion, is attempting to compile a list of World War veterans who have died and any person knowing of the burial place of any ex-serviceman not included in the following list is urged to advise W. T. Kizer, adjutant of the local post.

The Pitt county post list does not include veterans in Farmville township since a post is organized at Farmville.

The legion proposes to decorate the graves of all deceased veterans with flowers and flags on May 30 Memorial Day, and is anxious to have its list complete prior to that date. In order to do this, however it will have to have the cooperation of friends and relatives of deceased veterans.

The list of marked graves follows: Cherry Hill Cemetery—Wiley J. Brown, H. G. Johnson, David Johnson, Carl Jones, C. O'H. Laughinghouse, Joe Little, S. L. Ragsdale, Francis Skinner, W. B. Wilson, Jr.

Greenwood Cemetery—Sam T. Carson, J. Mat McGowan, Shep Morton, Marvin Rountree, Hubert Worthington, A. W. Fleischmann, Willis Fleming.

Reedy Branch Church—Charlie Barber, Ben Harris, Jasper B. Smith.

Winterville Cemetery—J. B. Carroll, Jr., L. A. Manning, Ballard Cross Roads—Royce Tucker.

Beaverdam—Hazzard Crawford, Vainwright Cemetery—Herman Vainwright.

Hancock Church—Tom Cox, Lottin, Littlefield—Jasper Cannon, House Station—Hassell House, Leans Section—Earl James.

Garris Evans Lumber Company—Joseph F. Tugwell, Stuka Cemetery—Pactolus Road—J. H. Anderson, Meekin Tucker Farm—Charlie Tucker, Marshal Evans Farm—Alfred Evans.

Henry J. Williams Place—Roscoe Laughinghouse, Hubert Evans, Marvin Smith Farm—Lionie Lester Smith.

Dress Rehearsal. Eudson. (AP)—Boy Scout, Bruce Wodden, 12, was to play the part of a patient and be carried around in a stretcher at the Boy Scout-orama. But before the performance he broke his arm, forcing the Scouts to get a substitute.

Fleet Halts Landings By Transports

German Air-Borne Invaders Gain Two Strong Footholds In Greek Island, One Only 15 Miles From Seat of Capital; London Reports, However, Sea-Borne Landing Attempts Smashed

By The Associated Press German aerial invaders, striking with increasing violence, gained two footholds on the Isle of Crete today, but the British reported officially that the British fleet has smashed attempts to land Nazi sea-borne troops on the island.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons in London that Nazi parachute troops were in possession of the town of Candia, in the middle of Crete.

British Middle East headquarters in Cairo coincidentally reported that the German "sky troops" had gained a temporary foothold in the Malmei sector, 15 miles south of Candia, the Crete capital, seat of the King George II's Greek government.

"The fighting is continuing with intensity," Churchill said. "The Germans are using large numbers of parachutists and these are increasing daily."

The prime minister said that, "although the situation is in hand, the Germans have gained some local successes at heavy cost."

He announced that the Germans began "very much larger attempts" at naval landings today and that a convoy of 30 German ships en route to Crete was sighted this morning "and presumably was attacked, although my information stopped at that point."

In the heightening three-day-old battle of Crete, the British said two German transports and a number of Greek boats headed for the British-defended island were sunk by British warships.

Challenges Power For Price-Fixing

Washington, May 22.—(AP)—The price fixing powers of Leon Henderson were openly challenged today by Chairman Smith (D-S.C.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

"I'm going to demand that this man Henderson come before our Senate committee and explain by what authority he fixed prices," said Smith, dean of the Senate and frequent critic of New Deal programs and policies.

President Roosevelt, in his executive order, designated Henderson, economist and member of the Securities Exchange Commission, as administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. Since then Henderson has fixed maximum prices for steel, coal during the recent strike, second-hand machine tools and other vital defense materials.

A White House conference yesterday between Mr. Roosevelt, Henderson and Wayne Coy, director of the Office of Emergency Management, was considered an indication that the administration was contemplating further active measures to control prices stimulated by heavy defense demands for materials.

CHICOD NEWS

Rev. W. A. Crow held his regular service last Sunday evening at eight o'clock, at which time the Bible school certificates were given out to the thirty-four children who attended. The service was interesting and very impressive.

The Home-coming day at Salem Church will be Sunday, June 1. Mrs. Sannie Tucker, Miss Elizabeth Edwards and Miss Ethel Tucker are preparing an interesting program with the smaller children of the church school. A picnic dinner will be served on the grounds.

Practice this afternoon and tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock. The Epworth League met last evening with Miss Elizabeth Edwards in charge.

We regret very much the recent death of Uncle Johnnie Tucker of Factots, who was buried Monday. In behalf of Salem Church we express our greatest sympathy. May the Lord bless the entire family.

Mrs. Bessie Barron, Misses Jennie and Lena Barron and little May Barron motored to Tarboro this morning to see a friend who is in a hospital there.

Mrs. J. B. Rouse who underwent an operation in Pitt Hospital Monday is improving, we are glad to report.

Mrs. Novella Edwards, Mrs. Jack Edwards, Mrs. Amy Edwards, Mrs. Jimmie Edwards and Mrs. Johnnie Reid Godley are visiting in New Bern today.

Mrs. Billy Porter is improving slowly. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Heber Porter, who has been quite ill, is much better.

Little Billy Briley and Peggy Mills who have had measles, are able to play again, we are glad to report.

Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, Miss Tull Edwards, and Rebecca Ann Pate were in Greenville today.

Miss Helen Thomas spent yesterday with Miss Tull Edwards.

Inter Se Club. Mrs. Denver Baughan was hostess to the Inter Se Club Tuesday afternoon, May 20, at her home on Rotary avenue, with Mrs. M. K. Blount, the newly elected president, presiding.

At the beginning of the meeting an enlightening paper on "The Intracoastal Waterway from Boston to the Rio Grande," was given by Mrs. Joseph Taft. The history of the inland waterways in the United States, as she gave it, proved to be most interesting. She pointed out that there has always been an inside passage along the coast, and in recent years, the national government has taken over the entire route, and work on it has been supervised by U. S. Army engineers.

Mrs. Taft give in detail the entire route of the waterway from Boston to the Rio Grande.

During a brief business session which followed this paper, the club voted to make a donation to the Cancer Control drive which is being held at this time. It was also decided to give to the library the club books as this had been the custom of the Inter Se Club in the past years.

Mrs. Wyatt Brown then presented her subject, "Propaganda, Press, and Pocketbook," bringing out the varied meanings and uses of propaganda, its use in the press, and through the advertisers, its many effects on our pocketbooks.

Mrs. Brown explained that the true meaning of propaganda is usually misunderstood. Actually, anyone who advocates anything, anyone who defends an idea, is making propaganda.

Propaganda can be either good or bad, and she stated that what we need is not less propaganda, but more propaganda for the most important thing in the world: truth.

Mrs. Baughan served a delicious salad course with coffee, after which the meeting was adjourned and the club temporarily disbanded for the summer.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL COURT SOMETIMES HAS TO FIND A WAY (AP Feature Service)

Washington — Previous family fights over estates will look like a peace society picnic before they settle one in the courts here — 2,006 cousins are contesting for the $570,000 estate of Mary Frances White.

Miss White, 75-year-old heiress, started the outside disagreement when she specified that $1,000 was to go to "each of my cousins living at the time of my death, irrespective of the remoteness of the relationship."

Did she have cousins! From almost every state, plus Ireland and New Zealand, people popped up who claimed "cousinship."

Six first cousins brought suit to break the will.

District Justice Jennings Bailey held with the sextet but 40 claimants notified the court of intention to appeal.

Julius Caesar conceived the idea of the one-way street as an aid to traffic.

The older group of Brownies will stay all night and come back to Greenville on Sunday. Mrs. Frank Bendall, Mrs. Marvin Sugg, Mrs. Waldrop and Miss Lanning will go along with the group.

Girl Scouts of Troop No. 3 are planning a house party at the cottage of Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Crisp the week-end of May 30.

Leaders of the troop are Mrs. Helene Kirkpatrick and Miss Maybelle Pollock.

Mrs. J. E. Winslow will entertain the Brownies of West Greenville school and their mothers at a garden party at her home on Friday afternoon, May 23. Members of the Round Table Club, the sponsoring group for this pack and Scout leaders from Washington are also invited to the party.

At this time these Brownies will

Girl Scout Activities In Greenville

Older Brownies of Pack 5 gave a lovely party for their mothers on Wednesday afternoon in the Girl Scout office.

The Brownies decorated the room with flowers, served punch and sandwiches, and gave their guests favors of colored lollypops with little notes tied to them, telling the mothers how glad they were that they came to the party.

The program included Brownie songs and an investiture for 10-year old girls who had completed the Tenderfoot requirements and were now ready to become Girl Scouts.

Miss Eileen Tomalison, leader of the pack, presented Lois Waldrop, Dorothy Stauffer, Carolyn Rowlette and Frances Bendall to Miss Lanning, local director, to be invested.

Miss Dorothy Neil Henderson, an older Scout, helped with the party.

Mrs. Mark Smith and children spent Sunday with relatives in Falkland.

Mrs. Mamie Ruth Holloway and Mrs. Jack Smith were hostesses to Circles one and two, respectively, of the Woman's Missionary Society Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Newby and family spent last week-end with their father in Belhaven.

Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert Davis and son were Plymouth business visitors Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cullipher and family of Williamston, Mr. Paul Barber of Portsmouth, Va., Mr. Wiley Barber of Danville, Va., Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Barber and family of Norfolk, and Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Newby and family were dining guests of Mrs. Nan Barber Sunday.

Reuel Dikla of Fountain visited his sister Monday.

Mrs. Nan Barber is spending this week in Norfolk with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Barber.

Paris.—(AP)—The day and night preoccupation with food—or rather the lack of it—in Paris has caused many a covetous glance toward the zoo.

There have been no casualties in that institution this time, although during the siege of 1870-71, it provided many a dish for Paris tables. Statistics show that Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire, director of the zoo, did a very profitable business in 1870. Two Egyptian geese were sold for 155 francs; three antelopes brought 4,000 francs.

Two camels, one yak, to kangaroos, a pelican, a swan and a small deer went for 4,375 francs. The best sale was that of two elephants which a butcher snapped up for 27,000 francs.

One newspaper summed up the situation recently with the remark that "our forefathers would have been happier if they had eaten tur-peanuts as we are."

Chapter Four
Tough Job Ahead

Blaze regarded Anne attentively. "I understand your parents are elderly people."

"I was the surprise of their lives," she said. "I can imagine so. You're the surprise of my life, too," he added, jumping to his feet. "Doddad told me I would find you homely but virtuous, and I forgot that a Tibetan's idea of feminine beauty is slit eyes and a flat face." He was gone for another armful of brush.

Anne settled back in a daze. He implied this Doddad had been spying on her. "Homely but virtuous!" Mackey appeared with his load of fuel, got out the emergency ration from the baggage compartment and proceeded to heat water for tea. Anne helped him stretch a canvas to enlarge their shelter and quizzed him a little about Sherwood.

"I just know him from hauling him around occasionally. Swell fella. What are you mad at him about?" Anne frowned at him. "I'm not mad at him exactly, but I'm going somewhere he'd give an eye to see." Mackey looked at her curiously.

"If Blaze Sherwood feels that way about it, I've a hunch he'll be with you at the final landing."

She looked at him. "You may know Blaze Sherwood, but you don't know me."

Argument

A moment later Sherwood came into the shelter, pocketing his gloves. They ate biscuits and drank tea and talked far into the night. Finally Anne slept between two broads backs.

"Blessed fellow countrymen," she thought with tears of appreciation in her eyes.

Fortunately the wind had died down early in the evening though the snow continued to fall in hard, dry crystals. Morning brought wind again—this time in almost blizzard proportions. No one had come near the fallen plane. If Nomads were camping in the vicinity they kept strictly to their tents.

"We're off the regular caravan routes," Mackey explained as he made their morning tea. "There's a mud village ten or twenty miles to the east called Yahi if I know where I am. We'd better make for it today. Staying here will get us nothing but a flat face." No planes will be sent out to look for us in this Godforsaken country." He glanced across at Sherwood. "Unless Shani Lun should be looking for you."

"I'm afraid not, this soon."

"I've heard," said Anne, "that the Prince of Shani Lun is an American native."

"Not too native," grinned Sherwood. "He's the son of American missionaries killed by robbers in Tibet when he was not much more than a baby. The Monsoi prince of Shani Lun adopted him. Sherdock fuyeh, the living Buddha, educated him, polished him off in Europe and America and persuaded him to return and take up the old Prince's job at the latter's death. He bought an American bride from her renegade brother—"

"Bought!" exclaimed Anne. "It amounted to that, but he managed to persuade her to fall in love with him. Now they have a baby and live in the ancient capital of Delun at the foot of a wooded mountain. They fly home to America once a year for a visit and spend the rest of their time striving to bring to the country the blessings of civilization without its disadvantages."

"The Prince is opposing father too."

"He wrote your father strongly urging him to sever all connections with the Paxmore outfit before he attempted a quest of Shy-a Nago.

"Father hasn't any money with which to free-lance."

"I offered to back him through my connection with the Prince."

She looked at him. "In other words, you asked him to sell out Paxmore."

"Paxmore backed him for an entirely different job," Sherwood pointed out. "For the job where his staff's now working and that alone we object to any foreign organization getting hold of Shy-a Nago. And especially Paxmore—a one-man set-up. Paxmore at heart's a robber baron. He's more interested in loot than learning."

"But father heads this expedition. He's given free rein. He won't allow any looting for personal ends."

"He won't—if he can help it. But I have warned him that I'll do all in my power to prevent his success under Paxmore. Your expedition will not get hold of Shy-a Nago if there's anything on earth I can do to prevent it."

She gazed at him steadily a moment. "I think you've a tough job ahead of you, Dr. Sherwood. Father has the reputation of getting what he goes after."

He smiled. "So have I. Therefore I sought you out."

"Do you think for a minute that I would help you with father?"

"Heaven helps those who help themselves." And despite all the reassurance that reason and commonsense supplied, that little smile of his as if he had untold resources or mysterious knowledge which he would spring when the right time came, gave her a feeling of apprehension she could not banish.

Mackey handed out snow glasses. They each took a pack of personal belongings and Sherwood carried a compass, flashlight, food, matches and the fur robe.

"We may be in for an all day hike in this storm," he said. "Stay reasonably close behind me." He led off at a fair gait, shoulder to the wind.

By noon they had come to a dry lake bed where willows and a few reeds grew. They found shelter under a clay bank; built a fire, and made tea, and warmed their hands and feet. Sherwood was going fine, Anne seemed all right, but Mackey felt badly fagged.

"I haven't been myself since I had a touch of fever last summer," he confessed. "And now I've developed a confounded toothache." Sherwood treated him as best he could from their first-aid kit. Then he cut them each a cane from the willow trees.

An hour later they became really frightened. The lay of the land had changed from a level terrain with a steady sweep of the gale, to broken buttes and box canyons where the wind came in fierce gusts, which turned on themselves, and attacked the travelers from every direction.

Mackey was falling frequently. Finally he begged the others to go on. "We can't be far from a village," he panted. "Save yourselves and send back for me." They had stopped in the poor protection of the head of a box canyon that had become a sort of chimney for the wind.

"Don't be a fool," snapped Sherwood, rubbing the man's frosted fingers briskly. "It is getting colder and you would be frozen in no time. We must keep moving."

Anne who had shown surprising strength and resistance so far, now gave up and crouched down in the fur robe Sherwood had wrapped around her.

"How are you?" he asked anxiously.

"Deliciously sleepy," she drawled and dropping her face against the warmth of her arms sank into oblivion.

When Sherwood had finished with Mackey and got him on his feet again, he roused Anne, lifting her up and shaking her awake.

"Dogs"

"I was never so sleepy in my life," she sighed and would have crumpled to the ground again if he hadn't held her up. He shook her into wakefulness, slapping her face; put her cane in her hand and ordered her to follow him. Then as he half-carried Mackey they retraced their steps out of the blind canyon. Presently they found what seemed to be a dry stream bed meandering in a northern direction.

"We'll follow this," he told Anne and stopped and added sharply as she stumbled and almost fell. "Lift your feet as you walk."

"I'm too cold to move," she mumbled, leaning against him. "I'm even too cold to shiver." The pilot straightened up with an effort and stood alone.

Sherwood looked from her to Mackey in despair, then he drew them together.

"You two listen to me," he spoke sharply. "I can't carry either one of you. And what's more, you'd freeze to death if I did. You've got to keep going. If we die, we die on our feet, every one of us. Mackey lead the way. I've got to stay behind and keep an eye on you both. Now get going."

For a while he lifted them patiently each time they fell. Then he began to get rough with Mackey, struck him with his cane when he staggered sleepily and eventually whipped him awake.

The sight shocked Anne to renewed alertness.

"You brute," she screamed, "you'll kill him."

Mackey roused under the blows and straightened himself in resistance. The treatment had worked.

Sherwood spoke to Anne grimly. "Young woman, if you don't want some of the same medicine keep your chin up—and march." Her angry eyes suddenly started past him in the falling light. Her hands went up in terror.

"Wolves," she breathed. "Now wolves have found us."

He turned in a flash.

"They're dogs!" he shouted. "Dogs! We must be near a village!" He began to call. The dogs barked and others to the left took up the racket. Mackey started off in the direction of the sound. Sherwood followed, dragging Anne by the hand.

A few minutes later they stood in the grateful warmth of a smokeblackened mud hovel. A long room with a kang, a wide platform bed that was also a chimney, ranging along one side in the Chinese style. The place was lighted from the flame of a fire in the mud stove and by tallow lamps set in niches in the wall. Grimy parchment covered the one small window.

Mackey dropped down on the center of the kang and men began working on his hands and feet.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

GROWING YOUNGER IN SPIRIT
It is a truism that every day we grow older. Yet if we are living in the truest sense of the term, we should every day grow younger.

We came from God, and as the great circle of our existence progresses, we are every day being taken back to God again. The inevitability of it should bid us pause. We may not want it to be so, but there is a situation over which we have no control.

To grow spiritually means not to grow older, but to grow younger. It means the revitalizing of all those inner graces which will gladden the heart of God when the course is run and give us the only satisfaction which will persist throughout eternity.

"Be ye ready, for ye know not the day nor the hour," and to be ready means to grow younger in spirit with the passing years.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Within the past few days members of the local medical profession have come in for their share of honors in the way of offices in state organizations. Dr. Paul Fitzgerald has been named president-elect of the North Carolina Dental Society; Dr. T. M. Watson has been named president of the North Carolina Pediatrics Society, and Dr. F. B. Haar has been named secretary of the same organization; and Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, has been named president of the North Carolina Public Health Association. The profession is certainly doing its part to put Greenville on the map.

NO TIME FOR HALF MEASURES

We agree heartily with Secretary Hull that it is time for France to make a definite statement as to just how far she is going in her collaboration with Germany. Naturally France is in a precarious position under the iron heel of Hitler but at the same time that country cannot expect to give its support to Germany in order to lighten its present burden and expect at the same time that in the end America will gain her freedom for her. There are at this time two directly opposite forces at work in the world: (1) that of totalitarianism, and (2) that of freedom and liberty. This is not time for fence-sitters or those nations that want to play both sides, hoping thereby to save themselves in the end. America has admitted that the cause for which England is now struggling is likewise our cause, and as a result we are trying to send all possible aid to Great Britain. In view of this, America must soon make the fact known that she considers those who do not share our ideas of freedom as potential enemies of the cause. It is time that the nations of the world must realize that they must each make a choice as to whether they want to live in freedom or slavery.

to mechanics, welding, cooking and baking. If your son is particularly interested in any of these subjects, it would be well to make that clear to CCC officials so he may be sent to a camp where that particular trade is being taught.

M. E. T. Beaumont, Tex. — There are 362 colleges and universities (or about one in three in the entire program) that now give credits for courses taken under the civilian pilots training program. CPTP officials say they expect the number will be increased next fall, as the program just got into full swing this year. Letters to the colleges or universities you would like to attend should bring information as to whether credits on a degree for CPTP courses are allowed there and to what extent.

Miss E. W. Lansing, Mich. — The bureau of labor statistics says living costs are just 2.6 per cent higher now than in the month before the present war started. August, 1939. During the World War the cost of living went about 50 per cent higher than today. At present living costs generally are a little below the five-year 1935-39 level. Some observers here believe that they will go to that level but not above it without drawing fire from Leon Henderson's office of price administration and civilian supply.

My check leads me to believe that Hoey will get 114 votes for national committeeman," said a chap who has just gone on the state payroll as the result of loyal service to Governor J. M. Broughton during the 1940 primary.

"Yes, your check would quite naturally lead you to that belief," quipped his companion. "Why, I haven't even drawn one yet," came back chap number one.

"The First District looks like it'll give eleven votes for Hoey and off to Reynolds," a reporter said to Tommy Banks, the governor's secretary.

"That's almost as good as the average district will do," came back Tommy.

Judge R. Hunt Parker is up to his trick of "cleaning up" again. This time it's the Superior court docket in New Hanover county. He has ordered all civil cases more than four years old to be calendared for the first day of the May term, and promises to try or non-suit every one of them when and as called.

The clerk's calendar lists no less than 865 cases.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—Footnote to history Manhattan style: It was just 216 years ago, come November 8, that New York had its first newspaper. . . . It was called the New York Gazette. . . . On the staff there was no drama critic because the theater then as it concerned New York, hadn't been invented. . . . The first theater came seven years later, in 1732, when a solid Dutch burgher by the name of Rip Van Dorn opened a new candle-lit house and produced "The Recruiting Officer." Later in the pages of the Gazette, appeared this notice: "A pistole reward will be given to whoever can discover the person who was so very rude as to throw eggs from the gallery." . . . A pistole was a gold Spanish coin commonly used throughout Europe and its value today would be about $3.92.

So you can see by this that only Of New York's more than seven million inhabitants, 600,000 are German, 650,000 are Irish, 10,000 are Yugoslavs, 40,000 are Czechs, 500 are Hindus, 3,000 are Mexican, 15,000 are Chinese, 25,000 are Greek, 600 are Rumanian gypsies, 30,000 are Syrian, 22,000 are Armenians, and probably a million are Italians. . . .

History tells us that the Algonquins lived in mortal terror of some of their more savage kinsmen and had assembled here on the coast because they couldn't stand the am- bushing and the pot-shooting that went on while they lived deeper in the forest. This feat of their enemies is reflected in the wild joy with which they greeted the coming up of the white man, whom they hoped would protect them and help them out from under the load of tribute which their tormentors extracted ever so often. Today Algonquin is the name of a telephone exchange and of a theatrical hotel in the mid- forties where John Barrymore lived when he was an amateur artist on a New York newspaper. Other than this, the noble red man hasn't left much of a mark on Manhattan.

As the centuries passed and the city became an metropolis refugee from the old world came in in- creasing numbers, and today count- less minorities find a haven here. New York's tiniest minority are the Persians, who have only about 100 in the city. The next smallest mi- nority are the Turks, with 300. It may interest you to know that New York today is the home of 2- 000 Japanese and that they publish two daily newspapers. . . . New York, in fact, has 35 dailies published in foreign languages. . . . The Chinese have three newspapers and the Hungarians have eight. The Rus- sians support four daily newspa- pers.

Annapolis, Md. (AP)—Little more than half the 800 naval reservists graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy this year were able to obtain swords, for foreign supplies have been cut off. To save embar- rassment, the navy waived a rule requiring all officers to wear swords when reporting for duty.

Locals Start Early To Defeat Tarboro By 11-7 Score

WIN TURNED IN BY LEFTY LONG

Greenies Get Four In Each Of First Two Frames

Getting off to a good start by scoring four runs in each of the first and second innings last night, Rube Wilson's Greenies returned to the win column after a one-night relapse in Tarboro Tuesday night, and won over the Orioles 11-7.

As the Greenies enter a two game series with Rocky Mount — there tonight and here tomorrow night — they are only half a game behind the league-leading Wilson Tobs. Greenville and Wilson met here Saturday night and here Sunday afternoon in what probably will be a crucial series with the winner being left atop the standings.

Tarboro garnered as many hits as the Greenies last night, but the locals bunched theirs to produce more runs. Six Greenville players got two hits each. They were Finck, Caraway, Scagg, Wilson, Bullock and McGarity. Crowe, Caraway and Bullock connected for doubles, while Charlie Scagg came through with the feature blow of the game — a homer over the scoreboard in the first inning.

Both teams showed lapses at times, Tarboro making three errors and Greenville two.

Although yielding 14 hits, Lefty Long held the visitors pretty well in check, while Tarboro was using four pitchers.

Swiss Seeking Ersatz For Ersatz

Bern, Switzerland.—(AP)—The Swiss are looking for an ersatz for an ersatz. Wood is ersatz for gasoline which is virtually unavailable here under wartime conditions. But the use of wood as fuel has increased because of coal shortage and Switzerland's forests are rapidly being depleted.

Hence the federal council has passed a bill requiring a state examination of all motors for using wood—especially automobiles, trucks and tractors.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, May 22.—(AP)—Bearish war news received the principal blame in Wall Street today for reversing the stock markets rallying trend.
Losses ran to a point or so at the worst and dealings, slow most of the time, picked up on the downward flurry. Declines were reduced in a few cases at the close and scattered favorites managed to emerge with modest plus signs. Transfers were around 450,000 shares.

STIMSON ALSO CONDEMNS ACT

Joins Navy Secretary Knox In Condemning Measure

Washington, May 22.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson assailed the neutrality act today as "a violation of our most sacred and important tradition of foreign policy, freedom of the seas."
Like Secretary of the Navy Knox, who yesterday termed the act barring American shipping from war zones a "terrible blunder," Stimson stressed he was speaking as an individual, rather than as Secretary of War.
Stimson added, however, that what he described as conflict between the neutrality act and the freedom of the seas principle would have to be "very carefully considered," however, in delivering munitions to Great Britain.
"It's for others to decide whether repeal of the act is an urgent matter now," he told a press conference inquirer.
Noting that he had opposed the principle of the neutrality legislation for years, Stimson said "I always prophesied that it would bring us into trouble."
"It was abhorrent to our principles to yield to our fears by this policy," he added.

Opportunity Open In Naval Reserve

Charleston, S. C., May 22.—Young men are finding themselves facing a serious problem as to how best they can cash in on their college educations. There is a plan available where young men between the age of 20 and 27, inclusive, can become Ensigns in the Naval Reserve with four months training.
The rank of Ensign is a commissioned officer comparable to Second Lieutenant in the Army. Men graduating in June may enlist now subject to receiving their college degree.
It is the opportunity of a lifetime to learn the routine and procedure of operating ships. Some of the Ensigns will be assigned to engineering duties, some to line and deck duty. For a successful completion of the four months course, there awaits a commission in the Naval Reserve.
The requirements are: a college degree (A.B., B.S., or Engineering) including a course in Plane Trigonometry; be between the ages of 20 to 27, inclusive; be a native born, unmarried man; meet the physical requirements for Ensign; be of good repute in the home community; and agree not to marry until completion of the four months training.
Full particulars are available at the nearest Naval Reserve Recruiting Station, Navy Recruiting Station, or Sub-station.

Courage Is As Courage Does
Helena, Mont.—(AP)—Four youngsters, two of them much the smaller, pulled up at the county nurse's office.
"This feller's mama wants him to get a tick shot," the elders said pushing the youngest one forward. A "tick shot" is an immunization against Rocky Mountain spotted fever.
After the nurse gave the injection, the four went outside for a conference. Obvious subject: "Did it hurt much?"
Soon they reappeared. The second youngest was pushed forward for a shot. Another outside conference followed, the two oldest boys feeling the arm punctures, and deliriously. Back they came again.
"We'll take ours now," the two oldest boys said.

Napoleon Bonaparte originated the idea of odd and even house numbers for different sides of the street.

Broomstick For Beauty

Hoey Looks Like Winner But May Lose If He Wins

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, May 22.—All surface indications here in Raleigh are that former Governor Clyde R. Hoey will be elected national committeeman from North Carolina over Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., of Winston-Salem, when the Democratic state executive committee meets here tomorrow.
There are reasonably reliable signs that the vote will be split something like 80 for Hoey, 50 for Reynolds and perhaps five or six for Pierce Rucker of Greensboro. There are 136 members of the committee and it is the almost unanimous belief of observers here that practically every vote will be cast, either in person or by proxy.
These surface indications, of course, could prove all wrong and grossly misleading, especially if a majority of the state committee should favor a secret ballot. It is estimated that at least ten votes to Reynolds and for the very reason it is expected that the administration forces supporting Hoey will fight any effort to force a secret ballot. State Chairman E. B. Denny, named by Governor J. M. Broughton, who is Hoey's sponsor in the committee battle, has already said he'll proceed on the theory of an open roll call vote unless the majority of the committee should decide against it.
The 80-50 split in the vote is arrived at on the basis of "off the record" opinions of leaders on both sides. The Reynolds forces claim, even in private, that they will win, but they concede it will be by the slimmest sort of margin if they do. The Hoey folks even when not talking for publication, seem to believe they will score an overwhelming win—perhaps three or four to one. They may, if the vote is by open roll call and the first half of the balloting shows that Reynolds has no possible chance to win.
In case the former governor should roll into the committee post by such an impressive margin, it would be a real and substantial victory for him. Governor Broughton and for former Governor O. Max Gardner of Washington who doesn't appear in the open at all, but who is believed in many quarters to stand to gain more by a Hoey victory than any other one person.
If, on the other hand, Hoey should barely skin through, his triumph would be strictly in line with the one which caused that well-known Greek of antiquity, Pyrrhus, to exclaim "One more such victory and I am undone." Broughton, likewise, would have little to brag about, while Gardner could still point with pride to the fact that he is still influential enough in North Carolina to get his anti-New Deal brother-in-law on the national committee.
Of course, if Reynolds should score an upset victory, it would be just too bad for the political prestige of both Hoey and Broughton. Gardner would not be in position to do any boasting, but could disclaim having participated in any way and impute blame for the defeat on the state Broughton machine.
Even in the very first instance cited, an overwhelming win for Hoey there are plenty of astute political minds which incline to the view that Hoey himself will be a loser. To begin with, credit for the result will be quite generally and logically given to the power of the realization, as many think they will, there will be a decided backfire of which Hoey will be the victim. As a national committeeman he is quite likely to find himself completely impotent to hand on any jobs because (1) He is a known anti-Roosevelt and New Deal figure and (2) there is strong likelihood that Dick Reynolds will take great pleasure in thwarting any efforts Hoey might make at securing patronage.

Even if the unexpected should come to pass, however, and Hoey should land a whole flock of good jobs for Tar Heels, it is certain that Gov. Broughton would claim, and probably get, the major share of the credit.
So from many angles it seems that Hoey is playing a "Heads you win, tails I lose" game, something very unusual for the canny Clevelander. In fact, such a role is so characteristic that the reasoning of those who feel he will be a loser any way the battle goes must be examined with extra caution—there must be a catch in it somewhere.
Most of the North Carolina delegation in Washington fear to make an enemy of Dick Reynolds. That is clear from all reports out of the national capital. Reason isn't hard to find. The Congressmen have seen at first hand the power wielded by the Winston-Salem mayor in party circles. Wherefore not one of them has gone out on a limb in the committee race, though they are probably more directly to be affected by its result than any person or part of the state administration. This is significant because almost the entire delegation could be expected, from association and past political ties, to be for Hoey.
