Danish Possession In Western Hemisphere Mentioned As Possible Trans-shipment Point

Berlin, May 24.—(AP)—German submarines were reported today to have attacked a British convoy in waters near Greenland.

Informed sources said the Greenland attack was the one reported in the high command's communique yesterday which said nine merchantships totalling 70,000 tons and including three large tankers were sunk as they headed for England.

At that time it was not disclosed where the action took place. DNB official German news agency said that during the U-boat attack one of the ships, a 7,000-ton munitions steamer, tried to dodge from the danger zone, but was struck by a torpedo and sank after a succession of tremendous explosions.

The convoy, DNB said, was especially strongly guarded.

Greenland, mentioned by some observers as a possible trans-shipment point for supplies for Britain, was declared part of the Western Hemisphere last month by the United States, which pledged its protection as a Danish colony.

Irish Parliament Is Called To Meet

Dublin, May 24.—(AP)—Premier Eamon De Valera today unexpectedly summoned the Dail Eireann Irish Parliament to meet Monday to hear a statement on application of British conscription to the six counties of Ulster, Northern Ireland.

De Valera has opposed conscription in Ulster, which unlike Eire, is a part of the United Kingdom, because of the number of pro-Eire residents who would be affected.

It was further believed by observers that De Valera would elaborate his position regarding Eire's defense and growing economic difficulties.

At the same time it was reported from Belfast, capital of Northern Ireland, that an anti-conscription meeting had been called to sign a pledge almost identical to the resolution of 1917 which foiled Britain's attempt to enforce Irish compulsory military service then.

Farmers Being Urged Produce Pork Supply

Raleigh, May 24.—Ellis V. Vestal, swine specialist of the North Carolina State College Extension Service, today issued an appeal to farmers to produce their own pork and land supplies this year.

Recently, the government announced a program that would support hog prices at $9 per 100 pounds Chicago basis, until June 30, 1943. This movement was launched to meet the increased demands for pork as a result of the National Defense program.

Vestal explained that North Carolina growers may feed profitably surplus corn and other grains to hogs which they intend to place on the market.

The State College specialist also pointed out that temporary pastures may be planted now. Alternate rows of soy beans and millet or Sudan grass will furnish excellent grazing for sows and their litters during the summer months. Also it will be a valuable source of feed for growing pigs.

The festival will feature a dance and floor show each night, the program to be climaxed with a dance on the night of Wednesday, June 11, with Guy Lombardo providing the music.

All profits derived from the festival will be used by the Ahoskie club in aiding underprivileged children.

AID ASKED BY DRAFT BOARDS

New Lists Of Delinquents Issued By Local Officials

Each of the two Pitt County Selective Service Boards today issued new lists of "delinquents" or persons who have changed their addresses since they registered last October and failed to advise their board of the change.

Officials pointed out that the Selective Service act provided that any person changing his address is required to advise the board and failure to do so subjects the guilty person to a fine or imprisonment.

When the board mails a questionnaire to a registrant and the registrant fails to get it because of having changed his address the burden is on the registrant and not the board.

The two local boards are now sending questionnaires to all registrants, but are encountering difficulty because of changes in address.

Each board released a list a week or so ago and the lists were circulated through the press. Officials said this method brought the desired results in most cases.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of any of the following lists are urged to contact the board.

Don't Be So Pessimistic 'Some Years of Prosperity May Be Ahead'

Babson Park, Mass., May 24.—In view of the changed situation in Washington following the collaboration between United France and Germany, the war will be shorter than most people think. Although we may, directly or indirectly, convoy shipments to England yet, with Congress in its present mood, there is no chance of the United States now declaring war.

New Dealers Weakening For this, and other reasons, there is no cause for the pessimism which is about today in Washington, New York, and most of the large cities. It is true that huge sums of money are being taken from the rich through terribly high taxes. This money is being given either to labor in the form of high wages for short hours, or is being distributed to the unfortunate through various forms of relief. Billions are being spent on tanks and airplanes; but are these any more wasteful than pleasure cars and crime? Crime alone, last year, cost this country $15,000,000,000.

I got a new idea in Washington the other day. Here it is as put up to me by one of the New Deal economists. Said he: "Give us two or three years longer and these economic operations will not be necessary as the patients are constantly dying off. Isn't it just as humane to keep the economically inefficient business men, farmers, and unemployed free from pain and let them die naturally as it is to eliminate them now through bankruptcy? They will have only a few more years to live anyway." This is a new thought to me; but there may be something in it.

Liquidating Labor Labor leaders may have seen their best days for some time to come. During the past eight years labor has had the sympathy of not only the administration, but also of a large part of the public. Even the newspapers of the country found it bad business to combat labor. Hence labor leaders have been riding "high, wide, and handsome." This situation has greatly changed during the past few days. Strikes have become unpopular and labor leaders have been put on the defensive.

President Roosevelt and Ma Perkins may not have the guts to get after these labor leaders as they did the bankers and the utilities; but things move very fast these days. (Continued On Page Two)

U. S., CANADA TO ESTABLISH JOINT BOARDS

Purpose Will Be Closer Collaboration On Defense

ALSO PROPOSE TO HELP BRITAIN

New Board Will Be In Addition To United States-Canadian Defense Board Established Earlier

Washington, May 24.—(AP)—The United States and Canada, it was learned authoritatively today, will establish early next week two closely collaborating economic planning boards to speed the mobilization of American resources for aid to Britain and defense of the Western Hemisphere.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King are expected to announce simultaneously the membership of the three-member United States and Canadian board which will survey the two nations' resources and guide their cooperative economic, industrial and financial policies.

The new boards in general are expected to complement—in the economic and industrial fields—the work of the joint United States-Canadian defense board established to coordinate the military and naval defense of North America.

All but one of the members of the new twin boards have been selected. It was learned, and President Roosevelt is expected to decide on the third man on the American board within the next few days. All names have been closely guarded by the White House.

The boards, it was learned, will immediately undertake a systematic inventory of the United States' and Canada's present and potential resources, production, manufacturing capacities, supplies, priorities and other vital elements involved in providing the quickest and greatest possible assistance to Great Britain and other nations fighting against aggression, and strengthening the defenses of the American republics.

Civic Club Hears N. C. Fire Marshal

The part civilian firemen are playing in the Battle of Britain was explained by Sheriffwood Brockwell, state fire marshal, in an address before the Greenville Kiwanis club at its regular meeting last night.

The speaker told of the work firemen of this country would be faced with if America is faced with defense from dive bombers dropping incendiary bombs.

Mr. Brockwell declared that he had conferred with army officials and added that they realized the important task firemen would face should this country become involved in war. He advocated the adoption of home defense practices as a part of all fire departments of this country.

He declared that Britain's firemen were playing one of the most important parts in the war and added that their efficiency was materially minimizing the effects from incendiary bombs.

The speaker was introduced by Mayor B. B. Sugg. The program was under the direction of J. Hicks Corey, George E. Barber and J. M. Taft.

Vocal selections were presented by Miss Jean Abeyounis, local girl and student at East Carolina Teachers College. She was accompanied by Denton-Rossell.

Meetings Scheduled On Cotton Stamp Act

A meeting of key workers of this section in the cotton stamp program will be held at Washington, May 28, according to an announcement by Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

Counties to be represented at the Washington meeting are Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Hyde, Jones, Pamlico, Martin, Pitt, Tyrrell and Washington.

Another local play center will be opened on Thursday, May 28, at the West Greenville school, putting two of the proposed five recreation areas in operation. The first was opened a week or so ago on the college grounds off Colaniche street.

The West Greenville Parent-Teacher Association will sponsor the opening of the new center; it was announced by Mrs. D. M. Clark, chairman of the city playground and recreation committee.

The center will offer competitive games of all types. Softball teams already are being organized for competitive play between West Greenville and East Greenville. Children in all sections of the city are invited to participate in the events.

The next center to be opened is the one being established for colored children at the Fifth street school. It is proposed to put this play area in operation on Friday, June 6. The Fidelis class of Memorial Baptist church will sponsor the opening of this center.

Following the opening of the Fifth Street center, work will be done immediately on the Third Street area and the complete program will be rushed to completion, with a combined dedicatory program probably arranged during the summer.

Said To Have Been Aiming At Albania Premier

Rome, May 24.—(AP)—A Greek declared "affected by poetic madness," emptied a pistol at the motor car in which King Vittorio Emanuele was riding with the Albanian premier during the monarch's visit to Albania May 17, official Italian dispatches from Tirana disclosed today. All the shots went wild.

The assailant, whose name was given as Vassal Laci Mihaloff, was arrested, the dispatches said, "and saved from lynching by the people so as not to complicate investigations begun to run down his possible accomplices."

In the motor car with the king-emperor was Shefket Verlaci, who has been premier of Albania since the Italians first invaded that country early in 1939.

The official announcement described the affair as an attempt on the life of Verlaci.

What It Means: CONVOY PROBLEMS IN THIS WAR

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer

Washington.—To convoy or not to convoy may be just another cracker barrel issue to John Q. Citizen, but to the hard-headed admirals, vastly complicated by the airplane and the radio.

Plane spotters and radio sound devices are the new pawns in the convoy game. By and large, the airplane is the better pawn. Because the Germans are based on Great Britain, in this war, they have an advantage they lacked in 1914-18. They're closer to the steamer lanes than are Britain's own air scouts. When they spot a convoy, they don't have to wait for a submarine to come along and hit the targets. They can fly their own bombs. And it doesn't take much of a bomb to put a thin-skinned merchant vessel out of business.

Radio spotting devices are more sensitive in this war, but still they are not keen enough to warn convoys in time enough to scatter far.

The British convoy problem is more complicated in this war because the British fleet does not have the help of the French, Italian,

ADMITS DEATH OF NAZI HERO

Colonel Grauert Lost Leading Fight On England

Berlin, May 24.—(AP)—Germany announced today the death of Colonel-General Ulrich Grauert, one of her highest-ranking air commanders, while "leading the fight against England."

Grauert, the leader of the flying corps which has borne the brunt of the air attacks on Britain and the battle of Dunkerque "met a hero's death," the high command said.

The place and circumstances were not mentioned, but there were unofficial indications he might have been killed some days ago, before the aerial invasion of Crete began.

Some informants asserted positively that his death was not connected with the Crete attack, mentioned for the first time today by the high command.

Long-Range Craft Active Over Crete

Fourteen Nazi Planes Declared To Have Been Downed in One Day In Battle Of Crete On Western End Of Island; Malemi Airdrome Chief Center Of Fighting; Germans Checked Elsewhere

Cairo, May 24.—(AP)—British long-range fighters have challenged the German air mastery of Crete, combining with bombers on distant bases to destroy at least 14 German planes in one day in the spreading battle at the western end of the island, RAF headquarters announced today.

The British acknowledged that German forces, landed by parachute, transport plane and glider in the five days of the battle, are making their main effort to broaden their foothold in the Malemi airdrome area, now the chief center of the fighting.

But, Middle East general headquarters asserted, efforts to land reinforcements by air elsewhere have been "decisively dealt with" and have cost the Germans a high proportion of their air transports.

The RAF indicated that the toll of German aircraft by far higher than the 30 claimed so far—14 reported destroyed yesterday by air attack and 16 said previously to have been down by anti-aircraft fire.

"Large numbers of Junkers 52's" were attacked by the British bombers on the airdrome and beach at Malemi, the RAF said, and besides a minimum of 10 destroyed many others were "burned out and a large number have been made completely unusable."

It added: "Our long-range fighters also attacked the enemy at Malemi and destroyed at least four large transport carriers."

Junkers 52's normally carry 17 passengers and probably could carry more soldiers. Other types of German air transports are still larger.

This was the first mention of British air activity over Crete since Prime Minister Churchill disclosed that fighter craft had been withdrawn from the island at the outset, apparently leaving air supremacy uncontested.

Alumni Officers Elected. In a recent election held by alumni of East Carolina Teachers College Mrs. J. C. Holland of Raleigh was chosen to succeed Mrs. B. M. Bennett of Forest City as president of the Alumni Association of the college for the next two years.

Miss Martha Whitehurst of Roanoke Rapids was elected vice-president, and Miss Grace Smith of Greenville was re-elected treasurer.

Mrs. Holland, who has for several years been with the J. A. Wood Furniture Company of Raleigh and who is now secretary-treasurer for this firm, is a member of the class of 1919 and former teacher in the State School for the Blind.

A charter member in the Raleigh branch of the E. C. T. C. Alumni Association at its organization in 1920, Mrs. Holland has always been a leader in the activities of her chapter, having held at various times all the offices in the chapter.

She was the president of the local group in 1936-37. As chairman of a committee on revision of the constitution a few years ago, she was of service to the whole association.

Mrs. Holland has shown interest, too, in social, civic and religious work. She is a member of the Raleigh Woman's Club, the Needham Broughton P. T. A. and the S. P. C. A. In her church, the First Presbyterian, she takes part in the activities of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Four-Square Sunday school class of which she is a past-president.

The new vice-president, Miss Martha Whitehurst, is a member of the class of '39. She was secretary of her class during her junior year in college, and president during her senior year.

Last year she was president of the Roanoke Rapids chapter. She succeeds Mrs. B. M. Brake of Rocky Mount as vice-president.

Miss Grace Smith was re-elected to serve a second term as treasurer because of her efficient work in the past two years. She has worked with the Smith Electric Company of Greenville since the business was first established.

Mrs. Holland will take over a growing organization, as under the leadership of her predecessor, Mrs. Bennett, and through the efficient work of the first full-time secretary, Miss Estelle McClees, the association has tripled its membership in the past year.

Bridal Couple Honored. Miss Mary Dorcas Harding of Wilson and Anthony Carey of Kinston, whose wedding will take place this evening in Wilson, were honored on Friday evening when Miss Julia Gaylord an attendant of the bride, entertained at a cake-cutting at her home on Country Club Drive.

A color motif of green and white was carried out in the dining room where a central table held a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake containing traditional wedding symbols. The table also held a miniature wedding party. The ceiling chandelier was showered with wedding bells, tall to a large bow of bridal tulle. Tall white tapers burned at either end of the table. Bridal ices were served by Mrs. Hamner Winstead of Rocky Mount and Mrs. Carrie Hyslop of Norfolk, assisted by Misses Harriet and Virginia Gaylord and Nancy Hannah.

Lime punch was served in the sun room by Miss Jean Brown and George Wilkerson. Here, a color note of pink and green was carried out in the flower arrangement.

Guests for the evening included members of the wedding party, members of the immediate families and out-of-town guests.

Optimism Cushing, Oklahoma.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles Foster had a flat tire on a "nearby highway. She stopped 15 cars before she found one carrying a jack in condition for use.

Water Line Systems Mr. H. M. Ellis, engineering specialist, held two demonstrations in Pitt county on the installing of water systems in the farm home. On Wednesday morning, the first demonstration was held at Mrs. Howard Moye's home near Lang's crossroads and the second demonstration in the afternoon at Mrs. Cecil Satterthwaite's home in Pacetown. Twenty-eight families were represented at the demonstrations and all hope to install water systems in their homes in the near future.

Canning Demonstration One of the duties of the home-maker in the national defense program is to conserve all the surplus food during the summer months. With the assistance of Miss Mildred Becton, home economics teacher of Chicod, Miss Margaret Pruette, home economics teacher of Winterville, Miss Virginia Vaughan, home economics teacher of Grimesland, Mrs. Margaret Williams, home management supervisor, Farm Security, I have planned the first of the series of canning demonstrations in the various townships. Below you will find the schedule and I hope every home maker in the county will plan to attend one of the demonstrations.

The John Flanagan Buggy Co., is now selling the handsomest buggies in this section. They have bicycle ball-bearing wheels with cushion tires. Have you seen them?

This morning The Reflector received a telegram from the director of the Southern Conservatory of Music at Durham stating that Miss Bessie Patrick had passed the Southern Conservatory examinations before the board of examiners, making a grade of 99. This is most gratifying to Miss Patrick's host of friends here at home, and all congratulate her upon attaining such high distinction.

BABSON

(Continued from page one) days. Who would have thought that memberships on the New York Stock Exchange—when sold for $650,000 twelve years ago—could now be bought for only $20,000 when they carry $20,000 life insurance! Wage workers will be protected in their desire to organize and bargain collectively; but they will not be allowed to defy the anti-trust laws or hold up American consumers.

What About Inflation?

Congress has increased the debt limit to $65,000,000,000. Unless there is a negotiated peace within a reasonable time, this debt will approach $100,000,000,000 whether we will come to the printing of the currency. I do not know. Washington insists that dangerous inflation will be prevented through high taxation, price fixing, and forcing wage workers to put a portion of their money into government bonds instead of spending it. This might keep people from bidding up prices. Things which are largely wasteful or harmful will be taxed especially heavily.

On the other hand, it must be realized that inflation in some form will be one of the methods to be used for defraying the expenses of a long war. Some readjustment of the currency will be needed in order to hold our foreign trade and compete with foreign nations where inflation has already gotten well under way. A mild form of inflation might be quite helpful to business and offers one way of reducing our public debt.

Young Men America's Hope

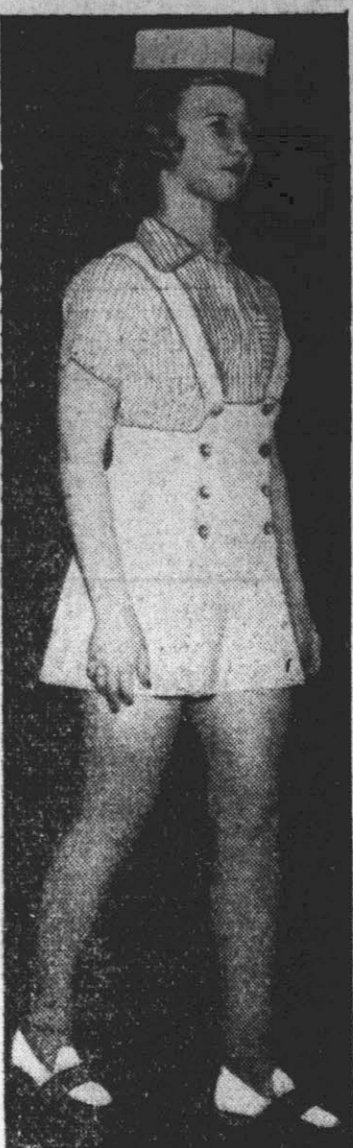

Most of the pessimism now floating about comes from the older business men who cannot forget the "good old days" when taxes were very low and they could do as they pleased. The nation owes these bankers, manufacturers, and merchants a tremendous lot, and should treat them with respect. Statistics show, however, that they are rapidly dying off, and their places are being taken by younger men who never knew those good old days. These younger men accept present conditions as normal and do not worry about taxes, government regulations, and other handicaps.

As I travel about the country, it is interesting to note the difference in the attitude of members of our regular Chambers of Commerce from the attitude of the members of the Junior Chambers—the "Jaycees" as they are called. Most of the resolutions passed by the older groups are against something; they are trying to sweep back the ocean with a broom. The resolutions passed by the Jaycees are for something; they are interested in launching a ship to sail the seas! Every year more and more of these Jaycees are coming into a position of authority. After returning from a speaking engagement before a senate Chamber of Commerce, I am a blue pessimist, but after speaking to a group of these Jaycees, I am a rip-roaring bull.

Conclusion I am not pigheaded about economic conditions; nor have I rose-colored glasses on while writing this column. Some day America and the world will witness another very severe depression; but this may also wipe out the impractical features of the New Deal and again put industry, thrift, initiative, and courage back into the saddle. This, however, is some years off. In the meantime, World War II is to be finished and—after a short, sharp readjustment period—we should have several years of prosperity during the Reconstruction Period which is to follow.

Glamour Is Spinach— Or Something Like That

Sally Ames balances a brick on her head in University of Oklahoma posture contest.

By ROBERT E. GIEGER AP Feature Service Writer

Norman, Okla.—And what's glamour made of? Well, sir, Miss Irma James, head of the women's physical education department at the University of Oklahoma, made a study of 1920 coeds compared with those of 1941 and decided glamour has something to do with spinach. But it's more complicated than that. In 1920 fifty per cent of the girls enrolled in physical education at Oklahoma had flat feet. Eighty-five per cent were underweight.

Like The Change In Cars Miss James doesn't issue a mathematical rating, but she gives the impression the 1920 flapper and the 1941 glamour gal, from health and posture standpoints, are about as different as the 1920 high-wheeled auto and some of today's sleek 100-horsepower jobs. "Saddle oxfords are a decided improvement over three-inch heels," she says, noting that flat feet are a decided handicap to glamour. "There's been a general improvement in meal planning, and the discovery of vitamins insures the proper intake of body building materials."

More Emphasis On Clothing Then, too, she says, the emphasis on proper clothing has been increased. She advocates sweater-skirt school wear. So there you are. She didn't mention spinach by name but glamour, as she describes it, must be made of stuff like that, plus attractive comfortable shoes, decorative and comfortable clothing and relaxing furniture—plus something pretty good to start with in the first place, probably.

WHAT IT MEANS

(Continued from page one) plains why the Royal Air Force went after the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau in their French berths day after day until these big battle cruisers were reported out of commission. While they were loose, the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst were death on convoys.

The British have established convoy meeting spots, where merchant ships wait for escort through waters close to the British Isles. There several destroyers usually meet each convoy. As the line gets under way the destroyers set their speed to match the slowest ship in the line which may be between six and eight knots.

If a submarine is sighted, the destroyers order the convoy to scatter, then start full speed for the sub. The sub skipper has quite a problem. Should he gamble on getting in position and firing his torpedoes, or should he dive? If he stays near the surface and shoots the odds are better than three to one that he won't live to shoot again.

The destroyer is too fast for the sub, usually doing 20 to 30 knots. The sub can travel no more than 12 to 16 on the surface, and 6 to 10 submerged. The only escape is to go down more than 200 feet and wait.

But subs aren't always spotted. If the water is choppy, white caps hide periscopes. So the sub captain takes his time, aims his torpedo tubes, and fires in the course of the ships he has picked out. It's hard for the merchantman to escape, for he doesn't have much speed or maneuverability.

THE SHERWOOD DAGGER

YESTERDAY: Ann Willard, with Blaze Sherwood and Pete Mackey, have landed in the middle of a Mongolian snowstorm, and are now in the reasonably tolerant custody of the headman of a tiny village. He plans to take the lot of them to the authorities, and Anne has gone to find a woman who speaks English, hoping that she may persuade her to give them some help. The woman has taken refuge in a sheepfold from her irate husband.

Chapter Six Sudden Plans
The woman had already bedded down for the night. She sat up amiably and lighted a candle when Anne appeared. Presently she admitted that she understood and could talk a bit of English, that she had known all along the travelers were English and not Tibetan, though she had told no one. Her name was Khalima.

Anne showed her a coin, and the woman's eyes gleamed. She agreed gladly to circumvent the men of her family and save the white woman from being taken to the Emir. At the same time, she declared, the safest place to hide from the Emir was in his own palace. His wife, the princess, would help them and contrive an escape across the border. She, also, had attended a mission school. Khalima was her slave girl at the time. Now Khalima's mother cooked in the harem.

They could easily gain admittance with Anne in disguise. Tonight they should go to the serai an hour across the hills on the main caravan route to the capital. All this sudden and dramatic planning left Anne a bit breathless but she determined to follow the woman. At least it was better than facing imprisonment. Khalima went bustling about in the shed, wrapping herself in sheep skins and binding her feet in rags, when suddenly they heard footsteps approaching.

Sherwood appeared. "You stayed away so long you had me worried," he said, coming to Anne out of the gloom. "Have you been able to talk to her?"

"I have," she replied, motioning for him to sit down beside her on a pile of fleeces. "Khalima's feeling resentful against all men just now and thinks we can make her relatives believe I wondered away in the storm and became lost. They'll not make much effort to find me since I'm only a woman, she says because a woman who cannot take care of herself is not worth worrying about. She's going to hide me."

"Where?"
"I'd rather not say. I'll be helped to escape across the border to China."

He petted an inquisitive sheep that came up and nosed him. "Even the sheep find you irresistible," she jested.
"I hope that's a lesson to you to cease fighting me," he grinned.
She shook her head. "I'm one of those disagreeably independent girls."

"There's a remedy for that—when I have time to get around to it." He pushed the sheep away. "Did your father send a note by the Nagara priest who met you?"
"How do you know that man was a priest?" she asked. "He had a woman with him and he talked to me in English."
"Both of them together are one priest."

She stared at him. "What kind of mathematics is that where one plus one equals one?"
"Doddad"
He laughed. "What did you think of those two who came to you?"
"They were strange," she said thoughtfully. "Less childlike and sterner than most primitive people, but somehow more—dangerous."

He nodded. "Smart girl. You're going to be a credit to our profession. You haven't told me yet if your father sent a note by the Nagaras."
"Why didn't you stay that night at Jus Masar and find out?"
"I didn't want to complicate things for you."

She looked at him curiously. "Just why were you there?"
He hesitated a moment. "I wanted to see the girl who rated receiving the Nagara dagger."
"And what about the little bird that warned you?"
"Oh, that," he laughed. "It was the hermit who lives nearby. I'd made friends with him."
"How did you know I'd be there?"
"Doddad divined it. He's a prophet, a seer. I didn't believe him but I flew over just to see if he faltered and smiled—to see if he was right and there you were. I guess he's got me going."

They gazed at each other until she brought herself back with an effort. "Yes, father sent a note. Would you like to know what was in it?"
He gave her a sidelong glance. "He told you they had been captured by the Nagaras and for you to go ahead as planned."
"Wrong," she smiled. "They are negotiating with the Nagaras, and we are to go ahead as planned. But the only plan I can think of was a hope to gain permission from the Chinese governor to set up a radio they look with them for the purpose of sending out news of any discoveries they might make."
"He might refer to your plan to marry Dr. Oliver?"
"Of course not," she cried impatiently. "It is something important—something to do with this new project." Then she relaxed. "But Dr. Oliver probably knows what he means by 'plans' and 'prophecy' and will tell me when I see him—if I see him."

Sherwood put a hand over hers. "You'll see him—I know anything about prophecy. Sure you don't want to tell me how this woman is going to help you?"
"Quite sure," she replied and turned her hand in his to clasp it. "But I want you to know I'm grateful to you for bringing me through alive today. And now—goodbye." A sudden constraint fell between them. Khalima went to another shed on some errand and while she was gone Sherwood left.

Anne heard the dogs barking outside and feared for a moment that the head man might have come looking for his prisoners. Khalima returned with the assurance that he was undoubtedly deep in his usual opium sleep by now. She herself was ready to travel.

Old Lady
Blowing snow obliterated their tracks almost as soon as made. When they had passed the last house in the village and struck off up a side canyon with a black ribbon of water running between snowy banks, Anne caught hold of the older woman's belt, bent her head to the storm and plodded doggedly along. One the far side of the divide they found the wind less severe.

Very little snow had fallen. The path led down to bare stony ground. How Khalima could find her way was more than Anne knew, but within the hour as she had promised, they came to a caravan trail, a mud walled building of rows of rooms surrounding a court on three sides. Khalima took Anne into the owner's section of the inn and the Mohammedan woman of the place promised to help them.

The next day was clear and warm with a return of spring weather. Anne expected to see Sherwood and Mackey come by some time during the day on their way to the capital, but they did not show up.

She and the women spent the afternoon perfecting her disguise, blackening her teeth with laquer, rubbing her face with grease and soot, building a cotton hump for her back and selecting the ragged clothing appropriate for a pilgrim grandmother.

"It's a good thing for me," she thought, "that Chinese influence makes the aged respected in this Mohammedan section of the country."
Finally she took her purse mirror and looked at herself. "Heavens," she cried in dismay, "can this be my parents daughter?" The woman giggled, though they didn't understand her. "My face looks like a polished cannon ball," she moaned and proceeded to streak it with wrinkle lines, accepting a striped shawl to wrap her head in.

That evening she went out into the public kitchen for practice and crouched down in a corner and began muttering to herself as an old crone should.

A camel caravan just came in from the south. The men were squatted about in little groups drinking tea and chattering in half a dozen dialects.

Khalima, sitting near by, her fingers busy with a spindle making yarn, watched anxiously when one of the men, a little bird-like fellow with a bird-like voice, approached Anne. With the air of a kindly fellow remembering his own mother he offered the old woman a pinch of tobacco. Khalima hastily produced a little clay pipe, tamped the bowl full, brought a coal and gave Anne the pipe to smoke.

She took an experimental puff with mixed emotions remembering that many of the natives add opium to their tobacco, and then handed the pipe to her woman to finish. The man dropped down crosslegged and began talking to Khalima who listened as intently as if he were making love to her. He was telling her fortune. Anne learned afterwards. He had a shaven head, an ageless, sexless yellow face, a wide humorous mouth quirked like a bird bill, and the brightest little black eyes Anne had ever seen outside the animal kingdom.

Presently he drew from the blouse of his garments a bone flute, a little drum made of a skull, a book and a bell. Then Anne knew he must be a lama. He began beating the drum and intoning a prayer.

What do women DESPISE most in a man?
Here's the answer that countless women give: Halitosis (Bad Breath)! Women simply won't tolerate it in a man. So if you want to make a hit with your girl friend, look after your breath before your next date with her. Be sure to rinse your mouth with Listerine Antiseptic. It's wonderful for combating bad breath due to food fermentation in the mouth. That, say some authorities, is the major cause of this condition, although bad breath is sometimes due to systemic disorders. Listerine Antiseptic kills the fermentation and overcomes its odor. The breath quickly becomes sweeter, purer, less likely to offend.

They squeeze Petroleum to get better orange juice

In orange groves, a gas is "injected" into irrigation water and carried to the roots of the trees to make bigger, sweeter oranges... Because scientists at the "University of Petroleum," Shell's $3,500,000 research laboratories, "squeezed" a petroleum gas and got hydrogen. This they combined with nitrogen to make excellent fertilizer (Shell NH3).

Simple? Hardly that. Nor was it simple to combine the right molecules from petroleum and make synthetic rubber, glycerine, explosives, or the new Solutized Shell Gasoline.

Try a tankful of research genius...

NEW Solutized SHELL

TWO scientific factors advance the Road Performance Rating (RPR) of the new Shell Gasoline to an all-time high:

- 1 It is refined with the Solutizer Process (originated by Shell's research laboratories, Patent No. 2,149,379). This steps up performance by removing the "pro-knock mercaptans."
- 2 Thermal conversion makes it extra rich in iso-compounds similar to iso-octane—first produced commercially by Shell scientists to give America 100-octane aviation gasoline.

Strength For The Day By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHY EMPTY CHURCHES?

We have come to a day when there is a decided falling off in church attendance. There is probably not much to be gained by going into causes for what we need to know is not why such a thing takes place, but what can be done to remedy the situation.

But it seems most of all that people are staying away from church because the spiritual aspects of life are not real and impressive in their scheme of things.

God alone is the only true and satisfying center for life. When men seek another, they languish and die in unbelief.

DON'T BE A FOOL

This is another week-end and if the records established each of the past few such periods in North Carolina is maintained this week-end there will be another useless slaughter on our highways.

Our chief trouble is that otherwise sensible people apparently have the mistaken idea that they become race drivers the minute they get behind the wheel of an automobile for a brief outing and the result is usually a tragedy for themselves and others.

Washington Daybook By Jack Stineff Second of three articles on the highways and national defense. Washington—There are nearly 200 training camps in the nation now, with anywhere from 2,000 to 78,000 trainees each.

THE AMERICAN WAY

America is waiting anxiously for Tuesday night when President Roosevelt will deliver an address to the nation. Of course, it is not known in advance what the President will have to say, but he has been giving careful study to world affairs and how they affect our present and future, and his address Tuesday night is to be a report of these findings. If the President follows his usual form he will be plain spoken and to the point, and there will be no mistaking what he thinks about the state of the nation.

One thing is certain and that is that our people must make up their minds to stand together on whatever course we choose to follow at this time, and must remain united in our efforts and purposes. America has become the great America it is today because its people have been proud to be Americans and standing shoulder to shoulder have refused to turn back when they have seen a duty ahead to be performed. We believe the same is true of Americans today, and when we have all the facts at hand and lay our course for the future we will as united Americans give of our best to achieve our goals. That was the American way that laid the foundation of this nation and that is the American way that will preserve it now. There is no other way to be American.

Down To Cases As for the camp and plant areas let me give you a few individual reports made to the American Automobile Association by army and navy officials and by local motor clubs in California, which prides itself on its great highway system, needs immediately about 300 miles of access roads, with an estimated cost struction cost of $28,000,000 at Camp San Luis Obispo, for example traffic between camp and the town already is running to 5,000 cars a day and increasing.

At Wilmington, Ill., 3,000 defense workers commute daily to Joliet—at times almost backing out traffic movement on 17 miles of the famous U. S. Highway No. 66.

In the Norfolk, Va., area traffic congestion is probably at its worst anywhere and the local motor club reports, "Defense authorities here say that lack of proper highways would make it impossible to transfer aircraft units from nearby military posts to the navy yard within less than several days. Traffic volume in this area has increased from 50 to 242 per cent since 1940 and in the Hampton Roads area there has been a 190 per cent increase in traffic deaths over the first quarter of last year."

In Florida the traffic situation is also acute and an army colonel at Camp Blanding is reported as saying that "all the heavy guns and artillery are virtually prisoners at Camp Blanding due to poor roads in that area."

These are typical cases, and government and private road officials here assure me that they may be multiplied hundreds of times over to get a true picture of what national defense is doing to the high-

Utopia Automobile owners who pay every conceivable sort of tax on their vehicles—from the federal excise to the quarter cent a gallon inspection tax (which yields almost a million more a year than the inspection costs in North Carolina)—ought to find Ocracoke Island a real Utopia.

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker New York.—You may have an amusing and instructive afternoon watching the housewives from uptown matching their bargaining wiles against the second-hand dealers of the lower East side.

Short Shots Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, May 24.—Throughout the intense, bitter Hoy-Reynolds battle for national committee man from North Carolina the "little man who wasn't there" was Josiah W. Bailey, the senior Tar Heel in the United States Senate.

His colleague, Robert R. Reynolds was talked of in connection with his strategically sound endorsement of Pierce Rucker of Guilford. Governor J. Melville Broughton was in the very forefront of the battle. Former Governor O. Max Gardner without leaving Washington, was the target of numerous political dead cats for his alleged part in the hurrying for Hoy. Dr. Ralph McDonald was openly and unashamedly Dick Reynolds' most vigorous heel member of the federal House were dragged into the thing in one way or another.

But did you hear the name of Josiah W. Bailey even whispered throughout the tempestuous contest? You did not; and yet it wasn't so many years ago that the Senator actually selected the national committee man on his own personal behalf.

Rocky Mount Defeats Greenies In 10-Inning Contest

2ND STRAIGHT WIN FOR LEAFS

Greenies In Wilson Tonight, Here On Sunday P.M.

The Rocky Mount Leafs last night made a clean sweep of the two-game series with the Greenies, taking a 6-5 victory over the locals at Guy Smith park in a 10-inning game.

The game was halted in the early stages of the game because of a wind storm, but was resumed shortly afterwards.

The Greenies had an uphill fight all the way and scored one in the ninth, but Rocky Mount pushed across three in the extra frame. Shee walked, Kurt singled after he had been called out on strikes by Umpire Stroner, who reversed his decision and gave the batter another try. Hinton was walked to fill the bases. A wild pitch, an error and an infield out let in the three runs.

The Greenies came to bat trailing 6-3 and made two, falling short of knotting the count by one run.

Greenie will go to Wilson tonight to open a week-end series, with the two teams meeting at Guy Smith park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The locals are trailing the Leafs by two and a half games and are ahead of the third place Rocky Mount team by a game and a half.

Kaiser Wilhelm was present at a Berlin theatre, in 1900, and witnessed a performance that featured an impersonation of Germania by a young actress. He was impressed by her beauty and acting and ordered that her portrait be placed on German postage stamps.

Sound Effects With A Bite

New York—(AP)—Vicki Vola, radio actress, took her dog with her to the studio where "Mr. District Attorney" in which she plays a featured role, was being recorded. The script required her to scream for help she did, and her pet leaped in and took a nip at Keenan Wynn, playing the villain. Fortunately it bit more trouser than Wynn but the record was a total loss.

Texas Aces Expected To Shine For Home Folks In U. S. Open

(AP Feature Service)

BYRON NELSON

JIMMY DEMARET

There have been few golf championships in recent years that a Texan didn't win—or come close to winning. Four Texas stars—Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret—have all but dominated golf for four years. Starting June 5 these stars have a chance to shine in their own back yard for Texas—Fort Worth—plays host to the National Open for the first time. Any of the four could win—Guldahl, 1937-38 title; Nelson, 1939 champ; Hogan, current leading money winner, or Demaret, who won most 1940 tournaments.

RALPH GULDAHL

In last year's National Open, three of these four Texas stars were high up among the contenders. Only Demaret failed as Hogan finished fifth, Guldahl sixth and Nelson eighth. And there are other Texans who might win this year.

Many Spectators On Hand To Watch Participants

The annual East Carolina golf tournament will be completed this afternoon with some 60 golfers from the eight cities included in the league having participated.

Hob Anderson, Wilson ace, posted a 140 for the low score yesterday in the championship flight and gave entries in this group a mark at which to shoot today.

Tom Smoot, Greenville had a 74 for the first 18 holes in the first flight division, while play in the second flight found Ed Boatwright of Kinston leading with an 81 for the first 18 holes as the first of the two-day tourney came to a close.

J. B. Oakley and Staunton Harvey, entered in the third flight were tied with an 85 each in the third flight.

Trophies will be presented the winners and runners-up in each of the four flights, as well as to the medalist and runner-up in the qualifying round.

Jack Taylor was medalist in the qualifying rounds, with Stewart Carr the runner-up. The two tied with 4 each and played the match off yesterday, with Taylor turning in another 74.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbie Coon

Hollywood—Pity the poor plot-contractors who must carry on the Dorothy Lamour formula. Essential ingredients, as you know are a sweetie in a sarong and a cataclysm of nature (as in "The Hurricane," "Typhoon," "Her Jungle Love" et al).

In "Typhoon" the saronged Lamour was tossed by the big wind, singed by a forest fire, drenched by a tidal wave which put out the fire. Wind-fire-wave made a formidable combination. How to top it in "Aloma of the South Seas"? They called on Krakatoa, the East Indies

ESTELLE LAWSON

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, former national woman's golf champion, who recently won the North-South title for the fifth time, will give an exhibition match at the Kinston Country Club next Tuesday afternoon, May 27, at 1:30 o'clock. She will pair with Gamel Cotton, the Kinston Country Club pro, to oppose Al Johnson, Goldsboro pro, and Wyatt Holmes, Farmville pro.

island which "exploded" in the 1880's. But how to top Krakatoa in the next saronged adventure? Well, they might star Lamour in a piece about the end of the world. . . . Bonita Granville, who yesterday was a nasty little brat in "These Three" and became famous as the meanest little meanie on the screen is 18 now, a wholesomely radiant youthful edition of a combined Norma Shearer-Ann Harding type. She's been growing up on the screen too, and in the gossip columns which lately have been brewing a romance for her with Jackie Cooper. Bonita denies "romance," refers to "the gang," admits that within "the gang" there's usually a pairing-off and that Bonita and Jackie (within "the gang," of course) usually make a pair. Does it remind you, some way, of the younger set in your own home town?

In logical sequence to the self-dressing miracle which brought a mountain to DeMille for "North West Mounted Police," another is under way for his "Reap the Wild Wind." DeMille will have his own private sea, a glass and steel tank, 100 feet long, on the beach at Malibu. DeMille, you can readily see will be in his glory; for as actors Ray Milland and John Wayne in full diving equipment descend for closeup scenes, DeMille in a diving helmet will direct. But I'm worried. There's a fellow who, on proscenic land scenes, has the job of seeing that DeMille, whenever he sits, always has a chair hand. Suppose the fellow can't swim. . . .

Margaret Dumont, the long-suffering lady of many Marx brothers movies, has been reversing normal routine by getting fan mail for not appearing in a picture. Miss Dumont has been with the Marxes off and on for 15 years, playing Groucho's girl friend. In their last movie, "Go West," there was no role for her. She was missed. Scores of fan letters told her and the studio so. Miss Dumont is at her old stand in "Bargain Basement."

We-meet-again department: Seymour Felix, the dance director, used to be on Broadway. From the chorus of one of his musicals, he one day fired a hooper whose wisecracks were better than his stepping. The hooper, broke, took a cheap boat to Hollywood.

Today, nearly 15 years later, Felix is dance-directing on "Navy Blues." Among the stars is his ex-hooper, Jack Oakie.

SYRIA: A Key To Empire

(AP Feature Service)

Smack at the crossroads of the Middle East lies this key state in the old Ottoman empire, neighbor of British Palestine and Trans-Jordan, and Nazi stepping stone toward Iraq. Since the World War it has been a French mandate, base of a well-trained colonial army. Syria's role in war is vital—presence of German forces might gravely threaten Britain's hold on Suez and endanger its oil holdings to the east.

People of Syria are descended from the Saracens who fought off Medieval Crusaders; Assassins, who practiced murder religiously, and Hittites, who supplied wives to Old Testament heroes. Split into 20 religious sects, they are politically weakened by further division into five states. The entire country is no larger than the state of Michigan.

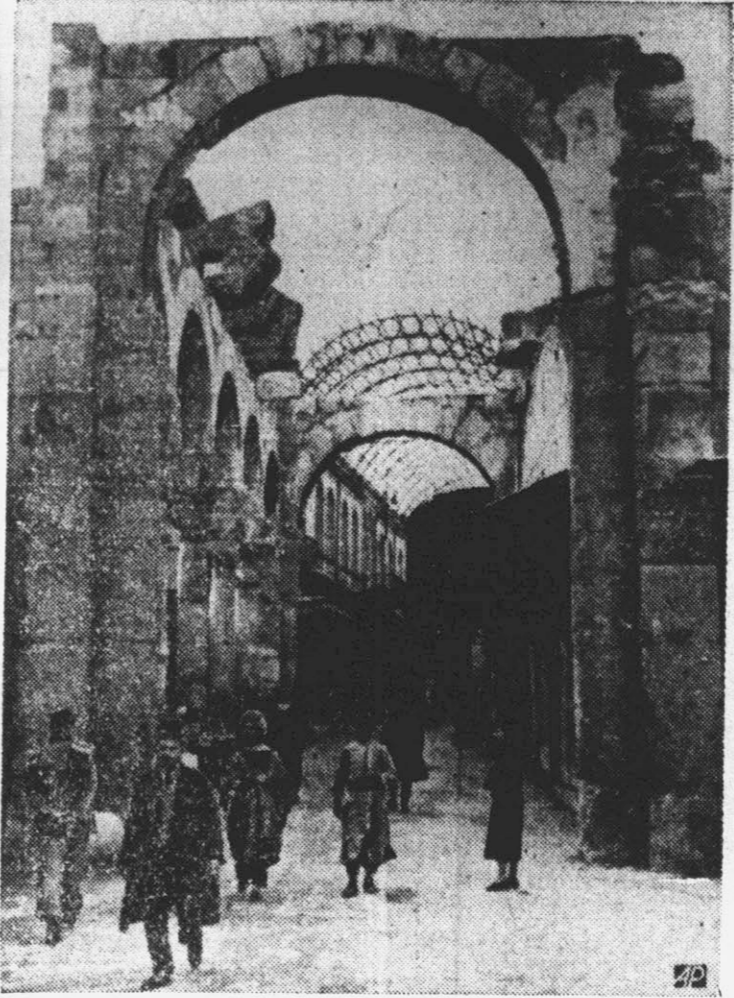

Women of Syria's rural areas still wear veils although exposing eyes and nose. Water comes from wells, is carried in jugs.

Arab soldiers form an important part of the French Syrian army of 30,000-50,000 men, reputedly weak in equipment. General Maxime Weygand built it up to place the 60,000 square miles of rock seacoast and inland desert and to keep natives in hand.

Bedouin tribesmen live in mud "beehives," cool in summer and warm in winter. Cafe society, ice boxes and permanent waves are unknown; revolt and bloodshed are comparatively common. Owners of these huts raise tobacco and wheat for sale and export.

Key of the key to empire is Damascus, often called the world's oldest inhabited city. This is its oldest thoroughfare, the famous "Street Called Straight" trod by men of the Bible. Damascus has 20th century features, too, among them an excellent airport.

SCHOOLS FAIL TO FIND JOBS

Survey Shows Little Interest After Graduation

Raleigh, May 24.—A survey directed by S. Marion Justice, state supervisor of occupational information and guidance, of school leavers (either graduates or drop-outs) in Mecklenburg for the 1939-40 school year reveals that only three out of 295 former pupils credit the schools with helping them secure employment.

Obviously the survey of such a comparatively small number of persons from one section cannot be taken as a true index of conditions everywhere in North Carolina, but it is sufficient to put a large question mark after the value of the state's school system as it concerns vocational education and occupational guidance.

Here are some of the facts brought out in Mr. Justice's survey: Of 487 graduates, only 65, or 13.3 per cent enrolled in college the following fall. An additional 15.6 per cent enrolled for some other form of training—CCC, NYA, Army, Navy, business school, nursing school, beauty culture school, and graduate work.

One hundred and thirty-two graduates were reported as being employed full time, 61 part time, 17 temporarily, while 59 were working at home or on the farm and were actively seeking employment. Of 99 drop-outs, 22 were unemployed.

Of graduates, 103 reported they were satisfied with their present jobs; 108 were dissatisfied. Of the drop-outs, 40 reported satisfaction and 79 dissatisfaction.

The school leavers found employment in 25 occupational classifications, with sales work leading the list. Other occupations in order of decreasing frequency of employment were cotton mill jobs, farm work, clerical work, waiters, waitresses, and soda jerkers; and hostery mill jobs. Average wages for salespeople were $10 a week; cotton mill workers $14 a week; office workers $14 a week.

The earnings of the drop-outs were, on the whole, approximately equal to those reported by graduates.
